

Bodleian Libraries

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

This book is part of the collection held by the Bodleian Libraries and scanned by Google, Inc. for the Google Books Library Project.

For more information see:

<http://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/dbooks>

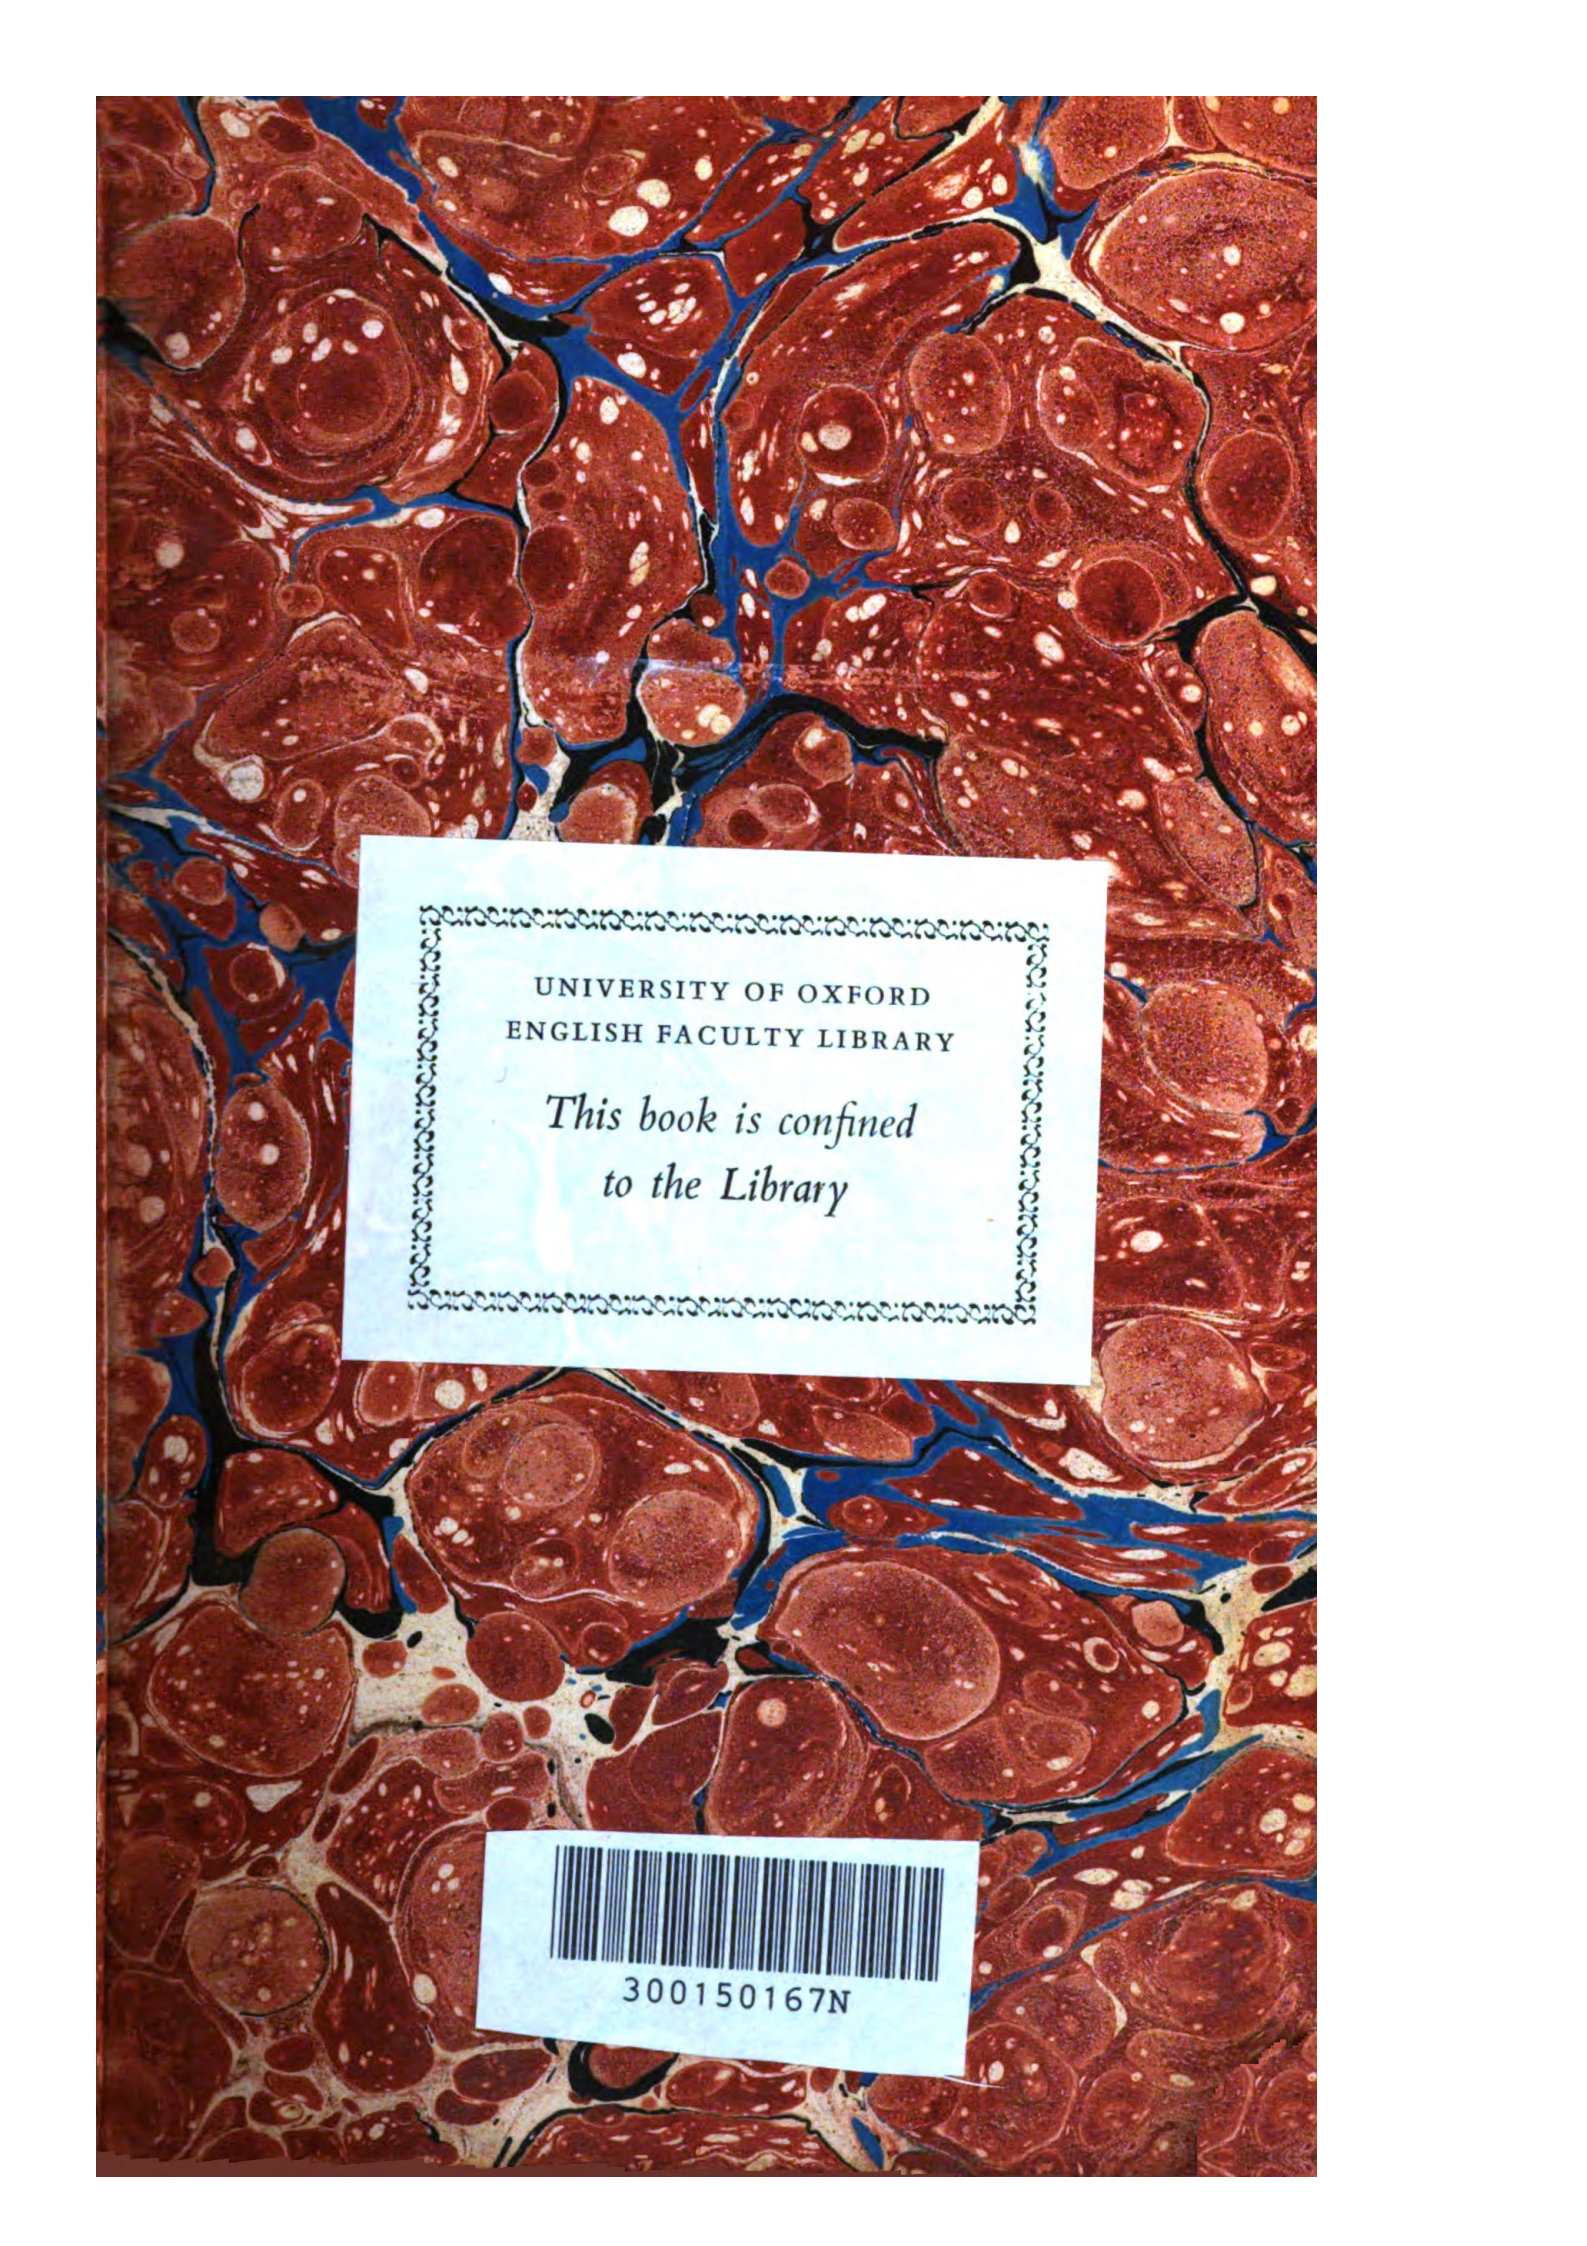

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 2.0 UK: England & Wales (CC BY-NC-SA 2.0) licence.

ENGLISH LIBRARY
UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

E. H. W. MEYERSTEIN BEQUEST TO THE
UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

*This book was acquired for the MEYERSTEIN COLLECTION
OF THE
ENGLISH FACULTY
LIBRARY
with the help of a grant made under this bequest*

UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD
ENGLISH FACULTY LIBRARY

This book is confined to the Library

300150167N

32441

XL64

THE
W O R K S
OF
Alexander Pope, Esq.

A NEW EDITION.

IN TEN VOLUMES.

==
VOL. V.
==

Strahan and Prellon,
New-Street Square, London.

THE
WORKS
OF
Alexander Pope, Esq.
IN VERSE AND PROSE.

CONTAINING
THE PRINCIPAL NOTES OF
DRS. WARBURTON AND WARTON:
ILLUSTRATIONS, AND CRITICAL AND EXPLANATORY REMARKS,
By JOHNSON, WAKEFIELD, A. CHALMERS, F.S.A.
AND OTHERS.

TO WHICH ARE ADDED, NOW FIRST PUBLISHED,
SOME ORIGINAL LETTERS, WITH ADDITIONAL OBSERVATIONS, AND MEMOIRS OF THE LIFE OF THE AUTHOR.

By the Rev. WILLIAM LISLE BOWLES, A. M.
PREBENDARY OF SALISBURY, AND
CHAPLAIN TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.

IN TEN VOLUMES.

VOL. V.

LONDON:

Printed for J. Johnson, J. Nichols and Son, R. Baldwin, F. and C. Rivington,
W. Otridge and Son, W. J. and J. Richardson, R. Faulder and Son,
T. Payne, Wilkie and Robinson, Scatcherd and Letterman, J. Walker, Vernor Hood and Sharpe, R. Lea, J. White, J. Nunn, Lackington Allen and Co., J. Stockdale, Cuthell and Martin, Longman Hurst Rees and Orme, Cadell and Davies, Pote and Williams, Ogilvie and Son, E. Jeffery, J. Booker, J. and A. Arch, Blacks and Parry, S. Bagster, J. Mawman, and J. Asperne.

1806.

CONTENTS
OF THE
FIFTH VOLUME.

[The Articles marked thus † were not inserted in Dr. Warburton's Edition.]

	Page
A LETTER to the PUBLISHER, occasioned by the first correct Edition of the DUNCIAD -	3
MARTINUS SCRIBLERUS's Prolegomena and Illustrations to the DUNCIAD, with the Hypercritics of ARISTARCHUS - - - -	17
The DUNCIAD, in FOUR BOOKS.
Book I. - - - -	83
Book II. - - - -	139
Book III. - - - -	203
Book IV. - - - -	255

APPENDIX.

I. A Preface prefixed to the five first imperfect Editions of the DUNCIAD - -	341
II. A List of Books, Papers, and Verses in which our Author was abused - - -	347
III. Advertisement to the first Edition with NOTES, in quarto - - - -	355
IV. Adver-

	Page
IV. Advertifement to the first Edition of the FOURTH BOOK when printed feperately -	358
V. Advertifement to the complete Edition of 1743	360
VI. Advertifement printed in the Journals, 1730	361
VII. A Parallel of the Characters of Mr. DRYDEN and Mr. POPE - - - -	362

† The DUNCIAD, as it flood in the quarto Edition, 1728.

† Book I. - - - -	379
† Book II. - - - -	391
† Book III. - - - -	409

THE
D U N C I A D,
IN FOUR BOOKS;
WITH THE
PROLEGOMENA OF SCRIBLERUS,
THE HYPERCRITICS OF ARISTARCHUS,
AND
NOTES VARIORUM.

VOL. V.

B

A LETTER TO THE PUBLISHER,

OCCASIONED BY

THE FIRST^a CORRECT EDITION

OF THE

D U N C I A D.

IT is with pleasure I hear, that you have procured a correct copy of the DUNCIAD, which the many surreptitious ones have rendered so necessary; and it is yet with more, that I am informed it will be attended with a COMMENTARY: A work so requisite, that I cannot think the Author himself would have omitted it, had he approved of the first appearance of this Poem.

Such Notes as have occurred to me I herewith send you: You will oblige me by inserting them amongst those which are, or will be, transmitted to you by others; since not only the Author's friends,
but

^a The Dunciad was published first in Dublin, with a humorous frontispiece, representing an Ass laden with Books. This was succeeded by another edition, also printed in Dublin, with an Owl, &c. Its being published in Dublin was probably a contrivance between Swift and the Author. From a letter to Swift it appears, that Pope was much interested in having as copious an illustration as possible, notwithstanding he affects to say, or Mr. Cleveland for him, that "the Dunciad was an Orphan, sent into the world without care by its parent." but even strangers, appear engaged by humanity, to take some care of an Orphan of so much genius and spirit, which its parent seems to have abandoned from the very beginning, and suffered to step into the world naked, unguarded, and unattended.

It was upon reading some of the abusive papers lately published, that my great regard to a Person, whose Friendship I esteem as one of the chief honours of my life, and a much greater respect to Truth, than to him or any man living, engaged me in enquiries, of which the enclosed Notes are the fruit.

I perceived that most of these Authors had been (doubtless very wisely) the first aggressors. They had tried, till they were weary, what was to be got by railing at each other: Nobody was either concerned or surpris'd if this or that scribler was proved a dunce: But every one was curious to read what could be said to prove Mr. Pope one, and was ready to pay something for such a discovery: A stratagem, which, would they fairly own, it might not only reconcile them to me, but screen them from the resentment of their lawful Superiors, whom they daily abuse, only (as I charitably hope) to get that by them, which they cannot get from them.

I found this was not all: Ill success in that had transported them to Personal abuse^b, either of himself, or

^b Had Pope never been guilty of Personal abuse in the first place, and often of those who had never written any thing against him?

or (what I think he could less forgive) of his Friends. They had called Men of virtue and honour bad Men, long before he had either leisure or inclination to call them bad Writers: And some had been such old offenders, that he had quite forgotten their persons as well as their slanders, till they were pleased to revive them.

Now what had Mr. POPE done before, to incense them? He had published those works which are in the hands of every body, in which not the least mention is made of any of them. And what has he done since? He has laughed, and written the DUNCIAD. What has that said of them? A very serious truth, which the public had said before, that they were dull: And what it had no sooner said, but they themselves were at great pains to procure, or even purchase room in the prints, to testify under their hands to the truth of it.

I should still have been silent, if either I had seen any inclination in my friend to be serious with such accusers, or if they had only meddled with his Writings; since whoever publishes, puts himself on his

^c What, indeed? Had he not done every thing to incense them? Were they incensed against Swift, Gay, or any other writer of the time? Could all the accumulation of envy, spleen, and malice, be heaped upon Pope, unless many provocations had been given by himself? Was he to suppose, that he, from his transcendental morals, and genius, was to have an exclusive right to abuse whom he chose, and to make an outrage when what he measured to others was measured to him again?

his trial by his Country. But when his Moral character was attacked, and in a manner from which neither truth nor virtue can secure the most innocent ; in a manner, which, though it annihilates the credit of the accusation with the just and impartial, yet aggravates very much the guilt of the accusers ; I mean by Authors without names ; then I thought, since the danger was common to all, the concern ought to be so ; and that it was an act of justice to detect the Authors, not only of this account, but as many of them are the same who for several years past have made free with the greatest names^d in Church and State, exposed to the world the private misfortunes of Families, abused all, even to Women, and whose prostituted papers^e (for one or other Party, in the unhappy divisions of their Country) have insulted the Fallen, the Friendless, the Exil'd, and the Dead.

Besides this, which I take to be a public concern, I have already confessed I had a private one. I am one of that number, who have long loved and esteemed ^d By the greatest names in Church and State, Pope means his own friends and party, Atterbury, Bolingbroke, and all who were in opposition to Government, whether Jacobites or Dissenters, who equally called themselves Patriots.

^e All writers on the side of Sir R. Walpole, in opposition to the Craftsman, by Bolingbroke. The Fallen, the Friendless, the Exiled, and the Dead, are the same as he had before enumerated in his Poems :

“ Abuse on all he lov'd, or lov'd him, shed ;
A friend in exile, or a parent dead.”

The fallen was most probably Lord Oxford — the friendless, Gay — the exiled, Atterbury or Bolingbroke — and the dead, his father.

esteemed Mr. POPE; and had often declared it was not his capacity or writings^f (which we ever thought the least valuable part of his character) but the honest, open, and beneficent man, that we most esteemed, and loved in him. Now, if what these people say were believed, I must appear to all my friends either a fool, or a knave; either imposed on myself, or imposing on them; so that I am as much interested in the confutation of these calumnies, as he is himself.

I am no author, and consequently not to be suspected either of jealousy or resentment against any of the men, of whom scarce one is known to me by sight; and as for their Writings, I have fought them (on this one occasion) in vain, in the closets and libraries of all my acquaintance. I had still been in the dark, if a Gentleman had not procured me (I suppose from some of themselves, for they are generally much more dangerous friends than enemies) the passages I send you. I solemnly protest I have added nothing to the malice or absurdity of them; which it behoves me to declare, since the vouchers themselves will be so soon and so irrecoverably lost.

You

^f This is the general cant of Pope, in his Letters, which made the "humble Allen" believe, that so wise, so disinterested, so candid, so benevolent, and so injured a creature never existed. As this proëmium (there is every reason to think) came from Pope himself, one might be tempted to exclaim (as on other occasions where he vaunts his own virtues), with the character in Hamlet:

"Methinks the Lady professes too much!"

You may in some measure prevent it, by preserving at least their titles^g, and discovering (as far as you can depend on the truth of your information) the names of the concealed authors.

The first objection I have heard made to the Poem is, that the persons are too obscure for satire. The persons themselves, rather than allow the objection, would forgive the satire; and if one could be tempted to afford it a serious answer^h, were not all assassins, popular insurrections, the insolence of the rabble without doors, and of domestics within, most wrongfully chastised, if the Meanness of offenders indemnified them from punishment? On the contrary, Obscurity renders them more dangerous, as less thought of: Law can pronounce judgment only on open facts; Morality alone can pass censure on intentions of mischief; so that for secret calumny, or the arrow flying in the dark, there is no public punishment left, but what a good Writer inflicts.

The next objection is, that these sort of authors are *poor*ⁱ. That might be pleaded as an excuse at
the

^g See a List of them printed in the Appendix.

^h If this is a serious answer, it is a very unconclusive one. What are the offences against a private individual, heightened and exaggerated by his own self-love and self-importance, to those which, on account of the community, demand public punishment?

ⁱ It was objected to Pope, and justly, that in some instances he had made Poverty alone the subject of his satire:

“Should Dennis rave in furious pet,
I never answer’d—I was not in debt.”

Such a mode of abuse came with a worse grace from a man, who,
by

the Old Bailey, for leſſer crimes than Defamation, (for 'tis the caſe of almoſt all who are tried there,) but ſure it can be none here : For who will pretend that the robbing another of his Reputation, ſupplies the want of it in himſelf? I queſtion not but ſuch authors are poor, and heartily wiſh the objection were removed by any honeſt livelihood. But Poverty is here the accident, not the ſubject : He who deſcribes Malice and Villany to be pale and meagre, expreſſes not the leaſt anger againſt Paleneſs or Leanneſs, but againſt Malice and Villany. The Apothecary in Romeo and Juliet is poor ; but is he therefore juſtified in vending poiſon ? Not but Poverty itſelf becomes a juſt ſubject of ſatire, when it is the conſequence of vice, prodigality, or neglect of one's lawful calling ; for then it increaſes the public burden, fills the ſtreets and highways with Robbers, and the garrets with Clippers, Coiners, and Weekly Journaliſts.

But admitting that two or three of theſe offend leſs in their morals, than in their writings ; muſt Poverty make nonſenſe ſacred ? If ſo, the fame of bad authors would be much better conſulted than that of all the good ones in the world ; and not one of an hundred had ever been called by his right name.

They

by his poetical ſtudies, acquired affluence and ſplendor : and this appeared the more offensive, when it was conſidered that the abuſe was directed againſt a man, whoſe learning, talents, and pleaſant manners, have been acknowledged by Dryden and Congreve.

They mistake the whole matter : It is not charity to encourage them in the way they follow, but to get them out of it ; for men are not bunglers because they are poor, but they are poor because they are bunglers.

Is it not pleasant enough, to hear our authors crying out on the one hand, as if their persons and characters were too sacred for Satire ; and the public objecting on the other, that they are too mean even for Ridicule ? But whether Bread or Fame be their end, it must be allowed, our author, by and in this Poem, has mercifully given them a little of both.

There are two or three, who by their rank and fortune have no benefit from the former objections, supposing them good, and these I was sorry to see in such company. But if, without any provocation^k, two or three gentlemen will fall upon one, in an affair wherein his interest and reputation are equally embarked ; they cannot certainly, after they have been content to print themselves his enemies, complain of being put into the number of them.

Others, I am told, pretend to have been once his Friends. Surely they are their enemies who say so, since nothing can be more odious than to treat a friend as they have done. But of this I cannot persuade myself, when I consider the constant and eternal aversion of all bad Writers to a good one.

Such

^k This was not true in the case of Aaron Hill and the Duke of Chandos, before whom, Dr. Johnson observes, "Pope was mean in his retreat."

Such as claim a merit from being his Admirers, I would gladly ask, if it lays him under a personal obligation? At that rate he would be the most obliged humble servant in the world. I dare swear for these in particular, he never desired them to be his admirers, nor promised in return to be theirs: That had truly been a sign he was of their acquaintance; but would not the malicious world have suspected such an approbation of some motive worse than ignorance, in the author of the Essay on Criticism? Be it as it will, the reasons of their Admiration and of his Contempt are equally subsisting, for his works and theirs are the very same that they were.

One, therefore, of their assertions I believe may be true, "That he has a contempt for their writings." And there is another, which would probably be sooner allowed by himself than by any good judge beside, "That his own have found too much success with the public." But as it cannot consist with his modesty to claim this as a justice, it lies not on him, but entirely on the public, to defend its own judgment.

There remains what in my opinion might seem a better plea for these people, than any they have made use of. If Obscurity or Poverty were to exempt a man from satire, much more should Folly or Dulness, which are still more involuntary; nay, as much so as personal Deformity. But even this will not help them: Deformity becomes an object of Ridicule when a man sets up for being handsome; and so must Dulness when he sets up for a Wit. They are not ridiculed because Ridicule in itself is, or ought to be, a pleasure; but because it is just to undeceive and vindicate the honest and unpretending part of mankind from imposition, because particular interest ought to yield to general, and a great number who are not naturally Fools, ought never to be made so, in complaisance to those who are. Accordingly we find that in all ages, all vain pretenders, were they ever so poor, or ever so dull, have been constantly the topics of the most candid satirists, from the Codrus of JUVENAL to the Damon of BOILEAU.

a man

Having mentioned BOILEAU, the greatest Poet and most judicious Critic of his age and country, admirable for his talents, and yet perhaps more admirable for his Judgment in the proper application of them; I cannot help remarking the resemblance betwixt him and our author, in Qualities, Fame, and Fortune; in the distinctions shewn them by their Superiors, in the general esteem of their Equals, and in their extended reputation amongst Foreigners; in the latter of which ours has met with the better fate, as he has had for his Translators persons of the most eminent rank and abilities in their respective nations¹. But the resemblance

¹ Essay on Criticism, in French verse, by [General Hamilton; the same, in verse also, by Monsieur Roboton, Counsellor and Privy Secretary to King George I.; after by the Abbé Reynel, in verse, with notes. Rape of the Lock, in French, by the resemblance holds in nothing more, than in their being equally abused by the ignorant pretenders to poetry of their times ; of which not the least memory will remain but in their own Writings, and in the Notes made upon them. What BOILEAU has done in almost all his poems, our author has only in this : I dare answer for him he will do it in no more ; and on this principle, of attacking few but who had slandered him, he could not have done it at all, had he been confined from censuring obscure and worthless persons, for scarce any others were his enemies. However, as the parity is so remarkable, I hope it will continue to the last ; and if ever he should give us an edition of this Poem himself, I may see some of them treated as gently, on their repentance or better merit, as Perrault or Quinault were at last by BOILEAU.
Princes

In one point I must be allowed to think the character of our English Poet the more amiable. He has not been a follower of Fortune or Success ; he has lived with the Great without flattery ; been a friend to Men in power, without pensions, from whom, as he

Princess of Conti, Paris 1728, and in Italian verse, by the Abbé Conti, a noble Venetian ; and by the Marquis Rangoni, Envoy Extraordinary from Modena to King George II. Others of his works by Salvini of Florence, &c. His Essays and Dissertations on Homer, several times translated into French. Essay on Man, by the Abbé Reynel, in verse ; by Monsieur Silhouette, in prose, 1737 ; and since by others in French, Italian, and Latin.

WARBURTON.

he asked, so he received, no favour, but what was done him in his Friends. As his Satires were the more just for being delayed, so were his Panegyrics; bestowed only on such persons as he had familiarly known, only for such virtues as he had long observed in them, and only in such times as others cease to praise, if not begin to calumniate them, I mean when out of power, or out of fashion^m. A satire, therefore, on writers so notorious for the contrary practice, became no man so well as himself; as none, it is plain, was so little in their friendships, or so much in that of those whom they had most abused, namely, the Greatest and Best of all Parties. Let me add a further reason, that, though engaged in their friendships, he never espoused their animosities; and can almost singly challenge this honour, not to have written a line of any man, which, through Guilt, through Shame, or through Fear, through variety of Fortune, or change of Interests, he was ever unwilling to own.

I shall conclude with remarking what a pleasure it must be to every reader of Humanity, to see all along that our Author in his very laughter is not indulging his own ill-nature, but only punishing that of others.

As

^m As Mr. Wycherley, at the time the Town declaimed against his book of Poems; Mr. Walsb, after his death; Sir William Trumball, when he resigned the office of Secretary of State; Lord Bolingbroke, at his leaving England, after the Queen's death; Lord Oxford, in his last decline of life; Mr. Secretary Craggs, at the end of the South-Sea year, and after his death: Others only in Epitaphs.

WARBURTON.

As to his Poem, those alone are capable of doing it justice, who, to use the words of a great writer, know how hard it is (with regard both to his subject and his manner) VETUSTIS DARE NOVITATEM, OBSOLETIS NITOREM, OBSCURIS LUCEM, FASTIDITIS GRATIAM.

I am

Your most humble servant,

St. James's,
Dec. 22, 1728.

WILLIAM CLELANDⁿ.

ⁿ This Gentleman was of Scotland, and bred at the University of Utrecht, with the Earl of Mar. He served in Spain under Earl Rivers. After the Peace, he was made one of the Commissioners of the Customs in Scotland, and then of Taxes in England; in which, having shewn himself for twenty years diligent, punctual, and incorruptible, though without any other assistance of Fortune, he was suddenly displaced by the Minister, in the sixty-eighth year of his age; and died two months after, in 1741. He was a person of Universal Learning, and an enlarged Conversation; no man had a warmer heart for his Friend, or a sincerer attachment to the Constitution of his Country.—And yet, for all this, the public would never believe him to be the Author of this Letter.

POPE, WARBURTON.

Dr. Warton says, "Many reasons have been alleged to prove it was written by our Author himself." I believe there is now no doubt of the circumstance; it is of a piece with Pope's other modes of describing his own virtues: but, if supposed to be written by Pope, the self-love and assumed virtues are disgusting; if written by another, the arguments are neither well-founded, nor the conclusions just.

MARTINUS SCRIBLERUS

His Prolegomena and Illustrations

TO THE

D U N C I A D :

WITH THE

HYPHER-CRITICS OF ARISTARCHUS.

VOL. V.

C

Dennis, Remarks on Pr. Arthur.

I CANNOT but think it the most reasonable thing in the world, to distinguish good writers, by discouraging the bad. Nor is it an ill-natured thing, in relation even to the very persons upon whom the reflections are made. It is true, it may deprive them, a little the sooner, of a short profit and a transitory reputation; but then it may have a good effect, and oblige them (before it be too late) to decline that for which they are so very unfit, and to have recourse to something in which they may be more successful.

Character of Mr. P. 1716.

THE Persons whom Boileau has attacked in his writings, have been for the most part Authors, and most of those Authors, Poets: And the censures he hath passed upon them have been confirmed by all Europe.

Gildon, Pref. to his New Rehearsal.

IT is the common cry of the Poetafters of the town, and their fautors, that it is an ill-natured thing to expose the Pretenders to wit and poetry. The Judges and Magistrates may with full as good reason be reproached with Ill-nature for putting the laws in execution against a thief or impostor.—The same will hold in the republic of Letters, if the Critics and Judges will let every ignorant pretender to scribbling pass on the world.

Theobald, Lett. to Mist, June 22, 1728.

ATTACKS may be levelled, either against Failures in Genius, or against the Pretensions of writing without one.

Concanen, Ded. to the Author of the Dunciad.

A Satire upon Dullness is a thing that has been used and allowed in all ages.

Out of thine own Mouth will I judge thee, wicked Scribbler.

TESTIMONIES OF AUTHORS CONCERNING
 OUR POET AND HIS WORKS.

M. SCRIBLERUS Lectori S.

BEFORE we present thee with our exertions on this most delectable Poem (drawn from the many volumes of our Adversaria on modern Authors) we shall here, according to the laudable usage of editors, collect the various judgments of the learned concerning our Poet: Various indeed, not only of different authors, but of the same author at different seasons. Nor shall we gather only the Testimonies of such eminent Wits, as would of course descend to posterity, and consequently be read without our collection; but we shall likewise with incredible labour seek out for divers others, which, but for this our diligence, could never at the distance of a few months appear to the eye of the most curious. Hereby thou may'st not only receive the delectation of variety, but also arrive at a more certain judgment, by a grave and circumspect comparison of the witnesses with each other, or of each with himself. Hence also thou wilt be enabled to draw reflections, not only of a critical, but a moral nature, by being let into many particulars of the person as well as genius, and of the fortune as well as merit, of our Author : In which if I relate some things of little concern peradventure to thee, and some of as little even to him ; I entreat thee to consider how minutely all true critics and commentators are wont to insist upon such, and how material they seem to themselves, if to none other. Forgive me, gentle reader, if (following learned example) I ever and anon become tedious : allow me to take the same pains to find whether my author were good or bad, well or ill-natured, modest or arrogant ; as another, whether his author was fair or brown, short or tall, or whether he wore a coat or a cassock.

We purposed to begin with his Life, Parentage, and Education : But as to these, even his contemporaries do exceedingly differ. One saith^a, he was educated at home ; another^b, that he was bred at St. Omer's by Jesuits ; a third^c, not at St. Omer's, but at Oxford ; a fourth^d, that he had no university education at all. Those who allow him to be bred at home, differ as much concerning his Tutor : One saith^e, he was kept by his father on purpose ; a second^f, that he was an itinerant priest ; a third^g, that

^a Giles Jacob's Lives of Poets, vol. ii. in his Life.

^b Dennis's Reflections on the Essay on Criticism, p. 4.

^c Dunciad dissected, p. 4.

^d Guardian, N^o 4c.

^e Jacob's Lives, &c. vol. ii.

^f Dunciad dissected, p. 4.

^g Farmer P. and his son.

that he was a parson; one^b calleth him a fecular clergyman of the church of Rome; anotherⁱ, a monk. As little do they agree about his father, whom one^k fuppofeth, like the father of Hefiod, a tradesman or merchant; another^l, a husbandman; another^m, a hatterⁿ, &c. Nor has an author been wanting to give our Poet fuch a father, as Apuleius hath to Plato, Jamblichus to Pythagoras, and divers to Homer, namely a Demon: For thus Mr. Gildon^o: “ Certain it is, that his original is not from Adam, but the Devil; and that he wanted nothing but horns and tail to be the exact refemblance of his infernal Father.” Finding therefore fuch contrariety of Opinions, and (whatever be ours of this fort of generation) not being fond to enter into controverfy, we fhall defer writing the Life of our Poet, till authors can determine among themfelves what parents or education he had, or whether he had any education or parents at all.

Proceed

^b Dunciad diffefted.

ⁱ Characters of the times, p. 45.

^k Female Dunciad, p. ult.

^l Dunciad diffefted.

^m Roome, Paraphrafe on the ivth of Genesis, printed 1729.

ⁿ His father was a hatter.

^o Character of Mr. P. and his Writings, in a Letter to a Friend, printed for S. Popping, 1716, p. 10. Curl, in his Key to the Dunciad (firft edit. faid to be printed for A. Dodd), in the 10th page, declared Gildon to be author of that libel; though in the fubfequent editions of his Key he left out this affertion, and affirmed (in the Curliad, p. 4. and 8.) that it was written by Dennis only.

WARBURTON.

Proceed we to what is more certain, his Works, though not less uncertain the judgments concerning them; beginning with his Essay on Criticism, of which hear first the most ancient of Critics,

Mr. JOHN DENNIS^p.

“ His precepts are false or trivial, or both; his thoughts are crude and abortive, his expressions absurd, his numbers harsh and unmusical, his rhymes trivial and common:—instead of majesty, we have something that is very mean; instead of gravity, something that is very boyish; and instead of perspicuity and lucid order, we have but too often obscurity and confusion.” And in another place: “ What rare numbers are here! Would not one swear that this youngster had espoused some antiquated muse, who had sued out a divorce from some superannuated finner, upon account of impotence, and who being poxed by her former spouse, has got the gout in her decrepid age, which makes her hobble so damnably^q.”

No less peremptory is the censure of our hypercritical Historian,

Mr. OLDMIXON^r.

“ I dare

^p Dennis spoke evidently under the impression of spleen and disappointment.

^q Reflections critical and satirical on a Rhapsody, called an Essay on Criticism. Printed for Bernard Lintot, octavo.

^r Oldmixon's opinion is not, perhaps, very wide of the truth: he gave this opinion fairly, and without personality. Pope might as well

“ I dare not say any thing of the Essay on Criticism in verse ; but if any more curious reader has discovered in it something new which is not in Dryden’s prefaces, dedications, and his Essay on Dramatic Poetry, not to mention the French critics, I should be very glad to have the benefit of the discovery :”

He is followed (as in fame, so in judgment) by the modest and simple-minded

Mr. LEONARD WELSTED ;

Who, out of great respect to our Poet not naming him, doth yet glance at his Essay, together with the Duke of Buckingham’s, and the Criticisms of Dryden, and of Horace, which he more openly taxeth :
 “ As to the numerous treatises, essays, arts, &c. both in verse and prose, that have been written by the moderns on this ground-work, they do but hackney the same thoughts over again, making them still more trite. Most of their pieces are nothing but a pert, insipid heap of common-place. Horace has even in his Art of Poetry thrown out several things which plainly shew he thought an Art of Poetry was of no use, even while he was writing one.”

To all which great Authorities, we can only oppose that of well have said, “ If you will allow me to be a great Poet, very well ; if not, I will hold you up to that scorn which, as a more successful writer, I am able to do.”

Mr.

¹ Essay on Criticism in prose, octavo, 1728, by the author of The Critical History of England.

² Preface to his Poems, p. 18. 53.

Mr. ADDISON.

“ The Art of Criticism (saith he) which was published some months since, is a master-piece in its kind. The observations follow one another, like those in Horace's Art of Poetry, without that methodical regularity which would have been requisite in a prose writer. They are some of them uncommon, but such as the reader must assent to, when he sees them explained with that ease and perspicuity in which they are delivered. As for those which are the most known and the most received, they are placed in so beautiful a light, and illustrated with such apt allusions, that they have in them all the graces of novelty; and make the reader, who was before acquainted with them, still more convinced of their truth and solidity. And here give me leave to mention what Monsieur Boileau has so well enlarged upon in the preface to his works: That wit and fine writing doth not consist so much in advancing things that are new, as in giving things that are known an agreeable turn. It is impossible for us who live in the latter ages of the world, to make observations in criticism, morality, or any art or science, which have not been touched upon by others; we have little else left us, but to represent the common sense of mankind in more strong, more beautiful, or more uncommon lights. If a reader examines examines Horace's Art of Poetry, he will find but few precepts in it which he may not meet with in Aristotle, and which were not commonly known by all the Poets of the Augustan age. His way of expressing and applying them, not his invention of them, is what we are chiefly to admire.

“ Spectator, N^o 253.

“ Longinus, in his reflections, has given us the same kind of sublime, which he observes in the several passages that occasioned them: I cannot but take notice that our English author has after the same manner exemplified several of the precepts in the very precepts themselves.” He then produces some instances of particular beauty in the numbers, and concludes with saying, that “ there are three poems in our tongue of the same nature, and each a master-piece in its kind; The Essay on Translated Verse; the Essay on the Art of Poetry; and the Essay on Criticism.”

Of Windsor Forest, positive is the judgment of the affirmative

Mr. JOHN DENNIS.

“ * That it is a wretched rhapsody, impudently writ in emulation of the Cooper's Hill of Sir John Denham: The author of it is obscure, is ambiguous, is affected, is temerarious, is barbarous.”

But

* Letter to B. B. at the end of the Remarks on Pope's Homer, 1717.

But the author of the Dispensary, in the preface to his poem of Claremont ^x, differs from this opinion; “ Those who have seen these two excellent poems of Cooper’s Hill, and Windfor Forest, the One written by Sir John Denham, the other by Mr. Pope, will shew a great deal of candour if they approve of this.”

Dr. GARTH,

Of the Epistle of Eloifa, we are told by the obscure writer of a poem called Sawney, “ That because Prior’s Henry and Emma charmed the finest tastes, our author writ his Eloise in opposition to it; but forgot innocence and virtue: if you take away her tender thoughts, and her fierce desires, all the rest is of no value.” In which, methinks, his judgment resembles that of a French taylor on a villa and gardens by the Thames: “ All this is very fine, but take away the river, and it is good for nothing ^y.”

But very contrary hereunto was the opinion of himself, saying in his Alma ^z,

Mr. PRIOR

“ O Abe-

^x Printed 1728, p. 12.

^y It is extraordinary, that the author of so exquisite a Poem as the Epistle of Eloise to Abelard, should have thought one moment of what was said in a Poem, called “ Sawney.”

^z Alma, Cant. ii.

“ O Abelard!^a ill-fated youth,
 Thy tale will justify this truth.
 But well I weet, thy cruel wrong
 Adorns a nobler Poet's fong :
 Dan Pope, for thy misfortune griev'd,
 With kind concern and skill has weav'd
 A filken web ; and ne'er shall fade
 Its colours : gentiy has he laid
 The mantle o'er thy sad distrefs,
 And Venus shall the texture blefs,” &c.

Come we now to his translation of the Iliad, celebrated by numerous pens, yet shall it suffice to mention the indefatigable

Sir RICHARD BLACKMORE, Kt.

Who (though otherwise a severe censurer of our author) yet styleth this a “ laudable translation^b.”

That ready writer

Mr. OLDMIXON,

in his forementioned essay, frequently commends the fame. And the painful

Mr. LEWIS THEOBALD

thus extolls it^c: “ The spirit of Homer breathes all through this translation.—I am in doubt, whether I should most admire the justness to the original,
 or

^a Prior's is a beautiful, delicate, and poetical compliment. Pope never returned it in kind, or by the least notice, I believe, on any occasion.

^b In his Essays, Vol. i. printed for E. Curl.

^c Censor, Vol. ii. N^o 33.

or the force and beauty of the language, or the founding variety of the numbers : But when I find all these meet, it puts me in mind of what the Poet says of one of his heroes, That he alone raised and flung with ease a weighty stone, that two common men could not lift from the ground ; just so, one single person has performed in this translation, what I once despaired to have seen done by the force of several masterly hands." Indeed the same gentleman appears to have changed his sentiment in his Essay on the Art of sinking in Reputation, (printed in Mist's Journal, March 30, 1728), where he says thus : " In order to sink in Reputation, let him take it into his head to descend into Homer (let the world wonder, as it will, how the devil he got there) and pretend to do him into English, so his version denote his neglect of the manner how." Strange variation ! We are told in

MIST'S JOURNAL, June 8.

" That this translation of the Iliad was not in all respects conformable to the fine taste of his friend Mr. Addison ; inasmuch that he employed a younger muse, in an undertaking of this kind, which he supervised himself." Whether Mr. Addison did find it conformable to his taste, or not, best appears from his own testimony the year following its publication, in these words :

Mr.

Mr. ADDISON^d, Freeholder, N^o 40.

“ When I consider myself as a British freeholder, I am in a particular manner pleased with the labours of those who have improved our language with the translations of old Greek and Latin authors.—We have already most of their Historians in our own tongue, and what is more for the honour of our language, it has been taught to express with elegance the greatest of their poets in each nation. The illiterate among our own countrymen may learn to judge from Dryden’s Virgil of the most perfect epic performance. And those parts of Homer which have been published already by Mr. Pope, give us reason to think that the Iliad will appear in English with as little disadvantage to that immortal poem.”

As to the rest, there is a slight mistake, for this younger muse was an elder : Nor was the gentleman (who is a friend of our author) employed by Mr. Addison to translate it after him, since he saith himself that he did it before^e. Contrariwise that Mr. Addison engaged our author in this work appeareth by declaration thereof in the preface to the Iliad, printed some time before his death, and by his own letters

^d Could the author of this unequivocal testimony to the merit of Pope’s translation, be the person who employed another person to write in professed opposition? See Note to Vol. IV.

^e Vid. pref. to Mr. Tickel’s translation of the first book of the Iliad, 4to.

letters of October 26, and November 2, 1713. Where he declares it is his opinion, that no other person was equal to it.

Next comes his Shakespear on the stage: "Let him (quoth one, whom I take to be Mr. Theobald, Mist's Journal, June 8, 1728) publish such an author as he has least studied, and forget to discharge even the dull duty of an editor. In this project let him lend the bookseller his name (for a competent sum of money) to promote the credit of an exorbitant subscription." Gentle reader, be pleased to cast thine eye on the proposal below quoted, and on what follows (some months after the former assertion) in the same Journalist of June 8: "The bookseller proposed the book by subscription, and raised some thousands of pounds for the same: I believe the gentleman did not share in the profits of this extravagant subscription.

"After the Iliad, he undertook (faith

MIST'S JOURNAL, June 8, 1728)

the sequel of that work, the Odyssy; and having secured the success by a numerous subscription, he employed some underlings to perform what, according to his proposals, should come from his own hands." To which heavy charge we can in truth oppose nothing but the words of

Mr.

Mr. POPE'S PROPOSAL for the ODYSSEY,

(printed for J. Watts, Jan. 10, 1724.)

"I take this occasion to declare that the subscription for Shakespear belongs wholly to Mr. Tonson: And that the benefit of this Propofal is not solely for my own use, but for that of two of my friends, who have assisted me in this work." But these very gentlemen are extolled above our Poet himself in another of Mist's Journals, March 30, 1728, saying, "That he would not advise Mr. Pope to try the experiment again of getting a great part of a book done by assistants, lest those extraneous parts should unhappily ascend to the sublime, and retard the declension of the whole." Behold! these Underlings are become good writers!

If any say, that before the said Propofals were printed, the subscription was begun without declaration of such assistance; verily those who set it on foot, or (as the term is) secured it, to wit, the right honourable the Lord Viscount HARCOURT, were he living, would testify, and the right honourable the Lord BATHURST, now living, doth testify, the same is a falsehood.

Sorry I am, that persons professing to be learned, or of whatever rank of authors, should either falsely tax, or be falsely taxed. Yet let us, who are only reporters, be impartial in our citations, and proceed.

MIST'S JOURNAL, June 8, 1728.

“ Mr. Addifon raised this author from obscurity, obtained him the acquaintance and friendship of the whole body of our nobility, and transferred his powerful interests with those great men to this rising bard, who frequently levied by that means unusual contributions on the public.” Which surely cannot be, if, as the author of the Dunciad diffected reporteth; “ Mr. Wycherley^s had before introduced him into a familiar acquaintance with the greatest Peers and brightest Wits then living.”

“ No sooner (saith the same Journalist) was his body lifeless, but this author reviving his resentment, libelled the memory of his departed friend; and, what was still more heinous, made the scandal public.” Grievous the accusation! unknown the accuser! the person accused no witness in his own cause; the person, in whose regard accused, dead! But if there be living any one nobleman whose friendship, yea any one gentleman whose subscription Mr. Addifon procured to our author, let him stand forth, that truth may appear! “ Amicus Plato, amicus Socrates, sed magis amica veritas.” In verity the whole story of the libel is a lie; witness those persons of integrity, who, several years before Mr. Addifon's

^s Wycherley had introduced him to Walsh, Cromwell, &c. but Pope was certainly very much indebted to Addifon, whose early and liberal praise was of great service to him.

Addison's decease, did see and approve of the said verses, in no wise a libel, but a friendly rebuke, sent privately in our author's own hand to Mr. Addison himself, and never made public, till after their own Journals, and Curl had printed the same. One name alone, which I am here authorized to declare, will sufficiently evince the truth, that of the right honourable the Earl of Burlington.

Next is he taxed with a crime (in the opinion of some authors, I doubt, more heinous than any in morality), to wit, Plagiarism, from the inventive and quaint-conceited

JAMES MOORE SMITH, Gent.

“^h Upon reading the third volume of Pope's Miscellanies, I found five lines which I thought excellent; and happening to praise them, a gentleman procured a modern comedy (the Rival Modes), published last year, where were the same verses to a tittle.

“ These gentlemen are undoubtedly the first plagiarists, that pretend to make a reputation by stealing from a man's works in his own life-time, and out of a public print.” Let us join to this what is written by the author of the Rival Modes, the said Mr. James Moore Smith, in a letter to our author himself, who had informed him, a month before that play was acted, Jan. 27, 1726-7, that “ These verses verses, which he had before given him leave to insert in it, would be known for his, some copies being got abroad. He desires, nevertheless, that since the lines had been read in his comedy to several, Mr. P. would not deprive it of them," &c. Surely if we add the testimonies of the Lord Bolingbroke, of the lady to whom the said verses were originally addressed, of Hugh Bethel Esq. and others who knew them as our author's long before the said gentleman composed his play; it is hoped, the ingenious that affect not error, will rectify their opinion by the suffrage of so honourable personages.

^h Daily Journal, March 18, 1728.

And yet followeth another charge, insinuating no less than his enmity both to Church and State, which could come from no other informer than the said

Mr. JAMES MOORE SMITH.

"The Memoirs of a Parish Clerk was a very dull and unjust abuse of a person who wrote in defence of our Religion and Constitution, and who has been dead many years." This seemeth also most untrue; it being known to divers that these Memoirs were written at the seat of the Lord Harcourt in Oxfordshire, before that excellent person (bishop Burnet's) death, and many years before the appearance of that history, of which they are pretended to be an abuse. Most true it is that Mr. Moore had such a design, and was himself the man who prest Dr. Arbuthnot ⁱ Daily Journal, April 3, 1728.

Arbuthnot and Mr. Pope to assist him therein; and that he borrowed those Memoirs of our author, when that history came forth, with intent to turn them to such abuse. But being able to obtain from our author but one single hint, and either changing his mind, or having more mind than ability, he contented himself to keep the said Memoirs, and read them as his own to all his acquaintance. A noble person there is, into whose company Mr. Pope once chanced to introduce him, who well remembereth the conversation of Mr. Moore to have turned upon the "Contempt he had for the work of that reverend prelate, and how full he was of a design he declared himself to have of exposing it." This noble person is the Earl of Peterborough.

Here in truth should we crave pardon of all the fore-said right honourable and worthy personages, for having mentioned them in the same page with such weekly riff-raff railers and rhymers; but that we had their ever-honoured commands for the same; and that they are introduced not as witnesses in the controversy, but as witnesses that cannot be controverted; not to dispute, but to decide.

Certain it is, that dividing our writers into two classes, of such who were acquaintance, and of such who were strangers to our author; the former are those who speak well, and the other those who speak evil of him. Of the first class, the most noble fums up his character in these lines :

JOHN Duke of BUCKINGHAM

“^k And yet so wond’rous, so sublime a thing,
As the great Iliad, scarce could make me sing;
Unless I justly could at once commend
A good companion, and as firm a friend.
One moral, or a mere well-natur’d deed,
Can all desert in sciences exceed.”

So also is he decyphered by the honourable

SIMON HARGOURT.

“^l Say, wondrous youth, what column wilt thou chuse,
What laurel’d arch for thy triumphant Muse?
Tho’ each great ancient court thee to his shrine,
Tho’ ev’ry laurel through the dome be thine,
Go to the good and just, an awful train!
Thy soul’s delight.”——

Recorded in like manner for his virtuous disposition, and gentle bearing, by the ingenious

Mr. WALTER HART,

in this apostrophe :

“^m O! ever worthy, ever crown’d with praise!
Blest in thy life, and blest in all thy lays.
Add, that the Sisters ev’ry thought refine,
And ev’n thy life be faultless as thy line.

Yet

^k Verses to Mr. P. on his translation of Homer.

^l Poem prefixed to his works.

^m In his Poems, printed for B. Lintot.

Yet Envy still with fiercer rage pursues,
 Obscures the virtue, and defames the Muse.
 A soul like thine, in pain, in grief, resign'd,
 Views with just scorn the malice of mankind."

The witty and moral satirist

Dr. EDWARD YOUNG,

wishing some check to the corruption and evil manners of the times, calleth out upon our Poet to undertake a task so worthy of his virtue :

" " Why slumbers Pope, who leads the Muses' train,
 Nor hears that Virtue, which he loves, complain?"

Mr. MALLETT,

in his epistle on Verbal Criticism :

" Whose life severely scan'd, transcends his lays ;
 For wit supreme, is but his second praise."

Mr. HAMMOND,

that delicate and correct imitator of Tibullus, in his Love Elegies, Elegy xiv.

" Now, fir'd by Pope and Virtue, leave the age,
 In low pursuit of self-undoing wrong,
 And trace the author through his moral page,
 Whose blameless life still answers to his song."

Mr. THOMSON,

in his elegant and philosophical poem of the Seasons :

" Altho' not sweeter his own Homer sings,
 Yet is his life the more endearing song."

To

^a Universal Passion, Sat. I.

To the same tune also singeth that learned clerk of Suffolk

Mr. WILLIAM BROOME °.

“^p Thus, nobly rising in fair Virtue’s cause,
From thy own life transcribe th’ unerring laws.”
And, to close all, hear the reverend Dean of St.
Patrick’s :

“ A soul with ev’ry virtue fraught,
By Patriots, Priests, and Poets taught.
Whose filial piety excells
Whatever Grecian story tells.
A genius for each bus’ness fit,
Whose meanest talent is his wit,” &c.

Let us now recreate thee by turning to the other side, and shewing his character drawn by those with whom he never conversed, and whose countenances he could not know, though turned against him :
First again commencing with the high voiced and never enough quoted

Mr. JOHN DENNIS ;

who, in his Reflections on the Essay on Criticism,
thus

° We cannot avoid observing, that Pope, in return for these high Eulogiums, hardly in any instance has been liberal in praise, except where high birth, and high Tory principles, were concerned. Of Broome he has spoken in a manner that must to every one appear as bordering on contempt :

“ And Pope translating five long years with Broome.”
This was afterwards altered.

^p In his Poems, and at the end of the Odyfsey.

thus describeth him: “ A little affected^a hypocrite, who has nothing in his mouth but candour, truth, friendship, good-nature, humanity, and magnanimity. He is so great a lover of falsehood, that whenever he has a mind to calumniate his cotemporaries, he brands them with some defect which is just contrary to some good quality, for which all their friends and their acquaintance commend them. He seems to have a particular pique to people of quality, and authors of that rank. He must derive his religion from St. Omer’s.”—But in the Character of Mr. P. and his writings (printed by S. Popping, 1716), he saith, “ Though he is a professor of the worst religion, yet he laughs at it ;” but that, “ nevertheless, he is a virulent Papist ; and yet a pillar for the church of England.”

Of both which opinions

MR. LEWIS THEOBALD

seems also to be ; declaring, in Mist’s Journal of June 22, 1718, “ That if he is not shrewdly abused, he made it his business to cackle to both Parties in their own sentiments.” But, as to his pique against people of quality, the same Journalist doth not agree, but saith (May 8, 1728), “ He had, by some means or other, the acquaintance and friendship of the whole body of our nobility.”

However

^a Pope had constantly in his mouth candour, truth, &c. Whether these virtues were more affected than real, now that partial praise and personal obloquy are buried with him in the grave, the dispassionate reader may determine.

However contradictory this may appear, Mr. Dennis and Gildon, in the character last cited, make it all plain, by assuring us, "That he is a creature that reconciles all contradictions; he is a beast, and a man; a Whig and a Tory; a writer (at one and the same time) of 'Guardians and Examiners; an asserter of liberty, and of the dispensing power of kings; a Jesuitical professor of truth; a base and a foul pretender to candour." So that, upon the whole account, we must conclude him either to have been a great hypocrite, or a very honest man; a terrible imposer upon both parties, or very moderate to either.

Be it as to the judicious reader shall seem good. Sure it is, he is little favoured of certain authors, whose wrath is perilous: for one declares he ought to have a price set on his head, and to be hunted down as a wild beast^s. Another protests that he does not know what may happen; advises him to insure his person; says he has bitter enemies, and expressly declares it will be well if he escapes with his life^t. One desires he would cut his own throat, or hang himself^u. But Pasquin seemed rather inclined it should be done by the government, representing him engaged in grievous designs with a Lord of Parliament, then under prosecution^v. Mr. Dennis himself

^r The names of two weekly Papers.

^s Theobald, Letter in Mift's Journal, June 22, 1728.

^t Smedley, Pref. to Gulliveriana, p. 14. 16.

^u Gulliveriana, p. 332.

^v Anno 1723.

himself hath written to a Minister, that he is one of the most dangerous persons in this kingdom^x; and affureth the public, that he is an open and mortal enemy to his country; a monster, that will, one day, flue as daring a soul as a mad Indian, who runs a muck to kill the first Christian he meets^y. Another gives information of Treason discovered in his poem^z. Mr. Curl boldly supplies an imperfect verse with Kings and Princeffes^a. And one Matthew Concanen, yet more impudent, publishes at length the two most SACRED NAMES in this nation, as members of the Dunciad^b!

This is prodigious! yet it is almost as strange, that in the midst of these invectives his greatest enemies have (I know not how) born testimony to some merit in him.

Mr. THEOBALD^c, in censuring his Shakespear, declares, “ He has so great an esteem for Mr. Pope, and so high an opinion of
of

^x Anno 1729.

^y Pref. to Rem. on the Rape of the Lock, p. 12. and in the last page of that treatise.

^z Page 6, 7. of the Preface, by Concanen, to a book intituled, A Collection of all the Letters, Essays, Verses, and Advertifements, occasioned by Pope and Swift's Miscellanies. Printed for A. Moore, octavo, 1712.

^a Key to the Dunciad, 3d edit. p. 18.

^b A List of Persons, &c. at the end of the fore-mentioned Collection of all the Letters, Essays, &c.

^c Should not this honest and ingenuous acknowledgment have made Pope a little more forgiving? for Theobald censures only his edition of Shakespear.

of his genius and excellencies; that notwithstanding he professes a veneration almost rising to Idolatry for the writings of this inimitable Poet, he would be very loth even to do him justice, at the expence of that other gentleman's character^d.”

MR. CHARLES GILDON,

after having violently attacked him in many pieces, at last came to wish from his heart, “ That Mr. Pope would be prevailed upon to give us Ovid's Epistles by his hand, for it is certain we see the original of Sappho to Phaon with much more life and likeness in his version, than in that of Sir Car. Scrope. And this (he adds) is the more to be wished, because in the English tongue we have scarce any thing truly and naturally written upon Love.” He also, in taxing Sir Richard Blackmore for his heterodox opinions of Homer, challengeth him to answer what Mr. Pope hath said in his preface to that Poet.

MR. OLDMIXON

calls him a great master of our tongue; declares “ the purity and perfection of the English language to be found in his Homer; and, saying there are more good verses in Dryden's Virgil than in any other work, except this of our author only^e.”

The author of a Letter to Mr. CIBBER says, “^g Pope was so good a versifier [once] that his predecessor predecessor Mr. Dryden, and his cotemporary Mr. Prior excepted, the harmony of his numbers is equal to any body's. And, that he had all the merit that a man can have that way." And after much blemishing our author's Homer, crieth out,

^d Introduction to his Shakespear restored, in quarto, p. 3.

^e Commentary on the Duke of Buckingham's Essay, octavo, 1721, p. 97, 98. ^f In his prose Essay on Criticism.

^g Printed by J. Roberts, 1742, p. 11.

Mr. THOMAS COOKE,

" But in his other works what beauties shine,
While sweetest music dwells in ev'ry line!
These he admir'd, on these he stamp'd his praise,
And bade them live to brighten future days ^h."

So also one who takes the name of the maker of certain verses to Duncan Campbell ⁱ, in that poem, which is wholly a satire on Mr. Pope, confesseth,

H. STANHOPE,

" 'Tis true, if finest notes alone could show
(Tun'd justly high, or regularly low)
That we should fame to these mere vocals give;
Pope more than we can offer should receive ^k:
For when some gliding river is his theme,
His lines run smoother than the smoothest stream," &c.

MIST'S JOURNAL, June 8, 1728.

Although

^h Battle of Poets, folio, p. 15.

ⁱ Printed under the title of the Progress of Dulness, duodecimo, 1728.

^k Notwithstanding the abuse he received, he seems to take care that the praise shall appear to predominate.

Although he says, "The smooth numbers of the Dunciad are all that recommend it, nor has it any other merit;" yet that same paper hath these words: "The author is allowed to be a perfect master of an easy and elegant versification. In all his works we find the most happy turns and natural similes, wonderfully short and thick sown."

The Essay on the Dunciad also owns, p. 25. it is very full of beautiful images. But the panegyric, which crowns all that can be said on this Poem, is bestowed by our Laureate, who "grants it to be a better Poem of its kind than ever was writ:" but adds, "it was a victory over a parcel of poor wretches, whom it was almost cowardice to conquer.—A man might as well triumph for having killed so many filly flies that offended him. Could he have let them alone, by this time, poor souls! they had been buried in oblivion¹." Here we see our excellent Laureate allows the justice of the satire on every man in it, but himself; as the great Mr. Dennis did before him.

Mr. COLLEY CIBBER,

The said

Mr. DENNIS and GILDON, in the most furious of all their works, the fore-cited character (p. 5.) do in concert^m confess, "That some men

¹ Cibber's Letter to Mr. Pope, p. 9. 12.

^m in concert] Hear how Mr. Dennis hath proved our mistake in this place. "As to my writing in concert with Mr. Gildon, I declare, men of good understanding value him for his rhymes." And (p. 17.) "That he has got, like Mr. Bays in the Rehearsal, (that is, like Mr. Dryden) a notable knack at rhyming, and writing smooth verse."

Of his Essay on Man, numerous were the praises bestowed by his avowed enemies, in the imagination that the same was not written by him, as it was printed anonymously.

Thus sang of it even

BEZALEEL MORRIS.

