SOME

THOUGHTS  ON THE NATURE OF PAPER-CREDIT,

Relative to the late Failures of Bankers and Receivers in Ireland.
By a Frex-Citizen.

Let them think now, who never thought before; Let them, who always thought, now think the more.
DUBLIN:

Printed in the Year 1759:

18. M O

:V 1 , I. g U 7

SOME

THOUGHTS

Nature of Paper-Credit.

DO CTOR Brown is of opinion, That it is difficult to bring mankind back to thought in this frivolous age. He may guefs pretty right as to the higher clais of men: but he muft allow, that virtue delights to dwell between extremes; and, therefore, good fenfe is to be found in the middle clais of men.

The objects, now in publick view, feem fufficient to ftimulate attention, and draw on ferious thoughts. The ends and purpofes of our being, that foundation of morality, may have been laughed at; snd we muft modefly put men in mind, that there are duties required of them by fociety, left the appearance of fuch indelicate forms, as labour, induftry and application, fhould fright them from their joys, and make them again put on mourning, for a tedious length of time, for their departed friend, The current Cafo of Ireland.

Upon every fudden calamity, aftonifhment pofferfes the multitude for a while; during which period, men often act inconfiftently, as out of their wits; but when furprize abates, men return to cool reafon, and fee the propriety or impropriety of their actions, and give their underftanding fair play. A good underftanding confifts in an activity of mind, which inveftigates many objects by one dart of it's powers; it weans the hearr from it's defires, and the foul from it's doubts. In the midft of hurry and tumult it makes us return into ourfelves, and leads from the love of the creature, to fovereign truth, which is the creator.

[4]

The invafion of thefe kingdoms by our inveterate enemies the French is the firf object that prefents itfelf. Far from depreffing, it only animates every loyal heart. The Houfes of parliament immediately concur in fupporting government in every reafonable expence that the exigence of ftat- may require , and publick credit is fo high, that we are told hundreds of thoufands pounds were ready to be fublcribed in an hour ! So much for publick credit.

Next comes a terrible object indeed, attended with a difmal train of deprefling confequences; univerfal diftruft and difmay! the publick difovers her worft enemies, treachery and fraud. fixed in her very bofom, preying upon her vitals, and daring to look her in the face, after exhaufting half her blood: rapacious money-jobbers? the leeches, the peft of fociety!

Readinefs to relieve diftrefs is one of the nobleft acts of humanity ; and to that we muft attribute the expedient foran affociation to fupport publick credit, or rather paper-currency, at this time of Invafion. This affociation is fubferibed to by our moft excellent governour, the heads of the church, the flower of our nobility, and the mort important members of the commons. Befides, the right honourable the lord mayor, aldermen and fome citizens have taken wpon them to reprefent the publick; and have refolved, "That the offers or propofals, made " by the bankrupt bankers, are fair, honourable " and fatisfactory to the publick."

[5]

By Mr. Mitchel's propofal, counfellor Wolfe is appointed truftee for his creditors, and fecurities and lands vefted in him to the value of 147,0001 . for the payment of 70,0001 . due to his creditors, with legal intereft for his notes, and 51 . per cent. for all other demands. The effect of 'Mr. Mitchel's induftry appears to be 78,0001 , which is eafily accounted for from civil lift remittances, &cc, and his connection with rreafury bankers.

The bank of meffieurs the right honourable Anthony Malone, the right honourable Nathaniel Clements, and John Gore, efq; king's council, and council to the commiffioners of his majefty's revenue, propofe to give their creditors other paper, bearing an intereft of 51 . per cent. payable in two years, by half-yearly payments. The firf payment in fix months. Which may be attended with a little inconvenience to the creditors, as the parliament will rife before that time, and confequently their redrefs may be poftponed for eighteen months longer. Befides, thefe bankers have not favoured the publick with an account of the fums they have conjured from the people. Report makes them 281,000 It which is more than one half of the current cafh of the kingdom; to which you muft add the deficiency of their cafhier, on his own account, 71,0001 . for the connection between them may be a very effential point in law for their creditors to remember. They have not told the publick what the nature of their effects is ; or how far notes or receipts may affeet real eftates; or what unfettled ftates they are poffeffed of; or how they have difpofed of the large collection they have made to the advantage of publick credit, and the improvement of the trade of ftock-jobbing. All which, I fuppofe, is referved for a parliamentary enquiry, as the fpeedieft and moft effectual method of reftoring publick credit.

