P R E F A C E.

IT will appear to any one who will give himself the trouble of examination, that no fair and exact collation of Shakespeare hath yet been presented to the public. Great were the hopes that Mr. Capel's edition would have at length gratified their curiosity, in giving them with his text, the various readings of the old editions in one view, that every reader might be furnished with materials to judge, and that with ease and readiness, what might be Shakespeare's, and what not. But so far from such a desirable end being answered by his edition, we are only farther led in the dark thereby; and are held in trust for notes, which might much better have been inserted with the text. But he was afraid his notes placed with the text should spoil the beauty of the book. If they are good ones they would not: for that man must be greatly mistaken in his ideas of beauty, who prefers the handsome appearance of a page in black and white, to the quick and easy information of his readers in matters necessary to be known for their becoming proper judges of the sense of the author, and the goodness of the edition. Would not Mr. Capel's readers have been much more obliged to him, if with the text he had given his notes, which (supposing them valuable) would, in such a situation, have had additional value, in being easily perused, without the trouble of turning over pages, and interrupting, for a longer time than was necessary, their way through the author? for this will be the case when his notes do appear.

His method in compiling the text was to print after what he thought the best edition of each play, with such alterations as he saw fit to make, giving notice what those alterations were.

And

P R E F A C E. ix

And he proposes hereafter, in his School of Shakespeare, to give his reasons for preferring the particular edition he makes use of. But this is far from being the best method; for it is evident that one edition, though the best, may be in many places corrected by another, though a worse edition; and the several editions are a mutual help to each other; or why do editors collate? And if they do collate, why do they not publish their collations, so that their readers may be in possession of them? No editor that I know of has a right to impose upon every body his own favourite reading, or to give his own conjectural interpolation, without producing the readings of the several editions: the editor who does so, though he may be a good critic, will not be looked upon as a fair dealer: for after all, the public will be the judge; and will censure every editor according as he has abused or disabused it.

x P R E F A C E.

What the public is here presented with, is only one play of Shakespeare faithfully collated, line by line, with the old as well as modern editions; the different readings whereof are given with notes at the bottom of the page. After the names of the persons of the drama, directions are added for finding all the scenes where each character appears; every other page is marked with the number of the act and scene; and a sketch of the play is given. These last will, perhaps, be thought needless; but one may venture to affirm, that any person who reads Shakespeare with a critical intention, and is desirous of comparing characters and scenes, will not be offended that recourse to passages may here, by these means, be had with more ease than in any other edition.

This play is published as a specimen, which if approved of, the work will be pursued (health and opportunity permitting) through the whole of Shakespeare's dramatic works. 'Tis no doubt a slavish business to proceed through so many editions of so voluminous a writer, in the slow and exact manner this editor hath done in King Lear, and proposes to do in the rest of Shakespeare's plays; and though it is a work that seemed absolutely necessary; yet nothing but the merit of the author, and the approbation of his admirers, could inspire one with patience to undergo so laborious a task.

* KING LEAR.

A TRAGEDY.

EDITIONS COLLATED.

1st Quarto. M. William Shak-speare: his True Chronicle Historie of the Life and Death of King Lear, and his three Daughters. With the unfortunate Life of Edgar, Sonne and Heire to the Earle of Glo'ster, and his fullen and assumed humor of Tom of Bedlam: as it was played before the King's Majestie at Whitehall upon S. Stephans night in Christmas Hollidayes. By his Majesties servants playing usually at the Gloabe on the Bancke-side. London, Printed for Nathaniel † Butter, and are to be sold at his shop in Pauls Church-yard at the sign of the Pide Bull near St. Austins Gate, 1608.

2d Quarto. M. William Shake-speare, his true Chronicle History, &c. (as in the 1st) Printed for

* P. and all after call it, The Life and Death of King Lear; which is, to be sure, nearer to the title of the qu's: but it is evident this is not a proper title, as the play takes in but a small part of Lear's life. The fo's call it, The Tragedy of King Lear. And R. King Lear, a Tragedy.

† J. calls him Butler.

Nathaniel

Nathaniel Butter, (without any direction to the place of sale) 1608.

[These two Quarto's, though of the same date, appear to be different editions, not only as the one has not the place of sale set down in the title page, which is set down in the other; but as they have different readings; and the pages do not tally together.

In the course of collating this play, I have had reason to think that the quarto which I have marked the 1st, is the older edition of the two. And it may be observed, that the folio's read more after the 1st than the 2d.]

The four folio's; and the modern editions of Rowe, Pope, Theobald, Hanmer, Warburton, and Johnson, to which references are made by the initial letters of the editors names.

Sc. I. THE king's palace. Enter Kent, Glo'ster, and Edm. Talk of the division of the kingdom between Lear's daughters. Glo. recommends his bastard son Edm. to Kent.

Sc. II. To them enter Lear, Cornwall, Alb. Gon. Reg. Cor. and attendants. Lear calls for the map of the kingdom, which, he says, he (intending to leave the cares of government) has divided into three parts between his daughters. But, designing to make a trial which of them loved him best by their expressions of affection, he calls upon each of them to declare the measure of their love. After Gon. and Reg. have flattered him with extravagant declarations of the most unbounded love; Cor. from the sincerity of her heart tells him she can love him no more than in duty bound. Upon which Lear disclaims her as his child, and divides the kingdom between Cornwall and Albany, the husbands of Gonerill and Regan, renouncing all but the name of king and an hundred knights to attend him. Kent endeavours

Sc. VIII. Manet Edm. Soliloquy.

SCENE II.

^a Enter King Lear, Cornwall, Albany, Gonerill, Regan, Cordelia, and attendants.

Lear. Attend ^b my lords of France and Burgundy, ^c Glo'ster.

Glo. I shall, my liege. [Exit.

Lear. Mean time we ^d will exprefs our darker ^e purposes ;
^f Give me the map ^g there. Know, we have divided
In three our kingdom ; and 'tis our ^h fast intent
To shake all cares and businefs from our age,

^a The qu's read Sound a fennet, enter one bearing a coronet, then Lear, then the dukes of Albany and Cornwall, next Gonorill, Regan, Cordelia, with followers.

^b So the qu's; the rest read the for my.

^c P. and H. omit Glo'ster.

^d So the qu's; the rest, shall for will,

^e So the qu's; the rest purpose.

^f The qu's omit Give me.

^g So the qu's, and 1st and 2d fo's; the rest read here.

^h The qu's read first; P. leaves it quite out; W. says, this (viz. the word fast) is an interpolation of T. for want of knowing the meaning of the old reading in the q. 1608, and 1 f. 1623, viz. first; (but here W. falsely accuses T. of interpolation, for all the fo's and R. read fast) which is as Shakespear wrote it (a thing impossible to be known) who makes Lear declare his purpose with a dignity becoming his character: that the first reason of his abdication was the love of his people, that they might be protected by such as were better able to discharge the trust; and his natural affection for his daughters only the second. W.

But it seems more likely that Shakespear wrote fast, i. e. firm and unalterable, because it makes better sense in this place. He is so far from giving the love of his people as the first reason of his abdication, that he does not so much as hint at that, but his own ease is the reason he gives, as the word unburden'd demonstrates; and he gives no second reason at all.

From our age. The qu's read of our state.

ⁱ Conferring them on younger ^k strengths, ^l while we Unburden'd crawl tow'rd death. Our son of Cornwall,
And you, our no less loving son of Albany,
We have this hour a constant will to publish
Our daughters' several dow'rs, that future strife
May be prevented now. ^m The princes, France, and Burgundy,
 Great rivals in our ⁿ youngest daughter's love,
 Long in our court have made their amorous sojourn,
 And here are to be answer'd. Tell ^o me, ^p my daughters, (^q Since now we will divest us both of rule,
Interest of territory, cares of state)
 Which of you, shall we say, doth love us most?
 That we our largest bounty may extend
 Where nature doth with merit challenge. Gonerill,
 Our eldest born, speak first.

Gon. ^s Sir, I ^t do love you more than ^u words can ^{*} wield the matter,

Dearer than eye-sight, space, and liberty;

^p P. omits my, followed by the after-editors.

decency, insinuate she knew of any pleasures which the fifth afforded. This is imagined and expressed with great propriety and delicacy. W.

But by square of sense, Shakespear seems rather to understand the whole compass or extent of sense, without regard to any particular number, as W. supposes. Besides, by an exclusion of the fifth from the number of the senses he makes the lady insinuate the idea of that very pleasure which he represents her as affecting to seem totally ignorant of.

Lest ^a it may mar your fortunes.

Cor. Good my lord;

Obey you, love you, and most honour you.
Why have my sisters husbands, if they say,
They love you, all? ^b haply when I shall wed,

Half my love with him, half my care and duty.

ⁿ All the modern editions direct the words, Hence, and avoid my sight, to be spoken to Cordelia; but they are undoubtedly addressed to Kent. For in the next words Lear sends for France and Burgundy, in order to tender them his youngest daughter, if either of them would accept her without a dowry. At such a time therefore to drive her out of his presence would be a contradiction to his declared intention. Heath.

And for that very reason I think, with submission, the words are spoken to Cordelia, and not to Kent. It is plain, Cordelia had raised his fury to the highest pitch; Kent was not yet so far advanced; he had but just begun to speak, and that in the most respectful terms, Good my liege.—Lear, with all his rage, still retained so much love and respect for him, and so much hope of diverting him from the attempt, he saw he was beginning, to dissuade him from his resolution of disinheriting Cordelia, that he warns him of the danger of continuing it—Come not between the dragon and his wrath; and even after proceeding in it, when Kent interrupted him a second time, and resumed his addresses, Lear also continued his warning—The bow is bent and drawn, make from the shaft. Kent, seeing that respectful behaviour had no effect, has recourse to rougher language: even after that, Lear thinks to make him cease by a severe and passionate prohibition—Kent, on thy life no more. Kent still persists, and urges his own inflexible loyalty as a reason for his being heard: Lear then first bids him out of my sight; Kent further intreats, Lear swears, Kent returns the oath, and at last urges his reproaches with such vehemence, that Lear, despairing of silencing him any other way, pronounces the final sentence of banishment upon him. This is the natural, not the designed gradation of Lear's anger. It rises by degrees to its height, and at last falls with its full weight. These steps by which it advances shew a reluctance in the king to be so severe upon one for whom he had the greatest regard: whereas the imaginary breach of filial love and duty, which he foolishly fancied he found in Cordelia, had already extinguished all sparks of his imaginary love to her. The contradiction to his declared intention is the natural effect of his rage, which vented itself in sudden and contrary starts of passion. The whole scene, in this view, I take to be one of the most beautiful in all Shakespeare.—Neither qu's nor fo's have any direction in this place.

^u So the qu's; the rest betwixt.

^w The 1st f. reads sentences.

^x P. alters made to make; followed by W. who has the following note.

Mr. Theobald by putting the first line (i. e. the line before this) into a parenthesis, and altering make to made in the second line (i. e. this line) had destroyed the sense of the whole; which, as it stood before he corrupted the words, was this: "You have endeavoured, says Lear, to make me break my oath, you have presumed to stop the execution of my sentence: the latter of these attempts neither my temper nor high station will suffer me to bear; and the other, had I yielded to it, my power could not make good or excuse."—Which, in the first line, referring to both attempts: but the ambiguity of it, as it might refer only to the latter, has occasioned all the obscurity of the passage. W.

It is not true that T. altered make to made (unless by this he means that T. has altered P.'s copy, which is in truth only restoring); one of the qu's, and all the f. editions read made—Which we durst never yet, &c. relating to the former attempt, Which nor our nature, &c. can relate only to the latter. Nor is there any obscurity in this equal to what W. has introduced.

^b So the qu's, and 1st f. the rest omit on.

^c So the qu's; the rest omit why to make the measure of the verse more exact; but it seems to express Kent's blunt humour the more strongly; and the nicety of the measure is not worth insisting on, especially when it robs the passage of a word of such significancy.

^d So the qu's; all the rest sith.

^e The 2d q. omits thus.

^f So the qu's; the rest freedom; but friendship seems more properly opposed to banishment; for what is banishment, but the being driven away from our friends and countrymen? Freedom may with greater propriety be opposed to slavery.

Enter Glo'ster, with France and Burgundy, and attendants.

¹ Glo. Here's France and Burgundy, my noble lord.

Lear. My lord of Burgundy,

We first address tow'rd you, who with ^m this king
 Have rivall'd for our daughter; what ⁿ in the least
 Will you require in present dower with her,
 Or cease your quest of love?

Bur. ^o Most royal majesty,

I crave no more than what your highness offer'd,
 Nor will you tender less.

Lear. Right noble Burgundy,

When she was dear to us, ^p we held her so;
 But now her price is fall'n. Sir, there she stands,
 If aught within that little seeming substance,
 Or all of it with our displeasure ^q piec'd,
 And nothing ^r more, may fitly like your grace,
 She's there, and she is yours.

Bur. I know no answer.

¹ So the qu's; the fo's, R. and P. give this speech to Cordelia; and T. first discovers this error.

^m The qu's read a for this.

^o The qu's omit most.

^p The qu's and 1st f. read we did hold, &c.

^q P. reads pierc'd.

Lear.

Lear. ^s Will you with those infirmities she owes,
Unfriended, new adopted to our hate,
^t Dower'd with our curse, and stranger'd with our oath,
Take her, or leave her?

Bur. Pardon ^u me, royal sir;
Election makes not up on such conditions.

Lear. Then leave her, sir; for by the pow'r that made me,
I tell you all her wealth.—For you, great king, [To France.]
I would not from your love make such a stray,
To match you where I hate; therefore beseech you,
T' avert your liking a more ^w worthier way
Than on a wretch whom nature is ashamed
Almost t' acknowledge hers.

France. This is most strange!
That she, ^x who even but now was your ^y best object,
^z The argument of your praise, balm of your age,
^a Most ^b best, most dearest, should in this trice of time
Commit a thing so monstrous, to dismantle

^s Before will the qu's insert sir.

^t The qu's read cover'd for dower'd.

^u P. and all after, omit me.

^w So read all the editions before P. who alters it to worthy, followed by those after him. But the double comparative is very common in Shakespeare; and was, no doubt, the language of that age. It is not the part of an editor to modernise his author.

^x The qu's read that for who; the 1st f. whom.

^y The 1st f. omits best.

^z P. alters this, Your praise's argument, &c. this is modernising again, for the sake of measure: followed by all but J.

^a So the qu's; the fo's, R. and J. the best, the dearest. P. first, and then all the rest, dearest and best.

^b Best (quoth J.) is added from the first copy. Why, Dr. J. there is no copy without it.

So many folds of favour! ^c sure, her offence
 Must be of such unnatural degree
^d That monsters it; (^e or you for vouch'd affections Fall'n into taint:) which to believe of her
 Must be a faith that reason without miracle
 Could never ^f plant in me.

Cor. I yet beseech your majesty—
 If—^g for I want that glib and oily art,

^c P. and H. read sure th' offence, &c.

^d R. and P. read as monstrous is.

^e So the qu's; the fo's read Or your fore-voucht affection fall into taint, &c. R. P. and H. read Or your fore-voucht affection could not fall into taint, &c. T. and W. Or your fore-vouch'd affection fall'n into taint, &c. J. reads as the fo's, but interprets or before, because or ever signifies before ever; but does he remember where or had at any time this signification unless joined with ever? R. seems to make the best sense of all these readings, but then he is obliged to interpolate. But let us now try the old reading; and to make sense of it, the best way perhaps will be to consider what was the real cause of the estrangement of Lear's love from Cordelia; it was the vouch'd affections of his three daughters: the two eldest vouch'd such affection to him as was beyond all nature and possibility to a father; but Cordelia vouch'd only such an affection as was natural and reasonable for a daughter to feel for her father. Now Lear was fallen into taint, i. e. his judgment was corrupted, in preferring the extravagant and lying protestations of his eldest daughters, to the sincere and just ones of his youngest. And if we ruminate a little, this is the only second reason for Lear's rejecting Cordelia that can with any probability be supposed to be guessed at by France: for it would be rude in France to charge Lear with vouching the dearest affections to one he did not really love; and it is absurd to suppose that so great a love should change to hate, without she had committed some very great crime, and which France could not be brought to believe; therefore this second guess becomes the only one, and the true one, viz. that Regan and Gonerill had, by their superior art in coaxing, won all Lear's love from Cordelia.

^f The 2d q. reads plaint; so Steevens, and gives no other reading.

^g H. alters for to so, to make grammar of the passage; but perhaps Shakespear designed this as an interruption. See p. 17, note i.

To speak and purpose not, since what I^h well intend,
 I'll do't before I speak—ⁱ that you may know [To France.
 It is no vicious blot, murder, or foulness,
 No^k unchaste action, or dishonour'd step—
 That hath depriv'd me of your grace and favour. [To Lear.
 But ev'n^l for want of that, for which I'm^m richer,
 A still solliciting eye, and such a tongue,
ⁿ As I am glad^o I have not; though, not to have it,
 Hath lost me in your liking.

Lear. ^p Go to, go to! better thou hadst not been born
 Than not^q to have pleas'd me better.

France. Is it^r no more but this? a tardiness in nature,
^s That often leaves the history unspoke,
 That it intends to do? My lord of Burgundy,
 What say you to the lady? Love is not love,
 When it is mingled with regards: that^t stands

^h The fo's and R. read will for well.

ⁱ The fo's (followed by all the rest) read that you make known, to make it grammar with I yet beseech your majesty: but I am apt to think Shakespeare intended this as a broken speech, which should express the modest fear and bashful diffidence of Cordelia, heightened by her concern under her present pitiable circumstances. She begins speaking to the king in a broken interrupted manner; then to France, that you may know, &c. then, without making a period, to the king again.

^k The qu's read unclean for unchaste.

^m The qu's read rich.

ⁿ So the qu's; all the rest read that for as.

^o P. alters I have not to I've not; followed by the rest.

^p So the qu's; all the rest omit go to, go to!

^q The fo's and R. read t' have; but P. and all after, intirely omit to.

^r So the qu's; all the rest omit no more.

^s So the qu's; all the rest read which for that.

^t So the qu's, fo's, and R. where stands refers to love; Love is not love, when, &c. love is not love, that stands, &c. all the rest read stand.

Aloof from the ^u entire point. Say, will you have her ?

^w She is, herself, and dower.

Bur. [To Lear.] ^x Royal Lear,

Give but that portion which yourself propos'd,

And here I take Cordelia by the hand,

Dutcheſs of Burgundy.

Lear. Nothing : — I have ſworn ^y.

Bur. I am ſorry then you have ſo loſt a father, [To Cor.
That you muſt loſe a husband.

Cor. Peace be with Burgundy,

Since that ^z reſpects of fortune are his love,

I ſhall not be his wife.

France. Faireſt Cordelia, that art moſt rich, being poor,
Moſt choice, forſaken; and moſt lov'd, deſpis'd.

Thee and thy virtues here I ^a ſeize upon;

Be it lawful, I take up what's caſt away.

Gods! Gods! 'tis ſtrange, that from their ^{*} cold'ſt neglect
My love ſhould kindle to inflam'd reſpect.

^u So the qu's; all the reſt read th' intire.

W. explains intire, right, true; J. ſingle, unmixed with other conſiderations. But ^w She is, herſelf, and dower (which is the reading of the qu's) explains the meaning of intire, whole. "That is not love which is mingled with regards; that cannot be love that ſtands aloof from the whole point (the perſon and the dower) for in Cordelia you have both herſelf and her dower." Shakeſpear, I ſuppoſe, means, that the ſuper-plus of perfections and good qualities ſhe poſſeſſed above the generality of her ſex, were to her in lieu of a dower. The reſt read ſhe is herſelf a dowry.

^x So the qu's; all the reſt read royal king, i. e. kingly king. Is it not ſtrange that none of the editors ſhould conſult the qu's in this place? for if they had, they would certainly have reſtored the old reading.

^y After ſworn, the fo's and R. read I am firm.

^z The fo's, R. and P. read reſpect and fortunes.

^a The 1ſt q. reads ceaze for ſeize.

Thy dowerless daughter, king, thrown to ^b my chance,
 Is queen of us, of ours, and our fair France;
 Not all the dukes ^c in wat'rish Burgundy
^d Shall buy this unpriz'd, precious maid of me.
 Bid them farewell, Cordelia, though unkind;
 Thou lovest ^e here, a better ^e where to find.

Lear. Thou hast her, France; let her be thine, for we Have no such daughter; nor shall ever see
 That face of her's again; therefore be gone
 Without our grace, ^f our love, our benizon.

Come, noble Burgundy. [Flourish. Exeunt Lear and Burgundy.

S C E N E IV.

France. Bid farewell to your sisters.

Cor. ^g The jewels of our father, with wash'd eyes
Cordelia leaves you; I know ^h you what you are,
 And, like a sister, am most loth to call
 Your faults as they are nam'd. Love well our father;
 To your ⁱ profess'd bosoms I commit him;
 But yet, alas! stood I within his grace,
 I would prefer him to a better place.
 So farewell to you both.

^b The qu's read thy for my.

^c So the qu's; all the rest read of for in.

^d So the qu's; all the rest read can for shall.

^e Here and where are converted into nouns in this place.

^f f. inserts without again before our love.

^g So the qu's, fo's, and R.'s octavo; all the rest read ye for the.

^k Reg. Prescribe not us our ^l duties.

Gon. Let your study

At fortune's alms; you have obedience scanted,
And well are worth the ^m want that you have ⁿ wanted.

Cor. Time shall unfold what ^o plaited cunning hides,
Who ^p cover faults, at last ^q shame them derides.

Well may you prosper!

France. Come, ^r my fair Cordelia. [*Exeunt France and

S C E N E V.

Gon. Sister, it is not a little ^s I have to say
Of what most nearly appertains to us both.
I think our father ^t will hence to-night.

^k The qu's give this speech to Gonerill, and the next to Regan.

^l So the qu's; all the rest read duty.

^m The qu's read worth for want. H. reads And well are worthy to want, &c.

ⁿ W. alters this to vaunted, and gives the following note;

— wanted] This nonsense must be corrected thus,

And well are worth the want that you have vaunted.

i. e. that disherison, which you so much glory in, you deserve. W.

But did she not rather glory in her modesty and sincerity, which occasioned that disherison? The old reading is not elegant indeed, but it is intelligible: it is a kind of Hebraism, like feeding feed, Gen. i. 29.

^o The qu's read pleated; the fo's, R. and P.'s q. plighted; all the rest plaited.

^p H. reads cover'd; all other editions covers.

^q So the qu's; all the rest read with shame for shame them.

^r The qu's omit my.

^s P. alters I have to I've; followed by the rest.

^t R. and all after read will go hence.

Reg:

Reg. That's ^u most certain, and with you; next month with us.

Gon. You see how full of changes his age is, the observation we have made of it hath ^w not been little; he always lov'd our sister most, and with what poor judgment he hath now cast her off, ^x appears too ^y grossly.

Reg. 'Tis the infirmity of his age; yet he hath ever but slenderly known himself.

Gon. The best and soundest of his time hath been but rash; then must we look, ^z from his age to receive not alone the ^a imperfections of long ingrafted condition, but therewithal ^b the unruly waywardness, that infirm and choleric years bring with them.

Reg. Such unconstant ^c starts are we like to have from him, as this of Kent's banishment.

Gon. There is further compliment of leave-taking between ^d France and him. ^e Pray you, let us ^f hit together. If our father carry authority, with such ^g dispositions as he bears, this last surrender of his will but offend us.

Reg. We shall further think ^h on't.

Gon. We must do something, and i'th' heat. [Exeunt.]

^x The 2d, 3d, and 4th fo's, and R. read appears too too grossly.

^y The qu's read grosse.

^z The qu's read to receive from his age.

^a The qu's read imperfection.

^b The qu's omit the.

^c The 2d q. reads stars.

^d Hanmer reads Burgundy for France.

^e The qu's read pray let's hit, &c.

^f Fo's, R. P. and H. read fit for hit.

ⁱ A castle belonging to the earl of Gloucester. Enter Bastard with a letter.

Bast. Thou, Nature, art my goddess; to thy law
 My services are bound; wherefore should I Stand in the^k plague of custom, and permit
 The^l courtesy of nations to deprive me,
 For that I am some twelve or fourteen moonshines
 Lag of a brother? ^m Why bastard? wherefore base?
 When my dimensions are as well compact,
 My mind as generous, and my shape as true,
 As honest madam's issue?
 Why brand they us ⁿ with base, base bastardy?
 Who, in the lusty stealth of nature, take
 More composition and fierce quality;
 Than doth within ^p a dull, stale tired bed

ⁱ The scene is not described in either qu's, fo's, or R. This is called scena secunda in fo's.

^k W. remarks, that to stand in the plague of custom, is an absurd expression. We should read plage, i. e. the place, the country, the boundary of custom. Why should I, when I profess to follow the freedom of nature, be confined within the narrow limits of custom? Plage is a word in common use amongst the old English writers. So Chaucer, The plagis of the north by land and sea.—From plaga. W.

ⁿ So the qu's; all the rest with base, with baseness, bastardy, base, base; but then they make why brand they us, a part of the foregoing line. But in this reading there seems to be too much repetition.

 Legitimate Edgar, I must have your land;

 Well, my legitimate, if this letter speed,
 And my invention thrive, Edmund the base
 Shall ^w top th' legitimate. I grow, I prosper;
 Now, gods, stand up for bastards.

SCENE VII.

To him enter Glo'ster.

Glo. Kent banish'd thus! and France in choler parted!
 And the king gone to-night! ^x subscrib'd his power!
 Confin'd to exhibition! ^y all this done
 Upon the gad!—Edmund, how now? what news?

¶ The fo's and R. read th'; all the rest omit the.

^r So the qu's; the rest omit of.

^s The 2d q. omits a.

^t H. adds after then, good brother, to fill up the measure; the qu's read the for then.

^u The qu's omit fine word—legitimate!—

^w The qu's read tooth'; the fo's, R. and P.'s q. to'th'; H. toe th'; which he interprets, being upon even ground with him, as the treading on another's heels signifies the being not far behind him: but if toe be read, J. would have it signify, to kick out, or supplant. P.'s duodecimo reads be'th'; followed by T. W. and J. But perhaps Shakespeare wrote top th' legitimate, i. e. get above him; the corruption of this, by writing an o instead of a p, was very easy. If a conjecture be made without any regard to the traces of the letters, out, or rout, are better than be.

^y So the qu's, 1st f. and J. the three last fo's and R. read all this gone, which P. alters all is gone.

Edm. So please your lordship, none. [Putting up the letter.]

Glo. Why so earnestly seek you to put up that letter?

Edm. I know no news, my lord.

Glo. What paper were you reading?

Edm. Nothing, my lord.

Glo. No! what ^z needed then that ^a terrible dispatch of it into your pocket? the quality of nothing ^b hath not such need to ^c hide itself. Let's see; come: if it be nothing, I shall not need spectacles.

Edm. I beseech you, sir, pardon me, it is a letter from my brother, that I have not all o'er-read; ^d and for so much as I have perus'd, I find it not fit for your ^e overlooking.

Glo. Give me the letter, sir.

Edm. I shall offend, either to detain, or give it. The contents, as in part I understand them, are to blame.

Glo. Let's see, let's see.

Edm. I hope, for my brother's justification, he wrote this but as an essay, or ^f taste of my virtue.

Glo. reads.] This policy ^g and reverence of ^h age makes the world

I begin to find an idle and fond bondage in the oppression of aged tyranny;^k who sways, not as it hath power, but as it is suffered. Come to me, that of this I may speak more. Hum——Conspiracy!——^l sleep till I^{} wak'd him——you should enjoy half his revenue.——My son Edgar! had he a hand to write this! a heart and^m brain to breed it in!——* ⁿ When came this to you? who brought it?

Edm. It was not brought me, my lord; there's the cunning of it. I found it thrown in at the casement of my closet.

Glo. You know the character to be your brother's?

Edm. If the matter were good, my lord, I durst swear it were his; but in respect of that, I would fain think, it were not.

Edm. Never, my lord. But I have ^q often heard him maintain it to be fit, that sons at perfect age, and fathers ^r declining, ^{*} the father should be as ^s ward to the son, and the son manage ^t his revenue.

Glo. O villain, villain! his very opinion in the letter. Abhorred villain! unnatural, detested, brutish villain! worse than brutish! Go, ^u firrah, seek him; ^w I'll apprehend him. Abominable villain! where is he?

Edm. I do not well know, my lord. If it shall please you to suspend your indignation against my brother, till you can derive from him better testimony of ^x his intent, you should run a certain course; where, if you violently proceed against him, mistaking his purpose, it would make a great gap in your ^y own honour, and shake in pieces the heart of his obedience. I dare pawn down my life for him, that he hath writ this to feel my affection to your honour, and to no other pretence of danger.

Glo. Think you so?

Edg. How now, brother Edmund, what serious contemplation are you in?

Edm. I am thinking, brother, of a prediction I read this other day, what should follow these eclipses.

Edg. Do you busy yourself ^c about that?

Edm. I promise ^d you, the effects, he ^e writ of, succeed unhappily; ^f as of unnaturalness between the child and the parent, death, dearth, dissolutions of ancient & amities, divisions in state, menaces and maledictions against king and nobles, needless diffidences, banishment of friends, dissipation of ^h comforts, nuptial breaches, and I know not what.

 I will not speak with him; say, I am sick.
 If you come slack of former services,
 You shall do well; the fault of it I'll answer.

Stew. He's coming, madam, I hear him.

Gon. Put on what weary negligence you please,
 You and your ^y fellows; I'd have it come ^z to question.
 If he ^a distaste it, let him to my sister,
 Whose mind and mine, I know, in that are one,
^b *Not to be over-rul'd. Idle old man,
 That still would manage those authorities,
 That he hath giv'n away.—Now, by my life,
 Old ^c folks are babes again; and must be us'd
 With checks, ^d by flatteries when they're seen abus'd.*
 Remember what ^e I tell you.