"Auspicious bard! while all admire thy strain,
All but the selfish, ignorant, and vain;
I, whom no bribe to servile flatt'ry drew,
Must pay the tribute to thy merit due:

Thy

I declare, upon the honour and word of a gentleman, that I never wrote so much as one line in concert with any one man whatsoever. And these two Letters from Gildon will plainly shew that we are not writers in concert with each other.

"Sir,

— "The height of my ambition is to please men of the best judgment; and finding that I have entertained my master agreeably, I have the extent of the reward of my labour."

"Sir,

"I had not the opportunity of hearing of your excellent pamphlet till this day. I am infinitely satisfied and pleased with it, and hope you will meet with that encouragement your admirable performance deserves, &c.

"CH. GILDON."

"Now is it not plain, that any one who sends such compliments to another, has not been used to write in partnership with him to whom he sends them?" Dennis, Rem. on the Dunc. p. 50. Mr. Dennis is therefore welcome to take this piece to himself. POPE.

Thy muse sublime, significant, and clear,
Alike informs the Soul, and charms the Ear."

And

Mr. LEONARD WELSTED

thus wroteⁿ to the unknown author on the first publication of the said Essay: "I must own, after the reception which the vilest and most immoral ribaldry hath lately met with, I was surpris'd to see what I had long despaired, a performance deserving the name of a poet. Such, Sir, is your work. It is, indeed, above all commendation, and ought to have been published in an age and country more worthy of it. If my testimony be of weight any where, you are sure to have it in the amplest manner," &c. &c. &c.

Thus we see every one of his works hath been extolled by one or other of his most inveterate enemies; and to the success of them all they do unanimously give testimony. But it is sufficient, inftar omnium, to behold the great critic, Mr. Dennis, sorely lamenting it, even from the Essay on Criticism to this day of the Dunciad! "A most notorious instance (quoth he) of the depravity of genius and taste, the approbation this Essay meets with^o.—I can safely affirm, that I never attacked any of these writings, unless they had success infinitely beyond their merit. — This, though an empty, has been ⁿ In a letter under his hand, dated March 12, 1733.

^o Dennis, Pref. to his Reflect. on the Essay on Criticism.

been a popular scribbler. The epidemic madness of the times has given him reputation^p.—If, after the cruel treatment so many extraordinary men (Spenser, Lord Bacon, Ben Jonson, Milton, Butler, Otway, and others) have received from this country, for these last hundred years, I should shift the scene, and shew all that penury changed at once to riot and profuseness; and more squandered away upon one object, than would have satisfied the greater part of those extraordinary men; the reader to whom this one creature should be unknown, would fancy him a prodigy of art and nature, would believe that all the great qualities of these persons were centered in him alone:—But if I should venture to assure him, that the PEOPLE of ENGLAND had made such a choice—the reader would either believe me a malicious enemy, and slanderer; or that the reign of the last (Queen Anne's) Ministry was designed by Fate to encourage Fools^q.”

But it happens, that this our Poet never had any place, pension, or gratuity, in any shape, from the said glorious Queen, or any of her Ministers. All he owed, in the whole course of his life, to any court, was a subscription for his Homer of 200*l.*^r from

^p Pref. to his Rem. on Homer.

^q Rem. on Hom. p. 8, 9.

^r What would he have had more? He was enabled, by the unparalleled success of his subscription, to live in affluence, and to satirise those to whose munificence he was indebted. He received 300*l.* from that Court, which it was his constant habit to vilify.

from King George I, and 100*l.* from the Prince and Princess.

However, lest we imagine our Author's success was constant and universal, they acquaint us of certain works in a less degree of repute, whereof, although owned by others, yet do they assure us he is the writer. Of this sort Mr. DENNIS³ ascribes to him *two farces*⁴, whose names he does not tell, but assures

³ Rem. on Homer, p. 8.

⁴ The two farces were, the "Three Hours after Marriage," and the "What d'ye call it?"

Respecting the first, Pope was always solicitous to conceal his having had any share in it. The following Letter from Gay, on the subject, will sufficiently explain, however, that both Pope and Arbuthnot were concerned in the composition. After the condemnation of the farce, Gay wrote thus:

"Dear Pope,

"Too late I see and confess myself mistaken in relation to the comedy; yet I do not think, had I followed your advice, and only introduced the Mummy, that the absence of the Crocodile had saved it. I can't help laughing myself (though the vulgar do not consider it was designed to look very ridiculous), to think how the poor Monster and Mummy were dashed at their reception, &c.

"As to your apprehension that this may do us future injury, do not think it; the Doctor has a more valuable name than can be hurt by any thing of this nature, and yours is doubly safe: I will (if any shame there be) take it all to myself, as indeed I ought, the motion being first mine, and never heartily approved of by you, &c.

"I beg of you not to suffer this, or any thing else, to hurt your health. As I have publicly said, that I was assisted by two friends, I shall still continue in the same story, professing obstinate silence about Dr. Arbuthnot and yourself," &c.

It appears from this, that Dr. Arbuthnot and Pope were concerned in this business, and that with Pope it was a tender subject; but it does him credit, that he never "thoroughly approved" it.

The

affures us that there is not one jest in them: And an imitation of Horace^u, whose title he does not mention, but affures us it is much more execrable than all his works^w. The DAILY JOURNAL, May 11, 1728, affures us, “He is below Tom Durfey^x in the Drama, because (as that writer thinks) the Marriage-Hater matched, and the Boarding-School, are better than the What-d’ye-call-it;” which is not Mr. P’s, but Mr. Gay’s. Mr. GILDON affures us, in

The satire was personal, directed against a respectable person, Dr. Woodward, the Naturalist, author of the Theory of the Earth, &c. unprovoked on his part, and brought before the public in a way the most unhandfome, by a caricature exhibition on the Stage. It deserved the fate it met.

^u This imitation of Horace has been always given to Pope; and though I had once some doubts about it, I think the internal evidence, &c. too strong to allow us to attribute it to any other. It has been expunged from this Edition, for sufficient reasons; indeed, it was never owned by Pope, and therefore ought never to have appeared as his. But this does not prove, that Dennis spoke what was false.

^w Mr. Gildon affures us, Pope was writing a Play of “Lady Grey.” Pope says, “it afterwards proved to be Rowe’s:” in this case, the truth, or pretty nearly the truth, belongs to Gildon; the equivocation to Pope. See Pope’s own confession, in a letter to Cromwell. This was a long time before; but it is plain, Pope had the idea in his head. The words of his own letter are these:

“I would lay out all my poetry in love; an original for a Lady, and a translation for a Lady’s maid. Alas! what have I to do with Jane Grey, as long as Miss Molly, Miss Betty, or Miss Patty, are in this world? Shall I write of beauties murdered long ago, when there are those at this instant that murder me? I’ll even compose my own tragedy, and the Poet shall appear in his own person to move compassion.” Letters to Cromwell.

^x Character of Mr. Pope, p. 7.

in his New Rehearfal, p. 48. "That he was writing a Play of the Lady Jane Grey;" but it afterwards proved to be Mr. Rowe's. We are assured by another, "He wrote a pamphlet called Dr. Andrew Tripe ⁷:" which proved to be one Dr. Wagstaff's. Mr. THEOBALD assures us, in Mist of the 27th of April, "That the treatise of the Profound is very dull, and that Mr. Pope is the author of it." The writer of Gulliveriana is of another opinion; and says, "the whole, or greatest part, of the merit of this treatise must and can only be ascribed to Gulliver ²." [Here, gentle reader! cannot I but smile at the strange blindness and positiveness of men; knowing the said treatise to appertain to none other but to me, Martinus Scriblerus.]

We are assured in Mist of June 8, "That his own Plays and Farces would better have adorned the Dunciad, than those of Mr. Theobald; for he had neither genius for tragedy nor comedy." Which, whether true or not, it is not easy to judge, in as much as he had attempted neither. Unless we will take it for granted, with Mr. Cibber, that his being once very angry at hearing a friend's Play abused, was an infallible proof the Play was his own; the said Mr. Cibber thinking it impossible for a man to be much concerned for any but himself: "Now let any man judge (saith he) by by this concern, who was the true mother of the child^a?"

⁷ Character of Mr. Pope, p. 6.

² Gulliv. p. 336.

But from all that hath been said, the discerning reader will collect, that it little availed our Author to have any candour, since, when he declared he did not write for others, it was not credited; as little to have any modesty, since, when he declined writing in any way himself, the presumption of others was imputed to him. If he singly enterprized one great work, he was taxed of boldness and madness to a prodigy^b: If he took assistants in another, it was complained of, and represented as a great injury to the public^c. The loftiest heroics, the lowest ballads, treatises against the state or church, satires on lords and ladies, raillery on wits and authors, squabbles with booksellers, and even full and true accounts of monsters, poisons, and murders; of any hereof was there nothing so good, nothing so bad, which had not at one or other season been to him ascribed. If it bore no author's name, then lay he concealed; if it did, he fathered it upon that author to be yet better concealed: If it resembled any of his styles, then it was evident; if it did not, then disguised he it on set purpose. Yea, even direct oppositions in religion, principles, and politics, have equally been supposed supposed in him inherent. Surely a most rare and singular character! Of which let the reader make what he can.

^a Cibber's Letter to Mr. P. p. 19.

^b Burnet's Homerides, p. 1. of his translation of the Iliad.

^c The London and Mist's Journals, on his undertaking the Odyssy.

Doubtless most commentators would hence take occasion to turn all to their author's advantage, and from the testimony of his very enemies would affirm, That his capacity was boundless, as well as his imagination; that he was a perfect master of all styles, and all arguments; and that there was in those times no other writer, in any kind, of any degree of excellence, save he himself. But as this is not our own sentiment, we shall determine on nothing; but leave thee, gentle reader, to steer thy judgment equally between various opinions, and to chuse whether thou wilt incline to the Testimonies of Authors avowed, or of Authors concealed; of those who knew him, or of those who knew him not.

POPE.

MARTINUS SCRIBLERUS
OF THE POEM*.

THIS Poem, as it celebrateth the most grave and ancient of things, Chaos, Night, and Dulness; so is it of the most grave and ancient kind. Homer (saith Aristotle) was the first who gave the form, and (saith Horace) who adapted the measure, to heroic poesy. But even before this, may be rationally presumed from what the ancients have left written, was a piece by Homer composed, of like nature and matter with this of our Poet. For of epic sort it appeareth to have been, yet of matter surely not unpleasant, witness what is reported of it by the learned archbishop Eustathius, in Odyss. x. And accordingly Aristotle, in his Poetic, chap. iv. doth further set forth, that as the Iliad and Odysssey gav^e example to tragedy, so did this Poem to comedy its first idea.

From these authors also it should seem, that the Hero, or chief personage of it, was no less obscure, and his understanding and sentiments no less quaint and strange (if indeed not more so), than any of the actors of our Poem. MARGITES was the name of this personage, whom Antiquity recordeth to have been been Dunce the first; and surely from what we hear of him, not unworthy to be the root of so spreading a tree, and so numerous a posterity. The poem therefore celebrating him was properly and absolutely a Dunciad; which though now unhappily lost, yet is its nature sufficiently known by the infallible tokens aforesaid. And thus it doth appear, that the first Dunciad was the first epic poem, written by Homer himself, and anterior even to the Iliad or Odyssæy.

* Written by Pope.

Now, forasmuch as our Poet hath translated those two famous works of Homer which are yet left, he did conceive it in some sort his duty to imitate that also which was lost; and was therefore induced to bestow on it the same form which Homer's is reported to have had, namely that of epic poem; with a title also framed after the ancient Greek manner, to wit, that of Dunciad.

Wonderful it is, that so few of the moderns have been stimulated to attempt some Dunciad! since, in the opinion of the multitude, it might cost less pain and toil than an imitation of the greater epic. But possible it is also, that, on due reflection, the maker might find it easier to paint a Charlemagne, a Brute, or a Godfrey, with just pomp and dignity heroic, than a Margites, a Codrus, or a Fleckno.

We shall next declare the occasion and the cause which moved our Poet to this particular work. He lived in those days, when (after Providence had permitted the invention of printing as a scourge for the
the

the fins of the learned) paper also became so cheap, and printers so numerous, that a deluge of authors covered the land : whereby not only the peace of the honest unwriting subject was daily molested, but unmerciful demands were made of his applause, yea of his money, by such as would neither earn the one, nor deserve the other. At the same time, the licence of the press was such, that it grew dangerous to refuse them either : for they would forthwith publish flanders unpunished, the authors being anonymous, and skulking under the wings of publishers, a set of men who never scrupled to vend either calumny or blasphemy, as long as the town would call for it.

^a Now our author, living in those times, did conceive it an endeavour well worthy an honest satirist, to dissuade the dull, and punish the wicked, the only way that was left. In that public-spirited view he laid the plan of this poem, as the greatest service he was capable (without much hurt or being slain) to render his dear country. First taking things from their original, he considereth the causes creative of such authors, namely Dulness and Poverty ; the one born with them, the other contracted by neglect of their proper talents, through self-conceit of greater abilities. This truth he wrappeth in an allegory ^b (as the construction of epic poesy requireth) and feigns that one of these Goddesses had taken up her abode with

^a Vide Boffu, Du Poeme Epique, ch. viii.

^b Boffu, ch. vii.

with the other, and that they jointly inspired all such writers and such works ^c. He proceedeth to shew the qualities they bestow on these authors, and the effects they produce ^d; then the materials, or stock, with which they furnish them ^e; and (above all) that self-opinion ^f which causeth it to seem to themselves vastly greater than it is, and is the prime motive of their setting up in this fad and sorry merchandise. The great power of these Goddeses acting in alliance (whereof as the one is the mother of Industry, so is the other of Plodding) was to be exemplified in some one, great and remarkable action ^g: And none could be more so than that which our poet hath chosen, viz. the restoration * of the reign of Chaos and Night, by the ministry of Dulness their daughter, in the removal of her imperial seat from the city to the polite world; as the action of the Æneid is the restoration of the empire of Troy, by the removal of the race from thence to Latium. But as Homer finging only the wrath of Achilles, yet includes in his poem the whole history of the Trojan war; in like manner our author hath drawn into this single action the whole history of Dulness and her children.

A person must next be fixed upon to support this action. This phantom in the poet's mind must have a name :

^c Book I. ver. 32, &c.

^d Ver. 45 to 54.

^e Ver. 57 to 77.

^f Ver. 80.

^g Ibid. chap. vii, viii.

* Altered from the edition 1729. See the note at the beginning of B. IV. of the Dunciad.

WARTON.

a name^h: He finds it to be —; and he becomes of course the Hero of the poem.

The fable being thus, according to the best example, one and entire, as contained in the proposition; the machinery is a continued chain of allegories, setting forth the whole power, ministry, and empire of Dulness, extended through her subordinate instruments, in all her various operations.

This is branched into Episodes, each of which hath its Moral apart, though all conducive to the main end. The crowd assembled in the second book, demonstrates the design to be more extensive than to bad poets only, and that we may expect other episodes of the Patrons, Encouragers, or Paymasters of such authors, as occasion shall bring them forth. And the third book, if well considered, seemeth to embrace the whole world. Each of the games relateth to some or other vile class of writers: The first concerneth the plagiarist, to whom he giveth the name of Moreⁱ; the second the libellous Novelist, whom he styleth Eliza; the third, the flattering Dedicator; the fourth, the bawling Critic, or noisy Poet; the fifth, the dark and dirty Party-writer; and so of the rest; assigning to each some proper name or other, such as he could find.

As

^h Boffu, chap. viii. Vide Aristot. Poetic. chap. ix.

ⁱ More is the person satirised under the name of "Umbra:"

"Close to each well-known author Umbra fits."

Hence he is call in the Dunciad,

"—the phantom, More."

As for the Characters, the public hath already acknowledged how justly they are drawn: The manners are so depicted, and the sentiments so peculiar to those to whom applied, that surely to transfer them to any other or wiser personages, would be exceeding difficult: And certain it is, that every person concerned, being consulted apart, hath readily owned the resemblance of every portrait, his own excepted. So Mr. Cibber calls them, “a parcel of poor wretches, so many filly flies ^k: but adds, our Author’s wit is remarkably more bare and barren, whenever it would fall foul on Cibber, than upon any other person whatever.”

The descriptions are singular, the comparisons very quaint, the narration various, yet of one colour: The purity and chastity of dicition is so preserved, that in the places most suspicious, not the words but only the images have been censured, and yet are those images no other than have been sanctified by ancient and classical authority, (though, as was the manner of those good times, not so curiously wrapped up), yea, and commented upon by the most grave Doctors, and approved Critics.

As it beareth the name of Epic, it is thereby subjected to such severe indispensable rules as are laid on all Neoterics, a strict imitation of the Ancients; infomuch that any deviation, accompanied with whatever poetic beauties, hath always been censured
by

^k Cibber’s Letter to Mr. P. p. 9, 12, 41.

by the found Critic. How exact that imitation hath been in this piece, appeareth not only by its general structure, but by particular allusions infinite, many whereof have escaped both the commentator and poet himself, yea divers by his exceeding diligence are so altered and interwoven with the rest, that several have already been, and more will be, by the ignorant abused, as altogether and originally his own.

In a word, the whole poem proveth itself to be the work of our Author, when his faculties were in full vigour and perfection; at that exact time when years have ripened the judgment, without diminishing the imagination: which, by good critics, is held to be punctually at forty. For at that season it was that Virgil finished his Georgics; and Sir Richard Blackmore, at the like age composing his Arthurs, declared the same to be the very Acme and pitch of life for epic poesy: Though since he hath altered it to sixty, the year in which he published his *Alfred*¹. True it is, that the talents for criticism, namely smartness, quick censure, vivacity of remark, certainty of asseveration, indeed all but acerbity, seem rather the gifts of youth than of riper age: But it is far otherwise in poetry; witness the works of Mr. Rymer and
Mr.

¹ See his Essays.

Mr. Dennis ^m, who beginning with Criticifm, became afterwards fuch poets as no age hath paralleled. With good reafon therefore did our author chufe to write his Effay on that fubject at twenty, and referve for his maturer years this great and wonderful work of the Dunciad. POPE.

^m So in his Effay on Criticifm, where appeared his firft ftrokes of fpleen :

“ Turn’d Critic next, and prov’d plain fool at laft.”

RICHARDUS ARISTARCHUS

OF THE

HERO OF THE POEM*.

OF the nature of DUNCIAD in general, whence derived, and on what authority founded, as well as of the art and conduct of this our poem in particular, the learned and laborious Scriblerus hath, according to his manner, and with tolerable share of judgment, dissertated. But when he cometh to speak of the PERSON of the Hero fitted for such poem, in truth he miserably halts and hallucinates. For, misled by one Monsieur Bossu, a Gallic critic, he prateth of I cannot tell what phantom of a Hero, only raised up to support the fable. A putid conceit! As if Homer and Virgil, like modern Undertakers, who first build their house, and then seek out for a tenant, had contrived the story of a war and a wandering, before they once thought either of Achilles or Æneas. We shall therefore set our good brother and the world also right in this particular, by assuring them,

* It is a singular circumstance, that the hero of the Rehearsal, as well as of the Dunciad, should have been changed. Howard, not Dryden, was the original hero of the former. And perhaps these changes, in both pieces, were for the worse. WARTON.

them, that, in the greater epic, the prime intention of the Muse is to exalt heroic virtue, in order to propagate the love of it among the children of men; and consequently that the poet's first thought must needs be turned upon a real subject meet for laud and celebration; not one whom he is to make, but one whom he may find, truly illustrious. This is the primum mobile of his poetic world, whence every thing is to receive life and motion. For, this subject being found, he is immediately ordained, or rather acknowledged, an Hero, and put upon such action as becometh the dignity of his character.

But the Muse ceaseth not here her eagle-flight. For sometimes, fatiated with the contemplation of these suns of glory, she turneth downward on her wing, and darts, with Jove's lightning, on the goose and serpent kind. For we apply to the Muse in her various moods, what an ancient master of wisdom affirmeth of the Gods in general: "Si Dii non irascuntur impiis et injustis, nec pios utique justosque diligunt. In rebus enim diversis, ut in utramque partem moveri necesse est, aut in neutram. Itaque qui bonos diligit, et malos odit; et qui malos non odit, nec bonos diligit. Quia et diligere bonos ex odio malorum venit; et malos odisse ex bonorum caritate descendit." Which in our vernacular idiom may be thus interpreted: "If the gods be not provoked at evil men, neither are they delighted with the good and just. For contrary objects must either excite contrary affections, or no affections at all. So that he who loveth good men, must at the same time hate the bad; and he who hateth not bad men, cannot love the good; because to love good men proceedeth from an aversion to evil; and to hate evil men, from a tenderness to the good." From this delicacy of the Muse arose the little Epic, more lively and choleric than her elder sister, (whose bulk and complexion incline her to the flegmatic). And for this, some notorious vehicle of vice and folly was sought out, to make thereof an EXAMPLE. An early instance of which (nor could it escape the accurate Scriblerus) the Father himself of Epic-poem, affordeth us. From him the practice descended to the Greek dramatic Poets, his Offspring; who in the composition of their *Tetralogy, or set of four pieces, were wont to make the last a Satiric Tragedy. Happily one of these ancient Dunciads (as we may well term it) is come down unto us, amongst the Tragedies of the poet Euripides. And what doth the reader suppose may be the subject thereof? Why in truth, and it is worthy observation, the unequal contest of an old dull, debauched buffoon Cyclops, with the heaven-directed Favourite of Minerva: who, after

* Richardus Aristarchus is fond of bringing things, however improper and incongruous, into a system. Our Dunciad is to be added to the epics of Homer, Virgil, and Milton, as a satiric piece, to make, as it were, a complete Tetralogy, as the Cyclops of Euripides was added to serious tragedies. WARBURTON.

after having quietly borne all the monster's obscene and impious ribaldry, endeth the farce in punishing him with the mark of an indelible brand in his forehead. May we not then be excused, if for the future we consider the Epics of Homer, Virgil, and Milton, together with this our Poem, as a complete Tetralogy; in which, the last worthily holdeth the place or station of the satiric piece?

Proceed we therefore in our subject. It hath been long, and, alas for pity! still remaineth a question, whether the Hero of the greater Epic should be an honest Man; or, as the French Critics express it, un honnête homme^a: but it never admitted of any doubt, but that the Hero of the little Epic should be his very opposite. Hence, to the advantage of our Dunciad, we may observe, how much juster the Moral of that poem must needs be, where so important a question is previously decided.

But then it is not every Knave, nor (let me add) every Fool, that is a fit subject for a Dunciad. There must still exist some analogy, if not resemblance of qualities, between the Heroes of the two poems; and this, in order to admit what neoteric Critics call the Parody, one of the liveliest graces of the little Epic. Thus it being agreed, that the constituent qualities of the greater Epic Hero, are Wisdom, Bravery, and Love, from whence springeth heroic
Virtue;

^a Si un Heros Poétique doit être un honnête homme. Bossu du Poème Epique, liv. v. ch. 5

Virtue; it followeth, that those of the lesser Epic Hero should be Vanity, Affurance, and Debauchery, from which happy assemblage resulteth heroic Dulness, the never-dying subject of this our Poem.

This being settled, come we now to particulars. It is the character of true Wisdom, to seek its chief support and confidence within itself; and to place that support in the resources which proceed from a conscious rectitude of Will.—And are the advantages of Vanity, when arising to the heroic standard, at all short of this self-complacence? Nay, are they not, in the opinion of the enamoured owner, far beyond it? “Let the world (will such a one say) impute to me what Folly or weakness they please; but till Wisdom can give me something that will make me more heartily happy, I am content to be GAZED AT^b.” This, we see, is Vanity according to the heroic gage or measure; not that low and ignoble species which pretendeth to virtues we have not; but the laudable ambition of being gazed at for glorying in those vices, which every body knows we have. “The world may ask (says he) why I make my follies public? Why not? I have passed my time very pleasantly with them^c.” In short there is no sort of Vanity^d such a Hero would scruple
to

^b Dedication to the Life of COLLY CIBBER.

^c Life, p. 2. octavo edit.

^d It would be curious to compare Pope's vanity with Cibber's. The vanity of one, silent, disdainful, and always appearing, though artfully

to exult in, but that which might go near to degrade him from his high station in this our Dunciad; namely, “ Whether it would not be Vanity in him, to take shame to himself for not being a wise man ?”

Bravery, the second attribute of the true Hero, is Courage, manifesting itself in every limb; while its correspondent virtue in the mock Hero, is, that same Courage all collected into the FACE. And as Power, when drawn together, must needs have more force and spirit than when dispersed, we generally find this kind of courage in so high and heroic a degree, that it insults not only Men, but Gods. Mezentius is, without doubt, the bravest character in all the Aeneis: But how? His bravery, we know, was an high courage of blasphemy. And can we say less of this brave man's, who having told us that he placed “ his Summum bonum in those follies, which he was not content barely to possess but would likewise glory in,” adds, “ If I am misguided, 'TIS NATURE'S FAULT, and I follow HER .” Nor can we be mistaken in making this happy quality a species of Courage, when we consider those illustrious marks of it, which made his FACE “ more known artfully endeavoured to be concealed; the vanity of the other, though I do not mean that their characters can be compared, open, pleasant, good-humoured, and never offensive, even where it appears strongest.
(as

^c Life, p. 2. octavo edit.

^f Life, p. 23. octavo.

(as he justly boasteth) than most in the kingdom ;” and his Language to consist of what we must allow to be the most daring Figure of Speech, that which is taken from the Name of God.

Gentle Love, the next ingredient in the true Hero’s composition, is a mere bird of passage, or (as Shakespeare calls it) Summer-teeming Lust, and evaporates in the heat of Youth ; doubtless by that refinement it suffers in passing through those certain strainers which our Poet somewhere speaketh of *. But when it is let alone to work upon the Lees, it acquireth strength by Old age ; and becometh a lasting ornament to the little Epic. It is true, indeed, there is one objection to its fitness for such an use : For not only the ignorant may think it common, but it is admitted to be so, even by him who best knoweth its value. “ Don’t you think (argueth he), to say only a man has his Whore †, ought to go for little or nothing ? Because defendit numerus, take the first ten thousand men you meet, and, I believe you would be no loser if you betted ten to one, that every single sinner of them, one with another, had been guilty of the same frailty †.” But here he seemeth

* “ Lust, thro’ some certain strainers well refin’d,
Is gentle love, and charms all womankind.” WARBURTON.

† Alluding to these lines in the Epist. to Dr. Arbuthnot :

“ And has not COLLY fill his Lord and Whore,
His Butchers Henley, his Free-Masons Moore ?”

WARBURTON.

‡ C. Cibber’s Letter to Mr. P. p. 46.

seemeth not to have done justice to himself; the man is sure enough a Hero, who hath his Lady at fourscore. How doth his modesty herein lessen the merit of a whole well-spent Life: not taking to himself the commendation (which Horace accounted the greatest in a theatrical character) of continuing to the very dregs, the same he was from the beginning,

——— “ Servetur ad IMUM
Qualis ab incepto procefferat.”———

But here, in justice both to the Poet and the Hero, let us farther remark, that the calling her his Whore, implieth she was his own, and not his neighbour's. Truly a commendable Continnence! and such as Scipio himself must have applauded. For how much Self-denial was exerted not to covet his neighbour's whore? and what disorders must the coveting her have occasioned in that Society, where (according to this political calculator) nine in ten of all ages have their concubines!

We have now, as briefly as we could devise, gone through the three constituent qualities of either Hero. But it is not in any, nor in all of these, that Heroism properly or essentially resideth. It is a lucky result rather from the collision of these lively qualities against one another. Thus, as from Wisdom, Bravery, and Love, ariseth Magnanimity the object of Admiration, which is the aim of the greater Epic; so from Vanity, Impudence, and Debauchery, springeth Buffoonry, the source of Ridicule, that “laughing ornament,” as the owner well termeth itⁱ, of the little Epic.

He is not ashamed (God forbid he ever should be ashamed!) of this character; who deemeth, that not Reason but Risibility distinguisheth the human species from the brutal. “As Nature (saith this profound philosopher) distinguished our species from the mute creation by our Risibility, her design must have been by that faculty as evidently to raise our happiness, as by our Os sublime, OUR ERECTED FACES, to lift the dignity of our form above them^k.” All this considered, how complete a Hero* must he be, as well as how happy a Man, whose Risibility lieth not barely in his muscles, as in the common sort, but (as himself informeth us) in his very spirits? And whose Os sublime is not simply an ERECT FACE, but a brazen head; as should seem by his preferring it to one of Iron, said to belong to the late king of Sweden^l.

But whatever personal qualities a Hero may have, the examples of Achilles and Æneas shew us, that all these are of small avail, without the constant assistance

ⁱ Colly Cibber's Letter to Mr. P. p. 31.

^k Cibber's Life, p. 23, 24. ^l Letter, page 8.

* Warton observes, that “in this and many other passages of this discourse, the attempts of Aristarchus, at satire and ridicule, are very frigid and awkward indeed.” In fact, the laugh of Pope is that of a man, who affected raillery and contempt, whilst he boiled with anger; the laugh of Cibber is hearty, careless, and natural.

assistance of the GODS: for the subversion and erection of Empires have never been adjudged the work of Man. How greatly soever then we may esteem of his high talents, we can hardly conceive his personal prowess alone sufficient to restore the decayed empire of DULNESS. So weighty an achievement must require the particular favour and protection of the GREAT; who being the natural patrons and supporters of Letters, as the ancient Gods were of Troy, must first be drawn off, and engaged in another Interest, before the total subversion of them can be accomplished. To surmount, therefore, this last and greatest difficulty, we have, in this excellent man, a professed Favourite and Intimado of the GREAT. And look, of what force ancient piety was to draw the Gods into the party of Æneas, that, and much stronger is modern incense, to engage the Great in the party of Dulness.

Thus have we essayed to pourtray or shadow out this noble Imp of Fame. But now the impatient reader will be apt to say, if so many and various graces go to the making up a Hero, what mortal shall suffice to bear his character? Ill hath he read, who seeth not, in every trace of this picture, that individual, ALL-ACCOMPLISHED PERSON, in whom these rare virtues and lucky circumstances have agreed to meet and centre, with the strongest lustre and fullest harmony.

The

The good Scriblerus indeed, nay the World itself, might be imposed on, in the late spurious editions, by I can't tell what Sham Hero, or Phantom: But it was not so easy to impose on HIM whom this egregious error most of all concerned. For no sooner had the fourth book laid open the high and swelling scene, but he recognized his own heroic Acts: And when he came to the words,

Soft on her lap her Laureat son reclines,

(though Laureat imply no more than one crown'd with laurel, as becometh any associate or Consort in Empire) he loudly resenteth this indignity to violated Majesty. Indeed not without cause, he being there represented as fast asleep; so misbecoming the Eye of Empire, which, like that of Jove, should never doze nor slumber. "Hah! (saith he) fast asleep, it seems! that's a little too strong. Pert and dull at least you might have allowed me, but as seldom asleep as any fool^m." However, the injured Laureat may comfort himself with this reflection, that tho' it be a sleep, yet it is not the *sleep of death*ⁿ, but of immortality.

^m Colley Cibber's Letter to Mr. P. p. 53.

ⁿ A curious Pastoral Ballad appeared in the Papers of the times, on one of Colley's Battle-array Odes. I forget whether the Pastoral was in the names of Thirsis and Coridon, or Tityrus and Damon:

Thirsis. "Colley has tun'd again his lute!"

Coridon. "'s life!"

Thirsis. "He is not yet quite out of breath!"

Coridon. "'s death!"

immortality. Here he will ° live at least, tho' not awake; and in no worse condition than many an enchanted Hero before him. The famous Durandarte, for instance, was, like him, cast into a long slumber by Merlin the British Bard and Necromancer: and his example, for submitting to it with a good grace, might be of service to our Hero. For that disastrous knight being sorely pressed or driven to make his answer by several persons of quality°, only replied with a sigh, Patience, and shuffle the cards¶.

But now, as nothing in this world, no not the most sacred or perfect things either of Religion or Government, can escape the stings of Envy, methinks I already here these carpers objecting to the clearness of our Hero's title.

It would never (say they) have been esteemed sufficient to make an Hero for the Iliad or Æneis, that Achilles was brave enough to overturn one Empire, or Æneas pious enough to raise another, had they not been Goddess-born, and Princes-bred. What then did this Author mean, by erecting a Player instead of one of his Patrons, (a person, "never a Hero even on the stage"') to this dignity of Colleague in the empire of Dulness; and Atchiever of a work that neither old Omar, Attila, nor John of Leiden, could entirely bring to pass.

To

° Colley Cibber's Letter to Mr. P. p. 1.

¶ See Cibber's Letter to Mr. P.

¶ Don Quixote, Part ii. Book ii. chap. 22.

¶ See Cibber's Life, p. 148.

To all this we have, as we conceive, a sufficient answer from the Roman historian, Fabrum esse suæ quemque fortunæ: That every man is the Carver of his own fortune. The politic Florentine, Nicholas Machiavel, goeth still further, and affirmeth that a man needeth but to believe himself a Hero to be one of the worthiest that ever breathed. “Let him (saith he) but fancy himself capable of high things, and he will of course be able to atchieve the highest.” From this principle it followeth, that nothing can exceed our Hero’s prowess; as nothing ever equalled the greatness of his conceptions. Hear how he constantly paragon himself; at one time, to ALEXANDER the Great and CHARLES the XII. of Sweden, for the excess and delicacy of his Ambition¹; to HENRY the IV. of FRANCE, for honest Policy²; to the first BRUTUS, for love of Liberty³; to Sir ROBERT WALPOLE, for good Government while in power⁴: At another time, to the godlike SOCRATES, for his Diversions and Amusements⁵; to HORACE MONTAIGNE, and Sir WILLIAM TEMPLE, for an elegant Vanity that maketh them for ever read and admired⁶; to TWO Lord CHANCELLORS, for Law, from whom, when confederate against him at the bar, he carried away the prize of Eloquence⁷; and, to say all in a word,

to

¹ See Cibber’s Life, p. 149. ² Ibid. p. 424. ³ Ibid. p. 366.

⁴ Ibid. p. 457. ⁵ Ibid. p. 18. ⁶ Ibid. p. 425.

⁷ Ibid. p. 436, 437.

to the right reverend the Lord BISHOP of LONDON himself, in the art of writing Pastoral letters ^a.

Nor did his Actions fall short of the sublimity of his Conceit. In his early youth, he met the Revolution ^b face to face in Nottingham; at a time when other Patriots contented themselves to follow her. It was here he got acquainted with Old Battle-array, of whom he hath made so honourable mention in one of his immortal Odes ^c. But he shone in Courts as well as Camps: He was called up when the Nation fell in labour of this Revolution ^d: and was a gossip at her christening, with the Bishop and the Ladies ^e.

As to his Birth, it is true he pretendeth no relation either to heathen God or Goddes; but what is as good, he was descended from a Maker of both ^f. And that he did not pass himself on the world for a Hero, as well by birth as education, was his own fault: For, his lineage he bringeth into his life as an Anecdote, and is sensible he had it in his

^a See Cibber's Life, p. 52.

^b Ibid. 47.

^c "Old BATTLE-ARRAY in confusion is fled;
And olive-rob'd Peace is come in his stead," &c.

Colly Cibber's Birth-day Ode, or New-year's Ode,
(I don't know which) on the Peace.

WARTON.

I don't know whether this be a mistake. Isaac Hawkins Brown, in his Imitation of Cibber, has—

"Old BATTLE-ARRAY, big with Horror, is fled;
And olive-rob'd Peace again lifts up her head."

Pope's raillery upon "Old Battle-array" is very pleasant.

^d Colly Cibber's Life, p. 57. ^e Ibid. 58, 59. ^f A Statuary.

his power to be thought no body's son at all^s: And what is that, I pray you, but coming into the world a Hero?

But be it (the punctilious Laws of Epic Poesy so requiring) that a Hero of more than mortal birth must needs be procured for this atchievement: Even for this we have a resource. We can easily derive our Hero's pedigree from a Goddess of no small power and authority amongst men; and legitimate and install him after the right classical and authentic fashion: For, like as the ancient Sages found a son of Mars in a mighty Warrior; a son of Neptune in a skilful Seaman; a son of Phœbus in a harmonious Poet; so have we here, if need be, a son of FORTUNE * in an artful Gamester. And who, I pray you, fitter than the Offspring of Chance, to assist in restoring the Empire of Night and Chaos?

There is in truth another objection of greater weight, namely, "That this Hero still existeth, and hath not yet finished his earthly course. For if Solon said well, that no man could be called happy till his death, surely much less can any one, till then, be pronounced a Hero: the species of men being far more subject than others to the caprices of Fortune and Humour." But to this also we have an answer, which will (we hope) be deemed decisive. It cometh from himself; who, to cut this matter short, hath solemnly protested that HE WILL NEVER CHANGE OR AMEND.

With

^s Cibber's Life, p. 6.

* This, as Dr. Warton observes, is a poor jest indeed!

With regard to his Vanity, he declareth that nothing shall ever part them. "Nature (saith he) hath amply supplied me in Vanity; a pleasure which neither the pertness of Wit, nor the gravity of Wisdom, will ever persuade me to part with^b." Our poet had charitably endeavoured to administer a cure to it: But he telleth us plainly, "My superiors perhaps may be mended by him; but for my part I own myself incorrigible. I look upon my Follies as the best part of my Fortuneⁱ." And with good reason: We see to what they have brought him!

Secondly, as to Buffoonry, "Is it (saith he) a time of day for me to leave off these fooleries, and set up a new character? I can no more put off my Follies than my Skin; I have often tried, but they stick too close to me; nor am I sure my friends are displeas'd with them, for in this light I afford them frequent matter of mirth, &c. &c.^k." Having then so publickly declared himself INCORRIGIBLE, he is become dead in law, (I mean the law Epopæian) and devolveth upon the Poet; is now his property; and may be taken and dealt with like an old Egyptian Hero; that is to say, emboweled and embalmed for Posterity.

Nothing therefore (we conceive) remaineth to hinder his own prophecy of himself from taking immediate effect. A rare felicity! and what few Prophets

^a Cibber's Life, p. 424.

^b Ibid. p. 19.

^k Ibid. p. 17.

Prophets have had the satisfaction to see, alive! Nor can we conclude better than with that extraordinary one of his, which is conceived in these Oraculous words, MY DULNESS WILL FIND SOMEBODY TO DO IT RIGHT¹.

Tandem PHOEBUS adest, morsusque inferre parentem Congelat, et patulos, ut erant, INDURAT hiatus^m.

WARBURTON.

¹ Cibber's Life, p. 243. octavo edit.

^m Ovid, of the serpent biting at Orpheus's head.

It is difficult to see the propriety and justness of this application from Ovid.

WARTON.

By AUTHORITY.

* By virtue of the Authority in Us vested by the † Act for subjecting Poets to the Power of a Licenser, we have revised this Piece; where finding the style and appellation of KING to have been given to a certain Pretender, Pseudo-Poet, or Phantom, of the name of TIBBALD; and apprehending the same may be deemed in some sort a Reflection on Majesty, or at least an insult on that Legal Authority which has bestowed on another Person the Crown of Poesy: We have ordered the said Pretender, Pseudo-Poet, or Phantom, utterly to vanish and evaporate out of this work:
And

* The plodding and laborious Theobald was made by Pope the original King of the Dunces: and "that Satire," Johnson observes, "which can be so easily transferred from one man to another, cannot be very pointed." Cibber also was a very unfit Personage for the King of Dunces; and all the art of Pope, in painting the Characters, cannot reconcile us to the palpable contradiction of Cibber's real liveliness, and that heavy, sleepy stupidity that seems exclusively to belong to the chief Personage of this Satire.

† A stroke of Satire against the act for licensing Plays, which was opposed with equal wit and vehemence by many of our Poet's friends, and particularly by the Earl of Chesterfield. WARTON.

And do declare the said Throne of Poesy from henceforth to be abdicated and vacant, unless duly and lawfully supplied by the LAUREATE himself. And it is hereby enacted, that no other person do presume to fill the same.

CC Ch.

THE

D U N C I A D :

TO

DR. JONATHAN SWIFT.

BOOK THE FIRST.

ARGUMENT.

THE Proposition, the Invocation, and the Inscription. Then the Original of the great Empire of Dulness, and cause of the continuance thereof. The College of the Goddesses in the City, with her private Academy for Poets in particular; the Governors of it, and the four Cardinal Virtues. Then the Poem hastes into the midst of things, presenting her on the evening of a Lord Mayor's day, revolving the long succession of her Sons, and the glories past and to come. She fixes her eye on Bays to be the Instrument of that great Event which is the Subject of the Poem. He is described pensive among his Books, giving up the Cause, and apprehending the Period of her Empire: After debating whether to betake himself to the Church, or to Gaming, or to Party-writing, he raises an Altar of proper books, and (making first his solemn prayer and declaration) purposes thereon to sacrifice all his unsuccessful writings. As the pile is kindled, the Goddess, beholding the flame from her seat, flies and puts it out by casting upon it the poem of Thulé. She forthwith reveals herself to him, transports him to her Temple, unfolds her Arts, and initiates him into her Mysteries; then announcing the death of Eufden the Poet Laureate, anoints him, carries him to Court, and proclaims him Successor.

B O O K I.

THE Mighty Mother, and her Son, who brings
 The Smithfield Muses to the ear of Kings,
 I sing. Say you, her instruments the Great!
 Call'd to this work by Dulness, Jove, and Fate;
You

VARIATIONS.

VER. I. The Mighty Mother, &c.] In the first Edit. it was thus,

Books and the Man I sing, the first who brings
 The Smithfield Muses to the Ear of Kings.
 Say, great Patricians! since yourselves inspire
 These wond'rous works (so Jove and Fate require)
 Say, for what cause, in vain decry'd and curst, Still——

IMITATIONS.

*Say, great Patricians! since yourselves inspire
 These wond'rous works——*

—“Dii coeptis (nam vos mutastis et illas).” OVID. Met. I.

REMARKS.

RESPECTING the pompous Notes, under the assumed characters of various Authors, which accompany this Poem, and indeed highly illustrate its humour, Pope thus writes in a Letter to Swift:

“The Dunciad is going to be printed in all pomp, with the “Inscription which makes me proudest; (that is, inscribed to “Swift). It will be attended with Proëme, Prolegomena, Testi-“monia Scriptorum, Index Authorum, and Notes Variorum.
 “As to the latter, I desire you will read over the text, and make “a few, in any way you like best; whether dry raillery, upon the “style and way of commenting of trivial Critics; or humourous, “upon the Authors of the Poem; or historical, of Persons, Places,

You by whose care, in vain decry'd, and curst, 5
 Still Duncce the second reigns like Duncce the first ;
 Say,

REMARKS.

“ Times ; or explanatory, or collecting the parallel passages of the “ Ancients.” Letter to Swift.

I have inserted this extract, as it is the best account of the entertaining and curious Notes, which some people at the time thought were written in earnest.

The DUNCIAD, sic MS. It may well be disputed whether this be a right reading: Ought it not rather to be spelled Duncciad, as the Etymology evidently demands? Duncce with an e, therefore Duncciad with an e. That accurate and punctual Man of Letters, the Restorer of Shakespeare, constantly observes the preservation of this very Letter e, in spelling the name of his beloved Author, and not like his common careless Editors, with the omission of one, nay sometimes of two ee's (as Shaksphear) which is utterly unpardonable. “ Nor is the neglect of a Single Letter so trivial as to some it may appear; the alteration whercof in a learned language is an Atchievement that brings honour to the Critic who advances it; and Dr. Bentley will be remembered to posterity for his performances of this sort, as long as the world shall have any esteem for the remains of Menander and Philemon.”

THEOBALD.

This Poem was written in the year 1726. In the next year an imperfect Edition was published at Dublin, and reprinted at London in twelves; another at Dublin, and another at London in octavo; and three others in twelves the same year. But there was no perfect Edition before that of London in quarto; which was attended with Notes. We are willing to acquaint Posterity, that this Poem was presented to King George the second and his Queen, by the hands of Sir Robert Walpole, on the 12th of March 1728-9.

SCHOL. VER.

It was expressly confessed in the Preface to the first edition, that this Poem was not published by the Author himself. It was printed

IMITATIONS.

VER. 6. Alluding to a verse of Mr. Dryden, not in Mac Fleckno (as is said ignorantly in the Key to the Dunciad, p. 1.) but in his verses to Mr. Congreve,

“ And Tom the second reigns like Tom the first.”

Say, how the Goddess bade Britannia sleep,
And pour'd her Spirit o'er the land and deep.

In

REMARKS.

printed originally in a foreign Country. And what foreign Country? Why, one notorious for blunders; where finding blanks only instead of proper names, these blunderers filled them up at their pleasure.

The very Hero of the Poem hath been mistaken to this hour; so that we are obliged to open our Notes with a discovery who he really was. We learn from the former Editor, that this Piece was presented by the hands of Sir Robert Walpole to King George II. Now the author directly tells us, his Hero is the Man ———“ who brings

The Smithfield Muses to the ear of Kings.”

And it is notorious who was the person on whom this Prince conferred the honour of the Laurel.

It appears as plainly from the Apostrophe to the Great in the third verse, that Tibbald could not be the person, who was never an Author in fashion, or carested by the Great: whereas this single characteristic is sufficient to point out the true Hero; who, above all other Poets of his time, was the Peculiar Delight and Chosen Companion of the Nobility of England; and wrote, as he himself tells us, certain of his Works at the earnest Desire of Persons of Quality.

Lastly, The sixth verse affords full proof; this Poet being the only one who was universally known to have had a Son so exactly like him, in his political, theatrical, political, and moral Capacities, that it could justly be said of him

“ Still Duncce the second reigns like Duncce the first.”

BENTLEY.

VER. I. The Mighty Mother and her Son, &c.] The Reader ought here to be cautioned, that the Mother, and not the Son, is the principal Agent in this Poem: The latter of them is only chosen as her colleague, (as was anciently the custom in Rome before some great expedition,) the main action of the Poem being by no means the Coronation of the Laureate, which is performed in the very first book, but the Restoration of the Empire of Dulness in Britain, which is not accomplished till the last. WARBURTON.

In eldest time, ere mortals writ or read,
 Ere Pallas issu'd from the Thund'rer's head, 10
 Dulness

REMARKS.

VER. 1. her Son, who brings, &c.] Wonderful is the stupidity of all the former Critics and Commentators on this work! It breaks forth at the very first line. The author of the Critique prefixed to Sawney, a Poem, p. 5. hath been so dull as to explain the Man who brings, &c. not of the Hero of the piece, but of our Poet himself, as if he vaunted that Kings were to be his readers; an honour, which tho' this Poem hath had, yet knoweth he how to receive it with more modesty.

We remit this Ignorant to the first lines of the Æneid, assuring him that Virgil there speaketh not of himself, but of Æneis:

“Arma virumque cano, Trojæ qui primus ab oris
 Italiam, fato profugus, Lavinaque venit
 Littora: multum ille et terris jactatus et alto,” &c.

I cite the whole three verses, that I may by the way offer a Conjectural Emendation, purely my own, upon each: First, oris should he read aris, it being, as we see, Æn. ii. 513. from the altar of Jupiter Hercaeus that Æneas fled as soon as he saw Priam slain. In the second line I would read flatu for fato, since it is most clear it was by Winds that he arrived at the shore of Italy. Jactatus, in the third, is surely as improperly applied to terris as proper to alto; to say a man is toft on land, is much at one with saying he walks at sea: Risum teneatis, amici? Correct it, as I doubt not it ought to be, vexatus. SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 2. The Smithfield Muses] Smithfield is the place where Bartholomew Fair was kept, whose shews, machines, and dramatical entertainments, formerly agreeable only to the taste of the Rabble, were, by the Hero of this Poem, and others of equal genius, brought to the Theatres of Covent Garden, Lincolns-inn-fields, and the Haymarket, to be the reigning pleasures of the Court and Town. This happened in the reigns of King George I. and II. See Book iii. WARBURTON.

VER. 6. Still Duncce the second reigns like Duncce the first.] A satirical dash at the reigning monarch, George the Second.

WAKEFIELD.

Dulness o'er all possess'd her ancient right,
 Daughter of Chaos and eternal Night :
 Fate in their dotage this fair Ideot gave,
 Gross as her fire, and as her mother grave,
 Laborious, heavy, busy, bold, and blind, 15
 She rul'd, in native Anarchy, the mind.

Still her old Empire to restore she tries,
 For, born a Goddess, Dulness never dies.

O Thou! whatever title please thine ear,
 Dean, Drapier, Bickerstaff, or Gulliver! 20

Whether

REMARKS.

VER. 12. Daughter of Chaos, &c.] The beauty of the whole Allegory being purely of the poetical kind, we think it not our proper business, as a Scholiast, to meddle with it: but leave it (as we shall in general all succumb to the reader; remarking only that Chaos (according to Hesiod's ἡγογονία) was the Progenitor of all the Gods. SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 12. Daughter of Chaos, and eternal Night:] Conformably to Milton's doctrine, Par. Lost, ii. 894. and 960.

“ ——— where eldest Night

And Chaos, ancestors of Nature, hold Eternal anarchy: ———

——— when strait behold the throne
 Of Chaos, and his dark pavilion spread
 Wide on the wasteful deep: with him enthron'd
 Sat sable-vested Night, eldest of things,
 The consort of his reign.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 14. Gross as her fire, and as her mother grave.] A parody on a verse of Dryden, Æn. vii. 1044.

“Fam'd as his fire, and as his mother fair.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 18. For, born a Goddess, Dulness never dies.] So Sloth, in the Dispensary, i. 116.

“With godhead born, but curs'd that cannot die.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 20. Drapier, Bickerstaff, or Gulliver!] The several Names and Characters he assumed, in his ludicrous, his splenetic, or his party writings; which take in all his works. *

Whether thou chuse Cervantes' serious air,
Or laugh and shake in Rab'lais' easy chair,

Or

REMARKS.

VER. 21.—Cervantes' serious air,] In the Travels of Gulliver; written to decry the Lying Vanities of Travellers, just as Don Quixote's adventures were to expose the absurdities of Books of Chivalry; and with the same serious and solemn air.—The laughing with Rab'lais, in the next line, alludes to the Tale of a Tub, which is in the manner of the satirical and more regular parts of that famous French droll. Dr. S. Clark in the first Edition of his Boyle's Lectures gives this book for an example of scoffing Atheism. And tho' I think there be neither impiety nor irreligion in the conduct of his Tale, yet surely it was impossible for a man really penetrated with a serious sense of Religion, ever to prevail on himself to expose the abuses of it in the manner he has done. *

The Travels of Gulliver were not written to decry the lying vanities of travellers, but chiefly and principally to expose the politics and measures of the English government, as well as the pride and depravity of human nature in general. Nor are they carried on or conceived in the manner of Cervantes. Voltaire called Swift, for writing the Tale of a Tub, Rabelais in his senses. When so many undeserving persons have been persecuted, particularly under the arbitrary government of France, for the freedom of their opinions, it is marvellous that Rabelais, who levelled his bitter satire against so many haughty princes, and as haughty priests, could possibly escape their vengeance. Garagantua certainly meant Francis I.; Louis XII. is Grand Goufier; Henry II. Pantagruel; Charles V. Picrocole. The Monks of that time are disguised under the name of Brother John des Entomures. The genealogy of Christ is ridiculed by that of Garagantua. The Treatises of Theology were laughed at under the titles of the books found in the Library of St. Victor; such as Biga Salutis, Braguelta Juris, Pentouffle Decentorum; and by such questions as, utrum chimera in vacuo bombinans possit comedere secundas intentiones. Lord Peter's Loaf is minutely copied from Rabelais. Scarron had a master named J. Moreau, who wrote in Heroic verse a comic poem called The Pigeon; which Scarron copied in his Gigantomachei. Had Swift ever seen these poems which bear so near a resemblance to his Liliput and Brobdignac? WARTON,

Or praise the Court, or magnify Mankind,
 Or thy griev'd Country's copper chains unbind ;
 From thy Bœotia tho' her Pow'r retires, 25
 Mourn not, my SWIFT ! at ought our Realm acquires.
 Here pleas'd behold her mighty wings outspread
 To hatch a new Saturnian age of Lead.

Close

VARIATIONS.

After Ver. 22. in the MS.

Or in the graver Gown instruct mankind,
 Or silent let thy morals tell thy mind.

But this was to be understood, as the Poet says, ironicè, like the 23d Verse.

VER. 29. Close to those walls, &c.] In the former Edd. thus,
 Where wave the tatter'd ensigns of Rag-fair,
 A yawning ruin hangs and nods in air ;
 Keen, hollow winds howl through the bleak recess,
 Emblem of Music caus'd by Emptiness ;
 Here in one bed two shiv'ring Sisters lie,
 The cave of Poverty and Poetry.

Var. Where wave the tatter'd ensigns of Rag-fair,] Rag-fair is a place near the Tower of London, where old clothes and frippery are fold. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 23. Or praise the Court, or magnify Mankind,] Ironicè, alluding to Gulliver's representations of both.—The next line relates to the papers of the Drapier against the currency of Wood's Copper coin in Ireland, which, upon the great discontent of the People, his Majesty was graciously pleas'd to recal.

WARBURTON.

VER. 28. To hatch a new Saturnian age of Lead.] For the old Saturnian age was of gold. So Hall, Book iii. Sat. I. from Juvenal, vi. I. in very polished verses for that age :

“ Time was, and that was term'd the time of gold,
 When World and Time were young, that now are old :
 When quiet Saturne sway'd the mace of lead,
 And Pride was yet unborne, and yet unbred.”

Our Poet further develops this thought in Dunciad, iv. 15.

“ Of dull and venal a new world to mould,
 And bring Saturnian days of lead and gold.” WAKEFIELD.

Cloſe to thoſe walls where Folly holds her throne,
 And laughs to think Monroe would take her down,
 Where o'er the gates, by his fam'd father's hand, 31
 Great Cibber's brazen, brainleſs brothers ſtand;
 One Cell there is, conceal'd from vulgar eye,
 The Cave of Poverty and Poetry.
 Keen, hollow winds howl thro' the bleak receſs,
 Emblem of Muſic cauſ'd by Emptineſs. 36
 Hence Bards, like Proteus long in vain ty'd down,
 Eſcape in Monſters, and amaze the town.

Hence

REMARKS.

VER. 30. And laughs, &c.] Bedlam, whoſe patients were under Dr. Monroe. This alluſion to the moſt awful and afflicting of human calamities, is unworthy a man of humaniſed feelings; and the compariſon of Cibber to the fine figures of Melancholy and Raving Madneſs, executed by his father, is diſgraceful only to the Author.

VER. 31. By his fam'd father's hand,] Mr. Caius-Gabriel Cibber, father of the Poet Laureate. The two Statues of the Lunatics over the gates of Bedlam-hoſpital were done by him, and (as the ſon juſtly ſays of them) are no ill monuments of his fame as an Artiſt.

WARBURTON.

VER. 34. Poverty and Poetry.] I cannot here omit a remark that will greatly endear our Author to every one, who ſhall attentively obſerve that Humanity and Candor, which every where appears in him towards thoſe unhappy objects of the ridicule of all mankind, the bad Poets. He here imputes all ſcandalous rhymes, ſcurrilous weekly papers, baſe flatteries, wretched elegies, ſongs, and verſes, (even from thoſe ſung at Court, to ballads, in the ſtreets,) not ſo much to malice or fervility, as to Dulneſs; and not ſo much to Dulneſs, as to Neceſſity. And thus, at the very commencement of his Satire, makes an apology for all that are to be ſatirized.

WARBURTON.

VER. 37. *Hence Bards, like Proteus long in vain ty'd down,
 Eſcape in Monſters, and amaze the town.*]

Ovid has given us a very orderly account of theſe eſcapes;

“ Sunt

Hence Miscellanies spring, the weekly boast
Of Curl's chaste press, and Lintot's rubric post :

Hence

REMARKS.

“Sunt quibus in plures jus est transire figuras :
Ut tibi, complexi terram maris incola, PROTEU ;
Nunc violentus Aper ; nunc, quem tetigisse timerent,
Anguis eras ; modo te faciebant cornua Tauram :
Sæpe Lapis poteras.” Met. viii.

Neither Palæphatus, Phurnutus, nor Heraclides, give us any steady light into the mythology of this mysterious fable. If I be not deceived in a part of learning which has so long exercised my pen, by Proteus must certainly be meant a hacknied Town scribbler ; and by his transformation, the various disguises such a one assumes, to elude the pursuit of his natural enemy, the Bailiff. And in this light, doubtless, Horace understood the fable, where, speaking of Proteus, he says, “Quum RAPIES in JUS malis ridentem alienis, Fiet aper,” &c.

Proteus is represented as one bred of the mud and slime of Egypt, the original soil of Arts and Letters ; and what, I pray you, is a Town-scribbler, but a creature made up of the excrements of luxurious Science ? By the change then into a Boar, is meant his character of a furious and dirty Party-writer ; the Snake signifies a Libeller ; and the Horns of the Bull, the Dilemmas of a Polemical Answerer. These are the three great Parts he assumes ; and when he has completed his circle, he sinks back again (as the last change into a Stone denotes) into his natural state of immoveable Stupidity. Hence it is, that the Poet, where speaking at large of all these various Metamorphoses in the second Book, describes MOTHER OSBORNE, the great Antitype of our Proteus, in ver. 312. after all her changes, as at last quite stupified to Stone. If I may expect thanks of the learned world for this discovery, I would by no means deprive that excellent Critic of his share, who discovered before me, that in the character of Proteus was designed Sophistam, Magum, Politicum, præsertim rebus omnibus sese accommodantem. Which in English is, A political Writer, a Libeller, and a Disputer, writing indifferently for or against every Party in the state,

Hence hymning Tyburn's elegiac lines,
 Hence Journals, Medleys, Merc'ries, MAGAZINES :
 Sepulchral

VARIATIONS.

VER. 41. In the former Edd.

Hence hymning Tyburn's elegiac Lay,
 Hence the soft sing-fong on Cecilia's Day.

VER. 42. Alludes to the annual Songs composed to Music on St. Cecilia's Feast. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

state, every Sect in religion, and every Character in private life.
 See my Fables of Ovid explained. ABBE BANIER. *

A very close resemblance to the following lines of Dr. Young, in his first epistle on the Authors of the Age, addressed to Mr.
 Pope :

“ How justly Proteus' transmigrations fit
 The monstrous changes of a modern wit ?
 Now, such a gentle stream of eloquence,
 As seldom rises to the verge of sense ;
 Now, by mad rage transform'd into a flame,
 Which yet fit engines well apply'd can tame ;
 Now, on immodest trash the swine obscene
 Invites the town to sup at Drury-Lane ;
 A dreadful Lion, now, he roars at Pow'r,
 Which sends him to his brothers at the Tow'r ;
 He's now, a Serpent, and his double tongue
 Salutes, nay licks the feet of those he stung.” WARTON.

VER. 40. Curl's chaste press, and Lintot's rubric post :] Two booksellers, of whom see Book ii. The former was fined by the Court of King's Bench for publishing obscene Books ; the latter usually adorned his shop with titles in red letters. WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 41, 42. Hence hymning Tyburn's—Hence, &c.

——— “ Genus unde Latinum, Albanique patres, atque altæ mœnia Romæ.”

VIRG. Æneid. i.

* Abbé Banier, under whose character this Note is written, is the well-known author of Ancient Mythology.

Sepulchral Lies, our holy Walls to grace,
And New-year Odes, and all the Grub-street race.

In clouded Majesty here Dulness shone; 45
Four guardian Virtues, round, support her throne:
Fierce

REMARKS.

VER. 41. Hence hymning Tyburn's elegiac lines,] It is an ancient English custom, for the Malefactors to sing a Psalm at their execution at Tyburn; and no less customary to print Elegies on their deaths, at the same time, or before. WARBURTON.

VER. 42. MAGAZINES:] The common names of those monstrous collections in prose and verse; where Dulness assumes all the various shapes of Folly to draw in and cajole the Rabble. The eruption of every miserable Scribbler; the dirty scum of every stagnant Newspaper; the rags of worn-out Nonfense and Scandal, picked up from every Dunghill; under the title of Essays, Reflections, Queries, Songs, Epigrams, Riddles, &c. equally the disgrace of Wit, Morality, and Common Sense. POPE. *

It is but justice to add, that the Gentleman's Magazine, the first of its kind, does by no means deserve this severe sarcasm; but has been a means of preserving many useful and fugitive pieces on many interesting subjects. WARTON.

VER. 43. Sepulchral Lies,] Is a just satire on the Flatteries and Falsehoods admitted to be inscribed on the walls of Churches, in Epitaphs; which occasioned the following Epigram;

“ FRIEND! in your Epitaphs, I'm griev'd,
So very much is said:
One half will never be believ'd,
The other never read.”

WARBURTON.

The Epigram here inserted, alludes to the too long, and sometimes, fulsome Epitaphs, written by Dr. FRIEND, in pure Latinity indeed, but full of Antitheses. WARTON.

VER. 44. New-year Odes,] Made by the Poet Laureate for the time being, to be sung at court on every New-year's day, the

IMITATIONS.

VER. 45. In clouded Majesty]

——— “ the Moon

Rising in clouded Majesty.”—— MILTON, book iv.

Fierce champion Fortitude, that knows no fears
 Of hisses, blows, or want, or loss of ears :
 Calm Temperance, whose blessings those partake
 Who hunger and who thirst for scribbling sake : 50
 Prudence, whose glass presents th' approaching jail :
 Poetic justice, with her lifted scale,
 Where, in nice balance, truth with gold she weighs,
 And solid pudding against empty praise.

Here

REMARKS.

the words of which are happily drowned in the voices and instruments.

WARBURTON.

VER. 50. Who hunger and who thirst, &c.] “ This is an allusion to a text in Scripture, which shews, in Mr. Pope, a delight in prophaneness,” said Curl upon this place. But it is very familiar with Shakespear to allude to passages of Scripture. Out of a great number I will select a few, in which he not only alludes to, but quotes, the very Text from holy Writ. In All's well that ends well, I am no great Nebuchadnezzar, I have not much skill in grass. Ibid. They are for the flowery way that leads to the broad gate and the great fire, Matt. vii. 13. In Much ado about nothing, All, all, and moreover God saw him when he was hid in the Garden, Gen. iii. 8. (in a very jocosé scene). In Love's Labour Lost, he talks of Samson carrying the gates on his back ; in the Merry Wives of Windsor, of Goliath and the weaver's beam ; and in Henry IV. Falstaff's soldiers are compared to Lazarus and the prodigal son.—The first part of this Note is Mr. CURL's, the rest is Mr. Theobald's, Appendix to Shakespear restor'd, p. 144.