I am fo unfortumate as to differ in opinion with my lord mayor, as to thef propofals being either fair, honourable or fatisfactory ; and mult confefs, I am at as great a lofs to underftand, how fupporting a fet of bankrupts can be any advantage to publick credit. So far as this palliative may be proved ufeful to the publick, fo far it may be deemed commendable; but if it fhould be made a fcreen to protect criminals from publick juftice; and deprive the injured creditor of the fatisfaction and remedy the laws of his country give him; or even to carry on the delufion 'till the end of the feflion of parliament, and prevent an enquiry into the conduct of thefe mo-ney-jobbers; in all thefe cafes, it mult be efteemed, by every impartial reafoner, the higheft infult and aggravation of our diftrefs. To fet this in a clear light three things are to be confidered. If, What the laws of the country are with relation to men who exercife the craft or trade of bankers : under which the mercantile laws of bills of exchange are to be remembered, and what fanction is given to them by the leginlature. By our law books "The reafon "s and cuftom of bills of exchange is for the "s expedition of trade and it's fatety; and to " hinder the exportation of coin out of the " kingdom." 6 Mod, 29. By the act of 8th Geo. I. c. 14 " "A Any

[7]

- banker iffuing out promiffary notes, payable " on demand, or at a certain day, and thall not " pay fuch notes; he, his heirs, &tc. are liable " to legal intereft for the fame; the plaintives " may have their action and judgment. Bankors concealing themfelves are liable to actions. " Conveyance of their eftates after abfconding " void, as to their creditors." N. B. Quere, whether a perfon, in privilege, can be faid to abfoond; and if he makes conveyances and enrolls them during privilege, it may give rife to a point of law?

The laws of the exchequer, treafury and revenue muft be confidered, to fee how far the fervants of the crown, concerned in the care of it's treafure, are prohibited from traffick. Merchants are excluded from being bankers by a late act ; whether the reafon for it is plaulible or folid is a queftion.

2dy, We confider what the rules of bankers are in the light of fair traders.

Thofe men, that mind their bufinefs and make a confcientious ufe of the truit repofed in them, know that money, depofited in their hands, is like their foul, to be rendered up upon demand ; they are therefore punctual in difcharge of that truft, and contented with a moderate, but honeft profit. But when paper-credit gets into the hands of men of power, who think themfelves as much above honefty, as they are above the mechanic part, this papercredit becomes a moft dangerous inftrument of deffruction to the whole community. All monopolies are dangerous to trade; but a money monopoly will fap the foundation of the beft formed conftitution, that ever was eftablifhed. A multiplicity of loans, or too great a circulation lation of paper-credit, is dangerous to every ftate, when thefe loans have not commerce for their object. Luxury commences the ruin of families; the refource of borrowing foon fi* nifhes them, and draws after it the ruin of the ftate by making men venal. Poftlethwait afferts, that there is not one fourth of the landed property of England in the fame families that poffeffed it at the Revolution ; which change he attributes entirely to paper-credit, which commenced about that period of time. Had thefe bankrupts continued five years, he might have made the fame comfortable remark here : therefore every man, that wifhes to continue his eftate in his family, will look with a careful cye to the tranfactions of fuch bankers.

[8]

The year after the breaking of the three banks, all dealers admitted, there never was more fpesie in Ireland; which fhews, that we may have meney if we pleafe.