Stew. ^f Very well, madam.

Gon. And let his knights have colder look among you;
 what grows of it, no matter; ^g advise your fellows so.

^y The qu's read fellow-servants.

^z The qu's read in for to.

^a The qu's read dislike for distaste.

^b These lines in italic were first restored from the old qu's by Theobald, and inserted by W. and J. But J. says, that Shakespeare perhaps threw these lines away, nor would thank the officiousness of his editors in restoring the passage. So this passage, that J. thinks should not stand in the text, he has put there; as, a while ago, he neglected to insert a passage which he thought should stand in the text. A very reasonable way of proceeding!

^c This is W.'s emendation; the rest read fools for folks.

^d The qu's read as for by; so J.; W. reads not; T. reads like flatterers when they're seen t' abuse us.

^e So the qu's; the rest read I have said for I tell you.

^f The fo's, R. and P. omit very.

^g Before advise H. inserts and.

ACT I. SCENE XII. 33

^h I'll write straight to my sister to hold my ¹ very course.

^k Go, ^l prepare for dinner. [Exeunt.]

SCENE XII.

Changes to an open place before the palace.

Enter Kent disguised.

Kent. If but as well I other accents borrow,
^m That can my speech ⁿ diffuse, my good intent
 May carry thro' itself to that full issue
 For which I raz'd my likenefs. Now, banish'd Kent,
 If thou canst serve where thou dost stand condemn'd,
^o So may it come, thy master whom thou lov'st
 Shall find thee full of ^p labours.

Horns within. Enter Lear, knights, and attendants.

Lear. Let me not stay a jot for dinner. Go, get it ready:
 —How now? what art thou? [To Kent.]

Kent. A man, sir.

^h The qu's add I would breed from hence occasions; and I shall—that I may speak.

ⁱ So the qu's; all the rest omit very.

^k All but the qu's and H. omit go; H. reads go and, not that he had seen the qu's, but to eke out the verse.

^m R. and all after him, read and for that.

ⁿ The qu's and 3 fo's read defuse; the 4th f. diffuse; R. P. and J. diffuse. To diffuse here signifies to disorder; to put out of a regular course. It is used in other places in this author; diffused attire, diffused sounds. H.—Let them forth from a saw pit rush at once with some diffused song, i. e. wild song. Merry Wives of Windsor. Though perhaps Shakespeare might here write disguise.

^o The qu's omit so may it come.

^p The qu's read labour.

Lear. What dost thou profess? what would'st thou with us?

Kent. I do profess to be no less than I seem; to serve him truly, that will put me in trust; to love him that is honest; to converse with him that is a wise, and says little; to fear judgment; to fight when I cannot choose, and to eat no fish.

Lear. What art thou?

Kent. A very honest-hearted fellow, and as poor as the king.

Lear. If thou^s be as poor for a subject, as he is for a king, thou art poor enough. What would'st thou?

Kent. Service.

Lear. Whom would'st thou serve?

Kent. You.

Lear. Dost thou know me, fellow?

Kent. No, sir; but you have that in your countenance which I would fain call master.

Lear. What's that?

Kent. Authority.

^q H. and W. read—wife; to say little, &c.

^r To eat no fish.] In queen Elizabeth's time the papists were esteemed, and with good reason, enemies to the government. Hence the proverbial phrase of he's an honest man, and eats no fish; to signify he's a friend to the government, and a protestant. The eating fish on a religious account, being then esteemed such a badge of popery, that when it was enjoined for a season by an act of parliament, for the encouragement of the fish-towns, it was thought necessary to declare the reason; hence it was called Cecil's fast. To this disgraceful badge of popery Fletcher alludes in his Woman-hater, who makes the courtesan say, when Lazarillo in search of the umbrano's head, was seized at her house by the intelligencers for a traitor—Gentlemen, I am glad you have discovered him. He should not have eaten under my roof for twenty pounds. And sure I did not like him when he called for fish. And Marston's Dutch courtesan, I trust I am none of the wicked that eat fish a Friday. W.

^s All but the qu's read be'st for be.

^t The qu's and rst f. read who for whom.

Lear.

Lear. What services canst ^u thou do?

Kent. I can keep honest ^w counsel, ride, run, mar a curious tale in telling it, and deliver a plain message bluntly. That which ordinary men are fit for, I am qualified in; and the best of me is diligence.

Lear. How old art thou?

Kent. Not so young, ^x sir, to love a woman for singing; nor so old, to doat on her for any thing. I have years on my back forty-eight.

Lear. ^y Follow me, thou shalt serve me, if I like thee no worse after dinner; I will not part from thee yet. Dinner ho, dinner—Where's my knave? my fool?

Enter steward.

Go you, and call my fool hither. ^z You, you, firrah, where's my daughter?

Stew. So please you— [Exit.

Lear. What says the fellow there? Call the ^a clot-pole back.—Where's my fool? ho!—I think the world's asleep. How now? where's that mungrel?

^b Knight. He says, my lord, your ^c daughter is not well.

Lear. Why came not the slave back to me when I call'd him?

^u The 1st q. omits thou.

^w So the qu's and 1st f. the rest counsels.

^x The qu's omit sir.

^y The qu's and fo's have no points but commas till after yet. R. P. T. W. and J. put a semicolon after serve me, a comma after dinner, and a period after yet; which makes it nonsense. H. points in the same manner, baiting that, to make sense of it, he puts the period after from thee; and reads thus—from thee. Yet no dinner, &c.

^z The qu's read you but once.

^a R.'s octavo reads coltpole; J. clod-poll; the qu's clat-pole.

^b The qu's gives this speech to Kent.

^c The 1st and 2d fo's read daughters.

^d Knight. Sir, he answer'd ^e me in the roundest manner, he would not.

Lear. He would not!

^d Knight. My lord, I know not what the matter is; but, to my judgment, your highness is not entertain'd with that ceremonious affection as you were wont; there's a great abatement ^f of kindness appears as well in the general dependants, as in the duke himself also, and your daughter.

Lear. Ha! say'st thou so?

^d Knight. I beseech you, pardon me, my lord, if I be mistaken; for my duty cannot be silent, when I think your highness ^g is wrong'd.

Lear. Thou but rememberest me of my own conception: I have perceived a most faint neglect of late, which I have rather blamed as my own jealous curiosity, than as a very pretence and ^h purpose of unkindness; I will look further into't. But where's ⁱ my fool? I have not seen him ^k these two days.

^d Knight. Since my young lady's going into France, sir, the fool hath much pin'd away.

Lear. No more of that; I have noted it ^{*} well. Go you and tell my daughter, I would speak with her. Go you, call hither my fool. ^l O you sir, you sir, come you hither; who am I, sir?

Enter

^d The qu's give these speeches to a servant.

^e The 3d and 4th fo's, R. P. and H. omit me.

^f The qu's omit of kindness.

^g The 1st q. and the 1st and 2d fo's, omit is.

^h The qu's read purport.

ⁱ The qu's read this for my.

^k All before P. read this for these.

^{*} The qu's omit well.

^l So the qu's; the 1st and 2d qu's read Oh you sir, you, come you hither,
sir,

Enter steward.

Stew. My lady's father.

Lear. My lady's father? my lord's knave!—you whoreson dog, you slave, you cur.

Stew. I am none of ^m these, my lord; ⁿ I beseech your pardon.

Lear. Do you bandy looks with me, you rascal? [Striking him.]

Stew. I'll not be ^o struck, my lord.

Kent. Nor tripp'd neither, you base foot-ball player!

[Tripping up his heels.]

Lear. I thank thee, fellow. Thou serv'st me, and I'll love thee.

Kent. Come, fir, ^p arise, away. I'll teach you differences. Away, away. If you will measure your lubber's length again, ^q tarry; but away, ^r go to, ^s have you wisdom? ^t fo—

[Pushes the steward out.]

Lear. Now, ^u my friendly knave, I thank thee. There's earnest of thy service. [Giving money.] fir, who am I fir? and so all the rest, bating that they omit the second you.

^m The qu's read this for these.

ⁿ The qu's read I beseech you pardon me.

^o The fo's and R. read strucken.

^p The qu's omit arise, away.

^r The qu's omit go to.

^t The qu's omit fo.

To them enter Fool.

Fool. Let me hire him too. Here's my ^w coxcomb.

[Giving Kent his cap.]

Lear. How now, my pretty knave? how dost thou?

Fool. Sirrah, you were best take my coxcomb.

Kent. Why, ^x fool?

Fool. Why? for taking one's part, that's out of favour. Nay, an thou canst not smile as the wind sits, thou'lt catch cold shortly. There, take my coxcomb. Why, this fellow has banish'd two ^y on's daughters, and did the third a blessing against his will; if thou follow him, thou must needs wear my coxcomb. How now, nuncle? Would I had two coxcombs and two daughters.

Lear. Why, my boy?

Fool. If I ^z gave them ^a all my living, ^b I'd keep my ^c coxcombs myself. There's mine, beg another of thy daughters.

^w Coxcomb.] Meaning his cap, called so because on the top of the fool or jester's cap was sewed a piece of red cloth, resembling the comb of a cock.
W.

^x So the qu's; the rest for fool read my boy; which appellation is what Lear gives the fool, and not so natural in the mouth of Kent. This mistake seems to have happened from the next speech but one, which was taken instead of this in the fo's.

^y So all till P. who alters on's to of his; so careful is he that even a fool shall speak exact grammar. Follow'd by the rest.

^z So the qu's, and 1st and 2d fo's; the rest read give for gave.

^a The qu's read any for all my.

^b The qu's read i'de; the fo's I'd; both contractions of I would: all the rest read I'll.

^c So the qu's and 1st f. all the rest coxcomb.

Lear.

Lear. Take heed, sirrah, the whip——

Fool. Truth's a dog ^d that must to kennel; he must be whipt out, ^e when the lady ^f brach may stand by th' fire and stink.

Lear. A pestilent ^g gall to me.

Fool. Sirrah, I'll teach thee a speech.

[To Kent,

Lear. Do.

Fool. Mark it, ^h nuncle.

Have more than thou showest,
 Speak less than thou knowest,
 Lend more than thou owest,
 Ride more than thou goest,
 Learn more than thou trowest,
 Set less than thou throwest,
 Leave thy drink and thy whore,
 And keep ⁱ in a door,
 And thou shalt have more
 Than two tens to a score.

^k Kent. This is nothing, fool.

Fool. Then ^l 'tis like the breath of an unfee'd lawyer, you ^m gave me nothing for't. Can you make no use of nothing, ⁿ nuncle?

^d All but the qu's omit that.

^e The qu's read, when lady o'the brach, &c.

^f Nos quidem hodie brach dicimus de cane famined, qua leporem ex odore persequitur. Spelm. Gloss. in voce Bracco.

^g The qu's read gull for gall.

^h The qu's read uncle.

ⁱ So the qu's and two first fo's: the two last fo's and R. read in door; P. and all after within door.

^k The qu's give this speech to Lear.

^m The two last fo's, R. and P. read give for gave.

ⁿ The qu's read uncle.

Lear. Why, no, boy; nothing can be made out of nothing, Fool. Pr'ythee, tell him, so much the rent of his land comes to: he will not believe a fool. [To Kent.

° Lear. A bitter fool!—

Fool. Dost thou know the difference, my boy, between a bitter fool and a sweet P fool?

° Lear. No, lad, teach me.

“ Fool. That lord that counsel'd thee to give away thy land, Come place him here by me! ° or do thou for him stand;

“ The sweet and bitter fool will presently appear,

“ The one, in motley here; the other, found out there.

“ Lear. Dost thou call me fool, r boy?

“ Fool. All thy other titles thou hast given away; that thou wast born with.

“ Kent. This is not altogether fool, my lord.

“ Fool. No, faith; lords and great men will not let me; if I had a monopoly s out, they would have part t an't; u and w ladies too, x they will not let me have all

° What is in italic is omitted, or degraded to the margin, by P. and H. and what has the commas prefixed is omitted in the fo's and R. By which we see that P. by omitting from the fo's, and restoring (and that but in part) from the qu's, has made the passage incoherent; for the speech which gave occasion to Lear's, Dost thou call me fool, boy? as this does to the three speeches following, is left out in P. and H.

P So the qu's; the rest read one for fool.

° Or is here added; both the sense and measure point out that there is a word lost in th's place; and the sense shews it to be or.

r P. and H. omit boy.

s So the qu's; a monopoly out, i. e. a patent out of court for being sole fool. The rest read on't for out.

t So the 1st q. an't is a clownish way of pronouncing on't; the 2d q. and the rest read on't.

u For and, P. and all after read nay the.

w The 2d q. reads lodes for ladies.

x All but the qu's read they'll for they will.

the

“ y the fool to myself, they’ll be snatching.” — z Give me an egg, nuncle, and I’ll give thee two crowns.

Lear. What two crowns shall they be?

Fool. Why, after I have cut the egg i’th’ middle and eat up the meat, the two crowns of the egg. When thou clovest thy a crown i’th’ middle and gav’st away both parts, thou bor’st thine afs on thy back o’er the dirt. Thou hadst little wit in thy bald crown, when thou gav’st thy golden b one away. If I speak like myself in this, let him be whipp’d that first finds it c fo.

*Fools d had ne’er less e grace in a year, [Singing.
For wise men are grown foppish;
And know not how their wits f to wear,
Their manners are so apish.*

Lear. When were you wont to be so full of songs, sirrah?

Fool. I have us’d it, nuncle, e’er since thou mad’st thy daughters thy g mothers; for when thou gav’st them the rod, and put’st down thy own breeches,

*Then they for sudden joy did weep, [Singing.
And I for sorrow sung,
That such a king should play bo-peep,
And go the h fools among.*

Pr’ythee, nuncle, keep a schoolmaster that can teach thy fool to lye; I would fain learn to lye.

y So the 1st q. the 2d q. and the rest omit the.

a The 1st f. reads crowns.

c W. reads footh, i. e. truth, for fo.

d P. and all after read ne’er had less, &c.

e The qu’s read wit for grace.

f The qu’s read do for to.

g The qu’s read mother.

h The 1st and 2d fo’s read foole.

Lear.

Lear. ⁱ If you lye, ^k firrah, we'll have you whipp'd.

Fool. I marvel what kin thou and thy daughters are: they'll have me whipt for speaking true; thou wilt have me whip for lying; and sometimes I am whipt for holding my peace. I had rather be any kind of thing than a fool, and yet I would not be thee, nuncle; thou hast pared thy wit o' both sides, and left nothing i'th' middle; here comes one o'th' parings.

S C E N E XIV.

To them enter Gonerill.

Lear. How now, daughter? what makes that frontlet on? You are too much of late i'th' frown.

Fool. Thou wast a pretty fellow, when thou hadst no need to care for her ^l frown; ^m now thou art an O without a figure: I am better than thou art now; I am a fool, thou art nothing.—Yes, forfooth, I will hold my tongue; [to Gonerill] so your face bids me, tho' you say nothing.

Mum, mum, he that keeps ⁿ neither crust nor crumb,

Weary of all, shall want some.

[Singing.

o That's a sheal'd peascod.

Gon. Not only, fir, ^p this your all-licens'd fool,
But ^q other of your insolent retinue, ⁱ The 1st q. the fo's, and R. read and for if.

^k The qu's omit firrah.

^l So the qu's; the rest frowning.

^m The 2d q. reads thou for now.

ⁿ So the qu's; all the rest nor.

^o W. reads thou'rt for that's.

^p J. reads thus.

^q J. reads others.

Do hourly carp and quarrel, breaking forth
 In rank, and not to be endured riots, ^r fir.
 I ^s had thought, by making this well-known unto you,
^t To have found a safe redress; but now grow fearful,
 By what yourself too late have spoke and done,
 That you protect this course, and put ^u it on
 By your allowance; if you should, the fault
 Would not 'scape censure, nor the ^w redresses sleep,
 Which, in the tender of a wholesome weal,
 Might in their working do you that offence,
^x Which else were shame, that then necessity
^y Will call discreet ^z proceeding.

Fool. For you know, nuncle,
*The hedge sparrow fed the cuckow so long,
 That ^a it had ^b its head bit off ^c by its young.*
 So out went the candle, and we were left darkling.

Lear. Are you our daughter?

Gon. ^d Come, fir;

I would you would make use of ^e that good wisdom,

^r T. W. and J. omit fir.

^s So all before P. who omits had; followed by the rest.

^t So all before P. who alters it, t' have; followed by the rest.

^u The qu's omit it.

^w The qu's read redresse.

^x The qu's read that for which.

^y The qu's read must for will.

^z The qu's read proceedings.

^a The 1st f. reads its.

^b The qu's read it.

^c The qu's read be it for by its.

^d All but the qu's omit come, fir.

^e So the qu's; all the rest your for that. If we read your, we make the next clause of the sentence, whereof I know you are fraught, unnecessary.

Whereof

^f Whereof I know you are fraught, and put away
These dispositions, ^g which of late ^h transform you
From what you rightly are.

Fool. May not an ass know when the cart draws the horse?
Whoop, Jug, I love thee.

Lear. Does any here know me? ⁱ Why this is not Lear.
Does Lear walk thus? speak thus? where are his eyes?
Either his notion ^k weakens, ^l or his discernings
Are ^m lethargy'd—— ⁿ Ha! waking? 'Tis not so.
Who is it that can tell me ^o who I am?
Lear's shadow? I would learn ^p that; for by the marks
^q Of substantiality, knowledge, and reason,
I should be fast persuaded I had daughters.

Fool.

^f Perhaps this is a mistake of the printer, for wherewith. To be fraught of, is hardly English.

^g The qu's read that for which.

^h So the qu's; the rest transport.

ⁱ All but the qu's omit why.

^k The 1st q. reads weaknes; the 2d q. weakness.

^l All but the qu's omit or.

^m The qu's read lethergy.

ⁿ The qu's read sleeping or waking; ha! sure 'tis not so.

^o The fo's, R. and f. read

—— who I am.

Fool. Lear's shadow.

Lear. Your name, fair gentlewoman, &c.

^p All but the qu's omit that.

^q The qu's read (bating that they have not the two of's between the crotchets which are put in by P. and read by T. H. and W.)

Of sovereignty, [of] knowledge, and [of] reason,

I should be false persuaded I had daughters.

Now it is plain that knowledge and reason are not the marks of sovereignty, for then every man would be a king: therefore Shakespear could never write sovereignty, as it stands in the qu's. Again if we admit of P.'s of's (but it is unlikely that two omissions of the same word should happen so near together)

Fool. Which ^s of thee will make an obedient father.

Lear. Your name, fair gentlewoman?

Gen. ^r Come, fir;

This admiration is much of the favour
Of other your new pranks. I do beseech you
To understand my purposes aright.

^u As you are old and reverend, ^w you should be wise.

Here do you keep ^x a hundred knights and squires,
Men so disorder'd, so ^y debosh'd and bold,

That this our court infected with their manners,
Shews like a riotous inn; epicurism and lust

^z Make ^a it more like a tavern or a brothel,

Than a ^b grac'd palace. ^c The shame itself doth speak ther) then by W.'s explanation of it, the sovereignty of knowledge is the understanding. So we shall have this sense, For by the marks of understanding and of reason I should be false persuaded I had daughters. Who sees not how bald this is? The plain case is this; Lear says he would learn whether he is a shadow or no: for by knowledge and reason, the consciousness of which prove him to be a substance, he should be fully persuaded he had daughters; though the behaviour of this is enough to make him doubt it. So that the sense seems naturally to lead us to alter sovereignty to substantiality, and false to fast, full, or firm.

^r This speech is omitted in all but the qu's.

^s The qu's read which they will make, &c. So that of thee is set down conjecturally.

^t So the qu's; the rest omit come, and read fir after admiration.

^u R. and all after read, you, as you're old, &c.

^w All but the qu's omit you.

^b The qu's read great for grac'd.

^c P. omits the; followed by all but J.

Lear. ^h Fool! that too late repent'st—ⁱ O, fir, are you my horses.— [To his servants.

Ingratitude,

^d The qu's read thou for then.

^e All before P. read a little for of fifty.

A little is the common reading; but it appears from what Lear says in the next scene, that this number fifty was required to be cut off, (which as the edition stood) is no where specified by Gonerill. P.

^f So the qu's; all the rest remainders.

^g So the 2d q. the 1st reads that for and; the fo's and R. which.

^h The 1st q. reads we that too late repent's; the 2d we that too late repent's us: the rest woe! that too late repents. But what sense can be made of any of these readings? The above is not an unlikely conjecture.

ⁱ The fo's, R. and P. omit O, fir, are you come?

^k R. and all after direct this whole verse to be spoken to Albany; but the latter part of it is certainly spoke to his servants. He was going to ask whether Ingratitude, thou marble-hearted fiend,

Alb. ^m Pray, sir, be patient.

Lear. Detested kite! thou ⁿ lieft. [To Gonerill.]

From the fixt place, drew from my heart all love,
And added to the gall. ^r O Lear, Lear, Lear!

And thy dear judgment out.—Go, go, my people.

Alb. My lord, I am guiltless, as I am ignorant,
Of what hath moved you ^{*}.

Lear. It may be so, my lord—
^s Hear, nature, hear; dear goddess, ^t hear! ^u
Suspend thy purpose, if thou didst intend ther it was Albany's will that he should be used thus; but his rage and impatience make him start from the point, and order his horses a second time.

The qu's read is it your will that we prepare any horses?

ⁿ The 1st q. reads list for lieft; the 2d lessen.

^o The qu's read and for are.

^p So the qu's and fo's; all the rest read names.

^q The qu's read that for which.

^r So the qu's and H. the rest read O Lear, Lear, Lear!

^{*} The qu's omit of what hath moved you.

^s The qu's read harke for hear.

^t This hear is omitted in the qu's.

^u After hear, P. and all after him but J. read a father.

To make this creature fruitful ;
 Into her womb convey sterility,
 Dry up in her the organs of increase,
 And from her derogate body never spring
 A babe to honour her ! If she must teem,
 Create her child of spleen, that it may live,
 And be a ^w thwart disnatur'd torment to her ;
 Let it stamp wrinkles in her brow of youth,
 With ^x cadent tears fret channels in her cheeks ;
 Turn all her mother's pains and benefits
 To laughter and contempt ; that she may feel
 How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is,
 To have a thankless child.—^y Away, away. [Exit.]

Alb. Now, gods, that we adore, ^z whereof comes this ?

Gon. Never afflict yourself to know ^a the cause,
 But let his disposition have that scope,
^b That dotage gives it.

Re-enter Lear.

Lear. What, fifty of my followers at a clap ?
 Within a fortnight?—

Alb. What's the matter, sir ?

^w The qu's read thou'rt disnatur'd for thwart disnatur'd.

^x The qu's read accent tears; W. and T. read cadent tears.

^y The qu's read go, go, my people. But away, away, seems better than a repetition of the words he had used at the end of the speech before. At the same time (for the fo's and R. direct Exit, which is omitted by P. and all after) he flings out in a rage ; but returns presently to vent more reproaches and curses, which his rage suggested.

^z J. reads wherefore.

^a So the qu's ; the 1st f. reads for the cause, more of it; the rest of it, omitting more.

^b The fo's, R. P. and H. read as for that.

Lear.

e ar. I'll tell thee——Life and death! I am asham'd
 That thou hast power to shake my manhood thus; [To Gon.
 That these hot tears, ^c which break from me perforce,
^d Should make thee worth them.—Blasts and fogs upon thee!
 Th' untented woundings of a father's curse
^e Pierce every ^f fence about ^g thee! Old fond eyes,
^h Beweep this cause again, I'll pluck ⁱ ye out,
 And ^k cast you, with the waters that you ^l make,
 To temper clay. ^m Ha! ⁿ is it come to this?
^o Let it be so: ^p I have another daughter,
 Who, I am sure is kind and comfortable;
 When she shall hear this of thee with her nails
 She'll ^q flay thy ^r wolfish visage. Thou shalt find,
 That I'll resume the shape, which thou dost think
 I have cast off for ever. ^s Thou shalt I warrant thee.

[Exeunt Lear and attendants.

- ^c The qu's read that for which.
- ^d The qu's read Showld make the worst blasts and fogs upon the untented (^{2d} q. untender, so P.) woundings, &c.
- ^e The ^{2d} q. read peruse for pierce.
- ^f W. reads fence.
- ^g The qu's read the old fond eyes, &c.
- ^h So the qu's, ^{1st} f. T. W. and J. the other fo's beweep thee once again; R. P. and H. beweep her once again.
- ⁱ The qu's read you for ye.
- ^k The qu's read you cast for cast you.
- ^l So the qu's; the ^{1st} and ^{2d} fo's loofe for make; the rest lcf.
- ^m The qu's read yea for ha!
- ⁿ The ^{1st} q. reads is't for is it. The fo's and R. omit is it come o this?
- ^o The qu's omit let it be so.
- ^p The qu's read yet have I left a daughter.
- ^q The qu's read flay; all the rest flea.
- ^r So T. W. and J. the rest wolvish.
- ^s All but the qu's omit thou shalt I warrant thee.

Gon. Do you mark that, ^t my lord?

Alb. I cannot be so partial, Gonerill,
To the great love I bear you,——

Gon. ^u Pray you, ^w be content. ^x What, Oswald, ho!—
You, ^y fir, more knave than fool, after your master. [To the
fool.

Fool. Nuncle Lear, nuncle Lear, tarry, ^z and take the fool with ^a thee.

A fox, when one has caught her,
And such a daughter,
Should fure to the slaughter,
If my cap would buy a halter;
So the fool follows after. [Exit.

^b Gon. This man hath had good counsel.—A hundred knights!
^c 'Tis politic, and safe, to let him keep
At point a hundred knights; yes, that on ev'ry dream,
Each buz, each fancy, each complaint, dislike,
He may enguard his dotage with their powers,
And hold our lives ^d at mercy. Oswald, I say.

Alb. Well, you may fear too far.

^t All but the qu's omit my lord.

^u The qu's read come, fir, no more, for pray you, be content.

^w Be is not in the fo's; R. first puts it in.

^x The qu's omit what, Oswald, ho!

^y The qu's omit fir.

^z All but the qu's omit and.

^a The qu's omit thee.

^b What is in italic is omitted in the qu's.

^c H. reads is't for 'tis.

^d The fo's and R. read in for at.

Gon.

Gon. Safer than trust too far.
Let me still take away the harms I fear,
Not fear still to be ^e taken. I know his heart!
What he hath utter'd, I have writ my sister;
If ^f she sustain him and his hundred knights,
When I have shew'd th' unfitness——

Enter Steward.

g How now, Oswald?

What, have you writ that letter to my sister?

Stew. h Yes, madam.

Gon. Take you some company, ⁱ and away to horse;
 Inform her full of my particular ^k fears,
 And thereto add such reasons of your own,
 As may compact it more. ^l Go, get you gone,
 And ^m hasten your return. [Exit Steward.]

ⁿ No, no, my lord,

^o This milky, gentle, easy course of yours,

^e P. and all after but J. read harm'd for taken.

^f So the 1st and 2d fo's: the rest she'll.

g The qu's read —— what Oswald, ho!

Osw. Here, madam.

Gon. What have you writ this letter, &c.

h So the qu's, the fo's, J. the rest ay.

i P. and H. omit and.

k The fo's, R. and J. read fear.

l There is no word in the place of go in either qu's, fo's, or R.; P. puts fo; followed by the rest.

m For hasten the 2d q. reads after.

n The qu's read now, my lord, &c.

o All the editions read this milky (2d q. mildie) gentleness and course, &c.
 So that the alteration in the text is conjectural.

Though I ^p condemn ^q not, yet under ^r your pardon,
^s You are much more ^t at task for want of wisdom,
 Than ^w prais'd for ^x harmless mildness.

Alb. How far your eyes may pierce, I cannot tell;
^y Striving to better, oft we mar what's well.

Gon. Nay, then——

Alb. Well, well, th' event.

[Exeunt.]

Enter, Lear, Kent, ^a Gentleman, and Fool.

Lear. [to a Gentleman.] Go you before to Glo'ster with these letters. — You with this to my daughter Regan. [to Kent.] Acquaint my daughter no further with any thing you know, than comes from her demand out of the letter; if your diligence be not speedy, I shall be there ^b before you.

^p The qu's read dislike for condemn.

^q After condemn, P. and all after read it.

^r Your is conjectural, being in none of the editions.

^s The 1st f. reads your are, &c.

^t For at task the 1st q. reads attaskt; which perhaps Shakespeare might have written, meaning thereby call'd to task. The 2d q. reads alapt for at task.

^w The qu's read praise.

^x So R. P. and H. the rest read harmful.

^y The qu's read striving to better ought, we mar, &c.

^z This description of the scene first given by T. followed by W. and J.

^a The qu's omit, the rest add Gentleman after Kent: and rightly: for it is plain the letter to Regan was sent by Kent; those to Glo'ster by another: the order to Kent is left out; I have therefore supplied it.

^b So the qu's; all the rest afere.

Kent.

Kent. I will not sleep, my lord, till I have delivered your letter. [Exit.

Fool. If a man's ^c brains ^d were in his heels, wer't not in danger of kibes?

Lear. Ay, boy.

Fool. Then I pr'ythee, be merry, thy wit shall ^e not go slipshod.

Lear. Ha, ha, ha.

Fool. Shalt see, thy other daughter will use thee kindly; for though she's as like this as a crab's like an apple, yet ^f I can tell what I can tell.

Lear. ^g Why what can'st thou tell, my boy?

Fool. She will taste as like this, as a crab does to a crab. ^h Thou can'st not tell why one's nose stands i'th' middle ⁱ of one's face?