WARBURTON.

It seems to be rather an odd and a weak defence of using a phrase of Scripture lightly and profanely, to say that Shakespear did so.

WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 48.

— that knows no fears

Of hisses, blows, or want, or loss of ears :]

“ Quem neque pauperies, neque mors, neque vincula terrent.”

HOR.

Here she beholds the Chaos dark and deep, 55
 Where nameless Somethings in their causes sleep,
 Till genial Jacob, or a warm Third day,
 Call forth each mass, a Poem, or a Play :

How

REMARKS.

VER. 55. beholds the Chaos] This passage from hence down to verse 78, is an instance of great power and elegance of Style on a subject that with such difficulty admits of either. WARTON.

VER. 55. Here she beholds the Chaos dark and deep, Where nameless Somethings in their causes sleep,]

Milton, Par. Lost, iii. 11.

“ The rising world of waters, dark and deep.”

Garth’s Dispensary, vi. 113.

“ Here his forsaken seat old Chaos keeps ;
 And, undisturb’d by Form, in silence sleeps :”

which is an imitation of a fine passage in Cowley, David : i. 79.

“ Where their vast court the mother-waters keep ;
 And, undisturb’d by moons, in silence sleep.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 57. Jacob,] A race of booksellers, that did honor to their profession for integrity and encouragement of Authors. Jacob Tonson was admitted to the familiarity and friendship of the most eminent writers of his time ; who made him a present of their portraits by good masters. WARTON.

VER. 57. genial Jacob,] Tonson made a great fortune, and built Down-Place in Berkshire, on the banks of the Thames, near Windsor ; which was afterwards the seat of the Duke of Argyle, and is now in the possession of John Huddleston, Esq. who purchased it of Mr. Church.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 55. Here she beholds the Chaos dark and deep, Where nameless Somethings, &c.]

That is to say, unform’d things, which are either made into Poems or Plays, as the Booksellers or the Players bid most. These lines allude to the following in Garth’s Dispensary, Cant. vi.

VOL. V.

H

“ Within

How hints, like spawn, scarce quick in embryo lie,
 How new-born nonsense first is taught to cry, 60
 Maggots half-form'd in rhyme exactly meet,
 And learn to crawl upon poetic feet.
 Here one poor word an hundred clenches makes,
 And ductile Dulness new meanders takes ;
 There motley Images her fancy strike, 65
 Figures ill pair'd, and Similes unlike.
 She sees a Mob of Metaphors advance,
 Pleas'd with the madness of the mazy dance !

How

REMARKS.

VER. 63. Here one poor word an hundred clenches makes,] It may not be amiss to give an instance or two of these operations of Dulness out of the Works of her Sons, celebrated in the Poem. A great Critic formerly held these clenches in such abhorrence, that he declared, "he that would pun, would pick a pocket." Yet Mr. Dennis's works afford us notable examples in this kind ; " Alexander Pope hath sent abroad into the world as many Bulls as his namesake Pope Alexander.—Let us take the initial and final letters of his name, viz. A. P—E, and they give you the idea of an Ape.—Pope comes from the Latin word Popa, which signifies a little wart : or from popysma, because he was continually poping out squibs of wit, or rather Popysmata or Popysmus." DENNIS ON Hom. and Daily Journal, June 11, 1728. POPE.

IMITATIONS.

" Within the chambers of the globe they spy
 The beds where sleeping vegetables lie,
 Till the glad summons of a genial ray
 Unbinds the glebe, and calls them out to day."

WARBURTON.

VER. 64. And ductile Dulness, &c.] A parody on a verse in Garth, Cant. i.

" How ductile matter new meanders takes."

WARBURTON.

How Tragedy and Comedy embrace ;
 How Farce and Epic get a jumbled race ; 70
 How Time himself stands still at her command,
 Realms shift their place, and Ocean turns to land.
 Here gay Description Egypt glads with show'rs,
 Or gives to Zembla fruits, to Barca flow'rs ;
 Glitt'ring with ice here hoary hills are seen, 75
 There painted vallies of eternal green,
 In cold December fragrant chaplets blow,
 And heavy harvests nod beneath the snow.
 All these, and more, the cloud-compelling Queen
 Beholds thro' fogs, that magnify the scene. 80
 She,

REMARKS.

VER. 70, &c. How Farce and Epic—How Time himself, &c.] Allude to the transgressions of the Unities in the Plays of such poets. For the miracles wrought upon Time and Place, and the mixture of Tragedy and Comedy, Farce and Epic, see Pluto and Proserpine, Penelope, &c. 'if yet extant. WARBURTON.

VER. 73. Egypt glads with show'rs,] In the Lower Egypt rain is of no use, the overflowing of the Nile being sufficient to impregnate the soil.—These six verses represent the inconsistencies in the descriptions of poets, who heap together all glittering and gaudy images, though incompatible in one season, or in one scene.

See the Guardian, N° 40. parag. 6. See also Eusden's whole works, if to be found. It would not have been unpleasant to have given examples of all these species of bad writing from these Authors, but that it is already done in our Treatise of the Bathos. SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 74. Or gives to Zembla fruits, to Barca flow'rs ;] The whole of this description of inconsistent beauties in descriptive Poetry, is finely worked up, and exhibits the hand of a master.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 79. The cloud-compelling Queen] From Homer's Epithet of Jupiter, νεφελιγέρετα Ζεύς. WARBURTON.

She, tinsel'd o'er in robes of varying hues,
 With self-applause her wild creation views ;
 Sees momentary monsters rise and fall,
 And with her own fools-colours gilds them all.

'Twas on the day, when * * rich and grave, 85
 Like Cimon, triumph'd both on land and wave :
 (Pomps without guilt, of bloodless swords and maces,
 Glad chains, warm furs, broad banners, and broad faces)

Now

VARIATIONS.

VER. 85. in the former Editions,

'Twas on the day when Thorold, rich and grave.

Sir George Thorold, Lord Mayor of London in the year 1720.

WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 79. The cloud-compelling] Gray has left a very fine fragment of an hymn to Ignorance, very much in the manner of the Dunciad ; " Many of the lines of this fragment (says Mr. Mason) are so strong, and the general cast of the versification so musical, that I believe it will give the generality of readers a higher opinion of his poetical talents, than many of his lyrical productions have done. I speak of the generality ; because it is a certain fact, that their taste is founded upon the ten-syllable couplets of Dryden and Pope, and upon these only." P. 176.

WARTON.

VER. 85, 86. *'Twas on the day when * * rich and grave, Like Cimon, triumph'd*] Viz. a Lord Mayor's Day, his name the author had left in blanks, but most certainly could never be that which the Editor foisted in formerly, and which no way agrees with the chronology of the poem.

BENTLEY.

The procession of a Lord Mayor is made partly by land, and partly by water.—Cimon, the famous Athenian General, obtained a victory by sea, and another by land, on the same day, over the Persians and Barbarians.

WARBURTON.

VER. 88. Glad chains,] The ignorance of these Moderns ! This was altered in one edition to Gold chains, shewing more regard to the metal of which the chains of Aldermen are made, than

Now Night descending, the proud scene was o'er,
 But liv'd, in Settle's numbers, one day more. 90
 Now May'rs and Shrieves all hush'd and fatiate lay,
 Yet eat, in dreams, the custard of the day ;
 While pensive Poets painful vigils keep,
 Sleepless themselves to give their readers sleep.
 Much to the mindful Queen the feast recalls 95
 What City Swans once sung within the walls ;
 Much she revolves their arts, their ancient praise,
 And sure succession down from Heywood's days.

She

REMARKS.

than to the beauty of the Latinism and Græcism, nay of figurative speech itself: Lætus segetes, glad, for making glad, &c.

SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 90. But liv'd, in Settle's numbers, one day more.] A beautiful manner of speaking, usual with poets in praise of poetry, in which kind nothing is finer than those lines of Mr. Addison :

“ Sometimes, misguided by the tuneful throng,
 I look for streams immortaliz'd in song,
 That lost in silence and oblivion lie,
 Dumb are their fountains, and their channels dry ;
 Yet run for ever by the Muses skill,
 And in the smooth description murmur still.”

WARBURTON.

Ibid. But liv'd, in Settle's numbers, one day more.] Settle was poet to the City of London. His office was to compose yearly panegyrics upon the Lord Mayors, and verses to be spoken in the Pageants : But that part of the shows being at length frugally abolished, the employment of City-poet ceased ; so that upon Settle's demise there was no successor to that place.

WARBURTON.

VER. 98. John Heywood, whose Interludes were printed in the time of Henry VIII.

WARBURTON.

She saw, with joy, the line immortal run,
 Each fire imprest and glaring in his son : 100
 So watchful Bruin forms, with plastic care,
 Each growing lump, and brings it to a Bear.
 She saw old Pryn in restless Daniel shine,
 And Eufden eke out Blackmore's endless line ;

She

REMARKS.

VER. 103. Restless Daniel] I am sorry to find De Foe placed in such company. He was a writer of uncommon genius and fertility of fancy. Witness his Robinson Crusoe, in which a wonderful reach of invention is displayed; his History of the Plague in London, which for a long time imposed on Dr. Mead who thought it genuine; and his Memoirs of a Cavalier, a favourite book of the great Earl of Chatham, who spoke of it as the best account of the Civil Wars extant; and who, when he was at last convinced that it was all a fiction, cried out,

—Sic extorta voluptas,

Et demptus per vim mentis gratissimus error.

Among other entertaining works, De Foe wrote, in prison, 1703, a Review, consisting of a Scandal Club, as he entitled it, on questions of Theology, Morals, Politics, Trade, Language, Poetry, Love, &c. which Mr. Chalmers thinks gave a hint for the plan of the Tatler and Spectator. WARTON.

VER. 104. And Eufden eke out, &c.] Laurence Eufden Poet Laureate. Mr. Jacob gives a catalogue of some few only of his works, which were very numerous. Mr. Cook, in his Battle of Poets, faith of him, “Eufden, a laurel'd Bard, by fortune rais'd,

By very few was read, by fewer prais'd.”

Mr. Oldmixon, in his Arts of Logic and Rhetoric, p. 413, 414, affirms, “That of all the Galimatias's he ever met with, none comes up to some verses of this poet, which have as much of the Ridiculum and the Fustian in them as can well be jumbled together, and are of that sort of nonsense, which so perfectly confounds all ideas, that there is no distinct one left in the mind.” Further he says of him, “That he hath prophesied his own poetry shall be sweeter than Catullus, Ovid, and Tibullus; but we have little hope

She saw slow Philips creep like Tate's poor page,
 And all the mighty Mad in Dennis rage. 106
 In

REMARKS.

hope of the accomplishment of it, from what he hath lately published." Upon which Mr Oldmixon has not spared a reflection, "That the putting the Laurel on the head of one who writ such verses, will give futurity a very lively idea of the judgment and justice of those who bestow'd it." Ibid. p. 417. But the well-known learning of that noble Person, who was then Lord Chamberlain, might have screen'd him from this unmannerly reflection. Nor ought Mr. Oldmixon to complain, so long after, that the Laurel would have better become his own brows, or any others: It were more decent to acquiesce in the opinion of the Duke of Buckingham upon this matter:

— "In rush'd Eusden, and cry'd, Who shall have it,
 But I, the true Laureate, to whom the King gave it?
 Apollo begg'd pardon, and granted his claim,
 But vow'd that till then he ne'er heard of his name."

Session of Poets.

The same plea might also serve for his successor, Mr. Cibber; and is further strengthened in the following Epigram, made on that occasion:

"In merry Old England it once was a rule,
 The King had his Poet, and also his Fool:
 But now we're so frugal, I'd have you to know it,
 That Cibber can serve both for Fool and for Poet."

Of Blackmore, see Book ii. Of Philips, Book i. ver. 262. and Book iii. prope fin.

Nahum Tate was Poet Laureate, a cold writer, of no invention; but sometimes translated tolerably, when befriended by Mr. Dryden. In his second part of Abfalom and Achitophel are above two hundred admirable lines together of that great hand, which strongly shine through the inspidity of the rest. Something parallel may be observed of another author here mentioned.

WARBURTON.

VER. 106. And all the mighty Mad in Dennis rage.] Mr. Theobald, in the Censor, vol. ii. N. 33. calls Mr. Dennis by the name of Furius. "The modern Furius is to be looked upon as more an object of pity, than of that which he daily provokes, laughter and

In each she marks her Image full exprest,
But chief in BAYS's monster-breeding breast ;

Bays,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 108. But chief in BAYS's, &c.] In the former Editions thus :

But chief, in Tibbald's monster-breeding-breast ;
Sees Gods with Demons in strange league engage,
And earth, and heav'n, and hell, her battles wage.
She ey'd the Bard, where supperless he fate,
And pin'd, unconscious of his rising fate ;
Studious he fate, with all his books around,
Sinking from thought to thought, &c.

Var. Tibbald] Author of a pamphlet intitled, Shakespear restor'd. During two whole years, while Mr. Pope was preparing his Edition of Shakespear, he published Advertisements, requesting assistance, and promising satisfaction to any who could contribute to its greater perfection. But this Restorer, who was at that time soliciting favours of him by letters, did wholly conceal his design, till after its publication : (which he was since not ashamed to own, in a Daily Journal of Nov. 26, 1728.) And then an outcry was made in the Prints, that our Author had joined with the Bookseller to raise an extravagant subscription; in which he had no share, of which he had no knowledge, and against which he had publicly advertised in his own proposals for Homer. Probably that proceeding elevated Tibbald to the dignity he holds in this Poem, which he seems to deserve no other way better than his brethren ; unless we impute it to the share he had in the Journals, cited among the Testimonies of Authors prefixed to this work.

WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

contempt. Did we really know how much this poor man [I wish that reflection on poverty had been spared] suffers by being contradicted, or, which is the same thing in effect, by hearing another praised ; we should, in compassion, sometimes attend to him with a silent nod, and let him go away with the triumphs of his ill-nature.—Poor Furius [again] when any of his cotemporaries are spoken well of, quitting the ground of the present dispute, steps back a thousand years to call in the succour of the Ancients. His very panegyric is spiteful, and he uses it for the same reason

as

Bays, form'd by nature Stage and Town to blefs,
 And act, and be, a Coxcomb with fuccefs. 110
 Dulnefs

VARIATIONS.

Var. Tibbald] Yet this Tibbald, contemptible as he is here represented to be, was assisted in his edition of Shakespear by Warburton, published in six volumes octavo; and he mentions, as he well might, Warburton's assistance, as a great support of his work. This edition of Tibbald was justly esteemed the best, till those of Malone and Steevens appeared. WARTON.

REMARKS.

as some Ladies do their commendations of a dead beauty, who would never have had their good word, but that a living one happened to be mentioned in their company. His applause is not the tribute of his Heart, but the sacrifice of his Revenge," &c. Indeed his pieces against our poet are somewhat of an angry character, and as they are now scarce extant, a taste of his style may be satisfactory to the curious. "A young, squab, short gentleman, whose outward form, though it should be that of downright monkey, would not differ so much from human shape as his unthinking immaterial part does from human understanding.—He is as stupid and as venomous as a hunch-back'd toad.—A book through which folly and ignorance, those brethren so lame and impotent, do ridiculously look very big and very dull, and strut and hobble, cheek by jowl, with their arms on kimbo, being led and supported, and bully-back'd by that blind Hector, Impudence." Reflect. on the Essay on Criticism, p. 26, 29, 30.

It would be unjust not to add his reasons for this Fury, they are so strong and so coercive: "I regard him (saith he) as an Enemy, not so much to me, as to my King, to my Country, to my Religion, and to that Liberty which has been the sole felicity of my life. A vagary of Fortune, who is sometimes pleased to be frolicksome, and the epidemic Madness of the times have given him Reputation, and Reputation (as Hobbes says) is Power, and that has made him dangerous. Therefore I look on it as my duty to King George, whose faithful subject I am; to my Country, of which I have appeared a constant lover; to the Laws, under whose protection I have so long lived; and to the Liberty of my Country, more dear to me than life, of which I have now for forty years been a constant assertor, &c. I look upon it as my duty,

Dulness with transport eyes the lively Dunce,
Rememb'ring she herself was Pertness once.

Now

REMARKS.

duty, I say, to do—you shall see what—to pull the lion's skin from this little Afs, which popular error has thrown round him; and to shew that this Author, who has been lately so much in vogue, has neither Sense in his thoughts, nor English in his expressions." DENNIS, Rem. on Hom. Pref. p. 2, 91, &c.

Besides these public-spirited reasons, Mr. D. had a private one; which, by his manner of expressing it in p. 92. appears to have been equally strong. He was even in bodily fear of his life from the machinations of the said Mr. P. "The story (says he) is too long to be told, but who would be acquainted with it, may hear it from Mr. Curl, my Bookseller.—However, what my reason has suggested to me, that I have with a just confidence said, in defiance of his two clandestine weapons, his Slander and his Poison." Which last words of his book plainly discover Mr. D's suspicion was that of being poisoned, in like manner as Mr. Curl had been before him: Of which fact see A full and true account of a horrid and barbarous revenge, by poison, on the body of Edmund Curl, printed in 1716, the year antecedent to that wherein these Remarks of Mr. Dennis were published. But what puts it beyond all question, is a passage in a very warm treatise, in which Mr. Dennis was also concerned, price two-pence, called A true Character of Mr. Pope and his Writings, printed for S. Popping, 1716: in the tenth page whereof he is said "to have insulted people on those calamities and diseases which he himself gave them, by administering Poison to them:" and is called (p. 4) "a lurking way-laying coward, and a stabber in the dark." Which (with many other things most lively set forth in that piece) must have rendered him a terror, not to Mr. Dennis only, but to all christian people. This charitable warning only provoked our incorrigible Poet to write the following Epigram:

Should Dennis publish, you had stabb'd your Brother,
Lampoon'd your Monarch, or debauch'd your Mother;
Sàys, what revenge on Dennis can be had?
Too dull for laughter, for reply too mad:
On one so poor you cannot take the law;
On one so old your sword you scorn to draw

Uncag'd

Now (fame to Fortune!) an ill Run at Play
Blank'd his bold vifage, and a thin Third day:
Swearing

REMARKS.

Uncag'd then let the harmless monster rage,
Secure in dulness, madness, want, and age.

For the rest; Mr. John Dennis was the son of a Sadler, in London, born in 1657. He paid court to Mr. Dryden: and having obtained some correspondence with Mr. Wycherley * and Mr. Congreve, he immediately obliged the public with their Letters. He made himself known to the Government by many admirable schemes and projects; which the Ministry, for reasons best known to themselves, constantly kept private. For his character, as a writer, it is given us as follows: "Mr. Dennis is excellent at Pindaric writings, perfectly regular in all his performances, and a person of sound Learning. That he is master of a great deal of Penetration and Judgment, his criticisms (particulary on Prince Arthur) do sufficiently demonstrate." From the same account it also appears that he writ Plays "more to get Reputation than Money." DENNIS of himself. See Giles Jacob's Lives of Dram. Poets, p. 68, 69. compared with p. 286.

WARBURTON.

The most candid and ample account of Dennis is given in the New Edition of the Biographia Britannica by Dr. Kippis.

WARTON.

VER. 109. Bays, form'd by nature, &c.] It is hoped the Poet here hath done full justice to his Hero's character, which it were a great mistake to imagine was wholly sunk in stupidity: he is allowed to have supported it with a wonderful mixture of Vivacity. This character is heightened according to his own desire, in a Letter he wrote to our author: "Pert and dull at least you might have allowed me. What! am I only to be dull, and dull still, and again, and for ever?" He then solemnly appealed to his own conscience, "that he could not think himself so, nor believe that our Poet did; but that he spoke worse of him than he could possibly think; and concluded it must be merely to show his Wit, or for some Profit or Lucre to himself." Life of C. C. chap.

* Dennis was in habits of intimacy with Dryden, Congreve, and Wycherley; their manner of speaking of his learning and talents, is very different from Pope's or Warburton's.

Swearing and supperless the Hero fate, 115
 Blasphem'd his Gods, the Dice, and damn'd his Fate.
 Then gnaw'd his Pen, then dash'd it on the ground,
 Sinking from thought to thought, a vast profound!

Plung'd

REMARKS.

chap. vii. and Letter to Mr. P. pag. 15. 40. 53. And to show his claim to what the Poet was so unwilling to allow him, of being pert as well as dull, he declares he will have the last word; which occasioned the following Epigram:

Quoth Cibber to Pope, Tho' in verse you foreclose,
 I'll have the last Word; for, by G—, I'll write prose.
 Poor Colly, thy Reas'ning is none of the strongest,
 For know, the last Word is the Word that lasts longest.

WARBURTON.

It is a singular fact in the History of the English Stage, that the very first comedy, acted after the libertine times of the restoration, in which any decency, purity of manners, and respect to the honour of the marriage-bed, were preserved, was this very Cibber's Love's Last Shift. It was received with the greatest applause, particularly the scene of reconciliation in the last act. The candid Abbé d'Olivet in tom. ii. of his pleasing History of the French Academy, page 145. has zealously defended the abilities and character of Chapelain, the Cibber of Boileau. It was at the desire of Malherbe and Vaugelas that Chapelain wrote the famous preface to the Adone of Marino. And it was he who corrected the very first composition of Racine, whose Ode to the new Queen introduced him to Colbert, and procured him a pension. And it is remarkable, that Chapelain should be the person who first pointed out to Cardinal Richlieu, and the poets whom he employed, the necessity of observing the Three Unities in a drama. It is observable that Boileau at first had introduced Pelletier into his satires; and afterwards inserted the name of Collitet, in lines inapplicable to the latter. So unlucky were both these great poets, in the changes they made of the objects of their satire!

WARTON.

VER. 118. Sinking from thought] From Lord Rochester on Man, “Stumbling from thought to thought.”—— WARTON.

Plung'd for his sense, but found no bottom there,
 Yet wrote and flounder'd on, in mere despair. 120
 Round him much Embryo, much Abortion lay,
 Much future Ode, and abdicated Play;
 Nonsense precipitate, like running Lead,
 That flip'd thro' Cracks and Zig-zags of the Head;
 All that on Folly Frenzy could beget, 125
 Fruits of dull Heat, and Sooterkins of Wit.

Next,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 121. Round him much Embryo, &c.] In the former Editions thus,

He roll'd his eyes that witness'd huge dismay,
 Where yet unpawn'd, much learned lumber lay;
 Volumes, whose size the space exactly fill'd,
 Or which fond authors were so good to gild,
 Or where, by sculpture made for ever known,
 The page admires new beauties not its own.
 Here swells the shelf, &c. ——— WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

Var. He roll'd his eyes that witness'd huge dismay,]

———“round he throws his eyes,

That witness'd huge affliction and dismay.” MILT. b. i.

The progress of a bad poet in his thoughts being (like the progress of the Devil in Milton) through a Chaos, might probably suggest this imitation. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 118. Sinking from thought to thought, a vast profound!] Besides an allusion to Satan's precipitation in the second book of Paradise Lost, our Poet probably consulted Rochester also, at a vigorous passage in his Satire against Mankind:

“Stumbling, from thought to thought, falls headlong down
 Into Doubt's boundless sea; where, like to drown,
 Books bear him up a while, and make him try
 To swim with bladders of philosophy.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 125. All that on Folly] “To dwell too much on the Follies, Blunders, and Blemishes, of bad and despicable Dunces, (says

Next, o'er his Books his eyes began to roll,
 In pleasing memory of all he stole,
 How here he fipp'd, how there he plunder'd snug,
 And suck'd all o'er, like an industrious Bug. 130
 Here lay poor Fletcher's half-eat scenes, and here
 The Frippery of crucify'd Moliere ;
 There hapless Shakespear, yet of Tibbald fore,
 With'd he had blotted for himself before.

The

REMARKS.

(says Plutarch with his usual humanity), reminds one of Philip's project of collecting together all the most abandoned and incorrigible villains he could find, to people a new city which he had built, and called Poneropolis." WARTON.

VER. 129. How here he fipp'd,] Congreve borrowed much from Ben Johnson, (of whom he was remarkably fond), particularly the character of Bluff, and the first scene of the fifth Act of the Way of the World, betwixt Lady Withfort and her Maid Foible ; where she minutely describes her former way of life, and upbraids her for ingratitude, evidently from the scene betwixt the two sharpers, Subtle and Face, in the Alchymist. WARTON.

VER. 131. poor Fletcher's half-eat scenes,] A great number of them taken out to patch up his plays. WARBURTON.

VER. 132. The Frippery] "When I fitted up an old play, it was as a good housewife will mend old linen, when she has not better employment." Life, p. 217, Octavo. WARBURTON.

VER. 133. hapless Shakespear, &c.] It is not to be doubted but Bays was a subscriber to Tibbald's Shakespear. He was frequently liberal this way : and, as he tells us, "subscribed to Mr. Pope's Homer, out of pure Generosity and Civility ; but when Mr. Pope did so to his Nonjuror, he concluded it could be nothing but a joke." Letter to Mr. P. p. 24.

This Tibbald, or Theobald, published an edition of Shakespear, of which he was so proud himself as to say, in one of Mist's Journals, June 8, "That to expose any Errors in it was impracticable." And in another, April 27, "That whatever care might for the future be taken by any other Editor, he would still give above five hundred Emendations, that shall escape them all."

WARBURTON.

Book I. THE DUNCIAD. 111

The rest on Out-side merit but presume, 135
Or serve (like other Fools) to fill a room ;
Such with their shelves as due proportion hold,
Or their fond Parents drest in red and gold ;
Or where the pictures for the page atone,
And Quarles is fav'd by Beauties not his own. 140
Here

REMARKS.

VER. 134. Wish'd he had blotted] It was a ridiculous praise which the Players gave to Shakespear, "that he never blotted a line." Ben Johnson honestly wished he had blotted a thousand ; and Shakespear would certainly have wished the same, if he had lived to see those alterations in his works, which, not the Actors only (and especially the daring Hero of this Poem) have made on the Stage, but the presumptuous Critics of our days in their Editions.
WARBURTON.

VER. 135. The rest on Out-side merit, &c.] This Library is divided into three parts ; the first consists of those authors from whom he stole, and whose works he mangled ; the second, of such as fitted the shelves, or were gilded for shew, or adorned with pictures ; the third class our author calls solid learning, old Bodies of Divinity, old Commentaries, old English Printers, or old English Translations ; all very voluminous, and fit to erect altars to Dulness.
WARBURTON.

These six lines are below the usual vein of our author ; and the note upon them is very forced and unnatural. The prints in Ogilby's China, many of them by Hollar, atone for the page. Dryden used to say that Quarles excelled him in a facility of rhyming.
WARTON.

VER. 140. And Quarles] Quarles,—the pictures illustrating Quarles' Emblems ; a book not so much known or valued as it ought to be.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 140. In the former Edd.

The page admires new beauties not it's own.]

"Miraturque novas frondes et non sua poma."

VIRG. Georg. ii.

Here swells the shelf with Ogilby the great ;
 There, stamp'd with arms, Newcastle shines complete :
 Here

REMARKS.

VER. 141. Ogilby the great ;] “ John Ogilby was one who, from a late initiation into literature, made such a progress as might well style him the prodigy of his time ! sending into the world so many large Volumes ! His translations of Homer and Virgil done to the life, and with such excellent sculptures : And (what added great grace to his works) he printed them all on special good paper, and in a very good letter.” WINSTANLY, Lives of Poets.
 WARBURTON.

VER. 142. There, stamp'd, &c.] “ A list of her works, which fill many folio's, (says Walpole), here follows :

“ The World's Olio.—Nature's Picture drawn by Fancy's pencil to the life. In this volume (says the title) are several feigned stories of natural descriptions, as comical, tragical, and tragi-comical, poetical, romantical, philosophical, and historical, &c. &c. Lond. 1656. folio. One may guess how like this portrait of Nature is, by the fantastic bill of the features.—Orations of divers sorts, accommodated to divers places. Lond. 1662. folio.—Plays. Lond. 1662.—Philosophical and Physical Opinions. Lond. 1663. folio.—Observations upon Experimental Philosophy ; to which is added, the Description of a New World. Lond. 1668. folio. One Mr. James Bristow began to translate some part of these philosophic discourses into Latin.—Philosophical Letters. Lond. 1664. folio.—Poems and Phancies. Lond. 1664. folio.—Sociable Letters. Lond. 1664. folio.—The Life of the Duke her husband, &c. Lond. 1667. folio. It was translated into Latin.—Plays never before printed. Lond. 1668. folio.” Her plays alone are nineteen in number, and some of them in two parts. One of them, The Blazing World, is unfinished, her Grace (which seems never else to have happened to her) finding her genius not tend to the prosecution of it. To another, called The Prefence, are nine and twenty supernumerary scenes. In another, The Unnatural Tragedy, is a whole scene written against Cambden's Britannia ; her Grace thought, I suppose, that a geographic satire in the middle of a play, was mixing the utile with the dulci. Three volumes more, in folio, of her poems are preserved

Here all his fuff'ring brotherhood retire,
 And 'scape the martyrdom of jakes and fire :
 A Gothic Library! of Greece and Rome 145
 Well purg'd, and worthy Settle, Banks, and Broome.
 But,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 146. In the first Edit. it was,
 Well purg'd, and worthy W—y, W—s, and Bl—
 And in the following altered to Withers, Quarles, and Blome, on which was the following note :

It was printed in the surreptitious editions, Westly, Watts, who were persons eminent for good life : the one writ the Life of Christ in verse, the other some valuable pieces in the lyric kind on pious subjects. The line is here restored according to its original.

“ George Withers was a great pretender to poetical zeal against the vices of the times, and abused the greatest personages in power, which brought upon him frequent Correſſion. The Marſbalsea and Newgate were no strangers to him.” WINSTANLY.
Quarles was as dull a writer, but an honeſter man. Blome's books are remarkable for their cuts. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

preserved in manuscript. Whoever has a mind to know more of this fertile pedant, will find a detail of her works in Ballard's Memoirs, from whence I have taken this account.” WARTON.

VER. 146. worthy Settle, Banks, and Broome.] The Poet has mentioned these three authors in particular, as they are parallel to our Hero in his three capacities: 1. Settle was his Brother Laureate; only indeed upon half-pay, for the City instead of the Court; but equally famous for unintelligible flights in his poems on public occasions, such as Shows, Birth-days, &c. 2. Banks was his Rival in Tragedy (tho' more successful) in one of his Tragedies, the *Earl of Essex, which is yet alive: Anna Boleyn
 the

* The Earl of Essex of Banks. Of this play I think Addison says, that it is impossible to see it or read it without tears, although it does not contain one good line. The Poet was doubtless happy in the choice of a subject; but this could not produce the effect, without a judicious disposition of the events, and an accurate discrimination of the characters. BANNISTER.

But, high above, more solid Learning shone,
 The Classics of an Age that heard of none ;
 There Caxton slept, with Wynkyn at his side,
 One clasp'd in wood, and one in strong cow-hide ;
 There,

REMARKS.

the Queen of Scots, and Cyrus the Great, are dead and gone. These he dress'd in a sort of Beggar's Velvet, or a happy mixture of the thick Fustian, and thin Prosaic ; exactly imitated in Perolla and Isidora, Cæsar in Egypt, and the Heroic Daughter. 3. Broome was a serving man of Ben Jonson, who once picked up a Comedy from his Betters, or from some cast scenes of his Master, not entirely contemptible.

WARBURTON.

VER. 149. Caxton] A Printer in the time of Edw. IV. Rich. III. and Hen. VII. Wynkyn de Word, his successor, in that of Hen. VII. and VIII. The former, whom Bale intitles, Vir non omnino stupidus, translated into prose, Virgil's Æneis, as a history ; of which he speaks, in his Proem, in a very singular manner, as of a book hardly known. " Happened that to my hande cam a lytyl booke in frenche, whiche late was translated out of latyn by some noble clerke of fraunce, whiche booke is named Eneydos, (made in latyne by that noble poete & grete clerk Vyrghyle) : whiche booke I sawe over and redde therein, How after the generall destruccyon of the grete Troy, Eneas departed berynge his old fader anchifes upon his sholdres, his lytyl son yolas on his hande, his wyfe with moche other people followynge, and how he shipped and departed ; wythe all thystorye of his adventures that he had er he came to the atchievement of his conquest of ytalye, as all alonge shall be shewed in this present booke. In whiche booke I had grete playsyr, by cause of the fayr and honest termes & wordes in frenche, whiche I never sawe to fore lyke, ne none so playsaunt ne so well ordred ; whiche booke as me semed sholde be moch requyrite to noble men to see, as wel for the eloquence as the hystories. How wel that many hondred yerys passed was the sayd booke of Eneydos wyth other workes made and lerned dayly in scolis, especyally in ytalye and other places, whiche hystorye the sayd Vyrghyle made in metre." Tibbald quotes a rare passage from him in Mist's Journal of March 16, 1728,

There, fav'd by spice, like Mummies, many a year,
 Dry Bodies of Divinity appear : 152
 De Lyra there a dreadful front extends,
 And here the groaning shelves Philemon bends.

Of these twelve volumes, twelve of amplest size,
 Redeem'd from tapers and defrauded pies, 156
 Inspir'd he seizes : These an altar raise :
 An hecatomb of pure, unfully'd lays
 That altar crowns : A folio Common-place
 Founds the whole pile, of all his works the base :

Quartos,

REMARKS.

1728, concerning a straunge and mervyllouse beaste called Sagittarye, which he would have Shakespear to mean rather than Teucer, the Archer celebrated by Homer. WARBURTON.

An undeserved piece of ridicule, on an industrious man, whose labours introduced literature into this country. See what is said of him by one who was a real and rational lover of antiquity, in the History of English Poetry, vol. ii. WARTON.

VER. 152. Dry Bodies of Divinity] The impropriety of placing such sort of books in the library of Cibber, is not to be vindicated.

WARTON.

VER. 153. De Lyra there] He was born in Normandy of Jewish parents, educated under some learned Rabbis, and for many years devoted to Judaism. He afterwards was converted to Christianity, and became a Cordelier at Verneuil, 1291. He taught with great reputation at Paris, and was made executor to the will of King Philip's Queen. He died in an advanced age, 1340.

WARTON.

VER. 154. Philemon Holland, Doctor in Physic. "He translated so many books, that a man would think he had done nothing else; insomuch that he might be called Translator general of his age. The books alone of his turning into English are sufficient to make a Country Gentleman a complete Library." WINSTANLY.

WARBURTON.

Quartos, octavos, shape the less'ning pyre ; 161

A twisted Birth-day Ode completes the spire.

Then he : Great Tamer of all human art !

First in my care, and ever at my heart ;

Dulness ! whose good old cause I yet defend, 165

With whom my Muse began, with whom shall end,

E'er since Sir Fopling's Periwig was Praise,

To the last honours of the Butt and Bays :

O thou !

VARIATIONS.

VER. 162. A twisted, &c.] In the former Edd.

And last, a little Ajax tips the Spire. WARBURTON.

Altered for the worse. WARTON.

Var. a little Ajax] In duodecimo, translated from Sophocles by Tibbald. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 167. E'er since Sir Fopling's Periwig] The first visible cause of the passion of the Town for our Hero, was a fair flaxen full-bottom'd Periwig, which, he tells us, he wore in his first play of the Fool in fashion. It attracted, in a particular manner, the Friendship of Col. Brett, who wanted to purchase it. "Whatever contempt (says he) Philosophers may have for a fine Periwig, my friend, who was not to despise the world, but to live in it, knew very well that so material an article of dress upon the head of a man of sense, if it became him, could never fail of drawing to him a more partial Regard and Benevolence, than could possibly be hoped for in an ill-made one. This, perhaps, may soften the grave censure, which so youthful a purchase might otherwise have laid upon him. In a word, he made his attack upon this Periwig, as your young fellows generally do upon a lady of pleasure, first by a few

IMITATIONS.

VER. 166. With whom my Muse began, with whom shall end.]

"A te principium, tibi definit."— VIRG. Ecl. viii.

"Ἐκ Διὸς ἀρχώμεσθα, καὶ εἰς Δία λήγεις, Μῆσαι." THEOC.

"Prima dicte mihi, summa dicende Camæna." HOR.

O thou! of Bus'ness the directing foul!
 To this our head like byass to the bowl, 170
 Which, as more pond'rous, made its aim more true,

Obliquely wadling to the mark in view:
 O! ever gracious to perplex'd mankind,
 Still spread a healing mist before the mind;
 And, lest we err by Wit's wild dancing light, 175
 Secure us kindly in our native night.

Or,

REMARKS.

a few familiar praises of her person, and then a civil inquiry into the price of it; and we finished our bargain that night over a bottle." See Life, octavo, p. 303. This remarkable Periwig usually made its entrance upon the stage in a sedan, brought in by two chairmen, with infinite approbation of the audience. WARBURTON.

VER. 168. Butt and Bays] A butt of sack is part of the annual recompence of the Laureate, which is now commuted for so much money.

VER. 170. *To this our head like byass to the bowl,
 Which, as more pond'rous, made its aim more true,
 Obliquely wadling to the mark in view.*]

▲ An improvement on Dryden's Mac-Flecknoe:

" This is that boasted bias of the mind;
 By which, one way, to Dulness 'tis inclin'd;
 Which makes thy writings lean on one side still,
 And, in all changes, that way bends thy will."

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 170. byass to the bowl,] This imagery and illustration are inimitable. Pope had used the same simile before, in his corrections of some of Wycherley's pieces. I need not say, that the "byass" is a small piece of lead in a bowl, which prevents its swerving at first, but which, when the force of the direction is spent, makes the bowl

" Obliquely waddle to the mark."

Or, if to Wit a Coxcomb make pretence,
 Guard the fure barrier between that and Sense ;
 Or quite unravel all the reas'ning thread,
 And hang some curious cobweb in its stead ! 180
 As,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 177. Or, if to Wit, &c.] In the former Edd.

Ah ! still o'er Britain stretch that peaceful wand,
 Which lulls th' Helvetian and Batavian land ;
 Where rebel to thy throne if Science rife,
 She does but shew her coward face and dies :
 There thy good Scholiasts with unweary'd pains,
 Make Horace flat, and humble Maro's strains :
 Here studious I unlucky modern save,
 Nor sleeps one error in its father's grave,
 Old puns restore, lost blunders nicely seek,
 And crucify poor Shakespear once a week.
 For thee supplying, in the worst of days,
 Notes to dull books, and prologues to dull plays ;
 Not that my quill to critics was confin'd,
 My verse gave ampler lessons to mankind :
 So gravest precepts may successful prove,
 But sad examples never fail to move.
 As, forc'd from wind-guns, &c. WARBURTON.

These lines appear to be better than those in the present text.

WARTON.

Var. And crucify poor Shakespear once a week.] For some time, once a week or fortnight, he printed in Mist's Journal a single remark or poor conjecture on some word or pointing of Shakespear, either in his own name, or in letters to himself as from others without name. Upon these somebody made this Epigram :

“ 'Tis gen'rous, Tibbald ! in thee and thy brothers,
 To help us thus to read the works of others :
 Never for this can just returns be shown ;

For who will help us e'er to read thy own ?” WARBURTON.

Var. Notes to dull books, and prologues to dull plays ;] As to Cook's Hesiod, where sometimes a note, and sometimes even half a note, are carefully owned by him : And to Moore's Comedy of the Rival Modes, and other authors of the same rank : These were people who writ about the year 1726. WARBURTON.

As, forc'd from wind-guns, lead itself can fly,
 And pond'rous slugs cut swiftly thro' the sky;
 As clocks to weight their nimble motion owe,
 The wheels above urg'd by the load below:
 Me Emptiness, and Dulness could inspire, 185
 And were my Elasticity, and Fire.
 Some Demon stole my pen (forgive th' offence)
 And once betray'd me into common sense:
 Else all my Prose and Verse were much the same;
 This, prose on stilts; that, poetry fall'n lame. 190
 Did

REMARKS.

VER. 181. As, forc'd from wind-guns, &c.] The thought of these four verses is found in a poem of our Author's of a very early date (namely written at fourteen years old, and soon after printed) to the Author of a poem called Successio. WARBURTON.

VER. 185. Me Emptiness,] This first speech of the Hero is full of an impropriety that one could hardly believe our Author could fall into; it being contrary to all decorum, character, and probability, that Bays should address the Goddess Dulness, without disguising or mistaking her, as a despicable being; and should even call himself fool and blockhead. It is in truth outrageously unnatural and absurd. And so also is another and even more glaring breach of truth and decorum in book iv. v. 210. in making Aristarchus, that is, even the great and able Bentley, abuse himself, and laugh at his own labours. Bramstone has fallen into the same absurdity;

"A Footman I would be in outward shew,
 In sense and education truly so!" Man of Taste.

WARTON.

VER. 188. And once betray'd me into common sense.] Alluding, I presume, to the same performance, which he has so handsomely commended in his Imitations, Epist. ii. 1. 92.

"To Gammer Gurton if it gives the bays,
 And yet deny the Careless Husband praise."

WAKEFIELD.

Did on the stage my Fops appear confin'd?
 My Life gave ampler lessons to mankind.
 Did the dead Letter unsuccessful prove?
 The brisk Example never fail'd to move.
 Yet sure, had Heav'n decreed to save the State, 195
 Heav'n had decreed these works a longer date.
 Could Troy be sav'd by any single hand,
 This grey-goose weapon must have made her stand.
 What can I now? my Fletcher cast aside,
 Take up the Bible, once my better guide? 200
 Or

VARIATIONS.

VER. 195. Yet sure, had Heav'n, &c.] In the former Edd.
 Had Heav'n decreed such works a longer date,
 Heav'n had decreed to spare the Grubstreet-state.
 But see great Settle to the dust descend,
 And all thy cause and empire at an end!
 Could Troy be sav'd, &c. — WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 199. my Fletcher] A familiar manner of speaking, used by modern Critics, of a favourite author. Bays might as justly speak thus of Fletcher, as a French Wit did of Tully, seeing his works in a library, "Ah! mon cher Cicéron! je le connois bien; c'est le même que Marc Tulle." But he had a better title to call Fletcher his own, having made so free with him. WARBURTON.

VER. 200. Take up the Bible, once my better guide?] When, according to his Father's intention, he had been a Clergyman, or (as

IMITATIONS.

VER. 195. had Heav'n decreed, &c.] "Me si cœlicolæ voluissent ducere vitam,
 Has mihi fervassent sedes." — VIRG. Æneid. ii.

VER. 197, 198. Could Troy be sav'd—This grey-goose weapon] "Si Pergama dextra Defendi possent, etiam hac defensa fuissent." VIRG. ibid.

VER. 202. This Box my Thunder, this right hand my God?] "Dextra mihi Deus, et telum quod missile libro."
 VIRGIL of the Gods of Mezentius.

Or tread the path by vent'rous Heroes trod,
 This Box my Thunder, this right-hand my God?
 Or chair'd at White's amidst the Doctors fit,
 Teach Oaths to Gamesters, and to Nobles Wit?
 Or bidst thou rather Party to embrace? 205
 (A friend to Party thou, and all her race;
 'Tis the same rope at diff'rent ends they twist;
 To Dulness Ridpath is as dear as Mist.)
 Shall I, like Curtius, desp'rate in my zeal, 209
 O'er head and ears plunge for the Common-weal?
 Or

REMARKS.

(as he thinks himself) a Bishop of the Church of England. Hear his own words: "At the time that the fate of K. James, the Prince of Orange, and myself, were on the anvil, Providence thought fit to postpone mine, 'till theirs were determined: But had my father carried me a month sooner to the University, who knows but that purer fountain might have washed my Imperfections into a capacity of writing, instead of Plays and annual Odes, Sermons and Pastoral Letters?" Apology for his Life, chap. iii.

WARBURTON.

Cibber was sent to Winchester school at an early age, with a view that he might succeed to a fellowship of New-College.

VER. 203. at White's amidst the Doctors] These Doctors had a modest and upright appearance, no air of overbearing; but, like true Masters of Arts, were only habited in black and white: They were justly styled subtiles and graves, but not always irrefragabiles, being sometimes examined, and, by a nice distinction, divided and laid open.

SCRIBLERUS. *

This learned Critic is to be understood allegorically: The DOCTORS in this place mean no more than false Dice, a cant phrase used amongst Gamesters. So the meaning of these four sonorous Lines is only this, "Shall I play fair, or foul?" POPE.

VER. 208. Ridpath—Mist.] George Ridpath, author of a Whig Paper, called the Flying Post; Nathaniel Mist, of a famous Tory Journal.

WARBURTON.

Or rob Rome's ancient geese of all their glories,
 And cackling save the Monarchy of Tories?
 Hold—to the Minister I more incline;
 To serve his cause, O Queen! is serving thine.
 And see! thy very Gazetteers give o'er, 215
 Even Ralph repents, and Henley writes no more.

What

VARIATIONS.

VER. 213. Hold—to the Minister—] In the former Edd.
 Yes, to my Country I my pen consign,
 Yes, from this moment, mighty Mist! am thine.

WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 211. Or rob Rome's ancient geese of all their glories,] Relates to the well-known story of the geese that saved the Capitol; of which Virgil Æneid. viii.

“*Atque hic auratis volitans argenteus anser
 Porticibus, Gallos in limine adesse canebat.*”

A passage I have always suspected. Who sees not the antithesis of auratis and argenteus to be unworthy the Virgilian majesty? And what absurdity to say a goose sings? canebat. Virgil gives a contrary character of the voice of this silly bird, in Ecl. ix.

—“argutos inter strepere anser olores.”

Read it, therefore, adesse strepebat. And why auratis porticibus? does not the very verse preceding this inform us,

“Romuleoque recens horrebat regia culmo.”

Is this thatch in one line, and gold in another, consistent? I scruple not (repugnantibus omnibus manuscriptis) to correct it auritis. Horace uses the same epithet in the same sense,

—“Auritas fidibus canoris Ducere quercus.”

And to say that walls have ears is common even to a proverb.

SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 215. Gazetteers] A band of ministerial writers, hired at the price mentioned in the note on book ii. ver. 316. who, on the very day their patron quitted his post, laid down their paper, and declared they would never more meddle in Politics. WARBURTON.

What then remains? Ourself. Still, still remain
Cibberian forehead, and Cibberian brain.

This brazen Brightness, to the 'Squire so dear;
This polish'd Hardness, that reflects the Peer: 220
This arch Absurd, that wit and fool delights;
This Mefs, tofs'd up of Hockley-hole and White's;
Where Dukes and Butchers join to wreath my crown,
At once the Bear and Fiddle of the town.

O born in sin, and forth in folly brought! 225
Works damn'd, or to be damn'd! (your father's fault)
Go,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 225. O born in sin, &c.] In the former Edd.

Adieu, my Children! better thus expire
Un-stall'd, unfold; thus glorious mount in fire,
Fair without spot; than greas'd by grocers hands,
Or shipp'd with Ward to Ape-and-monkey lands,
Or wafting ginger, round the streets to run,
And visit Ale-house, where ye first begun.
With that he lifted thrice the sparkling brand,
And thrice he dropp'd it, &c.—— WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

Var. And visit Ale-house,] Waller on the Navy,
“Those tow'rs of Oak o'er fertile plains may go,
And visit mountains where they once did grow.”
WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 217. What then remains? Ourself.] An happy parody on the famous MOY of Corneille in his Medea; who unluckily weakened the force of this word by adding, & c'est assez. But the original is, in Seneca's Tragedy of Medea, ——— “Medea superest.” WARTON.

VER. 225. O born in sin, &c.] This is a tender passionate Apostrophe to his own works, which he is going to sacrifice, agreeable to the nature of man in great affliction; and reflecting like a parent on the many miserable fates to which they would otherwise be subject. WARBURTON.

Go, purify'd by flames, ascend the sky,
 My better and more christian progeny !
 Unstain'd, untouch'd, and yet in maiden sheets ;
 While all your smutty sisters walk the streets. 230
 Ye shall not beg, like gratis-given Bland,
 Sent with a Pafs, and vagrant thro' the land ;
 Nor fail with Ward, to Ape-and-monkey climes,
 Where vile Mundungus trucks for viler rhymes :

Not

REMARKS.

VER. 228. My better] Notwithstanding all our author's or his commentators efforts, to reduce to contempt Cibber's Apology for his Life, they will never be able to convince sensible and dispassionate readers, that it is not a work abounding in curious anecdotes, and in characters nicely and accurately drawn, though in a style indeed singular and affected. Swift was so highly pleased with Cibber's Life, that he sat up all night to read it, and would not quit it till he had finished the volume ; of which, when Cibber was informed, he shed tears of joy. WARTON.

VER. 231. gratis-given Bland—Sent with a Pafs,] It was a practice so to give the Daily Gazetteer and ministerial pamphlets (in which this B. was a writer) and to send them Post-free to all the Towns in the Kingdom. WARBURTON.

Bland was the Provost of Eton.

WARTON.

VER. 233.—with Ward, to Ape-and-monkey climes,] “ Edward Ward, a very voluminous poet in Hudibrastic verse, but best known by the London Spy, in prose. He has of late years kept a public house in the City, (but in a genteel way,) and with his wit, humour, and good liquor, (ale,) afforded his guests a pleasurable entertainment, especially those of the high-church party.”

IMITATIONS.

VER. 229. Unstain'd, untouch'd, &c.]

——— “ Fælix Priamœia virgo !

Iussa mori : quæ fortitus non pertulit ullos,

Nec victoris heri tetigit captiva cubile !

Nos, patria incensa, diversa per æquora vectæ,” &c.

VIRG. Æneid. iii.

Book I. THE DUNCIAD. 125

Not sulphur-tipt, emblaze an Alehouse fire; 235

Not wrap up Oranges, to pelt your fire!

O! pass more innocent, in infant state,

To the mild Limbo of our Father Tate:

Or peaceably forgot, at once be blest

In Shadwell's bosom with eternal Rest! 240

Soon

REMARKS.

party." JACOB, Lives of Poets, vol. ii. p. 225. Great numbers of his works were yearly sold into the Plantations.—Ward, in a book called Apollo's Maggot, declared this account to be a great falsity, protesting that his public house was not in the City, but in Moorfields. WARBURTON.

VER. 233. Nor sail with Ward,] Ward made the following remonstrance on his being placed in the Dunciad:

"The only excuse made in the Preface to the Dunciad, for the scurrilous liberties taken by the Author of that murderous Poem, is, that no man living is attacked, who had not before printed and published against this particular gentleman, meaning the Author. This apology, at first sight, may seem to the friendly reader no less than reasonable; but, in short, his unguarded assertion, though expressed in positive terms, without the least exception, happens to fall under the misfortune of being utterly false; for the Author of the following Poem (against Pope, under the name of Durgen), in answer to his general charge, does solemnly protest, that he never, till now, wrote a line that could give to the little gentleman the least provocation; therefore thinks himself at liberty, without a breach of good manners, to return a scratch for his bite; for a man may love peace, and yet be obliged to get into a quarrel."

So far Ward of himself, and his reply is very fair.

Pope's admirers say, that Ward had no right to complain, as Pope, in his Preface, had said, "no names were admitted of those, about whose dulness and scurrility all men were agreed." This is a poor excuse, unless Ward had published any thing, which I know not that he did, generally offensive to morals.

VER. 238—240. Tate—Shadwell] Two of his predecessors in the Laurel. WARBURTON.

Soon to that mass of Nonfense to return,
Where things destroy'd are swept to things unborn.

With that, a Tear (portentous sign of Grace!)
Stole from the Master of the sev'nfold Face :
And thrice he lifted high the Birth-day brand, 245
And thrice he dropt it from his quiv'ring hand ;
Then lights the structure with averted eyes :
The rolling smoke involves the sacrifice.
The op'ning clouds disclose each work by turns,
Now flames the Cid, and now Perolla burns ; 250
Great

REMARKS.

VER. 239. ——— at once be blest

In Shadwell's bosom with eternal rest.]

An indecorous allusion to Luke, xvi. 22. and in the same manner below, ver. 301. and ii. 174. WAKEFIELD.

VER. 244. ——— the Master of the sev'nfold Face :] A happy parody on Ovid, Met. xiii. 2.

——— "clypei dominus septemplicis Ajax :"

——— "the master of the sev'nfold shield." DRYDEN.

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 247. Then lights the structure with averted eyes.] An imitation of Virgil, Æn. vi. 223.

——— "subjectam, more parentum

Aversi, tenuere facem :"

"And fire the pile, their faces turn'd away." DRYDEN.

WAKEFIELD.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 245. And thrice he lifted high the Birth-day brand,] Ovid, of Althea on a like occasion, burning her offspring :

"Tum conata quater flammis imponere torrem, Cœpta quater tenuit."

VER. 250. Now flames the Cid, &c.]

——— "Jam Deiphobi dedit ampla ruinam,

Vulcano superante domus ; jam proximus ardet

Ucalegon."

WARBURTON.

Great Cæsar roars, and hisses in the fires ;
King John in silence modestly expires :

No

VARIATIONS.

VER. 250. Now flames the Cid, &c.] In the former Edd.

Now flames old Memnon, now Rodrigo burns,
In one quick flash see Proserpine expire,
And last, his own cold Eschylus took fire.
Then gush'd the Tears, as from the Trojan's eyes,
When the last blaze, &c.

Var. *Now flames old Memnon, now Rodigro burns,
In one quick flash see Proserpine expire.*]

Memnon, a Hero in the Persian Princess, very apt to take fire, as appears by these lines, with which he begins the play,

“ By heav'n it fires my frozen blood with rage,
And makes it scald my aged trunk.”

Rodrigo, the chief personage of the Perfidious Brother (a play written between Tibbald and a Watch-maker). The Rape of Proserpine, one of the Farces of this Author, in which Ceres setting fire to a corn-field, endangered the burning of the Play-house.

WARBURTON.

Var. And last, his own cold Eschylus took fire.] He had been (to use an expression of our Poet) about Eschylus for ten years, and had received subscriptions for the same, but then went about other books. The character of this tragic Poet is Fire and Boldness in a high degree, but our author supposes it very much cooled by the translation ; upon sight of a specimen of which was made this Epigram, “ Alas ! poor Eschylus ! unlucky Dog !

Whom once a Lobster kill'd, and now a Log !”

But this is a grievous error, for Eschylus was not slain by the fall of a Lobster on his head, but of a Tortoise, teste Val. Max. l. ix. cap. 12.

SCRIBLERUS.

REMARKS.

VER. 250. Now flames the Cid, &c.] In the first notes on the Dunciad it was said, that this Author was particularly excellent at Tragedy. “ This (says he) is as unjust as to say I could dance on a Rope.” But certain it is that he had attempted to dance on this Rope, and fell most shamefully, having produced no less than four Tragedies, (the names of which the Poet preserves in these

No merit now the dear Nonjuror claims,
 Moliere's old stubble in a moment flames.
 Tears gush'd again, as from pale Priam's eyes, 255
 When the last blaze sent Ilion to the skies.

Rouz'd

REMARKS.

few lines), the three first of them were fairly printed, acted, and damned; the fourth suppressed in fear of the like treatment.

WARBURTON.

VER. 252. King John] He has omitted a fifth tragedy written also by Cibber, Xerxes; which being rejected by the Patentees of Drury-Lane, was condemned at Lincoln's Inn Theatre; though Betterton and Mrs. Barry acted in it.

WARTON.

VER. 253. the dear Nonjuror—Moliere's old stubble] A Comedy threshed out of Moliere's Tartuffe, and so much the Translator's favourite, that he assures us all our author's dislike to it could only arise from disaffection to the Government:

“ Qui meprise Cotin, n'estime point fon Roi,

Et n'a, felon Cotin, ni Dieu, ni foi, ni loi.”

BOIL.

He assures us, that “when he had the honour to kiss his Majesty's hand upon presenting his dedication of it, he was graciously pleased, out of his Royal bounty, to order him two hundred pounds for it. And this he doubts not grieved Mr. P.”

WARBURTON.

And probably it did!

WARTON.

VER. 255. pale Priam's] Priam was informed of the fate of Troy, says Shakespear, by a form so pale, so woe-begone; for which last epithet, said a certain critic, we should read Ucalegon. He was Priam's next neighbour,—proximus ardet Ucalegon. An absurdity of the very first class!

WARTON.

VER. 255. Tears gush'd again, as from pale Priam's eyes,

When the last blaze sent Ilion to the skies.]

“O' my conscience,” says the Irishman, “the eel is the longest-liv'd creature I ever knew, after it is dead.” Priam lived to see the beginning of the conflagration, but not the end of it; having been murdered, according to Virgil, not very late in the fatal evening. A little of that learning, which his absurd petulance led him to ridicule in Bentley, would have been of service to Pope on this and some other occasions. A cursory recollection of Dryden's version, at Æn. ii. 692. might possibly be the cause of his mistake.

WAKEFIELD.

Rouz'd by the light, old Dulnefs heav'd the head,
 Then snatch'd a sheet of Thulè from her bed ;
 Sudden she flies, and whelms it o'er the pyre ;
 Down sink the flames, and with a hiss expire. 260

Her ample presence fills up all the place ;
 A veil of fogs dilates her awful face :
 Great in her charms ! as when on Shrieves and May'rs
 She looks, and breathes herself into their airs.

She

REMARKS.

VER. 258. Thulè] An unfinished poem of that name, of which one sheet was printed many years ago, by Ambrose Philips, a northern author. It is an usual method of putting out a fire, to cast wet sheets upon it. Some critics have been of opinion that this sheet was of the nature of the Asbestos, which cannot be consumed by fire : But I rather think it an allegorical allusion to the coldness and heaviness of the writing. WARBURTON.

Philips certainly deserved not to be treated with such acrimonious contempt, if we consider his epistle from Denmark ; his imitation of Strada ; his translations of Sappho, and Pindar ; and his Distress Mother ; though copied indeed from Racine. Pope himself commends the Epistle from Denmark in his Letters.

WARTON.

VER. 262. A veil of fogs dilates her awful face.] He had his eye on a couplet of Dryden, in Mac Fleckno ; a couplet of incomparable elegance :

“ His brows thick fogs, instead of glories, grace ;
 And lambent dulness play'd around his face.”

WAKEFIELD.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 263. *Great in her charms ! as when on Shrieves and May'rs
 She looks, and breathes herself into their airs.*]

“ Alma parens confessa Deam ; qualisque videri Cœlicolis, et quanta solet”——

VIRG. ÆN. ii.

“ Et lætos oculis afflavit honores.”

Id. ÆN. i.

She bids him wait her to her sacred Dome : 265
 Well-pleas'd he enter'd, and confess'd his home.
 So, Spirits ending their terrestrial race,
 Ascend, and recognize their Native Place.
 This the Great Mother dearer held than all 269
 The clubs of Quidnuncs, or her own Guildhall :
 Here stood her Opium, here she nurs'd her Owls,
 And here she plann'd th' Imperial feat of fools.
 Here to her Chosen all her works she shows ;
 Prose swell'd to verse, verse loit'ring into prose :
 How random thoughts now meaning chance to find,
 Now leave all memory of sense behind : 276
 How Prologues into Prefaces decay,
 And these to Notes are fritter'd quite away :

How

VARIATIONS.

After Ver. 268. in the former Edd. followed these two lines,
 Raptur'd, he gazes round the dear retreat,
 And in sweet numbers celebrates the feat.

Var. And in sweet numbers celebrates the feat.] Tibbald writ a Poem called the Cave of Poverty, which concludes with a very extraordinary wish, "That some great genius, or man of distinguished merit, may be starved, in order to celebrate her power, and describe her Cave." It was printed in octavo, 1715.

WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 274. loit'ring into prose:] Loitering is a most happy expression in this place.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 269. This the Great Mother, &c.]

"Urbs antiqua fuit——

Quam Juno fertur terris magis omnibus unam

Posthabita coluisse Samo: hic illius arma,

Hic currus fuit: hoc regnum Dea gentibus esse

(Si qua fata sinant) jam tum tenditque fovetque."

VIRG. Æneid. i.

How Index-learning turns no student pale,
Yet holds the eel of science by the tail: 280

How, with less reading than makes felons 'scape,
Less human genius than God gives an ape,
Small thanks to France, and none to Rome or Greece,

A past, vamp'd, future, old, reviv'd, new piece,
'Twixt Plautus, Fletcher, Shakespear, and Corneille,
Can make a Cibber, Tibbald, or Ozell. 286

The

REMARKS.

VER. 280. eel of science] Is from the Tale of a Tub.

WARTON.

VER. 286. Tibbald,] Lewis Tibbald (as pronounced), or Theobald (as written), was bred an Attorney, and son to an Attorney (says Mr. Jacob) of Sittenburn in Kent. He was Author of some forgotten Plays, Translations, and other pieces. He was concerned in a paper called the Censor, and a Translation of Ovid. "There is a notorious Idiot, one hight Whachum, who, from an under spur-leather to the law, is become an under-trapper to the Playhouse, who hath lately burlesqued the Metamorphoses of Ovid by a vile Translation, &c. This fellow is concerned in an impertinent paper called the Censor." DENNIS, Rem. on Pope's Hom. p. 9, 10.

WARBURTON.

Ibid. Ozell.] "Mr. John Ozell (if we credit Mr. Jacob) did go to school in Leicestershire, where somebody left him something to live on, when he shall retire from business. He was designed to be sent to Cambridge, in order for priesthood; but he chose rather to be placed in an office of accounts, in the City, being qualified for the same by his skill in arithmetic, and writing the necessary bands. He has obliged the world with many translations of French Plays." JACOB, Lives of Dram. Poets, p. 198.

Mr. Jacob's character of Mr. Ozell seems vastly short of his merits, and he ought to have further justice done him, having since fully confuted all Sarcasms on his learning and genius, by an advertisement of Sept. 20, 1729, in a Paper called The Weekly

The Goddeſs then, o'er his anointed head,
With myſtic words, the ſacred Opium ſhed.

And

REMARKS.

Medley, &c. "As to my learning, this envious Wretch knew, and every body knows, that the whole Bench of Biſhops, not long ago, were pleaſed to give me a purſe of guineas, for diſcovering the erroneous tranſlations of the Common-prayer in Portugueſe, Spaniſh, French, Italian, &c. As for my genius, let Mr. Cleland ſhew better verſes in all Pope's works, than Ozell's verſion of Boileau's Lutrin, which the late Lord Halifax was ſo pleaſed with, that he complimented him with leave to dedicate it to him, &c. Let him ſhew better and truer Poetry in the Rape of the Lock, than in Ozell's Rape of the Bucket (la Secchia rapita). And Mr. Toland and Mr. Gildon publicly declared Ozell's tranſlation of Homer to be, as it was prior, ſo likewiſe ſuperior to Pope's. Surely, ſurely, every man is free to deſerve well of his country!"