While there is fuch a premium given in England,' as has been given during this war, and ftocks continue low, money-changers will venture their necks, by facrificing the publick to their private profit. Sir Ifaac Newton, who was mafter of the mint in England, remark, that, upon a fmall miftake in valuing the French piftoles, the Jews in fix weeks time, threw in upon England 400,000 1. A much worfe fraud was committed in Ireland. Quadruple piftoles had a currency by proclamation at 3 I. I3s. a prodigious number were imported of an impurer gold, which, upon examination, were defective about is, 6d. each; the council rectified their mittake ; but 50,0001 . worth had paffed into the hands of the pablick; but who circulated them was never enquired about by any of our ftate Argus's; whether any of them were bankers at that time, I know not; but fure I am, that this repeated plunder of the people calls aloud for juftice.

[9]

$3^{\text {dly, We mult examine what detriment the }}$ publick may receive from this lofs of its circulating cafh, according to the Roman law, Nequid detrimenti refpublica capiat, from the confpiracies, affociations or proceedings of individuals.

To return to the point of thefe fair, honourable and fatisfactory propofals. I fhall beg leave to afk this queftion; 'If the laws of my coun-- try give me a better remedy againft a perfon - that injures me, than he condefcends to offer - me; would any man in his fenfes, except a - lord mayor, fay, that it was fair or fatisfactory ?" Now behold the ftatute of Geo. I. fays, 'A ban-- ker fhall pay legal intereft for his notes.' But a banker receives my cafh upon a greater confidence, and I only take his accountable receipts : he fhuts up, and tells me he will give me 5 per cent. 1 take "all other demands," in Mr. Mitchel's propofa1, to include accountable receipts. I am fure the right honourable receivers make ufe of the fame quibble, to evade the law of le, gal intereft. Is this fair, honourable and fatisfactory? does not this create a diffidence of lawyers? who are bankers to receive, but only receivers, when called upon to pay ! let us remember the law proceedings, the law truftees, and the law agents, for the creditors of Burton's bank. It has been near thirty years in the courts; and, a very few years ago, they contrived to get an act of parliament, to oblige the creditors to compound for any fum, that fhould be ayreed to by two-thirds of the creditors; notwith landing they owned there was a fund fufficient to pay each perfon their principal and intereft, But hold, fay thefe money-jobbers, we great men are not to be treated like mechanics; we know better than to put ourfelves in the power of the law. Two of us, by profeffion, are mafters of evafion. We are not bankers; we only condefcend to receive our friends money, and give accountable receipts. Let us fee how your banker's act can take hold of us, or our eftates. But we would rather not talk of thefe affairs in parliament time; becaufe they have an old-fafhioned method of trying people on what the law calls a malum in $\rho$ e. It may be neceffary to know, how thefe honourable receivers (the old proverb fays, ' The receiver is as bad as the thief,') are come-at-able? where are their eftates and fecurities vefted? what would be the confequence of the death (I mean, in a natural way) of any of the partners, in leffening the value of their fecurities to their creditors? and is not the immediate feizing on the real and perfonal eftates of the delinquents, likely to give more fecurity than their promife? befides, perfons, whofe fouls are poffeffed with avarice, might think, with the mifer in the comedy, "What a world of mo"s ney might be faved, had I hanged myfelf ye* "fterday 1 "

[10]

The publick has fwallowed fo many pills, for thefe laft feven years, from thefe worthy friends, that men imagine any crudity will go down; fince the Draper is dead, and they had power to banifh Lucas. Alas! poor Ireland! what a noife and buftle your furly dean made about a few bad halfpence! what a foaming your medalpatriots made about the purfe of the nation! yet no one had eyes to fee the thief in the candle. Who fcreened the filers of guineas? who introduced introduced bad quadruples? who managed Dillon's bank, fo as to leave the creditor not above 2s. 6 d . in the pound ? the fame of Lenox's. The Quakers had no connection with power; fo their creditors won't lofe much by them. Can any one compute how much this poor country has fuffered from all this rapine and villainy?