Lear. No.

Fool. Why to ^k keep one's eyes of either ^l side one's nose, that what a man cannot smell out, he may spy into.

Lear. I did her wrong——

Fool. Can'st tell how an oyster makes his shell?

Lear. No.

Fool. Nor I neither; but I can tell why a snail has a house.

Lear. Why?

^c P. alters this to brain; followed by all after.

^d The 1st q. reads where.

^e The qu's read ner for not.

^f The qu's read I con what I can tell.

^g So the qu's; the rest what can'st tell, boy?

^h So the qu's; the 1st and 2d fo's thou can'st tell, &c. the 3d f. and all after can'st thou tell, &c.

ⁱ The qu's read of his face; the fo's and R. on's face.

Fool. Why, to put's head in, not to give it away ^m to his ⁿ daughters, and leave his horns without a case.

Lear. I will forget my nature.—So kind a father!—
Be my horses ready?

Fool. Thy asses are gone about them. The reason, why the seven stars are no more than seven, is a pretty reason.

Lear. Because they are not eight.

Fool. Yes ^o indeed; thou would'st make a good fool.

Lear. To take't again perforce—Monster ingratitude!

Fool. If ^p thou wert my fool, nuncle, I'd have thee beaten for being old before thy time.

Lear. How's that?

Fool. Thou should'st not have been old, ^q before thou had'st been wife.

Lear. ^r O, let me not be mad, not mad, sweet heav'n!
Keep me in temper; I would not be mad.

Enter Gentleman.

^s How now, are the horses ready?

Gent. Ready, my lord.

Lear. Come, boy.

Fool. She that's ^t a maid now, and laughs at my departure,
Shall not be a maid long, ^u unless things be cut shorter.

[Exeunt.]

^m The 2d q. reads unto for to.

^p The qu's read daughter.

^o The qu's omit indeed.

^p So the qu's, and two 1st fo's; the rest you were.

^q So the qu's; the rest till for before.

^r The qu's read O let me not be mad, sweet heaven! I would not be mad, keep me, &c.

^s The qu's omit how now.

^u The qu's read except for unless.

A C T

A C T II.

S C E N E I.

A castle belonging to the Earl of Glo'ster.

Enter Edmund and Curan, severally.

Edmund.

SAVE thee, Curan.

Curan. And you, sir. I have been with your father, and given him notice that the Duke of Cornwall, and ^a Regan his Dutcheſs, will be here with him ^b this night.

Edm. How comes that?

Curan. Nay, I know not; you have heard of the news abroad; I mean the whiſper'd ones; for ^c they are yet but ^d ear-kiffing arguments.

Edm. Not I; pray you, what are they?

^e Cur. Have you heard of no likely wars towards 'twixt the ^f two Dukes of Cornwall and Albany.

Edm. Not a word.

Cur. You may ^g then in time. Fare you well, sir. [Exit.]

^a The qu's omit Regan.

^b The qu's omit to-night.

^c The qu's read there for they.

^d The qu's read ear-buffing.

^e The two ſpeeches in italic are omitted in the 2d q.

^f All but the q. omit two.

^g After may all but the qu's infer do.

S C E N E II.

Edm. The duke be here to-night? the better! best!
 This weaves itself perforce into my business;
 My father hath let guard to take my brother,
 And I have one thing of a ^h queazy question
 i Which I must act. Briefness, and fortune work!
 Brother, a word. Descend. Brother, I say;—

Enter Edgar.

My father watches; O ^k sir, fly this place,
 Intelligence is given where you are hid;
 You have now the good advantage of the night—
 Have you not spoken 'gainst the Duke of Cornwall ^l aught?
 He's coming hither now i'th' night, ^m i'th' haste,
 And Regan with him; have you nothing said n Upon his party 'gainst the Duke of Albany?
 o Advise yourself.

Edg. I'm sure on't, not a word.

Edm. I hear my father coming. Pardon me—p In cunning, I must draw my sword upon you—q Draw; seem to defend yourself.

^h The qu's read queste.

ⁱ The qu's read which must aske breefnesse and fortune help.

^k The qu's omit sir.

^l All but the qu's omit aught.

^m P. omits i'th'. H. reads in for i'th'.

ⁿ J. would read against his party for the Duke of Albany.

^o The qu's read advise your—

^p The qu's read in craving, &c.

^q The qu's omit draw.

Now,

Now, quit you well——

Yield——Come before my father—— † Light ho, here!

• Fly, brother—— † Torches, torches!——So farewell.

[Exit Edgar.

Some blood, drawn on me, would beget opinion [Wounds his arm.

Of my more fierce endeavour. I have seen drunkards

Do more than this in sport. Father! father!

Stop, stop. No help?

S C E N E III.

To him enter Glo'ster and servants with torches.

Glo. Now, Edmund, where's the villain?

Edm. Here stood he in the dark, his sharp sword out,

‡ Mumbling of wicked charms, conj'ring the moon

To stand w his auspicious mistress.

Glo. But where is he?

Edm. Look, sir, I bleed.

Glo. Where is the villain, Edmund?

Edm. Fled this way, sir, when by no means he could——

Glo. Pursue him, † ho! Go after.— By no means, what?

Edm. Persuade me to the murder of your lordship;

But that, I told him, the † revenging gods

† The qu's read light beere, beere.

• The qu's read flie, brother, flie.

† So the qu's and 1st f. the rest have torches but once.

‡ The qu's read warbling for mumbling.

w The 1st and 2d fo's omit his.

† The qu's omit ho!

† The qu's read revengive.

'Gainst parricides did all ^z their ^a thunders bend,
 Spoke with how manifold and strong a bond
 The child was bound to th' father.—Sir, ^b in fine,
 Seeing how lothly opposite I stood
 To his unnatural purpose, ^c in fell motion
 With his prepared sword he charges home
 My unprovided body, ^d lanc'd my arm;
^e But when he saw my best ^f alarum'd spirits
 Bold in the quarrels ^g right, rouz'd to th' encounter,
 Or whether ^h 'ghasted by the noise I made,
ⁱ Full suddenly he fled.

Gl. Let him fly far;
 Not in this land shall he remain uncaught;
^k And found—Dispatch—The noble Duke my master,
^l My ^m worthy arch and patron comes to-night;
 By his authority I will proclaim it,
 That he ⁿ which finds him shall deserve our thanks,

^z So the qu's and J. all the rest read the for their.

^a So the qu's; all the rest read thunder.

^b The qu's read in a fine.

^c The qu's read with for in.

^d The 1st q. reads lancht; the 2d launcht; so R. P. and H. the fo's latch'd.

^e So the qu's; all the rest read and for but.

^f So the qu's, and 1st, 2d, and 3d fo's; the 4th f. alarm'd; all the rest alarmed.

^g The 1st q. reads rights.

^h 'Ghasted, contraction of aghasted, i. e. affrighted. All editions read gasted.

ⁱ The qu's read but for full.

^k W. reads and found, dispatch'd.

T. reads my worthy and arch-patron, &c.

^m The 4th f. reads worth.

ⁿ T.'s duodecimo reads who for which; followed by W. and J.

Bringing

Bringing the murderous ° caitiff to the stake;
He that conceals him, death.

Edm. When I dissuaded him from his intent,
And found him pight to do it, with curst speech
I threaten'd to discover him. He replied,
Thou unpossessing bastard! dost thou think
If I would stand against thee, ^p could the ^q reposeure
Of any trust, virtue, or worth in thee
Make thy words faith'd? no; ^r what I should deny
(As this I would, ^s ay, though thou didst produce
My very character) ^t I'd turn it all
To thy suggestion, plot, and damned ^u practice;
And thou must make a dullard of the world,
If they not thought the profits of my death
Were ^w very pregnant and potential ^x spurs
To make thee seek it. [Trumpets within.]

Glo. * Strong and fasten'd villain!

^o So the qu's; the rest coward for caitiff.

^p So the qu's; all the rest would for could, except H. who omits it here, and inserts would in the next line but one, would make thy words, &c.

^q So the qu's; all the rest reposeure.

^r The fo's read what should I deny; R. and P. by what I should deny; H. what I'd deny. W. says, the sense and grammar requires we should read and point—no, when I should deny; followed by J. but the sense is plain without alteration; what I should deny myself to be guilty of, I would lay to thy charge.

^s So the qu's; the fo's and R. had left out ay; P. to complete the measure reads although for ay, though; followed by all the rest.

^t The three first fo's read I'd; the 4th I'll; H. read would for I'd.

^u The qu's read pretence for practice.

^w S. omits very, which is in all the editions besides.

^x The fo's and R. read spirits for spurs.

* So the qu's; the fo's and R. O strange and fasten'd villain! P. and all after, O strange, fasten'd villain.

Would

Would he deny his letter?—¹ I never got him.—
 Hark, the duke's trumpets! I know not ² why he comes.—
 All ports I'll bar; the villain shall not 'scape;
 The duke must grant me that; besides, his picture
 I will send far and near, that all the kingdom
 May have ³ due note of him. And of my land,
 Loyal and natural boy, I'll work the means
 To make thee capable.

S C E N E IV.

Enter Cornwall, Regan, and attendants.

Corn. How now, my noble friend? Since I came hither,
 Which I can call but now, I have heard ^b strange news.

Reg. If it be true, all vengeance comes too short,
 Which can pursue th' offender. How ^c does my lord?

Glo. ^d O madam, my old heart is crack'd, ^e it's crack'd.

Reg. What, did my father's godson seek your life?
 He whom my father nam'd? Your Edgar? ^f

Glo. ^g O lady, lady, shame would have it hid.

Reg. Was he not companion with the riotous knights,

¹ After letter, said he? is inserted, and I never got him omitted, by the fo's, R. P. and H.—H. puts bark! at the end of this line to make up the measure, reading bark! twice.

² For why, the 1st f. reads wher; the other fo's where.

³ The qu's omit due.

^b The fo's and R. read strangeness for strange news.

^c The qu's and 1st f. read dost for does.

^d The qu's omit O.

^e The qu's read is for it's.

^f After Edgar H. puts he? to complete the measure.

^g For O the qu's read I, . e. ay.

That

That ^h tend upon my father?

Glo. I know not, madam. 'Tis too bad, too bad.

Edm. Yes, madam, he was ⁱ of that comfort.

Reg. No marvel then, though he were ill-affected;
'Tis they have put him on the old man's death,
To have ^k the waste and spoil of ^l his revenues.
I have this present evening from my sister
Been well inform'd of them; and with such cautions,
That if they come to sojourn at my house,
I'll not be there.

Corn. ^m Nor I, assure thee, Regan.

Edmund, I ⁿ hear that you have shewn your father
A child-like office.

Edm. ^o 'Twas my duty, sir.

Glo. He did ^p bewray his practice, and receiv'd
This hurt you see, striving to apprehend him.

Corn. Is he pursued?

Glo. Ay, my good lord ^q.

Corn. If he be taken, he shall never more
Be fear'd of doing harm. Make your own purpose,

^h The qu's read tends; the fo's, R. and P. tended; H. tended on for tend upon.

ⁱ The qu's omit of that comfort.

^k So the 1st q. the 2d for the waste and spoil reads these—and waste; all the rest th' expence and waste.

^l Before his the 2d q. reads this; the three last fo's, R. P. and H. omit his.

^m T.'s duodecimo reads nor I, I assure thee, &c. which W. and J. follow.

ⁿ The qu's read heard.

^o So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the 1st and 2d fo's it was; the 2d, 3d, and R. it is; P. and H. it's.

^p The qu's read betray.

^q After lord, H. adds he is.

How in my strength you please. ^r As for you, Edmund,
 Whose virtue and obedience ^s doth in this instance
 So much commend itself, you shall be ours;
 Natures of such deep trust we shall much need:
 You we first seize on.

Edm. I shall serve you ^t truly,
 However else.

Glo. ^u For him I thank your grace.

Corn. You know not why we came to visit you——

Reg. ^w Thus out of season ^x threading dark-ey'd night;
 Occasions, noble Gloster, of some ^y poise,
 Wherein we must have use of your advice.—
 Our father he hath writ, so hath our sister,
 Of ^z differences, which I ^a best thought it fit
 To answer from our ^b home: the sev'ral messengers
 From hence attend dispatch. Our good old friend,
 Lay comforts to your bosom; and bestow
 Your needful counsel to our ^c business,

^r The qu's and 1st f. omit as.

^s This is Heath's conjecture, from W.'s alteration (followed by J.) whose virtue and obedience in this instance so much commends, &c. The editions before read—doth this instant, &c.

^t After you, all but the qu's read fir.

^u P. and all after omit for him.

^w R.'s duodecimo, P. and H. give this first line of Regan's speech to Cornwall; but without necessity; for Regan may be here supposed officiously to complete Cornwall's sentence.

^x The qu's read threatning; T. conjectures treading.

^y So the 1st q. and W.; all the rest prize for poise.

^z The 2d q. reads defences.

^a The 1st q. reads lest for best.

^b The 2d q. reads hand for home.

^c So the qu's; the rest businesses.

Which

Which ^d craves the instant use.

Glo. I serve you, madam.

Your graces are right welcome.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE V.

Enter Kent and Steward, severally.

Stew. Good ^e even to thee, friend. Art of ^f the house?

Kent. Ay.

Stew. Where may we fet our horfes?

Kent. I'th' mire.

Stew. Pr'ythee, if thou ^g lov'st me tell me.

Kent. I love thee not.

Stew. Why then I care not for thee.

Kent. If I had thee in ^h Lipfbury pinfold, I would make thee care for me.

Stew. Why doft thou use me thus? I know thee not.

Kent. Fellow, I know thee.

Stew. What doft thou know me for?

Kent. A knave, a rafcal, an eater of broken meats, a bafe, proud, shallow, beggarly, ⁱ three-fuited, hundred-pound, filthy, worfted-ftocking knave; a lily-liver'd, action-taking ^k knave; ^l a whorefon, glafs-gazing, ^m super-ferviceable, ^d So the qu's and fo's; the reft crave.

^e So the qu's; P. and T. evening; W. downing; the reft dawning.

^f So the qu's; the reft this for the.

^g The qu's read love for lov'st.

^h Perhaps Ledbury.

ⁱ The qu's read three-shewted.

^k The fo's, R. P. and H. omit knave.

▪ finical rogue; one-trunk-inheriting slave; one that wouldst be a bawd in way of good service; and art nothing but the composition of a knave, beggar, pander, and the son and heir of a mungril bitch; ° one whom I will beat into ^p clamorous whining, if thou ^q deny'st the least syllable of ^r thy addition.

Stew. ^s Why, what a monstrous fellow art thou, thus to rail on one, that is neither known of thee, nor knows thee!

Kent. What a brazen-fac'd varlet art thou, to deny thou knowest me! Is it two days ^t ago, since I ^u tript up thy heels, and beat thee before the king? Draw, you rogue; for, tho' it be night, yet the moon shines; I'll make a sop o'th' moon-shine of you. ^w Draw, you whoreson, cullionly barber-monger, draw. [Drawing his sword.]

Stew. Away, I have nothing to do with thee.

Kent. Draw, you rascal. ^x You come with letters against the king; and take Vanity the puppet's part, against the royalty of her father. Draw, you rogue, or I'll so carbonado your shanks—Draw, you rascal; come your ways.

Stew. Help, ho! murder! help!—

Kent. Strike, you slave; stand, rogue, stand; you neat slave, strike. [Beating him.]

Stew. Help, ho! ^y murder! murder!

▪ The qu's read super-finical.

° The qu's omit one.

p The 1st and 2d fo's read clamours.

q The qu's read deny.

r The qu's read the for thy.

s The qu's omit why.

t The fo's, R. P. and H. omit ago.

u The qu's read beat thee and tript up thy heels.

w All but the qu's omit draw.

The qu's read you bring letters, &c.

The qu's read murder! help!

ACT II. SCENE VI.

SCENE VI.

Enter Edmund z, Cornwall, Regan, Glo'ster, and servants,

Edm. How now, what's the matter? ^a Part——

Kent. With you, goodman boy, ^b if you please; come I'll flesh you; come on, young master.

Glo. Weapons? arms? what's the matter here?

Corn. Keep peace, upon your lives; he dies, that strikes again. What's the matter?

Reg. The messengers from our sister and the king.

Corn. What is your difference? speak.

Stew. I am scarce in breath, my lord.

Kent. No marvel, you have so bestirr'd your valour, you cowardly rascal. Nature disclaims ^c all share in thee: a taylor made thee.

Corn. Thou art a strange fellow. A taylor make a man?

Kent. ^d Ay, a taylor, fir; a stone-cutter, or a painter could not have made him so ill, tho' ^e they had been but ^f two hours g at the trade.

Corn. Speak ^h you, how grew your quarrel?

Stew. This ancient ruffian, fir, whose life I have spar'd at suit of his grey beard——

^z The qu's read after Edmund, with his rapier drawn.

^a The qu's omit part——

^b The qu's read and for if.

^c The qu's and fo's omit all share; these words are first supplied by R.

^d The fo's, R. P. and H. omit ay.

^e The qu's read he for they.

^f Fo's and R. read two years.

^g So the qu's; the rest o'th' trade.

^h All but P. and H. read yet for you.

Kent's

Kent. Thou whorson zed! thou unnecessary letter! My lord, if you will give me leave, I will tread this unbolted villain into mortar, and daub the ⁱ wall of a jakes with him. Spare my grey beard? you wagtail!

Corn. Peace, ^k firrah!

You beastly knave, ^l know you no reverence?

Kent. Yes, fir, but anger hath a priviledge.

Corn. Why art thou angry?

Kent. That such a slave as this should wear a sword, ^m Who wears no honesty. Such smiling rogues as these,
 Like rats, oft bite ⁿ those ^o holy cords ^p a-twain
^q Which are too ^r intricate ^s t'unloose; ^t smooth ev'ry passion
 That in the ^u nature's of their lords ^w rebel;
^x Bring oil to ^y fire, snow to ^z their colder moods,
^a Renege, affirm, and turn their halcyon beaks

ⁱ The qu's read walls.

^k The qu's read fir for firrah.

^l The qu's read you have no reverence.

^m The qu's read that for who.

ⁿ So the qu's and P.; the rest the for those.

^o The qu's and P. omit holy.

^p So the qu's, fo's, and R. P. alters this to in twain; followed by the rest.

^q So the qu's, fo's, and R. P. omits which are; followed by the rest.

^r For intricate the qu's read intrench; the fo's and R. intrince; H. intrin- sick; T. W. and J. intrinfcate; intricate is P.'s conjecture.

^s The qu's read to inloose.

^t So all before P. who alters it to sooth; followed by the rest.

^u So all before P.; he and all after nature.

^w So all before P.; he and all after rebels; but perhaps ev'ry passion
 (i. e. all the passions) will admit of a plural verb, as well as a singular.

^x The fo's and R. read being for bring.

^y The qu's read fir for fire.

^z The fo's read the for their.

^a The qu's read reneag; the 1st f. revenge.

With

With ev'ry ^b gale and vary of their masters,
^c Knowing nought, like dogs, but following.
 A plague upon your epileptic visage!
^d Smile you my speeches, as I were a fool?
 Goose, ^e if I had you upon Sarum-plain,
 I'd ^f drive ye cackling home to ^g Camelot.

Corn. What art thou mad, old fellow?

Glo. How fell you out? say that.

Kent. No contraries hold more antipathy,
 Than I and such a knave.

Corn. Why dost thou call him knave? ^h What's his offence?

Kent. His countenance likes me not.

Corn. No more, perchance, does mine, ⁱ or his, or hers.

Kent. Sir, 'tis my occupation to be plain;
 I have seen better faces in my time,
 Than ^k stands on any shoulder that I see
 Before me at this instant.

Corn. This is ^l some fellow,

^b The 1st f. reads gall for gale.

^c Before knowing P. inserts as; followed by the rest.

^d The 1st q. reads smoyle for smile; the 2d q. and three first fo's smoile.

^e The 1st q. reads and for if.

^f The qu's read send for drive.

^g The qu's read Camulet.

In the parts of Somersetshire near Camelot there are many large moors upon which great numbers of geese are bred, so that many other places in England are from thence supplied with quills and feathers. H.

Camelot was the place where the Romances say Arthur kept his court in the west; so this alludes to some proverbial speech in those romances. W.

^h So the qu's; the rest what is his fault?

ⁱ So the qu's; the rest nor his, nor hers.

^k So all before P.; he and all after stand.

^l The qu's read a for some.

Who having been prais'd for bluntness, doth affect
 A sawcy ^m roughness; and constrains the garb,
 Quite from his nature. He ⁿ cannot flatter, he!
 ° An honest mind and plain, he must speak truth;
 p An they will take it, so; if not, he's plain.
 These kind of knaves I know, which in this plainness
 Harbour more craft, and ^q more corrupter ends,
 Than twenty ^r filky ducking observants,
 That stretch their duties nicely.

Kent. Sir, in good ^s sooth, ^t or in sincere verity,
 Under th' allowance of your ^u grand aspect,
 Whose influence, like the wreath of radiant fire
 On ^w flickering Phoebus' front——

Corn. What mean'st ^x thou by this?

Kent. To go out of my dialect, which you discommend so much. I know, sir, I am no flatterer; he that beguil'd you in a plain accent was a plain knave; which for my part I will not be, though I should win your displeasure to entreat me to it.

Corn. y What was th' offence you gave him?

Stew. ^z I never gave him any.

^m The qu's read ruffines.

ⁿ So all before P.; he and all after can't.

° The qu's read he must speak plain, &c.

p The qu's, fo's, and R. read and.

q P. and H. read far for more.

r So H. and W.; the rest silly.

s So the qu's; all the rest faith for sooth.

t All but the qu's omit or.

u The fo's and R. read great for grand.

w The fo's and R. read flicking.

x All but the qu's omit thou.

y The qu's read what's th' offence, &c.

z H. reads never any, &c.

It pleas'd the king his master very ^a late
 To strike at me upon his misconstruction,
 When he ^b conjunct, and flattering his displeasure,
 Tript me behind; being down, insulted, rail'd,
 And put upon him such a deal of man, ^c that
 That worthied him; got praises of the king,
 For him attempting who was self-subdued;
 And, in the ^d fleshment of this dread exploit,
 Drew on me here again.

Kent. None of these rogues and cowards,
 But Ajax is their ^e fool.

Corn. ^f Bring forth the stocks, ^g ho!
 You stubborn ^h ancient knave, you ⁱ rev'rend braggart,
 We'll teach you——

Kent. Sir, I am too old to learn.
 Call not your stocks for me: I serve the king;
 On whose ^k imployment I was sent to you.
 You ^l shall do small ^m respect, shew too bold malice Against the grace and person of my master, ⁿ Stocking his messenger.

^a So the qu's and fo's; the rest lately.

^b The fo's and R. read compact for conjunct.

^c So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the rest omit this first that.

^d The qu's read stechnent.

^e W. conjectures foil, but puts it not in his text.

^f So the qu's; the rest fetch for bring.

^g All but the qu's omit ho!

^h The qu's read miscreant for ancient.

ⁱ The 2d q. reads unreverent.

^k The qu's read impliments.

^l The qu's read should for shall.

^m The fo's and R. read respects.

ⁿ The qu's read stopping for stocking.

Corn. Fetch forth the stocks ;

As I have life ^o and honour, there shall he sit till noon.

Reg. Till noon ? till night, my lord, and all night too.

Kent. Why, madam, if I were your father's dog,

You ^p could not use me so.

Reg. Sir, being his knave, I will. [Stocks brought out.]

Corn. This is a fellow of the ^q self fame ^r nature

Our sifter ^s speaks of. ^t Come, bring away the stocks.

Glo. Let me beseech your grace not to do so ;

^u His fault is much, and the good king his master

Will check him for't. Your purpos'd low correction

Is such, as basest and ^w contemned'st wretches

For pilf'rings and most common trespasses,

Are punish'd with ; ^x the king must take it ill

That ^y he, so slightly valued in his messenger,

Should have him thus restrain'd.

Corn. I'll answer that.

Reg. My sifter may receive it ^z much more worse,

^o H. omits and honour.

^p The fo's and R. read should not.

^q The 2d q. omits self.

^r The fo's and R. read colour for nature;

^s The 1st q. reads speake.

^u What is in italic is omitted in the fo's and R.

^w The qu's read temnest; P. and the rest the meanest: but the particle the does not read so well before meanest, unless it had been placed before basest too; and which Shakespeare would have done in this case, notwithstanding a foot of three syllables would have occurred. Besides, basest and meanest are synonymous terms: contemnedst is the consequence of basest.

^y So the 1st and 2d fo's; the qu's, and 3d and 4th fo's read he's for he, which led R. to read to have in the next line for should have; followed by P. and H.

^z H. reads yet much worse.

ACT II. SCENE VII.

71

To have her ^a gentleman abus'd, assaulted,

^b For following her affairs. Put in his legs— [Kent is put in the stocks.

Come, my ^c good lord, away. [Exeunt Reg. and Corn.

SCENE VII.

Glo. I am forry for thee, friend ; 'tis the duke's pleasure,
Whose disposition, all the world well knows,
Will not be rubb'd nor stopt. I'll intreat for thee.

Kent. Pray, do not, sir. I've watch'd and travell'd hard;
Sometime I shall sleep ^e out, the rest I'll whistle.
A good man's fortune may grow out at heels.
Give you good morrow.

Glo. The duke's to blame in this, 'twill be ill ^f taken.
[Exit.

Kent. Good king, that must approve the common ^g saw,
^h Thou out of heav'n's benediction com'st
To the warm sun !

ⁱ Approach, thou beacon to this under-globe, [Looking up to the moon.

^a The 1st q. reads gentlemen.

^b The fo's and R. omit this line.

^c So the 1st q. all the rest omit good.

^d This is called Scene VI. in P. and H. they also call the foregoing Scene the VIth, miscounting to the end of this act.

^e The 1st q. reads ont for out.

^f The qu's read tooke for taken.

^g An old proverbial saying, applied to those who are turned out of house and home, deprived of all the comforts of life excepting the common benefits of the air and sun. H.

^h For thou J. reads that, in no edition before.

ⁱ These lines from approach to remedies are omitted in H.'s text, as not Shakespeare's.

That by thy comfortable beams I may
 Peruse this letter. Nothing almost sees ^k miracles,
 But misery, ^l I know.—'Tis from Cordelia, [Opening the letter.
 Who hath most fortunately been inform'd
 Of my obscured course—^m and shall find time [Reading parts of the letter.
From this enormous state—ⁿ seeking to give Losses their remedies.—All weary and o'er-watch'd,
 Take 'vantage, heavy eyes, not to behold
 This shameful lodging.
 Fortune, good night; smile once more; turn thy wheel.
[He sleeps.]

Changes to part of a heath.

Enter Edgar.

Edg. ° I heard myself proclaim'd;
 And, by the happy hollow of a tree,
 Escap'd the hunt. No port is free, no place,
 That guard and most unusual vigilance
 P Does not attend my taking. Whiles I may 'scape,
 I will preserve myself, and am bethought

^k The qu's read my wracke for miracles.

^l In the qu's there is a comma after misery, and no stop after I know; in all the rest there is a period after misery.

^m R. and all after but J. read I for and. This in italic is supposed by all the editors to be a continuation of Kent's speech, except J. who puzzles, and does not know what to make on't.

ⁿ R. and all after but J. read and seek for seeking.

° The qu's read I hear; the 4th f. and R. I have heard; all the rest I've heard.

P The qu's read doft.

To take the basest and a most poorest shape,
 That ever penury in contempt of man
 Brought near to beast. My face I'll grime with filth,
 Blanket my loins, ^r else all my ^s hair ^t in knots;
 And with presented nakedness out-face
 The ^u winds and persecutions of the sky.
 The country gives me proof and precedent
 Of Bedlam beggars, who, with roaring voices,
 Strike in their numb'd and mortify'd bare arms
 Pins, wooden pricks, nails, sprigs of rosemary,
 And with this horrible object, from low ^w farms,
 Poor ^x pelting villages, sheep-coats and mills,
 Sometimes with lunatic bans, sometimes with prayers,
 Inforce their charity. Poor ^y Turlygod, poor Tom!
 That's something yet. Edgar I nothing am. [Exit.]

^q So all before P. he and all after the for most.

^r So the 1st f.; the qu's and 2d f. read else for elfe; the 3d and 4th fo's put; followed by R. and P. See T. in loc. and H.'s Glossary, to elfe, i. e. to intangle in so intricate a manner that it is not to be unravelled; like elfe-locks, supposed the work of fairies.

^s The three first fo's read hairs.

^t The qu's for in read with; which seems to be taken from the foregoing line, with filth.

^u The qu's read wind and persecution.

^w The qu's read service for farms.

^x Perhaps pedling; or it may signify cottages thinly scattered. This was my first idea of pelting, till Warburton drove it out of my head: but I resume it again, believing it to be Shakespeare's own idea.

^y So the qu's, fo's, R. and P.'s quarto; H. Turlurà; all the rest Turlygood; W. thinks it should be Turlupin, a new species of gypsies in the 14th century.

SCENE

S C E N E IX.

^z Changes again to the earl of Glo'ster's castle.

Enter Lear, Fool, and Gentleman.

Lear. 'Tis strange, that they should so depart from ^a home,
And not send back my ^b messenger.

Gent. As I learn'd

The night before there was no purpose ^c in them
Of ^d this remove.

Kent. Hail to thee, noble master!

Lear. ^e How? mak'st thou ^f this shame thy pastime?

^g Kent. No, my lord.

Fool. Ha, ha! ^h look! he wears cruel garters. Horses are ty'd by the ⁱ heads, dogs and bears by the neck, monkeys by th' loins

^z This description of the scene is first inserted by P. J. says, it is not very clearly discovered why Lear comes hither. In the foregoing part he sent letters to Glo'ster, but no hint is given of their contents. He seems to have gone to visit Glo'ster, while Cornwall and Regan might prepare to entertain him. J. ——— Possibly Glo'ster's castle might be in the way to Regan's; though their name and situation are forgot to be mentioned. See Act i. Sc. xvii.