JOHN OZELL.

We cannot but ſubſcribe to ſuch reverend teſtimonies, as thoſe of the Bench of Biſhops, Mr. Toland, and Mr. Gildon.

WARBURTON.

Ibid. a Cibber, Tibbald, or Ozell.] A triumvirate ſurely not of authors on a level. The firſt far ſuperior to the other two. What did they produce, in any reſpect, equal to the Careleſs Huſband, and the History of the Stage!

WARTON.

VER. 287. The Goddeſs then,] There was a poem published, 1712, entitled Bibliotheca, by Mr. Thomas Newcomb, a friend of Dr. Young, and reprinted in the fifth volume of Nicols's Collection, p. 19, in which the Goddeſs Oblivion is introduced, ſpeaking and acting, ſo very like the Goddeſs Dulceſs, and which throughout bears ſo cloſe and ſtriking a reſemblance to the Dunciad, that it is impoſſible Pope ſhould not have ſeen and copied it, though with exquisite improvements. The expreſſion, "o'er his anointed head," is from Mac Fleckno:

"That for anointed Dulceſs he was made."

As alſo is the preceding line, 262:

"His brows thick fogs, inſtead of glories, grace."

WARTON.

And lo! her bird (a monster of a fowl,
 Something betwixt a Heideggre and owl) 290
 Perch'd on his crown. " All hail! and hail again,
 My son! the promis'd land expects thy reign.
 Know, Eusden thirsts no more for sack or praise;
 He sleeps among the dull of ancient days;
 Safe, where no Critics damn, no duns molest, 295
 Where wretched Withers, Ward, and Gildon rest,
 And

VARIATIONS.

VER. 293. Know, Eusden, &c.] In the former Edd.
 Know, Settle, cloy'd with custard and with praise,
 Is gather'd to the dull of ancient days,
 Safe where no critics damn, no duns molest,
 Where Gildon, Banks, and high-born Howard rest.
 I see a King! who leads my chosen sons
 To lands that flow with clenches and with puns:
 Till each fam'd theatre my empire own;
 Till Albion, as Hibernia, blest my throne!
 I see! I see!—Then rapt she spoke no more,
 God save King Tibbald! Grubstreet alleys roar.
 So when Jove's block, &c. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 290. a Heideggre] A strange bird from Switzerland, and not (as some have supposed) the name of an eminent person who was a man of parts, and, as was said of Petronius, Arbiter Elegantiarum. WARBURTON.

VER. 296. Withers,] See on ver. 146.

Ibid. Gildon] Charles Gildon, a writer of criticisms and libels of the last age, bred at St. Omer's with the Jesuits; but renouncing popery, he published Blount's books against the Divinity of Christ, the Oracles of Reason, &c. He signalized himself as a critic, having written some very bad Plays; abused Mr. P. very scandalously in an anonymous pamphlet of the Life of Mr. Wycherley, printed by Curl; in another, called the New Rehearsal, printed in 1714; in a third, entitled the Complete Art of English Poetry, in two volumes; and others. WARBURTON.

And high-born Howard, more majestic fire,
 With Fool of Quality completes the quire.
 Thou, Cibber! thou, his Laurel shalt support,
 Folly, my son, has still a Friend at Court. 300
 Lift up your Gates, ye Princes, see him come!
 Sound, found ye Viols, be the Cat-call dumb!
 Bring, bring the madding Bay, the drunken Vine;
 The creeping, dirty, courtly Ivy join.
 And thou, his Aid-de-camp, lead on my sons, 305
 Light-arm'd with Points, Antitheses, and Puns.
 Let Bawdry, Billingsgate, my daughters dear,
 Support his front, and Oaths bring up the rear:

And

REMARKS.

VER. 296. Withers, Ward.] It must be confessed, that in this quarrel with mean and contemptible writers, Pope was the aggressor; for it cannot be believed that the initial Letters in the Bathos, were placed at random and without design. WARTON.

VER. 297. Howard,] Hon. Edward Howard, author of the British Princes, and a great number of wonderful pieces, celebrated by the late Earls of Dorset and Rochester, Duke of Buckingham, Mr. Waller, &c. WARBURTON.

VER. 301. Lift up your Gates,] I know not what can excuse this very profane allusion to a sublime passage in the Psalms; which was added to the last edition of the Dunciad in four books; and this too under the auspices and direction of Dr. Warburton. So again in Book iii. ver. 126. And also again Book iv. ver. 562.

“Dove-like she gathers to her wings again.”

And in the Arguments, he talks of giving a Pisgah-fight of the future fulness of her Glory; and even of sending Priests, and Comforters. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 304. The creeping, dirty, courtly Ivy join.]

———“Quorum Imagines lambunt Hederæ sequaces.”

PERS.

And under his, and under Archer's wing,
Gaming and Grub-street skulk behind the King 310

O! when shall rise a Monarch all our own,
And I, a Nurfing mother, rock the throne;
'Twi'x Prince and People close the Curtain draw,
Shade him from Light, and cover him from Law;
Fatten the Courtier, starve the learned band, 315
And suckle Armies, and dry-nurse the land:
Till Senates nod to Lullabies divine,
And all be sleep, as at an Ode of thine."

She ceas'd. Then swells the Chapel-royal throat:
God save king Cibber! mounts in ev'ry note. 320

Familiar

REMARKS.

VER. 309, 310, under Archer's wing,—Gaming, &c.] When the Statute against Gaming was drawn up, it was represented, that the King, by ancient custom, plays at Hazard one night in the year; and therefore a clause was inserted, with an exception as to that particular. Under this pretence, the Groom-porter had a Room appropriated to Gaming all the summer the Court was at Kensington, which his Majesty accidentally being acquainted of, with a just indignation prohibited. It is reported the same practice is yet continued wherever the Court resides, and the Hazard Table there open to all the professed Gamesters in Town.

"Greatest and justest SOV'REIGN, know you this?

Alas! no more, than Thames' calm head can know

Whose meads his arms drown, or whose corn o'erflow."

Donne to Queen Eliz.

WARBURTON.

This practice has been laid aside for many years. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 311. O! when shall rise a Monarch, &c.] Boileau, Lutrin, Chant. II.

"Helas! qu'est devenu cet tems, cet heureux tems,

Où les Rois s'honoroient du nom de Faineans;" &c.

WARBURTON.

Familiar White's, God save king Colley ! cries ;
 God save king Colley ! Drury-lane replies :
 To Needham's quick the voice triumphal rode,
 But pious Needham dropt the name of God ;
 Back to the Devil the last echoes roll, 325
 And Coll ! each Butcher roars at Hockley-hole.

So when Jove's block descended from on high,
 (As sings thy great forefather Ogilby,)
 Loud thunder to its bottom shook the bog, 329
 And the hoarse nation croak'd, God save King Log !

REMARKS.

VER. 319. Chapel-royal] The Voices and Instruments used in the service of the Chapel-royal being also employed in the performance of the Birth-day and New-year Odes.

WARBURTON.

VER. 324. But pious Needham] A Matron of great Fame, and very religious in her way ; whose constant prayer it was, that she might " get enough by her profession to leave it off in time, and make her peace with God." But her fate was not so happy ; for being convicted, and set in the pillory, she was (to the lasting shame of all her great Friends and Votaries) so ill used by the populace, that it put an end to her days.

WARBURTON.

VER. 325. Back to the Devil] The Devil Tavern in Fleet-street, where these Odes are usually rehearsed before they are performed at Court. Upon which a Wit of those times made this Epigram :

" When Laureates make Odes, Do you ask of what sort ?

Do you ask if they're good, or are evil ?

You may judge—From the Devil they come to the Court,

And go from the Court to the Devil." WARBURTON.

VER. 328. Ogilby)—God save King Log !] See Ogilby's Efop's Fables, where, in the story of the Frogs and their King, this excellent hemistich is to be found.

Our author manifests here, and elsewhere, a prodigious tenderness for the bad writers. We see he selects the only good passage, perhaps, in all that ever Ogilby writ ; which shews how candid and patient a reader he must have been.

But how much all indulgence is lost upon these people may appear from the just reflection made on their constant conduct and constant fate, in the following Epigram :

- “ Ye little Wits, that gleam'd a while,
When Pope vouchsaf'd a ray,
Alas ! depriv'd of his kind smile,
How soon ye fade away !
- “ To compass Phœbus' car about,
Thus empty vapours rise ;
Each lends his cloud, to put him out,
That rear'd him to the skies.
- “ Alas ! those skies are not your sphere ;
There He shall ever burn :
Weep, weep, and fall ! for Earth ye were,
And must to Earth return.”

WARBURTON.

THE
D U N C I A D.

BOOK THE SECOND.

ARGUMENT.

THE King being proclaimed, the solemnity is graced with public Games and sports of various kinds ; not instituted by the Hero, as by Æneas in Virgil, but for greater honour by the Goddess in person (in like manner as the games Pythia, Isthmia, &c. were anciently said to be ordained by the Gods, and as Thetis herself appearing, according to Homer, Odyss. xxiv. proposed the prizes in honour of her son Achilles). Hither flock the Poets and Critics, attended, as is but just, with their Patrons and Booksellers. The Goddess is first pleased, for her disport, to propose games to the Booksellers, and setteth up the phantom of a Poet, which they contend to overtake. The Races described, with their divers accidents. Next, the game for a Poetess. Then follow the Exercises for the Poets, of tickling, vociferating, diving : The first holds forth the arts and practices of Dedicators, the second of Disputants and fustian Poets, the third of profound, dark, and dirty Party-writers. Lastly, for the Critics, the Goddess proposes (with great propriety) an Exercise, not of their parts, but their patience, in hearing the works of two voluminous Authors, the one in verse, and the other in prose, deliberately read, without without sleeping : The various effects of which, with the several degrees and manners of their operation, are here set forth ; till the whole number, not of Critics only, but of spectators, actors, and all present, fall fast asleep ; which naturally and necessarily ends the games.

B O O K II.

HIGH on a gorgeous feat, that far out-shone
 Henley's gilt tub, or Fleckno's Irish throne,
 Or that where on her Curls the Public pours,
 All-bounteous, fragrant Grains and Golden show'rs,
 Great

REMARKS.

Two things there are, upon the supposition of which the very basis of all verbal criticism is founded and supported: The first, that an Author could never fail to use the best word on every occasion; the second, that a Critic cannot chuse but know which that is. This being granted, whenever any word doth not fully content us, we take upon us to conclude, first, that the author could never have used it; and, secondly, that he must have used that very one, which we conjecture, in its stead.

We cannot, therefore, enough admire the learned Scriblerus for his alteration of the text in the two last verses of the preceding book, which in all the former editions stood thus:

“ Hoarse thunder to its bottom shook the bog,

And the loud nation croak'd, God save king Log!”

He has, with great judgment, transposed these two epithets; putting hoarse to the nation, and loud to the thunder: And this being evidently the true reading, he vouchsafed not so much as to mention the former; for which assertion of the just right of a Critic, he merits the acknowledgment of all sound Commentators.

WARBURTON.

VER. 2. Henley's gilt tub,] The pulpit of a Dissenter is usually called a Tub; but that of Mr. Orator Henley was covered with velvet,

IMITATIONS.

VER. 1. High on a gorgeous feat,] Parody of Milton, book ii.

“ High on a throne of royal state, that far
 Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
 Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand
 Show'rs on her kings Barbaric pearl and gold,
 Satan exalted fate.”

WARBURTON.

Great Cibber fate : The proud Parnassian sneer, 5
 The conscious simper, and the jealous leer,
 Mix on his look : All eyes direct their rays
 On him, and crowds turn Coxcombs as they gaze.
 His Peers shine round him with reflected grace,
 New edge their dulness, and new bronze their face.

So

REMARKS.

velvet, and adorned with gold. He had also a fair altar, and over it this extraordinary inscription, The Primitive Eucharist. See the history of this person, book iii. WARBURTON.

Ibid. or Fleckno's Irish throne,] Richard Fleckno was an Irish priest, but had laid aside (as himself expressed it) the mechanic part of priesthood. He printed some plays, poems, letters, and travels. I doubt not, our author took occasion to mention him in respect to the Poem of Mr. Dryden, to which this bears some resemblance, though of a character more different from it than that of the Æneid from the Iliad, or the Lutrin of Boileau from the Defait de Bouts rimées of Sarazin. WARBURTON.

Andrew Marvell wrote a satirical poem on Fleckno, with his usual spirit. There is a Comedy of Fleckno, 1667, entitled Demoiselles a la Mode. WARTON.

VER. 3. Or that where on her Curls the Public pours,] Edmund Curl stood in the pillory at Charing-Cross, in March 1727-8. "This (saith Edmund Curl) is a false assertion—I had indeed the corporal punishment of what the Gentleman of the long Robe are pleased jocosely to call mounting the Rostrum for one hour: but that scene of Action was not in the month of March, but in February." [Curliad 12^m, p. 19.] And of the History of his being tost in a Blanket, he saith, "Here, Scriblerus! thou leesteth in what thou asserteth concerning the blanket: it was not a blanket, but a rug." P. 25. Much in the same manner Mr. Cibber remonstrated, that his Brothers, at Bedlam, mentioned Book i. were not Braxen, but Blocks; yet our author let it pass unaltered, as a trifle that no way altered the relationship. WARBURTON.

VER. 5. Great Cibber fate:] It is observable that in this passage the lines run more into one another, than in any other part of our author's works, See lines 5, 7. Perhaps it might be wished he had more frequently done so, as it would have added variety to his numbers. Harte and Fenton thought so. WARTON.

So from the Sun's broad beam, in shallow urns 11 Heav'n's twinkling Sparks draw light, and point their horns.

Not with more glee, with hands Pontific crown'd,
 With scarlet hats wide-waving circled round,
 Rome in her Capitol saw Querno sit, 15
 Thron'd on seven hills, the Antichrist of wit.

And now the Queen, to glad her fons, proclaims
 By herald Hawkers, high heroic Games.

They

REMARKS.

VER. 15. Rome in her Capitol saw Querno sit,] Camillo Querno was of Apulia, who hearing the great encouragement which Leo X. gave to Poets, travelled to Rome with a harp in his hand, and sung to it twenty thousand verses of a poem called Alexias. He was introduced as a Buffoon to Leo, and promoted to the honour of the Laurel; a jest which the court of Rome and the Pope himself entered into so far, as to cause him to ride on an elephant to the Capitol, and to hold a solemn festival on his coronation; at which, it is recorded, the Poet himself was so transported as to weep for joy*. He was ever after a constant frequenter of the Pope's table, drank abundantly, and poured forth verses without number. PAULUS JOVIUS, Elog. Vir. doct. cap. lxxxii. Some idea of his poetry is given by Fam. Strada, in his Prolusions.

WARBURTON.

VER. 16. Antichrist of wit.] Chaucer, as well as Dante, asserted that the Church of Rome was Antichrist; a notion Bossuet has taken so much pains to refute.

WARTON.

VER. 18. high heroic Games.] It is impossible to read without smiling, the gravity with which Dennis attacks these games, and the reasons he gives for their impropriety. "Is it not monstrous to imagine they could take place in the master-street of a great city; a street eternally crowded with carriages, carts, coaches, chairs, and men, passing in the greatest hurry about private and public affairs?" Remarks on Dunciad, p. 19. 1729. WARTON.

* See Life of C. C. chap. vi. p. 149.

They fummon all her Race : An endless band
 Pours forth, and leaves unpeopled half the land. 20
 A motley mixture ! in long wigs, in bags,
 In filks, in crapes, in Garters, and in rags,
 From drawing-rooms, from colleges, from garrets,
 On horse, on foot, in hacks, and gilded chariots :
 All who true Dunces in her cause appear'd, 25
 And all who knew those Dunces to reward.
 Amid that area wide they took their stand,
 Where the tall May-pole once o'erlook'd the Strand,
 But now (so ANNE and Piety ordain)
 A Church collects the faints of Drury-lane. 30
 With Authors, Stationers obey'd the call
 (The field of glory is a field for all).
 Glory, and gain, th' industrious tribe provoke ;
 And gentle Dulness ever loves a joke.
 A Poet's form she plac'd before their eyes, 35
 And bade the nimblest racer seize the prize ;
 No

REMARKS.

VER. 35. A Poet's form] A clear, energetic, and lively description ! especially line 41, and the three succeeding ones, of this truly ridiculous Phantom. Dr. Young, who was well acquainted with More, told me the portrait was not over-charged. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 35. A Poet's form she plac'd before their eyes,] This is what Juno does to deceive Turnus, Æneid. x.

“ Tum Dea nube cava, tenuem sine viribus umbram
 In faciem Æneæ (visu mirabile monstrum !)
 Dardaniis ornat telis, clypeumque jubasque
 Divini affimilat capitis——
 —— Dat inania verba
Dat sine mente sonum”——

The

No meagre, muse-rid mope, aduft and thin,
 In a dun night-gown of his own loofe skin ;
 But fuch a bulk as no twelve bards could raife,
 Twelve ftarv'ling bards of thefe degen'rate days.

All

REMARKS.

VER. 39. But fuch a bulk] Parodies are the chief and constant ornaments of a mock-heroic poem. The many introduced by our author are made with fingular pleafantry, happinefs, and judgment. The ancients, particularly the Athenians, were fond of parodies; efppecially fuch as were made on paffages of Homer, with whose works they were fo familiarly acquainted. In the fourth book of Athenæus, page 134, of Caufabon's excellent edition, is a parody, confifting of more than one hundred verfes, of Matron, whom Eufathius frequently quotes and praifes. It is a ridiculous defcription of a fupper. See Fabricius, Bib. Græc. p. 354. B. i. It is well known how many parodies Ariftophanes has given us on Euripides, and other tragedians. Hegemon, fays Athenæus, in his ninth book, p. 406. was the firft author very famous for parodies; he was called, Φακκ, Lenticula. He was alfo an excellent actor; and the Athenians were fo fond of him, that one day when news was brought of their defeat in Sicily, they would not quit the theatre, but infifted that Hegemon fhould finish the piece. He was a great favourite of Alcibiades of whom and Hegemon, Athenæus relates a ftory worth the Reader's perufal, p. 407. of Caufabon's edition. There are some excellent

IMITATIONS.

The reader will obferve how exactly fome of thefe verfes fuit with their allegorical application here to a Plagiary. There feems to me a great propriety in this Epifode, where fuch an one is imagined by a phantom that deludes the grasp of the expecting Bookfeller.

WARBURTON.

VER. 39. But fuch a bulk as no twelve bards could raife,]

“ Vix illud lecti bis sex—

Quali nunc hominum producit corpora tellus.”

VIRG. Æneid. xii.

WARBURTON.

All as a partridge plump, full-fed, and fair, 41
 She form'd this image of weil-body'd air ;
 With pert flat eyes she window'd well its head ;
 A brain of feathers, and a heart of lead ;
 And empty words she gave, and founding strain, 45
 But senseless, lifeless! idol void and vain!
 Never was dash'd out, at one lucky hit,
 A fool, so just a copy of a wit ;
 So like, that critics said, and courtiers swore,
 A Wit it was, and call'd the phantom More. 50
 All

REMARKS.

excellent parodies in the Rehearsal, in Bramston's Art of Politics, in the Scribleriad, in the Battle of the Wigs, in the Tale of a Tub, and in the works of Fielding. WARTON.

VER. 47. Never was dash'd out, at one lucky hit,] Our author here seems willing to give some account of the possibility of Dulness making a Wit (which could be done no other way than by chance). The fiction is the more reconciled to probability, by the known story of Apelles, who being at a loss to express the form of Alexander's horse, dash'd his pencil in despair at the picture, and happened to do it by that fortunate stroke.

WARBURTON.

VER. 50. and call'd the phantom More.] CURL, in his Key to the Dunciad, affirm'd this to be James-Moore Smith, esq. and it is probable (considering what is said of him in the Testimonies) that some might fancy our author obliged to represent this gentleman as a plagiarist, or to pass for one himself. His case indeed was like that of a man I have heard of, who, as he was sitting in company, perceived his next neighbour had stolen his handkerchief. "Sir, (said the thief, finding himself detected), do not expose me, I did it for mere want; be so good but to take it privately out of my pocket again, and say nothing." The honest man did so, but the other cry'd out, "See, gentlemen, what a thief we have among us! look, he is stealing my handkerchief!"

Some

All gaze with ardour : Some a poet's name,
Others a sword-knot and lac'd fuit inflame.

But

REMARKS.

Some time before, he had borrowed of Dr. Arbuthnot a paper called an Historico-physical account of the South-Sea; and of Mr. Pope the Memoirs of a Parish Clerk, which for two years he kept, and read to the Rev. Dr. Young,—F. Billers, esq. and many others, as his own. Being applied to for them, he pretended they were lost; but there happening to be another copy of the latter, it came out in Swift and Pope's Miscellanies. Upon this, it seems, he was so far mistaken as to confess his proceeding by an endeavour to hide it: unguardedly printing (in the Daily Journal of April 3, 1728,) “That the contempt which he and others had for those pieces” (which only himself had shown, and handed about as his own) “occasioned their being lost, and for that cause only not returned.” A fact, of which as none but he could be conscious, none but he could be the publisher of it. The plagiarisms of this person gave occasion to the following Epigram:

“ More always smiles whenever he recites;
He smiles (you think) approving what he writes.
And yet in this no vanity is shown;
A modest man may like what's not his own.”

This young Gentleman's whole misfortune was too inordinate a passion to be thought a Wit. Here is a very strong instance attested by Mr. Savage, son of the late Earl Rivers; who having shewn some verses of his in manuscript to Mr. Moore, wherein Mr. Pope was called first of the tuneful train, Mr. Moore the next morning sent to Mr. Savage to desire him to give those verses another turn, to wit, “That Pope might now be the first, because Moore had left him unrival'd in turning his stile to Comedy.” This was during the rehearsal of the Rival Modes, his first and only work; the Town condemned it in the action, but he printed it in 1726-7, with this modest Motto, Hic castus, artemque repono.

The smaller pieces which we have heard attributed to this author, are, An Epigram on the Bridge at Blenheim, by Dr. Evans: Cosmelia, by Mr. Pitt, Mr. Jones, &c. The Mock-marriage of a mad Divine, with a Cl— for a Parson, by Dr. W. The Saw-pit,

But lofty Lintot in the circle rose :

“ This prize is mine ; who tempt it are my foes ;

“ With me began this genius, and shall end.” 55

He spoke : and who with Lintot shall contend ?

Fear held them mute. Alone, untaught to fear,
Stood dauntless Curl ; “ Behold that rival here !

“ The

REMARKS.

Saw-pit, a Simile, by a Friend. Certain Physical works on Sir James Baker ; and some unown'd Letters, Advertisements, and Epigrams against our author in the Daily Journal. WARBURTON.

Notwithstanding what is here collected of the Person imagined by Curl to be meant in this place, we cannot be of that opinion ; since our Poet had certainly no need of vindicating half a dozen verses to himself, which every reader had done for him ; since the name itself is not spell'd Moore, but More ; and lastly, since the learned Scriblerus has so well proved the contrary. WARTON.

VER. 50. the phantom More.] It appears from hence, that this is not the name of a real person, but fictitious. More from $\mu\acute{\omega}\rho\acute{o}\varsigma$, stultus, $\mu\omega\rho\acute{\iota}\alpha$, stultitia, to represent the folly of a plagiarist. Thus Erasmus, Admonuit me Mori cognomen tibi, quod tam ad Moris vocabulum accedit quam es ipse a re alienus. Dedication of Moris Encomium to Sir Tho. More ; the farewell of which may be our author's to his plagiarist, Vale, More ! et moriam tuam gnauiter defende. Adieu, More ! and be sure strongly to defend thy own folly. SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 53. But lofty Lintot] We enter here upon the Epifode of the Bookfellers ; Persons, whose names being more known and famous in the learned world than those of the Authors in this poem, do therefore need less explanation. The action of Mr. Lintot here imitates that of Dares in Virgil, rising just in this manner to lay hold on a Bull. This eminent Bookfeller printed the Rival Modes before mentioned. WARBURTON.

VER. 58. Stood dauntless Curl ;] We come now to a character of much respect, that of Mr. Edmund Curl. As a plain repetition of great actions is the best praise of them, we shall only say of this eminent man, that he carried the Trade many lengths beyond what it ever before had arrived at ; and that he was the envy and admiration

“ The race by vigour, not by vaunts, is won ;
 “ So take the hindmost, Hell,” (he said,) and run.

Swift

REMARKS.

admiration of all his profession. He possessed himself of a command over all authors whatever: he caused them to write what he pleased; they could not call their very Names their own. He was not only famous among these; he was taken notice of by the State, the Church, and the Law, and received particular marks of distinction from each.

It will be owned that he is here introduced with all possible dignity: He speaks like the intrepid Diomed; he runs like the swift-footed Achilles; if he falls, 'tis like the beloved Nifus; and (what Homer makes to be the chief of all praises) he is favoured of the Gods; he says but three words, and his prayer is heard; a Goddess conveys it to the seat of Jupiter: Though he loses the prize, he gains the victory; the great Mother herself comforts him, she inspires him with expedients, she honours him with an immortal present (such as Achilles receives from Thetis, and Æneas from Venus) at once instructive and prophetic: After this he is unrivalled and triumphant.

The tribute our author here pays him is a grateful return for several unmerited obligations: Many weighty animadversions on the public affairs, and many excellent and diverting pieces on private persons, has he given to his name. If ever he owed two verses to any other, he owed Mr. Curl some thousands. He was every day extending his fame, and enlarging his Writings: Witness innumerable instances; but it shall suffice only to mention the Court Poems, which he meant to publish as the work of the true writer, a Lady of quality; but being first threatened, and afterwards punished for it by Mr. Pope, he generously transferred it from her to him, and ever since printed it in his name. The single time that ever he spoke to C. was on that affair, and to that happy incident he owed all the favours since received from him:

IMITATIONS.

VER. 60. So take the hindmost, Hell,]

“ Occupet extremum scabies; mihi turpe relinqui est.”

HOR. de Arte.

WARBURTON.

Swift as a bard the Bailiff leaves behind, 61
 He left huge Lintot, and out-strip'd the wind.
 As when a dab-chick waddles thro' the copse
 On feet and wings, and flies, and wades, and hops;
 So lab'ring on, with shoulders, hands, and head, 65
 Wide as a wind-mill all his figure spread,
 With arms expanded Bernard rows his state,
 And left-legg'd Jacob seems to emulate.

Full

REMARKS.

him: So true is the saying of Dr. Sydenham, "that any one shall be, at some time or other, the better or the worse, for having but seen or spoken to a good or bad man." WARBURTON.

VER. 67. With arms expanded, &c.] That is, Jacob Tonson; to whom Dryden, on being refused the price asked for his Virgil, sent the following verses:

"With

IMITATIONS.

VER. 61, &c. Something like this in Homer, II. x. ver. 220. of Diomed. Two different manners of the same author in his similes are also imitated in the two following; the first, of the Bailiff, is short, unadorned, and (as the Critics well know) from familiar life; the second, of the Water-fowl, more extended, picturesque, and from rural life. The 59th verse is likewise a literal translation of one in Homer. WARBURTON.

VER. 64, 65. *On feet and wings, and flies, and wades, and hops;
 So lab'ring on, with shoulders, hands, and head,*]

—— "So eagerly the Fiend

O'er bog, o'er steep, thro' streight, rough, dense, or rare,
 With head, hands, wings, or feet pursues his way,
 And swims, or sinks, or wades, or creeps, or flies."

MILTON, Book ii.

WARBURTON.

VER. 67, 68. *With arms expanded Bernard rows his state,
 And left-legg'd Jacob seems to emulate.*]

Milton, of the motion of the Swan,

—— "rows

His state with oary feet."

And Dryden, of another's,—With two left legs— WARBURTON.

Full in the middle way there stood a lake, 69
 Which Curl's Corinna chanc'd that morn to make :
 (Such was her wont, at early dawn to drop
 Her ev'ning cates before his neighbour's shop)
 Here fortun'd Curl to slide ; loud shout the band,
 And Bernard ! Bernard ! rings thro' all the Strand.

Obscene

REMARKS.

“ With leering look, bull-fac'd, and freckled fair,
 With two left legs, with Judas-colour'd hair,
 And frowzy pores, that taint the ambient air :” } adding to the messenger, “ Tell the dog, that he who wrote them, can write more.” The money was paid accordingly.

The couplet before us stood thus in a former edition :

With legs expanded Bernard urg'd the race,
 And seem'd to emulate great Jacob's pace. WAKEFIELD.

VER. 70. Curl's Corinna] This name, it seems, was taken by one Mrs. Thomas, who procured some private letters of Mr. Pope, while almost a boy, to Mr. Cromwell, and fold them, without the consent of either of those Gentlemen, to Curl, who printed them in 12^m, 1727. He discovered her to be the publisher, in his Key, p. 11. We only take this opportunity of mentioning the manner in which those letters got abroad, which the author was ashamed of as very trivial things, full not only of levities, but of wrong judgments of men and books, and only excusable from the youth and inexperience of the writer. WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 73. Here fortun'd Curl to slide ;]

“ Labitur infelix, cæsis ut forte juvenis
 Fufus humum viridesque super madefecerat herbas—
 Concidit, immundoque fimo, sacroque cruore.”

VIRGIL, Æneid. v. of Nifus.

WARBURTON.

VER. 74. And Bernard ! Bernard !]

— “ Ut littus, Hyla, Hyla, omne sonaret.”

VIRGIL, Ecl. vi.

WARBURTON.

Obscene with filth the miscreant lies bewray'd, 75
 Fall'n in the plash his wickedness had laid:
 Then first (if Poets aught of truth declare)
 The caitiff Vaticide conceiv'd a pray'r.

Hear, Jove! whose name my bards and I adore,
 As much at least as any God's, or more; 80
 And him and his, if more devotion warms,
 Down with the Bible, up with the Pope's Arms.

A place there is, betwixt earth, air, and seas,
 Where, from Ambrosia, Jove retires for ease.
 There in his feat two spacious vents appear, 85
 On this he sits, to that he leans his ear,
 And hears the various vows of fond mankind;
 Some beg an eastern, some a western wind:

All

REMARKS.

VER. 75. Obscene with filth, &c.] Though this incident may seem too low and base for the dignity of an Epic poem, the learned very well know it to be but a copy of Homer and Virgil: the very words obscure and filth are used by them, though our poet (in compliance to modern nicety) has remarkably enriched and coloured his language, as well as raised the versification, in this Episode, and in the following one of Eliza. WARBURTON.

VER. 75. Obscene] All this, and the following, is as nauseous, as it is stupid. Warburton defends it by a note still more nauseous, if possible.

VER. 82. Down with the Bible, up with the Pope's Arms.] The Bible, Curl's sign; the Cross-keys, Lintot's. WARBURTON.

VER. 83. See Lucian's Icaro-Menippus; where this fiction is more extended. WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 83. A place there is, betwixt earth, air, and seas,]

“Orbe locus medio est, inter terrasque, fretumque, Cœlestesque plagas”——

OID. Met. xii.

WARBURTON.

All vain petitions, mounting to the sky,
 With reams abundant this abode supply ; 90
 Amus'd he reads, and then returns the bills
 Sign'd with that Ichor which from Gods distils.

In office here fair Cloacina stands,
 And ministers to Jove with purest hands.
 Forth from the heap she pick'd her Vot'ry's pray'r,
 And plac'd it next him, a distinction rare ! 96
 Oft had the Goddess heard her servant's call,
 From her black grottos near the Temple-wall,
 Lift'ning delighted to the jest unclean
 Of link-boys vile, and watermen obscene ; 100
 Where as he fish'd her nether realms for Wit,
 She oft had favour'd him, and favours yet.
 Renew'd by ordure's sympathetic force,
 As oil'd by magic juices for the course,
 Vig'rous he rises ; from th' effluvia strong 105
 Imbibes new life, and scours and stinks along ;

Re-passes

REMARKS.

VER. 92. Alludes to Homer, Iliad v.

——— ῥέει δ' ἀμβροσίον αἷμα θεοῖο,
 Ἴχθῶρ, αἴθε πῆρ τε ῥέει μακάρεσσι θεοῖσιν.

“ A stream of nect'rous humour issuing flow'd,
 Sanguine, such as celestial sp'rits may bleed.” MILTON.

WARBURTON.

VER. 93. Cloacina] The Roman Goddess of the common-sewers.

WARBURTON.

VER. 101. Where as he fish'd, &c.] See the preface to Swift's and Pope's Miscellanies.

WARBURTON.

VER. 104. As oil'd with magic juices] Alluding to the opinion that there are ointments used by witches to enable them to fly in the air, &c.

WARBURTON.

Re-passes Lintot, vindicates the race,
Nor heeds the brown dishonours of his face.

And now the victor stretch'd his eager hand
Where the tall Nothing stood, or seem'd to stand;
A shapeless shade, it melted from his sight, 111
Like forms in clouds, or visions of the night.
To seize his papers, Curl, was next thy care;
His papers light, fly diverse, tost in air;
Songs, sonnets, epigrams, the winds uplift, 115
And whisk 'em back to Evans, Young, and Swift.

Th'

REMARKS.

VER. 111. A shapeless shade,] More has been, in another place, satirised under the name "Umbra."

VER. 116. Evans, Young, and Swift,] Some of those persons whose writings, epigrams, or jests, he had owned. See Note on ver. 50. WARBURTON.

Dr. Evans was of St. John's College, Oxford; author of the Apparition, and of an Epistle to Bobart the Botanist, entitled, Vertumnus. He was a man of remarkable wit and vivacity, and many of his repartees were long remembered and repeated at Oxford. The apparition was a satire on Tindal. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 108. Nor heeds the brown dishonours of his face.]

—— "faciem ostentabat, et udo

Turpia membra fimo"—— VIRG. Æneid. v.

WARBURTON.

VER. 111. A shapeless shade, &c.]

—— "Effugit imago

Par levibus ventis, volucrique simillima somno."

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

WARBURTON.

VER. 114. His papers light, fly diverse, tost in air;]

"Carmina——

turbata volent rapidis ludibria ventis."

VIRG. Æneid. vi. of the Sibyl's leaves.

WARBURTON.

Th' embroider'd fuit at least he deem'd his prey,
 That fuit an unpay'd taylor snatch'd away.
 No rag, no scrap, of all the beau, or wit,
 That so flutter'd, and that once so writ. 120

Heav'n rings with laughter : Of the laughter vain,
 Dulness, good Queen, repeats the jest again.
 Three wicked imps, of her own Grub-street choir,
 She deck'd like Congreve, Addison, and Prior ;
 Mears, Warner, Wilkins run : delusive thought !
 Breval, Bond, Befaleel, the varlets caught. 126

Curl

REMARKS.

VER. 118. an unpay'd taylor] This line has been loudly complained of in Mist, June 8, Dedic. to Sawney, and others, as a most inhuman satire on the poverty of Poets : But it is thought our author will be acquitted by a jury of *Taylor*s. To me this instance seems unluckily chosen ; if it be a satire on any body, it must be on a bad pay-master, since the person to whom they have here applied it, was a man of fortune. Not but Poets may well be jealous of so great a prerogative as non-payment ; which Mr. Dennis so far asserts, as boldly to pronounce that, “ If Homer himself was not in debt, it was because nobody would trust him.” Pref. to Rem. on the Rape of the Lock, p. 15. WARBURTON.

VER. 124. like Congreve, Addison, and Prior ;] These authors being such whose names will reach posterity, we shall not give any account of them, but proceed to those of whom it is necessary.— Befaleel Morris was author of some satires on the translators of Homer, with many other things printed in newspapers.— “ Bond writ a satire against Mr. P.— Capt. Breval was author of The Confederates, an ingenious dramatic performance to expose Mr. P. Mr. Gay, Dr. Arb. and some ladies of quality,” says CURL, Key, p. 11. WARBURTON.

This is the passage in which our author has mentioned Prior with rather more honor than in any other part of his works. Prior was mortified that Pope did not commend his Solomon so highly as he wished. WARTON.

VER. 125. Mears, Warner, Wilkins,] Booksellers, and Printers of much anonymous stuff. WARBURTON.

Curl stretches after Gay, but Gay is gone,
 He grasps an empty Joseph for a John :
 So Proteus, hunted in a nobler shape,
 Became, when seiz'd, a puppy, or an ape. 130
 To him the Goddess : Son ! thy grief lay down,
 And turn this whole illusion on the town :
 As the sage dame, experienc'd in her trade,
 By names of Toasts retails each batter'd Jade ;
 (Whence hapless Monsieur much complains at Paris
 Of wrongs from Duchesses and Lady Maries ;) 136
 Be

REMARKS.

VER. 126. Breval, Bond, Besaleel,] I foresee it will be objected from this line, that we were in an error in our assertion on ver. 50. of this book, that More was a fictitious name, since these persons are equally represented by the poet as phantoms. So at first sight it may seem ; but be not deceived, reader ; these also are not real persons. 'Tis true, Curl declares Breval, a captain, author of a piece called the Confederates ; but the same Curl first said it was written by Joseph Gay : Is his second assertion to be credited any more than his first ? He likewise affirms Bond to be one who writ a satire on our poet. But where is such a satire to be found ? where was such a writer ever heard of ? As for Besaleel, it carries forgery in the very name ; nor is it, as the others are, a surname. Thou may'st depend upon it, no such authors ever lived ; all phantoms. SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 126. Breval,] See an account of him and his works, and the cause of Pope's resentment, in the List of Dramatic Authors, subjoined to Cibber's Life of himself, 4th edition. WAKEFIELD.

VER. 128. He grasps an empty Joseph for a John.] A pleasant allusion to Ixion, embracing a cloud instead of Juno ; or a parody on Homer, II. iii. 376.

Κεῖνη δὲ τρυφαλεῖα ἀμ' ἔσπετο χεῖρι παχειῇ :

“ And left an empty helmet in his hand.” POPE.

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 128. empty Joseph] Curl printed poems under the name of Joseph Gay. J. Gay, was in the title-page.

Be thine, my stationer ! this magic gift ;
 Cook shall be Prior, and Concanen, Swift :
 So shall each hostile name become our own,
 And we too boast our Garth and Addison.

140

With

REMARKS.

VER. 136. Lady Maries ;] Nothing can shew Pope's unforgiving temper so much as his perpetual abuse, in the grossest manner, of Lady M. Montagu. His first antipathy, it is said, began after her intimacy with Lord Hervey, whom he satirised first under the name of Paris. They published in conjunction some libellous verses on his person. This was never forgiven.

—— “ Manet altâ mente repostum, Judicium Paridis, spretæque injuria formæ !” VIRG.

VER. 138. Cook shall be Prior,] The man here specified writ a thing called The Battle of Poets, in which Philips and Welstead were the Heroes, and Swift and Pope utterly routed. He also published some malevolent things in the British, London, and Daily Journals ; and at the same time wrote letters to Mr. Pope, protesting his Innocence. His chief work was a translation of Hesiod, to which Theobald writ notes and half notes, which he carefully owned.

WARBURTON.

Ibid. And Concanen, Swift :] In the first edition of this poem there were only asterisks in this place, but the names were since inserted, merely to fill up the verse, and give ease to the ear of the reader.

WARBURTON.

VER. 140. And we too boast our Garth and Addison.] Nothing is more remarkable than our author's love of praising good writers. He has in this very poem celebrated Mr. Locke, Sir Isaac Newton, Dr. Barrow, Dr. Atterbury, Mr. Dryden, Mr. Congreve, Dr. Garth, Mr. Addison ; in a word, almost every man of his time that deserved it ; even Cibber himself (presuming him to be author of the Careless Husband). It was very difficult to have that pleasure in a poem on this subject, yet he has found means to insert their panegyric, and has made even Dulness out of her own mouth, pronounce it. It must have been particularly agreeable to him to celebrate Dr. Garth ; both as his constant friend, and as he was his predecessor in this kind of satire. The Dispensary attacked the whole body of Apothecaries, a much more useful one undoubtedly

With that she gave him (piteous of his case,
Yet smiling at his rueful length of face)

A shaggy

REMARKS.

undoubtedly than that of the bad Poets; if in truth this can be a body, of which no two members ever agreed. It also did, what Mr. Theobald says is unpardonable, drew in parts of private character, and introduced persons independent of his subject. Much more would Boileau have incurred his censure, who left all subjects whatever, on all occasions, to fall upon the bad poets, (which, it is to be feared, would have been more immediately his concern.) But certainly next to commending good writers, the greatest service to learning is to expose the bad, who can only that way be made of any use to it. This truth is very well set forth in these lines addressed to our author :

“ The craven Rook, and pert Jackdaw,
(Tho’ neither birds of moral kind)
Yet serve, if hang’d, or stuff’d with straw,
To shew us which way blows the wind.

“ Thus dirty knaves, or chatt’ring fools,
Strung up by dozens in thy lay,
Teach more by half than Dennis’ rules,
And point instruction ev’ry way.

“ With Egypt’s art thy pen may strive ;
One potent drop let this but shed :
And ev’ry rogue that stunk alive,
Becomes a precious mummy dead.” WARBURTON.

VER. 140. Addison.] We must feel happy that he here makes something like an “ amende honorable” to Addison.

VER. 142. rueful length of face] “ The decrepid person or figure of a man are no reflections upon his Genius : An honest mind will love

IMITATIONS.

VER. 141, 142.——— pitious of his case,
Yet smiling at his rueful length of face.]

——— “ Risit pater optimus illi.—
Me liceat casum misereri infantis amici—
Sic fatus, tergum Gætuli immanæ leonis.” &c.

VIRG. Æneid. v.

WARBURTON.

A shaggy Tap'stry, worthy to be spread
On Codrus' old, or Dunton's modern bed ;

Instructive

REMARKS.

love and esteem a man of worth, though he be deformed or poor. Yet the author of the Dunciad hath libelled a person for his rueful length of face!" Mist's Journal, June 8. This Genius and man of worth, whom an honest mind should love, is Mr. Curl. True it is, he stood in the Pillory, an incident which will lengthen the face of any man, though it were ever so comely, therefore is no reflection on the natural beauty of Mr. Curl. But as to reflections on any man's face, or figure, Mr. Dennis saith excellently ; " Natural deformity comes not by our fault ; 'tis often occasioned by calamities and diseases, which a man can no more help than a monster can his deformity. There is no one misfortune, and no one disease, but what all the rest of mankind are subject to.—But the deformity of this Author is visible, present, lasting, unalterable, and peculiar to himself. 'Tis the mark of God and Nature upon him, to give us warning that we should hold no society with him, as a creature not of our original, nor of our species : and they who have refused to take this warning which God and nature has given them, and have, in spite of it, by a senseless presumption ventured to be familiar with him, have severely suffered, &c. 'Tis certain his original is not from Adam, but from the Devil," &c. DENNIS, Character of Mr. P. octavo, 1716.

Admirably it is observed by Mr. Dennis against Mr. Law, p. 33. " That the language of Billingsgate can never be the language of charity, nor consequently of Christianity." I should else be tempted to use the language of a Critic ; for what is more provoking to a commentator, than to behold his author thus portray'd ? Yet I consider it really hurts not him ; whereas to call some others dull, might do them prejudice with a world too apt to believe it : Therefore, though Mr. D. may call another a little ass or a young toad, far be it from us to call him a toothless lion, or an old serpent. Indeed, had I written these notes (as once was my intent) in the learned language, I might have given him the appellations of balatro, calceatum caput, scurra in triviis, being phrases in good esteem and frequent usage among the best learned : But in our mother tongue, were I to tax any gentleman of the Dunciad, surely it should be in words not to the vulgar intelligible ; whereby

Instructive work! whose wry-mouth'd portraiture
 Display'd the fates her confessors endure. 146
 Earless

REMARKS.

whereby christian charity, decency, and good accord among authors, might be preserved. SCRIBLERUS.

The good Scriblerus here, as on all occasions, eminently shews his humanity. But it was far otherwise with the gentleman of the Dunciad, whose scurrilities were always personal, and of that nature which provoked every honest man but Mr. Pope *; yet never to be lamented, since they occasioned the following amiable Verses :

- “ While Malice, Pope, denies thy page
 Its own celestial fire ;
 While Critics, and while Bards in rage,
 Admiring, won't admire :
- “ While wayward pens thy worth assail,
 And envious tongues decry ;
 These times tho' many a Friend bewail,
 These times bewail not I.
- “ But when the World's loud praise is thine,
 And spleen no more shall blame,
 When with thy Homer thou shalt shine
 In one establish'd fame :
- “ When none shall rail, and ev'ry lay
 Devote a wreath to thee ;
 That day (for come it will) that day
 Shall I lament to see.”

WARBURTON.

* Could the sagacious and learned Commentator really think, that “ every honest man was provoked, except Pope himself,” by the personal abuse? If so, he must have been much better read in books, than in men. No one ever felt abuse more than Pope; and if this circumstance was not generally known, his language throughout all his poems is that of a man evidently hurt. Even the learned editor and commentator, to whom Pope owed so much, has not always escaped his sarcasm; for in a letter to Martha Blount, where he speaks of the incivilities she received from Mrs. Allen, he ends his angry description of the household at Prior-park with saying, “ Warburton is a sneaking Parson!”

Earleſ on high, ſtood unabash'd De Foe,
And Tutchin flagrant from the ſcourge below.

There

REMARKS.

VER. 143. A ſbaggy Tapſtry,] A ſorry kind of Tapeſtry frequent in old Inns, made of worſted or ſome coarſer ſtuff; like that which is ſpoken of by Donne—Faces as frightful as theirs who whip Chriſt in old hangings. The imagery woven in it alludes to the mantle of Cloanthus, in Æneid v. WARBURTON.

VER. 144. On Codrus' old, or Dunton's modern bed;] Of Codrus the poet's bed, ſee Juvenal, deſcribing his poverty very copiouſly, Sat. iii. ver. 103, &c.

Lectus erat Codrus, &c.

“ Codrus had but one bed, ſo ſhort to boot,
That his ſhort wife's ſhort legs hung dangling out.
His cupboard's head fix earthen pitchers grac'd,
Beneath them was his truſty tankard plac'd;
And to ſupport this noble plate, there lay
A bending Chiron, caſt from honeſt clay.
His few Greek books a rotten cheſt contain'd,
Whoſe covers much of mouldineſs complain'd,
Where mice and rats devour'd poetic bread,
And on heroic verſe luxuriouſly were fed.
'Tis true poor Codrus nothing had to boaſt,
And yet poor Codrus all that nothing loſt.” DRYDEN.

But Mr. Concanen, in his dedication of the Letters, Advertisements, &c. to the author of the Dunciad affures us, “ that Juvenal never ſatiriſed the Poverty of Codrus.

John Dunton was a broken bookſeller, and abuſive ſcribler: he writ Neck or Nothing, a violent ſatire on ſome miniſters of ſtate, a libel on the Duke of Devonſhire and the Biſhop of Peterborough, &c. WARBURTON.

VER. 148. And Tutchin flagrant from the ſcourge] John Tutchin, author of ſome vile verſes, and of a weekly paper called The Obſervator: He was ſentenced to be whipped through ſeveral towns in the weſt of England, upon which he petitioned King James II. to be hang'd. When that prince died in exile, he wrote an inveſtive againſt his memory, occaſioned by ſome humane elegies on his death. He lived to the time of Queen Anne.

WARBURTON.

There Ridpath, Roper, cudgell'd might ye view,
 The very worsted still look'd black and blue. 150
 Himself among the story'd chiefs he spies,
 As, from the blanket, high in air he flies,
 And oh! (he cry'd) what street, what lane but knows
 Our purgings, pumpings, blanketings, and blows?
 In every loom our labours shall be seen, 155
 And the fresh vomit run for ever green!

See

REMARKS.

VER. 149. There Ridpath, Roper,] Authors of the Flying-post and Post-boy, two scandalous papers on different sides, for which they equally and alternately deserved to be cudgelled, and were so. WARBURTON.

Ibid. cudgell'd] It is painful to reflect, that even Dryden once underwent this discipline. Mr. Nelson, whose truth cannot be questioned, writes thus to Dr. Mapletost, Jan. 2, 1679; "Your friend and schoolfellow Mr. Dryden has been severely beaten for being the supposed author of a late very abusive lampoon. There has been a good sum of money offered to find who set them on work; 'tis said they received their orders from the Dutchess of Portsmouth, who is concerned in the lampoon."

Line 150. is particularly happy. WARTON.

VER. 151. Himself among the story'd chiefs he spies,] The history of Curl's being tossed in a blanket, and whipped by the scholars of Westminster, is well known. Of his purging and vomiting, see A full and true account of a horrid Revenge on the body of Edm. Curl, &c. in Swift and Pope's Miscellanies. WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 151. Himself among the story'd chiefs he spies,
 "Se quoque principibus permixtum agnovit Achivis—
 Constitit, et lacrymans: Quis jam locus, inquit, Achate!
 Quæ regio in terris nostri non plena laboris?" VIRG. ÆN. i.

WARBURTON.

VER. 156. And the fresh vomit run for ever green!] A parody on these lines of a late noble author:

"His bleeding arm had furnish'd all their rooms,
 And run for ever purple in the looms." WARBURTON.

See in the circle next, Eliza plac'd,
 Two babes of love close clinging to her waist ;
 Fair as before her works she stands confess'd, 159
 In flow'rs and pearls by bounteous Kirkall dress'd.

The

REMARKS.

VER. 157. See in the circle next, Eliza plac'd,] In this game is exposed, in the most contemptuous manner, the profligate licentiousness of those shameless scriblers (for the most part of that sex, which ought least to be capable of such malice or impudence) who, in libellous Memoirs and Novels, reveal the faults or misfortunes of both sexes, to the ruin of public fame, or disturbance of private happiness. Our good poet, (by the whole cast of his work being obliged not to take off the Irony,) where he could not shew his indignation, hath shewn his contempt, as much as possible; having here drawn as vile a picture as could be represented in the colours of Epic poesy. SCRIBLERUS.

Ibid. Eliza Haywood; This woman was authoress of those most scandalous books called The Court of Carimania, and the New Utopia. For the two babes of love, See CURL, KEY, p. 22. But whatever reflection he is pleased to throw upon this Lady, surely it was what from him she little deserved, who had celebrated Curl's undertakings for Reformation of manners, and declared herself "to be so perfectly acquainted with the sweetness of his disposition, and that tenderness with which he considered the errors of his fellow-creatures; that, though she should find the little inadvertencies of her own life recorded in his papers, she was certain it would be done in such a manner as she could not but approve." Mrs. HAYWOOD, Hist. of Clar. printed in the Female Dunciad, p. 18. WARBURTON.

VER. 160. Kirkall, the name of an Engraver. Some of this Lady's works were printed in four volumes in 12mo, with her picture thus dressed up before them. WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 158. Two babes of love close clinging to her waist ;]
 " Cressa genus, Pholoë, geminique sub ubere nati."

VIRG. Æneid. v.
 WARBURTON.

The Goddeſs then : “ Who beſt can fend on high
 The ſalient ſpout, far-ſtreaming to the ſky ;
 His be yon Juno of majeſtic ſize,
 With cow-like udders, and with ox-like eyes.
 This China Jordan let the chief o’ercome 165
 Replenish, not ingloriouſly, at home.”

Osborne and Curl accept the glorious ſtrife,
 (Tho’ this his Son diſſuades, and that his Wife ;)

One

REMARKS.

VER. 162. The ſalient ſpout,] No wit can atone for the meaneſs, filthineſs, and vulgarity, of this conteſt. This Osborne was the bookſeller who purchaſed the great library of the Earl of Oxford, for 13,000*l.* which, ſays Mr. Oldys, was not more than the binding of the books had coſt. Dr. Johnson wrote the preface to the catalogue, and is reported, during this employment, to have knocked Osborne down with a folio in his ſhop. But Johnson himſelf uſed to ſay, “ I beat him for being impertinent to me ; but it was in my own chamber, and not in his ſhop.” WARTON.

VER. 167. Osborne, Thomas] A Bookſeller in Gray’s Inn, very well qualified by his impudence to act this part ; therefore placed here inſtead of a leſs deſerving Predeceſſor. This man publiſhed advertiſements for a year together, pretending to ſell Mr. Pope’s Subſcrip-

IMITATIONS.

VER. 163. ——— yon Juno ———

With cow-like udders, and with ox-like eyes.]

In alluſion to Homer’s Βοῶπις ὠόπινα Ἡρῆ.

VER. 165. This China Jordan]

“ Tertius Argolica hac galea contentus abito.”

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

In the games of Homer, Iliad xxiii. there are ſet together, as prizes, a Lady and a Kettle, as in this place Mrs. Haywood and a Jordan. But there the preference in value is given to the Kettle, at which Mad. Dacier is juſtly diſpleaſed. Mrs. H. is here treated with diſtinction, and acknowledged to be the more valuable of the two. WARBURTON.

Book II. THE DUNCIAD. 165

One on his manly confidence relies,
One on his vigour and superior size. 170

First Osborne lean'd against his letter'd post;
It rose, and labour'd to a curve at most.

So

REMARKS.

Subscription books of Homer's Iliad at half the price: Of which books he had none, but cut to the size of them (which was quarto) the common books in folio, without Copper-plates, on a worse paper, and never above half the value.

Upon this Advertisement the Gazetteer harangued thus, July 6, 1739. "How melancholy must it be to a writer to be so unhappy as to see his works hawked for sale in a manner so fatal to his fame! How, with Honour to yourself, and Justice to your Subscribers, can this be done? What an ingratitude to be charged on the Only honest Poet that lived in 1738! and than whom Virtue has not had a brillier Trumpeter for many ages! That you were once generally admired and esteemed, can be denied by none; but that you and your works are now despised, is verified by this fact:" which being utterly false, did not indeed much humble the Author, but drew this just chastisement on the Bookseller.

WARBURTON.

VER. 167. Osborne] Of Osborne, Johnson used to say, that he had no sense of any shame, but that of being poor. BANNISTER.

Johnson's rencontre with the redoubted Osborne, is very characteristically described and recorded by the indefatigable Boswell. He first knocked the offending bookseller down, with the very book on which he was employed; he then, with lofty composure, put his foot on him, and vociferated, "Lie there, THOU SON OF DULNESS, IGNORANCE, and OBSCURITY!"

VER. 172. Dr. Warton observes, "It" is inaccurate, and wants a substantive. I have no doubt it was intended.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 169, 170. One on his manly confidence relies,
One on his vigour]

"Ille—melior motu, fretusque juventa;
Hic membris et mole valens."

VIRG. Æneid. v.

WARBURTON.

So Jove's bright bow displays its wat'ry round
 (Sure sign, that no spectator shall be drown'd).
 A second effort brought but new disgrace, 175
 The wild Meander wash'd the Artist's face :
 Thus the small jett, which hasty hands unlock,
 Spirts in the gard'ner's eyes who turns the cock.
 Not so from shameless Curl ; impetuous spread
 The stream, and smoking flourish'd o'er his head.
 So (fam'd like thee for turbulence and horns) 181
 Eridanus his humble fountain scorns ;
 Thro' half the heav'ns he pours th' exalted urn ;
 His rapid waters in their passage burn.

Swift

IMITATIONS.

VER. 173, 174. So Jove's bright bow—

(Sure sign,—]

The words of Homer, of the Rainbow, in Iliad xi.

— ἄς τε Κρονίων

Ἐν νεφεῖ στήριξε, τέρας μερόπων ἀνθρώπων.

“ Que le fils de Saturne a fondé dans les nues, pour être dans tous les âges une signe à tous les mortels.” DACIER.

WARBURTON.

VER. 181, 182. So (fam'd like thee for turbulence and horns)

Eridanus]

Virgil mentions these two qualifications of Eridanus, Georg. iv.

“ Et gemina auratus taurino cornua vultu,
 Eridanus, quo non alius per pinguia culta
 In mare purpureum violentior influit amnis.”

The Poets fabled of this river Eridanus, that it flowed through the skies. DENHAM, Cooper's Hill :

“ Heav'n her Eridanus no more shall boast,
 Whose fame's in thine, like lesser currents lost ;
 Thy nobler stream shall visit Jove's abodes,
 To shine among the stars, and bathe the Gods.”

WARBURTON.

Swift as it mounts, all follow with their eyes :
 Still happy Impudence obtains the prize. 186
 Thou

REMARKS.

VER. 183. Thro' half the heav'ns he pours th' exalted urn ;] In a manuscript Dunciad (where are some marginal corrections of some gentlemen some time deceased) I have found another reading of these lines, thus :

And lifts his urn, thro' half the heav'ns to flow ;

His rapid waters in their passage glow.

This I cannot but think the right : For first, though the difference between burn and glow may seem not very material to others, to me I confess the latter has an elegance, a je ne sçay quoi, which is much easier to be conceived than explained. Secondly, every reader of our poet must have observed how frequently he uses this word glow in other parts of his works : To instance only in his Homer :

(1.) Iliad ix. ver. 726.—“ With one resentment glows.

(2.) Iliad xi. ver. 626.—“ There the battle glows.

(3.) Ibid. ver. 985.—“ The closing flesh that instant ceas'd to glow.

(4.) Iliad xii. ver. 45.—“ Encompas'd Hector glows.

(5.) Ibid. ver. 475.—“ His beating breast with gen'rous ardour glows.

(6.) Iliad xviii. ver. 591.—“ Another part glow'd with refulgent arms.

(7.) Ibid. ver. 654.—“ And curl'd on silver props in order glow.”

I am afraid of growing too luxuriant in examples, or I could stretch this catalogue to a great extent ; but these are enough to prove his fondness for this beautiful word, which, therefore, let all future editions replace here.

I am aware, after all, that burn is the proper word to convey an idea of what was said to be Mr. Curl's condition at this time ; But from that very reason I infer the direct contrary. For surely every lover of our author will conclude he had more humanity than to insult a man on such a misfortune or calamity, which could never befall him purely by his own fault, but from an unhappy communication with another. This Note is half Mr. THEOBALD, half SCRIBLERUS.

Warton justly adds, “ It reflects shame on whoever wrote it.”

Thou triumph'ft, Victor of the high-wrought day,
 And the pleas'd dame, foft-smiling, lead'ft away.
 Osborne, thro' perfect modesty o'ercome,
 Crown'd with the Jordan, walks contented home.

But now for Authors nobler palms remain ; 191
 Room for my Lord ! three jockeys in his train ;
 Six huntſmen with a ſhout precede his chair :
 He grins, and looks broad nonſenſe with a ſtare.
 His Honour's meaning Dulneſs thus expreſt, 195
 " He wins this Patron, who can tickle beſt."

He chinks his purſe, and takes his feat of ſtate :
 With ready quills the Dedicators wait ;
 Now at his head the dext'rous taſk commence,
 And, inſtant, fancy feels th' imputed ſenſe ; 200
 Now gentle touches wanton o'er his face,
 He ſtruts Adonis, and affects grimace :
 Rolli the feather to his ear conveys ;
 Then his nice taſte directs our Operas .

Bentley

REMARKS.

VER. 198. the Dedicators] Among the innumerable inſtances that might be given of fulſome Dedications, none can exceed that of the courtly Abbé Choify, to Madame Maintenon, prefixed to the tranſlation of his Kempis, with her picture kneeling before a crucifix, and theſe words of the 44th Plalm ; " Harken, O Daughter, and conſider." WARTON.

VER. 203. Rolli] Paulo Antonio Rolli, an Italian Poet, and writer of many Operas in that language, which, partly by the help of his genius, prevailed in England near twenty years. He taught Italian to ſome fine Gentlemen, who affected to direct the Operas. WARBURTON.

He alſo tranſlated Paradiſe Loſt with ſpirit and elegance ; and published Marchetti's fine tranſlation of Lucretius. WARTON.

Bentley his mouth with classic flatt'ry opes, 205

And the puff'd orator bursts out in tropes.

But

REMARKS.

VER. 205. Bentley his mouth, &c.] Not spoken of the famous Dr. Richard Bentley, but of one Thomas Bentley, a small critic, who aped his uncle in a little Horace. The great one was intended to be dedicated to the Lord Halifax, but (on a change of the Ministry) was given to the Earl of Oxford; for which reason the little one was dedicated to his son the Lord Harley. A taste of his Classic Elocution may be seen in his following Panegyric on the Peace of Utrecht. Cupimus Patrem tuum, fulgentissimum illud Orbis Anglicani jubar, adorare! O ingens Reipublicæ nostræ columen! O fortunatam tanto Heroe Britanniam! Illi tali tantoque viro DEUM per Omnia adfuisse, manumque ejus et mentem direxisse, CERTISSIMUM EST. Hujus enim Unius ferme opera, æquissimis et perhonorificis conditionibus, diuturno, heu nimium! bello, finem impositum videmus. O Diem æterna memoria dignissimam! qua terrores Patriæ omnes excidit, Pacemque diu exoptatam toti fere Europæ restituit, ille Populi Anglicani Amor, Harleius.

Thus critically (that is, verbally) translated:

“Thy Father, that most refulgent star of the Anglican Orb, we much desire to adore! O mighty Column of our Republic! Oh Britain, fortunate in such an Hero! That to such and so great a Man GOD was ever present in every thing, and all along directed both his hand and his heart, is a Most Absolute Certainty! For it is in a manner by the operation of this Man alone, that we behold a War (alas! how much too long an one!) brought at length to an end, on the most just and most honourable Conditions. Oh Day eternally to be memorated! wherein all the Terrors of his Country were ended, and a PEACE (long wished for by almost all Europe) was restored by HARLEY, the Love and Delight of the People of England.”

But that this Gentleman can write in a different style, may be seen in a letter he printed to Mr. Pope, wherein several Noble Lords are treated in a most extraordinary language, particularly the Lord Bolingbroke abused for that very PEACE which he here makes the single work of the Earl of Oxford, directed by God Almighty.

WARBURTON.

VER. 205. Bentley his mouth, &c.] An imitation of Butler, Hudibras, i. 1. 81.

“For rhetoric, he could not ope
His mouth, but out there flew a trope.”

WAKEFIELD.

But Welsted most the Poet's healing balm
 Strives to extract from his soft, giving palm ;
 Unlucky Welsted ! thy unfeeling master,
 The more thou ticklest, gripes his fist the faster. 210
 While

VARIATIONS.