While the great are vying with each other in every act of lexury, they little confider the diftrefs of ruined tradefmen, helplefs widows, and orphans; the broken farmer ; the mifery and diftrefs attending on every ftoppage of the current cafh, which is the blood of fociety; the merchant, and every kind of dealer, whofe little capital is detained from them. What is 51 . per cent. to a manufaeturer, who ought to make 501 ? The fupport of him and his family is but a drop of water in their ocean of riches : yet the want of it is mifery and ruin, the poor man's lot. And certainly whatever deftroys trade mult foon leffen the value of lands. To what are we indebted for all this confufion? To the pride, avrrice and ambition of a few, to whofe heated imagination nothing could appear too high or too low; even the very government of the kingdom, they thought to poffefs it with the fame eafe Mr . Bays brings about his revolution in the Rehearfal, viz. " Brother, I'll feize this, while you " feize t'other chair."

The fons of Mammon are reckoned wifer, in their generation, than the children of light. When a pyramid is to be raifed, a knowing man forms the bafe equal to the intended heighth. The rights and properties of other men were but a fmall obftruction, eafily fwallowed up in a fcheme to monopolize the whole cafh of a kingdom. To vulgar dull heads their fcheme feemed rather hypothetical than practical : yet, wherr we confider that the publick revenue amounts to near 700,000 1. a year, how ealy is it for officers, civil or military, or belonging to courts of chancery or law, (for depofits of money mutt be made, and mafters in chancery are not fuch fools, as to keep it locked up) to call on their friends, and take bills for their money? Then your borrowers of money, a grazier, a lord, or a gentleman, want a thoufand pounds; they are always fo polite to take bills; fo circulation enfues; at laft 352,000 1. fticks behind. Befides, whatever rents the borrower has are paid into the bank, to the great damage of country agents. Moreover, young heirs are careffed; "Sir, "you may have what money you pleafe." The u urers are the genteeleft fellows and beft friends in the world. 'Till Nicodemus has got fo deep in the mire, he cannot get out. A fpider is a generous infect to fuch lly-catchers.

[ 12 ]

But the fecret of the deficiency depends upon a view of their books; if fome Mr. Knight has not whipped them away. There a Committee will fee what capital thefe adventurers fet out upon ; how much cafh each depofited; what the nature of the eftate was they vefted, and in whom : for it is almoft ridiculous to mention what they gave out themfelves, viz. that each of the three was 30,0001 . in debt for purchas fes, and encumbrances on their eftates. The more a man's affairs are perplexed, tipecially when in the cuftody of men of the law, the worfe his fecurity. This feems to be laughing at the genius of Ireland, as if nothing but a bull would ge down : or elre, the old adage takes place. "Quos deurs vult perderer prius "dementat." Their whole proceeding demon-

Arates an infolent contempt of all their fellow fubjects, and introduces a fufpicion of a fupport fomewhere; but where, I fhall not name, while a Ruffel prefides in Ireland; for the old cant of jacobite, papift and difaffected will never deceive him, though it did poor lord Harrington, while he fees men are enquiring after a truth, that will reftore vigour and ability to a loyal and abufed people. In England, the cheating the people by paper bubbles is no laughing matter, as Mr . Aifleby, chancellor of the exchequer, experien ced in the South-fea direction. He was detected, and obliged to retire for life; though he had crafe enough to preferve a minifterial fortune. Mr. Walpole, afterwards Sir Robert, was expelled for touching a little about a forage contract. The Charitable Corporation alfo, erected to fupport publick credit, and ferve the poor, proved a fet of villains; they could not prevail on the miniftry, or mayor of London, to certify their deeds were fair, honourable and fatisfactory. Such-members as were of the houfe of commons were expelled, their effates feized, and they thrown into gaol. Recollect thefe learned gentlemen's own arguments againft Arthur Nevil Jones, efq; and it will convince you of the inde-s cency of their fitting any longer in a houfe of parliament. If they are bankers, let them, for honsfty's fake, fhew their faces behind their counters to their creditors, out of privilege. Had the prime minifter of England, the treafurer, and his majefty's council, learned in the laws, entered into fuch a combination to draw to themfelves, out of the pockets of a deluded people, half the fecie in the kingdom, what power, could have faved them.