^a The qu's read hence for home.

^b The 1st and 2d fo's read messengers.

^c The qu's omit in them.

^d The qu's read his for this.

^e So the qu's; the rest ha for how.

^f So the qu's, fo's, and R.; P. and H. omit this; T. W. and J. read thy for this.

^g This speech is not in the qu's.

^h So the qu's; all the rest omit look; and qu's read crewel garters; fo 3d and 4th fo's, and R.'s 8vo.

ⁱ The qu's read heels for heads: horses are tied by the heels when they are fastened to feed in a corn-field; but heads seems preferable. The fool makes th' loins, and men by th' legs. When a man's over-lusty at legs, then he wears wooden nether ^k stocks.

Lear. What's he, that hath so much thy place mistook,
To fet thee here?

Kent. It is both he and she,
Your son and daughter.

Lear. No.

Kent. Yes.

Lear. No, I say.

Kent. ^l I say, yea.

^m Lear. No, no, they would not.

Kent. Yes, they have.

Lear. By Jupiter, I swear, no.

ⁿ Kent. By Juno, I swear, ay.

Lear. They durst not do't:

They ^o would not, could not do't; 'tis worfe than murder,
To do upon respect such violent outrage.

Resolve me with all modest haste, which way

Thou ^p might'st deserve, or they ^q impose this usage,

Coming from us?

Kent. My lord, when at their home
I did commend your highness' letters to them,
'Ere I was risen from the place, that shew'd makes a progression downwards, from the head to the neck, the neck to the loins, and the loins to the legs.

^k Heath is of opinion we should read socks.

^l H. reads but I say, yea.

^m These two speeches in italic are omitted by all but qu's.

ⁿ This speech is omitted in the qu's.

^o So the qu's; all the rest could not, would not.

^p The qu's read may'st for might'st.

^q The qu's read purpose for impose.

My duty kneeling, ^r there came a reeking post,
 Stew'd in his haste, half-breathless, panting forth,
 From Gonerill his mistress, ^s salutations;
 Deliver'd letters spight of intermission,
 Which presently they read; ^t on whose contents
 They summon'd up their ^u men, strait took horse,
 Commanded me to follow, and attend
 The leisure of their answer; gave me cold looks;
^w I, meeting here the other messenger,
 Whose welcome, I perceiv'd, had poison'd mine,
 (Being the very fellow, ^x which of late Display'd so sawcily against your highness)
 Having more man than wit about me, ^y drew;
 He rais'd the house with loud and coward cries.
 Your son and daughter found this trespass worth
 The shame which here it suffers.

^z Fool. Winter's not gone yet, if the wild geese fly that way, Fathers that wear rags
 Do make their children blind;
 But fathers that bear bags
 Shall see their children kind.

^r So all before P.; he and all after omit there.

^s So the qu's and 1st f.; all the rest salutation.

^t So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the rest those for whose.

^u So the qu's; the rest meiney, which P. interprets people.

^w All the editions read and for I; which cannot be right, as it makes Cornwall and Regan meet the messenger; but Kent's intention is to tell Lear that he met the messenger.

^x The qu's read that for which.

^y Before drew R. inserts I, (followed by the rest) which is necessary, but more proper above. See Note ^w.

^z This speech of the fool is omitted in the qu's.

Fortune, that arrant whore,
 Ne'er turns the key to the poor.
 But for all this thou shalt have as many ^a dolours ^b from thy ^c dear daughters, as thou canst tell in a year.

Lear. Oh, how this mother swells up to my heart!

Hysterica passio, down, thou climbing sorrow,
 Thy element's below. Where is this daughter?

Kent. With the earl, sir, ^d here within.

Lear. Follow me not; stay ^e here. [Exit.

Gent. Made you no more offence ^f but what you speak of?

Kent. ^g None.

How chance the king comes with so small a ^h train?

Fool. ⁱ An thou hadst been set i'th' stocks for that question, thou'dst well ^k deserved it.

Kent. Why, fool?

Fool. We'll set thee to school to an ant, to teach thee there's no labouring i'th' winter. ^l All that follow their noses are led by their eyes, but blind men; and there's not a nose among ^m twenty, but can smell him that's stinking. Let go thy hold, when a great wheel runs down a hill, lest it break

^a A quibble intended between dolours and dollars. H.

^b All before T. read for for from.

^c The 1st f. and J. omit dear.

^d The qu's omit here.

^e The qu's read there for here.

^f The qu's read than for but.

^g The qu's read no for none.

^h So the qu's; the rest number for train.

ⁱ The 2d q. reads if for an.

^k P. reads deserve: so that by thou'dst he means thou wouldst not thou hadst.

^l J. pretends to read All men are led by their eyes, but blind men, and they follow their noses, and there's not a nose, &c. But pray, Dr. J. don't all men follow their noses, as well as blind men?

^m The qu's read a hundred for twenty.

thy neck with following ⁿ it; but the great one that goes ^o up the hill, let him draw thee after. When a wise man gives better counsel, give me mine again; I would have none but knaves follow it, since a fool gives it.

That, sir, ^p which serves ^q and seeks for gain,
And follows but for form,
Will pack when it begins to rain,
And leave thee in ^r the storm.

^s But I will tarry, the fool will stay
And let the wise man fly;
^t The knave turns fool, that runs away;
The fool no knave, perdy.

Kent. Where learn'd you this, fool?

Fool. Not i'th' stocks, ^u fool.

Enter Lear and Glo'ster.

Lear. Deny to speak with me? they're sick? they're weary?
^w They have travell'd all the night? Meere fetches, ⁿ The fo's, R. P. and H. omit it.

^o So the qu's; all the rest upward for up the hill.

^p The qu's read that for which.

^q The qu's, P. T. H. W. and J. omit and seeks.

^r The 4th f. R. P. and H. read a for the.

^s The qu's, the 1st and 2d fo's, T. W. and J. read but; the rest and.

^t J. proposes reading,

The fool turns knave, that runs away;

The knave no fool——

^u The qu's omit fool.

^w The qu's read they travell'd hard to-night, meere justice, I the images, &c.

The

The images of revolt and flying off.

* Fetch me a better answer.

Glo. My dear lord,
You know the fiery quality of the duke,
How unremoveable and fixt he is
In his own course.

Lear. Vengeance! y plague! death! confusion!—
z What fiery quality? Why, Glo'ster, a Glo'ster, I'd speak with th' duke of Cornwall, and his wife.

^b Glo. Well, my good lord, I have inform'd them so.

Lear. Inform'd them? Dost thou understand me, man?

Glo. Ay, my good lord.

Lear. The king would speak with Cornwall; the dear father

Would with his daughter speak, c commands her service;

d Are they inform'd of this?—My breath and blood!—

e Fiery? the fiery duke? tell the hot duke, that—f

No, but not yet; may be, he is not well;

Infirmity doth still neglect all office,

Whereto our health is bound; we're not ourselves,

When nature, being oppress'd, g commands the mind

x So all before P.; he and all after bring for fetch.

y The qu's place death before plague.

z So the qu's; the fo's and R. read fiery? what quality? P. and all after fiery? what fiery quality?

a So all before P.; he and all after read Glo'ster only once.

b These two speeches in italic are not in the qu's.

c The fo's read commands, tends, service; R. command tends service.

d The qu's omit this line.

e The qu's read fiery duke, tell the hot duke that Lear.

f Here J. puts a direction, [Glo'ster offers to go.] So that he makes Glo'ster going, not with half his errand, but without any of it.

g The 1st q. reads command.

To suffer with the body. I'll forbear ;
 And am fallen out with my more ^h headier will,
 To take the indispos'd and sickly fit
 For the found man.—Death on my state! ⁱ [Looking on Kent.]
 Wherefore should he sit here? this act ^k persuades me,
 That this remotion of the duke and her
 Is practice only. Give me my servant forth.
^l Go, tell the duke and 's wife, ^m I'd speak with them.
 Now! presently! bid them come forth and hear me,
 Or at their chamber-door I'll beat the drum,
 Till it cry, sleep to death.

Glo. I would have all well betwixt you. [Exit.]

Lear. ⁿ Oh me, my heart, my rising heart! but down.

Fool. Cry to it, nuncle, as the cockney did to the eels, when ^o she ^p put them i'th' ^q paste alive; ' she ^r rapt 'em o'th' coxcombs with a stick, and cry'd, down wantons, down.
 'Twas her ^t brother that in pure kindness to his horse but-ter'd his ^u hay.

^h P. and H. read heady for headier.

ⁱ After state P. reads but; followed by all after; but then wherefore is,
 by them, made a part of this line, as in the folio's.

^k H. reads persuadeth.

^l The qu's omit go.

^m The qu's read Ile for I'd.

ⁿ This speech in the qu's is only O my heart! my heart.

^o The 2d, 3d, and 4th fo's, R. P. and H. read he for she.

^p The 2d q. reads put um up i'th', &c.

^q The 1st q. past; the 2d, the fo's, and R. paste; P. and all after pasty.
 But who ever heard of an eel-pasty?

^r R. P. and H. read he for she.

^s The fo's and R. knapt for rapt.

^t The 3d and 4th qu's, R. P. and H. read his for her.

^u The 2d and 3d fo's hey for hay.

SCENE

SCENE XI.

Enter Cornwall, Regan, Glo'fter, and fervants.

Lear. Good morrow to you both.

Corn. Hail to your grace. [Kent is fet at liberty.]

Reg. I am glad to fee your highnefs.

Lear. Regan, I think you are; I know what reafon
I have to think fo; if thou ^w fhouldft not be glad,
I would divorce me from thy mother's tomb,
Sepulchring an adultrefs. ^x O, are you free?
Some other time for that. Beloved Regan,
Thy fifters naught: oh Regan, ſhe hath tied Sharp-tooth'd unkindnefs, like a vulture here; [Points to his heart.]

I can ſcarce ſpeak to thee; thou'lt not believe,
^y Of how ^z deprav'd a quality—Oh Regan!

Reg. I pray you, fir, take patience; I have hope,
You lefs know how to value her defert,
Than ſhe to ^a ſcan her duty.

^b Lear. ^c Say? How is that?—

Reg. I cannot think, my fiſter in the leaſt

^w So all before P.; he and all after read wert not for ſhouldft not be.

^x The qu's read yea for O.

^y So the qu's; the reſt with for of.

^z The qu's read depriv'd for deprav'd.

^a The qu's read ſlacke her duty; the fo's, R. P. T. W. and J. ſcant her duty; H. ſcan her duty; J. propoſes this emendation, without telling us that H. has made it.

^b Theſe two ſpeeches in italic are not in the qu's.

^c So all before P.; he and H. omit ſay.

*Would fail her obligation. If, ^d fir, perchance
She have restrain'd the riots of your followers,
'Tis on such ground, and to such wholesome end,
As clears her from all blame.*

Lear. My curses on her!—

Reg. O fir, you are old;
Nature ^e in you stands on the very verge
Of ^f her confine; you should be rul'd and led
By some discretion, that discerns your state
Better than you yourself: therefore I pray ^g you,
That to our sister you do make return;
Say you have wrong'd her, ^h fir.

Lear. Ask her forgiveness?

Do you ⁱ but mark, how this becomes ^k me now:
Dear daughter, I confess that I am old;
Age is unnecessary; on my knees I beg, [Kneels.
That you'll vouchsafe me raiment, bed, and food.

Reg. Good fir, no more: these are unsightly tricks;
Return you to my sister.

^d So all before P.; he and all after omit fir.

^e The qu's read on for in.

^f The 1st q; his for her.

^g The qu's omit you.

^h The fo's and R. omit fir.

ⁱ The qu's omit but.

^k For me now, the qu's, fo's, R. P. W. and J. read the house, which W. interprets, the order of families, the duties of relation, which are scandalously disturbed by the father's submission to the daughter. H. reads becometh us. T. the use; but who ever said, this becomes the custom or use? What agrees with custom, or rather nature, does indeed become the person who uses it. We make it better sense by reading me now, and referring it to what follows, which infers a fortiori that much less would it become him to ask his daughter forgiveness.

Lear.

Lear. ^l Never, Regan :

She hath abated me of half my train ;
Look'd ^m black upon me ; struck me with her tongue,
Most serpent-like, upon the very heart.

All the stor'd vengeance of heaven fall
On her ingrateful ⁿ top ! Strike her young bones,

• You taking airs, with lameness !——

Corn. ^p Fie, fir, fie.

Lear. You nimble lightnings, dart your blinding flames
Into her scornful eyes ! infect her beauty,
Ye fen-suck'd fogs, drawn by the pow'rful fun
To fall, and q blast her pride !

Reg. O the blest Gods !

So will you wish on me, when the rash mood ^r is on.

Lear. No, Regan, thou shalt never have my curse :

• Thy tender-hefted nature shall not give Thee o'er to ^t harshness ; her eyes are fierce, but thine
Do comfort, and not burn. 'Tis not in thee
To grudge my pleasures, to cut off my train,
To bandy hasty words, to scant my sizes,

^l The qu's read no, Regan :

^m The 2d q. reads back ; T. blank.

ⁿ P. and H. read head for top.

^o For you taking, P. reads infesting. Is not this an unwarrantable licence to alter at this rate, when the word was intelligible enough, and, no doubt, agreeable to the language of that time. This alteration is the more surprising, because P. has retained the same word afterwards in the same sense, Act iii. Sc. vi. " Bless thee from whirlwinds—and taking, &c."

^p The qu's read fie, fie, fir.

^q For blast her pride the fo's and R. read blister.

^r The qu's omit is on ; and have a dash signifying interruption after mood.

^s The qu's read the tender-hefted, &c. R.'s 12mo and P. tender-bearded.

^t So all but J.

And, in conclusion, to oppose the bolt
 Against my coming in. Thou better know'st
 The offices of nature, bond of childhood,
 Effects of courtesy, dues of gratitude :
 Thy half o'th' kingdom ^u thou hast not forgot,
 Wherein I thee endow'd.

Reg. Good sir, to th' purpose. [Trumpet within.]

Lear. Who put my man i'th' stocks?

Enter Steward.

Corn. What trumpet's that?

Reg. I know't, my sister's. 'This approves her ^w letter,
 That she would soon be here. Is your lady come?

Lear. This is a slave, whose easy-borrow'd pride
 Dwells in the ^x fickle grace of her he follows.
 Out, varlet, from my sight.

Corn. What means your grace?

Enter Gonerill.

Lear. Who ^y stockt my servant? Regan, I have good hope,
 Thou didst not know on't.—Who comes here? O heav'ns,
 If you do love old men, if your sweet fway
^z Allow obedience, if yourselves are old,
 Make it your cause; fend down and take my part.

^u The qu's, fo's, and R.'s 8vo hast thou.

^w The qu's read letters.

^x The 1st and 2d fo's read fickly; the 3d and 4th, and R. sickly.

^y The qu's read struck for stockt.

^z T. W. and H. read hallow for allow.

Art not aſham'd to look upon this beard? [To Gon.

O Regan, ^a wilt thou take her by the hand?

Gon. Why not by th' hand, fir? How have I offended?

All's not offence, that indiscretion ^b finds,
And dotage terms ſo.

Lear. O fides, you are too tough!

Will you yet hold?—How came my man i'th' ſtocks?

Corn. I fet him there, ^c fir; but his own diforders Deſerv'd ^d much leſs advancement.

Lear. You? did you?

Reg. I pray you, father, ^e being 'wake, ſeem ſo.
If, till the expiration of your month,
You will return and ſojourn with my ſiſter,
Diſmiſſing half your train, come then to me.
I am now from home, and out of that proviſion
Which ſhall be needful for your entertainment.

Lear. Return to her, and fifty men diſmiſs'd?
No, rather I abjure all roofs, and chuſe
^f To wage againſt the enmity o'th' air,
To be a comrade with the wolf and owl,
Neceſſity's ſharp pinch——Return with her?

Why,

^a So the qu's; the reſt will you.

^b W. propoſes ſines, i. e. cenſures.

^c The 2d q. omits ſir.

^d J. propoſes reading much more advancement, uſed ironically for more conſpicuouſneſs of puniſhment.

^e This is H.'s emendation; the reſt read being weak; W. reads being weak, deem't ſo; i. e. believe that my husband tells you true, that Kent's diforders deſerved a more ignominious puniſhment.

^f T. and H. read the next line before this: and ſo make neceſſity's ſharp pinch the accuſative to wage, without which T. ſays there is no ſyntax or grammatical coherence. But why not? Suppoſe to be a comrade, &c. ſhould be taken ſubſtantively, and neceſſity's ſharp pinch to be put in appoſition to it;

Why, the $\text{\textcircled{8}}$ hot-blooded France, that dow'rless took
 Our youngest born, I could as well be brought To knee his throne, and 'squire-like pension ^h beg,
 To keep base life a-foot——Return with her?
 Persuade me rather to be slave, and sumpter,
 To this detested groom.

Gon. At your choice, Sir.

Lear. ⁱ Now I pr'ythee, daughter, do not make me mad;
 I will not trouble thee, my child. Farewell;
 We'll no more meet, no more see one another;
 But yet thou art my flesh, my blood, my daughter,—
 Or rather a disease ^k that's in my flesh,
 Which I must needs call mine; thou art a bile,
 A plague-fore, ^l an imbossed carbuncle,
 In my corrupted blood. But I'll not chide thee;
 Let shame come when it will, I do not call it;
 I do not bid the ^m thunder-bearer shoot,
 Nor tell tales of thee to high-judging Jove.
 Mend when thou canst, be better at thy leisure.
 I can be patient, I can stay with Regan;
 I and my hundred knights.

sure this is grammar.—To wage necessity's sharp pinch is nonsense; (though T. says it makes the sense fine and easy) it is that pinch which forces a man to wage; war is understood, or might be the very word (instead of wage); greater corruptions have happened in the editions of Shakespeare.

⁸ The qu's read hot blood in France, &c. the fq's and R. hot-blooded France, &c.

^h The 1st q. reads bag for beg.

ⁱ So the qu's; the rest omit now.

^k The qu's read that lies within my flesh.

^l So the qu's; the rest or for an.

^m W. reads thunder-beater.

Reg,

Reg. Not altogether ⁿ so, fir :

I ^o look'd not for you yet, nor am provided
 For your fit welcome ; give ear, ^p fir, to my sister ;
 For those that mingle reason with your passion
 Must be content to think you old, and so——
 But she knows what she does,

Lear. Is this well spoken ^q now ?

Reg. I dare avouch it, fir. What, fifty followers ?
 Is it not well ? what should you need of more ?
 Yea or so many, ^r sith that both charge and danger
^s Speak 'gainst so great a number ? How in one house Should many people under two commands
 Hold amity ? 'Tis hard, almost impossible.

Gon. Why might not you, my lord, receive attendance
 From those that she calls servants, or from mine ?

Reg. Why not, my lord ? if then they chanc'd to slack ye,
 We could controul them. If ^t you will come to me,
 For now I spy a danger, I entreat you
 To bring ^u but five and twenty ; to no more
 Will I give place or notice.

Lear. I gave you all——

Reg. And in good time you gave it.

Lear. Made you my guardians, my depositaries ;
 But ^w kept a reservation to be followed

ⁿ So the qu's ; P. and H. omit so, fir ; and all the rest omit fir.

^o The qu's read look.

^p So the 1st q. the fo's, and R. ; the rest omit fir.

^q So the qu's ; the rest omit now.

^r So all before P. ; he and all after read since both, &c

^s The qu's read speakes.

^t So the qu's, fo's, and R. ; the rest you'll.

^u The 3d and 4th fo's omit but.

^w The 3d and 4th fo's, and R.'s 8vo, read keep.

With such a number; ^x what, must I come to you
With five and twenty? Regan, said you so?

Reg. And speak't again, my lord, no more with me.

Lear. Those * wicked creatures yet do ^y seem well-favour'd,
When others are more * wicked. Not being ^z the worst, Stands in some rank of praise. I'll go with thee; [To Gon.
Thy fifty yet doth double five and twenty;
And thou ^a art twice her love.

Gon. Hear me, my lord;

What need you five and twenty, ten, or five,
To follow in a house, where twice so many
Have a command to tend you?

Reg. What ^b needs one?

Lear. O, reason not the ^c need: our basest beggars
Are in the poorest thing superfluous.
Allow not nature more than nature needs,
Man's ^d life's as cheap as beast's. Thou art a lady;
If only to go warm were gorgeous,
Why, nature needs not what thou gorgeous wear'st,
Which scarcely keeps thee warm; but for true need,—
You heavens, ^e give me that: patience, patience I need,
You see me here, you Gods, a poor ^f old man,

^x So all before P. who omits what; followed by the rest.

* W. reads wrinkled for wicked.

^y So the qu's; all after look for seem.

^z So all before P. who omits the; followed by the rest.

^a P. and H. read hast for art.

^b The fo's and R. read need.

^c The qu's read deed for need.

^d So the 2d q.; the 1st life as, &c. all the rest life is cheap, &c.

^e The qu's, fo's, and R. give me that patience, patience I need. P. and all after give me that patience which I need.

^f The qu's read old fellow.

As full of grief as age ; wretched in both !
 If it be you, that ^g stir these daughters' hearts
 Against their father, fool me not ^h so much
 To bear it ⁱ tamely ; touch me with noble anger ;
^k O let not womens' weapons, water-drops,
 Stain my man's cheeks. No, you unnatural hags,
 I will have such revenges on you both,
 That all the world shall—I will do such things—
 What they are, yet I know not ; but they shall be
 The terrors of the earth. You think, I'll weep ;
 No, I'll not weep.—
^l I have full cause of weeping ; ^m but this heart
 Shall break into a ⁿ hundred thousand ^o flaws
 Or ere ^p I weep. O fool, I shall go mad.

[Exeunt Lear, Glo'ster, Kent, and Fool.]

Corn. Let us withdraw, 'twill be a storm. [Storm and tempest.]

Reg. This house is little ; the old man and his people Cannot be well bestow'd.

^g The qu's and fo's read stirs.

^h The 1st q. reads to; the 2d too for fo.

ⁱ The qu's read lamely.

^k The fo's and R. read and for O.

^l H. reads though before I have, to make up the omission of but in this line, in which he had followed R.

^m So all before P. who; with all after, omits but.

ⁿ So all before P. he and all after omit hundred.

^o The qu's read flowes for flaws.

^p The qu's and 1st f. read He for I.

Gon. 'Tis his own blame; ^a he 'ath put himself from rest,
And needs must taste his folly.

Reg. For his particular, I'll receive him gladly;
But not one follower.

Gon. So am I purpos'd.
Where is my lord of Glo'ster?

Enter Glo'ster.

Corn. Follow'd the old man forth. He is return'd.

Glo. The king is in high rage.

^r Corn. Whither is he going?

Glo. He calls to horse; ^s but will I know not whither.

Corn. 'Tis ^t best to give him way, he leads himself.

Gon. My lord, intreat him by no means to stay.

Glo. Alack, the night comes on, and the ^u bleak winds
Do forely ^w ruffle, for many miles about
There's ^x not a bush.

Reg. O sir, to wilful men,
The injuries, that they themselves procure,
Must be their schoolmasters. Shut up your doors;
He is attended with a desperate train,
And what they may incense him to, being apt
To have his ear abus'd, wisdom bids fear.

Corn. Shut up your doors, my lord; 'tis a wild night.
My Regan counfels well: come out o'th' storm. [Exeunt.]

^a So H. for he bath; all other editions bath.

^r What is in italic is not in the qu's, P. T. W. and J.

^s The qu's, P. T. W. and J. read and for but.

^t The qu's read good for best.

^u So the qu's; the rest high for bleak.

^w The fo's, R. T. W. and J. read ruffte for ruffle.

^x So the qu's; the rest read scarce for not.

ACT III.

SCENE I. A Heath.

A storm is heard, with thunder and lightning. Enter Kent, and a Gentleman, severally.

Kent.

^a WHAT's here, beside foul weather?

Gent. One minded like the weather, most unquietly.

Kent. I know you. Where's the king?

Gent. Contending with the fretful ^b elements;

Bids the wind blow the earth into the sea;

Or swell the curled waters 'bove the ^c moon,

^a So the qu's; the rest read who's there, besides, &c.

^b The qu's read element.

^c Though all the editions have main, it is very likely Shakespeare wrote moon, which is much better, because it more strongly expresses (according to Shakespeare's custom) the confusion which Lear in his rage would have introduced into nature; besides main is ambiguous, applicable to sea or land: it is used of land only by seamen that I know of: the poets always understood by this word the main sea. The effect of overflowing the land is not so great nor so certain confusion: the sea often does that and returns to his usual bounds: whereas the swelling of the waters above the moon is entirely præternatural, and best answers the madness of bidding the wind blow the earth into the sea. There is a strong resemblance between this passage in Shakespeare and the following of Æschylus in his Prometheus vincetus; who talks of swelling the sea, not above the moon, but above the very stars.

That

Which the impetuous blasts with eyeless rage
Catch in their fury, and make nothing of;

The to-and-fro-conflicting wind and rain.

This night, ^f wherein the cub-drawn bear would couch,

The lion, and the belly-pinched wolf

Keep their fur dry; unbonneted he runs,

And bids what will, take all.

Kent. But who is with him?

Gent. None but the Fool, who labours to out-jest
 His heart-struck injuries.

Kent. Sir, I do know you,
 And dare upon the warrant of my ^g note,
 Commend a dear thing to you. There is division,
 (Although as yet the face of it ^h be cover'd
 With mutual ⁱ cunning) 'twixt Albany and Cornwall, ^k Who have (as who have not, ^l that their great stars
^m Thron'd and set high?) servants, who seem no less;
Which are to France the spies and speculations
Intelligent of our state: what ⁿ hath been seen,
Either in snuffs and packings of the dukes;

^d What is in italic is omitted by the fo's and R.

^c P. and H. omit the two following lines.

^f P. and H. read in which for wherein.

^g The qu's read art for note.

^h So the qu's; the rest is for be.

ⁱ P. and H. read craft for cunning.

^k What is in italic is omitted in the qu's.

^l So the fo's, and R.'s 8vo; the rest whom for that.

^m T.'s 12mo, W. and J. read throne.

ⁿ P.'s 12mo reads have for bath.

*Or the hard rein, which both of them ° have born

Whereof, perchance, these are but furnishings——*

P “ But true it is, from France there comes a power

° The 1st f. reads hath for have.

P These lines with commas prefixed are not in the fo's.

9 For scatter'd, H. reads shatter'd, W. scathed.

r So the 2d q. and f.; the 1st feet for fee; P. T. and H. sca; W. seize.

s P. and H. madding for bemadding.

t So the qu's; P. and all the rest read —————and assurance of you,

Offer this office.

u P. and all after read I'll.

w So the qu's and fo's; the rest that for this.

x So the fo's. For that the qu's read your; R. and all after this.

That yet you do not know. Fie on this storm!
I will go seek the king.

Gent. Give me your hand: have you no more to say?

Kent. Few words, but, to effect, more than all yet;
That, when we have found the king,
¶ (I'll this way, you that) he that first lights on him, holla
the other. [Exeunt severally.]

S C E N E II.

Storm continues. Enter Lear and Fool.

Lear. Blow ^a wind, and crack your cheeks; rage, blow!
^a You cataracts, and ^b hurricanoes, spout
Till you have drencht ^c the steeples, ^d drown'd the cocks.
You sulph'rous and thought-executing fires,
^e Vaunt-couriers ^f to oak-cleaving thunder-bolts,
Singe my white head: and thou all-shaking thunder,
Strike flat the thick rotundity o'th' world,
Crack nature's ^g mould, all ^h germins spill at once,

¶ So the qu's; the fo's and R. in which your pain that way, I'll this, he that first, &c. P. and all after, in (H. for) which you take that way, &c.

^a So the qu's; all the rest winds.

^a The qu's read your for you.

^b The qu's read hircanios.

^c So the qu's; the rest our for the.

^d The fo's and R. read drown.

^e Vaunt couriers, i. e. fore-runners. P.—The qu's read vaunt-currers; the fo's and R. vaunt-curriers.

^f So the qu's; the rest of for to.

^g The fo's and R. read moulds.

^h All before T. read germains; which P. explains, all relations or kindred elements that compose man. T. explains germins, the seeds of matter, from germen.

That

That ⁱ make ingrateful man.

Fool. O nuncle, court holy-water in a dry house is better than ^k this ^l rain-water out o' door. Good nuncle, in, ^m and ask thy daughter's blessing, here's a night ⁿ pities neither ^o wife man nor fool.

Lear. Rumble thy belly full, spit fire, spout rain;
Nor rain, wind, thunder, fire, are my daughters.
I ^p tax not you, you elements, with unkindness,
I never gave you ^q kingdom, call'd you children;
You owe me no ^r subscription; ^s why then let fall
Your horrible pleasure: here I stand, your ^t slave;
A poor, infirm, weak, and despis'd old man:
But yet I call you fervile ministers,
^u That have with two pernicious daughters join'd
Your high-engender'd ^w battles 'gainst a head
So old and white as this. ^x Oh! oh! 'tis foul.

Fool. He that has a house to put's head in, has a good head-piece.

ⁱ The fo's and R. read makes.

^k So the qu's, and 1st and 2d fo's; the rest the for this.

^l P.'s 12mo and all after read rain-waters.

^m So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the rest omit and.

ⁿ Before pities P. inserts that; followed by the rest.

^o So the qu's; the rest wife men nor fools.

^p The qu's read taske for tax.

^q J. reads kingdoms, as no other edition.

^r P. and H. read submission.

^s So the qu's; the rest omit why.