VER. 207. in the first Edd.

But Oldmixon the Poet's healing balm, &c. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 207. Welsted] Leonard Welsted, author of The Triumvirate, or a Letter in verse from Palemon to Celia at Bath, which was meant for a satire on Mr. P. and some of his friends, about the year 1718. He writ other things which we cannot remember. Smedley, in his Metamorphosis of Scriblerus, mentions one, the Hymn of a Gentleman to his Creator : And there was another in praise either of a Cellar, or a Garret. L. W. characterized in the treatise Περὶ Βάθους, or the Art of Sinking, as a Didapper, and after as an Eel, is said to be this person, by Dennis, Daily Journal of May 11, 1728. He was also characterized under another animal, a Mole, by the author of the ensuing Simile, which was handed about at the same time :

“ Dear Welsted, mark, in dirty hole,
 That painful animal, a Mole :
 Above ground never born to grow,
 What mighty stir it keeps below ?
 To make a Mole-hill all this strife !
 It digs, pokes, undermines for life.
 How proud a little dirt to spread ;
 Conscious of nothing o'er its head !
 Till, lab'ring on for want of eyes,
 It blunders into Light—and dies.”

You have him again in book iii. ver. 169.

WARBURTON.

VER. 209. Unlucky Welsted!] How unfortunate poor Leonard was in the art of tickling, will appear from the following extract of an original Letter of his to Dodington, dated the “ Tower, Saturday, Nov. 14, 1730 :

“ SIR,

“ I cannot but be in fear, that I do not stand in that degree of favour with you, which I had reason to hope I did ; and some suspicious

While thus each hand promotes the pleasing pain,
And quick sensations skip from vein to vein ;

A youth

REMARKS.

suspitions have occurred to me on this occasion, which give me inexpressible uneasiness, not to say torment.

“ I must therefore beg leave to assure you, on my honour, as a gentleman, and by every thing sacred, that as I have never mentioned you in conversation but with the highest respect and gratitude, so I have never writ any thing that had a view to you, but what was perfectly honourable and well intended.

“ There is a line in a late Poem, viz. the “ One Epistle,” which I presume you may have seen, that carries in it a slight raillery of Dr. Young * ; but this was sincerely without my approbation, and I was overborne in it, as a thing of that nature that I could not well give offence to him, or any one else : and as for the first Ode of Horace, which I had the honour to address to you, I hope it is not in the heart of men to conceive, that I forefaw and wilfully designed the † ridicule, which I found with grief followed upon it ; or that I could be guilty of such low and wretched dissingenuity and impertinence. I am indeed utterly incapable of every thing of this sort ; and I wish you, Sir, nothing worse, than that the whole world may always have the same sentiments of esteem towards you that I have, and speak of you at all times as I do, and, when they write in your praise, be more happy in their way of doing it, than I was.

“ It concerns me not at all how much lower I may be in your estimation as a writer, than Mr. Thomson ‡, or any other person, further than seriously to reflect, if I do not deserve to be so, and if you do not judge truer than any other man in that regard ; but whether I may be ever so happy to receive any mark of your patronage hereafter, or not, nothing has, nothing ever will tempt me
to

* Young, Thomson, Fielding, Bentley, Voltaire, Glover, Lyttelton, Lord Chesterfield, Lord Peterborough, Dr. Sharpe, &c. were among Dodington's intimate friends.

† Nothing can better illustrate Pope's expression, “ Unlucky Welfed !”

‡ I made a mistake, when, in another part of this work, I supposed Thomson went abroad under the patronage of Dodington : in fact, he accompanied Mr. Talbot ; but in his Letters from Paris and Rome, he speaks so warmly of his obligations to Dodington, that I was led into the mistake.

A youth unknown to Phœbus, in despair,
Puts his last refuge all in heav'n and pray'r.

What

REMARKS.

to treat ill, or lightly, or with any paltry slyness whatever, a gentleman of your character and quality, and that has laid great obligations on me.

“ Think of me, Sir, as you please in every other light, no matter how meanly ; but I beg you will be so just as to give me credit in what I have here said, and not suppose any thing in these or other instances which I am not capable of, even in imagination.

“ It would be an uncommon satisfaction to me to know, if I were really acquitted in your thoughts ; and this, Sir, if you will please to exact so severe a thing from me, shall be the last favour I will ever request of you ; and I have the honour to be, with the greatest truth and respect, Sir,

“ Your most obedient and obliged humble servant,

“ LEON. WELSTED.”

One might be tempted to suppose Pope had seen this very Letter when he wrote, “ *Unlucky Leonard, thy unfeeling master,

The more thou ticklest, gripes his fist the faster.*”

It should not be forgotten, that in the first edition, printed in London, 1729, Oldmixon is the unfortunate Tickler. The character was afterwards given to Welsted. Welsted was originally the “ Diver,” instead of Arnall, as it is now :

“ Who brings up half the bottom on his head.”

And Dennis was introduced where Oldmixon now appears :

“ In naked majesty Oldmixon stands.”

It must be owned, these alterations take off from the propriety of the satire ; but they lead us to think Pope substituted Welsted in the place of Oldmixon, from the circumstance of his unfortunate misunderstanding with his patron, which this Letter explains.

VER. 213. A youth unknown to Phœbus, &c.] The satire of this episode being levelled at the base flatteries of authors to worthless wealth or greatness, concludes here with an excellent lesson to such men : That although their pens and praises were as exquisite as they conceit of themselves, yet (even in their own mercenary views) a creature unlettered, who serveth the passions,
or

What force have pious vows! The Queen of Love
Her sifter sends, her vot'refs, from above. 216

As taught by Venus, Paris learnt the art
To touch Achilles' only tender part;
Secure, thro' her, the noble prize to carry,
He marches off, his Grace's Secretary. 220

Now turn to diff'rent sports (the Goddess cries)
And learn, my sons, the wond'rous power of Noise.
To move, to raise, to ravish ev'ry heart,
With Shakespear's nature, or with Johnson's art,
Let others aim: 'Tis yours to shake the soul 225
With Thunder rumbling from the mustard bowl,
With horns and trumpets now to madness swell,
Now sink in sorrows with a tolling bell;

Such

REMARKS.

or pimpeth to the pleasures, of such vain, braggart, puff'd Nobility, shall with those patrons be much more inward, and of them much higher rewarded. SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 226. With Thunder rumbling from the mustard bowl,] The old way of making Thunder and Mustard were the same; but since, it is more advantageously performed by troughs of wood with stops in them. Whether Mr. Dennis was the inventor of that improvement, I know not; but it is certain, that being once at a Tragedy of a new author, he fell into a great passion at hearing some, and cried, "'Sdeath! that is my Thunder."

WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 223. 225. To move, to raise, &c.

Let others aim: 'Tis yours to shake, &c.]

"Excudent alii spirantia mollius æra,
Credo equidem, vivos ducent de marmore vultus, &c.
Tu regere imperio populos, Romane, memento,
Hæ tibi erunt artes"——

WARBURTON.

Such happy arts attention can command,
 When fancy flags, and sense is at a stand. 230
 Improve we these. Three Cat-calls be the bribe
 Of him, whose chatt'ring shames the Monkey tribe :
 And his this Drum, whose hoarse heroic base
 Drowns the loud clarion of the braying Afs.

Now thousand tongues are heard in one loud din :
 The Monkey-mimics rush discordant in ; 236
 'Twas chatt'ring, grinning, mouthing, jabb'ring all,
 And Noise and Norton, Brangling and Breval,
 Dennis and Diffonance, and captious Art,
 And Snip-snap short, and Interruption smart, 240
 And Demonstration thin, and Theses thick,
 And Major, Minor, and Conclusion quick.
 Hold (cry'd the Queen) a Cat-call each shall win ;
 Equal your merits ! equal is your din !

But

REMARKS.

VER. 238. Norton,] See ver. 417.—J. Durant Breval, Author of a very extraordinary Book of Travels, and some Poems. See before, Note on ver. 126. WARBURTON.

VER. 239. Dennis and Diffonance,] “ Which two lines, (says Harris, in his Philological Enquiries, p. 101.) though truly poetical and humourous, may be suspected by some to shew their art too conspicuously, and too nearly to resemble that verse of old Ennius ;

“ O Titi, tuti, tati, tibi tanta, tyranna tulisti.”

Alliteration, I must add, is a figure too lavishly used by many modern writers ;

IMITATIONS.

VER. 243. a Cat-call each shall win, &c.]

“ Non nostrum inter vos tantas componere lites ;

Et vitalâ tu dignus, et hic.”— VIRGIL, Ecl. iii.

WARBURTON.

Book II. THE DUNCIAD. 175

But that this well-disputed game may end, 245
Sound forth, my Brayers, and the welkin rend.

As when the long-ear'd milky mothers wait
At some sick miser's triple-bolted gate,
For their defrauded, absent foals they make
A moan so loud, that all the guild awake ; 250
Sore sighs fir Gilbert, starting at the bray,
From dreams of millions, and three groats to pay.
So swells each wind-pipe ; Afs intones to Afs,
Harmonic twang ! of leather, horn, and brafs ;
Such as from lab'ring lungs th' Enthusiaft blows,
High Sound, attemper'd to the vocal nose ; 256
Or such as bellow from the deep Divine ;
There, Webster ! peal'd thy voice, and Whitefield !
thine.

But

REMARKS.

writers ; there are beautiful examples of it in Lucretius and Virgil ; and Dryden, who had so fine and just an ear, often adopted it with much success. But in his most harmonious lines, he seldom extended it beyond two words : it is apt to fall into affectation if carried farther.

WARTON.

VER. 247. milky mothers] The epithet is from Spenser, 36. c. 8.

WARTON.

VER. 256. attemper'd to the vocal nose ;] A parody from Milton.

VER. 258. Webster—and Whitefield !] The one the writer of a Newspaper called the Weekly Miscellany ; the other a Field-preacher. The Enthusiaft thought the only means of advancing Religion was by the New-birth of spiritual madness : The Bigot, by the old death of fire and faggot : And therefore they agreed in this, though in no other earthly thing, to abuse all the sober Clergy. From the small success of these two extraordinary persons, we may

IMITATIONS.

VER. 247. As when the, &c.] A simile with a long tail, in the manner of Homer.

WARBURTON.

But far o'er all, sonorous Blackmore's strain;
Walls, steeples, skies, bray back to him again. 260

In

REMARKS.

may learn how little hurtful Bigotry and Enthusiasm are, while the Civil Magistrate prudently forbears to lend his power to the one, to be employed against the other. WARBURTON.

In a letter, of Warburton, preserved in the British museum, among Dr. Birch's papers, address'd to M. Demaizeux, he says very pleasantly; "I have seen Whitefield's Journal, and he appears to me to be as mad as ever George Fox the Quaker was. These are very fit Missionaries, you will say, to propagate the Christian Faith amongst Infidels. There is another of them, one W. who came over from the same Mission: He told a friend of mine, that he had lived most deliciously the last summer in Georgia, sleeping under trees, and feeding on boiled maize, sauced with the ashes of oak leaves; that he will return thither, and then will cast off his English dress, and wear a dyed skin, like the savages, the better to ingratiate himself with them. It would be well for virtue and religion, if this humour would lay hold generally of our over-heated bigots, and send them to cool themselves in the Indian marshes. I fancy that Ven and Webster would make a very entertaining as well as a proper figure in a couple of bear skins, and marching in this terror of equipage, like the Pagan priests of old.

"Jamque sacerdotēs, primusque Potitius, ibant Pellibus in morem cinctis, flammæque ferebant."

WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 260. bray back to him again.] A figure of speech taken from Virgil:

"Et vox assensu nemorum ingeminata remugit." Georg. iii.

"He hears his num'rous herds low o'er the plain, While neighb'ring hills low back to them again."

COWLEY.

The poet here celebrated, Sir R. B. delighted much in the word bray, which he endeavoured to ennoble by applying it to the found of Armour, War, &c. In imitation of him, and strengthened by his authority, our author has here admitted it into Heroic poetry.

In Tot'nam fields, the brethren, with amaze,
 Prick all their ears up, and forget to graze ;
 Long Chanc'ry-lane retentive rolls the found,
 And courts to courts return it round and round ;
 Thames wafts it thence to Rufus' roaring hall, 265
 And Hungerford re-echoes bawl for bawl.
 All hail him victor in both gifts of song,
 Who sings so loudly, and who sings so long.

This

REMARKS.

VER. 268. Who sings so loudly, and who sings so long.] A just character of Sir Richard Blackmore, knight, who (as Mr. Dryden expresseth it) and whose indefatigable Muse produced no less than six Epic poems : Prince and King Arthur, twenty books ; Eliza, ten ; Alfred, twelve ; the Redeemer, six ; besides Job, in folio ; the whole Book of Psalms ; the Creation, seven books ; Nature of Man, three books : and many more. 'Tis in this sense he is stiled afterwards the everlasting Blackmore. Notwithstanding all which, Mr. Gildon seems assured, that “ this admirable author did not think himself upon the same foot with Homer.” Comp. Art of Poetry, vol. i. p. 108.

“ Writ to the rumbling of his coach's wheels ;”

But how different is the judgment of the author of Characters of the times ? p. 25. who says, “ Sir Richard Blackmore is unfortunate

IMITATIONS.

VER. 262. Prick all their ears up, and forget to graze ;]

“ Immemor herbarum quos est mirata juvenca.”

VIRGIL, Ecl. viii.

The progress of the found from place to place, and the scenery here of the bordering regions, Tottenham-fields, Chancery-lane, the Thames, Westminster-Hall, and Hungerford-stairs, are imitated from Virgil, Æneid vii. on the founding the horn of Alecto :

“ Audiit et Triviæ longe lacus, audiit amnis Sulphurea Nar albus aqua, fontisque Velini.”

WARBURTON.

This labour past, by Bridewell all descend,
 (As morning pray'r, and flagellation end) 270
 To

REMARKS.

unfortunate in happening to mistake his proper talents ; and that he has not for many years been so much as named, or even thought of among writers." Even Mr. Dennis differs greatly from his friend Mr. Gildon : " Blackmore's Action (saith he) has neither unity, nor integrity, nor morality, nor universality ; and consequently he can have no Fable, and no Heroic Poem : His Narration is neither probable, delightful, nor wonderful ; his characters have none of the necessary qualifications ; the things contained in his Narration are neither in their own nature delightful, nor numerous enough, nor rightly disposed, nor surprising, nor pathetic." —Nay he proceeds so far as to say Sir Richard has no Genius ; first laying down, " that Genius is caused by a furiosus joy and pride of soul, on the conception of an extraordinary Hint. Many men, (says he) have their Hints, without these motions of fury and pride of soul, because they want fire enough to agitate their spirits ; and these we call cold writers. Others who have a great deal of fire, but have not excellent organs, feel the forementioned emotions without the extraordinary hints ; and these we call fustian writers. But he declares that Sir Richard had neither the Hints, nor the Motions." Remarks on Prince Arthur, octavo, 1696. Preface.

This gentleman, in his first works, abused the character of Mr. Dryden ; and in his last, of Mr. Pope, accusing him in very high and sober terms of profaneness and immorality (Essay on Polite Writing, vol. ii. p. 270.) on a mere report from Edm. Curl, that he was author of a Travestie on the first Psalm. Mr. Dennis took up the same report, but with the addition of what Sir Richard had neglected, an Argument to prove it ; which being very curious, we shall here transcribe. " It was he who burlesqued the Psalm of David. It is apparent to me that Psalm was burlesqued by a Popish rhymester. Let rhyming persons who have been brought up Protestants be otherwise what they will, let them be rakes, let them be scoundrels, let them be Atbeists, yet education has made an invincible impression on them in behalf of the sacred writings. But a Popish rhymester has been brought up with a contempt for those sacred writings ; now shew me another
Popish

To where Fleet-ditch with difemboguing streams
Rolls the large tribute of dead dogs to Thames,
The King of dykes ! than whom no fluice of mud
With deeper fable blots the filver flood. 274

“ Here

REMARKS.

Papish rhymester but he.” This manner of argumentation is usual with Mr. Dennis ; he has employed the same against Sir Richard himself, in a like charge of Impiety and Irreligion. “ All Mr. Blackmore’s celestial Machines, as they cannot be defended so much as by common received opinion, so are they directly contrary to the doctrine of the church of England ; for the visible descent of an angel must be a miracle. Now it is the doctrine of the church of England, that miracles had ceased a long time before Prince Arthur came into the world. Now if the doctrine of the church of England be true, as we are obliged to believe, then are all the celestial machines in Prince Arthur unfufferable, as wanting not only human, but divine probability. But if the machines are sufferable, that is, if they have so much as divine probability, then it follows of necessity that the doctrine of the Church is false. So I leave it to every impartial Clergyman to consider,” &c. Preface to the Remarks on Prince Arthur.

WARBURTON.

VER. 270. As morning pray’r, and flagellation end,] It is between eleven and twelve in the morning, after church service, that the criminals are whipped in Bridewell.—This is to mark punctually the time of the day : Homer does it by the circumstance of the Judges rising from court, or of the Labourers dinner ; our author by one very proper both to the Persons and the Scene of his poem, which we may remember commenced in the evening of the Lord-mayor’s day : The first book passed in that night ;

IMITATIONS.

VER. 273. The king of dykes, &c.]

“ Fluviorum rex Eridanus,

—quo non alius, per pingua culta,

In mare purpureum violentior influit amnis.” VIRG.

WARBURTON.

“ Here strip, my children ! here at once leap in,
 Here prove who best can dash thro’ thick and thin,
 And who the most in love of dirt excel,
 Or dark dexterity of groping well.
 Who flings most filth, and wide pollutes around
 The stream, be his the Weekly Journals bound ; 280
 A pig of lead to him who dives the best ;
 A peck of coals a-piece shall glad the rest.”

In

REMARKS.

night ; the next morning the games begin in the Strand, thence along Fleet-street (places inhabited by Bookfellers), then they proceed by Bridewell towards Fleet-ditch, and lastly through Ludgate to the City and the Temple of the Goddesses. WARBURTON.

VER. 276, 277, 278.—dash through thick and thin—love of dirt—dark dexterity] The three chief qualifications of Party-writers : to stick at nothing, to delight in flinging dirt, and to slander in the dark by guesses. WARBURTON.

VER. 280. the Weekly Journals] Papers of news and scandal intermixed, on different sides and parties, and frequently shifting from one side to the other, called the London Journal, British Journal, Daily Journal, &c. the concealed writers of which for some time were Oldmixon, Roome, Arnall, Concanen, and others : persons never seen by our author. WARBURTON.

VER. 281. who dives the best ;] The idea of this Game is evidently taken from Lord Dorset’s fine verses on Howard. I wonder Swift in his Rhapsody on Poetry would venture on the same subject and idea of diving, after Pope had succeeded so well :

“ For instance ; when you rashly think
 No Rhymer can like Welsted sink,
 His merits balanc’d you shall find,
 That Fielding leaves him far behind.”

Folio, Ver. 392. 1733.

Little did Swift imagine that this very Fielding would hereafter equal him in works of humour, and excel him in drawing and supporting characters, and in the artful conduct and plan of a Comic Epopée. WARTON.

In naked majesty Oldmixon stands,
And, Milo like, surveys his arms and hands ;

Then

VARIATIONS.

VER. 283. In the first Edition,—

In naked majesty great Dennis stands.

REMARKS.

VER. 282. A peck of coals a-piece] Our indulgent Poet, whenever he has spoken of any dirty or low work, constantly puts us in mind of the Poverty of the offenders, as the only extenuation of such practices. Let any one but remark, when a Thief, a Pickpocket, a Highwayman, or a Knight of the post, are spoken of, how much our hate to those characters is lessened, if they add a needy Thief, a poor Pickpocket, an hungry Highwayman, a starving Knight of the post, &c.

WARBURTON.

Here again has Swift borrowed from his friend, on the great number of our Scribblers, who, he says,

“ Computing by their Pecks of Coals,
Amount to just nine thousand souls.”

This Rhapsody, and the verses on his own death, are the best of Swift's poetical productions, though they cannot be called true Poetry.

WARTON.

VER. 283. In naked majesty Oldmixon stands,] Mr. JOHN OLDMIXON, next to Mr. Dennis, the most ancient Critic of our Nation ; an unjust censurer of Mr. Addison in his prose Essay on Criticism, whom also in his imitation of Bouhours (called the Arts of Logic and Rhetoric) he misrepresents in plain matter of fact ; for in p. 45, he cites the Spectator as abusing Dr. Swift by name, where there is not the least hint of it ; and in p. 304, is so injurious as to suggest that Mr. Addison himself writ that Tatler, No. 43, which says of his own Simile, that “ 'Tis as great as ever entered into the mind of man.” “ In Poetry he was not so happy as laborious, and therefore characterised by the Tatler, No. 62. by the name of Omicron, the Unborn Poet.” Curl, Key, p. 13. “ He writ Dramatic works, and a volume of Poetry, consisting of heroic Epistles, &c. some whereof are very well done,” said that great Judge Mr. Jacob, in his Lives of Poets, vol. ii. p. 303.

In his Essay on Criticism, and the Arts of Logic and Rhetoric, he frequently reflects on our Author. But the top of his cha-

Then fighting, thus, " And am I now threescore?
 Ah why, ye Gods! should two and two make four?"
 He said, and climb'd a stranded lighter's height,
 Shot to the black abyfs, and plung'd downright.
 The Senior's Judgment all the crowd admire,
 Who but to sink the deeper, rose the higher. 290
 Next Smedley div'd; flow circles dimpled o'er
 The quaking mud, that clos'd, and op'd no more.

All

REMARKS.

rafter was a perverter of History, in that scandalous one of the Stuarts* in folio, and his Critical History of England, two volumes, octavo. Being employed by Bishop Kennet, in publishing the Historians in his Collection, he falsified Daniel's Chronicle in numberless places. Yet this very man, in the preface to the first of these books, advanced a particular fact to charge three eminent persons of falsifying the Lord Clarendon's History; which fact has been disproved by Dr. Atterbury, late Bishop of Rochester, then the only survivor of them; and the particular part he pretended to be falsified, produced since, after almost ninety years, in that noble author's original manuscript. He was all his life a virulent Party-writer for hire, and received his reward in a small place, which he enjoyed to his death. WARBURTON.

VER. 291. Next Smedley div'd;] In the surreptitious editions, this whole Epifode was applied to an initial letter E—, by whom, if they meant the Laureate, nothing was more absurd, no part agreeing with his character. The Allegory evidently demands a person dipp'd in scandal, and deeply immerfed in dirty work; whereas Mr. Eufden's works rarely offended but by their length and

IMITATIONS.

VER. 285. Then fighting, thus, " And am I now threescore? &c.]
 " — Fletque Milon senior, cum spectat inanes Herculeis similes, fluidos pendere lacertos." OVID.

* Contemptible and wicked as Oldmixon's History is, a work published a few years since, called The Secret History of Charles II. is little inferior to it in virulence. BANNISTER.

All look, all figh, and call on Smedley loft ;
Smedley in vain refounds thro' all the coast.

Then * effay'd ; scarce vanish'd out of fight, 295
He buoys up infant, and returns to light :

He

REMARKS.

and multitude, and accordingly are taxed of nothing else in book i. ver. 102. But the person here mentioned, an Irishman, was author and publisher of many scurrilous pieces, a weekly Whitehall Journal in the year 1722, in the name of Sir James Baker ; and particularly whole volumes of Billingsgate against Dr. Swift and Mr. Pope, called Gulliveriana and Alexandriana, printed in octavo, 1728.

WARBURTON.

VER. 295. *Then * effay'd ;*] A gentleman of genius and spirit, who was secretly dipt in some papers of this kind, on whom our Poet bestows a panegyric instead of a satire, as deserving to be better employed than in party quarrels, and personal invectives.

WARBURTON.

VER. 295. *Then * effay'd ;*] Warton says, "supposed to be Hill, but Pope denied it." Pope denied he meant the Duke of Chandos ; but Johnson speaks very decidedly, that "he was sometimes the aggressor, and, before Chandos and Hill, was mean in his retreat." That he meant Aaron Hill, there can be no doubt : see Aaron Hill's Letters to him on this subject, in which he, with the most manly but severe tone, calls Pope to an account, who seems to shrink before him.—See Letters to and from Aaron Hill, in another volume of this work.

Hill was too haughty in resenting it so much ; for the compliment infinitely exceeds the abuse : and it is indeed a most happy image, and introduced with the greatest beauty and effect ; particularly his mounting —— "far off among the Swans of Thames,"

I do

IMITATIONS.

VER. 293. and call on Smedley loft, &c.]

"Alcides wept in vain for Hylas loft, Hylas, in vain, refounds thro' all the coast."

Lord ROSCOM. Translat. of VIRGIL'S vith Ecl.

He bears no tokens of the fabler streams,
And mounts far off among the Swans of Thames.

True to the bottom, see Concanen creep,
A cold, long-winded, native of the deep : 300
If

VARIATIONS.

After ver. 298. in the first Edit. followed these :

Far worse unhappy D——r succeeds,
He search'd for coral, but he gather'd weeds.

REMARKS.

I do not know in the English language where we could find a more elegant and poetical compliment.

Hill courted Dodington's favour, as appears by the following Letter, on occasion of the ill reception of one of his Plays :

“ SIR,

“ You would wonder, if I should tell you, that this Tragedy pretends a title to your favour.

“ It is that title, whereby a stranger, when ill used among foreigners, claims the safeguard of his countrymen's houses.

“ You are too eminently a poet, not to scorn the decisions of prejudice, or partiality : and it is my satisfaction, that, should this Play be worth any thing, it will lie safe in such closets as yours,

“ Till Party-Rage shall droop, the length of days,
And calumny be ripen'd into praise.

“ I am, Sir,

“ Your most humble and obedient servant,

“ A. HILL.”

This is no exaggeration. Dodington would have been a Poet, had he cultivated the Muses with as much care as he did Politics. His Love Verses are very elegant.

VER. 299. Concanen] MATTHEW CONCANEN, an Irishman, bred to the Law. Smedley (one of his brethren in enmity to Swift) in his Metamorphosis of Scriblerus, p. 7. accuses him of “ having boasted of what he had not written, but others had revised and done for him.” He was author of several dull and dead scurrilities in the British and London Journals, and in a paper called the Speculatist. In a pamphlet, called a Supplement to the Profund, he dealt very unfairly with our Poet, not only frequently

If perfeverance gain the Diver's prize,
 Not everlaſting Blackmore this denies :
 No noiſe, no ſtir, no motion canſt thou make,
 Th' unconſcious ſtream ſleeps o'er thee like a lake.

Next plung'd a feeble, but a deſp'rate pack, 305
 With each a ſickly brother at his back :
 Sons of a Day! juſt buoyant on the flood,
 Then number'd with the puppies in the mud.
 Aſk ye their names? I could as ſoon diſcloſe
 The names of theſe blind puppies as of thoſe. 310
 Faſt by, like Niobe (her children gone)
 Sits Mother Osborne, ſtupify'd to ſtone!

And

REMARKS.

quently imputing to him Mr. Broome's verſes, (for which he might indeed ſeem in ſome degree accountable, having corrected what that gentleman did,) but thoſe of the duke of Buckingham, and others: To this rare piece ſomebody humourouſly cauſed him to take for his motto, De profundis clamavi. He was ſince a hired ſcribbler in the Daily Courant, where he poured forth much Billingſgate againſt the Lord Bolingbroke, and others; after which this man was ſurpriſingly promoted to adminiſter Juſtice and Law in Jamaica.

WARBURTON.

This is the Scribler to whom Warburton wrote his famous Letter, publiſhed by Dr. Akenſide; by which it appears, that Concanen was intimately acquainted with Dr. Warburton in the year 1728, at the time when he publiſhed a Supplement to the Profund.

WARTON.

VER. 306, 307. With each a ſickly brother at his back: Sons of a Day! &c.] Theſe were daily Papers, a number of which, to leſſen the expence, were printed one on the back of another.

WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 302. Not everlaſting Blackmore]

“Nec bonus Eurytion prælato invidit honori,” &c.

VIRG. Æneid.

And Monumental Brags this record bears,

“ These are,—ah no ! these were the Gazetteers !”

Not

REMARKS.

VER. 311. like Niobe] See the story in Ovid, Met. vii. where the miserable Petrefaction of this old Lady is pathetically described.

WARBURTON.

VER. 312. Osborne,] A name assumed by the eldest and gravest of these writers, who at last being ashamed of his pupils, gave his paper over, and in his age remained silent.

WARBURTON.

VER. 314. Gazetteers !] We ought not to suppress that a modern Critic here taxeth the Poet with an Anachronism, affirming these Gazetteers not to have lived within the time of this poem, and challenging us to produce any such paper of that date. But we may with equal assurance assert, these Gazetteers not to have lived since, and challenge all the learned world to produce one such paper at this Day. Surely therefore, where the point is so obscure, our author ought not to be censured too rashly

SCRIBLERUS.

Notwithstanding this affected ignorance of the good Scriblerus, the Daily Gazetteer was a title given very properly to certain papers, each of which lasted but a day. Into this, as a common sink, was received all the trash, which had been before dispersed in several Journals, and circulated at the public expence of the nation. The authors were the same obscure men ; though sometimes relieved by occasional essays from Statesmen, Courtiers, Bishops, Deans, and Doctors. The meaner sort were rewarded with Money ; others with Places or Benefices, from an hundred to a thousand a-year. It appears from the Report of the Secret Committee for enquiring into the conduct of R. Earl of O. “ That no less than fifty thousand seventy-seven pounds, eighteen shillings, were paid to Authors and Printers of News-papers, such as Free-Britons, Daily-Courants, Corn-Cutters Journals, Gazetteers, and other political papers, between Feb. 10, 1731, and Feb. 10, 1741.” Which shews the Benevolence of one Minister to have expended, for the current dulness of ten years in Britain, double the sum which gained Louis XIV. so much honour, in annual Pensions to Learned men all over Europe. In which, and in a much longer time, not a Pension at Court, nor Preferment in the Church, or Universities, of any Consideration, was

Not so bold Arnall ; with a weight of skull, 315
 Furious he dives, precipitately dull.

Whirl-

REMARKS.

was bestowed on any man distinguished for his Learning separately from Party-merit, or Pamphlet-writing. WARBURTON.

Warton says, that " Dr Warburton, in this last sentence, has carried his censure too far." In fact, the whole statement is exaggerated, and destitute of candour and truth.

It is worth a reflection, that of all the Panegyrics bestowed by these writers on this great Minister, not one is at this day extant or remembered ; nor even so much credit done to his personal character by all they have written, as by one short occasional compliment of our author in the Dialogue of One thousand seven hundred and thirty-eight, line 29. WARBURTON.

If the panegyrics of Sir Robert Walpole and his administration are all forgotten, it is the fate of all Party-Writers. It is different with regard to Poetry ; for the excellence of the verses will insure them readers, when the parties to whom they allude are forgotten : but, notwithstanding this, every day detracts something, from the popularity of these writings, which were indebted for their greatest success to particular circumstances of times. If Sir Robert's pamphleteers and gazetteers are forgotten, so also are the papers supported by what Pope would consider the ablest hands ; witness, the " Examiner," the " Craftsman," &c. : but who now read them ? They are all, both " Capulets and Montagus, gone to the same vault."

(Anni prædantur euntes)

VER. 315. Arnall ;] WILLIAM ARNALL, bred an Attorney, was a perfect Genius in this sort of work. He began under twenty with furious Party-papers ; then succeeded Concanen in the British Journal. At the first publication of the Dunciad, he prevailed on the Author not to give him his due place in it, by a letter professing his detestation of such practices as his Predecessor's. But since, by the most unexampled insolence and personal abuse of several great men, the Poet's particular friends, he most amply deserved a niche in the Temple of Infamy : Witness a paper, called the Free-Briton ; a Dedication intitled, To the Whirlpools and storms his circling arms invest,

With all the might of gravitation blest.

No

REMARKS.

Genuine Blunderer, 1732, and many others. He writ for hire, and valued himself upon it; not indeed without cause, it appearing by the aforefaid REPORT, that he received "for Free-Britons, and other writings, in the space of four years, no less than ten thousand nine hundred and ninety-seven pounds, six shillings, and eight-pence, out of the Treasury." But frequently, through his fury or folly, he exceeded all the bounds of his commission, and obliged his honourable Patron to disavow his scurrilities.

WARBURTON.

VER. 315. bold Arnall;] The following Letter will shew the confidence reposed in him by the Minister:

"To Sir Robert Walpole.

"Sir, Whitehall, Dec. 3, 1732.

"I arrived from Bristol on Thursday night, and have brought with me those papers which I prepared for your view, on the subject of petitions for the repeal of the Tests. They have hitherto been seen only by Sir William Young at Bath, and by Mr. Scrope in town. They are now, with great submission, laid before you; and if it may be proper to publish them only as the sentiments of a private Dissenter, offered to his misguided brethren, they shall then be sent to a dissenting bookseller, in an unknown hand, and by a fit person, to be published as an accidental pamphlet arising in the controversy among the Dissenters themselves: but if it be not proper to publish them at all, this, Sir, will be altogether in your own judgment, to which I most humbly submit myself on the occasion. To me the nature of things, or of men, cannot be so exactly and intimately known, as to enable me in all cases to judge what will do service to the Government. In this case, I thought it incumbent upon me to be ready, if any thing in my power could render the Government service: and if those papers which I have written on the subject, may not be fitting to appear at this juncture, they will, however, answer the greatest end which I could have in writing them,—they will shew that I could not be indolent or inactive whilst I thought the Administration involved in difficulties, or beset with dangers: and this unwearied application to your service

No crab more active in the dirty dance,
 Downward to climb, and backward to advance. 320
 He

REMARKS.

service will, I know, excuse the trouble which I now give you, even though it should not be of so much use to the Administration as I might hope it would be. I shall, Sir, attend you early on Wednesday morning in St. James's Square; and am, Sir,

“Your most obliged faithful servant,

“W. ARNALL*.”

Those who arraign Sir Robert Walpole for his practice of employing, at a great expence, public writers, forget, or are ignorant of, the circumstances and peculiar difficulties of the times. Walpole was the main prop of the Protestant Succession; against him were united splendid, but opposite forces,—the Jacobites, the Tories, the discontented Republicans, the Dissenters, and the High-Churchmen. It was necessary to maintain one great and essential fortress, our laws and liberties, under the House of Hanover: if Walpole was attacked, by whatever weapons, it was necessary that he should be enabled to repel the attack, from whatever quarter, and oppose the arms by which he and his cause were assailed. Bolingbroke, his most crafty, inveterate, and, I may add, ungrateful opponent, directed the “Craftsman,” a periodical paper: the same abuse was fulminating from every quarter; and this was only to be repelled by having recourse to the same weapons. Hence the number of gazetteers, pamphleteers, &c. in the pay of Sir Robert W.: they did their duty, as far as they were concerned; he did his in his place in the House of Commons; but I very much doubt whether his wisdom, his intrepidity, his eloquence, and his promptitude, in that place, could have preserved the arx reipublicæ (assaulted as it was), unless he had made use of those subordinate aids, which many, without considering all the circumstances, have so much decried.

I have elsewhere mentioned the fate, I believe, of the young man who was the occasion of these reflections. He had certainly great talents, but was vain and careless; and after having acquired sufficient for competence, if not for perfect ease, he destroyed himself, having squandered as fast as he received.

VER. 318. gravitation blest.] From Dorset on Howard, who had such alacrity in Sinking. WARTON.

* Communicated by Mr. Coxé.

He brings up half the bottom on his head,
And loudly claims the Journals and the Lead.

The plunging Prelate, and his pond'rous Grace,
With holy envy gave one Layman place.
When lo! a burst of thunder shook the flood, 325
Slow rose a form, in majesty of Mud;
Shaking the horrors of his fable brows,
And each ferocious feature grim with ooze.
Greater he looks, and more than mortal stares:
Then thus the wonders of the deep declares. 330

First he relates, how sinking to the chin,
Smit with his mien, the Mud-nymphs suck'd him in:
How young Lutetia, softer than the down,
Nigrina black, and Merdamante brown,
Vy'd for his love in jetty bow'rs below, 335
As Hylas fair was ravish'd long ago.

Then

REMARKS.

VER. 323. The plunging Prelate,] It was imagined he meant Bishop Sherlock, whom Bolingbroke attacks so violently in the Dissertation on Parties, for defending the measures of Sir Robert Walpole, who was Sherlock's Contemporary at Eton College, and who used to relate, that when some of the Scholars, going to bathe in the Thames, stood shivering on the Bank, Sherlock plunged in immediately over his head and ears. WARTON.

VER. 331. First he relates,] The Adventures of Smedley, and what he saw in the Shades below, from thence down to Line 352, are finely imagined, and one of the most poetical passages in any of his Works. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 329. Greater he looks, and more than mortal stares:] VIRG. Æneid. vi. of the Sibyl:

“ —— majorque videri,
Nec mortale sonans.” ——

Then fung, how shown him by the Nut-brown maids
 A branch of Styx here rises from the Shades,
 That tinctur'd as it runs with Lethe's streams,
 And wafting vapours from the land of dreams, 340
 (As under seas Alpheus' secret fluice Bears Pifa's off'rings to his Arethufe)

Pours

REMARKS.

VER. 336. As Hylas fair] Who was ravished by the water-nymphs, and drawn into the river. The story is told at large by Valerius Flaccus, lib. iii. Argon. See Virgil, Ecl. vi.

WARBURTON.

Warton adds, and with truth, that it is better told by Theocritus, Idyll. 13.

VER. 338. A branch of Styx, &c.]

Ὅς τ' ἀμφ' ἰμερῶν Τίταρ' ἴσιον ἔργ' ἐνέμοντο,

Ὅς ῥ' ἐς Πηνειὸν ποιεῖ καλλιρροῦν ὕδωρ,

Οὐδ' ὄγε Πηνειῶν συμμίσγεται ἀργυροδίη,

Ἄλλά τέ μιν καθύπερθεν ἐπιρρέει ἤντ' ἔλαιον,

Ὅρκω γὰρ δεινῆ Στυγὸς ὑδαλὸς ἐστὶν ἀπορρώξ.

Homer, Il. ii. Catal. Of the Land of Dreams in the same region, he makes mention Odyss. xxiv. See also Lucian's True History. Lethe and the Land of Dreams allegorically represent the Stupefaction and visionary Madnefs of Poets, equally dull and extravagant. Of Alpheus's water gliding secretly under the sea of Pifa, to mix with those of the Arethufe in Sicily, see Moschus Idyll. viii. Virg. Ecl. x.

" Sic tibi, cum fluctus subter labere Sicanos, Doris amara suam non intermiscet undam."

And again, Æneid. iii.

" —Alpheum fama est huc, Elidis amnem,
 Occultas egisse vias subter mare, qui nunc
 Ore, Arethusa, tuo Siculis confunditur undis."

WARBURTON.

VER. 341. secret fluice] Not so much from Moschus or Virgil, as mentioned in the above note, but clearly taken from the Arcades of Milton;

" Divine Alphéus, who, by secret fluse, Stole under seas to meet his Arethufe." WARTON.

Pours into Thames : and hence the mingled wave
 Intoxicates the pert, and lulls the grave :
 Here brisker vapours o'er the TEMPLE creep, 345
 There, all from Paul's to Aldgate drink and sleep.

Thence to the banks where rev'rend Bards repose,
 They led him soft ; each rev'rend Bard arose ;
 And Milbourn chief, deputed by the rest,
 Gave him the cassock, furbingle, and vest. 350
 " Receive (he said) these robes which once were mine,
 " Dulness is sacred in a sound divine."

He ceas'd, and spread the robe ; the crowd confess
 The rev'rend Flamen in his lengthen'd dress.
 Around him wide a fable Army stand, 355
 A low-born, cell-bred, selfish, servile band,

Prompt

REMARKS.

VER. 349. And Milbourn] Luke Milbourn a Clergyman, the fairest of Critics ; who, when he wrote against Mr. Dryden's Virgil, did him justice in printing at the same time his own translations of him, which were intolerable. His manner of writing has a great resemblance with that of the Gentlemen of the Dunciad against our author, as will be seen in the Parallel of Mr. Dryden and him. Append. WARBURTON.

VER. 355. Around him wide, &c.] It is to be hoped that the satire in these lines will be understood in the confined sense in which the Author meant it, of such only of the Clergy, who though solemnly

IMITATIONS.

VER. 347. Thence to the banks, &c.]
 " Tum canit errantem Permessi ad flumina Gallum, Utque viro Phœbi chorus affurrexerit omnis ;
 Ut Linus hæc illi divino carmine pastor,
 Floribus atque apio crines ornatus, amaro,
 Dixerit, Hos tibi dant calamos, en accipe, Musæ,
 Ascraeo quos ante feni"—&c.

Prompt or to guard or stab, or faint or damn,
Heav'n's Swifs, who fight for any God, or Man.

Through Lud's fam'd gates, along the well-known Fleet

Rolls the black troop, and overshades the street, 360
Till show'rs of Sermons, Characters, Effays,
In circling fleeces whiten all the ways :

So

REMARKS.

solemnly engaged in the service of Religion, dedicate themselves, for venal and corrupt ends, to the service of Ministers or Factions; and though educated under an entire ignorance of the world, aspire to interfere in the government of it, and consequently to disturb and disorder it; in which they fall short of their Predecessors only by being invested with much less of that power and authority, which they employed indifferently (as is hinted at in the lines above) either in supporting arbitrary power, or in exciting rebellion; in canonizing the vices of Tyrants, or in blackening the virtues of Patriots; in corrupting religion by superstition, or betraying it by libertinism, as either was thought best to serve the ends of Policy, or flatter the follies of the Great. *

I fear, notwithstanding the pains taken by the Commentator, in his note on this passage, that it will be thought to contain too general and unmerited a censure on the Clergy. The expression is taken from Dryden's Hind and Panther :

“ Those Swisses fight for any side for pay.” [WARTON.

VER. 359. Lud's fam'd gates,] “ King Lud repairing the City, called it after his own name, Lud's Town; the strong gate which he built in the West part, he likewise, for his own honour, named Ludgate. In the year 1260, this gate was beautified with images of Lud and other Kings. Those images in the reign of Edward VI. had their heads smitten off, and were otherwise defaced by unadvised folks. Queen Mary did set new heads upon their old bodies again. The 28th of Queen Elizabeth the same gate was clean taken down, and newly and beautifully builded, with images of Lud and others, as afore.” Stowe's Survey of London. WARBURTON.

So clouds replenish'd from some bog below,
 Mount in dark volumes, and descend in snow.
 Here stopp'd the Goddess, and in pomp proclaims,
 A gentler exercise to close the games. 366
 " Ye Critics ! in whose heads, as equal scales,
 " I weigh what author's heaviness prevails ;
 " Which most conduce to sooth the soul in slumbers,
 " My H—ley's periods, or my Blackmore's numbers ; 370
 " Attend the trial we propose to make :
 " If there be man, who o'er such works can wake,
 " Sleep's all-subduing charms who dares defy,
 " And boasts Ulysses' ear with Argus' eye ;
 " To him we grant our amplest pow'rs to fit 375
 " Judge of all present, past, and future wit ;
 " To cavil, censure, dictate, right or wrong,
 " Full and eternal privilege of tongue."
 Three College Sophs, and three pert Templars came,
 The same their talents, and their tastes the same ; 380
 Each prompt to query, answer, and debate,
 And smit with love of Poesy and Prate.

The

REMARKS.

VER. 374. See Hom. Odyss. xii. Ovid. Met. i. W.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 380, 381. The same their talents—Each prompt, &c.]

" Ambo florentes ætatibus, Arcades ambo, Et certare pares, et respondere parati." VIRG. Ecl. vi.

VER. 382. And smit with love of Poesy and Prate.]

" Smit with the love of sacred song" ——— MILTON.

The pond'rous books two gentle readers bring ;
 The heroes sit, the vulgar form a ring ;
 The clam'rous crowd is hush'd with mugs of Mum,
 Till all tun'd equal, fend a gen'ral hum. 386
 Then mount the Clerks, and in one lazy tone
 Thro' the long, heavy, painful page drawl on ;
 Soft creeping, words on words, the sense compose,
 At ev'ry line they stretch, they yawn, they doze. 390
 As to soft gales top-heavy pines bow low
 Their heads, and lift them as they cease to blow :
 Thus oft they rear, and oft the head decline,
 As breathe, or pause, by fits, the airs divine.
 And now to this side, now to that they nod, 395
 As verse, or prose, infuse the drowzy God,
 Thrice Budget aim'd to speak, but thrice suppress'd
 By potent Arthur, knock'd his chin and breast.

Toland

REMARKS.

VER. 386. Till all tun'd equal,] The humour and wit of all this description is inimitable.

VER. 387. in one lazy tone] The powerful effects of hearing two dull authors read, described, from hence to the end of this Book, deserve great applause, for Imagination, Expression, and Elegance; particularly lines 388 to 396. WARTON.

VER. 397. Thrice Budget aim'd to speak,] Famous for his speeches on many occasions about the South Sea scheme, &c. "He is a very ingenious gentleman, and hath written some excellent Epilogues to Plays, and one small piece on Love, which is very pretty." Jacob, Lives of Poets, vol. ii. p. 289. But this gentleman since made himself much more eminent, and personally well

IMITATIONS.

VER. 384. The heroes sit, the vulgar form a ring ;]

"Confedere duces, et vulgi stante corona."

OVID. Met. xiii.

Toland and Tindal, prompt at priests to jeer,
 Yet silent bow'd to Christ's No kingdom here. 400
 Who

VARIATIONS.

VER. 399. in the first Edit. it was,
 Collins and Tindal, prompt at priests to jeer.

REMARKS.

well known to the greatest Statesmen of all parties, as well as to all the Courts of Law in this nation. WARBURTON.

VER. 399. Toland and Tindal,] Two persons, not so happy as to be obscure, who writ against the Religion of their Country. Toland, the Author of the Atheist's Liturgy, called Pantheisticon, was a spy in pay to Lord Oxford. Tindal was author of the Rights of the Christian Church, and Christianity as old as the Creation. He also wrote an abusive pamphlet against Earl S——, which was suppressed, while yet in MS. by an eminent person then out of the ministry, to whom he shewed it, expecting his approbation: This Doctor afterwards published the same piece, mutatis mutandis, against that very person. WARBURTON.

VER. 399. Toland] Toland, by the confidence of his assertions, and affectation of learning, acquired in his time more reputation than he deserved. He travelled to Germany, where he received many marks of distinction, particularly at the court of Hanover. He was likewise noticed by Prince Eugene, and in England he had the honour of reckoning Mr. Locke among his friends. He is remarkable for the perplexity of his style, and confusion of his ideas; and not less for his unfairness and dissingenuity in the management of an argument. He has been detected in false quotations and strange blunders. He put no restraint on his passions; and in the latter part of his life he was reduced to great distress.

BANNISTER.

VER. 400. Christ's No kingdom here, &c.] This is said by Curl, Key to Dunc. to allude to a sermon of a reverend Bishop.

WARBURTON.

It certainly did allude to the famous sermon of Bishop Hoadley, whom our Author disliked on account of some letters signed Britannicus, in the London Journal, against Bishop Atterbury; whom also Hoadley had vigorously attacked, for his false and perverse interpretation of that text in St. Paul, "If in this life only we have hope, we are of all men most miserable:" and also for a famous

Who fate the nearest, by the words o'ercome,
 Slept first; the distant nodded to the hum.
 Then down are roll'd the books; stretch'd o'er 'em lies
 Each gentle clerk, and mutt'ring seals his eyes.
 As what a Dutchman plumps into the lakes, 405
 One circle first, and then a second makes;
 What Dulness dropt among her sons imprest
 Like motion from one circle to the rest:
 So from the mid-most the nutation spreads
 Round and more round, o'er all the sea of heads. 410
 At

REMARKS.

famous sermon on another ill-understood passage of Scripture, "Charity shall cover a multitude of sins:" and for his sermon before the Convocation. Atterbury, I believe, was one of the last preachers that ever injudiciously urged the authenticity of the Sybilline verses, as proofs of the coming of our Saviour. Warburton was not of Atterbury's opinion with respect to Church-power. See his "Alliance." WARTON.

VER. 400. Yet silent bow'd to Christ's No kingdom here.] The deliberate, unimpassioned hostility of Pope, and the misanthropic virulence of Swift, against Bishop Hoadley, is easily accounted for, upon the same laudable principle which excited their antipathies in so many other instances; namely, his zeal and abilities in vindicating the civil and religious liberties of mankind. The Sermon here alluded to, On the Nature of the Kingdom, or Church, of Christ, is well known to have occasioned a long, vehement, and learned debate, under the name of the Bangorian Controversy; of which See, Hoadley was at that time Bishop. It was preached before George the First, at St. James's, March 1, 1717, and published by his special command; and soon went through many editions. WAKEFIELD.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 410. o'er all the sea of heads.] "A waving sea of heads was round me spread,
 And still fresh streams the gazing deluge fed."
 BLACKM. JOE.

At last Centlivre felt her voice to fail,
 Motteux himself unfinish'd left his tale,
 Boyer the State, and Law the Stage gave o'er,
 Morgan and Mandevil could prate no more ;

Norton,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 413. in the first Edit. it was,
 T ———s and T ——— the Church and State gave o'er,
 Nor * * * talked, nor S ——— whisper'd more.

REMARKS.

VER. 411. Centlivre] Mrs. Susanna Centlivre, wife to Mr. Centlivre, Yeoman of the Mouth to his Majesty. She writ many Plays, and a Song, (says Mr. Jacob, vol. i. p. 32.) before she was seven years old. She also writ a Ballad against Mr. Pope's Homer, before he began it. WARBURTON.

VER. 413. Boyer the State, and Law the Stage gave o'er,] A. Boyer, a voluminous compiler of Annals, Political Collections, &c.—William Law, A. M. wrote with great zeal against the Stage; Mr. Dennis answered with as great: Their books were printed in 1726. Mr. Law affirmed, "The Playhouse is the temple of the Devil; the peculiar pleasure of the Devil; where all they who go yield to the Devil; where all the laughter is a laughter among Devils; and all who are there are hearing Music in the very Porch of Hell." To which Mr. Dennis replied, that "There is every jot as much difference between a true Play, and one made by a Poetafter, as between two religious Books, the Bible and the Alcoran." Then he demonstrates, that "All those who had written against the Stage were Jacobites and Non-jurors; and did it always at a time when something was to be done for the Pretender." Mr. Collier published his Short View when France declared for the Chavelier; and his Dissuasive, just at the great storm, when the devastation which that hurricane wrought, had amazed and astonished the minds of men, and made them obnoxious to melancholy and desponding thoughts. Mr. Law took the opportunity to attack the Stage upon the great preparations he heard were making abroad, and which the Jacobites flattered themselves were designed in their favour. And as for Mr. Bedford's Serious Remonstrance, though I know nothing of the time of publishing, yet I dare to lay odds it was either upon the Duke

Norton, from Daniel and Ostroea sprung, 415
Bless'd with his father's front, and mother's tongue,
Hung

REMARKS.

d'Aumont's being at Somerfet-house, or upon the late Rebellion.
DENNIS, Stage defended against Mr. Law, p. ult.

WARBURTON.

How Boyer, who was indeed a dull but useful writer, offended our author, I have never heard. But indeed most of the Scriblers here proscribed, were of a rank much inferior to the writers whom Boileau thought proper to attack; particularly Quinault, whom he so unjustly and impotently censured. It was said of Boileau, that though he made Vice odious, he never made Virtue amiable. Law was a melancholy Enthusiast, who disguised and misrepresented true Religion by dressing it up in dark gloomy colours.

WARTON.

VER. 414. Morgan] A writer against Religion, distinguished no otherwise from the rabble of his tribe, than by the pompousness of his Title, of a Moral Philosopher.

WARBURTON.

Ibid. Morgan] Morgan was bred a dissenting minister; he afterwards turned physician, and settled in Bristol, but never could get much practice, owing, it is said, to his ungraceful form and uncouth manner. He was a man of some learning, and uncommon acuteness, with a strong disposition to satire, which very often degenerated into scurrility. His most celebrated work is the Moral Philosopher, first published in the year 1737. It is written with great art; and the author endeavours to conceal the mischievous tendency of his principles, till he thinks he has brought the reader over to his opinion: he then displays his malice without disguise. He is remarkable for the indecency and impiety of his expressions, and the indulgence of a coarse strain of humour, or rather buffoonery. He was answered by Leland, Lowman, and Chandler, and treated by the latter with great severity. He died in the year 1742.

BANNISTER.

Ibid. Mandevil] Author of a famous book called the Fable of the Bees; written to prove, that Moral Virtue is the invention of knaves, and Christian Virtue the imposition of fools; and that Vice is necessary, and alone sufficient to render Society flourishing and happy.

WARBURTON.

Hung filent down his never-blushing head ;
And all was hush'd, as Folly's self lay dead.

Thus the soft gifts of Sleep conclude the day,
And stretch'd on bulks, as usual, Poets lay. 420
Why should I sing, what bards the nightly Muse
Did slumb'ring visit, and convey to stews ;

Who

REMARKS.

VER. 415. Norton,] Norton De Foe, said to be the natural offspring of the famous Daniel De Foe. "Fortes creantur fortibus." One of the authors of the "Flying Post."

VER. 418. And all was hush'd,] Alluding to the first Line of Dryden's Description of Night in the Indian Emperor. A Description which Rhymer produces as a Specimen of the Superiority of English Poetry, to that of other nations: after quoting the Descriptions of Apollonius, Virgil, Ariosto, Tasso, Marino, Chapelain, and Le Moyne; as if, by one description, such a question could be determined! Rhymer introduces this criticism in the preface to his translation of Rapin's Reflexions on Aristotle's Poetics; and Rhymer, at that time, gave the Law to all writers, and was appealed to as a supreme judge of all works of Taste and Genius. How well he was qualified for this character, will appear by observing, that after making remarks on what he calls our three Epic-Poets, Spencer, Davenant, and Cowley, he mentions not one syllable of Milton. But Milton was not relished and comprehended either by Rapin or Rhymer. WARTON.

VER. 418. And all was hush'd, as Folly's self lay dead.] Creech in his translation of the story of Lucretia, from Ovid, Fast. ii.

"And all was hush'd, as Nature's self lay dead."

And Hughes, in his Morning-Apparition :

"All things were hush'd, as Noise itself were dead."

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 421. *Why should I sing, what bards the nightly Muse
Did slumb'ring visit, and convey to stews ?]*

A parody on Paradise Lost, ix. 20.

"If answerable stile I can obtain
Of my celestial patroness, who deigns
Her nightly visitation unimplor'd,
And dictates to me slumb'ring."

WAKEFIELD.

Who prouder march'd, with magistrates in state,
 To some fam'd round-house, ever open gate!
 How Henley lay inspir'd beside a sink, 425
 And to mere mortals seem'd a Priest in drink:
 While others, timely, to the neighb'ring Fleet
 (Haunt of the Muses) made their safe retreat.

REMARKS.

VER. 426. And to mere mortals seem'd a Priest in drink:] This line presents us with an excellent moral, that we are never to pass judgment merely by appearance; a lesson to all men, who may happen to see a reverend person in the like situation, not to determine too rashly: since not only the Poets frequently describe a Bard inspired in this posture,

“ (On Cam's fair bank, where Chaucer lay inspir'd,” and the like) but an eminent Casuist tells us, that “ if a Priest be seen in any indecent action, we ought to account it a deception of sight, or illusion of the Devil, who sometimes takes upon him the shape of holy men on purpose to cause scandal.” SCRIBLERVS.

VER. 427. Fleet] A prison for insolvent Debtors on the bank of the Ditch. WARBURTON.

VER. 428. Haunt of the Muses] A most happy stroke of sly satire, unexpectedly stolen in. WARTON.

THE
D U N C I A D.

BOOK THE THIRD.

ARGUMENT.

AFTER the other persons are disposed in their proper places of rest, the Goddess transports the King to her Temple, and there lays him to slumber with his head on her lap: a position of marvellous virtue, which causes all the Visions of wild enthusiasts, projectors, politicians, inamoratos, castle-builders, chemists, and poets. He is immediately carried on the wings of Fancy, and led by a mad Poetical Sibyl to the Elysian shade; where, on the banks of Lethe, the souls of the dull are dipped by Bavius, before their entrance into this world. There he is met by the ghost of Settle, and by him made acquainted with the wonders of the place, and with those which he himself is destined to perform. He takes him to a Mount of Vision, from whence he shews him the past triumphs of the empire of Dulness, then the present, and lastly the future: how small a part of the world was ever conquered by Science, how soon those conquests were stopped, and those very nations again reduced to her dominion. Then distinguishing the Island of Great Britain, shews by what aids, by what persons, and by what degrees, it shall be brought to her Empire. Some of the persons he causes to pass in review before his eyes, describing each by his proper figure, character, and qualifications. On a sudden the Scene shifts, shifts, and a vast number of miracles and prodigies appear, utterly surprizing and unknown to the King himself, till they are explained to be the wonders of his own reign now commencing. On this subject Settle breaks into a congratulation, yet not unmixed with concern, that his own times were but the types of these. He prophesies how first the nation shall be over-run with Farces, Operas, and Shows; how the throne of Dulness shall be advanced over the Theatres, and set up even at Court: then how her Sons shall preside in the seats of Arts and Sciences: giving a glimpse, or Pisgab-sight, of the future Fulness of her Glory, the accomplishment whereof is the subject of the fourth and last book.

Hence the Fool's Paradise, the Statesman's Scheme,
 The air-built Castle, and the golden Dream, 10
 The Maid's romantic wish, the Chemist's flame,
 And Poet's vision of eternal Fame.

And now, on Fancy's easy wing convey'd,
 The King descending, views th' Elyfian Shade.
 A slipshod Sibyl led his steps along, 15
 In lofty madness meditating song;
 Her tresses staring from Poetic dreams,
 And never wash'd, but in Castalia's streams.
 Taylor, their better Charon, lends an oar, 19
 (Once swan of Thames, tho' now he sings no more)
 Benlowes, propitious still to blockheads, bows;
 And Shadwell nods the Poppy on his brows.

Here,

REMARKS.

VER. 19. Taylor,] John Taylor the Water-poet, an honest man, who owns he learned not so much as the Accidence. A rare example of modesty in a Poet!

“ I must confess I do want eloquence,
 And never scarce did learn my Accidence;
 For having got from possum to posset,
 I there was gravel'd, could no farther get.”

He wrote fourscore books in the reign of James I. and Charles I. and afterwards (like Edward Ward) kept an Alehouse in Long-Acre. He died in 1654. WARBURTON.

VER. 21. Benlowes,] A country gentleman famous for his own bad Poetry, and for patronizing bad Poets, as may be seen from many Dedications of Quarles, and others to him. Some of these anagram'd his name, Benlowes into Benevolus; to verify which, he spent his whole estate upon them. WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 15. A slipshod Sibyl, &c.]

“ Conclamat Vates——

—— furens antro se immisit aperto.”

VIRGIL.

WARBURTON.

Here, in a dusky vale where Lethe rolls,
Old Bavius sits, to dip poetic souls,

And

REMARKS.

VER. 21. Benlowes—Brown—Mears] How could he waste so much time, and throw away such charming Poetry on objects so very unknown and despicable! What a state of anger and irritation must his mind (and such a mind!) have been in, during the many hours, nay years, he spent in writing the 1670 lines of the Dunciad!
WARTON.

VER. 22. And Shadwell nods the Poppy, &c.] Shadwell took Opium for many years, and died of too large a dose, in the year 1692.
WARBURTON.

VER. 24. Old Bavius sits,] Bavius was an ancient Poet, celebrated by Virgil for the like cause as Bays by our author, though not in so christian-like a manner: For heathenishly it is declared by Virgil of Bavius, that he ought to be hated and detested for his evil works; Qui Bavius non odit; whereas we have often had occasion to observe our Poet's great Good Nature and Mercifulness through the whole course of this Poem.
SCRIBLERUS.

Mr. Dennis warmly contends, that Bavius was no inconsiderable author; nay, that "He and Mævius had (even in Augustus's days) a very formidable party at Rome, who thought them much superior

IMITATIONS.

VER. 23. Here, in a dusky vale, &c.]

"—— Videt Æneas in valle reducta
Seclusum nemus——
Lethæumque domos placidas qui prænatat amnem, &c.
Hunc circum innumeræ gentes," &c.

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

WARBURTON.

VER. 24. Old Bavius sits, to dip poetic souls,] Alluding to the story of Thetis dipping Achilles to render him impenetrable:

"At pater Anchises penitus convalle virenti
Inclusas animas, superumque ad lumen ituras, Lustrabat"——

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

WARBURTON.

By no means with an intent to render him impenetrable; but merely in allusion to the passage in Virgil here quoted. WARTON.

And blunt the sense, and fit it for a skull 25
 Of solid proof, impenetrably dull :
 Instant, when dipt, away they wing their flight,
 Where Brown and Mears unbar the gates of Light,
 Demand new bodies, and in Calf's array,
 Rush to the world, impatient for the day. 30
 Millions and millions on these banks he views,
 Thick as the stars of night, or morning dews,
 As thick as bees o'er vernal blossoms fly,
 As thick as eggs at Ward in Pillory. 34
 Wond'ring

REMARKS.

superior to Virgil and Horace: For (saith he) I cannot believe they would have fixed that eternal brand upon them, if they had not been coxcombs in more than ordinary credit." Rem. on Pr. Arthur, part ii. c. 1. An argument which, if this poem should last, will conduce to the honour of the gentlemen of the Dunciad. WARBURTON.

VER. 28. Brown and Mears] Bookfellers, Printers for any body.—The allegory of the souls of the dull coming forth in the form of books, dressed in calf's leather, and being let abroad in vast numbers by Bookfellers, is sufficiently intelligible.

WARBURTON.

VER. 34. Ward in Pillory.] John Ward of Hackney, Esq. Member of Parliament, being convicted of forgery, was first expelled the House, and then sentenced to the Pillory on the 17th of February 1727. Mr. Curl (having likewise stood there) looks upon the mention of such a Gentleman in a satire, as a great act of barbarity,

IMITATIONS.

VER. 28. unbar the gates of Light,] An Hemistich of Milton.

WARBURTON.

VER. 31, 32. Millions and millions—Thick as the stars, &c.]

“ Quam multa in silvis autumni frigore primo
 Lapfa cadunt folia, aut ad terram gurgite ab alto
 Quam multæ glomerantur aves,” &c. VIRG. Æn. vi.