No body can throw fuch a reflection on the capacities

[ 14 ]

capacities of thefe eminent men, as not to acknowledge, they muft have afted againft full conviction of the injury they were doing their country. Human frailties feem to require compaffion from one man to another; as the animal paffions are apt to prevail over the po vers of the mind : but fraud, treachery, and vindictive fpite and deceit, are acts of the mind, and imply malice and forethought; therefore not exculpable. But fay the advocates for paper-credit, ' What 6 have thefe gentlemen done? have they acted - againft any act of parliament, which excludes - judges, king's council, or privy counfellors ‘from being bankers? They have afted wilfully and fratudulently againft the firf of all laws, the good of the publick. There is a law of Hen. VIII. which makes the deftroying the munitions of war treafon. I don't think it exprefsly fays, that blowing up a magazine of powder, when the enemy is at the gates, is treafon; yet if any one pleafe to try the experiment, I fancy he will fuffer the pains and penalties of treafon. It is faid in hiftory, that the famous Spanifh armada was ftopt for three weeks by an Englifh merchant's draughts upon Genoa. We are at this inftant threatened with a like invafion : but our good patriots, ftatefmen, fair, honourable and fatisfactory receivers and bankers, have ftopped payment for $\eta$-8ths of the fpecie of the kingdom, computing it at 400,000 l. Our good and faithful friends, their High Mightineffes the States General, have not affifted his Gallick Majefty fo effectually, as the tranfporters of calh out of this kingdom ; which muft be all laid upon the poor Papifhes, as they are called, ('tis poffible fome Papift may have a hand in it ); but of all the bold frokes, the advertifing that the ftoppage of payment is owing to the want of specie is the moft daring! In the name of truth, who exported it? and where can the imprefion lie fo ftrong, as againtt the people that have received, and made the moft remittances, and had the greatelt profits for fo doing. Was not all the money they received paid into Mr. Mitchel's bank? It makes them rich, but the people poor indeed! The gentlemen of the law will not deny, that there are ways of being guilty of treafons at Common Law, and thofe treafons not fpecified in our books of fatutes. Suppofe perfons intrufted with the wealth, fecurity, or happinefs of a kingdom; yet knowingly prevert that truft to the ruin of that people, who pay them immenfe falaries to protect and defend them ; is not this treafon?

A gain, their advocates fay, how unreafonable is all this? have not thefe hobeft gentemen been at the ctrouble to get apinions; from eminent lawyers, to fatisfy you their eftates áre alienable? True ; but fellow-citizens, caveto. Have you feen the cafe they ftated? wilo thefe eminene lawyers fay their eftates were alienable for their receipts ? or do they mean, that fuch eflates, as are in their power free from enroiments, fettlements, entails or judgments, will be liable to their notes, when they commence bankers under the fatute of the 8th of Geo. I. which they mean to do, by giving paper notes for their re ${ }^{2}$ ceipts? I believe thefegreat lawyers witt allow, that if a man breaks my defk, and takes my cafh, the law will biang him, though he offers his note for the money. And in the law of rea fon, the man that breaks his faith has broke the mafter lock of fociery. Let us remember that the fum due is 350,0001 . Have thiefe gèm slemen, in a year and a few months, amaffed 20,0001 . a year in lands and fecurities? for if they have not, allowing the law the moft moderate proportion it ever got, (confidering them as Amicus's) yet, at leaft, oue fourth of the capital muft reft in the courts of law, confidering the number of law-fuits neceffary to recover fo much money ; the bills to be filed, &c. &c. Why, it is work for half a century at leaft! and would the law hure fuch noble benefactors? My friends, though Ilive at Derry, yet if the plague was in the cencre of the kingdom, I would not think myfelf fafe: befides, I have fome feeling for my fellow creatures and neigho bours. We have got into Polyphemus's cave, where the cunningeft Ulyffes of us all can only expect the favour of being the laft fwallowed up. Yet, my lord mayor proclaims them ноnourable Men I Jugurcha would reply, "Venalis civitas et mox peritura, fi emptorem "inveneris." The affociation of fo lany refpectable perfons muft have great influence : but to perfons, who deal more in demonftration than implicit faith, they cannot readily comprehend how an indifcriminate taking of bankers and bankrupts notes, in all manner of payments, (which, by the by, will make them equitable tenders to thofe that have affociated; and which the law was wife enough to guard them againft) can be either prudent, or fafe, or advantageous to the publick; as it is forcing a credit. Would not an Englifh or Dutch goldfmith, regular men of bufinefs, and in full credit, think thenfelves highly injured by being put on a footing with barkrupts? But in thofe countries, the whole fpecie of the kingdom doth not pafs through the treafury every eight months. They ftand upon their own bottom, and are not appreherifive of being crufhed by undue influence: therefore will not fubmit to fuch indignities. The affociation alfo mentions the caufe of their fhutting up owing to the fearcity of coin ; and who in the name of wonder made the fcarcity? Thef Receivers tell you, with great fang froid, we only picked your pockets, our cafhier Mitchel negociated : There is fuggettion and connection for you, and thereby they mean to eftablifh credit, like the 86 weavers votes in the Dublin election. Upon the whole, the kingdom is drained of the finews of war, and trade of the current coin ; and Ireland has but one tryal more to make, viz. Whether fhe fhall be redreffed for the injuries fh has received; or private corruption is mighty enough to weigh her down in the fcale of juftice. But let us mot be depreffed under our calamity. The goodnefs of providence often fmiles out in mercy, when we think ourfolves moft unh ppy. This apparent evil may prove our deliverance from wicked men, and reftore moral honefty and confidence amongft mankind, by fupporting the juft and fair dealer, and punifh the harpies of lawlefs poner, fraud and corruption in every Mhape.