^t W. reads brave for slave.

^u The fo's and R. read that will with two pernicious daughters join.

^w The qu's read battell.

^x The qu's read O 'tis foul; the fo's, R. P. and H. O, ho! 'tis foul.

The cod-piece that will house,
 Before the head has any,
 The head and he shall lowse ;
 So beggars marry many.

ʏ The man that makes his toe,
 What he his heart should make,
 Shall ^z have a corn cry, woe!
 And turn his sleep to wake.

For there was never yet fair woman, but she made mouths in a glafs.

S C E N E III.

To them enter Kent.

Lear. No, I will be the pattern of all patience,
 I will say nothing. [Sitting down.]

Kent. Who's there?

Fool. Marry, here's grace and a cod-piece, that's a wise man and a fool.

Kent. Alas, fir, ^a fit you here? Things that love night
 Love not such nights as these; the wrathful skies
^b Gally the very ^c wanderers of the dark,

^ʏ So the qu's; the rest that for the.

^z So the qu's; the rest of for have.

^a So the qu's; the rest are you here? This seems to be an alteration made for the ease of the actors, that he who acted Lear might not have the trouble of sitting down on the ground, and rising again: but if propriety of action take place, what can be more proper than Lear's seating himself, after his last speech?

^b All the editions read gallow; but the right word is gally, and signifies to scare or frighten, used by the west-country people, according to Lye (v. add. to Jun.) where he explains it terrere; vox Anglis occid. usitatissima.

^c The qu's read wanderer.

And

And ^d make them keep their caves. Since I was man, ^e Such sheets of fire, such bursts of horrid thunder,
 Such groans of roaring wind and rain, I ^f never Remember to have heard. Man's nature cannot carry
 Th' affliction, nor the ^g fear.

Lear. Let the great gods,
 That keep this dreadful ^h pother o'er our heads,
 Find out their enemies now. Tremble, thou wretch,
 That hast within thee undivulged crimes,
 Unwhipt of justice. Hide thee, thou bloody hand,
 Thou ⁱ perjur'd, and thou simular ^k man of virtue,
 That art incestuous. Caitiff, ^l to pieces shake,
^m That under covert and convenient seeming,
 Hast practis'd on man's life. Close pent-up guilts,
 Rive your ⁿ concealing continents, and ^o cry
 These dreadful summoners grace.—I am a man
 More sinn'd against, ^p than sinning.

Kent. Alack, bare-headed?

Gracious, my lord, hard by here is a hovel,
Some friendship will it lend you 'gainst the tempest;

Come on my boy. How dost, my boy? art cold?
I'm cold myself. Where is ^t this straw, my fellow?
The art of our necessities is strange,
That can make ^u vilde things precious. Come, your hovel:
Poor fool and knave, I've one ^w part ^x of my heart, ^y That's sorry yet for thee.

Fool. *He that has ^z a little tyny wit,

Lear. ^c True, my good boy. Come, bring us to' this hovel. [Exit.

^d Fool. ^e This is a brave night to cool a curtezan.

 That going shall be us'd with feet.
 When every case in law is right,

 When usurers tell their gold i'th' field ;
 And bawds and whores do churches build :
 Then shall the realm of Albion
 Come to great confusion.
 This prophecy Merlin shall make, for I ⁿ live before his time,

^c So the qu's; the rest true boy, &c.

Edm. Most savage ^s and unnatural!

Glo. Go to; say you nothing. ^t There's a division ^u between the dukes, and a worse matter than that. ^x The fables of such a turn as that from which these lines are quoted being originally taken from books of Spanish chivalry, it is probable the word stood there Infante Orlando, for which the translator ignorantly put Child Rowland: whereas Infante means a prince, one of the king's sons. H.

In the old times of chivalry, the noble youth who were candidates for knighthood, during the season of their probation were called Infans, Varlets, Damoyfels, Bacheliers. The most noble of the youth particularly Infans. Here a story is told, in some old ballad, of the famous hero and giant-killer Roland, before he was knighted, who is therefore called Infans; which the ballad-maker translated Child Roland. W.

This word is in some of our ballads. There is a song of Child Walter, and a lady. J.

By these notes it should seem that neither H. W. or J. had ever read Spencer, who in his Fairy Queen frequently makes use of child to signify a prince or young knight; and I hope he is not to be ranked among your ignoramus's or your ballad-makers. See Fairy Queen, Book V. Cant. xi. Stanza 8.

Edm. How, my lord, I may be censur'd that nature thus gives way to loyalty, something fears me to think of.

Corn. I now perceive, it was not altogether your brother's evil disposition made him seek his death; but a ^c provoked spirit, set a-work by a reproveable badness in ^d himself.

Edm. How malicious is my fortune, that I must repent to be just. This is the letter ^e which he spoke of; which approves him an intelligent party to the advantages of France. Oh heavens! that this treason were ^f not, or not I the detector!

Corn. Go with me to the dutchefs.

Edm. If the matter of this paper be certain, you have mighty business in hand.

Corn. True or false, it hath made thee earl of Gloster. Seek out where thy father is, that he may be ready for our apprehension.

^z Omitted by J. who makes nobody enter in this scene.

^a So the qu's, and 1st and 2d fo's; the rest omit my.

^b The qu's read the for his.

^c This is H.'s emendation; all the editions beside read provoking merit; which W. explains, a merit which being neglected by the father, was provoked to an extravagant act.

^d H. reads him.

^e The qu's omit which.

^f The qu's omit not.

Edm.

ACT III. SCENE IX. 113

Edm. If I find him comforting the king, it will stuff his suspicion more fully. [aside.]—I will persevere in my loyalty, though the conflict be fore between that and my blood.

Corn. I will lay trust upon thee; and thou shalt find a ‡ dearer father in my love. [Exeunt.]

SCENE IX.

A chamber in a farm-house.

Enter Kent and Glo'ster.

Glo. Here is better than the open air; take it thankfully. I will piece out the comfort with what addition I can; I will not be long from you. [Exit.]

Kent. All the power of his wits ⁱ have given way to ^k his impatience. The gods ^l reward your kindness.

Enter Lear, Edgar, and Fool.

Edg. ^m Frateretto calls me, and tells me, ⁿ Nero is an angler in the lake of darkness. Pray, innocent, ^o and beware the foul fiend.

‡ The fo's and R. read dear for dearer.

h This is called Scena Sexta in the fo's; in R. Sc. V.

i So all before P. who alters it to has; followed by the rest: but power may be taken here as a noun of multitude (all the power of his wits, signifying no more than all his wits) and consequently may be joined with a plural verb.

k The qu's omit his.

l The qu's read deserve for reward.

m So the three first fo's; the qu's Fratereto; the rest Fraterreto.

n Upton is of opinion Shakespeare wrote Trajan instead of Nero. Critical Observations, p. 234.

o The qu's omit and.

Fool. Pr'ythee, nuncle, tell me, whether a mad-man ^p be a gentleman or a yeoman?

Lear. A king, a king.

^q Fool. No, he's a yeoman, that has a gentleman to his son: for he's a ^r mad yeoman, that sees his son a gentleman before him.

Lear. To have a thousand with red burning spits come ^s hissing in upon them—

^t Edg. The foul fiend bites my back.

Fool. He's ^u mad that trusts in the tameness of a wolf, ^v a horse's ^w health, a boy's love, or a whore's oath.

Lear. It shall be done, I will arraign them strait.
Come, sit thou here, most learned ^x justice;
Thou sapient sir, sit here—now, ye she foxes—

^y Edg. Look where she stands and glares. Wanton'st thou eyes,

At trial, madam.

Come o'er the ^z brook, Bessy, to me.

^p The 2d q. reads may be, &c.

^q This speech is not in the qu's.

^r The 3d and 4th fo's, R. P. and H. omit mad.

^s So the 2d q.; the 1st hissing; the rest hizzing.

^t What follows in italic is not in the fo's or R.

^u P. alters this, the health of a horse, the love of a boy, or the oath of a whore; followed by the rest. But Shakespeare was not such a nice observer of uniformity of expression; the Fool's character does not require it; neither indeed does that of the most sensible, serious man, or the most accurate author.

^w W. says, without doubt we should read heels, i. e. to stand behind him.

^x T. alters this to justicer; followed by the after-editors.

^y The qu's read Look where he stands and glares want'st thou, eyes at trial (1st q. trall) madam. T. who is the first that restored this speech from the qu's, altered he to she; and wanton'st for wantest is a conjecture of Seyward. These two speeches of Edgar and the Fool are omitted by P. and H.

^z All the editions read broom for brook. J. conjectures brook.

Fool.

ACT III. SCENE IX. 115

Fool. *Her boat hath a leak, and she must not speak,
Why she dares not come over to thee.*

Edg. The foul fiend haunts poor Tom in the voice of a nightingale. Hopdance cries in Tom's belly for two white a herrings. Croak not, black angel, I have no food for thee.

b Kent. *How do you, sir? Stand you not so amaz'd.
Will you lie down and rest upon the cushions?*

Lear. *I'll see their trial c first, bring d in e the evidence.
Thou robed man of justice, take thy place;
And thou his yoke-fellow of equity,
Bench by his side. You are o'th' commission, sit you too.*

f Edg. *Let us deal justly.
Sleepest, or wakest thou, jolly shepherd?
Thy sheep be in the corn;
And for one blast of thy minikin mouth,
Thy sheep shall take no harm.*

Purre, the cat, is grey.

Lear. Arraign her first; 'tis Gonerill. g I here take my oath before this honourable assembly, h she kick'd the poor king her father.

Fool. Come hither, mistress; is your name Gonerill?

Lear. She cannot deny it.

Fool. Cry you mercy, I took you for a i joint-stool.

a The qu's read herring.

b This speech is omitted by P. and H.

c P. and H. omit first.

d So the qu's; P. and the rest insert me before in.

e The qu's read their for the.

f This speech is omitted by P. and H.

g The remaining part of this speech is omitted by P. and H.

h The 1st q. omits she.

i The 1st q. reads joyne stoole.

* Lear. *And here's another, whose warpt looks proclaims
What ^l store her heart is made ^m of. Stop her there ;
Arms, arms, sword, fire! — * Corruption in the place?
False justicer, why hast thou let her scape?*

Edg. Bless thy five wits.

Kent. O pity! fir, where is the patience now
That you so oft have boasted to ⁿ retain?

Edg. My tears begin to take his part so much,
° They'll mar my counterfeiting. [Aside.]

Lear. The little dogs and all,
Tray, Blanch, and sweet-heart, see, they bark at me.

Edg. Tom will throw his head at them. Avaunt, you curs!

Be thy mouth or black or white,
Tooth that poisons if it bite ;
Mastiff, grey-hound, mongril grim,
Hound or spaniel, brache or ^p lym ;
¶ Bobtail ^r tike, or ^s trundle tail,
Tom will make ^t him weep and wail :
For, with throwing thus my head,
Dogs leap the hatch, and all are fled.

κ The two first lines in this speech are omitted in P. and H.

l Perhaps Shakespeare wrote stuff instead of store.

m The qu's read an.

* H. reads corruption's.

n The 3d and 4th fo's and R. read remain.

° So the qu's; the rest they mar, &c.

p So H. who explains it to be a lime-hound: quasi lime-hound, says Minshew, i. e. led always in a line, which woodmen, forresters, and huntsmen call, a lime for a hound. All other editions read hym for lym.

¶ So the qu's; the rest insert or before bobtail.

r The three first fo's read tight for tike.

s The fo's read troudle for trundle.

t The qu's read them for him.

Do,

Do, de, de, de. ^w Seffey, come, march to wakes and fairs,

And market towns. Poor Tom, thy horn is dry.

Lear. Then let them anatomize Regan. See what breeds about her heart. Is there any cause in nature that ^x makes ^y these hard hearts?—You, sir, I entertain ^z for one of my hundred ; only, I do not like the fashion of your ^a garments.
You'll say, they are Persian ^b attire ; but let them be chang'd.

Re-enter Glo'ster.

Kent. Now, good my lord, lie here ^c and rest awhile.

Lear. Make no noise, make no noise, draw the curtains.

^d So, so, so ; we'll go to supper i'th' morning ; ^e so, so, so.

^f Fool. And I'll go to bed at noon.

Glo. Come hither, friend. Where is the king, my master ?

Kent. Here, sir ; but trouble him not ; his wits are gone.

Glo. Good friend, I pr'ythee, take him in thy arms.

I have o'erheard a plot of death upon him.

There is a litter ready, lay him in't,

And drive ^g toward Dover, friend, where thou shalt meet

Both welcome and protection. Take up thy master.

^u The qu's read loudla, doodla, come march, &c.

^w The fo's and R. read sefe for Seffey.

^x The fo's and R. read make.

^y The qu's read this hardnefs.

^z The qu's read you again after entertain.

^a The 2d q. reads garment.

^b So the qu's ; all the rest omit attire.

^c The qu's omit and rest.

^d So the qu's ; the rest repeat so but twice.

^e These so's are omitted in all but the qu's.

^f This speech is omitted in the qu's.

^g The qu's read towards.

If thou ^h should'st dally half an hour, his life,
 With thine, and all that offer to defend him,
 Stand in assured loss. ⁱ Take up, take up,
 And follow me, that will to some provision
 Give thee quick conduct.

Kent. ^k Oppressed nature sleeps.

*This rest might yet have balm'd thy broken ^l senses,
 Which, if ^m convenience will not allow,*

Stand in hard cure. Come help to bear thy master;

Thou must not stay behind.

[To the Foot.

Glo. Come, come away. [Exeunt, bearing off the king.

Manet Edgar.

Edg. *When we our betters see bearing our woes,
 We scarcely think our miseries our foes.*

Who alone suffers, ⁿ suffers most i'th' mind;

Leaving free things, and happy shows behind:

But then the mind much sufferance ^o doth o'erstep,

When grief hath mates, and bearing, fellowship.

How light and portable my pain seems now,

When that which makes me bend, makes the king bow;

^h J. reads should.

ⁱ The qu's read take up to keep and follow, &c.

^k What is in italic is omitted in the fo's, R. P. and H.

The qu's read oppressed, whereby the accent falls right to complete the verse, the hemistich before consisting of a trochee and an amphibrach; but T. W. and J. read opprest, whereby the verse is spoiled.

^m So the qu's; T. reads conveniency to complete the verse, but convenience is a word of four syllables; so that the verse was complete before. Followed by W. and J.

ⁿ The 2d q. has suffers but once.

^o So the qu's; T. W. and J. does.

He

*He childed, as I father'd!—Tom, away;
Mark the high noises, and thyself bewray,
When false opinion, ^p whose wrong thoughts defile thee,
In thy just proof repeals, and reconciles thee.
What will, hap more to night; safe 'scape the king!
Lurk, lurk.—*

[Exit Edg.]

Glo'ster's castle.

Enter Cornwall, Regan, Gonerill, Edmund, and Servants.

Corn. Post speedily to my lord your husband, shew him this letter. The army of France is landed. Seek out the traitor Glo'ster.

Reg. Hang him instantly.

Gon. Pluck out his eyes.

Corn. Leave him to my displeasure. Edmund, keep you our sister company; the ^q revenges we are bound to take upon your traitorous father, are not fit for your beholding. Advise the duke, where you are going, to a most ^r festinate preparation; we are bound to the like. Our posts shall be swift and ^s intelligent betwixt us. Farewel, dear sister. Farewel, my lord of Glo'ster.

^p So the qu's; T. alters this to whose wrong thought defiles thee, I suppose to make it rhyme exactly with reconciles thee: followed by W. and J.

^q The qu's read revenge.

^r The qu's read festuant; the 1st f. festivate.

^s The qu's read intelligence.

H 4

Enter

Enter Steward.

How now? where's the king?

Stew. My lord of Glo'ster hath convey'd him hence.
Some five or six and thirty of his knights,
Hot ^t questrists after him, met him at gate,
Who with some other of the lord's dependants,
Are gone with him ^u toward Dover, where they boast
To have well-armed friends.

Corn. Get horses for your mistress.

Gon. Farewel, sweet lord, and sister. [Exeunt Gon. and Edm.

Corn. Edmund, farewel. — Go seek the traitor Glo'ster, [To the servants.

Pinion him like a thief, bring him before us;
Though ^w well we may not pass upon his life
Without the form of justice; yet our power
Shall do a courtesy to our wrath, which men
May blame, but not controul.

S C E N E XI.

Enter Glo'ster prisoner, and servants.

Who's there? the traitor?

Reg. Ingrateful fox! 'tis he.

Corn. Bind fast his corky arms.

Glo. What mean your graces? Good my friends, consider,
You are my guests: do me no foul play, friends.

† The qu's read questrists; P. and H. questlers.

u The qu's read towards.

w The qu's omit well.

Corn.

Corn. Bind him, I say. [They bind him.

Reg. Hard, hard. O filthy traitor!

Glo. Unmerciful lady as you are! ^x I'm none.

Corn. To this chair bind him. Villain, thou shalt find—[Regan plucks his beard.

Glo. ^y By the kind Gods 'tis most ignobly done
 To pluck me by the beard.

Reg. So white, and such a traitor?

Glo. Naughty lady,
 These hairs which thou dost ravish from my chin
 Will quicken and accuse thee; I am your host;
 With robbers' hands, my hospitable ^z favours
 You should not ruffle thus. What will you do?

Corn. Come, sir, what letters had you late from France?

Reg. Be ^a simple-answer'd, for we know the truth.

Corn. And what confederacy have you with the traitors
^b Late footed in the kingdom?

Reg. To whose hands
^c Have you sent the lunatick king? speak.

Glo. I have a letter guessingly set down,

^x The qu's read I'm true.

^y By the kind Gods is not here meant a general title given to all the gods, but this is intended as a particular appeal to those which were distinguished by the name of the Dii hospitales. H.

^z H. W. and J. read favour. W. has the following note.

———Favours.] It is nonsense to understand it of gifts, kindnesses, &c. We should read favour, i. e. vifage. For they pluck'd him by the beard. W. Who understood it of kindnesses, &c.? Yet favours may stand for the silver hairs, the honours of old age, the ornament of that vifage.

^a The qu's, P. and T. read simple-answerer.

^b The 2d q. reads lately.

^c The 1st q. the fo's, and R. read you have, &c.

Which

Which came from one that's of a neutral heart,
And not from one oppos'd.

Corn. Cunning——

Reg. And false.

Corn. Where hast thou sent the king?

Glo. To Dover.

Reg. Wherefore to Dover?

Wast thou not charg'd, at peril——

Corn. Wherefore to Dover? Let him ^d first answer that.

Glo. I am ty'd to th' stake, and I must stand the course.

Reg. Wherefore to Dover, ^e fir?

Glo. Because I would not see thy cruel nails

Pluck out his poor old eyes; nor thy fierce sister

In his ^f anointed flesh ^g stick boarish phangs.

The sea, with such a storm ^h as his bare head

In hell-black night endur'd, would have ⁱ buoy'd up,

And quench'd the ^k stellar fires;

Yet poor old heart he ^l holpt the heav'ns to ^m rain.

If wolves had at thy gate ⁿ howl'd that stern time,

Thou shouldst have said, ^o "good porter, turn the key,"

^d So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the rest omit first.

^e So the qu's; all the rest omit fir.

^f The 2d q. reads aurynted.

^g The qu's read rash for stick.

^h The 1st q. reads on his lowd head; the 2d of his lou'd head.

ⁱ For buoy'd the 1st q. reads bod; the 2d laid; W. boil'd.

^k So H. the 2d q. 1st f. R. and P. read steeled; the rest stelled.

^l So the qu's; the fo's and R. holpe; the rest help'd.

^m The qu's read rage for rain.

ⁿ The qu's read heard that dearne time.

^o T.'s duodecimo, W. and J. read go for good.

All cruels else ^p subscribe; but I shall see
The winged vengeance overtake such children.

Corn. See't thou shalt never. Fellows, hold the chair,
Upon ^q those eyes of thine I'll fet my foot.

[Glo'ster is held down while Cornwall treads out one of his eyes.]

Glo. He that will think to live 'till he be old,
Give me some help.—O cruel! O ^r ye Gods!

Reg. One side will mock another; t'other too.

Corn. If you see vengeance—

Serv. Hold your hand, my lord.

I have serv'd ^s you ever since I was a child,
But better service have I never done you,
Than now to bid you hold.

Reg. How now, you dog?

Serv. If you did wear a beard upon your chin, [To Corn.]
I'd shake it on this quarrel. What do you mean?

Corn. My villain! ^t [Draws.]

Serv. ^u Why then come on, and take the chance of anger.

^w [Fight, in the scuffle Cornwall is wounded.]

Reg. [to another servant.] Give me thy sword. A peafant stand up thus?

^x [She takes a sword and runs at him behind.]

^p The qu's, T. W. and J. read subscribed.

^q So the qu's; the rest these for those.

^r So the qu's; the rest you for ye.

^s The 1st q. omits you.

^t The qu's read draw and fight.

^u So the qu's; the rest nay for why.

^w This direction first put in by R.

^x So the qu's; J. comes behind and kills him; the rest only kills him.

Serv.

Serv. Oh, I am slain—My lord, ^y yet have you one eye left,

To see some mischief on him. Oh—— [Dies.]

Corn. Left it see more, prevent it. Out ^z vilde gelly:
Where is thy lustre now? [Treads out the other eye.]

Glo. All dark and comfortless—Where's my son Edmund?
Edmund, ^a enkindle all the sparks of nature
To quit this horrid act.

Reg. Out! ^b treacherous villain,
Thou call'st on him that hates thee; it was he
That made the overture of thy treasons to us,
Who is too good to pity thee.

Glo. O my follies!
Then Edgar was abus'd. Kind Gods, forgive
Me that, and prosper him!

Reg. Go thrust him out
^c At gates, and let him smell his way to Dover. [Ex. with Glo.]

How is't, my lord? how ^d do you?

Corn. I have receiv'd a hurt. Follow me, lady—
Turn out that eyeless villain. Throw this slave

^y So the qu's; the rest read you have, &c. omitting yet.

^z So all editions before P. who alters it to vile; followed by the rest: but vilde was a method of spelling the word in Shakespeare's time, as may be seen by the contemporary writers. The editors of Spencer have been exact in preserving the words as he spelt them; why should not the same exactness be observed in treating Shakespeare?

^a The qu's read unbridle for enkindle.

^b The qu's omit treacherous.

^c H. reads at th' gates.

^d All the editions read look for do: but she could never ask how he look'd; she saw that.

Upon

ACT III. SCENE XI.

125

Upon the dunghill.—Regan, I bleed apace.

Untimely comes this hurt. Give me your arm.

[Exit Cornwall led by Regan.]

^e 1st Serv. *I'll never care what wickedness I do,
If this man come to good.*

2d Serv. *If she live long,
And in the end meet the old course of death,
Women will all turn monsters.*

1st Serv. *Let's follow the old earl, and get the bedlam
To lead him where he would; his † roguish madness
Allows itself to any thing.*

2d Serv. Go thou; I'll fetch some flax and whites of eggs T'apply to's bleeding face. Now, heaven help him.

[Exeunt severally.]

^e What follows in italic is only in the qu's, T. W. and J.

[†] The 1st q. omits roguish.

A C T IV.

S C E N E I. An open Country.Enter Edgar.Edgar.

YET better thus, and known to be contemn'd,
 Than still contemn'd and flatter'd. To be worst,
 The lowest, ^a and most ^b dejected thing of fortune,
 Stands still in ^c esperance; lives not in fear.
 The lamentable change is from the best;
 The worst returns to laughter. ^d Welcome then,
Thou unsubstantial air, that I embrace!
The wretch, that thou hast blown unto the worst,
Owes nothing to thy blasts.

Enter Glo'ster led by an old man.

^e But who comes here?
 My father ^f poorly led? World, world, O world!
 But that thy strange mutations make us ^g hate thee,
 Life would not yield to age.

^a So all before P. who omits and; followed by the rest.

^b The 2d, 3d, and 4th fo's, and R. read deject for dejected.

^c The qu's read experience for esperance.

^d What is in italic is omitted in the qu's.

^e The qu's read who's here, &c.

^f The 1st q. reads parti, eyd for poorly led.

^g The sense of this passage is, These changes make us sick of life; else we should be loth to die; to resign life to the weight of years. All copies read hate but T. who has altered it to wait.

Old Man. O my good lord,
I have been your tenant, and your father's tenant,
These fourscore ^h years.

Glo. Away, get thee away. Good friend, be gone;
Thy comforts can do me no good at all,
Thee they may hurt.

Old Man. ⁱ Alack, fir, you cannot see your way.

Glo. I have no way, and therefore want no eyes :
I stumbled when I saw. Full oft 'tis seen,
Our ^k means secure us ; and our mere defects
Prove our commodities. ——^l Ah, dear son Edgar,
The food of thy abused father's wrath ;
Might I but live to see thee in my touch,
I'd say I had eyes again !

Old Man. How now ? who's there ?

Edg. [aside.] O Gods ! who is't can say, I am at the worst ?
I am worse than e'er I was.

Old Man. 'Tis poor mad Tom.

Edg. [aside.] And worse I may be yet ; the worst is not,
^m So long as we can say, this is the worst.

Old Man. Fellow, where go'st ?

Glo. Is it a beggar-man ?

^h The qu's omit years, and put a dash after fourscore.

ⁱ All but the qu's omit alack, fir.

^k So all before P. If this reading be right, by means may perhaps be understood, mean things, (using the adjective substantively) i. e. adversa res. H. reads meannests for our means; P. and the rest, our mean secures us; which W. interprets, moderate, mediocre condition. J. proposes two readings, our means seduce us, i. e. our powers of body or fortune draw us into evils : or, our maims secure us, i. e. that hurt or deprivation which makes us defenceless, proves our safety.

^l So the qu's ; the rest oh.

^m The qu's read as for so.

Old Man. Madman, and beggar too.

Glo. He has some reason, else he could not beg.
I'th' last night storm I such a fellow saw;
Which made me think a man, a worm. My son
Came then into my mind; and yet my mind
Was then scarce friends with him. I have heard more since.
As flies ⁿ to ^o wanton boys, are we to th' Gods;
They ^p kill us for their sport.

Edg. How should ^q this be?
Bad is the trade ^r that must play the fool to forrow,
^s Ang'ring itself and others. [aside.] — Bless thee, master.

Glo. Is that the naked fellow?

Old Man. Ay, my lord.

Glo. ^t Then pr'ythee get thee gone. If, for my sake,
Thou wilt o'ertake us ^u hence a mile or twain
I'th way ^w toward Dover, do it for ancient love;
And bring some covering for this naked soul,
^x Whom I'll entreat to lead me.

Old Man. Alack, sir, he is mad.

Glo. 'Tis the time's plague, when madmen lead the blind.
Do as I bid ^y thee, or rather do thy pleasure;
Above the rest, be gone.

ⁿ Before to the qu's read are.

^o The qu's, 3d and 4th fo's, and R. read th' before wanton.

^p The qu's read bit for kill.

^q The 2d f. read their for this.

^r So all before P. who omits that; followed by the rest.

^s H. and W. read anguishing for ang'ring.

^t So the qu's; all the rest get thee away. If, &c.

^u The qu's read here for hence.

^w The 2d q. reads to for toward.

^x The qu's read wh; the fo's and R. which.

^y So all before P. who omits thee; followed by the rest.

Old Man. I'll bring him the best 'parrel that I have,
Come on't what will.

Glo. ^z Sirrah, naked fellow.

Edg. Poor Tom's a-cold.—I cannot ^a daub it further.

[Aside.]

Glo. Come hither, fellow.

Edg. [aside.] ^b And yet I must.—

Bless thy sweet eyes, they bleed.

Glo. Know'st thou the way to Dover?

Edg. Both stile and gate, horse-way and foot-path. Poor
Tom hath been scar'd out of his good wits. Bless thee, ^c good man, from the foul fiend. ^d Five fiends have been in poor

^z H. reads sirrah, you, naked fellow.

^a For daub (which W. interprets disguise) the qu's and P. read dance; H. dally, omitting it.

^b The qu's omit and yet I must.

^c The fo's and R. read good man's son, from, &c.

^d What is in italic is omitted in the fo's and R.

Shakespeare has made Edgar, in his feigned distraction, frequently allude to a vile imposture of some English Jesuits, at that time much the subject of conversation; the history of it having been just then composed with great art and vigour of stile and composition by Dr. S. Harfenet, afterwards Archbishop of York, by order of the privy-council, in a work entitled, A declaration of egregious popish impostures, to withdraw his majesty's subjects from their allegiance, &c. under pretence of casting out devils, practised by Edmunds, alias Welton, a Jesuit, and divers Romish priests his wicked associates. Printed 1603. The imposture was in substance this, while the Spaniards were preparing their armada against England, the Jesuits were here busy to promote it, by making converts; one method they employed was to dispose pretended demoniacs, by which artifice they made several hundred converts amongst the common people. The principal scene of this farce was laid in the family of one Mr. Edmund Peckham, a Roman Catholic, where Marwood, a servant of Anthony Babington's, (who was afterwards executed for treason) Trayford, an attendant upon Mr. Peckham, and Sarah and Friswood Williams, and Anne Smith, three chambermaids in that family were poor Tom at once; ^e of lust, as Obidicut; ^f Hobbididenee prince of dumbness; Mahu, of stealing; ^g Modo, of murder; ^h Flibbertigibbet of ⁱ mobbing and ^k mowing; who since possesses chamber-maids and waiting-women. ^l So, blefs thee, master.
I supposed

Glo. Here, take this purse, thou whom the heaven's plagues
Have humbled to all strokes. That I am wretched, Makes thee the happier. Heavens deal so still!
Let the superfluous, ^m and lust-dieted man,
That ⁿ braves your ordinance, that will not see
Because he does not feel, feel your power quickly :

supposed to be possessed with devils, and came into the priest's hands for cure. But the discipline of the patients was so long and severe, and the priests so elate and careless with their success, that the plot was discovered on the confession of the parties concerned, and the contrivers of it deservedly punished. The five devils here mentioned, are the names of five of those who were to act in this farce upon the chambermaids and waiting-women; and they are generally so ridiculously nick-named, that Harsenet has one chapter on the strange names of their devils; left, says he, meeting them otherwise by chance, you mistake them for the names of tapsters and jugglers. W. The substance of this note is in T.'s edition.