WARBURTON.

Wond'ring he gaz'd : When lo ! a Sage appears,
By his broad shoulders known, and length of ears,
Known

REMARKS.

barbarity, Key to the Dunc. 3d edit. p. 16. And another author reasons thus upon it. Durgen, 8vo. p. 11, 12. "How unworthy is it of Christian Charity to animate the rabble to abuse a worthy man in such a situation? What could move the Poet thus to mention a brave sufferer, a gallant prisoner, exposed to the view of all mankind? It was laying aside his Senses, it was committing a Crime, for which the Law is deficient not to punish him! nay, a Crime which Man can scarce forgive, or Time efface! Nothing surely could have induced him to it but being bribed by a great Lady," &c. to whom this brave, honest, worthy Gentleman was guilty of no offence but Forgery, proved in open Court. But it is evident, this verse could not be meant of him; it being notorious, that no Eggs were thrown at that Gentleman. Perhaps therefore it might be intended of Mr. Edward Ward the Poet, when he stood there.

WARBURTON.

VER. 35. ——— When lo ! a Sage appears,
By his broad shoulders known,—]

An imitation of Homer, Il. iii. 226.

——— ἀνὴρ ἧὺς τε μέγας τε,
Ἐξοχῶς Ἀργείων κεφαλῆν ἠδ' εὐρέας ὤμους.

And Settle's size is thus intimated by our Poet's master, in his Abfalom and Achitophel, part ii.

"Drink, swear, and roar; forbear no lewd delight

Fit for thy bulk: do any thing but write." WAKEFIELD.

VER. 36. and length of ears,] This is a sophistical reading. I think I may venture to affirm all the Copyists are mistaken here: I believe I may say the same of the Critics; Dennis, Oldmixon, Welsted have passed it in silence. I have also stumbled at it, and wondered how an error so manifest could escape such accurate persons. I dare assert it proceeded originally from the inadvertency of some Transcriber, whose head ran on the Pillory, mentioned two lines before; it is therefore amazing that Mr. Curl himself should overlook it! Yet that Scholiast takes not the least notice hereof. That the learned Mist also read it thus, is plain from his ranging this passage among those in which our Author was blamed for personal Satire on a Man's face (whereof doubtless he might

Known by the band and fuit which Settle wore
 (His only fuit) for twice three years before :
 All as the vest, appear'd the wearer's frame,
 Old in new state, another yet the fame.

40

Bland

REMARKS.

take the ear to be a part ;) so likewise Concanen, Ralph, the Flying-Post, and all the herd of Commentators.—Tota armenta sequuntur.

A very little sagacity (which all these Gentlemen therefore wanted) will restore us to the true sense of the Poet, thus,

“By his broad shoulders known, and length of years.”

See how easy a change; of one single letter! That Mr. Settle was old, is most certain; but he was (happily) a stranger to the Pillory. This note partly Mr. THEOBALD's, partly SCRIBL.

WARBURTON.

VER. 37. Settle] Elkanah Settle was once a Writer in vogue, as well as Cibber, both for Dramatic Poetry and Politics. Mr. Dennis tells us, that “he was a formidable rival to Mr. Dryden, and that in the University of Cambridge there were those who gave him the preference.” Mr. Welsted goes yet farther in his behalf: “Poor Settle was formerly the Mighty rival of Dryden; nay, for many years, bore his reputation above him.” Pref. to his Poems, 8vo. p. 31. And Mr. Milbourn cried out, “How little was Dryden able, even when his blood run high, to defend himself against Mr. Settle!” Notes on Dryd. Virg. p. 175. These are comfortable opinions! and no wonder some authors indulge them.

He was author or publisher of many noted pamphlets in the time of king Charles II. He answered all Dryden's political poems; and being cried up on one side, succeeded not a little in his Tragedy of the Emperess of Morocco (the first that was ever printed with Cuts). “Upon this he grew insolent, the Wits writ against his Play, he replied, and the Town judged he had the better. In short, Settle was then thought a very formidable rival to Mr. Dryden; and not only the Town, but the University of Cambridge, was divided which to prefer; and in both places the younger sort inclined to Elkanah.” DENNIS, Pref. to Rem. on Homer.

WARBURTON.

Bland and familiar as in life, begun
Thus the great Father to the greater Son.

- “ Oh born to see what none can see awake !
“ Behold the wonders of th’ oblivious Lake. 44
“ Thou, yet unborn, hast touch’d this sacred shore ;
“ The hand of Bavius drench’d thee o’er and o’er.
“ But blind to former as to future fate,
“ What mortal knows his pre-existent state ?
“ Who knows how long thy transmigrating soul
“ Might from Bœotian to Bœotian roll ? 50
“ How many Dutchmen she vouchsaf’d to thrid ?
“ How many stages thro’ old Monks she rid ?
“ And all who since, in mild benighted days,
“ Mix’d the Owl’s ivy with the Poet’s bays.
“ As man’s Meanders to the vital spring 55
“ Roll all their tides, then back their circles bring ;
“ Or

REMARKS.

VER. 43. Oh born to see] The speech of Settle begins at this line ; and, according to the suggestion of Dr. Warton, I have printed it as such, without any break, except at the line 230.

VER. 50. Might from Bœotian, &c.] Bœotia lay under the ridicule of the Wits formerly, as Ireland does now ; though it produced one of the greatest Poets, and one of the greatest Generals of Greece :

“ Bœotum crasso jurares acre natum.”

HORAT.

WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 54. Mix’d the Owl’s ivy with the Poet’s bays.]

“ ——— sine tempora circum

Inter victrices hederam tibi serpere lauros.”

VIRG. Ecl. viii.

WARBURTON.

“ Or whirligigs, twirl’d round by skilful swain,
 “ Suck the thread in, then yield it out again :
 “ All nonsense thus, of old or modern date,
 “ Shall in thee centre, from thee circulate. 60
 “ For thus our Queen unfolds to vision true
 “ Thy mental eye, for thou hast much to view :
 “ Old scenes of glory, times long cast behind
 “ Shall, first recall’d, rush forward to thy mind :
 “ Then stretch thy sight o’er all her rising reign, 65
 “ And let the past and future fire thy brain.
 “ Ascend this hill, whose cloudy point commands
 “ Her boundless empire over seas and lands.

“ See,

REMARKS.

VER. 67. Ascend this hill, &c.] The scenes of this Vision are remarkable for the order of their appearance. First, from ver. 67 to 73, those places of the globe are shewn where Science never rose ; then, from ver. 74 to 83, those where she was destroyed by Tyranny ; from ver. 85 to 95, by inundations of Barbarians ; from ver. 96 to 106, by Superstition. Then Rome, the Mistress of Arts, is described in her degeneracy ; and lastly Britain, the scene of the Action of the Poem ; which furnishes the occasion of drawing out the Progeny of Dulness in review. WARBURTON.

It cannot be believed that our author ever dreamt of the order, which the learned Remarker has supposed to be observed in this

IMITATIONS.

VER. 61, 62. *For this our Queen unfolds to vision true
 Thy mental eye, for thou hast much to view :*]

This has resemblance to that passage in Milton, book xi. where the Angel

“ To noble sights from Adam’s eye remov’d
 The film ; then purg’d with Euphrasie and Rue
 The visual nerve—For he had much to see.”

There is a general allusion, in what follows, to that whole Episode.

WARBURTON.

“ See, round the Poles where keener spangles shine,
 “ Where spices smoke beneath the burning Line, 70
 “ (Earth’s wide extremes) her fable flag display’d,
 “ And all the nations cover’d in her shade!
 “ Far eastward cast thine eye, from whence the Sun
 “ And orient Science their bright course begun :
 “ One

REMARKS.

this vision. This note is precisely in the style and manner of a forced and refined conceit of another eminent Prelate, the good Bishop of Thessalonica, Eustathius: “ Aurora was in love with Orion, who was a great Hunter;” by which it was hinted that the morning was the most favourable time for Hunting. WARTON.

VER. 69. See, round the Poles, &c.] Almost the whole Southern and Northern Continent wrapt in ignorance. WARBURTON.

VER. 69. See, round the Poles, &c.] These are excellent verses indeed; and may owe some obligations to a very animated and polished passage in Tickell’s Prospect of Peace :

“ Now o’er his head the polar bear he spies,
 And freezing spangles of the Lapland skies;
 Now swells his canvas to the sultry line,
 With glittering spoils where Indian grottos shine,
 Where fumes of incense glad the southern seas,
 And wafted citron scents the balmy breeze.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 73. Our author favours the opinion that all Sciences came from the Eastern nations. WARBURTON.

See selections from Pauw, with curious and valuable Additions by Daniel Webb esq. an author who unites profound Philosophy with fine Taste. WARTON.

VER. 74. orient Science] Indostan was in all probability the Parent of all the Sciences, that arose first in the East. Many new lights will be thrown on this subject by the curious investigations of Sir William Jones at Calcutta.—Since this was written, I am sorry to hear of the loss the world and his friends (of whom I had the happiness of being one) have sustained by his death. WARTON.

- “ One god-like Monarch all that pride confounds, 75
 “ He, whose long wall the wand’ring Tartar bounds ;
 “ Heav’ns ! what a pile ! whole ages perish there,
 “ And one bright blaze turns Learning into air.
 “ Thence to the south extend thy gladden’d eyes ;
 “ There rival flames with equal glory rise, 80
 “ From shelves to shelves see greedy Vulcan roll,
 “ And lick up all their Physic of the Soul.
 “ How little, mark ! that portion of the ball,
 “ Where, faint at best, the beams of Science fall :
 “ Soon as they dawn, from Hyperborean skies 85
 “ Embod’d dark, what clouds of Vandals rise !
 “ Lo !

REMARKS.

VER. 75. Chi Ho-am-ti Emperor of China, the same who built the great wall between China and Tartary, destroyed all the books and learned men of that empire. WARBURTON.

VER. 76. He, whose long wall] Other nations, says Voltaire, fortify their towns; the Chinese fortified their empire. The great Wall which separated and defended China against the Tartars, and which was built an hundred and thirty-seven years before our æra, subsists to this day, on a circumference of five hundred leagues, rising on the tops of mountains, and descending down into precipices, being almost every where twenty feet broad and above thirty feet high; a monument superior to the Pyramids of Egypt, both by its utility and its immensity. WARTON.

VER. 81, 82. The Caliph, Omar I. having conquered Egypt, caused his general to burn the Ptolemean library, on the gates of which was this inscription, ὝΤΧΗΣ ΙΑΤΡΕΙΟΝ, the Physic of the Soul. WARBURTON.

VER. 85. from Hyperborean skies] The Roman, like other great Empires, having degraded, debased, and destroyed a great part of the human species, about the fourth century, there rushed forth from the North prodigious swarms of warlike nations, from regions unknown, to take vengeance on those Tyrants, for the various calamities they had inflicted on mankind. Their mighty armies

“ Lo ! where Mæotis sleeps, and hardly flows
 “ The freezing Tanais thro’ a waste of snows,
 “ The North by myriads pours her mighty fons,
 “ Great nurse of Goths, of Alans, and of Huns ! 90
 “ See Alaric’s stern port ! the martial frame
 “ Of Genferic ! and Attila’s dread name !

“ See

REMARKS,

armies could not have been conducted, nor could their victories have been so important, without more skill, and address, and knowledge, than they are commonly represented to have possessed. When the Goths, it is said, had sacked Athens, and were going to set fire to its libraries, one of their Chiefs dissuaded them from the design, by observing to them, that as long as the Greeks were addicted to the Study of Books, they would never apply themselves to the exercise of Arms.

WARTON.

VER. 87. Lo ! where Mæotis] This is said to be Pope’s favourite line of all his Works,

WARTON.

VER. 87. Lo ! where Mæotis, &c.] Dr. Johnson tells us, that this was the couplet, with which Pope, as he had been told, declared his own ear to be most gratified ; but professes himself unable to see the reason of this preference. I think the couplet excellent in two respects, both from a judicious pause and a descriptive tenour in the numbers, and a curious felicity of most appropriate expression. We may compare some lines in A. Phillips’ celebrated letter from Copenhagen, on a congenial subject : lines, if you except the insipid epithet delightful, not unworthy of Pope himself :

“ The hills, and dales, and the delightful woods,
 The flowery plains, and silver-streaming floods,
 By snow disguis’d, in bright confusion lie,
 And with one dazzling waste fatigue the eye.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 92. Attila’s dread name !] At an entertainment given by Attila to the Roman ambassadors, two Scythians advanced to him, and recited a poem, in which they celebrated his victories and military virtues. All the Huns fixed their eyes with attention on these bards : some, remembering their own exploits,

- " See the bold Ostrogoths on Latium fall ;
 " See the fierce Visigoths on Spain and Gaul !
 " See, where the morning gilds the palmy shore 95
 " (The soil that arts and infant letters bore)
 " His conqu'ring tribes th' Arabian prophet draws,
 " And saving Ignorance enthrones by Laws.
 " See Christians, Jews, one heavy sabbath keep,
 " And all the western world believe and sleep. 100
 " Lo ! Rome herself, proud mistress now no more
 " Of arts, but thund'ring against heathen lore ;
 " Her

REMARKS.

exulted with joy ; others, feeble with age, burst into tears, bewailing the decay of their vigour.

See also a fine chapter, the 19th of Montesquieu's Grandeur, &c. for a character of this great hero.

A Poet of Calabria, named Marullus, having written a panegyric on Attila, after he had taken Padua, 451, in which he had called Attila a God, and said he was of Divine Original, Attila, ordering the verses to be interpreted to him, with indignation ordered the poem to be burnt, and the poet with difficulty escaped the same punishment. See Fabricius, Bibl. Mediæ et Infimæ Latinitatis, T. 5. The noble painting by Raphael of Attila, St. Peter, and St. Paul, is well known. WARTON.

VER. 96. (The soil that arts and infant letters bore)] Phœnicia, Syria, &c. where Letters are said to have been invented. In these countries Mahomet began his conquests. WARBURTON.

VER. 99. See Christians, Jews, one heavy sabbath keep ;
And all the western world believe and sleep.]

A modification of his exemplar, Dryden, Epist. xiv.

" Long time the sister-arts, in iron sleep,
A heavy sabbath did supinely keep." WAKEFIELD.

VER. 102. thund'ring against heathen lore ;] A strong instance of this pious rage is placed to Pope Gregory's account. John of Salisbury gives a very odd encomium of this Pope, at the same time that he mentions one of the strongest effects of this excess of zeal in him : Doctor sanctissimus ille Gregorius, qui melleo prædicationis

“ Her grey-hair’d Synods damning books unread,
 “ And Bacon trembling for his brazen head.
 “ Padua, with sighs, beholds her Livy burn, 105
 “ And ev’n th’ Antipodes Virgilius mourn.
 “ See, the Cirque falls, th’ unpillar’d Temple nods, “ Streets pav’d with Heroes, Tyber choak’d with Gods :
 “ Till Peter’s keys some christ’ned Jove adorn,
 “ And Pan to Moses lends his pagan horn ; 110
 “ See

REMARKS.

tionis imbre totam rigavit et inebriavit ecclesiam ; non modo Mathesin jussit ab aula, sed, ut traditur a majoribus, incendio dedit probatæ lectionis scripta, Palatinus quæcunque tenebat Apollo. And in another place : Fertur beatus Gregorius bibliothecam combussisse gentilem ; quo divinæ pagine gratior esset locus, et major auctoritas, et diligentia studiosior. Desiderius Archbishop of Vienna, was sharply reprov’d by him for teaching Grammar and Literature, and explaining the Poets ; because (says this Pope) In uno se ore cum Jovis laudibus Christi laudes non capiunt : Et quam grave nefandumque sit Episcopis canere quod nec Laico religioso conveniat, ipse considera. He is said, among the rest, to have burned Livy : Quia in superstitionibus et sacris Romanorum perpetuo versatur. The same Pope is accused by Vossius, and others, of having caused the noble monuments of the old Roman magnificence to be destroyed, lest those who came to Rome should give more attention to Triumphal Arches, &c. than to holy things. Bayle, Dict. WARBURTON.

VER. 104. And Bacon trembling for his brazen head.] Butler also somewhere celebrates this singularity in the pericranium of that extraordinary philosopher, with his usual pleasantry :

“ My noddle is not made of brass,
 As Friar Bacon’s noddle was.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 109. Till Peter’s keys some christ’ned Jove adorn,] After the government of Rome devolved to the Popes, their zeal was for some time exerted in demolishing the heathen Temples and Statues, so that the Goths scarce destroyed more monuments of Antiquity

“ See graceless Venus to a Virgin turn’d,
 “ Or Phidias broken, and Apelles burn’d.
 “ Behold yon’ Isle, by Palmers, Pilgrims trod, “ Men bearded, bald, cowl’d, uncowl’d, fhod, unfhod, “ Peel’d,

REMARKS.

Antiquity out of rage, than these out of devotion. At length they spared some of the Temples, by converting them to Churches; and some of the Statues, by modifying them into images of Saints. In much later times, it was thought necessary to change the statues of the Apollo and Pallas, on the tomb of Sannazarius, into David and Judith; the Lyre easily became a Harp, and the Gorgon’s Head turned to that of Holofernes. WARBURTON.

VER. III. Graceless Venus] Many pleasing instances of this kind are given in Middleton’s entertaining Letter from Rome: “ As it is, in the Pantheon, (he says,) ’tis just the same in all the other heathen Temples that still remain at Rome; they have only pulled down one idol to set up another in its place, and changed rather the name than the object of their worship. Thus the little Temple of Vesta, near the Tiber, mentioned by Horace, is now possessed by the Madonna of the Sun; that of Fortuna Virilis, by Mary the Egyptian; that of Saturn (where the public Treasure was anciently kept), by St. Adrian; that of Romulus and Remus, in the Via Sacra, by two other brothers, Cosmas and Damianus; that of Antonine the Godly, by Laurence the Saint: But for my part, I should sooner be tempted out of devotion for Romulus or Antonine, to prostrate myself before their statues, than those of a Laurence or a Damian; and much rather with Pagan Rome give Divine Honours to the Founders of Empires, than with Popish Rome to the Founders of Monasteries.” Middleton borrowed much from Les Confrimtes de Ceremonies modernes avec les Anciennes. A Leyde, 1667.

WARTON.

VER. III. Or Phidias broken,] Poggius, sitting with a friend on the top of the Capitoline hill, makes a pleasing and eloquent description of the Ruins of Rome, which lay in prospect below him; inserted in the Dialogue de Varietate Fortunæ, republished at Paris, 1723; written about the year 1440. WARTON.

“ Peel’d, patch’d, and pyebald, linsfy-woolfey brothers, 115

“ Grave Mummers! fleeveless some, and shirtless others.

“ That once was Britain—Happy! had she seen

“ No fiercer sons, had Easter never been.

“ In peace, great Goddess, ever be ador’d;

“ How keen the war, if Dulness draw the sword!

“ Thus visit not thy own! on this blest age 121

“ Oh spread thy Influence, but restrain thy Rage.

“ And see, my son! the hour is on its way,

“ That lifts our Goddess to imperial sway;

“ This fav’rite Isle, long sever’d from her reign, 125

“ Dove-like, she gathers to her wings again.

“ Now look thro’ Fate! behold the scene she draws!

“ What aids, what armies to assert her cause!

“ See

REMARKS.

VER. 117, 118. Happy!—had Easter never been.] Wars in England anciently, about the right time of celebrating Easter.

WARBURTON.

VER. 126. Dove-like, she gathers] This is fulfilled in the fourth book.

WARBURTON.

“ Dove-like, sat’st brooding on the vast abyfs.” MILTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 117, 118. Happy—had Easter never been.]

“ Et fortunatam, si nunquam armenta fuissent.”

VIRG. Ecl. vi.

WARBURTON.

VER. 127, 129. Now look through Fate!—See all her progeny, &c.]

“ Nunc age, Dardanium prolem quæ deinde sequatur

Gloria, qui maneat Itala de gente nepotes,

Illustres animas, nostrumque in nomen ituras,

Expeditam.”

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

WARBURTON.

- " See all her progeny, illustrious fight !
 " Behold, and count them, as they rise to light. 130
 " As Berecynthia, while her offspring vye
 " In homage to the Mother of the sky,
 " Surveys around her, in the blest abode,
 " An hundred sons, and ev'ry son a God:
 " Not with less glory mighty Dulness crown'd, 135
 " Shall take thro' Grub-street her triumphant round;
 " And her Parnassus glancing o'er at once,
 " Behold an hundred sons, and each a Dunce.
 " Mark first that Youth who takes the foremost place,
 " And thrusts his person full into your face. 140
 " With all thy Father's virtues blest, be born !
 " And a new Cibber shall the stage adorn.
 " A second see, by meeker manners known,
 " And modest as the Maid that sips alone ;
 " From

REMARKS.

VER. 138. and each a Dunce.] Never was there an happier Parody! heightened by its allusion to one of the most magnificent passages in Virgil, Anchises shewing to Æneas his future progeny. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 131. As Berecynthia, &c.]

" Felix prole virum, qualis Berecynthia mater
 Invehitur curru Phrygiæ turrata per urbes,
 Læta deum partu, centum complexa nepotes,
 Omnes cœlicolas, omnes supera alta tenentes."

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

WARBURTON.

VER. 139. Mark first that Youth, &c.]

" Ille vides, pura juvenis qui nititur hasta, Proxima forte tenet lucis loca"—

VIRG. Æn. vi.

WARBURTON.

“ From the strong fate of drams if thou get free,
 “ Another Durfey, Ward! shall sing in thee. 146
 “ Thee shall each ale-house, thee each gill-house mourn,
 “ And answ’ring gin-shops fourer sighs return.
 “ Jacob, the scourge of Grammar, mark with awe,
 “ Nor less revere him, blunderbush of Law. 150
 “ Lo

VARIATIONS.

VER. 149. in the first Edit. it was,
 Woolston, the scourge of scripture, mark with awe!
 And mighty Jacob, blunderbush of Law! WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 145. *From the strong fate of drams if thou get free,
 Another Durfey, Ward! shall shine in thee.*]

He appears to have consulted Dryden’s translation of the verses parodied with so much humour :

“ Ah! could’st thou break through fate’s severe decree,
 A new Marcellus shall arise in thee.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 146. Ward!] Ward has been spoken of before. He kept a public-house, and was the author of some pointed things against Pope, in prose and verse.

VER. 149. Jacob, the scourge of Grammar, mark with awe,]
 “ This Gentleman is son of a considerable Maltster of Romsey in Southampton-

IMITATIONS.

VER. 145. From the strong fate of drams if thou get free,]
 “ ——— si qua fata aspera rumpas,
 Tu Marcellus eris!” VIRG. Æneid. vi.
 WARBURTON.

VER. 147. Thee shall each ale-house, &c.]
 “ Te nemus Angitiæ, vitrea te Fucinus unda, Te liquidi flevere lacus.” VIRG. Æneid. viii.

Virgil again, Ecl. x.
 “ ——— etiam lauri, etiam flevere myricæ,” &c.
 WARBURTON.

VER. 150. ——— “ duo fulmina belli
 Scipiadas, cladem Libyæ!” VIRG. Æneid. vi.
 WARBURTON.

“ Lo P—p—le’s brow, tremendous to the town;
 “ Horneck’s fierce eye, and Roome’s funereal Frown.
 “ Lo

VARIATIONS:

VER. 151. Lo P—p—le’s brow, &c.] In the former Edd.
 Haywood, Centlivre, glories of their race,
 Lo Horneck’s fierce, and Roome’s funereal face.

WARBURTON.

REMARKS:

Southamptonshire, and bred to the Law under a very eminent Attorney: Who, between his more laborious studies, has diverted himself with Poetry. He is a great admirer of Poets and their works, which has occasioned him to try his genius that way.—He has writ in prose the Lives of the Poets, Essays, and a great many Law-books, The Accomplish’d Conveyancer, Modern Justice, &c. GILES JACOB of himself, Lives of Poets, vol. i. He very grossly, and unprovoked, abused in that book the Author’s Friend, Mr. Gay.

WARBURTON.

VER. 149, 150. *Jacob, the scourge of Grammar, mark with awe,
 Nor less revere him, blunderbuss of Law.*]

There may seem some error in these verses, Mr. Jacob having proved our Author to have a Respect for him, by this undeniable argument. “He had once a Regard for my Judgment; otherwise he would never have subscribed Two Guineas to me, for one small Book in octavo.” Jacob’s Letter to Dennis, printed in Dennis’s Remarks on the Dunciad, p. 49. Therefore I should think the appellation of Blunderbuss to Mr. Jacob, like that of Thunderbolt to Scipio, was meant in his honour.

Mr. Dennis argues the same way. “My writings having made great impression on the minds of all sensible men, Mr. P. repented, and, to give proof of his Repentance, subscribed to my two Volumes of select Works, and afterwards to my two Volumes of Letters.” Ibid. p. 80. We should hence believe, the name of Mr. Dennis hath also crept into this poem by some mistake. But from hence, gentle reader! thou may’st beware, when thou givest thy money to such Authors, not to flatter thyself that thy motives are Good-nature or Charity.

WARBURTON.

VER. 152. Horneck and Roome] These two were virulent Party-writers, worthily coupled together, and one would think prophetically, since after the publishing of this piece, the former dying,

- “ Lo sneering Goode, half malice and half whim,
 “ A Fiend in glee, ridiculously grim. 154
 “ Each Cygnet sweet, of Bath and Tunbridge race,
 “ Whose tuneful whistling makes the waters pass:
 “ Each

REMARKS.

dying, the latter succeeded him in Honour and Employment. The first was Philip Horneck, author of a Billingsgate Paper, called The High German Doctor. Edward Roome was son of an Undertaker for Funerals in Fleet-street, and writ some of the papers called Pasquin, where by malicious Inuendos he endeavoured to represent our Author guilty of malevolent practices with a great man then under the prosecution of Parliament. Of this man was made the following Epigram :

“ You ask why Roome diverts you with his jokes,
 Yet if he writes, is dull as other folks ;
 You wonder at it.—This, Sir, is the case,
 The jest is lost unless he prints his face.”

Popple was the author of some vile Plays and Pamphlets. He published abuses on our Author in a Paper called the Prompter.

WARBURTON.

Is it surprising, shall I say, or mortifying, to see the pains and patience of our Author and his Friends who compiled these large notes, in tracing out the lives and works of such paltry and forgotten scribblers! It is like walking through the darkest alleys of the dirtiest part of St. Giles's. To pull out these Literary Cacus's, incendia vana vomentes, from their dark dungeons and deep retreats, was a truly Herculean (though not very Heroic) labour. These, in truth, were Avia picridum loca!

WARTON.

VER. 153. Goode,] An ill-natured Critic, who writ a satire on our Author, called The mock Esop, and many anonymous Libels in News-papers for hire.

WARBURTON.

VER. 155. Each Cygnet sweet,] Borrowed from two lines of Young's Universal Passion, S. 6.

“ Is there a wit who chants the reigning lads,
 And sweetly whistles as the waters pass!” WARTON.

- " Each Songster, Riddler, ev'ry nameless name,
 " All crowd, who foremost shall be damn'd to Fame.
 " Some strain in rhyme ; the Muses, on their racks,
 " Scream like the winding of ten thousand jacks : 160
 " Some free from rhyme or reason, rule or check,
 " Break Priscian's head, and Pegasus's neck ;
 " Down, down the larum, with impetuous whirl,
 " The Pindars, and the Miltons of a Curl. 164
 " Silence, ye Wolves! while Ralph to Cynthia howls,
 " And makes Night hideous—Answer him, ye Owls!
 " Sense,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 157. Each Songster, Riddler, &c.] In the former Edd.
 Lo Bond and Foxton, ev'ry nameless name.

After ver. 158. in the first Edit. followed,

How proud, how pale, how earnest all appear!

How rhymes eternal jingle in their ear! WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 157. ev'ry nameless name,] Personal satire, on objects so obscure, is unavoidably attended with the inconvenience of accompanying it with large notes and explanations, which, though tedious, are necessary ; and without which it would be unintelligible. Broffette has been forced to use this method in his many notes on the Lutrin, and on the Satires of Boileau. WARTON.

VER. 165. Silence, ye Wolves! while Ralph to Cynthia howls,*] A. Phillips, in his Letters from Copenhagen :

" The starving wolves along the main sea prowl,

And to the moon in icy vallies howl." WAKEFIELD.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 166. And makes Night hideous]

" — Visit thus the glimpses of the moon,

Making Night hideous." — SHAKESP.

WARBURTON.

* Ralph wrote a poem called "Night."

“ Sense, speech, and measure, living tongues and dead,

“ Let all give way—and Morris may be read.

“ Flow,

REMARKS.

VER. 165. Ralph] James Ralph, a name inserted after the first editions, not known to our Author till he writ a swearing-piece called Sawney, very abusive of Dr. Swift, Mr. Gay, and himself. These lines allude to a thing of his, intitled, Night, a Poem. This low writer attended his own works with panegyrics in the Journals, and once in particular praised himself highly above Mr. Addison, in wretched remarks upon that Author's Account of English Poets, printed in a London Journal, Sept. 1728. He was wholly illiterate, and knew no language, not even French. Being advised to read the rules of dramatic poetry before he began a play, he smiled and replied, “ Shakespeare writ without rules.” He ended at last in the common sink of all such writers, a political News-paper, to which he was recommended by his friend Arnauld, and received a small pittance for pay;—and being detected in writing on both sides on one and the same day, he publicly justified the morality of his conduct.

WARBURTON.

Warton adds, that this Ralph was patronized by Lord Melcombe *. From Dodington's papers it appears, that Ralph considered his services were not sufficiently repaid, and he accuses Dodington of ingratitude. Dodington's answer is plausible, though not entirely satisfactory. The following extract of an original letter, from Ralph to his Patron, will explain the nature of his services :

“ My brain, such as it is, is my whole estate. I lost half a “ year's pension, when I went into the Prince's service. I lost “ another 100l. about the same time by a bankrupt bookseller.
“ His Royal Highness died in my debt 65l. every farthing of “ which I had a thousand pressing occasions for; it is almost two “ years since that event. I did not alter my manner of living ex“ cept in a few particulars thereon; 1st, Because I was put in “ hope that friends would have been found to assist, if not provide “ for me, till I could again be useful; 2d, Because I thought it
“ for

* Eubb Dodington, created Lord Melcombe.

“ Flow, Welsted, flow ! like thine inspirer, Beer,
 “ Tho’ stale, not ripe ; tho’ thin, yet never clear ; 170
 “ So

REMARKS.

“ for their credit, that I should not appear a ruined man, while “ they continued to honour me with their countenance; and, “ 3d, Because I knew I should be provided for, (if ever I was “ provided for at all,) in exact conformity to the figure I lived in,
 “ which I cannot yet be humble enough to suppose is better than “ I have pretensions to, unless the pretensions of players, fiddlers, “ rope-dancers, &c. to a decent manner of living, should be thought “ better than mine,” &c.

VER. 168. Morris] Befaleel. See Book ii. WARBURTON.

In the first Edition it was, “ Durgen may be read,” a poem against Pope, by Ward.

VER. 169. Flow, Welsted, &c.] Of this author see the Remark on Book ii. ver. 209. But (to be impartial) add to it the following different character of him :

Mr. Welsted had, in his youth, raised so great expectations of his future genius, that there was a kind of struggle between the most eminent in the two universities, which should have the honour of his education. To compound this, he (civilly) became a member of both, and after having passed some time at the one, he removed to the other. From thence he returned to town, where he became the darling Expectation of all the polite Writers, whose encouragement he acknowledged in his occasional poems, in a manner that will make no small part of the Fame of his protectors. It also appears from his Works, that he was happy in the patronage of the most illustrious characters of the present age.—Encouraged by such a Combination in his favour, he—published a book of poems, some in the Ovidian, some in the Horatian manner, in both which the most exquisite Judges pronounce he even rival’d his masters—
 His

IMITATIONS.

VER. 169. Flow, Welsted, flow ! &c.] Parody on Denham, Cooper’s Hill :

“ O could I flow like thee, and make thy stream
 My great example, as it is my theme :
 Tho’ deep, yet clear ; tho’ gentle, yet not dull ;
 Strong without rage ; without o’erflowing, full !”

WARBURTON.

- “ So sweetly mawkish, and so smoothly dull ;
 “ Heady, not strong ; o’erflowing, tho’ not full.
 “ Ah Dennis ! Gildon ah ! what ill-starr’d rage
 “ Divides a friendship long confirm’d by age ?
 “ Blockheads with reason wicked wits abhor, 175
 “ But fool with fool is barb’rous civil war.
 “ Embrace, embrace, my sons ! be foes no more !
 “ Nor glad vile Poets with true Critics gore.
 “ Behold

REMARKS.

His Love verses have rescued that way of writing from contempt. — In his Translations, he has given us the very soul and spirit of his author. His Ode—his Epistle—his Verses—his Love-tale—all, are the most perfect things in all poetry. WELSTED of Himself, Char. of the Times, 8vo, 1728, p. 23, 24. It should not be forgot to his honour, that he received at one time the sum of 500 pounds for secret service, among the other excellent authors hired to write anonymously for the Ministry. See Report of the Secret Committee, &c. in 1742. WARBURTON.

An ode of merit on the Duke of Marlborough by Welsted, was inserted in Dodley’s Miscellanies, at the desire of Dr. Akenfide, who, I remember, much commended it. The simile of Beer is exactly copied from Addison in the Freeholder, No. 20. *

WARTON.

VER. 172. It was stronger in the first Edition, —“ and foaming, though not full.”

VER. 173. Ah Dennis ! &c.] The reader who has seen, through the course of these notes, what a constant attendance Mr. Dennis paid our Author and all his works, may perhaps wonder he should be mentioned but twice, and so slightly touched, in this poem. But in truth he looked upon him with some esteem, for having (more generously than all the rest) set his Name to such writings. He was also a very old man at this time. By his own account of himself in Mr. Jacob’s Lives, he must have been above threescore, and happily lived many years after. So that he was senior to Mr. Dursley, who hitherto of all our Poets enjoyed the longest bodily life. WARBURTON.

* Welsted’s works have been published by Nichols.

“ Behold yon Pair, in strict embraces join’d ;
 “ How like in manners, and how like in mind ! 180
 “ Equal

REMARKS.

VER. 177. *Embrace, embrace, my sons ! be foes no more !
 Nor glad vile Poets with true Critics’ gore.*]

This much resembles the beginning of Lucan’s Pharfalia :

“ ——— quæ tanta licentia ferri

Gentibus invisis Latium præbere cruorem ?”

“ Say, Romans, whence so dire a fury rose

To glut with Latian blood your barbarous foes ?” Rowe.

But the language of the former verse is more closely modelled from Dryden’s version of the verses in the Æneid, expressly parodied :

“ Embrace again, my sons ; be foes no more :

Nor stain your country with her children’s gore.

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 179. Behold yon Pair, &c.] One of these was Author of a weekly paper called The Grumbler, as the other was concerned in another called Pasquin, in which Mr. Pope was abused with the Duke of Buckingham, and Bishop of Rochester. They also joined
 in

IMITATIONS.

VER. 177. Embrace, embrace, my sons ! be foes no more !] Virg. Æneid. vi.

“ ——— Ne tanta animis assuefcite bella,

Neu patriæ validas in viscera vertite vires :

Tuque prior, tu parce—sanguis meus !” WARBURTON.

VER. 179. Behold yon Pair, in strict embraces join’d ;] Virg. Æneid. vi.

“ Illæ autem paribus quas fulgere cernis in armis, Concordes animæ.” ———

And in the fifth,

“ Euryalus, forma insignis viridique juvena,

Nifus amore pio pueri.”

WARBURTON.

Two lines were in the first Edition which gave great offence, and have since been properly left out ; the last line of Warburton’s quotation alludes to them :

“ Fam’d for good-nature, B * *, and for truth,

D * * for pious passion to the youth.”

“ Equal in wit, and equally polite,

“ Shall this a Pasquin, that a Grumbler write ;

“ Like

REMARKS.

in a piece against his first undertaking to translate the Iliad, intitled Homerides, by Sir Iliad Doggerel, printed 1715.

WARBURTON.

Of the other works of these Gentlemen the world has heard no more, than it would of Mr. Pope's, had their united laudable endeavours discouraged him from pursuing his studies. How few good works had ever appear'd (since men of true merit are always the least presuming) had there been always such champions to stifle them in their conception! And were it not better for the public, that a million of monsters should come into the world, which are sure to die as soon as born, than that the serpents should strangle one Hercules in his Cradle? C.

The union of these two authors gave occasion to this Epigram,

“ Burnet and Ducket, friends in spite,
 Came hissing out in verse ;
 Both were so forward, each would write,
 So dull, each hung an A—.
 Thus Amphibœna (I have read)
 At either end assails ;
 None knows which leads or which is led,
 For both Heads are but Tails.”

After many Editions of this poem, the Author thought fit to omit the names of these two persons, whose injury to him was of so old a date. In the verses he omitted, it was said that one of them had a pious passion for the other. It was a literal translation of Virgil, Nisus amore pio pueri—and there, as in the original, applied to Friendship: That between Nisus and Euryalus is allowed to make one of the most amiable Episodes in the world, and surely was never interpreted in a perverse sense. But it will astonish the reader to hear, that, on no other occasion than this line, a Dedication was written to that Gentleman to induce him to think something further. “ Sir, you are known to have all that affection for the beautiful part of the creation which God and Nature designed—Sir, you have a very fine Lady—and, Sir, you have eight very fine Children,”—&c. [Dedic. to Dennis's

“ Like are their merits, like rewards they share,

“ That shines a Consul, this Commissioner.

“ But

REMARKS.

Rem. on the Rape of the Lock.] The truth is, the poor Dedicator's brain was turn'd upon this article: He had taken into his head, that ever since some books were written against the Stage, and since the Italian Opera had prevailed, the nation was infected with a vice not fit to be named: He went so far as to print upon the subject, and concludes his argument with this remark, “ That he cannot help thinking the Obscenity of Plays excusable at this juncture; since, when that execrable sin is spread so wide, it may be of use to the reducing mens minds to the natural desire of women.” DENNIS, Stage defended against Mr. Law, p. 20. Our Author solemnly declared, he never heard any creature but the Dedicator mention that Vice and this Gentleman together.

WARBURTON.

Settle, for we must remember that it is he that is still speaking, passes from character to character in a very abrupt incoherent manner. Surely not in the manner in which Virgil proceeds in the vision pointed out in the notes, from the 6th Book of the Æneid. The Pasquin, mentioned in line 182, was a weekly Paper, and not the comedy written by Fielding, full of humour, pleasantry, and satire, on the ministry; and which occasioned the act of parliament for licensing plays, an act that met with a very powerful opposition at the time.

WARTON.

VER. 179. Behold yon Pair,] Meaning Thomas Burnet, third son of the famed Bishop of Salisbury; and Colonel Ducket.

WAKEFIELD.

Burnet, the youngest son of the famous Bishop Burnet. He was bred to the Bar, and was made a Judge. I know not how he conducted himself in that station; but his writings give us no favourable idea of his taste or genius.

Ducket lived at Hartham near Corsham, Wilts. He was concerned with Edmund Smith in an infamous attempt to discredit Lord Clarendon's History, by charging the University of Oxford with making interpolations; unless we suppose that the whole story, as related by Oldmixon, was a forgery of that writer, which, considering his character, is far from being improbable.

BANNISTER.

“ But who is he, in clofet clofe y-pent, 185
 “ Of sober face, with learned dust besprent?”
 “ Right well mine eyes arede the myfter wight,
 “ On parchment scraps y-fed, and Wormius hight.
 “ To

REMARKS.

VER. 184. That shines a Consul, this Commiffioner.] Such places were given at this time to fuch fort of Writers.

WARBURTON.

VER. 186. Of sober face, with learned dust besprent?] So Gay, in his Epiftle to our Poet, ftanza 18.

“ O Wanley, whence com’ft thou with fhorten’d hair,
 And visage from thy fhelves with dust besprent.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 187. arede] Read, or perufe; though fometimes ufed for counfel. “ READE THY READ,” take thy Counfaile. Thomas Sternhold, in his tranflation of the firft Pfalm into English metre, hath wifely made ufe of this word,

“ The man is bleit that hath not bent
 To wicked READ his ear.”

But in the laft fpurious editions of the finging Pfalms, the word READ is changed into men. I fay fpurious editions, becaufe not only here, but quite throughout the whole book of Pfalms, are ftange alterations, all for the worfe; and yet the Title-page ftands as it ufed to do! and all (which is abominable in any book, much more in a facred work) is afcribed to Thomas Sternhold, John Hopkins, and others. I am confident, were Sternhold and Hopkins now living, they would proceed againft the innovators as cheats.—A liberty, which, to fay no more of their intolerable alterations, ought by no means to be permitted or approved of by fuch as are for Uniformity, and have any regard for the old English Saxon tongue.” HEARNE, Gloff. on Rob. of Gloc. artic. REDE.

WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 185. But who is he, &c.] Virg. Æneid. vi. questions and answers in this manner, of Numa:

“ Quis procul ille autem ramis insignis olivæ,
 Sacra ferens?—nofco crines, incanaque menta,” &c.

WARBURTON.

“ To future ages may thy dulness last,
 “ As thou preserv’st the dulness of the past! 190
 “ There, dim in clouds, the poring Scholiast mark,
 “ Wits, who, like owls, see only in the dark,
 “ A Lumber-

REMARKS.

VER. 188. Wormius hight.] Let not this name, purely fictitious, be conceited to mean the learned Olaus Wormius; much less (as it was unwarrantably foisted into the surreptitious editions) our own Antiquary Mr. Thomas Hearne, who had no way agrieved our Poet, but on the contrary published many curious tracts, which he hath to his great contentment perused.

Most rightly are ancient Words here employed in speaking of such who so greatly delight in the same. We may say not only rightly, but wisely, yea excellently, inasmuch as for the like practice the like praise is given by Mr. Hearne himself, Glossar. to Rob. of Gloucester, Artic. BEHETT: “Others say, BEHIGHT, promised; and so it is used excellently well by Thomas Norton, in his translation into Metre of the cxvith Psalm, ver. 14.

“ I to the Lord will pay my vows,
 That I to him BEHIGHT;”

where the modern innovators, not understanding the propriety of the word (which is truly English, from the Saxon), have most unwarrantably altered it thus:

“ I to the Lord will pay my vows,
 With joy and great delight.” WARBURTON.

Ibid. hight.] “In Cumberland they say to hight, for to promise, or vow; but HIGHT, usually signifies, was called; and so it does in the North even to this day, notwithstanding what is done in Cumberland.” HEARNE, ibid. WARBURTON.

Ibid. On parchment scraps] In consideration of the many very accurate and very elegant editions, which Hearne published of our valuable old Chronicles, which shed such a light on English History, he ought not to have been so severely lashed as in these bitter lines. Every year gives a greater value to these books and these editions of Hearne; as well as to his Livy, and Pliny’s Epistles. WARTON.

" A Lumberhouse of books in ev'ry head,
 " For ever reading, never to be read !
 " But, where each Science lifts its modern type,
 " Hift'ry her Pot, Divinity her Pipe, 196
 " While proud Philosophy repines to show,
 " Dishonest fight ! his breeches rent below ;
 " Imbrown'd with native bronze, lo ! Henley stands,
 " Tuning his voice, and balancing his hands. 200
 " How

VARIATIONS.

VER. 197. In the first Edit. it was,
 And proud Philosophy with breeches tore,
 And English music with a dismal score.
 Fast by in darkness palpable inshrind
 W—s, B—r, M—n, all the poring kind. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 199. lo ! Henley stands, &c.] J. Henley the Orator ; he preached on the Sundays upon Theological matters, and on the Wednesdays upon all other sciences. Each auditor paid one shilling. He declaimed some years against the greatest persons, and occasionally did our Author that honour. WELSTED, in Oratory Transactions, No. 1. published by Henley himself, gives the following account of him. " He was born at Melton-Mowbray in Leicestershire. From his own Parish-school he went to St. John's College in Cambridge. He began there to be uneasy ; for it shocked him to find he was commanded to believe against his own judgment in points of Religion, Philosophy, &c. for his genius leading him freely to dispute all propositions, and call all points to account, he was impatient under those fetters of the free-born mind. — Being admitted to Priest's orders, he found the examination very short and superficial, and that it was not necessary to conform to the Christian religion, in order either to Deaconship, or Priesthood." He came to town, and, after having for some years been a writer for Bookfellers, he had an ambition to be so for Ministers of State. The only reason he did not rise in the Church, we are told, " was the envy of others, and a disrelish entertained of him, because he was not qualified to be a complete Spaniel."

However,

“ How fluent nonsense trickles from his tongue !

“ How sweet the periods, neither said, nor sung !

“ Still

REMARKS.

However, he offered the service of his pen to two great men, of opinions and interests directly opposite ; by both of whom being rejected, he set up a new Project, and styled himself the Restorer of ancient Eloquence. He thought “ it as lawful to take a licence from the King and Parliament at one place, as another ; at Hicks’s Hall, as at Doctors Commons ; so set up his Oratory in Newport-Market, Butcher-row. There (says his friend) he had the assurance to form a plan, which no mortal ever thought of : he had success against all opposition ; challenged his adversaries to fair disputations, and none would dispute with him ; writ, read, and studied twelve hours a day ; composed three dissertations a week on all subjects ; undertook to teach in one year what schools and universities teach in five ; was not terrified by menaces, insults, or satires, but still proceeded, matured his bold scheme, and put the Church, and all that in danger.” WELSTED, Narrative in Orat. Transact. No. 1.

After having stood some Prosecutions, he turned his rhetoric to buffoonry upon all public and private occurrences. All this passed in the same room ; where sometimes he broke jests, and sometimes that bread which he called the Primitive Eucharist.—— This wonderful person struck Medals, which he dispersed as Tickets to his subscribers : The device, a Star rising to the meridian, with this motto, AD SVMMA ; and below, INVENIAM VIAM AVT FACIAM. This man had an hundred pounds a year given him for the secret service of a weekly paper of unintelligible nonsense, called the Hyp-Doctor. WARBURTON.

VER. 199. lo ! Henley stands, &c.] Was it not disgraceful in Government not only publicly to license, but to encourage by a pension, a profligate and impudent buffoon, to insult the established religion, to abuse the universities, calumniate the most respectable characters, and, in a word, to ridicule every thing that has been held sacred and venerable among mankind ? BANNISTER.

VER. 201. How fluent nonsense trickles from his tongue !] He had Homer’s celebrated verse in view, Il. i. 249.

Τὴ καὶ ἀπο γλώσσης μελιτῶσι γλυκίων ῥέει αὐδὴ·

“ Words from his tongue more sweet than honey flow’d :”

which “ Still break the benches, Henley! with thy strain, “ While Sherlock, Hare, and Gibson preach in vain.

“ Oh great Restorer of the good old Stage, 205

“ Preacher at once, and Zany of thy age!

“ Oh worthy thou of Egypt’s wife abodes,

“ A decent priest, where monkeys were the gods!

“ But

REMARKS.

which Milton has elegantly varied, Par. Lost, ii. 112.

“ But all was false and hollow, though his tongue Dropt manna.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 203. Still break the benches,]

“ Subfellia fregit!”——

VER. 204. Sherlock, Hare, Gibson,] Bishops of Salisbury, Chichester, and London; whose Sermons and Pastoral Letters did honour to their country as well as stations. *

In the former editions Kennet was named, not Sherlock. The Sermons of the latter, though censured by Mr. Church, are masterpieces of argument and eloquence. And his Discourses on Prophecy, and Trial of the Witnesses, are perhaps the best Defences of Christianity in our language.

WARTON.

VER. 207. Egypt’s wife abodes,]

“ —— Qualia demens

Egyptus portenta colit.”

JUVENAL.

Not one of whose superstitions equalled the gross absurdity of the doctrine of Transubstantiation. The Egyptian did not make the onion which he eat, and worshipped. The Bramins are shocked at this doctrine, and challenge our Missionaries to produce any opinion so absurd from their Vedam.

WARTON.

VER. 207. Oh worthy thou of Egypt’s wife abodes,

A decent priest, where monkeys were the gods!

“ You shall see in Egypt (say Lucian and Clemens Alexandrinus)

“ a most magnificent temple, large, and decorated with precious “ stones; but if you enter, and look for the God, you shall find

“ a goat, a monkey, or a cat.”

WAKEFIELD.

" But fate with butchers plac'd thy priestly stall,
 " Meek modern faith to murder, hack, and mawl ;
 " And bade thee live, to crown Britannia's praise, 211
 " In Toland's, Tindal's, and in Woolston's days.
 " Yet oh, my sons, a father's words attend :
 " (So may the fates preserve the ears you lend)
 " 'Tis yours, a Bacon or a Locke to blame, 215
 " A Newton's genius, or a Milton's flame :
 " But oh ! with One, immortal One, dispense,
 " The source of Newton's Light, of Bacon's Sense.
 " Content, each Emanation of his fires
 " That beams on earth, each Virtue he inspires, 220
 " Each Art he prompts, each Charm he can create,
 " Whate'er he gives, are giv'n for you to hate.
 " Persist,

REMARKS.

VER. 209. But fate with butchers,] So in another place,
 " His butchers Henley"——

VER. 212. Of Toland and Tindal, see Book ii. Thomas Woolston was an impious madman, who wrote in a most insolent style against the Miracles of the Gospel, in the years 1726, &c.

WARBURTON.

VER. 219. Content, each] Warton thinks these four lines the most obscure of any in our Poet's writings ; but they appear sufficiently clear to me. Toland, &c. had written "against Religion." The argument is this : " Blame Bacon, Locke, or Newton, and Milton ; but the great Author of their talents, " this one, immortal God," cease to speak irreverently of him, who is the Source of " Newton's light," and Bacon's sense. It is true, all virtues, and all intellect, and all graces of mind, which are derived from Him, may be the objects of your hate. " Hate each emanation of his fires upon earth, each virtue, each art, each moral charm ; but go no farther." Do not affect to scorn the Deity itself.

“ Persist, by all divine in Man unaw’d,
 “ But, “ Learn, ye DUNCES! not to scorn your God.”

“ Thus he, for then a ray of Reason stole 225
 “ Half thro’ the solid darknes of his soul;
 “ But soon the cloud return’d—and thus the Sire:
 “ See now, what Dulness and her Sons admire!
 “ See what the charms, that smite the simple heart
 “ Not touch’d by Nature, and not reach’d by Art.” 230

His never-blushing head he turn’d aside,
 (Not half so pleas’d when Goodman prophesy’d)
 And

REMARKS.

VER. 226. solid darknes] Alluding to Exodus, x. 21. “ even darknes which may be felt :” whence Milton, Par. Lost, xii. 187.

“ Darknes must overshadow all his bounds, Palpable darknes.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 231. His head] Here is some obscurity. Whose head? He is not sufficient; we do not at first perceive it was Cibber. It is a fault in many, even good writers, not to repeat the substantive intended. I must repeat, that it is the faults of good writers only, that are worth noticing. WARTON.

VER. 232. Not half so pleas’d when Goodman prophesy’d] Mr. Cibber tells us, in his Life, p. 149. that Goodman being at the rehearsal of a Play, in which he had a part, clapped him on the shoulder, and cried, “ If he does not make a good actor, I’ll be d—d. And (says Mr. Cibber) I make it a question, whether Alexander himself, or Charles the Twelfth of Sweden, when at the head of their first victorious armies, could feel a greater transport in their bosoms than I did in mine.” WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 224. Learn, ye Dunces! not to scorn your God.]

“ Discite justitiam moniti, et non temnere divos. VIRG.
 WARBURTON.

And look'd, and saw a fable Sorc'rer rife,
 Swift to whose hand a winged volume flies :
 All sudden, Gorgons his, and Dragons glare, 235
 And ten-horn'd Fiends and Giants rush to war.
 Hell rises, Heav'n descends, and dance on Earth :
 Gods, imps, and monsters, music, rage, and mirth,
 A fire, a jigg, a battle, and a ball,
 Till one wide conflagration swallows all. 240
 Thence a new world to Nature's laws unknown,
 Breaks out refulgent, with a heav'n its own :
 Another Cynthia her new journey runs,
 And other planets circle other suns.

The

REMARKS.

VER. 233. a fable Sorc'rer] Dr. Faustus, the subject of a set of Farces, which lasted in vogue two or three seasons, in which both Playhouses strove to outdo each other for some years. All the extravagances in the sixteen lines following were introduced on the Stage, and frequented by persons of the first quality in England, to the twentieth and thirtieth time. WARBURTON.

The sixteen following lines contain some of the most forcible and lively descriptions any where to be found ; and are a perfect pattern of a clear picturesque style. WARTON.

VER. 237. Hell rises, Heav'n descends, and dance on Earth :] This monstrous absurdity was actually represented in Tibbald's Rape of Proserpine. WARBURTON.

These absurdities were indeed brought on the Stage by Tibbald, but not by Cibber ; who again and again disclaimed and despised them, as may be seen in various passages of his Apology. It is therefore unjust to charge him with favouring and promoting such spectacles ; which for a long time he resisted, and was forced, very unwillingly, to gratify by them the depraved appetite of the Public ; of which he much and loudly complains. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 244. And other planets]

“ ——— solemque suum, sua sidera norunt” ———

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

WARBURTON.

Book III. THE DUNCIAD. 239

The forests dance, the rivers upward rise, 245

Whales sport in woods, and dolphins in the skies;

And last, to give the whole creation grace,

Lo! one vast Egg produces human race.

Joy fills his soul, joy innocent of thought;

What pow'r, he cries, what pow'r these wonders

wrought? 250

Son, what thou seek'st is in thee! Look, and find

Each Monster meets his likeness in thy mind.

Yet would'st thou more? In yonder cloud behold,

Whose farset skirts are edg'd with flamy gold, 254

A matchless Youth! his nod these worlds controls,

Wings the red light'ning, and the thunder rolls.

Angel of Dulness! sent to scatter round

Her magic charms o'er all unclassic ground:

Yon

REMARKS.

VER. 248. Lo! one vast Egg] In another of these Farces Harlequin is hatched upon the Stage, out of a large Egg.

WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 246. Whales sport in woods, and dolphins in the skies;]

“Delphinum sylvis appingit, fluctibus aprum.” HOR.

WARBURTON.

VER. 251. Son, what thou seek'st is in thee!]

“Quod petis in te est——

——Ne te quæsieris extra.” PERS. WARBURTON.

VER. 256. Wings the red light'ning, &c.] Like Salmoncus in Æneid. vi.

“Dum flammæ Jovis, et sonitus imitatur Olympi.

——nimbos, et non imitabile fulmen,

Aere et cornipedum cursu simularat equorum.”

WARBURTON.

VER. 258. o'er all unclassic ground:] Alludes to Mr. Addison's verse, in the praises of Italy:

Yon stars, yon suns, he rears at pleasure higher,
 Illumes their light, and sets their flames on fire. 260
 Immortal Rich ! how calm he fits at ease
 'Mid snows of paper, and fierce hail of pease ;
 And proud his Mistrefs' orders to perform,
 Rides in the whirlwind, and directs the storm.
 But lo ! to dark encounter in mid air 265
 New wizards rise ; I see my Cibber there †

Booth

REMARKS.

VER. 261. Immortal Rich !] Mr. John Rich, Master of the Theatre Royal in Covent-Garden, was the first that excelled this way. WARBURTON.

VER. 261. Immortal Rich !] To this Gentleman's wonder-working exhibitions Fenton thus refers in his Prologue to South-erne's Spartan Dame :

“ We hop'd that Art and Genius had secur'd you ;
 But soon facetious Harlequin allur'd you :
 The Muses blush'd to see their friends exalting
 Those elegant delights of jig and vaulting.”

“ Whilst we were acting (says Cibber somewhere in his Life) the “ best Plays in the language to empty houses ; Rich, with his “ raree-shows, was drawing the whole town after him.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 265. to dark encounter in mid air]

“ Mingle the dark encounter in mid air.” MILTON.

VER. 266. New wizards] Yet it is plain from many passages in Cibber's Life, that he despised these fooleries and abuses of the Stage ; and there are many other passages in his Life strongly written to the same purpose. Neither Booth nor Cibber ever degraded themselves to the appearances mentioned in the two next lines. They were joint managers of the Drury-lane Theatre.

WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

“ Poetic fields encompass me around,
 And still I seem to tread on classic ground.”

As ver. 264. is a parody on a noble one of the same author in The Campaign ; and ver. 259, 260. on two sublime verses of Dr. Y. WARBURTON.

Booth in his cloudy tabernacle shrin'd,
 On grinning dragons thou shalt mount the wind.
 Dire is the conflict, dismal is the din,
 Here shouts all Drury, there all Lincoln's-inn; [270
 Contending Theatres our empire raise,
 Alike their labours, and alike their praise.

And are these wonders, Son, to thee unknown?
 Unknown to thee? These wonders are thy own.
 These Fate reserv'd to grace thy reign divine, 275
 Foreseen by me, but ah! withheld from mine.
 In Lud's old walls tho' long I rul'd, renown'd
 Far as loud Bow's stupendous bells resound;
 Tho' my own Aldermen confer'd the bays,
 To me committing their eternal praise, 280
 Their full-fed Heroes, their pacific May'rs,
 Their annual trophies, and their monthly wars:
 Tho'

VARIATIONS.

After Ver. 274. in the former Edit. followed,
 For works like these let deathless Journals tell
 "None but thyself can be thy parallel." WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 267. Booth in his cloudy tabernacle shrin'd,] Alluding to Exodus, xl. 38. as Milton, Par. Lost, viii. 248.

"—— she in a cloudy tabernacle
 Sojourn'd the while." WAKEFIELD.

VER. 269. Dire is the conflict, dismal is the din,] From Paradise Lost, vi.

"—— dire was the noise
 Of conflict; over head the dismal hiss
 Of fiery darts in flaming volleys flew." WAKEFIELD.

VER. 282. Annual trophies, on the Lord-mayor's Day; and monthly wars in the Artillery-ground. WARBURTON.

Of late years the city militia has been put on a more respectable footing. WARTON.

Tho' long my Party built on me their hopes,
 For writing Pamphlets, and for roasting Popes ;
 Yet lo ! in me what authors have to brag on ! 285
 Reduc'd at last to hiss in my own dragon.
 Avert it, Heav'n ! that thou, my Cibber, e'er
 Should'st wag a serpent-tail in Smithfield fair !
 Like the vile straw that's blown about the streets,
 The needy Poet sticks to all he meets, 290
 Coach'd, carted, trod upon, now loose, now fast,
 And carry'd off in some Dog's tail at last.
 Happier thy fortunes ! like a rolling stone,
 Thy giddy dulness still shall lumber on,
 Safe in its heaviness, shall never stray, 295
 But lick up ev'ry blockhead in the way.

Thee

VARIATIONS.

After Ver. 284. in the former Edit. followed,
 Diff'rent our parties, but with equal grace
 The Goddess smiles on Whig and Tory race.

WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 283. Tho' long my Party] Settle, like most Party-writers, was very uncertain in his political principles. He was employed to hold the pen in the Character of a popish successor, but afterwards printed his Narrative on the other side. He had managed the ceremony of a famous Pope-burning on Nov. 17, 1680, then became a trooper in King James's army, at Hounslow-heath. After the Revolution he kept a booth at Bartholomew-fair, where, in the droll called St. George for England, he acted in his old age in a Dragon of green leather of his own invention ; he was at last taken into the Charter-house, and there died, aged sixty years.

WARBURTON.

VER. 288. Smithfield fair !] That is, Bartholomew fair, which is kept in Smithfield, where these pantomimical wonders were exhibited.

WAKEFIELD.

Thee shall the Patriot, thee the Courtier taste,
 And ev'ry year be duller than the last.
 Till rais'd from booths, to Theatre, to Court,
 Her feat imperial Dulness shall transport. 300
 Already Opera prepares the way,
 The sure fore-runner of her gentle sway :
 Let her thy heart, next Drabs and Dice, engage,
 The third mad passion of thy dotting age.
 Teach thou the warbling Polypheme to roar, 305
 And scream thyself, as none e'er scream'd before!

To

VARIATIONS.

VER. 295. Safe in its heaviness, &c.] In the former Edit.

Too safe in inborn heaviness to stray ;
 And lick up ev'ry blockhead in the way.
 Thy Dragons, Magistrates, and Peers shall taste,
 And from each shew rise duller than the last.
 Till rais'd from booths, &c. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 297. Thee shall the Patriot, thee the Courtier taste,] It stood in the first edition with blanks,  and . Concanen was sure, "they must needs mean nobody but King GEORGE and Queen CAROLINE; and said he would insist it was so, till the Poet cleared himself by filling up the blanks otherwise, agreeably to the context, and consistent with his Allegiance." Pref. to a Collection of verses, essays, letters, &c. against Mr. P. printed for A. Moor, p. 6. WARBURTON.

VER. 301. Already Opera] The Italian Opera is said to owe its origin to a sacred drama, intitled, Conversione de S. Paolo, set to music by Francisco Beverini, a most celebrated composer at that time, and represented before Cardinal Riario, nephew to Pope Sixtus IV. in the Carnival Season of 1480. This was followed by another at the Carnival at Venice, 1485. But in this latter drama was a mixture of comic characters, lawyers, physicians, ladies, servants, merchants, &c. though on a serious subject, and intitled, La Verita Raminga. WARTON.

To aid our cause, if Heav'n thou can'st not bend,
 Hell thou shalt move; for Faustus is our friend:
 Pluto with Cato thou for this shalt join,
 And link the Mourning Bride to Proserpine. 310
 Grub-street! thy fall should men and Gods conspire,
 Thy stage shall stand, ensure it but from Fire.
 Another Eschylus appears! prepare
 For new abortions, all ye pregnant fair!

In

REMARKS.

VER. 305. Polypheme] He translated the Italian Opera of Polifemo; but unfortunately lost the whole jest of the story. The Cyclops asks Ulysses his name, who tells him his name is Noman: After his eye is put out, he roars and calls the Brother Cyclops to his aid: They enquire, who has hurt him? he answers, Noman: whereupon they all go away again. Our ingenious Translator made Ulysses answer, I take no name; whereby all that followed became unintelligible. Hence it appears that Mr. Cibber (who values himself on subscribing to the English Translation of Homer's Iliad) had not that merit with respect to the Odyssey, or he might have been better instructed in the Greek Pun-ology.

WARBURTON.

