INTRODUCTION.

THE Irish Association for the Prevention of Intemperance respectfully submit the following Declaration on the Sunday Closing Question.

The Sunday Closing Act came into operation in October, 1878, and has now been rather more than three years in force. It will expire in December 1882, unless Parliament shall otherwise determine.

The experiment has been tried during a period of exceptional excitement in the country, but, notwithstanding this the results have been most marked, and are generally admitted. In 1877, the consumption of SPIRITS AND BEER in Ireland amounted to £12,169,915. In 1880, it amounted to £9,174,803, being a reduction of close upon THREE MILLION POUNDS STERLING in three years. In 1877, the arrests for drunkenness numbered 110,903. In 1880, they stood at 88,048, shewing a reduction of nearly 23,000. There has also been a marked decline in arrests for common assaults.

The cities of Dublin, Cork, Limerick, and Waterford, and the town of Belfast were exempted from the full operation of the measure, and this Declaration is intended to inform Parliament as to the state of public opinion in these places.

It is not intended to convey that such a document is necessary conclusive on the question. It is only one of many evidences of public opinion in these cities.

The Executive Committee, Irish
Association for the Prevention of Intemperance.