^e P. omits of lust, as Obidicut.

^f So the qu's; the rest Hobbididen.

^g So the qu's; the rest Mohu.

^h The qu's read Stiberdigebit.

ⁱ The qu's read mobin; P. moping; the rest mopping.

^k The qu's read Mobing, printed as a proper name of one of the fiends, and retained as such by P. (and spelt Mowing) on account of which he excluded Obidicut, as the number five is complete without it. But mobbing seems to allude to the mobs which gathered to see the possessed people; and mowing, i. e. making mouths, to the distortions of their faces when the pretended fit was upon them.

^m R. reads and the lust-dieted, &c.

ⁿ So H. and W.; the qu's read stands; the fo's slaves.

So

So distribution should ° undo excess,
And each man have enough. Do'st thou know Dover?

Edg. Ay, master.

Glo. There is a cliff whose high and bending head
Looks ^P fearfully ^q on the confined deep;
Bring me but to the very brim of it,
And I'll repair the misery thou dost bear,
With something rich about me. From that place
I shall no ^r leading need.

Edg. Give me thy arm,
Poor Tom shall lead thee.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.

The duke of Albany's palace.

Enter Goneril and Edmund.

Gon. Welcome, my lord; I marvel, our mild husband
Not met us on the way.

Enter Steward.

Now, where's your master?

Stew. Madam, within; but never man so chang'd.
I told him of the army that was landed;
He smil'd at it. I told him, you were coming,
His answer was, the worse. Of Glo'ster's treachery,
And of the loyal service of his son,

° The qu's read under for undo.

^P The qu's read firmly for fearfully.

^q The qu's and fo's read in for on.

^r The two last fo's and R. and T.'s 8vo read lending for leading.

When I inform'd him, then he call'd me fot;
 And told me, I had turn'd the wrong side out.
 * What most he should dislike, seems pleasant to him;
 What like, offensive.

Gon. Then thou shalt go no further. [To Edmund.

It is the cowish ^t terror of his spirit,
 That dares not undertake; he'll not feel wrongs,
 Which tie him to an answer. ^u Our wishes on the way
 May prove effects. Back, ^w Edmund, to my brother;
 Hasten his musters, and conduct his powers.
 I must change ^x arms at home, and give the distaff
 Into my husband's hands. This trusty servant
 Shall pass between us; ^y ere long you are like to hear,
 If you dare venture in your own behalf,
 A mistress's ^z command. Wear this; [^a gives him a ring] spare speech;
 Decline your head. This kifs, if it durst speak,
 Would stretch thy spirits up into the air.
 Conceive, and ^b fare thee well.

Edm. Yours in the ranks of death.

Gon. My most dear Glo'ster! [Exit Edmund.

* The qu's read what he should most desire.

^t The 2d q. reads curre for terror.

^u H. reads that our wishes on th' way may prove effects, back to my brother, &c.

^w The 1st q. reads Edgar for Edmund.

^x The fo's and R. read names for arms.

^y So all before P. who reads you ere long shall hear; followed by the rest.

^z The 2d q. reads coward for command.

^a This direction added by H.

^b The 1st q. reads far you well; the 2d farewell.

Oh,

c Oh, the d difference of man, and man!
 To thee e a woman's services are due;
 f My fool usurps my body.

Stew. Madam, here comes my lord. [g Exit Steward.

Enter Albany.

Gon. I have been worth the h whistle.

Alb. Oh, Gonerill,

You are not worth the dust, which the i rude wind
 Blows in your face.—k I fear your disposition:
That nature, which contemns l its origin,
Cannot be border'd certain in itself;
She that herself will m silver, and dis-branch,
From her n material sap, perforce must wither,
And come to deadly use.

c This line is not in the qu's.

d So all before P. who inserts strange after the; followed by the rest.

e The 2d q. omits a.

f The 1st q. reads a fool usurps my bed; the 2d my foot usurps my head.

g So the qu's; the rest omit this direction.

h The 1st q. reads whistling.

i The 2d q. omits rude.

k What follows in italic is omitted in the fo's and R.

l The 1st q. reads itb; the 2d it for its.

m P. reads shiver.

n T. H. and J. read maternal for material; to support which latter reading, in the usual sense of the word, W. has a long note; but after all confesses that material may signify maternal; and quotes the title of an old English book to prove that material has been used in that sense; the title is as follows, Syr John Froissart's chronicle translated out of the Frenche into our material English tongue by John Bouchier, printed 1525. But a few words will determine the reading to be material in the usual sense; for the force of Albany's argument to prove that a branch torn from a tree must infallibly wither and die, lies in this, that it is separated from a communication with that which supplies it with the very identical matter by which it (the branch) lives, and of which it is composed.

Gon. No more, ° the text is foolish.

Alb. Wisdom and goodness to the vile seem vile, ° Filths savour but themselves. What have you done?
 Tygers, not daughters, what have you perform'd?
 A father, and a gracious aged man,
 ° Whose reverence even the head-lugg'd bear would lick,
 Most barbarous, most degenerate have you madd'd.
 Could my good brother suffer you to do it,
 A man, a prince by him jo ° benefited?
 If that the heav'ns do not their visible spirits
 Send quickly down to tame ° these vile offences, ° 'Twill come, ° humanity must perforce prey on Itself, like monsters of the deep.

Gon. Milk-liver'd man!

That bear'st a cheek for blows, a head for wrongs;
 Who hast not in thy brows an eye ° discerning
 Thine honour from the suffering; ° that not know'st,
 Fools do ° those villains pity, who are punish'd
 Ere they have done their mischief. Where's thy drum?
 France spreads his banners in our noiseless land,

° So the qu's; P. and the editors after him, omitting the text, read only 'tis foolish.

P P. and H. omit this line.

° All but the qu's omit this line.

° The 2d q. omits even.

° The 2d q. reads benefited.

° For these the 1st q. reads this; the rest the.

° In the qu's it will come; omitted by the rest.

° The 2d q. reads humanly.

° The qu's read deserving.

° The following in italic is omitted in the fo's, R. and P.

° So the qu's and H.; the rest these for those.

*With plumed helm thy ^a state begins to threat ;
Whilst thou, a moral fool, sit'st still, and cry'st,
Alack! why does he so?*

Alb. See thyself, devil :

Proper deformity ^b seems not in the fiend
So horrid as in woman.

Gon. O vain fool!

^c Alb. *Thou changed, and * self-cover'd thing, for shame,
Be-monster not thy feature. Were't my fitness
To let these hands obey ^d my blood,
They are apt enough to ^e dislocate and tear
Thy flesh and bones.—Howe'er thou art a fiend,
A woman's shape doth shield thee.—*

Gon. Marry, your manhood ^f now.—

Enter a Messenger.

^g Alb. What news?

Mess. Oh, my good lord, the duke of Cornwall's dead,
Slain by his servant, going to put out
The other eye of Glo'ster.

Alb. Glo'ster's eyes?

Mess. A servant, that he bred, ^h thrill'd with remorse,
Oppos'd against the act, bending his sword

^a The 1st q. reads thy state begins thereat ; the 2d thy slayer begins threats ;
T. and all after, thy (H. the) slayer begins his threats.

^b The 1st q. reads shews for seems.

^c The fo's, R. P. and H. omit what is in italic.

* So the qu's and J. ; T. and W. read self-converted.

^d T. and W. read my [boiling] blood.

^e The qu's read dislocate.

^f The 1st q. reads mew for now.

^g All but the qu's omit this speech.

^h The qu's read thrall'd for thrill'd.

To his great master; who, ⁱ thereat enraged,
Flew on him, and amongst them fell'd him dead,
But not without that harmful stroke, which since Hath pluck'd him after.

Alb. This shews you are above,
^k You ^l justices, that these our nether crimes
So speedily can 'venge. But O poor Glo'ster!
Lost he his other eye?

Mess. Both, both, my lord.—
This letter, madam, craves a speedy answer;
'Tis from your sister.

Gon. [aside.] One way, I like this well;
But being widow, and my Glo'ster with her,
May all the building ^m in my fancy pluck
Upon my hateful life. Another way,
The news is not so ⁿ tart. I'll read, and answer. [Exit.]

Alb. Where was his son, when they did take his eyes?

Mess. Come with my lady hither.

Alb. He is not here.

Mess. No, my good lord, I met him back again.

Alb. Knows he the wickedness?

Mess. Ay, my good lord, 'twas he inform'd against him,
And quit the house ^o on purpose that their punishment
Might have the freer course.

ⁱ The 1st f. reads threat-enrag'd.

^k The 2d q. reads your.

^l The 1st q. reads justifiers.

^m The qu's read on: for in.

ⁿ The qu's read tooke for tart.

^o So the qu's and two first fo's; the rest of for on.

Alb.

Alb. ^p Glo'ster, I live [Aside.
 To thank thee for the love thou shew'dst the king,
 And to revenge thine eyes. Come hither, friend,
 Tell me what more thou knowest. [Exeunt.

SCENE III. Dover.

Enter Kent and a Gentleman.

Kent. ^r Why the king of France is so suddenly gone back
 Know you the reason?

^s Gent. Something he left imperfect in the state,
 Which since his coming forth is thought of, which Imports ^t to the kingdom so much fear and danger,
 That his ^t personal return was most requir'd and necessary.

Kent. ^u Who hath he left behind him general?

Gent. The ^w marshal of France, monsieur ^x le Far.

Kent. Did your letter pierce the queen to any demonstration of grief?

Gent. ^y Ay, sir, she ^z took them, read them in my presence,

^p J. marks this speech to be spoken aside; but gives not the reason, which is because it was not proper the messenger should know his intention of revenging the ill usage of Glo'ster.

^q This whole scene is omitted in the fo's and R.

^r So the qu's and J.; P. and the rest read the king of France so suddenly gone back, &c.

^s This speech is printed prose-wise in the qu's.

^t P. omits to and personal; followed by the rest, except J.

^u T.'s duodecimo, W. and J. read whom for who; but who is frequently used as the accusative case, as well as whom.

^w The qu's read marshal.

^x The qu's read la Far.

^y The qu's and P. read I say; T. H. and W. I. fir.

^z So the qu's; P. and all after took 'em, read 'em.

And

And now and then an ample tear trill'd down
Her delicate cheek; it seem'd, she was a queen
Over her passion, ^a who, most rebel-like,
Sought to be king o'er her.

Kent. O, then it mov'd her.

Gent. ^b Not to a rage. Patience and sorrow ^c strove
^d Who should express her goodliest; you have seen Sun-shine and rain at once; — ^e her smiles and tears
Were like a ^f wetter May. Those ^g happy ^h smilets,
That play'd on her ripe lip, seem'd not to know
What guests were in her eyes; which parted thence
As pearls from diamonds dropt. — In brief,
Sorrow would be a rarity most belov'd,
If all could so become it.

Kent. Made she no verbal ⁱ question?

Gent. ^k Faith, once or twice she heav'd the name of father
Pantingly forth, as if it prest her heart.

^a So the qu's; P. alters who to which; followed by all after: but here passion is personified as a rebel; and who more strongly marks the personification. Altering in this manner is in effect turning poetry into prose.

^b So the qu's and J.; the rest but not to rage, &c.

^c The qu's read streame for strove.

^d P. alters who to which; followed by all after. See above, note ^a,

^e P. and H. omit what is in italic.

^f The qu's read better way. The emendation is W.'s.

^g P.'s duodecimo reads happiest; which error is followed by all but H.

^h So the qu's, a diminutive of Shakespeare's coining, which not only serves to vary the expression from smiles, in the verse before, but is in this place a great beauty; for as the smiles are to play, he personifies them by infants, calling them smilets, or young smiles, that they might seem the better adapted to the office he engages them in: and the idea that was formed in the poet's mind, might put him in the humour of playing with the word, and producing from it that pretty one, smilets. P. and all after read smiles.

ⁱ For question, H. reads quests; W. quest, i. e. complaint, from quests.

^k So the qu's; P. omits faith; the rest yes for faith.

Cry'd,

 Kent! father! sisters! What ^m i'th' storm? i'th' night?
 Let pity ⁿ not ^o believe it! —— ^p There she shook
 The holy water from her heavenly eyes;
^q And ^r clamour moisten'd her; ^s then away she started
 To deal with grief alone.

Kent. —— ^t It is the stars,
 The stars above us govern our conditions:
 Else one ^u self mate and mate could not beget
 Such different issues. ^w You spoke not with her since?

Gent. No.

Kent. Was this before the king return'd?

Gent. No, since.

Kent. ^x Well, sir; the poor distressed Lear's ^y i'th' town,
 Who sometimes, in his better tune, remembers
 What we are come about, and by no means
 Will yield to see his daughter.

Gent. Why, good sir?

Kent. A sovereign shame fo ^z elbows him: his ^a own unkindness,

¹ This in italic is omitted by P. and H.

^m P. and H. read i'th' storm of night?

ⁿ So the qu's, which P. alters to ne'er; followed by the rest.

^o The 1st q. reads not be belceft, &c.; the 2d not be belcev'd, &c.

^p P. reads then for there.

^q P. and H. omit and clamour moisten'd her.

^r So the qu's and J.; the rest clamour-motion'd, omitting her.

^s P. and H. read and then retir'd to deal, &c.

^t P. and H. omit it is the stars.

^u The 1st q. reads self mate and make.

^w So the qu's; P. and all after spoke you with her since?

^x P. and H. omit well, sir.

^y So the qu's; P. and all after in town.

^z So the qu's; P. alters elbows to bows; followed by the rest.

^a So the qu's; P. omits own; followed by the rest.

That

That stript her from his benediction, turn'd her
 To foreign casualties, gave her dear rights
 To his dog-hearted daughters: these things sting
 His mind so venemously, that burning shame
 Detains him from ^c Cordelia.

Gent. Alack, poor gentleman!

Kent. Of Albany's and Cornwall's pow'rs you heard not?

Gent. 'Tis so, they are a foot.

Kent. Well, sir; I'll bring you to our master Lear,
 And leave you to attend him. Some dear cause
 Will in concealment wrap me up awhile:
 When I am known aright, you shall not grieve
 Lending me this acquaintance. ^d I pray you go Along with me. [Exeunt.

Enter Cordelia, Physician, and Soldiers.

Cor. Alack, 'tis he; why, he was met even now
 As mad as the ^e vext sea, singing aloud,
 Crown'd with rank ^f fumiterr, and furrow weeds,

^b So the qu's and J.; instead of his mind, P. and the rest read him.

^c So the qu's and J.; P. and the rest insert his before Cordelia.

^d So the qu's; P. and the rest pray, along with me.

^e The qu's read vent for vext.

^f The qu's read femiter; the fo's, R. and P. fenitar; H. fumitory, which is only another name for fumiterr; Chaucer has femeterre to signify the same weed, (see the glossary in Urry's Chaucer) which very nearly agrees with the spelling of the qu's. Lat. fumaria. Miller.

With

With ^g burdocks, hemlock, ^h nettles, cuckow flowers,
 Darnel, and all the idle weeds that grow
 In our sustaining corn. ⁱ A century fend forth;
 Search every acre in the high-grown field,
 And bring him to our eye. What can man's wisdom ^k
 In the restoring his bereaved sense?
 He that ^l helps him, take all my outward worth.

Phy. There ^m are means, madam.
 Our foster nurse of nature is repose,
 The which he lacks; that to provoke in him,
 Are many simples operative; whose power
 Will close the eye of anguish.

Cor. All blest secrets,
 All you unpublish'd virtues of the earth,
 Spring with my tears; be aidant and ⁿ remediate
 In the good man's ^o distress! Seek, seek for him,
 Lest his ungovern'd rage dissolve the life,
 That wants the means to lead it.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. News, madam:
 The British pow'rs are marching hitherward.

^g The qu's read bor-docks; the fo's, R. P. T. and W. bardocks; but Heath says he never heard of such a plant. It is not to be found in Miller. Burdock frequently grows among corn, and is most likely to be what Shakespeare means.

^h J. reads nettle.

ⁱ The qu's read a century is sent forth; P. T. H. and W. send forth a cent'ry. J. spells the word sent'ry.

^k After wisdom the 2d q. reads do.

^l The qu's read can help him.

^m The fo's and qu's read is for are.

ⁿ J. reads remediant, as no other edition.

^o For distress, the three first fo's read desires; the 4th and R. desire.

Cor.

Cor. 'Tis known before. Our preparation stands
 In expectation of them. O dear father,
 It is thy business that I go about ;
 Therefore great France
 My mourning and ^p important tears hath pitied.
 No blown ambition doth our arms ^q incite,
 But love, dear love, and our ag'd father's ^r right :
 Soon may I hear, and see him.

• S C E N E V. Regan's Palace.

Enter Regan and Steward.

Reg. But are my brother's powers set forth?

Stew. Ay, madam.

Reg. Himself in person there?

Stew. ^t Madam, with much ado.

Your sifter is the better soldier.

Reg. Lord Edmund spake not with your ^u lord at home?

Stew. No, madam.

Reg. What might import my sifter's letter to him?

Stew. I know not, lady.

Reg. Faith, he is posted hence on serious matter.

^p Important, as in other places in this author, for importunate. J. The fo's and R. read importun'd.

^q The 1st q. reads in sight; the 2d in site.

^r The 1st and 2d fo's read rite.

^s The fo's call this scena quarta.

^t So all before P. who omits madam; followed by the rest.

^u So the fo's and R.; the qu's and the rest read lady; and J. says lady is the better reading: but why? The second scene of this act, to which this passage most probably refers, will clear this matter up.

It was great ignorance, Gloster's eyes being out,
To let him live; where he arrives, he moves
All hearts against us. ^w Edmund, I think, is gone,
In pity of his misery, to dispatch
His nighted life; moreover, to defcry
The strength ^x o'th' enemy.

Stew. I must needs after him, madam, with my ^y letter.

Reg. Our troops set forth to-morrow; stay with us;
The ways are dangerous.

Stew. I may not, madam;
My lady charg'd my duty in this business.

Reg. Why should she write to Edmund? might not you Transport her purposes by word? ^z Belike,

^a Something—I know not what—I'll love thee much—
Let me unseal the letter.

Stew. Madam, I had rather——

Reg. I know your lady does not love her husband;
I'm sure of that; and at her late being here,
She gave ^b strange ^c oeliads, and most speaking looks
To noble Edmund. I know you are of her bosom.

Stew. I, madam?

Reg. I speak in understanding; ^d y'are; I know't:

^w The qu's read and now I think is gone.

^x The 1st q. reads at'h army; the 2d of the army.

^y The qu's read letters.

^z P. omits belike; H. reads by word of mouth.

^a The fo's and R. read some things.

^b W. omits strange.

^c The qu's read aliads; the 1st f. Eliads; the other fo's Iliads. Oeliads, glances; Fr. oillades. The emendation is R.'s.

^d So the fo's; R.'s octavo you're; all after you are; the qu's read for I know't.

Therefore,

Therefore, I do advise you, take this ^e note.
 My lord is dead; Edmund and I have talk'd;
 And more convenient is he for my hand,
 Than for your lady's. You may gather more.
 If you do find him, pray you, give him this;
 And when your mistress hears thus much from you,
 I pray, desire her call her wisdom to her. ^f So farewell.
 If you do chance to hear of that blind traitor,
 Preferment falls on him that cuts him off.

Stew. Would I could meet ^g him, madam, I ^h would shew
 What ⁱ party I do follow.

Reg. Fare thee well.

* S C E N E VI.

The country round Dover.

Enter Glo'ster, and Edgar as a peasant.

Glo. When shall ^l we come to th' top of that same hill?

Edg. You do climb ^m up it now. Look, how we labour.

Glo. Methinks, the ground is even.

Edg. Horrible steep. Hark, do you hear the sea?

Glo. No, truly ⁿ.

^e J. says that note means in this place not a letter but a remark: but the words give him this a little below explain it to be a letter.

^f H. omits so farewell; the fo's and R. read so fare you well.

^g The 1st f. omits him.

^h So the qu's; the rest should for would.

ⁱ The qu's read lady for party.

* The fo's call this scena quinta.

^l So the qu's; the rest I for we.

^m The qu's read it up.

ⁿ After truly H. reads not.

Edg.

Edg. Why then your other senses grow imperfect
By your eyes anguish.

Glo. So may it be, indeed.

Methinks, thy voice is alter'd; and thou speak'st
° With better phrase and matter than thou didst.

Edg. You're much deceiv'd: in nothing am I chang'd,
But in my garments.

Glo. ^p Methinks, you're better spoken.

Edg. Come on, sir; here's the place. Stand still.—How fearful

And dizzy 'tis to cast one's eyes so low!
The crows and choughs, that wing the midway air,
Shew scarce so gross as beetles. Half way down
Hangs one that gathers samphire; dreadful trade!
Methinks, he seems no bigger than his head.
The fisher-men, that walk upon the ^q beach,
Appear like mice; and yond tall anchoring bark,
Diminish'd to her cock; her cock, ^r a buoy
Almost too small for sight. The murmuring surge,
That on the unnumbered idle ^s pebbles ^t chafes,
Cannot be heard ^u so high. I'll look no more,
Lest my brain turn, and the deficient sight
Topple down headlong.

Glo. Set me where you stand.

Edg. Give me your hand. You are now within a foot

° So the qu's; the rest in for with.

^p So all before P. who reads sure for methinks; followed by the rest.

^t The 2d q. reads chafe.

^u The qu's read it is so high I'll look, &c.

Of th' extreme verge; for all ^w beneath the moon
Would I not leap ^x upright.

Glo. Let go my hand.

Here, friend, 's another purse, in it a jewel
Well worth a poor man's taking. Fairies and Gods Prosper it with thee! Go thou further off;
Bid me farewell, and let me hear thee going.

Edg. Now fare ^y you well, good fir. [Seems to go.]

Glo. With all my heart.

Edg. ^z Why I do trifle thus with his ^a despair

^a Is done to cure it.

Glo. O you mighty Gods! [^b He kneels.]

This world I do renounce; and in your fights
Shake patiently my great affliction off:
If I could bear it longer, and not fall
To quarrel with your great opposeless wills,
My ^c snuff and loathed part of nature should Burn itself out. If Edgar live, O blest ^d him!
Now, fellow, fare thee well. [He leaps and falls along.]

Edg. ^e Gone, fir?—farewel.—

^w So all before P. who reads below for beneath; followed by the rest.

^x H. W. and J. read outright. See Heath in loc.

^y So the qu's; the rest ye for you.

^z So the qu's, 1st and 2d fo's, and H.; the rest do I.

^a So the 1st q. and 1st and 2d fo's, and H.; the rest despair? 'Tis, &c. but the 2d q. has no mark of interrogation after despair, nor the 3d and 4th fo's.

^b So the qu's.

^c The 1st q. reads snurff.

^d The qu's omit him.

^e So the qu's and 1st f. but without an interrogation; the rest good fir, farewell.

And

And yet I know not how conceit ^f may rob
 The ^g treasury of life, when life itself
 Yields to the theft. Had he been where he thought,
 By this, had thought been past.—Alive or dead?
^h Hoa, you, sir! friend! hear you, sir? speak!
 Thus might he pass indeed——yet he revives.—
 What are you, sir?

Glo. Away, and let me die.

Edg. Hadst thou been aught but ⁱ goss'mer, feathers,
^k air,

So many fathom down precipitating,
 Thou'dst shiver'd like an egg; but thou dost breathe,
 Hast heavy substance. ^l Bleed'st not? speak; art found?
 Ten masts ^m at each make not the altitude,
 Which thou hast perpendicularly ⁿ fell.
 Thy life's a miracle; speak yet again.

Glo. But have I fall'n or no?

^f The 1st q. reads my for may.

^g The three last fo's and R. read treasure.

^h So the fo's, R. P. and H. except that all of these beside the 1st f. read here for hear: the qu's read ho you sir, heare you sir, speak: T. and the rest hoa, you, hear you, friend! sir! sir! speak!

ⁱ The white and cobweb-like exhalations that fly about in hot sunny weather. See Grey in loc. But these are not exhalations, but spun by a small spider.

^k Before air the three last fo's and R. insert and.

^l The qu's and 1st and 2d f. and J. read bleed'st not, speak'st, art found.

^m So all before R. who reads at least; P. H. and W. read attacht; J. conjectures on end; and we might offer another conjecture, a-stretch; but the old reading is intelligible enough, and means, each mast placed at the end of the other.

ⁿ So all before R. he and all after read fall'n.

Edg. From the dread ° summit of this chalky ^p borne.
Look up a-height ; the ^q shrill-gorg'd lark so far
Cannot be seen or heard. Do but look up.

Glo. Alack, I have no eyes.

Is wretchedness depriv'd that benefit,
To end itself by death? 'Twas yet some comfort,
When misery could beguile the tyrant's rage,
And frustrate his proud will.

Edg. Give me your arm.

^r Up, so — how is't? feel you your legs? you stand.

Glo. Too well, too well.

Edg. This is above all strangeness.

Upon the crown o'th' cliff, what thing was that,
Which parted from you?

Glo. A poor unfortunate ^s beggar.

Edg. As I stood here below, ^t methought his eyes
Were two full moons ; he had a thousand noses,
Horns ^u welk'd and wav'd like the ^w enridged sea :
It was some fiend. Therefore, thou happy father,
Think that the ^x clearest Gods, who ^y make them honours
Of men's impossibilities, have preserv'd thee.

° The qu's read summons; the 1st f. sonnet.

^p So the qu's and H. ; the rest bourne, which signifies a brook ; but borne is a limit, or boundary.

^q The three last fo's and R. read shrill-gor'd.

^r The qu's read up, so, how feel you your legs? &c.

^s The 1st q. reads bagger.

^t The 1st q. reads methoughts.

^u i. e. twisted. W. The 1st and 2d fo's read wealk'd; the 3d and 4th, and R. walk'd; H. whelk'd. See Jun. in voce Welken.

^w The fo's and R. read enraged sea.

^x P. reads dearest, as in no other edition. Clearest, i. e. most righteous. T.

^y The qu's read made their honours.

Glo.

Glo. I do remember now. Henceforth I'll bear
Affliction, till it do cry out itself,
Enough, enough, and die. That thing you speak of,
I took it for a man; ^z often would it say,
The fiend, the fiend. He led me to that place.

Edg. Bear free and patient thoughts.

Enter Lear, drest madly with flowers.

But who comes here?

The ^a safer sense will ne'er accommodate

His master thus.

Lear. No, they cannot touch me for ^b coining; I am the king himself.

Edg. O thou side-piercing sight!

Lear. Nature's above art in that respect. There's your press-money. That fellow handles his bow like a ^c crow-keeper. Draw me a clothier's yard. Look, look, a mouse!
Peace, peace;—this ^d piece of toasted cheese will ^e do't.—
There's my gauntlet, I'll prove it on a giant. Bring up the ^z So the 1st q.; the 2d often would he say; all the rest often 'twould say.

^a W. alters safer to sober; and J. proposes saner; but I choose to read, with all the copies before, safer: Nor do I think the man of safe discretion, that does affect to alter it. See Measure for Measure, Sc. I.

^b The fo's read crying for coining.

^c R. and P. read cow-keeper. All before and after, crow-keeper; and T.
says this must be the reading, meaning the same as scare-crow, viz. a stuff'd figure representing a man armed with a bow and arrow, set up to fright the crows from the fruit and corn.

^d The qu's omit piece of.

^e The qu's read do it.

brown bills. O, well-flown, ^f bird! i'th' clout, i'th' clout: hewgh.—Give the word.

Edg. Sweet marjoram.

Lear. Pafs.

Glo. I know that voice.

Lear. ^g Ha! Gonerill! Ha! Regan!—They flatter'd me like a dog, and told me, I had ^h white hairs in my beard, ere the black ones were there. To fay ay and no to ⁱ every thing ^k that I faid—Ay and no too, was no good divinity. When the rain came to wet me once, and the wind to make me chatter; when the thunder would not peace at my bidding; there I found ^l 'em, there I smelt ^l 'em out. Go to, they are not men o' their words; they told me I was every thing; 'tis a lye; I am not ^m ague-proof.

^f So all before T. who reads barb, by W.'s conjecture; followed also by H.—W. has the following note,

Lear is here raving of archery, and shooting at buts, as is plain by the words i'th' clout, that is, the white mark they fet up and aim at: hence the phrase to hit the white. So that we must read O well-flown, barb! i. e. the barbed or bearded arrow. W.

But why might not Lear, by a metaphor, call his arrow bird, especially as he cries well-flown to it, which is certainly a metaphor taken from the flying of a bird? See Heath.

The qu's read O well flowne bird in the ayre, hagh, give the word. Here, perhaps, the editor, not knowing what to make of a bird's being flow'n in the clout, put, instead thereof, in the air: which seems to prove that the true reading was bird.

^g The fo's, R. and J. read Ha! Gonerill with a white beard? They flatter'd, &c.

^h Before white the fo's insert the.

ⁱ The 2d q. reads all for every thing,

^k The qu's omit that.

^l The qu's read them for 'em.

^m The qu's read argue-prooffe.

Glo.

Glo. The trick of that voice I do well remember :
Is't not the king ?