VER. 307. *To aid our cause, if Heav'n thou can'st not bend,
 Hell thou shalt move;*]

A translation of Virgil, Æn. vii. 312.

“Flectere si nequeo Superos, Acheronta movebo.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 308, 309. Faustus, Pluto, &c.] Names of miserable Farces, which it was the custom to act at the end of the best Tragedies, to spoil the digestion of the audience. WARBURTON.

VER. 312. ensure it but from Fire.] In Tibbald's Farce of Proserpine, a corn-field was set on fire: whereupon the other play-house had a barn burnt down for the recreation of the spectators. They also rivaled each other in shewing the burnings of hell-fire, in Dr. Faustus.

WARBURTON.

VER. 313. Another Eschylus appears!] It is reported of Eschylus, that when his tragedy of the Furies was acted, the audience were

Book III. THE DUNCIAD. 245

In flames, like Semele's, be brought to bed, 315

While op'ning Hell spouts wild-fire at your head.

Now Bavius take the poppy from thy brow,

And place it here! here all ye Heroes bow!

This, this is he, foretold by ancient rhymes:

Th' Augustus born to bring Saturnian times. 320

Signs

REMARKS.

were so terrified, that the children fell into fits, and the big-bellied women miscarried. WARBURTON.

On mentioning this abortive attempt of Tibbald to translate the Prometheus, one cannot forbear thinking of the spirited and faithful translation which Mr. Potter has given us of this great Father of the Greek Tragedy. WARTON.

VER. 315. like Semele's,] See Ovid. Met. iii. WARBURTON.

It seems strange, that a writer of Congreve's good and classical taste should choose Semele for the subject of a drama, where the catastrophe is so very absurd: the stage direction in the last act is—"As the cloud which contains Jupiter is arrived just over the canopy of Semele, a sudden and great flash of lightning breaks forth, and a clap of loud thunder is heard; when at one instant Semele, with the palace, and the whole scene, disappears, and Jupiter re-ascends swiftly." It was with justice he took, for a motto to his Opera, these words of Seneca—"A naturâ discedimus, populo nos damus, nullius rei bono auctori, & in hac re, sicut in omnibus, inconstantissimo." I wonder Pope mentioned the story of Semele, as his friend Congreve had introduced it on the stage.

WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 319, 320. This, this is he, foretold by ancient rhymes:

Th' Augustus, &c.]

"Hic vir, hic est! tibi quem promitti sæpius audis,

Augustus Cæsar, divum genus; aurea condet

Secula qui rursus Latio, regnata per avâ

Saturno quondam"——— VIRG. Æneid. vi.

Saturnian here relates to the age of Lead, mentioned book i. ver. 26.

WARBURTON.

Signs following signs lead on the mighty year!
 See! the dull stars roll round and re-appear.
 See, see, our own true Phœbus wears the bays!
 Our Midas fits Lord Chancellor of Plays!
 On Poets Tombs see Benson's titles writ! 325
 Lo! Ambrose Philips is prefer'd for Wit!

See

VARIATIONS.

VER. 323. See, see, our own, &c.] In the former Edit.
 Beneath his reign, shall Eusden wear the bays,
 Cibber preside Lord Chancellor of plays,
 Benson sole Judge of Architecture sit,
 And Namby Pamby be prefer'd for Wit!
 I see th' unfinish'd Dormitory wall,
 I see the Savoy totter to her fall;
 Hibernian Politics, O Swift! thy doom,
 And Pope's, translating three whole years with Broome.
 Proceed, great days, &c. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 325. On Poets Tombs see Benson's titles writ!] W—m Benson (Surveyor of the Buildings to his Majesty King George I.) gave in a report to the Lords, that their House and the Painted-chamber adjoining were in immediate danger of falling. Whereupon the Lords met in a committee to appoint some other place to sit in, while the house should be taken down. But it being proposed to cause some other builders first to inspect it, they found it in very good condition. The Lords, upon this, were going upon an address to the King against Benson, for such a misrepresentation; but the earl of Sunderland, then secretary, gave them an assurance that his Majesty would remove him, which was done accordingly. In favour of this man, the famous Sir Christopher Wren, who had been Architect to the Crown for above fifty years, who built most of the Churches in London, laid the first stone of St. Paul's, and lived to finish it, had been displaced from his employment at the age of near ninety years.

WARBURTON.

VER. 325. On Poets Tombs see Benson's titles writ!] Auditor Benson erected a monument to Milton in Westminster Abbey, in

See under Ripley rise a new White-hall,
While Jones' and Boyle's united labours fall :

While

REMARKS.

the year 1737, on which his own name is inscribed as the founder. Concerning him, see Pennant's London, p. 381. 2d edition.

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 326. Ambrose Philips] "He was (saith Mr. JACOB) one of the wits at Button's, and a justice of the peace : " But he hath since met with higher preferment in Ireland ; and a much greater character we have of him in Mr. Gildon's Complete Art of Poetry, vol. i. p. 157. " Indeed he confesses, he dares not set him quite on the same foot with Virgil, lest it should seem flattery : but he is much mistaken if posterity does not afford him a greater esteem than he at present enjoys." He endeavoured to create some misunderstanding between our Author and Mr. Addison, whom also soon after he abused as much. His constant cry was, that Mr. P. was an Enemy to the government ; and in particular he was the avowed author of a report very industriously spread, that he had a hand in a party-paper called the Examiner : A falsehood well-known to those yet living, who had the direction and publication of it.

WARBURTON.

He proceeded to grosser insults, says Dr. Johnson, and hung up a rod at Button's, with which he threatened to chastise Pope, who appears to be extremely exasperated. It was an honour to Philips to be joined with so excellent a prelate as Dr. Boulter in writing the Freethinker ; who, when he was made Primate of Ireland, did not forget the companion of his labours, but took him to Ireland as partaker of his fortune ; and making him his secretary, added such preferments as enabled him to represent the county of Armagh in parliament.

WARTON.

VER. 327. See under Ripley rise a new White-hall,] This architect was employed in repairing the building in question at the time of the first edition of this poem : hence is explained a passage in Windfor Forest, ver. 377.

" I see, I see, where two fair cities bend

Their ample bow, a new Whitehall ascend."

This Ripley is mentioned satirically again in Moral Essays, iv. 18. and in the Imitations, Epist. ii. 1. 186.

WAKEFIELD.

While Wren with sorrow to the grave descends,
 Gay dies unpension'd with a hundred friends, 330
 Hibernian

REMARKS.

VER. 328. While Jones' and Boyle's united labours fall:] At the time when this poem was written, the Banqueting-house of White-hall, the church and piazza of Covent-garden, and the palace and chapel of Somers-house, the works of the famous Inigo Jones, had been for many years so neglected, as to be in danger of ruin. The portico of Covent-garden church had been just then restored and beautified at the expence of the Earl of Burlington; who, at the same time, by his publication of the designs of that great Master and Palladio, as well as by many noble buildings of his own, revived the true taste of Architecture in this Kingdom. WARBURTON.

VER. 329. While Wren] "The length of his life enriched the reigns of several princes, and disgraced the last of them. A variety of knowledge proclaims the universality, a multiplicity of works the abundance, St. Paul's the greatness, of Sir Christopher's genius. The noblest temple, the largest palace, the most sumptuous hospital, in such a kingdom as Britain, are all works of the same hand. He restored London, and recorded its fall. I do not mean to be very minute in the account of Wren, even as an architect. Every circumstance of his story has been written and repeated. Bishop Sprat, Anthony Wood, Ward in his Lives of the Gresham Professors, the General Dictionary, and the New Description of London and its Environs, books in the hands of every body, are voluminous on the article of Sir Christopher. In 1680 he was chosen President of the Royal Society; was in two parliaments; was twice married; had two sons and a daughter; and died in 1723, at the age of ninety-one, having lived to see the completion of St. Paul's; a fabric, and an event, which one cannot wonder left such an impression of content on the mind of the good old man, that, being carried to see it once a year, it seemed to recal a memory that was almost deadened to every other use. He was buried under his own fabric, with four words that comprehend his merit and his fame: "Si quæras monumentum, circumspice!" - WALFOLE'S Anecdotes, 8vo. vol. iii. p. 163. WARTON.

Hibernian Politics, O Swift ! thy fate ;
And Pope's, ten years to comment and translate.

Proceed,

VARIATIONS.

VER. 331. in the former Editions thus :

—— O Swift ! thy doom,

And Pope's, translating ten whole years with Broome.

On which was the following Note : “ He concludes his irony with a stroke upon himself : for whoever imagines this a sarcasm on the other ingenious person, is surely mistaken. The opinion our Author had of him was sufficiently shewn by his joining him in the undertaking of the Odyſſey ; in which Mr. Broome having engaged without any previous agreement, discharged his part so much to Mr. Pope's satisfaction, that he gratified him with the full sum of Five hundred pounds, and a present of all those books for which his own interest could procure him subscribers, to the value of One hundred more. The author only seems to lament, that he was employed in Translation at all.”

WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 399. Wren] Wren was born at East Knoyle in Wiltshire, of which place his father was Rector.

VER. 330. Gay dies unpension'd, &c.] See Mr. Gay's fable of the Hare and many Friends. This gentleman was early in the friendship of our Author, which continued to his death. He wrote several works of humour with great success, the Shepherd's Week, Trivia, the What-d'ye-call-it, Fables ; and lastly, the celebrated Beggar's Opera ; a piece of satire which hit all tastes and degrees of men, from those of the highest quality to the very rabble : That verse of Horace, could never be so justly applied as to this. The vast success of it was unprecedented, and almost incredible : What is related of the wonderful effects of the ancient music or tragedy hardly came up to it : Sophocles and Euripides were less followed and famous. It was acted in London sixty-three days, uninterrupted ; and renewed the next season with equal applauses. It spread into all the great towns of England, was played in many places to the thirtieth and fortieth time, at Bath and Bristol fifty, &c. It made

“ Primores populi arripuit, populumque tributim,”

Proceed, great days ! till Learning fly the shore,
 Till Birch shall blush with noble blood no more,
 Till

REMARKS.

made its progress into Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, where it was performed twenty-four days together : It was at last acted in Minorca. The fame of it was not confined to the author only ; the ladies carried about with them the favourite songs of it in fans ; and houses were furnished with it in screens. The person who acted Polly, till then obscure, became all at once the favourite of the town ; her pictures were engraved, and sold in great numbers ; her life written, books of letters and verses to her published ; and pamphlets made even of her sayings and jests.

Furthermore, it drove out of England, for that season, the Italian Opera, which had carried all before it for ten years. That idol of the Nobility and people, which the great Critic Mr. Dennis, by the labours and outcries of a whole life, could not overthrow, was demolished by a single stroke of this gentleman's pen. This happened in the year 1728. Yet so great was his modesty, that he constantly prefixed to all the editions of it this motto, Nos hæc novimus esse nihil. WARBURTON.

The Duchess of Queensberry was forbid to appear at Court, on account of her patronizing Mr. Gay, on which occasion she sent the following reply to King George II.

“ Thursday, Feb. 27, 1728.

“ That the Duchess of Queensberry is surpris'd, and well pleas'd, that the King hath given her so agreable a command as to stay from Court, where she never came for diversion, but to bestow a great civility upon the King and Queen. She hopes by such an unprecedented order as this, that the King will see as few as he wishes at his court (particularly such as dare think or speak the truth). I dare not do otherwise, and ought not ; nor could I have imagin'd that it would not have been the highest compliment that I could possibly pay the King, to endeavour to support truth and innocence in his house ; particularly when the King and Queen had both told me that they had not read Mr. Gay's play. I have certainly done right then to stand to my own word, rather than his Grace of Grafton's, who hath neither made use of truth, judgment, or honour, through this whole affair, either for himself or his friends.

“ C. QUEENSBERRY.”

What

Till Thames see Eaton's sons for ever play, 335

Till Westminster's whole year be holiday,
Till

REMARKS.

What follows was written by her Grace at the bottom of the copies of the above answer, which she gave to her particular friends :

“ This is the answer I gave in writing to the Vice Chamberlain to read to the King, in answer to the message he brought me from the King to refrain coming to court.” WARTON.

VER. 330. Gay dies unpension'd with a hundred friends,] An allusion seems intended to this poet's fable, The Hare and many Friends; the introduction to which thus concludes :

“ 'Tis thus in friendship, who depend
On many, rarely find a friend.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 331. Hibernian Politics, O Swift! thy fate ;] See book i. ver. 26. WARBURTON.

VER. 332. And Pope's, ten years to comment and translate.] Johnson says in his Life of Broome, upon the subject of the disagreement and alienation between him and Pope, “ I have been told that they were afterwards reconciled.” The verse before us may be fairly considered as a strong presumption of this reconciliation, from the reading of former editions :

“ And Pope's translating three whole years with Broome :” where his name was unpleasantly associated with circumstances of misfortune and regret. WAKEFIELD.

VER. 332. And Pope's, ten years to comment and translate.] The author here plainly laments that he was so long employed in translating and commenting. He began the Iliad in 1713, and finished it in 1719. The edition of Shakespear (which he undertook merely because nobody else would) took up near two years more in the drudgery of comparing impressions, rectifying the Scenery, &c. and the Translation of half the Odyssy employed him from that time to 1725. WARBURTON.

VER. 333. Proceed, great days! &c.] It may perhaps seem incredible, that so great a Revolution in Learning as is here prophesied, should be brought about by such weak Instruments as have been [hitherto] described in our poem : But do not thou, gentle reader, rest too secure in thy contempt of these Instruments. Remember what the Dutch stories somewhere relate, that a great part

Till Ifis' Elders reel, their pupils sport,
And Alma mater lie diffolv'd in Port!

Enough! enough! the raptur'd Monarch cries;
And thro' the Iv'ry Gate the Vifion flies. 340

VARIATIONS.

After Ver. 338. in the first Edit. were the following lines:

Then when these signs declare the mighty year,
When the dull stars roll round and re-appear;
Let there be darkness! (the dread Pow'r shall say)
All shall be darkness, as it ne'er were day;
To their first Chaos Wit's vain works shall fall,
And universal Darkness cover all. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

part of their Provinces was once overflowed, by a small opening made in one of their dykes by a single Water-Rat.

However, that such is not seriously the judgment of our Poet, but that he conceiveth better hopes from the Diligence of our Schools, from the Regularity of our Universities, the Discernment of our Great men, the Accomplishments of our Nobility, the Encouragement of our Patrons, and the Genius of our Writers in all kinds, (notwithstanding some few exceptions in each,) may plainly be seen from his conclusion; where, causing all this vision to pass through the Ivory Gate, he expressly, in the language of Poesy, declares all such imaginations to be wild, ungrounded, and fictitious. SCRIBLERUS.

VER. 333. Proceed, great days! &c.—Till Birch shall blush, &c.] Another great prophet of Dulness, on this side Styx, promiseth those days to be near at hand. “The Devil (saith he) licens'd Bishops to license Masters of Schools to instruct youth in the knowledge of the Heathen Gods, their religion, &c. The Schools and Universities will soon be tired and ashamed of Classics, and such trumpery.”—HUTCHINSON'S Use of Reason recovered.

SCRIBLERUS. *

VER. 333. Proceed, great days!] Alluding to Virgil, Ecl. iv. 12.

“—— incipient magni procedere menses.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 339. Enough! enough!] “The Dunciad (says Mr. Clarke to Mr. Bowyer) is not so much the common-place, as the common-shore of Pope's repentments, where they run off, and are like to do so, for life.” Letters, p. 562. WARTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 340. And thro' the Iv'ry Gate] See what the truly learned Jortin has said in his Sixth Differtation on the subject of this Iv'ry Gate. This Sixth Differtation very unfortunately produced a Seventh, on the Delicacy of Friendship, which it must be lamented was ever published. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 340. And thro' the Iv'ry Gate, &c.]

“Sunt geminæ Somni portæ; quarum altera fertur
 Cornea, qua veris facilis datur exitus umbris;
 Altera candenti perfecta nitens elephanto,
 Sed falsa ad cœlum mittunt infomnia manes.”

VIRG. Æneid. vi.

WARBURTON.

WHEN the first complete and correct edition of the Dunciad was published in quarto, 1729, it consisted of three books; and had for its hero Tibbald; a cold, plodding, and tasteless writer and critic, who, with great propriety, was chosen, on the death of Settle, by the Goddesses of Dulness, to be the chief instrument of that great work which was the subject of the poem; namely, "the introduction (as our Author expresses it) of the lowest diversions of the rabble of Smithfield, to be the entertainment of the court and town; the action of the Dunciad being, the removal of the imperial seat of Dulness from the city to the polite world; as that of the Æneid is the removal of the empire of Troy to Latium." This was the primary subject of the piece. Our author adds, "as Homer, finging only the wrath of Achilles, yet includes in his poem the whole history of the Trojan war, in like manner our Poet hath drawn into this single action the whole history of Dulness and her children. To this end, she is represented, at the very opening of the Poem, taking a view of her forces, which are distinguished into these three kinds, party-writers, dull poets, and wild critics. A person must be fixed upon to support this action, who (to agree with the design) must be such an one as is capable of being all three. This phantom in the poet's mind must have a name. He seeks for one who hath been concerned in the journals, written bad plays or poems, and published low criticisms. He finds his name to be Tibbald, and he becomes of course the hero of the poem."

This design is carried on, in the first book, by a description of the Goddesses fixing her eye on Tibbald; who, on the evening of a Lord-mayor's day, is represented as sitting pensively in his study, and apprehending the period of her empire, from the old age of the present monarch Settle; and also by an account of a sacrifice he makes of his unsuccessful works; of the Goddesses revealing herself to him, announcing the death of Settle that night, anointing and proclaiming him successor. It is carried on in the second book, by a description of the various games instituted in honour

honour of the new king, in which booksellers, poets, and critics contend. This design is, lastly, completed in the third book, by the Goddess's transporting the new king to her temple, laying him in a deep slumber on her lap, and conveying him in a vision to the banks of Lethe, where he meets with the ghost of his predecessor Settle; who, in a speech that begins at line 35, to almost the end of the book, shews him the past triumphs of the empire of Dulness, then the present, and lastly the future: enumerating particularly by what aids, and by what persons, Great Britain shall be forthwith brought to her empire, and prophesying how first the nation shall be over-run with farces, operas, shows; and the throne of Dulness advanced over both the theatres: then, how her sons shall preside in the seats of arts and sciences; till in conclusion, all shall return to their original chaos. On hearing which,

Enough! enough! the raptur'd Monarch cries;
And thro' the Iv'ry Gate the Vision flies.

With which words, the design above recited being perfected, the poem concludes. Thus far all was clear, consistent, and of a piece; and was delivered in such nervous and spirited versification, that the delighted reader had only to lament that so many poetical beauties were thrown away on such dirty and despicable subjects, as were the scribblers here proscribed; who appear like monsters preserved in the most costly spirits. But in the year 1742, our Poet was persuaded by Dr. Warburton, unhappily enough, to add a fourth book to his finished piece, of such a very different cast and colour, as to render it at last one of the most motley compositions, that perhaps is any where to be found in the works of so exact a writer as Pope. For one great purpose of this fourth book (where, by the way, the hero does nothing at all) was to satirize and proscribe infidels and free-thinkers, to leave the ludicrous for the serious, Grub-street for theology, the mock-heroic for metaphysics: which occasioned a marvellous mixture and jumble of images and sentiments, pantomime and philosophy, journals and moral evidence, Fleet-ditch and the High Prior road, Curl and Clarke.—To ridicule our petulant libertines, and affected minute philosophers, was doubtless a most laudable intention; but speaking of the Dunciad as a work of art, in a critical not a religious light, I must venture to affirm, that the subject of this fourth book was foreign and heterogeneous, and the addition of it as injudicious, ill-placed, and incongruous, as any of those dissimilar images we meet with in Pulci or Ariosto.

It

It is like introducing a crucifix into one of Teniers's burlesque conversation-pieces. Some of his most splendid and striking lines are indeed here to be found; but I must beg leave to insist, that they want propriety and decorum, and must wish they had adorned some separate work against irreligion, which would have been worthy the pen of our bitter and immortal satirist.

But neither was this the only alteration the Dunciad was destined to undergo. For in the year 1743, our Author, enraged with Cibber (whom he had usually treated with contempt ever since the affair of Three Hours after Marriage) for publishing a ridiculous pamphlet against him, dethroned Tibbald, and made the laureate the hero of his poem. Cibber, with a great stock of levity, vanity, and affectation, had sense, and wit, and humour: And the author of the Careless Husband was by no means a proper king of the dunces. "His treatise on the stage (says Mr. Walpole) is inimitable: where an author writes on his own profession, feels it profoundly, and is sensible his readers do not, he is not only excusable, but meritorious, for illuminating the subject by new metaphors, on bolder figures than ordinary. He is the coxcomb that sneers, not he that instructs by appropriated diction." The consequence of this alteration was, that many lines, which exactly suited the heavy character of Tibbald, lost all their grace and propriety when applied to Cibber. Such as,

Sinking from thought to thought, a vast profound!

Such also is the description of his gothic library, for Cibber troubled not himself with Caxton, Winkyn, and De Lyra. Tibbald, who was an antiquarian, had collected those curious old writers: And to slumber in the Goddess's lap, was adapted to his stupidity, not to the vivacity of his successor.

On the whole, the chief fault of the Dunciad, is the violence and vehemence of its satire, and the excessive height to which it is carried; and which therefore I may compare to that marvellous column of boiling water, near Mount Hecla in Iceland, thrown upwards, above ninety feet, by the force of a subterraneous fire. What are the impressions left upon the mind after a perusal of this poem? Contempt, aversion, vexation, and anger. No sentiments that enlarge, ennoble, move, or mend the heart! Inasmuch that I know a person, whose name would be an ornament to these papers, if I were suffered to insert it, who, after reading a book of the Dunciad, always soothes himself, as he calls it, by turning to a canto in the Fairy Queen. This is not the case in that very delightful and beautiful poem, Mac Flecknoe, from which Pope has borrowed so many hints, and images, and ideas. But Dryden's poem was the offspring of contempt, and Pope's of indignation: one is full of mirth, and the other of malignity. A vein of pleasantry is uniformly preserved through the whole of Mac Flecnoe, and the piece begins and ends in the same key. It is natural and obvious to borrow a metaphor from music, when we are speaking of a poem whose versification is particularly and exquisitely sweet and harmonious. The numbers of the Dunciad by being much laboured, and encumbered with epithets, have something in them of stiffness and harshness. Since the total decay of learning and genius was foretold in the Dunciad, how many very excellent pieces of Criticism, Poetry, History, Philosophy, and Divinity, have appeared in this country, and to what a degree of perfection has almost every art, either useful or elegant, been carried!

WARTON.

These observations by Dr. Warton are in general very just and sensible, tinged in one or two places with his favourite mode of illustration; the chief fault of the Dunciad being, it is said, the excessive height to which it is carried, and which he compares to that "marvellous column of boiling water on Mount Hecla, which is carried by subterraneous fires upwards of ninety feet high!" To the account of the plan of the Dunciad, as it originally was conceived, with a more appropriate Personage than Theobald for its King, nothing can be added. The fourth book, subjoined by the advice of Warburton, though it is not certainly of the same texture or piece with the others, yet I by no means think so meanly of, as Dr. Warton. The objects of satire are more general and just: The one is confined to persons, and those of the most insignificant sort; the other is directed chiefly to things, such as faults of education, false knowledge, and false taste. In polished and pointed satire, in richness of versification and imagery, and in the happy introduction of characters, speeches, figures, and every sort of poetical ornament, adapted to the subject, this book yields, in my opinion, to none of Pope's writings of the same kind.

THE
D U N C I A D.

BOOK THE FOURTH.

ARGUMENT.

THE Poet being, in this Book, to declare the Completion of the Prophecies mentioned at the end of the former, makes a new Invocation; as the greater Poets are wont, when some high and worthy matter is to be sung. He shows the Goddess coming in her Majesty, to destroy Order and Science, and to substitute the Kingdom of the Dull upon earth. How she leads captive the Sciences, and silenceth the Muses; and what they be who succeed in their stead. All her Children, by a wonderful attraction, are drawn about her, and bear along with them divers others, who promote her Empire by connivance, weak resistance, or discouragement of Arts; such as Half-wits, tasteless Admirers, vain Pretenders, the Flatterers of Dunces, or the Patrons of them. All these crowd around her; one of them offering to approach her, is driven back by a Rival, but she commends and encourages both. The first who speak in form are the Genius's of the Schools, who assure her of their care to advance her Cause by confining Youth to Words, and keeping them out of the way of real Knowledge. Their Address, and her gracious Answer; with her Charge to them and the Universities. The Universities appear by their proper Deputies, and assure her that the same method is observed in the progress of Education. The speech of Aristarchus on this subject. They are driven off by a band of young Gentlemen returned from Travel with their Tutors; one of whom delivers to the s 2

Goddeſs,

Goddeſs, in a polite oration, an account of the whole Conduct and Fruits of their Travels; preſenting to her at the ſame time a young Nobleman perfectly accompliſhed. She receives him graciously, and endues him with the happy quality of Want of Shame. She ſees loitering about her a number of Indolent Perſons abandoning all buſineſs and duty, and dying with lazineſs: To theſe approaches the Antiquary Annius, intreating her to make them Virtuoſos, and aſſign them over to him: But Mummius, another Antiquary, complaining of his fraudulent proceeding, ſhe finds a method to reconcile their difference. Then enter a Troop of people fantaſtically adorn'd, offering her ſtrange and exotic preſents: Amongſt them, one ſtands forth and demands juſtice on another, who had deprived him of one of the greateſt Curioſities in nature: but he juſtifies himſelf ſo well, that the Goddeſs gives them both her approbation. She recommends to them to find proper employment for the Indolents before-mentioned, in the ſtudy of Butterflies, Shells, Birds-neſts, Moſs, &c. but with particular caution, not to proceed beyond Trifles, to any uſeful or extenſive views of Nature, or of the Author of Nature. Againſt the laſt of theſe apprehenſions, ſhe is ſecured by a hearty Addreſs from the Minute Philoſophers and Free-thinkers, one of whom ſpeaks in the name of the reſt. The Youth thus inſtructed and principled, are delivered to her in a body by the hands of Silenus; and then admitted to taſte the Cup of the Magus her High Prieſt, which cauſes a total oblivion of all Obligations, divine, civil, moral, or rational. To theſe her Adepts ſhe ſends Prieſts, Attendants, and Comforters, of various kinds; confers on them Orders and Degrees; and then diſmiſſing them with a ſpeech, confirming to each his Privileges, and telling what ſhe expects from each, concludes with a Yawn of extraordinary virtue: The Progreſs and Effects whereof on all Orders of men, and the Conſummation of all, in the Reſtoration of Night and Chaos, conclude the Poem.

B O O K IV.

YET, yet a moment, one dim Ray of Light
 Indulge, dread Chaos, and eternal Night!
 Of darkness visible so much be lent,
 As half to shew, half veil the deep Intent.

Ye

REMARKS.

The DUNCIAD, Book IV.] This Book may properly be distinguished from the former, by the name of the GREATER DUNCIAD, not so indeed in size, but in subject; and so far, contrary to the distinction anciently made of the Greater and Lesser Iliad. But much are they mistaken who imagine this Work to be in any wise inferior to the former, or of any other hand than of our Poet; of which I am much more certain than that the Iliad itself was the work of Solomon, or the Batrachomyomachia of Homer, as Barnes hath affirmed. BENTLEY. POPE.

VER. 1, &c. This is an Invocation of much Piety. The Poet, willing to approve himself a genuine Son, beginneth by shewing (what is ever agreeable to Dulness) his high respect for Antiquity and a Great Family, how dead or dark soever: Next declareth his passion for explaining Mysteries; and lastly, his Impatience to be re-united to her. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

It was thought improper to omit the many notes in this fourth book, marked P. * because they were the joint work of Pope and Warburton; and nothing of Mr. Pope's ought to be lost. The first sixteen lines are particularly elevated and strong. And yet the expression in the third line, "so much be lent," is somewhat harsh and forced. WARTON.

VER. 2. dread Chaos, and eternal Night!] Invoked, as the Restoration of their Empire is the Action of the Poem. POPE. *

VER. 3. Of darkness visible so much be lent,
As half to shew, half veil the deep Intent.]

This is modelled from Par. Lost, i. 63. as every reader of English poetry will immediately recollect:

Ye Pow'rs ! whose Mysteries restor'd I sing, 5
 To whom Time bears me on his rapid wing,
 Suspend

REMARKS.

“ No light, but rather darkness visible,
 Serv'd only to discover fights of woe.”

For the conception, which supplied this most curious and happy language, as well as for the congenial description in his Penseroso, ver. 79. no less happily embodied,

Where glowing embers through the room
 Teach light to counterfeit a gloom :

our epic bard was indebted, I have no doubt, to Cowley's Davideis, i. 357.

“ No pale-fac'd moon does in stol'n beams appear,
 Or with dim taper scatters darkness there.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 4. half to shew, half veil the deep Intent.] This is a great propriety, for a dull Poet can never express himself otherwise than by halves, or imperfectly. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

I understand it very differently ; the Author in this work had indeed a deep Intent ; there were in it Mysteries, or ἀποκρύφια, which he durst not fully reveal ; and doubtless in divers verses (according to Milton)

— “ more is meant than meets the ear.” BENTLEY. POPE. *

VER. 6. To whom Time bears me on his rapid wing,] Fair and softly, good Poet ! (cries the gentle Scriblerus on this place.) For sure, in spite of his unusual modesty, he shall not travel so fast toward oblivion, as divers others of more confidence have done ; For when I revolve in my mind the catalogue of those who have most boldly promised to themselves Immortality, viz. Pindar, Luis Gongora, Ronsard, Oldham, Lyrics ; Lycephron, Statius, Chapman, Blackmore, Heroics ; I find the one half to be already dead, and the other in utter darkness. But it becometh not us, who have taken up the office of his Commentator, to suffer our Poet thus prodigally to cast away his Life ; contrariwise, the more hidden and abstruse his work is, and the more remote its beauties from common Understanding, the more it is our duty to draw forth and exalt the same, in the face of men and angels. Herein shall we imitate the laudable Spirit of those, who have (for this very reason) delighted to comment on dark and uncouth Authors, and even on their darker Fragments ; have preferred
Ennius

Suspend a while your Force inertly strong,
Then take at once the Poet and the Song.

Now flam'd the Dog-star's unpropitious ray,
Smote ev'ry Brain, and wither'd ev'ry Bay ; 10
Sick was the Sun, the Owl forsook his bow'r,
The moon-struck Prophet felt the madding hour :
Then rose the Seed of Chaos, and of Night,
To blot out Order, and extinguish Light,
Of dull and venal a new World to mold, 15
And bring Saturnian days of Lead and Gold.

She

REMARKS.

Ennius to Virgil, and have chosen rather to turn the dark Lanthorn of LYCOPHRON, than to trim the everlasting Lamp of Homer.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 6. To whom Time bears me on his rapid wing,] The Poet had in his memory Milton's Sonnet vii.

“ How soon hath Time, the subtle thief of youth,
Stol'n on his wing my three and twentieth year —
To that same lot, however mean or high,
Toward which Time leads me, and the will of Heav'n—.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 7. Force inertly strong,] Alluding to the Vis inertiae of Matter, which, though it really be no Power, is yet the foundation of all the qualities and attributes of that sluggish substance.

POPE. *

VER. 14. To blot out Order, and extinguish Light,] The two great ends of her mission ; the one in quality of Daughter of Chaos, the other as Daughter of Night. Order here is to be understood extensively, both as civil and moral ; the distinctions between high and low in Society, and true and false in individuals : Light, as intellectual only ; Wit, Science, Arts.

POPE. *

VER. 15. Of dull and venal] The Allegory continued ; dull referring to the extinction of Light or Science ; venal to the destruction of Order, or the Truth of things.

POPE. *

Ibid. a new World] In reference to the Epicurean opinion, that from the desolation of the natural World into Night and Chaos, a

She mouuts the Throne: her head a Cloud conceal'd,
 In broad Effulgence all below reveal'd,
 ('Tis thus aspiring Dulness ever shines)
 Soft on her lap her Laureat Son reclines.

20

Beneath

REMARKS.

new one should arise; this the Poet alluding to, in the production of a new moral World, makes it partake of its original Principles.

POPE. *

VER. 16. Lead and Gold] i. e. dull and venal. POPE. *

VER. 18. all below reveal'd,] It was the opinion of the Ancients, that the Divinities manifested themselves to men by their Back-parts. Virg. Æneid. i. et avertens, rosea cervice refulsit. But this passage may admit of another exposition.—Vet. Adag. The higher you climb, the more you show your A——. Verified in no instance more than in Dulness aspiring. Emblemized also by an Ape climbing and exposing his posteriors. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 20. her Laureat Son reclines.] With great judgment is it imagined by the Poet, that such a Colleague as Dulness had elected, should sleep upon the Throne, and have very little share in the Action of the Poem. Accordingly he hath done little or nothing from the day of his Anointing; having passed through the second book without taking part in any thing that was transacted about him; and through the third in profound Sleep. Nor ought this, well considered, to seem strange in our days, when so many King-consorts have done the like.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

“When I find my Name in the satirical works of this Poet, I never look upon it as any malice meant to me, but PROFIT to himself. For he considers that my Face is more known than most in the nation; and therefore a Lick at the Laureat will be a sure bait ad captandum vulgus, to catch little readers.” Life of Colley Cibber, ch. ii.

WARBURTON.

Now if it be certain, that the works of our Poet have owed their success to this ingenious expedient, we hence derive an unanswerable argument, that this Fourth DUNCIAD, as well as the former three, hath had the Author's last hand, and was by him intended for the press: Or else to what purpose hath he crowned it, as we see, by this finishing stroke, the profitable Lick at the Laureat?

BENTLEY. POPE.

Surely

Beneath her foot-stool, Science groans in Chains,
 And Wit dreads Exile, Penalties, and Pains.
 There foam'd rebellious Logic, gagg'd and bound,
 There, stript, fair Rhet'ric languish'd on the ground ;
 His blunted Arms by Sophistry are born, 25
 And shameless Billinggate her Robes adorn.
Morality, by her false Guardians drawn,
Chicane in Furs, and Casuistry in Lawn,
 Gasps, as they straiten at each end the cord,
 And dies, when Dulness gives her Page the word.

Mad

REMARKS.

Surely it is not right that the hero should take no part in any thing that was transacted about him in the second book ; and that in the third book he should be in a profound sleep? WARTON.

VER. 21, 22. Beneath her foot-stool, &c.] We are next presented with the pictures of those whom the Goddess leads in Captivity. Science is only depressed and confined so as to be rendered useless ; but Wit or Genius, as a more dangerous and active enemy, punished, or driven away : Dulness being often reconciled in some degree with Learning, but never upon any terms with Wit. And accordingly it will be seen that she admits something like each Science, as Casuistry, Sophistry, &c. but nothing like Wit, Opera alone supplying its place. POPE. *

Though there are many passages in this fourth book of great splendor and spirit, yet there are many also that are disjointed, ununiform, and obscure ; occasioned by their being taken from materials and fragments of a work he once designed to write, on True and False Learning. In the very same proportion that he was peculiarly happy and judicious in the fine additions he made to his Rape of the Lock, he was unfortunate and foiled in the additions he made to his Dunciad. WARTON.

VER. 22. And Wit dreads Exile, Penalties, and Pains.] In reference partly to his own case, as a Papist, and partly to that of his friend Atterbury, now dead, but still alive in the fond remembrance of our Poet, who has exemplified his affection for this prelate in many passages of his works. WAKEFIELD.

Mad Mátthesis alone was unconfin'd, 31
 Too mad for mere material chains to bind,
 Now to pure Space lifts her extatic stare,
 Now running round the Circle, finds its square.
 But held in ten-fold bonds the Muses lie, 35
 Watch'd both by Envy's and by Flatt'ry's eye :
 There to her heart sad Tragedy addrest
 The dagger wont to pierce the Tyrant's breast ;
 But sober History restrain'd her rage,
 And promis'd Vengeance on a barb'rous age. 40
 There

REMARKS.

VER. 30. gives her Page the word.] There was a Judge of this name, always ready to hang any man that came in his way; of which he was suffered to give a hundred miserable examples during a long life, even to his dotage—Though the candid Scriblerus imagined Page here to mean no more than a Page or Mute, and to allude to the custom of strangling State Criminals in Turkey by Mutes or Pages. A practice more decent than that of our Page, who, before he hanged any one, loaded him with reproachful language. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 31. Mad Máthesis] Alluding to the strange Conclusions some Mathematicians have deduced from their principles, concerning the real Quantity of Matter, the Reality of Space, &c.

POPE. *

VER. 31. Mad Máthesis] This vicious accent of the word is authorized by Prudentius, and other authors of declining Latinity.

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 34. running round the Circle, finds its square.] Regards the wild and fruitless attempts of squaring the Circle. POPE. *

VER. 36. Watch'd both by Envy's and by Flatt'ry's eye:] One of the misfortunes falling on Authors, from the Æt for subjecting Plays to the power of a Licensor, being the false representations to which they were exposed, from such as either gratified their envy to Merit, or made their court to Greatness, by perverting general reflections against Vice into Libels on particular Persons.

POPE. *

There funk Thalia, nerveless, cold, and dead,
 Had not her Sister Satire held her head :
 Nor cou'd'st thou, CHESTERFIELD! a tear refuse,
 Thou wept'st, and with thee wept each gentle Muse.

When lo! a Harlot form soft sliding by, 45
 With mincing step, small voice, and languid eye :

Foreign

REMARKS.

VER. 43. Nor cou'd'st thou, &c.] This Noble Person, in the year 1737, when the Act aforesaid was brought into the House of Lords, opposed it in an excellent speech (says Mr. Cibber) "with a lively spirit, and uncommon eloquence." This speech had the honour to be answered by the said Mr. Cibber, with a lively spirit also, and in a manner very uncommon, in the 8th Chapter of his Life and Manners. And here, gentle Reader, would I gladly insert the other speech, whereby thou mightest judge between them: but I must defer it on account of some differences not yet adjusted between the Noble Author and myself, concerning the True Reading of certain passages. BENTLEY. POPE. *

VER. 43. Chesterfield! a tear refuse, &c.] The occasion upon which Lord Chesterfield made his celebrated speech, in favour of the Players, was when the Bill was introduced into the House of Peers, "for explaining and amending so much of the Vagabond Act as relates to common Players of Interludes;" 1737.

VER. 45. When lo! a Harlot form] The Attitude given to this Phantom represents the nature and genius of the Italian Opera; its affected airs, its effeminate sounds, and the practice of patching up these Operas with favourite songs, incoherently put together. These things were supported by the subscriptions of the Nobility. This circumstance, that OPERA should prepare for the opening of the grand Sessions, was prophesied of in Book iii. ver. 304.

"Already Opera prepares the way,
 The sure fore-runner of her gentle sway." POPE. *

Our Author had not seen the charming Dramas of Metastasio; who is indeed a very fine tragic poet; the plans of some of his pieces are conducted with the truest art and judgment, which cannot be surprising to those who know that this enchanting writer

Foreign her air, her robe's discordant pride
 In patch-work flutt'ring, and her head aside:
 By fing'ring Peers up-held on either hand,
 She tripp'd and laugh'd, too pretty much to stand;
 Cast on the prostrate Nine a scornful look, 51
 Then thus in quaint Recitativo spoke.

O Cara! Cara! filence all that train:
 Joy to great Chaos! let Division reign:

Chromatic

REMARKS.

writer has been excelled by few moderns in genius and in learning. Hear a very serious philosopher asserting, "that nothing can be more deeply affecting than the interesting scenes of the serious Opera; when to good poetry and good music, to the Poetry of Metastasio and the music of Pergolese, is added the execution of a good actor." Essays of ADAM SMITH, p. 159.

See also p. 167. of the Musical Imitations in the same work.

Voltaire thinks more highly of the Opera than Pope:

"Ou les beaux vers, la danse, la musique,
 L'art de tromper les yeux par les couleurs,
 L'art plus heureux de séduire les cœurs;
 De cent plaisirs font un plaisir unique."

If Pope, therefore, had lived to read the Operas of Metastasio, he would probably have altered his opinion of this species of Poetry. And he seems to have not been acquainted with those of Quinault; or perhaps took his opinion concerning them from Boileau. Some are far above love stories; see the incantations of Medea; the opening of Pluto; the speeches of Medusa, Ceres, and Alceste. WARTON.

VER. 54. let Division reign:] Alluding to the false taste of playing tricks with Music with numberless divisions, to the neglect of that harmony which conforms to the Sense, and applies to the Passions. Mr. Handel had introduced a great number of Hands and

IMITATIONS.

VER. 54. Joy to great Chaos!] The beginning of a famous old Song.

WARBURTON.

Chromatic tortures soon shall drive them hence, 55
 Break all their nerves, and fritter all their sense:
 One Trill shall harmonize joy, grief, and rage,
 Wake the dull Church, and lull the ranting Stage;
 To the same notes thy sons shall hum, or snore,
 And all thy yawning daughters cry, encore. 60
 Another Phœbus, thy own Phœbus, reigns,
 Joys in my jigs, and dances in my chains.
 But soon, ah soon, Rebellion will commence,
 If Music meanly borrows aid from Sense:
 Strong in new Arms, lo! Giant HANDEL stands,
 Like bold Briareus, with a hundred hands; 66
 To

REMARKS.

and more variety of Instruments into the Orchestra, and employed even Drums and Cannon to make a fuller Chorus; which proved so much too manly for the fine Gentlemen of his age, that he was obliged to remove his Music into Ireland. After which they were reduced, for want of Composers, to practise the patch-work above-mentioned. POPE. *

This subject is treated with accuracy and taste in Avifon's Essay on Musical Expression; and the superiority of Expression to execution insisted on and demonstrated. WARTON.

VER. 55. Chromatic tortures] The judicious and elegant author of the General History of Music has given us accurate accounts of every species of this art, and enriched his work with a variety of curious particulars concerning it, unknown before. WARTON.

VER. 61. thy own Phœbus, reigns,]

“ Tuus jam regnat Apollo.” VIRG.

Not the ancient Phœbus, the God of Harmony, but a modern Phœbus of French extraction, married to the Princess Galimathia, one of the handmaids of Dulness, and an assistant to Opera. Of whom see Bouhours, and other Critics of that nation.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 65. Giant Handel]. The honour paid to this truly sublime genius, by the repeated performances of his noblest works at Westminster-

To stir, to rouse, to shake the Soul he comes,
And Jove's own Thunders follow Mars's Drums.

Arrest

REMARKS.

Westminster-Abbey, under the patronage of the King, will not soon be forgotten. The magnificence and accuracy of which performances were beyond compare. It is remarkable, that in the earlier part of his life, Pope was so very insensible to the charms of Music, that he once asked his friend Dr. Arbuthnot, who had a fine ear, "whether, at Lord Burlington's concerts, the rapture which the company expressed upon hearing the compositions and performance of Handel, did not proceed wholly from affectation?"

Dr. Burney observes, vol. i. p. 329. that both Dryden and my friend Pitt have inaccurately and improperly translated the passage of Virgil, b. 6. relating to Orpheus, v. 645.

"Obloquitur numeris septem discrimina vocum." WARTON.

VER. 65. Giant Handel] When Pope found that his friends, Lord Burlington and Dr. Arbuthnot, thought so highly of Handel, he not only lashed his enemies in the Dunciad, but wished to have his Eurydice set to music by him. Mr. Belchier, a common friend, undertook to negotiate the business; but Handel, having heard that Pope had made his ode more lyrical, that is, fitter for music, by dividing it into airs and recitatives, for Dr. Green, who had already set it, and whom, as a partisan for Bononcini, and confederate with his enemies, he had long disliked, says, "It is de very ding vat my pellowus-plover has set already for ein tocktor's tecree at Cambridge." BURNEY.

VER. 68. And Jove's own Thunders, &c.] By this passage it might be imagined, by those who are unacquainted with the real merits of that great master, Handel, that his only excellence consists in the effect of accumulated harmony in his full chorusses and loud instrumental pieces. It is understood, that Pope was himself insensible to the charms of Music; but those who are best able to judge of its comparative excellence, and most sensible to its effects, will give Handel as great credit for his pathetic airs, and his elegant and rich accompaniments, as for those grand and sublime combinations of sound which astonish and enrapture his audiences. The universality, indeed, of Handel's genius, and the power which he so eminently possessed, of producing a general effect, in a place

Arrest him, Empress; or you sleep no more—
She heard, and drove him to th' Hibernian shore. 70

And now had Fame's posterior Trumpet blown,
And all the Nations summon'd to the Throne.
The young, the old, who feel her inward sway,
One instinct seizes, and transports away.
None need a guide, by sure Attraction led, 75
And strong impulsive gravity of Head :

None

REMARKS.

a place corresponding to our feelings, or the subject which it represents, is that which gives him the highest title to our admiration; but still, in the Lamentation on the Death of Jonathan (perhaps the most pathetic composition that ever existed), and in the lively and playful strains of Acis and Galatea, and the Allegro and Penseroso, we experience the same sensation of satisfaction and delight as in his chorusses and martial airs, to which the passage in question particularly alludes. But the most popular of Handel's numerous productions, the Messiah, exhibits this variety of genius in a most conspicuous light; in which the pastoral symphony, the pious and affecting air, I know, &c. and the Chorus, Hallelujah! for the Lord God, &c. and still more, the highly-finished and sublime conclusion, could only be the production of one whose talents comprehended the most varied powers. It is a curious fact, which is also alluded to in these lines, that, so little was the public aware of the merits of that sublime composition, and so dull were the musicians of that day to its excellence, that Handel, after trying in vain to get the Messiah performed in London, returned with it in disgust to Dublin, where he first produced it to the world, though in a manner by no means satisfactory to his ideas and expectations.

VER. 71. Fame's posterior Trumpet] Posterior, viz. her second or more certain Report: unless we imagine this word posterior to relate to the position of one of her Trumpets, according to Hudibras:

“ She blows not both with the same Wind,
But one before and one behind;
And therefore modern Authors name
One good, and t'other evil Fame.”

POPE. *

None want a place, for all their Centre found,
 Hung to the Goddess, and coher'd around.
 Not clofer, orb in orb, conglob'd are feen
 The buzzing Bees about their dusky Queen. 80

The gath'ring number, as it moves along,
 Involves a vast involuntary throng,
 Who gently drawn, and struggling less and less,
 Roll in her Vortex, and her pow'r confess.
 Not those alone who passive own her laws, 85
 But who, weak Rebels, more advance her cause.

Whate'er of dunce in College or in Town
 Sneers at another, in toupee or gown ;
 Whate'er of mungril no one class admits,
 A wit with dunces, and a dunce with wits. 90

Nor absent they, no members of her state,
 Who pay her homage in her sons, the Great ;
 Who false to Phœbus, bow the knee to Baal ;
 Or impious, preach his Word without a call.

Patrons,

REMARKS.

VER. 75. None need a guide,—None want a place,] The sons of Dulness want no instructors in study, nor guides in life: They are their own masters in all Sciences, and their own Heralds and Introducers into all places. POPE. *

VER. 76 to 101.] It ought to be observed that here are three classes in this assembly. The first of men absolutely and avowedly dull, who naturally adhere to the Goddess, and are represented in the simile of the Bees about their Queen. The second involuntarily drawn to her, though not caring to own her influence; from ver. 81 to 90. The third, of such as, though not members of her state, yet advance her service by flattering Dulness, cultivating mistaken talents, patronizing vile scribblers, discouraging living merit, or setting up for wits, and men of taste in arts they understand not; from ver. 91 to 101. POPE. *

Patrons, who sneak from living worth to dead, 95
 With-hold the pension, and set up the head ;
 Or vest dull Flatt'ry in the sacred Gown ;
 Or give from fool to fool the Laurel crown.
 And (last and worst) with all the cant of wit,
 Without the soul, the Muse's Hypocrit. 100

There march'd the bard and blockhead, side by side,
 Who rhym'd for hire, and patroniz'd for pride.
 Narcissus, prais'd with all a Parson's pow'r,
 Look'd a white lilly sunk beneath a show'r.
 There mov'd Montalto with superior air ; 105
 His stretch'd-out arm display'd a Volume fair ;

Courtiers

REMARKS.

VER. 93. faîe to Phœbus,] Spoken of the ancient and true Phœbus ; not the French Phœbus, who hath no chosen Priests or Poets, but equally inspires any man that pleaseth to sing or preach. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 99, 100. And (last and worst) with all the cant of wit, Without the soul, the Muse's Hypocrit.]

In this division are reckoned up, 1. The Idolizers of Dulness in the Great.—2. Ill Judges.—3. Ill Writers.—4. Ill Patrons But the last and worst, as he justly calls him, is the Muse's Hypocrite, who is, as it were, the Epitome of them all. He who thinks the only end of Poetry is to amuse, and the only business of the Poet to be witty ; and consequently who cultivates only such trifling talents in himself, and encourages only such in others. *

VER. 103. Narcissus, prais'd] Means Dr. Middleton's laboured encomium on Lord Hervey in his dedication of the Life of Cicero. Had Mr. Pope ever read Dr. Warburton's dedication of his Essay on Prodigies, to Sir Robert Sutton ? WARTON.

VER. 105. There mov'd Montalto] Sir Thomas Hanmer.—B. To this character is subjoined a facetious note in the first impression : " An eminent person of quality, who was about to publish a very pompous edition of a great author, very much at his own expence indeed !" And the verses from 116 to 119 are explained

Courtiers and Patriots in two ranks divide,
 Thro' both he pass'd, and bow'd from side to side :
 But as in graceful act, with awful eye
 Compos'd he stood, bold Benson thrust him by :
 On two unequal crutches propt he came, 111
 Milton's on this, on that one Johnston's name.

The

REMARKS.

by the circumstance of Sir Thomas's edition of Shakespear coming from the Oxford press; they did not appear at first. Dr. Johnson, however, who delighted in contradiction, commends Hanmer, as eminently qualified for his undertaking. WAKEFIELD.

VER. 110. bold Benson] This man endeavoured to raise himself to Fame by erecting monuments, striking coins, setting up heads, and procuring translations, of Milton; and afterwards by as great passion for one Arthur Johnston, a Scotch physician's Version of the Psalms, of which he printed many fine Editions. See more of him, Book iii. ver. 325. POPE. *

VER. 112. Milton's on this,] Benson is here spoken of too contemptuously. He translated faithfully, if not very poetically, the second book of the Georgics, with useful notes; he printed elegant editions of Johnston's Psalms; he wrote a Discourse on Verification; he rescued his country from the disgrace of having no monument erected to the memory of Milton in Westminster-Abbey; he encouraged and urged Pitt to translate the Æneid; and he gave Dobson a thousand pounds for his Latin translation of Paradise Lost. Dobson had acquired great reputation by his translation of Prior's Solomon, the first book of which he finished when he was a scholar at Winchester College. He had not at that time, as he told me (for I knew him well), read Lucretius, which would have given a richness and force to his verses; the chief fault of which was a monotony, and want of variety of Virgilian pauses. Mr. Pope wished him to translate the Essay on Man; which he began to do, but relinquished on account of the impossibility of imitating its brevity in another language. He has avoided the monotony above mentioned in his Milton; which monotony was occasioned by translating a poem in rhyme. Bishop Hare, a capable judge, used to mention his Solomon as one of the

The decent Knight retir'd with sober rage,
 Withdrew his hand, and clos'd the pompous page.
 But (happy for him as the times went then) 115
 Appear'd Apollo's Mayor and Aldermen,

On

VARIATIONS.

VER. 114. "What! no respect, he cry'd, for SHAKESPEAR'S page?"

REMARKS.

the purest pieces of modern Latin poetry. Though he had so much felicity in translating, yet his original poems, of which I have seen many, were very feeble and flat, and contained no mark of genius. He had no great stock of general literature, and was by no means qualified to pronounce on what degree of learning Pope possessed; and I am surprized that Johnson should quote him, as saying, "I found Pope had more learning than I expected."

WARTON.

To the disgrace of the nation in general, and his friends and patrons in particular, Dobson died in great distress. BANNISTER.

VER. 113. The decent Knight] An eminent person, who was about to publish a very pompous Edition of a great Author at his own expence.

POPE. *

VER. 115. But (happy for him)] These four lines, of which the first is a very indifferent one, were not in the quarto edition of 1743, page 165: But were added on occasion of Sir Thomas Hanmer's edition, printed at Oxford in six large quarto volumes: which edition occasioned a violent quarrel betwixt Sir Thomas and Dr. Warburton, of which the reader may judge by perusing the two curious letters here annexed.

"Milden-hall near Newmarket,

"Dear Sir, Suffolk, October 28, 1742.

"I have much doubted with myself whether it were proper for me to return an answer to the favour of your Letter, till after hearing again from you or Dr. Shippen. There seem to arise some difficulties with respect to the design of printing a new edition of Shakespear, and I beg it may be laid aside, if you are not fully satisfied that some advantage may arise from it to the University; for I have no end in view to myself to make me desire it. I am satisfied there is no edition coming or likely

On whom three hundred gold-capt youths await,
To lug the pond'rous volume off in state.

When

REMARKS.

to come from Warburton, but it is a report raised to serve some little purpose or other, of which I see there are many on foot. I have reason to know that gentleman is very angry with me, for a cause of which I think I have no reason to be ashamed, or he to be proud. My acquaintance with him began upon an application from himself, and at his request the present bishop of Salisbury introduced him to me for this purpose only, as was then declared, that as he had many observations upon Shakespear then lying by him, over and above those printed in Theobald's book, he much desired to communicate them to me, that I might judge whether any of them were worthy to be added to those emendations which he understood I had long been making upon that author. I received his offer with all the civility I could: upon which a long correspondence began by letters, in which he explained his sense upon many passages, which sometimes I thought just, but mostly wild and out of the way. Afterwards he made a journey hither on purpose to see my books; he staid about a week with me, and had the inspection of them: and all this while I had no suspicion of any other design, in all the pains he took, but to perfect a correct text in Shakespear, of which he seemed very fond. But not long after, the views of interest began to shew themselves, several hints were dropt of the advantage he might receive from publishing the work thus corrected; but as I had no thoughts at all of making it public, so I was more averse to yield to it in such a manner as was likely to produce a paltry edition, by making it the means only of getting a greater sum of money by it. Upon this he flew into a great rage, and there is an end of the story; with which I have thought it best to make you acquainted, that, as you mention the working of his friends, you may judge the better of what you see and hear from them, and may make what use you please of the truth of facts, which I have now laid before you.

“As to my own particular, I have no aim to pursue in this affair: I propose neither honour, reward, or thanks, and should be very well pleased to have the books continue upon their shelf, in my own private closet. If it is thought they may be of use

or

When Dulnefs, fmiling—" Thus revive the Wits !
 But murder firft, and mince them all to bits ; 120
 As

REMARKS.

or pleasure to the public, I am willing to part with them out of my hands, and to add, for the honour of Shakefpear, fome decorations and embellifhments at my own expence. It will be an unexpected pleasure to me, if they can be made in any degree profitable to the Univerfity, to which I fhall always retain a gratitude, a regard, and reverence ; but that I may end as I began, I beg the favour of you, if upon more mature confideration among yourfelves, you fee reafon to difcourage you from proceeding in this affair, that you will give it over, and not look upon yourfelves to be the more obliged to profecute it from any fteps already taken with,

" Sir, your moft humble and obedient fervant,
 " THO. HANMER."

The Bifhop's ftri&tures on this charge, which were defigned to be printed in the Biographia Britannica, if the fheet had not been cancelled, are as follow :

" Sir Thomas Hanmer's Letter from Mildenhall to Oxford, Oct. 28, 1742, is one continued falfehood from beginning to end.

" It is falfe that my acquaintance with him began upon an application from me to him. It began on an application of the prefent bifhop of London to me, in behalf of Sir T. Hanmer ; and, as I underftood, at Sir T. Hanmer's defire. The thing fpeaks itfelf. It was publicly known that I had written notes on Shakefpear, becaufe part of them were printed ; few people knew that Sir T. Hanmer had : I certainly did not know ; nor, indeed, whether he was living or dead.

" The falfehood is ftill viler (becaufe it fculks only under an infinuation) that I made a journey to him to Mildenhall, without invitation ; whereas it was at his earneft and repeated request, as appears by his Letters, which I have ftill by me.

" It is falfe that the views of intereft began to fhew themfelves in me to this difinterefted gentleman. My repentment at Sir Thomas H.'s behaviour began on the following occafion : a bookfeller in London, of the beft reputation, had wrote me word, that Sir

As erst Medea (cruel, so to fave!)
A new Edition of old Æson gave;

Let

REMARKS.

Thomas Hanmer had been with him, to propose his printing an edition of Shakespear on the following conditions; of its being pompously printed with cuts (as it afterwards was at Oxford) at the expence of the said bookfeller, who, besides, should pay one hundred guineas, or some such sum, to a friend of his (Sir T. Hanmer's), who had transcribed the glossary for him. But the bookfeller, understanding that he made use of many of my notes, and that I knew nothing of the project, thought fit to send me this account. On which I wrote to Sir Th. Hanmer, upbraiding him with his behaviour, and demanding out of his hands all the Letters I had written to him on the subject; which he unwillingly complied with, after cavilling about the right of property in those Letters, for which he had (he said) paid the postage.

“When the bookfeller would not deal with him on these terms, he applied to the University of Oxford, and was at the expence of his purse in procuring cuts for his edition; and at the expence of his reputation in employing a number of my emendations on the text, without my knowledge or consent; and this behaviour was what occasioned Mr. Pope's perpetuating the memory of the Oxford edition of Shakespear in the Dunciad.

“This is a true and exact account of the whole affair, which I never thought worth while afterwards to complain of, but to the Bishop of London, at whose desire I lent Sir Thomas Hanmer my assistance; nor should ever have revived it, but for the publication of this scandalous Letter, sent from Oxford to this Philip Nichols, to be inserted in the Biographia Britannica.

“Jan. 29, 1761.

“W. GLOUCESTER.”

WARTON.

VER. 119. “Thus revive, &c.] The Goddess applauds the practice of tacking the obscure names of Persons not eminent in any branch of learning, to those of the most distinguished Writers; either by printing Editions of their works with impertinent alterations of their Text, as in the former instances; or by setting up Monuments disgraced with their own vile names and inscriptions, as in the latter.

POPE. *

Book IV. THE DUNCIAD. 279

Let standard-Authors, thus, like trophies born,
Appear more glorious as more hack'd and torn.
And you, my Critics! in the chequer'd shade, 125
Admire new light thro' holes yourselves have made.

Leave not a foot of verse, a foot of stone,
A Page, a Grave, that they can call their own;
But spread, my sons, your glory thin or thick,
On passive paper, or on solid brick. 130
So by each Bard an Alderman shall fit,
A heavy Lord shall hang at ev'ry Wit,

And

REMARKS.

VER. 122. old Æson] Of whom Ovid (very applicable to these restored authors), “Æson miratur, Diffimilemque animum subiit”— POPE. *

VER. 125. the chequer'd shade,] “Dancing in the chequer'd shade.” MILTON'S Allegro.

VER. 128. A Page, a Grave,] For what less than a Grave can be granted to a dead author? or what less than a Page can be afforded a living one? POPE. *

Pagina, not Pedisequus. A Page of a Book, not a Servant, Follower, or Attendant; no Poet having had a Page since the death of Mr. Thomas Durfey. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 131. So by each Bard an Alderman, &c.] Vide the Tombs of the Poets, Editio Westmonasteriensis. POPE. *

Alluding to the monument erected for Butler, the Author of Hudibras, by Alderman Barber. WARBURTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 126. Admire new light, &c.] “The Soul's dark cottage, batter'd and decay'd, Lets in new light, thro' chinks that time has made.”
WALLER.
WARBURTON.

And while on Fame's triumphal Car they ride,
Some Slave of mine be pinion'd to their side."

Now crowds on crowds around the Goddess prefs,
Each eager to present the first Address. 136

Dunce scorning Dunce beholds the next advance,

But Fop shews Fop superior complaisance.

When lo! a Spectre rose, whose index-hand
Held forth the Virtue of the dreadful wand; 140

His beaver'd brow a birchen garland wears,

Dropping with Infant's blood, and Mother's tears.

O'er ev'ry vein a shudd'ring horror runs;

Eton and Winton shake thro' all their Sons.

All

REMARKS.

VER. 132. A heavy LORD shall hang at ev'ry Wit,] Aristarchus thinks the common reading, LORD, not LOAD, right; and that the author himself had been struggling with, and but just shaken off his Load, when he wrote the following Epigram:

My LORD complains, that Pope, stark mad with gardens,
Has lopt three trees the value of three farthings:

"But he's my neighbour," cries the peer polite,

"And if he'll visit me, I'll wave my right."

What! on Compulsion? and against my Will,

A Lord's acquaintance? Let him file his Bill. *

The concluding line alludes to a famous one of Augustus Cæsar, in some gross verses.—The Lord is said to be his next neighbour, the then Lord Radnor. WARTON.

VER. 144. Eton and Winton shake thro' all their Sons.] Compare his Iliad, xvi. 672. Odyssæy, xi. 684. And for this and the next couplet the first edition gave the following:

"All

IMITATIONS.

VER. 142. Dropping with Infant's blood, &c.]

"First Moloch, horrid King, besmear'd with blood

Of human Sacrifice, and parents' tears." MILTON.

WARBURTON.

All Flesh is humbled, Westminster's bold race 145
 Shrink, and confess the Genius of the place :
 The pale Boy-Senator yet tingling stands,
 And holds his breeches close with both his hands.

Then thus. Since Man from beast by Words is known,
 Words are Man's province, Words we teach alone.
 When

REMARKS.

“ All flesh is humbled, youth's bold courage cools ;
 Each shudd'ring owns the genius of the schools.”