The confternation attending a general calamity is apt to caft a panic upon every individual; each man, with reafon, thinks himfelf unequal to cope with the combined powers of riches, craft, and faction; for Saturn has his Satellites, and undue influence. But let them remember, that a good heart will always find means to ferve his country. Look batt to England, and fee the glorious deeds of one honeft man. He has drove the wicked from before the throne, and our gracious fovereign flines forth in all his native luftre to blefs a grateful people; while his faithful minifter has almoft miraculoufly reftored vigour and prowefs to a drooping, debilitated country; and fhewed the world that virtue aione is fit to triumph, is fit to govern mankind. Will he, who faved his mother country, facrifice her fubjects in this, or give it up a prey to cormorants, the fycophants of power? It cannot be; may, nor it mult not be; without we can fuppofe,

[18]

"Her children will tand by and fee
"Their mother fain, or ravifh'd be."
Can any freeman forget that fpirited law of Athens, that deems every neutral man an enemy to his country, who did not take fome part in her diftractions, An open enemy is lefs to be feared than a timid lukewarm friend. The Roman fpiyit honours her conful, for not defpairing in her utmoft calamity. No, my countrymen, though you have been duped, deceived, and abufed by fubtle, felfifh, defigning, ambitious men, who ufed your honeft firit of liberty, but as a foottep t. raife hem to grapple with the throne ; their infult to majefty, and treachery to you, was one and the fame act : yet, to pleafe you, they were rewarded with every mark of honour and diftinction ; and now they defpife, laugh at, and cheat you. I know that there are fome gloomy minds; that think, as Salluft writes of the Roman nobility of his time, and even include the reverend prelates, "Inertiffimi nobiles, in quibus, ficut " in fatua, præter nomen nihil eft addita " menti." Others fhake their Heads and cry out of $\cdots 0$ but 58 have figned, and of thofe, not above a baker's dozen but are placed or promifed. How can we hope Men will attend, when every thing is myfterioufly managed by a junto. What's the meaning of thefe new powers of calling; if they don't mean to pr-r-g-e fuddenly? A way with fufpicion; you have an honourable and honeft fet of trultees : they will call every man to his place.