Lear. Ay, every inch a king.
When I do stare, see how the subject quakes.
I pardon that man's life. What was ⁿ thy cause ?
Adultery ?
Thou shalt ^o not die : die for adultery ? No.
The wren goes to't, and the small gilded fly
^p Does lecher in my sight.
Let copulation thrive, for Glo'ster's bastard son
Was kinder to his father, than my daughters
Got 'tween the lawful sheets.
To't, luxury, pell-mell ; for I lack soldiers.
Behold ^q yon simpering dame,
Whose face ^r between her forks ^s presages snow ;
That minces virtue, and ^t does shake the head
To hear of pleasure's name.
The fitchew, nor the soyled horse, goes to't
With a more riotous appetite ;
Down from the waist they are centaurs, tho' women all above ;
But to the girdle do the gods inherit,
Beneath is all the fiends ; there's hell, there's darkness,

ⁿ T.'s duodecimo, W. and J. read the for thy.

^o The qu's read not die for adultery, &c.

^p The qu's read do.

^q The two first fo's and J. read yond.

^r R.'s duodecimo, P. T. H. and W. read 'tween.

^s The qu's read presageth.

^t The qu's read do shake the head bear of pleasure's name to fitchew, &c.

There is the ^u sulphurous pit, burning, scalding, stench,
^w consumption. Fie, fie, fie; pah, pah:

Give me an ounce of civet, good apothecary,

^x To sweeten my imagination: there's money for thee.

Glo. O let me kiss that hand.

Lear. ^y Let me wipe it first, it smells of mortality.

Glo. O ruin'd piece of nature! This great world

^z Shall so wear out to nought. ^a Do you know me?

Lear. I remember ^b thine eyes well enough: dost thou ^c squint ^{*} at me? No, do thy worst, blind Cupid; I'll not love. Read thou this challenge, mark ^d but the penning ^e on't.

Glo. Were all ^f the letters furs, I could not see ^g one.

Edg. I would not take this from report: it is,
 And my heart breaks at it.

Lear. Read.

Glo. What with ^h the case of eyes?

Lear. Oh, ho, are you there with me? no eyes in your ^u The qu's read sulphury.

^w The 1st q. reads consumation; 2d consummation.

^x The fo's and R.'s octavo omit to.

^y The qu's read here wipe it first, &c.

^z The qu's read should for shall.

^a So the qu's; the rest dost thou.

^b The qu's read thy.

^c P. and H. read squint.

^{*} The qu's read on.

^d The qu's omit but.

^e So the 2d q.; the 1st oft; all the rest of it.

^f The fo's and R. read thy.

^g The 1st and 2d fo's omit one.

^h So all before R. who alters the to this, but without necessity. Having lost my eyes, would you have me read with the sockets? R. is followed by all the rest.

head,

head, nor ⁱ no money in your purse? Your eyes are in ^k a heavy case, your purse in a light; yet you see how this world goes.

Glo. I see it feelingly.

Lear. What, art mad? a man may see how this world goes, with no eyes. Look with ^l thine ears: see, how ^m yond justice rails upon ⁿ yond simple thief. Hark in thine ear: ^o change places, and handy-dandy, ^p which is the justice, which is the thief? Thou hast seen a farmer's dog bark at a beggar?

Glo. ¶ Ay, sir.

Lear. And the creature run from the cur. There thou might'st behold the great image of authority; ^r a dog's obey'd in office, —

Thou rascal beadle, hold thy bloody hand:

Why dost thou lash that whore? strip ^s thine own back;

^t Thou hotly lust'st to use her in that kind,

For which thou whip'st her. The usurer hangs the ^u cozener.

ⁱ The 2d q. P. and H. omit no.

^k The 3d and 4th fo's, R. P. and H. omit a.

^l The qu's read thy.

^m The qu's read yon.

ⁿ The qu's omit change places, and.

^p The qu's read which is thief, which is the justice.

^q The 3d and 4th fo's omit ay.

^r The 1st q. reads a dogge, so bade in office; the 2d a dogge, so bad in office.

^s So the qu's; the rest thy.

^t The qu's read thy blood hotly lusts, &c.

^u The 1st q. reads cozioner.

Through w tatter'd x rags y small vices do appear ;
 Robes and furr'd gowns z hide all. ^a Plate ^b sin with gold,
And the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks :
Arm it with rags, c a pigmy's straw doth pierce it.
 None does offend, ^d none, I say none ; I'll ^e able 'em ;
 Take that of me, my friend, who have the pow'r
 To seal th' accuser's lips. Get thee glass eyes,
 And, like a scurvy politician, seem
 To see the things thou dost not.
 f Now, now, now, now. Pull off my boots. Harder, harder. So.

Edg. O matter and impertinency mixt !
 Reason in madness !

Lear. If thou wilt weep my fortunes, take my eyes.
 I know thee well enough, thy name is Gloster,
 Thou must be patient ; we came crying hither ;
 Thou know'st, the first time that we smell the air, w The 1st q. reads tattered. Before tatter'd the 3d and 4th fo's insert and.

x So the qu's ; all the rest cloaths.

y The fo's and R. read great for small.

z The qu's read hides.

a What is in italic is omitted in the qu's. The fo's and R. read place sins for plate sin. So plate is P.'s emendation ; followed by the rest ; but P. reads sins ; T.'s duodecimo sin.

b So T.'s duodecimo, W. and J. ; the rest sins.

c R. reads and for a.

d H. omits none.

e able] An old phrase, signifying to qualify, or uphold them. So Scogan, contemporary with Chaucer, says,

Set all my life after thyne ordinance,

And able me to mercie or thou deme, ——— W.

H. reads absolve.

f The qu's read no, now, pull off, &c.

We ^g wawle and cry. I will preach to thee. Mark ^h me.—

Glo. Alack, alack the day!

Lear. When we are born, we cry, that we are come
To this great stage of fools.—This a good ⁱ block?
It were a delicate stratagem to ^k shoe
A troop of horse with ^l felt; ^m I'll put't in proof;
And when I have ⁿ stol'n upon these ^o sons-in-law,
Then kill, kill, kill, kill, kill, kill.

Enter a Gentleman with attendants.

Gent. O, here he is, lay ^p hands ^q upon him.—Sir,
^r Your most dear ^s daughter——

Lear. No rescue? What, a prisoner? I am ^t even
The natural fool of fortune. Use me well,

^g The 1st q. reads wayle; the 2d wail.

^h So the qu's; the rest omit me.

ⁱ J. proposes reading stock for block, as a more easy transition to felt, in the next sentence, where Lear talks of shoeing horses therewith.

^k The qu's read shoot for shoe.

^l The qu's read fell for felt.

^m The qu's omit I'll put't in proof.

ⁿ The qu's read sole.

^o The 1st q. 1st f. and R. read son-in-laws; the three last fo's sons-in-laws.

^p So the qu's; the rest hand.

^q The qu's read upon him, sirs.

^r The 2d q. omits your most dear daughter.

^s The 1st q. omits daughter.

^t The qu's read eene,

You

You shall have ^u ransom. Let me have ^w a surgeon,
I am cut to th' brains.

Gent. You shall have any thing,

Lear. No seconds? all myself?

Why this would make a man, a man of salt;
To use his eyes for garden-water-pots,

^x Ay, and laying autumn's dust.

^y Gent. Good sir.

Lear. I will die bravely like a ^z bridegroom, what?
I will be jovial; come, come, I am a king,

^a My masters, know you that?

Gent. You are a royal one, and we obey you.

Lear. Then there's life in it. ^b Nay, ^c come, ^d an you get it, you shall get it ^e with running. ^f Sa, fa, fa, fa.

[^g Exit king running.

Gent. A sight most pitiful in the meanest wretch,
Past speaking of in a king. Thou hast ^h one daughter,
Who redeems nature from the general curse
Which twain have brought her to.

Edg. Hail, gentle sir.

Gent. Sir, speed you. What's your will?

^u The 2d q. reads a ransom.

^w The 1st q. reads a churgion; the 2d a chirurgion; all the rest surgeons.

^x All but the qu's omit ay. The fo's and R. omit the whole hemistick.

^y All but the 2d q. omit this speech.

^z All but the qu's read a smug bridegroom.

^a The fo's and R. omit my.

^b So the qu's; the rest omit nay.

^c The qu's omit come.

^d The 2d q. reads if for an.

^e So the qu's; the rest by for with.

^f The qu's omit sa, fa, fa, fa.

^g So the direction in the qu's; the rest only Exit.

^h So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the rest a for one.

Edg.

Edg. Do you hear aught, ⁱ fir, of a battle toward?

Gent. Most sure and vulgar, every one hears that,

^k Which can distinguish ^l sound.

Edg. But by your favour,

How near's the other army?

Gent. Near, and ^m on speedy foot. The main ⁿ descry

^o Stands on the hourly ^p thought.

Edg. I thank you, fir. ^q That's all.

Gent. Though that the queen on special cause is here,

^r Her army is mov'd on.

^s Edg. I thank you, fir.

Glo. You ever gentle gods, take my breath from me;

Let not my worser spirit tempt me again

To die before you please!

Edg. Well pray you, father.

Glo. Now, good fir, what are you?

Edg. A most poor man, ^t made tame to fortune's blows,

Who, by the art of ^u known and feeling sorrows,

Am pregnant to good pity. Give me your hand,

I'll lead you to some bidding.

ⁱ The qu's omit fir.

^k The 2d q. omits which; the 1st reads that for which.

^l The qu's read sense for sound.

^m The qu's read on speed for 't.

ⁿ The qu's read descries.

^o The 1st q. reads standst.

^p The qu's read thoughts.

^q The 2d q. P. and H. omit that's all.

^r The 1st q. reads hir; the 2d his.

^s P. and H. omit this speech.

^t The qu's read made lame by fortune's blows.

^u H. reads knowing.

Glo. Harty thanks,
 w The bounty and the benizon of heaven x to boot.

S C E N E IX.

Enter Steward.

Stew. A proclaim'd prize! y most happy!
 That eyeless head of thine was z first fram'd flesh,
 To raise my fortunes. a Thou b old unhappy traitor,
 c Briefly thyself remember. The sword is out,
 That must destroy thee.

Glo. d Now let thy friendly hand
 Put strength enough to't. [Edgar interposes.

Stew. Wherefore, bold peasant, e Dar'st thou support a publish'd traitor? Hence, f Lest that th' infection of his fortune take
 Like hold on thee. Let go his arm.

Edg. Chill not let go, g zir, without further 'casion.

Stew. Let go, slave, or thou dy'ft.

w The 1st q. reads the bonnet and the beniz of heaven to save thee.

x So P. and H. and the 2d q. seems to confirm this reading, for there we read to boot, to boot; where the words were doubled, very likely by the mistake of either the writer or printer. The rest to boot, and boot.

y H. reads this is most happy!

z The 1st q. omits first.

a P. and all after omit thou.

b The qu's read most for old.

c i. e. quickly recollect the past offences of thy life, and recommend thyself to heaven. W.

d So all before P. who omits now; followed by the rest.

e The 1st q. reads durst.

f The qu's read least the infection, &c.; the 1st f. least that the, &c.

g The qu's fir without casion, omitting vurther.

Edg.

Edg. Good gentleman, go your gate, ^h and let poor volk pass. And 'chud ha' been zwagger'd out of my life, 'twould not ha' been zo long ⁱ as 'tis by a vortnight. Nay, come not near th' old man; keep out, ^k che vor'ye, or ice try whether your costard or my ^l bat be the harder; chill be plain with you.

Stew. Out, dunghill! [^m They fight.]

Edg. Chill pick your teeth, zir. Come no matter vor your foins. [Edgar knocks him down.]

Stew. Slave, thou hast slain me. Villain, take my purse:
If ever thou wilt thrive, bury my body,
And give the letters, which thou find'st about me,
To Edmund earl of Gloster; seek him out ⁿ Upon the ^o British party. Oh, untimely death!—^p death!
[Dies.]

Edg. I know thee well, a serviceable villain;
As duteous to the vices of thy mistrefs,
As badness would desire.

Glo. What, is he dead?

Edg. Sit you down, father, rest you: let's see ^q his pockets,

^h The qu's omit and.

ⁱ The qu's omit as 'tis.

^k I warn you. Edgar counterfeits the western dialect. J. The qu's read chevore ye.

^l So the 2d q.; the 1st battero; the fo's and R. ballow. Though bat, the reading of the 2d q. be good, and not to be altered, yet probably there might be such a word in use as ballow at that time. P. and all after read with the 2d q. but omit giving the other reading.

^m This direction is in the qu's; but omitted by the rest.

ⁿ H. reads on th' English party, &c.

^o So the qu's; the rest English for British.

^p All before P. read death twice; he and the rest but once.

^q So the qu's; the rest these for his.

† These letters, that he speaks of, may be my friends.
 He's dead; I'm only sorry he had no other death's-man.
 Let us see—^s leave gentle wax; and manners blame us not;
 To know our enemies' minds † we rip their hearts;
 Their papers ^u is more lawful.

^w Reads a letter.

Let ^x our reciprocal vows be remembered. You have many opportunities to cut him off: if your will want not, time and place will be fruitfully offered. There is nothing done if he return the conqueror. Then am I the prisoner, and his bed my goal; from the loathed warmth whereof deliver me, and supply the place ^y for your labour.

^z Your (wife, so I would say) affectionate servant,
 G O N E R I L L.

† Oh, undistinguish'd space of woman's ^b will!
 A plot upon her virtuous husband's life,
 And the exchange my brother. Here, i'th' sands
 Thee I'll rake up, the post un sanctified

† So the qu's; the rest the for these.

‡ So all before R. he and all the rest read by your leave, &c.

‡ The qu's read were'd.

‡ So the qu's and 1st f. i. e. to rip their papers is more lawful; the rest read are for his.

‡ No direction in the 1st q.; in the 2d a letter; in the rest reads the letter.

‡ The qu's read your wife.

‡ The 3d and 4th fo's and R. read of our labour.

‡ The 1st q. reads your wife (so I would say) your affectionate servant, and for you her own for Venter, Gonorill. The 2d your wife (so I would say) and your affectionate servant, Gonorill.

‡ The three first fo's read of indistinguish'd; the 1st q. and 4th f. indistinguish'd; the 1st oh, the three last of.

‡ The qu's and P. read wit for will.

Of murderous lechers ; and in ^c the mature time
 With this ungracious paper strike the fight
 Of the death-practis'd duke ; for him 'tis well,
 That of ^d thy death and business I can tell.

Glo. The king is mad ; how stiff is my vile sense,
 That I stand up, and have ingenious feeling
 Of my huge sorrows ; better I were distract,
 So should my thoughts be ^e fenced from my griefs, [Drum
 And woes, by wrong ^f imaginations, lose afar off.
 The knowledge of themselves.

Edg. Give me your hand.
 Far off, methinks, I hear the beaten drum.
 Come, ^g father, I'll bestow you with a friend. [Exeunt.

SCENE X.

A chamber.

Enter Cordelia, Kent, and ⁱ Physician.

Cor. O thou good Kent, how shall I live and work
 To match thy goodness ? ^k My life will be too short,
 And every measure fail me.

Kent. To be acknowledg'd, madam, is o'er-paid.

^c P. and H. omit the.

^d The 2d q. reads bis for thy.

^e So the qu's; the rest sever'd for fenced.

^f J. reads imagination.

^g So all but J. who reads further for father.

^h This is called scena septima in the fo's; in R. Sc. VI.

ⁱ In the qu's doctor; in the fo's and R. gentleman.

^k So all before P. who omits my; followed by the rest.

All my reports go with the modest truth,
Nor more, nor clipt, but so.

Cor. Be better suited ;

These weeds are memories of those worser hours ;
I pr'ythee, put them off.

Kent. Pardon ¹ me, dear madam ;

Yet to be known, shortens my * made intent ;
My boon I make it, that you know me not,
Till time and I think meet.

Cor. Then ^m be't so, my ⁿ good lord.

How does the king ?

[To the Physician.]

Phys. Madam, sleeps still.

Cor. O you kind Gods !

Cure this great breach in his abused nature,
Th' untun'd and ° jarring senses, O, wind up
Of this child-changed father.

Phys. ^p So please your majesty,

^q That we may wake the king ? he hath slept long.

Cor. Be govern'd by your knowledge, and proceed
I'th' sway of your own will : is he array'd ?

Enter Lear in a chair, carried by servants.

Phys. Ay, madam, in the heaviness of ^r his sleep,
We put fresh garments on him.

¹ All but the qu's omit me.

* W. reads laid intent. See Heath in loc.

^m So all before P. he and all after read be it.

ⁿ So the qu's, fo's, R. and J.—P. and the rest omit good.

• The qu's read hurrying for jarring.

^p P. and all after omit so.

^q The 2d q. omits that.

^r So the qu's ; the rest omit his.

^s Be by, good madam, when we do awake him ;
I doubt ^t not of his temperance.

^u Cor. Very well.

Phyf. Please you draw near : louder the music there.

Cor. O my dear father ! — ^w Restauration, hang ^x Thy medicine on my lips ; and let this kifs

Repair those violent harms, that my two sisters
Have in thy reverence made !

Kent. Kind and ^y dear princefs !

Cor. Had you not been their father, these white flakes

^z Had challeng'd pity of them. Was this face

To be ^a expos'd against the ^b warring winds ?

^c To stand against the deep, dread-bolted thunder ?

In the most terrible and nimble stroke

Of quick cross lightning ? To watch, poor ^d Perdu,

^s In the 1st q. Gent. in the 2d Kent is made to speak the two following lines. The qu's read good madam, be by, when, &c.

^t The 1st and 2d fo's omit not.

^u The two following speeches are omitted in all but the qu's.

^w This is fine. She invokes the goddess of health, Hygeia, under the name of Restauration, to make her the minister of her rites, in this holy office of recovering her father's lost senses. W.

^x H. reads her for thy.

^y So all before T. who alters it to dearest; followed by W. and J.

^z So the qu's; all the rest did challenge.

^a The fo's and R. read oppos'd for expos'd.

^b The fo's and R. read jarring for warring.

^c What is in italic is omitted by the fo's, R. P. and H.

^d The allusion is to the forlorn-hope in an army, which are put upon desperate adventures, and called in French, enfants perdus; she therefore calls her father poor Perdu; perdue, which is the common reading, being the feminine. These enfants perdus being always slightly and badly armed is the reason she adds with this thin helm—i. e. bare-headed. W.

But W. calls perdue the common reading, which is only the reading of T. The qu's read perdu.

With this thin helm? (° Mine f enemy's dog,
 Though he had bit me, should have stood that night
 Against my fire. And was thou fain, poor father,
 To hovel thee with swine and rogues forlorn,
 In short and musty straw? § alack, alack!
 'Tis wonder, that thy life and wits, at once,
 Had not concluded ^h all. — He wakes; speak to him.

Phyf. Madam, do you ⁱ, 'tis fittest.

Cor. How does my royal lord? how fares your majesty?

Lear. You do me wrong to take me out o'th' grave.
 Thou art a foul in blifs, but I am bound
 Upon a wheel of fire; that mine own tears
 Do scald like molten lead.

Cor. ^k Sir, do you know me?

Lear. ^l You are a spirit I know: ^m when did you die?

Cor. Still, still, far wide—

Phyf. He's scarce awake; let him alone awhile.

Lear. Where have I been? where am I? fair day-light?
 I'm ⁿ mightily abus'd. I should e'en die with pity,
 To see another thus. I know not what to say;
 I will not swear these are my hands. Let's see,
 I feel this pin prick: 'would I were assur'd
 Of my condition.

° T. W. and J. read my very enemy's, &c.

f The qu's read injurious for enemy's.

§ H. reads alack! but once.

^h W. reads ah! for all. See Heath in loc.

ⁱ After you H. adds speak.

^k The 1st q. reads sir know me; the 2d sir, know ye me?

^l The 1st q. reads yar; the 2d y'are.

^m The 1st q. and 1st and 2d fo's read where for when.

ⁿ H. reads much abus'd.

Cor.

Cor. O look ° upon me, fir.

And hold your P hands in benediction o'er me.

¶ No, fir, you must not kneel.

Lear. Pray, do not mock † me ?

I am a very foolish, fond, old man,

Fourscore and upward s; and, to deal plainly †,

I fear I am u not in my perfect mind.

Methinks, I should know you, and know this man ;

Yet I am doubtful ; for I'm mainly ignorant,

What place this is ; and all the skill I have,

Remembers not these garments ; w nor I know not

Where I did lodge last night. Do not laugh at me,

For, as I am a man, I think this lady

To be my child Cordelia.

Cor. And so x I am ; I am.

Lear. Be your tears wet ? Yes, 'faith. I pray † you, weep not.

If you have poison for me, I will drink it ;

I know, you do not love me ; for your sisters

Have, as I do remember, done me wrong.

You have some cause, they have not.

° H. reads on me.

P So the qu's ; the rest hand.

¶ The fo's and R. omit no, fir.

† The 1st q. omits me.

s After upward, the fo's and R. add not an hour more, nor less.

† After plainly, H. adds with you.

u The qu's read not perfect in my mind.

w So all before P. who alters nor to nay ; followed by the rest.

x The qu's read I am but once.

† R. first inserts you ; followed by all after.

Cor. No cause, no cause.

Lear. Am I in France?

Kent. In your own kingdom, fir.

Lear. Do not abuse me.

Phys. Be comforted, good madam; the great rage,
You see is ^z cur'd in him: ^a and yet ^b 'tis danger

^c To make him even o'er the time he has lost.

Desire him to go in; ^d trouble him no more
Till further settling.

Cor. Will't please your highness walk?

Lear. You must bear with me;

Pray ^e you now, forget and forgive,

I am old and foolish. [Exeunt Lear, Cordelia, Physi- cian, and attendants.

^f Manent Kent and Gentleman.

Gent. Holds it true, fir, that the duke of Cornwall was so slain?

Kent. Most certain, fir.

Gent. Who is conductor of his people?

Kent. As 'tis said, the bastard son of Glo'ster.

Gent. They say, Edgar, his banisht son is with the earl of Kent in Germany.

^z The fo's and R. read kill'd for cur'd.

^a What is in italic is omitted in the fo's, R. P. and H.

^b The qu's read it is; T. W. and J. 'twere.

^c To make him even, &c.] i. e. to reconcile it to his apprehension. W.

^d Before trouble, P. and H. insert and.

^e The qu's omit you.

^f This remaining part of the scene is omitted in the fo's, R. P. and H.

Kent.

ACT IV. SCENE X. 167

Kent. Report is changeable. 'Tis time to look about;
the powers of the kingdom approach apace.

Gent. The arbitrement is like to be bloody.—Fare you well, fir. [Exit Gentleman.]

Kent. My point and period will be throughly wrought,
Or well, or ill, as this day's battle's fought. [Exit Kent.]

A C T V.

Enter Edmund, Regan, ^a and their powers.

Edmund.

KNOW of the duke, if his last purpose hold;
Or whether since he is advis'd by aught,
To change the course? He's full of ^b alteration,
^c And self-reproving. Bring ^d his constant pleasure.

Reg. Our sister's man is certainly miscarried.

Edm. 'Tis to be doubted, madam.

Reg. Now, sweet lord,

You know the goodness I intend upon you;
Tell me—but truly—but then speak the truth,
Do you not love my sister?

Edm. In honour'd love.

^e Reg. But have you never found my brother's way
To the fore-fended place?

^f Edm. That thought abuses you.

^a So the qu's, which seems sufficient, as no particular gentleman appears.
W. and J. read gentleman and soldiers; the rest gentlemen and soldiers for and their powers.

^b The 1st q. reads abdication.

^c P. reads and self-reproving brings his constant pleasure.

^d i. e. his settled resolution. J.

^e J. omits the four following speeches, without giving notice.

^f The two following speeches are omitted by all but the qu's.

Reg.

Reg. I am doubtful that you have been conjunct,
And bosom'd with her as far as we call her's.

Edm. No, by mine honour, & madam.

Reg. I never shall endure her. Dear my lord,
Be not familiar with her.

Edm. Fear ^h me not. She and the duke her husband——

Enter Albany, Gonerill, and soldiers.

ⁱ Gon. I had rather lose the battle, than that sister
Should loosen him and me.—

[Aside.

Alb. Our very loving sister, well be met.

* Sir, this I hear, the king is come to his daughter,
With others, whom the rigour of our state
Forc'd to cry out. ^l Where I could not be honest,
I never yet was valiant: ^m for this business,
It toucheth us, as France invades our land,
Not holds the king, with others, whom, I fear,
Most just and heavy causes make oppose.

ⁿ Edm. Sir, you speak nobly.

Reg. Why is this reason'd?

Gon. Combine together 'gainst the enemy:
For these ^o domestick and particular broils
Are not the question here.

^g P. and W. omit madam.

^h All but the qu's omit me.

ⁱ This speech is omitted in the fo's, R. P. and H.

^k The qu's read for for sir; the fo's, R. P. and H. sir, this I heard.

^l What is in italic is omitted in the fo's and R.

^m T. reads 'fore for for.

ⁿ P. and H. omit this speech.

^o The qu's read domestick dore (2d q. doore) particulars are not to question here.

Alb.

Alb. Let tis then determine with the ancient of war on our ^p proceedings.

^q Edm. I shall attend you presently at your tent.

Reg. Sister, you'll go with us?

Gon. No.

Reg. 'Tis most convenient. Pray ^r you, go with us.

Gon. [aside.] Oh, ho, I know the riddle: I will go:

S C E N E II.

As they are going out, enter Edgar disguised.

Edg. If e'er your grace had speech with man so poor,
Hear me one word.

Alb. I'll overtake you.—Speak.

[Exeunt Edm. Reg. Gon. and attendants:

Edg. Before you fight the battle, ope this letter.
If you have victory, let the trumpet sound
For him that brought it. ^s Wretched though I seem;
I can produce a champion, that will prove
What is avouched there. If you miscarry,
Your business of the world hath so an end,
^t And machination ceases. Fortune ^u love you!

Alb. Stay till I've read the letter.

^p So the qu's; the rest proceeding.

^q The fo's, R. P. and H. omit this speech. T. and W. insert it before the last, contrary to the qu's.

^r The fo's, R. P. and H. omit you.

^s The three last fo's read wretch for wretched.

^t These words in italic are omitted in the qu's.

^u The fo's and R. read loves.

Edg.

Edg. I was forbid it.
 When time shall ferve, let but the herald cry,
 And I'll appear again. [Exit.
Alb. Why, fare thee well. I will ^w o'erlook ^x thy paper.

Enter Edmund.

Edm. The enemy's in view; draw up your powers.
 y Here is the ^z guess of their ^a great strength and forces,
 By diligent discovery; [giving a paper] but your haste
 Is now urg'd on you.
Alb. We will greet the time. [Exit.

S C E N E III.

Edm. To both these sisters have I sworn my love:
 Each jealous of the other, as the ^b stung
 Are of the adder. Which of them shall I take?
 Both? one? or neither? Neither can be enjoy'd,
 If both remain alive. To take the widow,
 Exasperates, makes mad her sister Gonerill;
 And hardly shall I carry out my side,
 Her husband being alive. Now then, we'll use
 His countenance for the battle; which being done,
 Let her, who would be rid of him, devise

^w The 2d q. reads looke ore.

^x The qu's read the for thy.

^y So the fo's and R. the rest read hard for here. But the words by diligent discovery, seem to require the reading, here. I have therefore put in the direction [giving a paper.]

^z The 1st q. reads guesse for guess.

^a So the qu's; the rest true for great.

^b The qu's read sting for stung.

His

His speedy taking off. As for ^c the mercy
 Which he ^d intends to Lear and to Cordelia,
 The battle done, and they, within our power,
^e Shall never see his pardon. For my state
 Stands on me to defend, not to debate.

^f S C E N E IV. A Field.

Alarm within. Enter with drum and colours, Lear, Cordelia, and soldiers over the stage, and exeunt.

Enter Edgar and Gloster.

Edg. Here, father, take the shadow of this ^g bush
 For your good host; pray that the right may thrive.
 If ever I return to you again,
 I'll bring you comfort.

Glo. Grace ^h go with you, sir! [Exit Edgar.] [Alarm, and retreat, within.]

Re-enter Edgar.

Edg. Away, old man; give me thy hand, away.
 King Lear hath lost, he and his daughter ta'en.
 Give me thy hand; come on.

Glo. No further, sir; a man may rot even here.

Edg. What in ill thoughts again? men must endure

^c The qu's read his for the.

^d The 2d q. reads extends.

^e H. reads they ne'er shall see, &c.

^f In the fo's and R. this is Scene II.

^g So the qu's; the rest tree for bush.

^h So the qu's, and 1st and 2d fo's; the rest be for go.

Their going hence, even as their coming hither.
Ripeness is all. Come on.

i Glo. And that's true too. [Exeunt.]

* S C E N E V.

Enter in conquest, with drum and colours, Edmund: Lear and Cordelia, as prisoners: soldiers, captain.

Edm. Some officers take them away. Good guard,
Until their greater pleasures ¹ first be known,
That are to censure them.

Cor. We're not the first,
Who with best meaning have incurr'd the worst.
For thee, oppressed king, ^m am I cast down;
Myself could else out-frown false fortune's frown.—
Shall we not see these daughters and these sisters?

Lear. ⁿ No, no, no, no! come, let's away to prison;
We two alone will sing, like birds i'th' cage.
When thou dost ask me blessing, I'll kneel down,
And ask of thee forgiveness. So we'll live,
And pray, ^o and sing, and tell old tales, and laugh
At gilded butterflies; and hear poor rogues
Talk of court-news, and we'll talk with them too,
Who loses and who wins; who's in, who's out;
And take upon's the mystery of things,
As if we were God's spies. And we'll wear out,

ⁱ This speech is omitted in the qu's.

* This in the fo's and R. is Scene III.

¹ The qu's read best for first.

^m So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the rest I am.

ⁿ In the qu's no is but twice repeated.

^o The 2d q. omits and sing.

In a wall'd prison, packs and fects of great ones,
That ebb and flow by th' moon.

Edm. Take them away.

Lear. Upon such sacrifices, my Cordelia,
The Gods themselves throw incense. Have I caught thee?
He that parts us, shall bring a brand from heaven,
And fire us hence, like foxes. Wipe thine ^p eyes,
The ^q goujeres shall devour them, ^r flesh and fell,
Ere they shall make us weep; we'll see 'em ^s starve first.

^t Come. [Exeunt Lear and Cordelia guarded,

Edm. Come hither, captain, hark ^u.

Take thou this note; go, follow them to prison.
^w One step I have advanc'd thee; if thou dost
As this instructs thee, thou dost make thy way
To noble fortunes. Know thou this, that men
Are as the time is; to be tender minded
Does not become a sword. ^x Thy great employment
Will not bear question; either say thou'lt do't,
Or thrive by other means.

Capt. I'll do't, my lord.

^p So the qu's and 1st f.; the rest eye.

^q The qu's read good for goujeres; the fo's, R. and P. good years; T. good-yers.

^r i. e. flesh and skin. J. The qu's read steach and fell.

^s So the qu's; the rest starv'd.

^t The 2d q. omits come.

^u Here H. gives a direction for Edmund to whisper; but how is this? Is he to whisper his speech? how then shall the audience hear it? Besides, he had no need to whisper when none, but the captain to whom he speaks, was within hearing. But I apprehend there were many soldiers remaining, who were not to be trusted with the secret.

^w The 1st q. reads and for one.

^x T. and H. read my for thy. See Heath in loc.

Edm.

Edm. About it, and write happy, when thou'lt done.
Mark, I say, instantly; and carry it so,
As I have fet it down.

y Capt. I cannot draw a cart, nor eat dry'd oats,
If it be man's work I'll do't. [Exit.

SCENE VI.

Enter Albany, Gonerill, Regan, and soldiers.

Alb. Sir, you have ^z shew'd to day your valiant strain,
And fortune led you well; you have the captives,
Who were the opposites of this day's strife:

^a We do require ^b them of you, so to use them,
As we shall find their merits and our safety
May equally determine.

Edm. ^c Sir, I thought ^e it fit
To ^d fend the old and miserable king
To some retention, ^e and appointed guard,
Whose age has charms in it, whose title more,
To pluck the ^f common ^g bosom ^h on his side;
And turn our impress lances in our eyes,

^y All but the qu's omit this speech.

^z The 2d q. reads shewne.

^a So the qu's, T. W. and J.; the rest I for we.

^b The qu's and P. read then for them.

^c P. and H. omit sir and it.

^d The 1st q. reads save for send.

^e The 1st q. the fo's, and R. omit and appointed guard.

^f The 1st q. reads coren for common.

^g The 1st q. reads bosom; 2d q. blawmes; P. and all after bosoms.

^h The qu's read of for on.

Which

Which do command them. With him I sent the queen ;
 My reason all the same ; and they are ready
 To-morrow, or at ⁱ a further space, to appear
 Where ^k we shall hold ^k our session. ^l At this time,
We sweat and bleed ; the friend hath lost his friend ;
And the best quarrels, in the heat, are curst
By those that feel their ^m sharpness.——
The question of Cordelia and her father,
Requires a fitter place.

Alb. Sir, by your patience,
 I hold you but a subject of this war,
 Not as a brother.

Reg. That's as we list to grace him.
 Methinks, our pleasure ⁿ might have been demanded,
 Ere you had spoke so far. He led our powers ;
 Bore the commission of my place and person ;
 The which ^o immediacy may well stand up,
 And call itself your brother.

Gon. Not so hot ;
 In his own grace he doth exalt himself,
 More than in your ^p advancement.

Reg. In my ^q right,
 By me invested, he compeers the best.

ⁱ All but the 2d q. omit a.

^k All editions but H. read you and your for we and our ; but H.'s reading seems necessary, or how can we account for the next speech of Albany.

^l What is in italic is omitted in the fo's, R. P. and H.

^m The 1st q. reads sharpes for sharpness.

ⁿ The qu's read should for might.

^o The qu's, P. and H. read immediate.

^p The fo's and R. read addition for advancement.

^q The fo's and R. read rights.

Alb.

Alb. That were the most if he should husband you.

Reg. Jesters do oft prove prophets.

Gon. Holla, holla!

That eye that told you so look'd but a-squint.

Reg. Lady, I am not well, else I should answer
From a full-flowing stomach. General,
Take thou my foldiers, prisoners, patrimony,
† Dispose of them, of me; ‡ thy will is mine:
Witness the world, that I create thee here
My lord and master.

Gon. Mean you to enjoy him?

Alb. The let alone lies not in your good will.

Edm. Nor in thine, lord.

Alb. Half-blooded fellow, yes.

‡ Reg. Let the drum strike, and prove my title thine.

‡ [To Edmund: they offer to go out.

Alb. Stay yet; hear reason. Edmund, I arrest thee
On capital treason; and in † thine attaint, [Pointing to Gon.

This gilded serpent. For your claim, fair ‡ sister,
I y bar it in the interest of my wife;

† This line is not in the qu's.

‡ The 1st f. reads the walls are thine; the other fo's and the rest the walls are mine; except H. who reads they all are thine; but the reading most agreeable to the context and to the traces of the letters in the 1st f. seems to be this, thy will is mine. W. says, the walls are thine, is a metaphorical expression taken from the camp, and signifying, to surrender at discretion.

‡ The qu's and P. give this speech to Edmund, and instead of the last word thine read good.

‡ This direction is H.'s.

† So the qu's; the rest thy arrest.

‡ The fo's read sisters.

‡ The qu's and fo's read bare.

'Tis she is sub-contracted to ^z this lord ;
 And I, her husband, contradict ^a your banes.
 If you will marry, make your ^b love to me,
 My lady is bespoke.

^c Gon. An enterlude!—

Alb. Thou art arm'd, Glo'ster ; ^d let the trumpet found :
 If none appear to prove upon thy ^e head
 Thy heinous, manifest, and many treasons,
 There is my pledge, I'll ^f prove it on thy heart
 Ere I taste bread, thou art in nothing less,
 Than I have here proclaim'd thee.

Reg. Sick, O sick—

Gon. If not I'll ne'er trust ^g poison.

Edm. There's my exchange. What in the world he is,
 That calls me traitor, villain-like, he lies.
 Call by ^h thy trumpet : he that dares approach,
 On him, on you, (ⁱ who not ?) I will maintain
 My truth and honour firmly.

Alb. A herald, ho !

^k Edm. A herald ho, a herald !

^z The 2d q. reads her for this.

^a The qu's read the for your.

^b So the qu's ; and right ; for it is spoken to Regan only : the rest read loves.

^c This speech is omitted in the qu's.

^d The qu's omit let the trumpet found.

^e So the qu's ; the rest person for head.

^f The fo's and R. read make for prove.

^g The fo's, R. and J. read medicine for poison.

^h So the qu's, T. W. and J. ; the rest the for thy.

ⁱ H. reads whom not ?

^k This speech is omitted by all but the qu's.

Enter

Enter a Herald.

Alb. Trust to thy single ¹ virtue; for thy soldiers,
All levied in my name, have in my name
Took their discharge.

Reg. This sickness grows upon me.

Alb. She is not well; convey her to my tent. [Exit Reg.]

SCENE VII.

Come hither, herald. Let the trumpet sound,
And read out this.

^m Cap. Sound trumpet.

[A trumpet sounds.]

Herald reads.

If any man of quality or degree, ⁿ within the lists of the army, will maintain upon Edmund supposed earl of Gloucester, that he is a manifold traitor, let him appear ^o at the third sound of the trumpet. He is bold in his defence.

^p Sound.

[1 trumpet.]

^q Again.

[2 trumpet.]

Again.

[3 trumpet.]

^r [Trumpet answers him within.]

^m This speech of the Captain is omitted by all but the qu's.

ⁿ The qu's read in the host of the army, &c.

^o So the qu's; the rest by for at.

^p All but the qu's omit sound; and they give it to the Bastard; but this seems to be a mistake, for I suppose it was the Herald's business to bid the trumpet sound.

^q The qu's have again but once, and this is also given to the Bastard.

^r This direction is omitted in the qu's.

^s Enter Edgar, armed, with a trumpet before him.

Alb. Ask him his purposes, why he appears
Upon this call o'th' trumpet.

Hcr. What are you?
Your name and quality, and why you answer
This present summons?

Edg. ^t O know my name is lost,
By treason's tooth bare-gnawn, and canker-bit;
^u Yet am I noble ^w as the adversary
I come to cope ^x withal.

Alb. Which is that adversary?

Edg. What's he that speaks for Edmund earl of Glo'ster?

Edm. Himself: what say'st thou to him?

Edg. Draw thy sword,
That if my speech offend a noble heart,
Thy arm may do thee justice; here is mine;
^y Behold, it is the privilege of mine ^z honours^a,
My oath and my profession. I protest,

Maugre

^s The qu's read Enter Edgar, at the third sound, a trumpet before him.
The fo's and the rest Enter Edgar, armed.

^t So the qu's; the rest omit O.

^u The 2d q. omits yet am I noble; for which the 1st q. reads yet are I mou't, i. e. (I suppose) yet ere I move it.

^w The qu's read where is the adversary, &c.

^x So the qu's; the rest omit withal.

^y The fo's, R. P. and J. read behold, it is my privilege, the privilege of mine honours, &c.

^z The qu's read tongue for honours.

^a The charge he is here going to bring against the Bastard, he calls the privilege, &c. to understand which phraseology, we must consider the old rites of knighthood are here alluded to; whose oath and profession required him to discover all treasons, and whose privilege was to have his challenge accepted,

Maugre thy ^b strength, youth, place, and eminence,
^c Despight thy victor-sword, and fire-new ^d fortune,
 Thy valour, and thy heart, thou art a traitor;
 False to thy Gods, thy brother, and thy father,
^e Conspirant 'gainst this high illustrious prince,
 And from th' extremest upward of thy head,
 To the descent and dust ^f beneath thy feet,
 A most toad-spotted traitor. Say thou, no;
 This sword, this arm, and my best spirits ^g are bent
 To prove upon thy heart whereto I speak,
 Thou liest.

Edm. In wisdom I should ask thy name,
 But since thy out-side looks so fair and warlike,
 And that thy ^h tongue some ⁱ 'say of breeding breathes;

accepted, or otherwise to have his charge taken pro confesso. For if one who was no knight accused another who was, that other was under no obligation to accept the challenge. On this account it was necessary, as Edgar came disguised, to tell the Bastard he was a knight. W.

But I should rather think privilege refers to his sword; he says, Draw thy sword, &c. here is mine, it is the privilege, &c. i. e. I don't wear my sword in the common way, merely as my defence, but as a privilege, granted at my being knighted, for the vindicating betrayed innocence, and punishing the traitor. For by the words here is mine, he cannot well refer to my speech in the foregoing line: had he intended to refer to his following speech, then the grammar would have requir'd to be here it is, and not here is mine.

^b So the qu's; the rest strength, place, youth, &c.

^c So the qu's and R.; the fo's read despise for despight; P. and the rest spite of.

^d The qu's read fortun'd.

^e The qu's read conspicuate.

^f So the qu's; the rest below thy foot.

^g For are the 1st q. reads as; the 2d is.

^h The qu's read being for tongue.

ⁱ Say for essay, some shew or probability, P. But perhaps say may here be the verb changed into a noun, and may signify discourse.

The fo's read and since thy tongue (some say) of breeding breathes.

k What safe and nicely I might well delay
 By ^l rule of knighthood, I disdain and spurn.
 m Back do I tofs ⁿ these treasons to thy head,
 With the ^o hell-hated lye ^p o'erwhelm thy heart;
 q Which (for they yet glance by, and scarcely bruise)
 This sword of mine shall give them instant way,
 Where ^r they shall rest for ever. Trumpets, speak.

[Alarm. Fight. Edmund falls.

Gon. ^s Save him, save him; this is ^t mere practice, Glo'ster.
 By th' law of ^u arms, thou ^w wast not bound to ^x answer
 An unknown opposite; thou art not vanquish'd,
 But cozen'd and beguil'd.

Alb. ^y Shut your mouth, dame,
 Or with this paper shall I ^z stop it——

Gon. ^a Hold, sir——

k The qu's omit this line.

l The qu's have right for rule.

m This line is omitted in the 2d q.; the 1st reads beer for back.

n The 1st q. reads those for these.

o The qu's read hell-hatedly.

p The qu's read oreturn'd for o'erwhelm.

q H. reads to which (for they yet glance by, scarcely bruising).

r T. W. and J. read thou shalt rest.

s So all before T. who reads O save him, &c. followed by W. and J.
 —H. reads save him, O save him, &c.—Save him, save him, is made Albany's speech by all before T. who puts it to Gonerill's; followed by all after but J.

t All but the qu's omit mere.

u So the qu's; the rest war for arms.

w The qu's read art for wast.

x The 2d q. reads offer for answer.

y The qu's read stop for shut.

z The 1st q. reads stople.

a The fo's, R. and J. read hold, sir, after stop it, making it a part of Albany's speech; but this seems to be a mistake; for if it be read at all, it should be Gonerill's speech. All the rest omit it.

Alb.

Alb. Thou worse than any ^b name, read thine own evil.
^c Nay, no tearing, lady; I perceive you know it ^d.
Gon. Say, if I do; the laws are mine, not thine;
 Who ^e shall arraign me for't?
Alb. ^f Monster, know'st thou this paper?
Gon. Ask me not what I know—— [Exit Gonerill.]
Alb. Go after her. She's desperate; govern her.

SCENE VIII.

Edm. What you have charg'd me with, that ^g have I done,
 And more, much more; the time will bring it out.
 'Tis past, and so am I. But what art thou,
 That hast this fortune on me? ^h If thou'rt noble,
 I do forgive thee.
Edg. Let us exchange charity.
 I am not less in blood than thou art, Edmund;
 If more, the more thou hast wrong'd me.
 My name is Edgar, and thy father's son.
 The Gods are just, and of our pleasant ⁱ vices

^b So the fo's, R. and J.; the rest thing for name.

^c So the qu's; all the rest omit nay.

^d Here J. puts this direction, [gives the letter to Edmund.] But why so? Does it not appear that he had given it to Gonerill, for he bids her read, and not tear it; and afterwards having taken it from her, says, Monster, know'st thou this paper? which shews the paper to be then in Albany's hand.

^e So the qu's; the rest can for shall.

^f So the 2d q.; the 1st most monstrous know'st thou this paper? The fo's and R. most monstrous! O, know'st thou this paper? the rest follow the 2d q.

^g So all before T. who alters have I to I have; followed by the rest.

^h The qu's read if thou bee'st noble.

ⁱ The qu's read vertues for vices.

Make instruments to ^k scourge us :
The dark and vicious place, where thee he got,
Cost him his eyes.

Edm. ^l Thou hast spoken right, 'tis true ;
The wheel is come full ^m circle ; I am here.

Alb. Methought thy very gait did prophesy [To Edgar,
A royal nobleness. I must embrace thee :—
Let sorrow split my heart, ⁿ if ever I
Did hate thee or thy father !

Edg. Worthy prince, ^o I know't.

Alb. Where have you hid yourself ?
How have you known the miseries of your father ?
Edg. By nursing them, my lord. List a brief tale,
And when 'tis told, O that my heart would burst !
The bloody proclamation to escape
That follow'd me so near (O our lives' sweetness !
That ^p with the pain of death, ^q we'd hourly ^r die,
Rather than die at once!) taught me to shift
Into a madman's rags, ^t assume a semblance
^s That very dogs disdain'd ; and in this habit
Met I my father with his bleeding rings,
Their precious ^t stones new lost ; became his guide,

^k So the qu's, W. and J. ; the rest plague for scourge ; H. reads plague and punish us, to complete the verse.

^l The qu's read thou hast spoken truth, the wheel, &c.

^m The qu's read circled.

ⁿ The qu's read if I did ever hate, &c.

^o H. reads I know it well.

^p So the qu's ; all the rest we for with.

^q All editions read would for we'd : but this seems to be a necessary emendation, if we read with for we, with the qu's.

^r All before P. who alters die to bear ; followed by the rest.

^s So all before P. who alters that to the ; followed by the rest.

^t So all before P. who alters stones to gems ; followed by the rest.

Led him, begg'd for him, fav'd him from despair ;
 Never (^u O fault !) reveal'd myself unto him,
 Until some half hour past, when I was arm'd,
 Not sure, though hoping, of this good success,
 I ask'd his blessing, and from first to last
 Told him ^w my pilgrimage : but ^x his flaw'd heart,
 Alack, too weak the conflict to support,
^y Twixt two extremes of passion, joy, and grief,
 Burst smilingly.

Edm. This speech of yours hath mov'd me,
 And shall perchance do good ; but speak you on,
 You look as you had something more to say.

Alb. If there be more, more woful, hold it in,
 For I am almost ready to dissolve,
 Hearing of this.

^y Edg. ^z This would have seem'd a period,
 To such as love not sorrow : but another
 To amplify too much, would make much, more,
 And top extremity.
 Whilst I was big in clamour, came there ^a in a man,
 Who having seen me in my ^b worst estate,

^u The qu's read (O father.)

^w The fo's and R. read our for my,

^x The 4th f. reads this for his.

^y The remaining part of this scene is omitted in all but the qu's, T. W.
 and J.

^z W. reads

*This would have seem'd a period. But such,
 As love to amplify another's sorrow,
 To much, would make much more, and top extremity.*

See Heath in loc.

^a So the qu's; the rest omit in.

^b So the qu's; the rest worser state,

Shunn'd my abhorr'd society ; but ^c then finding
 Who 'twas ^d that so endur'd, with his strong arms
 He fasten'd on my neck ; and bellow'd out,
 As he'd burst heaven ; threw ^e him on my father ;
 ' Told the most piteous tale of Lear and him
 That ever ear receiv'd ; which in recounting,
 His grief grew puissant, and the strings of life
 Began to crack. Twice then the ^g trumpet sounded,
 And there I left him tranc'd.

Alb. But who was this ?

Edg. Kent, sir, the banish'd Kent, who in disguise
 Follow'd his enemy king, and did him service
 Improper for a slave.

S C E N E IX.

^h Enter a Gentleman, with a bloody knife.

Gent. Help, help, ⁱ O help !

^k Alb. What kind of help ? ^l I speak, man.
 What means ^m that bloody knife ?

^c So the qu's ; the rest now for then.

^d So the qu's ; the rest had for that.

^e The qu's read me for him.

^f The 2d q. reads and told the piteous tale, &c.

^g All but J. read trumpets.

^h The qu's read enter one with a bloody knife ; the fo's and all after only enter a Gentleman.

ⁱ So the fo's and R. ; the rest omit O help.

^k So the qu's ; all the rest divide this speech thus,

Edg. What kind of help ?

Alb. Speak, man.

Edg. What means this bloody knife ?

^l The qu's omit Speak, man.

^m So the qu's ; the rest this for that.

Gent.

ACT V. SCENE IX.

137

Gent. 'Tis hot, it smoaks; it came even from the heart
Of——ⁿ O! she's dead.

Alb. ° Who dead? speak man.

Gent. Your lady, sir, your lady; and her sister
By her is^p poisoned; ^q she ^r hath confest it.

Edm. I was contracted to them both: all three
Now marry in an instant^s.

Alb. Produce their bodies, be they alive or dead,
The justice of the heavens that makes us tremble,
Touches us not with pity.

Edg. Here comes Kent, sir.

ⁿ The qu's omit O! she's dead.

^o The 4th f. and all after read who's for who; the qu's read who man, speak.

^p So the 1st q.; the rest poison'd.

^q So the qu's; the rest she confesses it.

^r The 2d q. reads has for hath.

^s So the qu's: the fo's and the rest read ———instant.

Edg. Here comes Kent.

Enter Kent.

Alb. Produce the bodies be they alive or dead.

[Gonerill and Regan's bodies brought out.]

The judgment of the heavens that makes us tremble,

Touches us not with pity.—

O! is this he? [the 2d, 3d, and 4th fo's, R. and P. she for he] the time will not allow

The compliment which very manners urge.

Kent. I am come

To bid my king and master aye good night.

Is he not here?

Alb. Great thing of us forgot!

Speak, Edmund, where's the King? and where's Cordelia?

Seest thou this object, Kent?

Kent. Alack, why thus? &c. &c.

Enter

Enter Kent.

Alb. † O, is this he? The time will not allow
The compliment † which very manners † urge.

Kent. I am come to bid my king and master ay good night.
Is he not here?

Alb. Great † thing of us forgot!
Speak, Edmund, where's the King? and where's Cordelia?
See'st thou this object, Kent?

‡ [The bodies of Gonerill and Regan are brought in.]

Kent. Alack, why thus?

Edm. Yet Edmund was belov'd:
The one the other poison'd for my fake,
And after slew herself.

Alb. Even so. Cover their faces.

Edm. I pant for life; some good I mean to do,
Despight of mine own nature. Quickly send,
‡ (Be brief—) into the castle; for my writ
Is on the life of Lear and ‡ Cordelia:
Nay, send in time.

Alb. Run, run, O run †—

Edg. To whom, my lord? Who has the office? Send Thy token of reprieve.

† The qu's read O 'tis he.

‡ The qu's read that for which.

‡ The qu's and three first fo's read urges.

‡ The 2d q. reads things.

‡ Here H. (who, with all but the qu's, brings in the bodies before) has this direction, Pointing to the dead bodies.

‡ The fo's and R. read (be brief in it) to th' castle, &c.

‡ After and, all but H. insert on.

‡ After run, H. inserts make haste.

Edm.

Edm. Well thought on. Take my sword,
 c The captain——give it the captain.

Edg. Haste thee for thy life. [Exit Messenger.

Edm. He hath commission from thy wife and me
 To hang Cordelia in the prison, and
 To lay the blame upon her own despair,
 d That she foredid herself.

Alb. The Gods defend her! Bear him hence awhile.

[Edmund is borne off.

Enter Lear, with Cordelia dead in his arms.

Lear, e Howl, howl, howl, howl,—O, f you are men of g stone;

Had I your tongues and eyes, I'd use them so,
 That heaven's vault should crack. h O she is gone for ever.
 I know when one is dead, and when one lives;
 She's dead as earth! Lend me a looking-glass,
 If that her breath will mist i and stain the stone,
 Why then she lives.

Kent. Is this the promis'd end?

c So the 1st q.; the rest omit the captain.

d So the 1st q. the fo's, R. and J.; the 2d q. P. and the rest omit that she foredid herself.

e The fo's and R. repeat howl but three times.

f The 1st and 2d fo's read your for you.

g All before P. read stones.

h So the 2d q.; the rest she's gone for ever.

i So the 2d q.; the rest or for and.

Edg.

^k Edg. O image of true honour !

Alb. Fair and chaste !

^v Lear. This feather stirs, she lives ; if it be so,
It is a chance ^l that does redeem all sorrows,
That ever I have felt.

Kent. ^m Ah ! my good master.

[Kneeling.]

Lear. Pr'ythee, away—

Edg. 'Tis noble Kent, your friend.

Lear. A plague upon you ⁿ murd'rous traytors all !
I might have fav'd her ; now she's gone for ever !
Cordelia, Cordelia, stay a little. ^o Ha!—
What is't thou say'st? Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle, and low ; an excellent thing in ^p women.
I kill'd the slave that was a hanging thee.

Gent. 'Tis true, my lords, he did.

Lear. Did I not, fellow ?

^q I have seen the day, with my good biting falchion

^k The qu's, fo's, R. and J. read,

Edg. Or image of that horror.

Alb. Fall and cease.

P. not being able to amend these two speeches, leaves them out, and the rest of the editors after him (besides J.): as they have done other passages. But this is undoubtedly a corruption of something which Shakespeare wrote; and it had been but fair to print it, that every reader might try to restore the original reading. Till a better emendation is proposed, read as in the text,

Edg. O image of true honour !

Alb. Fair and chaste.

Which is a very natural exclamation on the murder of so amiable a creature.

^l So the qu's; the rest which for that.

^m The qu's read a for ab; the rest O.

ⁿ The fo's, R. P. and H. read murth'ers, traytors, &c.

^o The 2d q. omits ha!

^p So the qu's; the rest woman.

^q The 2d q. reads I ha seen the day, that with my biting falchion, &c.

I would

I would have made ^r them skip: I am old now,
And these same crosses spoil me. Who are you?
Mine eyes are ^s none o'th' best.—I'll tell you straight.

Kent. If fortune ^t brag of two she lov'd ^u and hated,
One of them ^w you behold.

Lear. ^x This is a dull ^y light. Are ^z you not Kent?

Kent. The same; your servant Kent.

Where is your servant Caius?

Lear. ^a 'Twas a good fellow, I can tell you that,
He'd strike, and quickly too. He's dead and rotten.

Kent. No, my good lord, I am the very man——

Lear. I'll see that straight.

Kent. That from your ^b first of difference and decay,
Have follow'd your sad steps——

Lear. You are welcome hither.

Kent. ^c Nor no man else. All's cheerless, dark, and ^d deadly.

^r The fo's and R. read him for them.

^s The 2d, 3d, and 4th fo's omit not; the 2d q. reads none; followed by the after-editors.

^t The qu's read bragd.

^u The qu's read or for and.

^w Though all the editions read we behold; it is evident we should read you behold.

^x The qu's, P. T. H. and W. omit this is a dull light.

^y Though all the editions that have this passage read fight for light; the context seems to require we should read light.

^z The qu's read not you.

^a All before T. read,

He's a good fellow, I can tell you [the qu's omit you] that,

He'll strike, and quickly too: he's dead and rotten.

^b The qu's and P. read life for first.

^c P. reads 'twas for nor; followed by H.

^d T. reads dead (as no edition before) followed by W. and J.

Your

Your eldest daughters have ^e fore-done themselves,
And desperately are dead.

Lear. ^f Ay, so I think.

Alb. He knows not what he ^g sees; and vain ^h it is,
That we present us to him.

Edg. Very bootless.

ⁱ Enter a Messenger.

Mess. Edmund is dead, my lord.

Alb. That's but a trifle ^k here.

You lords and noble friends, know our intent;
What comfort to this ^l great decay may come,
Shall be applied. For us, we will resign,
During the life of this old Majesty,
To him our absolute power; ^m to you, your rights, [To Edg.
With boot, and such addition as your ⁿ honours
Have more than merited. All friends shall taste
The wages of their virtue, and all foes
The cup of their deservings. ° O see, see——

Lear. And my poor fool is hang'd. ^p No, no, no life.
Why should a dog, a horse, a rat ^q have life,

^e The 1st q. reads foredoome; the 2d fore-doom'd.

^f The 1st q. reads so think I to; the 2d so I think too.

^g So the qu's; all the rest says for sees. But the sense is, he won't know us when he sees us, therefore 'tis in vain to present ourselves to him.

^h So the qu's; the rest is it.

ⁱ The qu's read Enter Captaine.

^k P. T. H. and W. omit here.

^l The qu's omit great.

^m All before P. read you to your rights.

ⁿ The 1st q. reads honor.

^o H. gives O see, see, to Lear.

^p The qu's have no but once.

^q The 1st q. reads of for have.

And

And thou no breath at all? † O thou wilt come no more,

‡ Never, never, never—

Pray you, undo this button. † Thank you, sir.

Do you see this? Look on her—look—^u her lips—

Look there, look there—

^w [He dies.]

Edg. He faints; † my lord, my lord—

‡ Kent. Break, heart, I pr'ythee, break!

Edg. Look ^z up, my lord.

Kent. Vex not his ghost. O let him pass. He hates him ^a,
That would upon the rack of this ^b tough world
Stretch him out longer.

Edg. † O he is gone indeed.

Kent. The wonder is he hath endur'd so long;
He but usurp'd his life.

Alb. Bear them from hence; our present business
Is ^d general woe. Friends of my soul, you twain

[To Kent and Edgar.]

Rule in this ^e realm, and the ^f gor'd state sustain ^g.

† So the qu's; the rest thou'lt come no more, omitting O.

‡ So the qu's; the rest repeat never five times.

† The qu's conclude this speech, thank you, sir. O, o, o, o, o, omitting do you see this, &c.

^u So the 1st f.; all after insert on before her lips.

^w This direction not in the qu's.

^z The 4th f. and all after have my lord but once.

‡ The qu's give this speech to Lear.

^a The three last fo's, R. and P. read to for up.

^b The 2d q. reads much after him.

^c So all before P. who alters tough to rough; followed by the rest.

^d All but the qu's omit O.

^e The qu's insert to after is.

^f The qu's read kingdom for realm.

^g The 2d q. reads good for gor'd; the 1st goard.

^h The play would end best here.

Kent. I have a journey, sir, shortly to gō;
My master ^h calls, and I must not say, no ⁱ.

^k Alb. The weight of this sad time we must obey,
Speak what we feel, not what we ought to say.

^l The oldest ^m hath born most; we that are young,
Shall never see so much, nor live so long.

ⁿ [Exeunt with a dead march.]

^h So the qu's; the rest calls me, I must not, &c.

ⁱ Here all but the qu's and H. make Kent die. But this direction is justly left out; for Kent only declines the share in the government offered him by Albany, on account of his age: how unexpectedly and awkwardly would he die, after saying only, he had a journey shortly to go, and without bidding farewel, or discovering any symptoms of death.

^k The fo's and R. give this speech to Edgar.

^l The two last lines, as they stand, are silly and false; and are only inserted that any one may alter them for the better if he can. H. has not made them a jot better by the following alteration,

The oldest hath born most; we that are young Shall never see so much, live e'er so long.

^m The qu's read have for hath.

ⁿ This direction is not in the qu's.