Can you think thofe dauntlefs patriots, who bid power defiance, and talked of Ti berius, tyranny, and faddling Ball, and bears, and what not; and would do no bufinefs, till they afferted the rights of parliament to lay their refolution relating to penfions before the throne; who releved the foldiers from fmall dues, by fettling 4,000l. a year upon the fervants of officers out of the $\mathrm{c}-\mathrm{v}-1$ lift. Will they let thefe things pafs to your ruin? No, they clearly fee that vacant employments mult be filled up; that the higheft recommendation, in thefe halcyon days, are abilities capable of preferving your conftitution and liberties; and every fucking lawyer knows, that ch--1-r Weft got his preferment, by the figure he made, at the tryal of the bifhop of Rochefter. But above all, a remnant is left of men who never fwerved from their duty to the publick; and, by the power of g --ce, the defcendant of the glorious lord Ruffel, who brought in the exclufion-bill, becaufe the heir to the crown had imbibed principles inconfiftent with the rights and liberties of freemen, now fits a reprefentative for the people of Ireland. Every county, every voice will call upon their reprefentatives for juftice : a Ruffel fhall move the enquiry, and obtain fatisfaction for the injured publick; or, by impeaching the criminals, revive part of your dormant conftitution. This will reftore faith and confidence among mankind. Induftry will flourifh, when the labouring man is fecured againft that fraud,

$$
\left[20_{1}\right]
$$

which fwallows at once the fruits of his patience and care. Men will be wife enoug, to live agreeable to their circumftances. Reafon will fupplant luxury. Ireland will renew it's ftrength, like the eagle. Every man will be fecure from ufurers under his own vine. Our power wil be equal to our loyalty, and publick credit appear in her natural fhape, and confound that phantom paper ufury, that now affumes her form.

> I am your faithfill Servant,

A Free-Citizen.

A SCHEME

[21]

A SCHEME for fupplying the broken Banks with Cafh: or, A little honourable Satisfaction for Agents.

To Agents, whether belonging to the Clergy or Laity.

Gentlemen Agents, $ 7 HEREAS it is the will and pleafure of your lords and mafters, that their agents do take, without diftinction, all bankers notes, in all manner of payments; now you, being ever mindful of your duty, with a fmall eye to your own profit, are advifed to hurry and diftrain the tenants, as foon as poffible, for the remnants of cafh remaining in the Kingdom ; and you may well encreafe that tax of forbearance, in this emergency, by the money fo collected out of twenty-four bifhopricks 68,0001 . out of lay-lords eftates 60,0001 . out of affociating commoners 70,0001 . in the whole,

$$
198,0001 .
$$

$$
\left[\begin{array}{ll}
22
\end{array}\right]
$$

198,000l. befides fines, charities, &c. 22,000l more, being the halfyear's rents. Now it is but putting a good face, and expreffing great concern for your friends the bankers, that, in their diftrefs, you have brought a little of your own money. They will open a back door to receive your cafh, and have fenfe enough to tip 101 . per cent. in exchange for their notes, which you are immediately to tender to your lords and mafters; and fo you do your duty.

$$
J-n T-w
$$

PUBLIC SPIRIT: or, A Scheme for the relief of unhappy fufferers by the failure of the banks.

wHEREAS it rems rather matter of faith and hope than certainty, that the creditors of the broken banks will ever be paid their money, and depends much on the mystery of the law ; and whereas the neceffities of feveral creditors will oblige them to fell at any diffcount ufurers pleafe to exact, after the rifing of parliament : It is humbly proposed, to thew the diftinction between paper credit and publick credit, that 350,0001 . be railed by vote of credit, and paid for the relief of the diftreffed creditors of faid broken receivers and bankers, and their notes or accomptable receipts taken in payment of the fubfeription for faid loan. That the eftates, effects (not forgetting the gold medals) of perfons concerned in faid banks, be feized into the hands of the publick, to be converted into cafh, with all convenient fpeed; and upon receipt of every ten thoufand pounds, notice to be given that fuch a number of debentures are to be difcharged by lot ; and all infurance taken to indemnify perfons fo drawn, made felony. A fchedule of effects to be publicly printed.

[24]

FIN18.