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 148. And holds his breeches] An effect of Fear, somewhat like this, is described in the viith Æneid, “ Contremuit nemus—

Et trepidæ matres pressere ad pectora natos ;”

nothing being so natural in any apprehension, as to lay close hold on whatever is supposed to be most in danger. But let it not be imagined the Author would insinuate these youthful Senators (though so lately come from school) to be under the undue influence of any Master.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 150. Words we teach alone.] Here is a gross misrepresentation of a fact, easily confuted by a great cloud of witnesses. When he made this assertion, our Poet must have been very ill-informed of what is constantly taught in our great schools. To read, to interpret, to translate the best poets, orators, and historians, of the best ages ; that is, those authors, “ that supply most axioms of prudence, most principles of moral truth, most examples of virtue and integrity, most materials for conversation ;” cannot be called confining youth to words alone, and keeping them out of the way of real knowledge. And as to plying the memory, and loading the brain, as in verse 157, it was the opinion of Milton, and is a practice in our great seminaries, “ that if passages from the heroic poems, orations, and tragedies of the ancients, were solemnly pronounced, with right accent and grace, they would endue the scholars even with the spirit and vigour of Demosthenes or Cicero, Euripides or Sophocles.” The illustrious names of Wyndham, Talbot, Murray, and Pulteney, which our Author

When Reason doubtful, like the Samian letter, 151
 Points him two ways, the narrower is the better.
 Plac'd at the door of Learning, youth to guide,
 We never suffer it to stand too wide.
 To ask, to guess, to know, as they commence,
 As Fancy opens the quick springs of Sense, 156
 We ply the Memory, we load the brain,
 Blind rebel Wit, and double chain on chain,
 Confine the thought, to exercise the breath;
 And keep them in the pale of Words till death. 160
 Whate'er the talents, or howe'er design'd,
 We hang one jingling padlock on the mind :

A Poet

REMARKS.

Author himself immediately adds, and which catalogue might be much enlarged with the names of many great statesmen, lawyers, and divines, past and present, are a strong confutation of this opprobrious and futile objection. Perhaps he adopted this false opinion from that idle book on education, which Locke disgraced himself by writing; who seems never to have read the second chapter of the first book of Quintilian on this subject; and which is as much superior in strength of reasoning, as it is in elegance of style, to the treatise of our great British philosopher.

WARTON.

VER. 151. like the Samian letter,] The letter Y, used by Pythagoras as an emblem of the different roads of Virtue and Vice.

“Et tibi quæ Samios diduxit litera ramos.” PERS. POPE. *

VER. 153. Plac'd at the door, &c.] This circumstance of the Genius Loci (with that of the Index-hand be'ore) seems to be an allusion to the Table of Cebes, where the Genius of Human Nature points out the road to be pursued by those just entering into life.

Ο δὲ γέρον ὁ ἄνω ἰσηκῶς, ἔχων χάριον τινα ἐν τῇ χειρὶ, καὶ τῇ ἐτέρᾳ ὡσπερ δεικνύων, τὸ, ἕτ' Δαίμων καλεῖται, &c. POPE. *

VER. 159. to exercise the breath;] By obliging them to get the classic poets by heart, which furnishes them with endless matter for Conversation and Verbal amusement for their whole lives. POPE. *

Book IV. THE DUNCIAD. 283

A Poet the first day he dips his quill ;
 And what the last ? a very Poet still.
 Pity ! the charm works only in our wall, 165
 Loft, loft too soon in yonder House or Hall.
 There truant WYNDHAM ev'ry Muse gave o'er,
 There TALBOT funk, and was a Wit no more !
 How sweet an Ovid, MURRAY was our boast !
 How many Martials were in PULT'NEY loft ! 170
 Else sure some Bard, to our eternal praise,
 In twice ten thousand rhyming nights and days,
 Had reach'd the Work, the All that mortal can ;
 And South beheld that Master-piece of Man.
 Oh (cry'd the Goddess) for some pedant Reign !
 Some gentle JAMES, to bless the land again ; 176
 To

REMARKS.

VER. 166. in yonder House or Hall.] Westminster-hall and the House of Commons. *

VER. 174. that Master-piece of Man.] Viz. an Epigram. The famous Dr. South used to declare that a perfect Epigram was as difficult a performance as an Epic Poem. And the Critics say, "an Epic Poem is the greatest work human nature is capable of." POPE. *

VER. 175. Oh (cry'd the Goddess), &c.] The matter under debate, is how to confine men to words, for life. The instructors of youth shew how well they do their parts ; but complain that when men come into the world they are apt to forget their learning, and turn themselves to useful knowledge. This was an evil that wanted to be redressed. And this the Goddess assures them will need a more extensive Tyranny than that of Grammar-schools. She therefore points out to them the remedy, in her wishes for arbitrary Power ; whose interest it being to keep men from the study of things, will encourage the propagation of words and sounds ; and, to make all sure, she wishes for another Pedant Monarch. The sooner to obtain so great a blessing, she is willing even for once

To stick the Doctor's Chair into the Throne,
Give law to Words, or war with Words alone,

Senates

REMARKS.

once to violate the fundamental principle of her politics, in having her sons taught at least one thing; but that which comprises all, the Doctrine of Divine Right.

Nothing can be juster than the observation here insinuated, that no branch of Learning thrives well under arbitrary Government but the verbal. The reasons are evident. It is unsafe under such Governments to cultivate the study of things, especially things of importance. Besides, when men have lost their public virtue, they naturally delight in trifles, if their private morals secure them from vice. Hence so great a cloud of Scholiasts and Grammarians so soon overspread Greece and Italy, when once those famous lights of the World had lost their Liberties. Another reason is the encouragement which arbitrary Governments give to the study of words, in order to busy and amuse active Geniuses, who might otherwise prove troublesome and inquisitive. Thus when Cardinal Richelieu had destroyed the poor remains of Gallic liberty, and made the supreme Court of Parliament merely ministerial, he instituted the French Academy, for the perfecting their language. What was said upon that occasion, by a brave Magistrate, when the letters patent of its erection came to be verified in the Parliament of Paris, deserves to be remembered: He told the assembly, that it put him in mind how an Emperor of Rome once treated his Senate; who, when he had deprived them of the direction of Public matters, sent a message to them in form, for their opinion about the best Sauce for a Turbot. *

VER. 176. Some gentle JAMES, &c.] Wilson tells us that this King, James the First, took upon himself to teach the Latin tongue to Car, Earl of Somers; and that Gondomar the Spanish Ambassador would speak false Latin to him, on purpose to give him the pleasure of correcting it, whereby he wrought himself into his good graces.

This great prince was the first who assumed the title of Sacred Majesty, which his loyal Clergy transfer'd from God to Him. "The principles of Passive Obedience and Non-resistance (says the Author of the Dissertation on Parties, Letter 8.), which before his time had skulk'd perhaps in some old Homily, were talked

Senates and Courts with Greek and Latin rule,
 And turn the Council to a Grammar School! 180
 For fure, if Dulnefs fees a grateful Day,
 'Tis in the fhade of Arbitrary Sway.
 O! if my fons may learn one earthly thing,
 Teach but that one, fufficient for a King ;

That

REMARKS.

talked, written, and preached into vogue in that inglorious reign." POPE. *

King James prevailed on Camden to alter some passages in the first part of his history, for which Thuanus reproached him.

WARTON.

VER. 181, 182. if Dulnefs fees a grateful Day,—'Tis in the fhade of Arbitrary Sway.] And grateful it is in Dulnefs to make this confession. I will not fay she alludes to that celebrated verfe of Claudian,

" nunquam Libertas gratior exftat

Quam fub Rege pio ;"

But this I will fay, that the words Liberty and Monarchy have been frequently confounded and miftaken one for the other, by the graveft authors. I fhould therefore conjecture, that the genuine reading of the forecited verfe was thus,

" nunquam Libertas gratior exftat

Quam fub Lege pia,"

and that Rege was the reading only of Dulnefs herfelf: And therefore she might allude to it. SCRIBLERUS.

I judge quite otherwife of this paffage: The genuine reading is Libertas and Rege: So Claudian gave it. But the error lies in the verb: It fhould be exit, not exftat, and then the meaning will be, that Liberty was never loft, or went away with fo good a grace, as under a good King: it being without doubt a tenfold fhame to lofe it under a bad one.

This further leads me to animadvert upon a moft grievous piece of nonfence to be found in all the Editions of the Author of the Dunciad himfelf. A moft capital one it is, and owing to the confufion mentioned above by Scriblerus, of the two words Liberty and Monarchy. Effay on Crit.

" Nature

That which my Priests, and mine alone, maintain,
 Which, as it dies, or lives, we fall, or reign : 186
 May you, my Cam, and Isis, preach it long !
 “ The RIGHT DIVINE of Kings to govern wrong.”

Prompt at the call, around the Goddess roll
 Broad hats, and hoods, and caps, a fable shoal :
 Thick and more thick the black blockade extends,
 A hundred head of Aristotle's friends. 192
 Nor wert thou, Isis ! wanting to the day,
 [Tho' Christ-church long kept prudishly away.]

Each

REMARKS.

“ Nature, like Monarchy, is but restrain'd
 By the same Laws herself at first ordain'd.”

Who sees not, it should be, Nature, like Liberty ? Correct it therefore repugnantibus omnibus (even though the Author himself should oppugn) in all the impressions which have been, or shall be, made of his works. BENTLEY. POPE. *

VER. 183. O ! if my sons may learn] The doctrines of true Whiggism, as it is called, were never placed in a stronger light, or set off with more forcible language, than in this and the five following lines. What will the disciples of Hobbes or Filmer, say to this passage ? WARTON.

VER. 189. Prompt at the call,—Aristotle's friends.] The Author, with great propriety, hath made these, who were so prompt, at the call of Dulness, to become preachers of the Divine Right of Kings, to be the friends of Aristotle ; for this philosopher, in his Politics, hath laid it down as a principle, that some men were by nature made to serve, and others to command. WARBUKTON. *

VER. 192. of Aristotle's friends.] Let those who wantonly and ignorantly condemn the Philosophy of Aristotle, carefully read the truly learned treatise of the late James Harris esq. entitled, Philosophical Arrangements ; where they may see in what manner the preceptor of Alexander the Great arranged his pupil's ideas, so that they might not cause confusion for want of accurate disposition. WARTON.

Each staunch Polemic, stubborn as a rock, 195
 Each fierce Logician, still expelling Locke,
 Came

REMARKS.

VER. 194. [Tho' Christ-church] This line is doubtless spurious and foisted in by the impertinence of the Editor; and accordingly we have put it between Hooks. For I affirm this College came as early as any other, by its proper Deputies; nor did any College pay Homage to Dulness in its whole Body. BENTLEY. POPE. *

VER. 196. [still expelling Locke,] In the year 1703 there was a meeting of the heads of the University of Oxford to censure Mr. Locke's Essay on Human Understanding, and to forbid the reading it. See his Letters in the last Edit. of his works.

POPE. *

Such was the fate of this new Philosophy at Oxford. The new Theology of Erasmus met with pretty much the same treatment, a Century or two before, in the University of Cambridge. See Dr. Knight's Life of Erasmus, p. 137.—But our obnoxious Essayist had given scandal to the Scholastic spirit of Anthony Wood, the famed Oxford Historian, long before; who, in the Journal of his own life, has furnished us with this curious anecdote. "April 23d, 1663, I began a Course of Chymistry, [in Oxford,] under the noted Chemist and Rosicrucian, Peter Sthael of Strasburg in Royal Prussia. The club consisted of ten at least, whereof was JOHN LOCK, of Christ Church, afterwards a noted Writer. This John Lock was a man of a turbulent spirit, clamorous, and never contented. The club wrote, and took notes from the mouth of their Master: but the said John Lock scorned to do it: so that while every man besides were writing, he would be prating and troublesome." *

Whatever might have been the case in the year 1703, certain I am, that Locke's Essay has been universally read and recommended at Oxford, for above fifty years last past. WARTON.

VER. 196. [Locke,] I could never learn that Locke was expelled the University. He was deprived of his studentship of Christ-church for being privy to the designs of Lord Shaftesbury against the Government; and if we consider the nature of the offence, we shall have reason to admire the mildness of the punishment.

BANNISTER.

They

Came whip and spur, and dash'd through thin and thick
 On German Crouzaz, and Dutch Burgerfdyck.
 As many quit the streams that murm'ring fall
 To lull the sons of Marg'ret and Clare-hall, 200
 Where Bentley late tempestuous wont to sport
 In troubled waters, but now sleeps in Port.
 Before them march'd that awful Aristareh ;
 Plow'd was his front with many a deep Remark :
 His Hat, which never vail'd to human pride, 205
 Walker with rev'rence took, and lay'd aside.

Low

REMARKS.

They who would wish to see our Universities most ably and eloquently vindicated, must consult Dr. Par's note in his celebrated Spittal Sermon.

VER. 198. Crouzaz,] Author of a very absurd and abusive Commentary on the Essay on Man. WARBURTON. *

Ibid. On German Crouzaz, and Dutch Burgerfdyck.] There seems to be an improbability that the Doctors and Heads of Houses should ride on horseback, who, of late days, being gouty or unwieldy, have kept their coaches. But these are horses of great strength, and fit to carry any weight, as their German and Dutch extraction may manifest; and very famous we may conclude, being honoured with Names, as were the horses Pegasus and Bucephalus. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 199. the streams] The river Cam, running by the walls of these Colleges, which are particularly famous for their skill in Disputation. POPE. *

VER. 202. sleeps in Port.] viz. "Now retired into harbour after the tempests that had long agitated his society." So Scriblerus. But the learned Scipio Maffei understands it of a certain Wine called Port, from Oporto, a city of Portugal, of which this professor invited him to drink abundantly. SCIP. MAFF. De Computationibus Academicis. POPE. *

VER. 203. Before them march'd, &c.] This Portrait of the redoubted Bentley, is most excellent painting, and highly finished.

Low bow'd the rest : He, kingly, did but nod ;
 So upright Quakers please both Man and God.
 Mistrefs ! dismiss that rabble from your throne :
 Avaunt—is Aristarchus yet unknown ? 210
 Thy mighty Scholiast, whose unweary'd pains
 Made Horace dull, and humbled Milton's strains.
 Turn what they will to Verse, their toil is vain,
 Critics like me shall make it Prose again. 214

Roman

REMARKS.

VER. 205. His Hat, &c.—So upright Quakers please both Man and God.] The Hat-worship, as the Quakers call it, is an abomination to that sect: yet, where it is necessary to pay that respect to man (as in the Courts of Justice and Houses of Parliament) they have, to avoid offence, and yet not violate their conscience, permitted other people to uncover them. POPE. *

VER. 206. Walker with rev'rence took,] He was Bentley's constant friend in College. B. This appears sufficiently from the records of the controversies alluded to in ver. 201, 202.

WAKEFIELD.

VER. 210. Aristarchus] A famous Commentator, and Corrector of Homer, whose name hath been frequently used to signify a complete Critic. The compliment paid by our author to this eminent Professor, in applying to him so great a name, was the reason that he hath omitted to comment on this part which contains his own praises. We shall therefore supply that loss to our best ability. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 212. humbled Milton's strains.] This is a fair object of satire, because it concerns every person of taste and literature.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 207. —He, kingly, did but nod ;] Milton,

———“ He, kingly, from his State

“ Declin'd not”——

WARBURTON.

VER. 210. —is Aristarchus yet unknown ?]

———“ Sic notus Ulysses !”

VIRG.

“ Dost thou not feel me, Rome ?”

BEN JOHNSON.

WARBURTON.

Roman and Greek Grammarians ! know your Better :
 Author of something yet more great than Letter :
 While tow'ring o'er your Alphabet, like Saul,
 Stands our Digamma, and o'ertops them all.

'Tis true, on Words is still our whole debate,
 Dispute of Me or Te, of aut or at, 220
 To found or sink in cano, O or A,
 Or give up Cicero to C or K.
 Let Freind affect to speak as Terence spoke,
 And Alfop never but like Horace joke :

From

REMARKS.

VER. 214. Critics like me] This is the line in which, contrary to nature, character, and decorum, Bentley is made to condemn and ridicule himself, and his own labours. Besides, his Horace ought not to be ranked with his Milton, as containing many acute remarks and happy emendations ; and therefore did not make Horace dull.

WARTON.

VER. 217, 218. While tow'ring o'er your Alphabet, like Saul, —Stands our Digamma,] Alludes to the boasted restoration of the Eolic Digamma, in his long projected Edition of Homer. He calls it something more than Letter, from the enormous figure it would make among the other letters, being one Gamma set upon the shoulders of another.

POPE. *

VER. 220. Dispute of Me or Te, of aut or at,] It is remarkable that there is an old Greek epigram of Herodicus, quoted by Athenæus in his fifth book, page 112. Basileæ apud J. Valderum, 1635, Folio ; ridiculing verbal criticism, in a manner exactly resembling these lines of Pope, which it is not at all probable he had ever read. The two second lines follow :

“ Γαμβόμυκες, μονοσύλλαβοι ὅσι μέρηλε,
 Το σφίν, καὶ σφωίν, καὶ το μίν, ἢδε τὸ νίν.”

WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 215. Roman and Greek Grammarians, &c.] Imitated from Propertius speaking of the Æneid.

“ *Cedite, Romani scriptores, cedite Graii !
 Nescio quid majus nascitur Iliade.*”

WARBURTON.

Book IV. THE DUNCIAD. 291

From me, what Virgil, Pliny may deny, 225

Manilius or Solinus shall supply :

For Attic Phrase in Plato let them seek,

I poach in Suidas for unlicens'd Greek.

In

REMARKS.

VER. 223, 224. Freind—Alfop] Dr. Robert Freind, master of Westminster-school, and canon of Christ-church—Dr. Anthony Alfop, a happy imitator of the Horatian style. POPE. *

VER. 226. Manilius or Solinus] Some Critics having had it in their choice to comment either on Virgil or Manilius, Pliny or Solinus, have chosen the worse author, the more freely to display their critical talents. POPE. *

VER. 228. &c. Suidas, Gellius, Stobæus] The first a Dictionary-writer of impertinent facts and barbarous words; the second a minute Critic; the third a collector, who gave his Common-place book to the public, where we happen to find much Mince-meat of good old Authors. POPE. *

All these three writers abound in useful and elegant remarks, and in facts, which, but for their collections, would have been lost and unknown; and therefore deserved not this ridicule, especially from a poet who, as Dr. Jortin observes, knew very little of their works. Burman, Kulter, and Wasse, mentioned verse 237, were men of real and useful erudition. WARTON.

VER. 228, 231. I poach in Suidas for unlicens'd Greek—

What Gellius, or Stobæus has'd before,]

On which verses thus Pope and Warburton: "The first a dictionary writer, of impertinent facts and barbarous words, &c."—Now, if we should deduct from the compilation of Suidas all his chronological, historical, and biographical communications, which are very copious and important, as they consist of extracts from the best authors of antiquity; and should leave only his philological information with it's concomitant examples; a mass of literature would remain, of much the same value as Johnson's dictionary, if a general wreck of English authors should be produced by casualty and time: but how inestimably valuable such a repository would then be, it is easy for any man to discover. Considering, therefore, this strange and ignorant decision of Warburton, what can possibly be conceived more unseasonable and out of place, than Toup's critical epistle, as addressed to this prelate? WAKEFIELD.

In ancient Sense if any needs will deal,
 Be sure I give them Fragments, not a Meal ; 230
 What Gellius or Stobæus hash'd before,
 Or chew'd by blind old Scholiasts o'er and o'er.
 The critic Eye, that microscope of Wit,
 Sees hairs and pores, examines bit by bit :
 How parts relate to parts, or they to whole, 235
 The body's harmony, the beaming soul,
 Are things which Kuster, Burman, Waffe shall see,
 When Man's whole frame is obvious to a Flea.

Ah, think not, Mistress! more true Dulness lies
 In Folly's Cap, than Wisdom's grave disguise. 240
 Like buoys, that never sink into the flood,
 On Learning's surface we but lie and nod.
 Thine is the genuine head of many a house,
 And much Divinity without a Noûç.

Nor

REMARKS.

VER. 232. Or chew'd by blind old Scholiasts o'er and o'er.] These men taking the same things eternally from the mouth of one another. POPE. *

VER. 239, 240. Ah, think not, Mistress! &c.—In Folly's Cap, &c.] By this it appears, that the Dunces and Fops, mentioned ver. 139, 140. had a contention for the Goddess's favour on this great day. Those got the start; but These make it up by their Spokesman in the next speech. It seems as if Aristarchus here first saw him advancing with his fair Pupil. SCRIBLERUS. *

VER. 243. Thine is the genuine] It has been suggested that Dr. Warburton inserted some lines of his own composition in this fourth book of the Dunciad, which the poet wrote at his earnest request; and these two verses, as containing some common cant words peculiar to the university, are mentioned as some of them: As also the following,

" As

Book IV. THE DUNCIAD. 293

Nor could a BARROW work on ev'ry block, 245

Nor has one ATTERBURY spoil'd the flock.

See! still thy own, the heavy Canon roll,

And Metaphysic smokes involve the Pole.

For

REMARKS.

“ As erst Medea cruel so to save,
A new Edition of old Æson gave.”

And the calling the members of the University of Oxford,

“ Apollo's May'r and Aldermen,” is said to be one of Dr. Warburton's witticisms. For the truth of this assertion I cannot vouch. WARTON.

VER. 244. And much Divinity without a Νῆς.] A word much affected by the learned Aristarchus in common conversation, to signify Genius or natural acumen. But this passage has a farther view: Νῆς was the Platonic term for Mind, or the first cause; and that system of Divinity is here hinted at which terminates in blind Nature, without a Νῆς: such as the Poet afterwards describes (speaking of the dream of one of these later Platonists),

Or that bright Image to our Fancy draw,

Which Theocles in raptur'd Vision saw,

That Nature——— &c.

POPE. *

VER. 245, 246. Barrow, Atterbury] Isaac Barrow, Master of Trinity; Francis Atterbury, Dean of Christ-church; both great Geniuses and eloquent Preachers; one more conversant in the sublime Geometry, the other in classical Learning; but who equally made it their care to advance the polite Arts in their several Societies. POPE. *

No compositions can be more different than the sermons of these two eminent divines. If their be more eloquence and taste in the discourses of Atterbury, there is certainly more matter, more penetration, more knowledge of human nature, in those of Barrow.

WARTON!

VER. 245. Nor could a Barrow work on ev'ry block.] An allusion to the Latin proverb: “ Non ex quovis ligno fit Mercurius.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 247. the heavy Canon] Canon here, if spoken of Artillery, is in the plural number; if of the Canons of the House, in the singular, and meant only of one: in which case I suspect the Pole

For thee we dim the eyes, and stuff the head
 With all such reading as was never read : 250
 For thee explain a thing till all men doubt it,
 And write about it, Goddeſs, and about it :
 So ſpins the ſilk-worm ſmall its ſlender ſtore,
 And labours till it clouds itſelf all o'er.
 What tho' we let ſome better ſort of fool 255
 Thrid ev'ry ſcience, run through ev'ry ſchool ?
 Never by tumbler through the hoops was ſhown
 Such ſkill in paſſing all, and touching none.
 He may indeed (if ſober all this time)
 Plague with Diſpute, or perſecute with Rhyme. 260
 We

REMARKS.

to be a falſe reading, and that it ſhould be the Poll, or Head of that Canon. It may be objected, that this is a mere Paronomafia or Pun. But what of that? Is any figure of Speech more appoſite to our gentle Goddeſs, or more frequently uſed by her and her Children, eſpecially of the Univerſity? Doubtleſs it better ſuits the Character of Dulneſs, yea of a Doctor, than that of an Angel; yet Milton feared not to put a conſiderable quantity into the mouths of his. It hath indeed been obſerved, that they were the Devil's Angels, as if he did it to ſuggeſt that the Devil was the Author as well of falſe Wit, as of falſe Religion, and that the Father of Lies was alſo the Father of Puns. But this is idle: It muſt be owned to be a Chriſtian practice; uſed in the primitive times by ſome of the Fathers, and in the latter by moſt of the Sons of the Church; till the debauched reign of Charles the ſecond, when the ſhameful Paſſion for Wit overthrew every thing: and even then the beſt Writers admitted it, provided it was obſcene, under the name of the Double entendre.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 257. Never by tumbler] Theſe two verſes are verbatim from an epigram of Dr. Evans, of St. John's College, Oxford; given to my father twenty years before the Dunciad was written. The Parentheſis, in v. 259, (if ſober all this time,) is a poor expletive. WARTON.

We only furnish what he cannot use,
 Or wed to what he must divorce, a Muse :
 Full in the midst of Euclid dip at once,
 And petrify a Genius to a Dunce :
 Or set on Metaphysic ground to prance, 265
 Show all his paces, not a step advance.
 With the same CEMENT, ever sure to bind,
 We bring to one dead level every mind.
 Then take him to devellop, if you can,
 And hew the Block off, and get out the Man. 270
 But wherefore waste I words? I see advance
 Whore, Pupil, and lac'd Governor from France.

Walker !

REMARKS.

VER. 264, petrify a Genius] Those who have no Genius, employed in works of imagination; those who have, in abstract sciences. POPE. *

VER. 266. not a step advance.] He has condescended to borrow this illustration on metaphysicians, from Lord Hervey's Observations on Alciphron. WARTON

VER. 267. With the same Cement,] A cement bringing to a level, is not a pure metaphor: and take him to devellop, v. 269. is hard. WARTON.

VER. 270, And hew the Block off,] A notion of Aristotle, that there was originally in every block of marble, a Statue, which would appear on the removal of the superfluous parts. POPE. *

VER. 272. lac'd Governor] Why lac'd? Because Gold and Silver are necessary trimming to denote the dress of a person of rank; and the Governor must be supposed so in foreign countries, to be admitted into courts and other places of fair reception. But how comes Aristarchus to know at sight that this Governor came from France? Know? Why, by his laced coat.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

Ibid. Whore, Pupil, and lac'd Governor] Some Critics have objected to the order here, being of opinion that the Governor should have the preference before the Whore, if not before the Pupil:

Walker! our hat—nor more he deign'd to say,
But, stern as Ajax' spectre, strode away.

In flow'd at once a gay embroider'd race, 275
And titt'ring puff'd the Pedants off the place:
Some would have spoken, but the voice was drown'd
By the French horn, or by the op'ning hound.
The first came forwards, with an easy mien,
As if he saw St. James's and the Queen. 280
When thus th' attendant Orator begun,
Receive, great Empress! thy accomplish'd Son:

Thine

REMARKS.

Pupil: But were he so placed, it might be thought to insinuate that the Governor led the Pupil to the Whore: and were the Pupil placed first, he might be supposed to lead the Governor to her. But our impartial Poet, as he is drawing their picture, represents them in the order in which they are generally seen; namely, the Pupil between the Whore and the Governor; but placeth the Whore first, as she usually governs both the other. POPE. *

Ibid. Whore, Pupil,] Meaning the late Duke of Kingston, and his celebrated mistress, Mad. De La Touche. WARTON.

VER. 274. stern as Ajax' spectre, strode away.] See Homer, Odyss. xi. where the Ghost of Ajax turns sullenly from Ulysses the Traveller, who had succeeded against him in the dispute for the arms of Achilles. There had been the same contention between the Travelling, and the University Tutor, for the spoils of our young heroes; and fashion adjudged it to the former; so that this might well occasion the sullen dignity in departure, which Longinus so much admired. SCRIBLERUS. *

VER. 276. And titt'ring puff'd, &c.] HOR.

“ Rideat et pulset lasciva decentius ætas.” POPE. *

VER. 280. As if he saw St. James's] Reflecting on the disrespectful and indecent Behaviour of several forward young persons in the Presence, so offensive to all serious men, and to none more than the good Scriblerus. POPE. *

Thine from the birth, and sacred from the rod,
 A dauntless infant! never scar'd with God.
 The Sire saw, one by one, his Virtues wake: 285
 The Mother begg'd the blessing of a Rake.
 Thou gav'st that Ripeness, which so soon began,
 And ceas'd so soon, he ne'er was Boy, nor Man,
 Thro' School and College, thy kind cloud o'er-cast,
 Safe and unseen the young Æneas past: 290
 Thence bursting glorious, all at once let down,
 Stunn'd with his giddy Larum half the town.
 Intrepid then, o'er seas and lands he flew:
 Europe he saw, and Europe saw him too.

There

REMARKS.

VER. 281. th' attendant Orator] The Governor above-said. The Poet gives him no particular name; being unwilling, I presume, to offend or do injustice to any, by celebrating one only with whom this character agrees, in preference to so many who equally deserve it. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 290. unseen the young Æneas past: Thence bursting glorious,] See Virg. Æneid. i.

“ At Venus obscuro gradientes aëre sepsit,
 Et multo nebulæ circum Dea fudit amictu,
 Cernere ne quis eos;—1. neu quis contingere possit;
 2. Molirive moram;—aut 3. veniendi poscere causas.”

Where he enumerates the causes why his mother took this care of him: to wit, 1. that no body might touch or correct him: 2. might stop or detain him: 3. examine him about the progress he had made, or so much as guess why he came there. POPE. *

VER. 294. Europe he saw,] The pernicious effects of too early travelling are here ridiculed and exposed with equal good sense and charming poetry. WARTON.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 284. A dauntless infant! never scar'd with God.]

— “ sine Dis animosus Infans.” HOR.

WARBURTON.

There all thy gifts and graces we display, 295
 Thou, only thou, directing all our way!
 To where the Seine, obsequious as she runs,
 Pours at great Bourbon's feet her filken fons;
 Or Tyber, now no longer Roman, rolls,
 Vain of Italian Arts, Italian Souls: 300
 To happy Convents, bosom'd deep in vines,
 Where slumber Abbots, purple as their wines:
 To Isles of fragrance, lilly-silver'd vales,
 Diffusing languor in the panting gales:
 To lands of finging, or of dancing slaves, 305
 Love-whisp'ring woods, and lute-refounding waves.
 But

REMARKS.

VER. 301. To happy Convents,] I cannot forbear saying, though indeed every reader of taste will perceive the thing, that Pope has never written, nor indeed does our language afford, six more delicious lines. The three compound epithets, which are more in number than he ever has used so near each other, have a fine effect, and are most happily constructed. So also is greatly-daring, in line 318. Ver. 302, Abbots, purple as their wines, is from Rousseau the Poet.

WARTON.

VER. 303. lilly-silver'd vales,] Tuberoses.

WARBURTON.

VER. 305. To lands of— dancing slaves,] In the year 1413, when the city of Paris was in the utmost desolation, in the murders and proscriptions of the Great, by the uncontrouled fury of a mad Populace, who had destroyed one half of the Court, and had kept the other half, with the King and Dauphin, Prisoners in the Palace, devoted to destruction. At this dreadful juncture, the insolence of one Jacquville, the Captain of the Mob, has been the occasion of bringing down to us a circumstance very declarative of the singular temper of this gay Nation. As that Fellow, with his Guards at his heels, was going his rounds, to see that the work of ruin went on without interruption, when he came to the Palace he went abruptly up into the apartments, where he found the Dauphin and the principal Lords and Ladies

of

But chief her shrine where naked Venus keeps,
 And Cupids ride the Lion of the Deeps ;
 Where, eas'd of Fleets, the Adriatic main
 Wafts the smooth Eunuch and enamour'd swain.
 Led by my hand, he faunter'd Europe round, 311
 And gather'd ev'ry Vice on Christian ground ;
 Saw ev'ry Court, heard ev'ry King declare
 His royal Sense, of Op'ras or the Fair ;
 The Stews and Palace equally explor'd, 315
 Intrigu'd with glory, and with spirit whor'd ;
 Try'd all hors-d'œuvres, all liqueurs defin'd,
 Judicious drank, and greatly-daring din'd ;
 Dropt the dull lumber of the Latin store,
 Spoil'd his own language, and acquir'd no more ;
 All Classic learning lost on Classic ground ; 321
 And last turn'd Air, the Echo of a Sound !

See

REMARKS.

of the Court dancing, as in the midst of Peace and Security : on which, with the air of a Cato, he reproached them for the levity of their behaviour, at a time when the rest of the Court were languishing in the Dungeons of the Common Prisons.

WARBURTON.

VER. 308. And Cupids ride the Lion of the Deeps ;] The winged Lion, the Arms of Venice. This Republic heretofore the most considerable in Europe, for her Naval Force and the extent of her Commerce ; now illustrious for her Carnivals. POPE. *

VER. 313. ev'ry King declare] Another of his many sarcasms on kings. Ver. 316. for intriguing with glory, see his friend Lord Chesterfield's Letters. WARTON.

VER. 318. greatly-daring din'd ;] It being indeed no small risque to eat through those extraordinary compositions, whose disguised ingredients are generally unknown to the guests, and highly inflammatory and unwholesome. POPE. *

See now, half-cur'd, and perfectly well-bred,
 With nothing but a Solo in his head ;
 As much Estate, and Principle, and Wit, 325
 As Janfen, Fleetwood, Cibber shall think fit ;
 Stol'n from a Duel, follow'd by a Nun,
 And, if a Borough chuse him not, undone ;
 See, to my country happy I restore
 This glorious Youth, and add one Venus more. 330
 Her too receive (for her my soul adores)
 So may the sons of sons of sons of whores,

Prop

REMARKS.

VER. 324. With nothing but a Solo in his head ;] With nothing but a Solo? Why, if it be a Solo, how should there be any thing else? Palpable tautology! Read boldly an Opera, which is enough of conscience for such a head as has lost all its Latin.

BENTLEY. POPE. *

VER. 326. Janfen, Fleetwood, Cibber,] Three very eminent persons, all Managers of Plays; who, though not Governors by profession, had, each in his way, concerned themselves in the Education of Youth: and regulated their Wits, their Morals, or their Finances, at that period of their age which is the most important, their entrance into the polite world. Of the last of these, and his Talents for this end, see Book i. ver. 199, &c.

POPE. *

VER. 328. And, if a Borough chuse him not,] A severe stroke on some parts of the English Parliament.

WARTON.

VER. 331. Her too receive, &c.] This confirms what the learned Scriblerus advanced in his note on ver. 272, that the Governor, as well as the Pupil, had particular interest in this Lady.

POPE. *

IMITATIONS.

VER. 332. So may the sons of sons, &c.]

“ Et nati natorum, et qui nascuntur ab illis.” VIRG.

WARBURTON.

Prop thine, O Emprefs! like each neighbour Throne,
And make a long Posterity thy own.

Pleas'd, she accepts the Hero and the Dame, 335
Wraps in her Veil, and frees from sense of Shame.

Then look'd, and saw a lazy, lolling fort,
Unseen at Church, at Senate, or at Court,
Of ever-littlefs Loit'ers, that attend
No Cause, no Trust, no Duty, and no Friend. 340

Thee too, my Paridel! she mark'd thee there,
Stretch'd on the rack of a too easy chair,
And heard thy everlasting yawn confefs
The Pains and Penalties of Idlenefs.
She pity'd! but her Pity only fhed 345
Benigner influence on thy nodding head.

But Annius, crafty Seer, with ebon wand,
And well-difsembled em'rald on his hand,

Falfe

REMARKS.

VER. 333. like each neighbour Throne,] A line fomewhat obfcure; but feeming to contain a very extenfive piece of fatire. WARTON.

VER. 341. Thee too, my Paridel!] The Poet feems to fpeak of this young gentleman with great affection. The name is taken from Spenfer, who gives it to a wandering courtly 'Squire, that travelled about for the fame reafon, for which many young Squires are now fond of travelling, and efpecially to Paris. POPE. *

VER. 347. Annius,] The name taken from Annius the Monk of Viterbo, famous for many Impofitions and Forgeries of ancient manuscripts

IMITATIONS.

VER. 342. Stretch'd on the rack—
And heard, &c.]

“ Sedet, æternumque fedebit,
Infelix Thefeus, Phlegyasque miferimus omnes
Admonet”——

VIRG.
WARBURTON.

False as his Gems, and canker'd as his Coins,
 Came, cramm'd with capon, from where Pollio dines.
 Soft, as the wily Fox is seen to creep, 351
 Where bask on funny banks the simple sheep,
 Walk round and round, now prying here, now there,
 So he ; but pious, whisper'd first his pray'r.

Grant, gracious Goddefs, grant me still to cheat !
 O may thy cloud still cover the deceit ! 356
 Thy choicer mists on this assembly shed,
 But pour them thickest on the noble head.
 So shall each youth, assisted by our eyes,
 See other Cæsars, other Homers rise ; 360
 Thro'

REMARKS.

manuscripts and inscriptions, which he was prompted to by mere Vanity ; but our Annius had a more substantial motive. POPE. *

The sudden appearance of this character, whom we never heard of before, makes this passage very obscure. By Annius, was meant Sir Andrew Fountaine. WARTON.

VER. 350. from where Pollio dines.] This seems more obscure than almost any other passage in the whole. Perhaps he meant the Prince of Wales's dinners.

VER. 353. Walk round and round,] Evidently suggested by Milton's simile of Satan first entering into Paradise.

VER. 355. still to cheat,] Some read skill, but this is frivolous ; for Annius hath that skill already ; or if he had not, skill were not wanting to cheat such persons. BENTLEY. POPE. *

IMITATIONS.

VER. 355. ——— grant me still to cheat !

O may thy cloud still cover the deceit !]

“ ——— Da, pulchra Laverna,

Da mihi fallere——

Noctem peccatis et fraudibus objice nubem.” HOR.

WARBURTON.

Thro' twilight Ages hunt th' Athenian fowl,
 Which Chalcis, Gods; and mortals call an Owl;
 Now see an Attys, now a Cecrops clear,
 Nay, Mahomet! the Pigeon at thine ear;
 Be rich in ancient brafs, tho' not in gold, 365
 And keep his Lares, though his house be fold;
 To heedless Phœbe his fair bride postpone,
 Honour a Syrian Prince above his own;
 Lord of an Otho, if I vouch it true;
 Blest in one Niger, till he knows of two. 370
 Mummius o'erheard him; Mummius, Fool-re-nown'd,
 Who like his Cheops stinks above the ground,

Fierce

REMARKS.

VER. 361. hunt th' Athenian fowl,] The Owl stamped on the reverse on the ancient money of Athens.

“Which Chalcis Gods, and Mortals call an Owl,”
 is the verse by which Hobbes renders that of Homer,

Χαλκίδα κικλήσκουσιν Θεοί, ἄνδρες δὲ Κύμινδιν. POPE. *

VER. 363. Attys and Cecrops.] The first King of Athens, of whom it is hard to suppose any Coins are extant; but not so improbable as what follows, that there should be any of Mahomet, who forbid all Images; and the story of whose Pigeon was a monkish fable. Nevertheless one of these Annius's made a counterfeit medal of that Impostor, now in the possession of a learned Nobleman. POPE. *

VER. 364. Nay, Mahomet!] The circumstance of Mahomet professing to receive his inspiration from Heaven through the means of a Pigeon, is well known.

VER. 367. To heedless Phæbe his fair bride postpone,— Lord of an Otho,]

A trivial variation from himself, in his Epistle to Addison:

“*And Curio, restless by the fair-one's side,
 Sighs for an Otho, and neglects his bride.*”

WAKEFIELD.

Fierce as a startled Adder, swell'd, and faid,
 Rattling an ancient Sistrum at his head :
 Speak'st thou of Syrian Princes ? Traitor base !
 Mine, Goddefs ! mine is all the horned race. 376
 True,

REMARKS.

VER. 371. Mummius] This name is not merely an allusion to the Mummies he was so fond of, but probably referred to the Roman General of that name, who burned Corinth, and committed the curious Statues to the Captain of a Ship, assuring him, " that if any were lost or broken, he should procure others to be made in their stead : " by which it should seem (whatever may be pretended) that Mummius was no Virtuoso. POPE. *

Who, or from whence, was Mummius ? we know as little of him, thus abruptly brought out, as of Annius in the preceding passage, ver. 347. It is painful, but necessary, to make an observation on such a fault in our Poet. To say the name alluded to Egyptian Mummies, is frigid enough ! I have been lately informed, that by Mummius was meant Dr. Mead, a man too learned and too liberal to be thus satirized. WARTON.

Ibid. — Fool-renown'd,] A compound epithet in the Greek manner, renown'd by fools, or renown'd for making fools. POPE. *

VER. 372. Cheops] A King of Egypt, whose body was certainly to be known, as being buried alone in his Pyramid, and is therefore more genuine than any of the Cleopatra's. This Royal Mummy, being stolen by a wild Arab, was purchased by the Consul of Alexandria, and transmitted to the Museum of Mummius ; for proof of which he brings a passage in Sandys's Travels ; where that accurate and learned Voyager assures us that he saw the Sepulchre empty, which agrees exactly (saith he) with the time of the theft above-mentioned.—But he omits to observe that Herodotus tells us it was empty in his time. POPE. *

VER. 375. Speak'st thou of Syrian Princes ? &c.] The strange story following, which may be taken for a fiction of the Poet, is justified by a true relation in Spon's Voyages. Vaillant (who wrote the History of the Syrian Kings, as it is to be found on medals) coming from the Levant (where he had been collecting various coins), and being pursued by a Corsaire of Sallee, swallowed down twenty gold medals. A sudden Bourasque freed him from

True, he had wit, to make their value rise;
 From foolish Greeks to steal them, was as wise;
 More glorious yet, from barb'rous hands to keep,
 When Sallee Rovers chac'd him on the deep. 380
 Then taught by Hermes, and divinely bold,
 Down his own throat he risqu'd the Grecian gold,
 Receiv'd each Demi-God, with pious care,
 Deep in his Entrails—I rever'd them there,
 I bought them, shrouded in that living shrine, 385
 And, at their second birth, they issue mine.

Witness great Ammon! by whose horns I swore,
 (Reply'd soft Annius,) this our paunch before

Still

REMARKS.

from the Rover, and he got safe to land with the medals in his belly. On his road to Avignon he met two Physicians, of whom he demanded assistance. One advised purgations, the other vomits. In this uncertainty he took neither, but pursued his way to Lyons; where he found his ancient friend the famous Physician and Antiquary, Dufour, to whom he related his adventure. Dufour, without staying to inquire about the uneasy symptoms of the burthen he carried, first asked him, whether the medals were of the higher Empire? He assured him they were. Dufour was ravished with the hope of possessing so rare a treasure; he bargained with him on the spot for the most curious of them; and was to recover them at his own expence. POPE. *

VER. 387. Witness great Ammon!] Jupiter Ammon is called to witness, as the father of Alexander, to whom those Kings succeeded

IMITATIONS.

VER. 383. Receiv'd each Demi-God,]

“ Emissumque ima de sede Typhoëa terræ
 Cœlitibus fecisse metum; cunctosque dedisse,
 Terga fugæ: donec fessos Ægyptia tellus
 Ceperit”——

OVID.

WARBURTON.

Still bears them, faithful; and that thus I eat,
Is to refund the Medals with the meat. 390

To prove me, Goddess! clear of all design,
Bid me with Pollio sup, as well as dine:
There all the Learn'd shall at the labour stand,
And Douglas lend his soft, obstetric hand.

The Goddess smiling seem'd to give consent; 395
So back to Pollio, hand in hand, they went.

Then thick as Locusts black'ning all the ground,
A tribe, with weeds and shells fantastic crown'd,
Each with some wond'rous gift approach'd the Pow'r,

A Nest, a Toad, a Fungus, or a Flow'r. 400
But far the foremost, two, with earnest zeal,
And aspect ardent to the Throne appeal.

The first thus open'd: Hear thy suppliant's call,
Great Queen, and common Mother of us all!

Fair

REMARKS.

ceeded in the division of the Macedonian Empire, and whose Horns they wore on their Medals. POPE. *

VER. 394. Douglas] A Physician of great learning and no less taste; above all, curious in what related to HORACE; of whom he collected every Edition, Translation, and Comment, to the number of several hundred volumes. POPE. *

VER. 397. Then thick as Locusts] This transition is too hasty and abrupt. WARTON.

VER. 403. Hear thy suppliant's call,] The character and speech of the Florist in this passage, and those of the Butterfly-Hunter, verse 421 to verse 436, cannot escape the attention and applause of the elegant and judicious reader. Why, therefore, it will be said, point them out? Verse 418, where no carnation fades, is particularly happy and appropriated to the character of the person speaking. WARTON.

Book IV. THE DUNCIAD. 307

Fair from its humble bed I rear'd this Flow'r, 405
Suckled, and chear'd, with air, and sun, and show'r.
Soft on the paper ruff its leaves I spread,
Bright with the gilded button tipt its head.
Then thron'd in glafs, and nam'd it CAROLINE :
Each maid cry'd, Charming! and each youth, Divine!
Did Nature's pencil ever blend fuch rays, 411
Such vary'd light in one promiscuous blaze?
Now prostrate! dead! behold that Caroline :
No maid cries, Charming! and no youth, Divine!
And lo the wretch! whose vile, whose infect lust
Laid this gay daughter of the Spring in dust. 416
Oh

REMARKS.

VER. 409. and nam'd it Caroline :] It is a compliment which the Florists usually pay to Princes and great Personages, to give their names to the most curious Flowers of their raising: Some have been very jealous of vindicating this honour; but none more than that ambitious Gardener at Hammermith, who caused his Favourite to be painted on his Sign, with this inscription, This is My Queen Caroline. POPE. *

IMITATIONS.

VER. 405. Fair from its humble bed, &c.—nam'd it Caroline :
Each maid cry'd, Charming! and each youth, Divine !
Now prostrate! dead! behold that Caroline :
No maid cries, Charming! and no youth, Divine !]

These verses are translated from Catullus, Epith.

“ Ut flos in septis secretus nascitur hortis,
Quam mulcent auræ, firmat Sol, educat imber,
Multi illum pueri, multæ optavere puellæ :
Idem quum tenui carptus defloruit ungui,
Nulli illum pueri, nullæ optavere puellæ,” &c.

WARBURTON.

It is also elegantly translated by Ariosto.

WARTON.

Oh punish him, or to th' Elysian shades
 Dismiss my soul, where no Carnation fades.
 He ceas'd, and wept. With innocence of mien,
 Th' Accus'd stood forth, and thus address'd the Queen.
 Of all th' enamel'd race, whose silv'ry wing 421
 Waves to the tepid Zephyrs of the spring,
 Or swims along the fluid atmosphere,
 Once brightest shin'd this child of Heat and Air.
 I saw, and started from its vernal bow'r, 425
 The rising game, and chac'd from flow'r to flow'r.
 It fled, I follow'd; now in hope, now pain;
 It stopt, I stopt; it mov'd, I mov'd again.
 At last it fix'd, 'twas on what plant it pleas'd,
 And where it fix'd, the beauteous bird I seiz'd: 430
 Rose or Carnation was below my care;
 I meddle, Goddess! only in my sphere.
 I tell the naked fact without disguise,
 And, to excuse it, need but shew the prize;
 Whose spoils this paper offers to your eye, 435
 Fair ev'n in death! this peerless Butterfly.

My

IMITATIONS.

VER. 421. Of all th' enamel'd race,] The Poet seems to have an eye to Spenser, Muiopotmos.

“ Of all the race of silver-winged Flies
 Which do possess the Empire of the Air.”

WARBURTON.

VER. 427, 428. It fled, I follow'd, &c.]

“ — I started back,
 It started back; but pleas'd I soon return'd,
 Pleas'd it return'd as soon.”

MILTON.

WARBURTON.

My fons ! (the answer'd) both have done your parts:
 Live happy both, and long promote our arts.
 But hear a Mother, when she recommends
 To your fraternal care, our sleeping friends. 440
 The common Soul, of Heav'n's more frugal make,
 Serves but to keep fools pert, and knaves awake :
 A drowzy Watchman, that just gives a knock,
 And breaks our rest, to tell us what's o'clock.
 Yet by some object ev'ry brain is stirr'd ; 445
 The dull may waken to a Humming-bird ;
 The most recluse, discreetly open'd, find,
 Congenial matter in the Cockle-kind ;
 The mind, in Metaphysics at a loss,
 May wander in a wilderness of Mofs ; 450
 The head that turns at superlunar things,
 Pois'd with a tail, may steer on Wilkins' wings.
 O ! would

VARIATIONS.

VER. 441. The common Soul, &c.] In the first Edit. thus,
 Of Souls the greater part, Heav'n's common make,
 Serve but to keep fools pert, and knaves awake ;
 And most but find that centinel of God,
 A drowzy Watchman in the land of Nod. WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 440. our sleeping friends.] Of whom see verse 345, above.
 WARBURTON.

VER. 450. a wilderness of Mofs ;] Of which the Naturalists count I can't tell how many hundred species. POPE. *

VER. 452. Wilkins' wings.] One of the first Projectors of the Royal Society ; who, among many enlarged and useful notions, entertained the extravagant hope of a possibility to fly to the Moon ; which has put some volatile Geniuses upon making wings or that purpose. POPE. *

O! would the Sons of Men once think their Eyes
 And Reason giv'n them but to study Flies!
 See Nature in some partial narrow shape, 455
 And let the Author of the Whole escape:
 Learn but to trifle; or, who most observe,
 To wonder at their Maker, not to serve.
 Be that my task (replies a gloomy Clerk,
 Sworn foe to Myst'ry, yet divinely dark; 460
 Whose pious hope aspires to see the day
 When Moral Evidence shall quite decay,

And

REMARKS.

VER. 453. O! would the Sons of Men, &c.] This is the third speech of the Goddess to her Supplicants, and completes the whole of what she had to give in instruction on this important occasion, concerning Learning, Civil Society, and Religion. In the first speech, ver. 119, to her Editors and conceited Critics, she directs how to deprave Wit and discredit fine Writers. In her second, ver. 175, to the Educators of Youth, she shews them how all civil duties may be extinguished, in that one doctrine of Divine Hereditary Right. And in this third, she charges the investigators of Nature to amuse themselves in trifles, and rest in second causes, with a total disregard of the first. This being all that Dulness can wish, is all she needs to say; and we may apply to her (as the Poet hath managed it) what hath been said of true Wit, that She neither says too little, nor too much. POPE. *

VER. 459. a gloomy Clerk,] The Epithet gloomy in this line may seem the same with that of dark in the next. But gloomy relates to the uncomfortable and disastrous condition of an irreligious Sceptic; whereas dark alludes only to his puzzled and embroiled Systems. POPE. *

VER. 462. When Moral Evidence shall quite decay,] Alluding to a ridiculous and absurd way of some Mathematicians, in calculating the gradual decay of Moral Evidence by mathematical proportions: according to which calculation, in about fifty years it will be no longer probable, that Julius Cæsar was in Gaul, or died in the Senate-House. See Craig's Theologicæ Christianæ Principia

And damns implicit faith, and holy lies,
 Prompt to impose, and fond to dogmatize :)
 Let others creep by timid steps, and slow, 465
 On plain Experience lay foundations low,
 By common sense to common knowledge bred,
 And last, to Nature's Cause thro' Nature led.
 All-seeing in thy mists, we want no guide,
 Mother of Arrogance, and Source of Pride! 470
 We nobly take the high Priori Road,
 And reason downward, till we doubt of God :

Make

REMARKS.

Principia Mathematica.—But as it seems evident, that facts of a thousand years old, for instance, are now as probable as they were five hundred years ago ; it is plain that in fifty more they quite disappear, it must be owing, not to their Arguments, but to the extraordinary Power of our Goddesses ; for whose help therefore they are bound to pray. POPE. *

VER. 465—68. Let others creep—thro' Nature led.] In these lines are described the Disposition of the rational Inquirer ; and the means and end of Knowledge. With regard to his disposition, the contemplation of the works of God with human faculties must needs make a modest and sensible man timorous and fearful ; and that will naturally direct him to the right means of acquiring the little knowledge his faculties are capable of comprehending, namely plain and sure experience ; which though it supports only an humble foundation, and permits only a very slow progress, yet it leads, surely, to the end, the discovery of the God of Nature.

WARBURTON.

This Note may well remind us of what Lord Bacon finely says on the subject of strained interpretations : “ Wines which at the first treading run gently, are pleasanter than those which are forced by the wine-press ; for these taste of the stone and of the husk of the grape. WARTON.

VER. 471. the high Priori Road,] Those who, from the effects in this visible world, deduce the Eternal Power and Godhead of the First Cause, though they cannot attain to an adequate idea

Make Nature still inroach upon his plan ;
And shove him off as far as e'er we can :

Thrust

REMARKS.

of the Deity, yet discover so much of him, as enables them to see the end of their Creation, and the means of their Happiness: whereas they who take this high Priori Road, (such as Hobbes, Spinoza, Des Cartes, and some better Reasoners,) for one that goes right, ten lose themselves in Mists, or ramble after Visions, which deprive them of all sight of their end, and mislead them in the choice of the means. POPE. *

He alludes to Dr. Clarke's famous Demonstrations of the Attributes of God; a book which Bolingbroke, who hated Clarke because he was a favourite of Queen Caroline, impotently attacked. In Bolingbroke's works are many passages in ridicule of this Queen's pretences to understand Philosophy, and religious controversies, and particularly the controversies relating to the Trinity.

Dr. Clarke and Woolaston considered moral obligation as arising from the essential differences and relations of things; Shaftesbury and Hutcheson, as arising from the moral sense; and the generality of Divines, as arising solely from the will of God. On these three principles practical morality has been built by these different writers. "Thus has God been pleased (says the Author of the Divine Legation) to give three different excitements to the practice of Virtue; that men, as he finely adds, of all ranks, constitutions, and educations, might find their account in one or other of them; something that would hit their palate, satisfy their reason, or subdue their will.—But this admirable provision for the support of Virtue hath been in some measure defeated by its pretended advocates, who have sacrilegiously untwisted this three-fold cord, and each, running away with the part he esteemed the strongest, hath affixed that to the throne of God, as the golden chain that is to unite and to draw all to it." Book i. p. 39. first edition. WARTON.

VER. 471. *We nobly take the high Priori Road,
And reason downward, till we doubt of God:]*

An oblique censure of Dr. S. Clarke's celebrated Demonstration of the Being and Attributes of God à priori; after the example of his "guide, philosopher, and friend," who is perpetually attacking

Thrust some Mechanic Cause into his place; 475

Or bind in Matter, or diffuse in Space.

Or, at one bound, o'erleaping all his laws,
Make God Man's Image, Man the final Cause,

Find

REMARKS.

ing Clarke in his fragments of Essays, and thus expresses himself in his Letters to our Poet: "Rather than creep up slowly, à posteriori, to a little general knowledge, they soar at once as far and as high as imagination can carry them. From thence they descend again, armed with systems and arguments, à priori; and, regardless how these agree, or class with the phænomena of Nature, they impose them on mankind." WAKEFIELD.

VER. 473. Make Nature still] This relates to such as, being ashamed to assert a mere Mechanic Cause, and yet unwilling to forsake it entirely, have had recourse to a certain Plastic Nature, Elastic Fluid, Subtile Matter, &c. POPE. *

VER. 475. Thrust some Mechanic Cause into his place, Or bind in Matter, or diffuse in Space.]

The first of these Follies is that of Des Cartes; the second of Hobbes; the third of some succeeding Philosophers. POPE. *

VER. 477. at one bound, o'erleaping] From Paradise Lost.

VER. 478, &c.

*Make God Man's Image, Man the final Cause,
Find Virtue local, all Relation scorn,
See all in Self—*]

Here the Poet, from the errors relating to a Deity in natural Philosophy, descends to those in moral. Man was made according to God's Image: but this false Theology, measuring his attributes by ours, makes God after Man's Image: this proceeds from the imperfection of his Reason. The next, of imagining himself the final Cause, is the effect of his Pride: as the making Virtue and Vice arbitrary, and Morality the imposition of the Magistrate, is of the Corruption of his heart. Hence he centers every thing in himself. The Progress of Dulness herein differing from that of Madness; this ends in seeing all in God; the other in seeing all in Self. POPE. *

Find Virtue local, all Relation scorn,
 See all in Self, and but for Self be born : 480
 Of nought so certain as our Reason still,
 Of nought so doubtful as of Soul and Will.
 Oh hide the God still more ! and make us see
 Such as Lucretius drew, a God like Thee :
 Wrapt up in Self, a God without a Thought, 485
 Regardless of our merit or default.
 Or that bright Image to our fancy draw,
 Which Theocles in raptur'd vision saw,

While

REMARKS.

VER. 481. Of nought so certain as our Reason still,] Of which we have most cause to be diffident. Of nought so doubtful as of Soul and Will; i. e. the Existence of our Soul, and the Freedom of our Will; the two things most self-evident. POPE. *

VER. 484. Such as Lucretius drew,] Lib. i. ver. 57.

“ Omnis enim per se Divam natura necesse est
 Immortali ævo summa cum pace fruatur,
 Semota ab nostris rebus, summotaque longe—
 Nec bene pro meritis capitur, nec tangitur ira;”

from whence the two verses following are translated; and wonderfully agree with the character of our Goddesses.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 487. Or that bright Image] Bright Image was the title given by the later Platonists to that Vision of Nature, which they had formed out of their own fancy; so bright, that they called it Ἄυτοπτον Ἄγαλμα, or the Self-seen Image, i. e. seen by its own light. WARBURTON.

Ibid. Or that bright Image] i. e. Let it be either the Chance-God of Epicurus, or the FATE, of this Goddesses. WARBURTON.

VER. 488. Which Theocles in raptur'd Vision saw,] Thus this [Philosopher calls upon his Friend, to partake with him in these Visions :

“ To-morrow, when the Eastern Sun
 With his first Beams adorns the front

Of

While through Poetic scenes the GENIUS roves,
Or wanders wild in Academic Groves ;

490
That

REMARKS.

Of yonder Hill, if you're content
To wander with me in the Woods you see,
We will pursue those Loves of ours,
By favour of the Sylvan Nymphs :

and invoking first the Genius of the Place, we'll try to obtain at least some faint and distant view of the Sovereign Genius and first Beauty." CHARACT. Vol. ii. page 245.

This Genius is thus apostrophized (pag. 345.) by the same Philosopher :

" — O glorious Nature !
Supremely fair, and sovereignly good !
All-loving, and all-lovely ! all-divine !
Wife Substitute of Providence ! impower'd
Greatress ! or impow'ring Deity,
Supreme Creator !
Thee I invoke, and thee alone adore."

Sir Isaac Newton distinguishes between these two in a very different manner. (Princ. Schol. gen. sub fin.)—Hunc cognoscimus solummodo per proprietates suas et attributa, et per sapientissimas et optimas rerum struaturas, et causas finales ; veneramur autem et colimus ob dominium. Deus etenim sine dominio, providentia, et causis finalibus, nihil aliud est quam Fatum et Natura. POPE. *

There is a manifest injustice in introducing Shaftesbury, who was a rigid deist, though not a Christian, and who wrote so strongly in favour of an intelligent first cause. Dr. Berkley was the first author, who printed in his Alciphron some passages of Shaftesbury, which certainly border on the bombast, as blank verses. In the London Journal, May 18, 1732, there is a vindication of Shaftesbury against Alciphron, supposed by Bishop Hoadley. WARTON.

VER. 485. roves,—Or wanders wild in Academic Groves ;]
" Above all things I lov'd Ease, and of all Philosophers those who reasoned most at their Ease, and were never angry or disturb'd as those call'd Sceptics never were. I look'd upon this kind of Philosophy as the prettiest, agreeablest, roving Exercise of the mind, possible to be imagined." Vol. ii. p. 206. POPE. *

That NATURE our Society adores,
Where Tindal dictates, and Silenus snores.

Rous'd at his name, up rose the bowzy Sire,
And shook from out his Pipe the seeds of fire ;
Then snapt his box, and strok'd his belly down : 495
Rofy and rev'rend, tho' without a Gown.
Bland and familiar to the throne he came,
Led up the Youth, and call'd the Goddess Dame.
Then thus. From Priest-craft happily fet free,
Lo! every finish'd Son returns to thee : 500

First

REMARKS.

VER. 491. That NATURE our Society adores,] See the Pantheistion, with its liturgy and rubrics, composed by Toland; which very lately, for the Edification of the Society, has been translated into English, and publicly sold by the Booksellers of London and Westminster.

WARBURTON.

VER. 492. Silenus] Mr. Thomas Gordon.—Silenus was an Epicurean Philosopher, as appears from Virgil, Eclog. vi. where he sings the principles of that Philosophy in his drink, POPE. *

By Silenus he means Gordon, the translator of Tacitus; which translation he made in an affected, hard, abrupt, and inharmonious style, under the notion of imitating the pregnant brevity of the original, crowded as it is, with sense and matter. He also was the publisher of the Independent Whig, and obtained a lucrative place under government. Lord Monboddoo has certainly been too severe in his animadversions on Tacitus. Let us pardon his affected style, for his weighty matter.

WARTON.

VER. 492. Silenus] Mr. Thomas Gordon, a violent Whig. The independent Whig is a libel on the established religion of the country.

BANNISTER.

VER. 494. seeds of fire ;] The Epicurean language, Semina rerum, or Atoms. Virg. Eclog. vi. Semina ignis—semina flammæ.

POPE. *

VER. 498. Dame.] Alluding to the mistresses of the lodging and boarding houses at Westminster and Eaton, so called by the boys.

First slave to Words, then vassal to a Name,
 Then dupe to Party; child and man the same:
 Bounded by Nature, narrow'd still by Art,
 A trifling head, and a contracted heart.
 Thus bred, thus taught, how many have I seen, 505
 Smiling on all, and smil'd on by a Queen?
 Mark'd out for Honours, honour'd for their Birth,
 To thee the most rebellious things on earth:
 Now to thy gentle shadow all are shrunk,
 All melted down, in Pension, or in Punk! 510
 So K* so B sneak'd into the grave,
 A Monarch's half, and half a Harlot's slave.

Poor

REMARKS.

VER. 501. First slave to Words, &c.] A recapitulation of the whole Course of modern Education described in this book, which confines Youth to the study of Words only in Schools; subjects them to the authority of Systems in the Universities; and deludes them with the Names of Party-distinctions in the World. All equally concurring to narrow the Understanding, and establish Slavery and Error in Literature, Philosophy, and Politics. The whole finished in modern FREE-THINKING; the completion of whatever is vain, wrong, and destructive to the happiness of mankind, as it establishes Self-love for the sole Principle of Action.

POPE. *

VER. 506. smil'd on by a Queen?] i. e. This Queen or Goddess of Dulness.

WARBURTON.

But it certainly was intended as a sly and satirical stroke on Queen Caroline, and did not relate to the Goddess of Dulness.

WARTON.

VER. 511. So K so B, poor W.*] It is vain to enquire the names that belong to these initial letters. Some of the finest passages in Abraham and Architophel, one of Dryden's capital poems, though concerning persons of far more consequence and importance, are now already unknown; and the satire has lost all its force and poignancy.

WARTON.

Poor W nipt in Folly's broadest bloom,
 Who praises now? his Chaplain on his Tomb.
 Then take them all, oh take them to thy breast!
 Thy Magus, Goddess! shall perform the rest. 516
 With that, a WIZARD OLD his Cup extends;
 Which who so tastes, forgets his former friends,
 . Sire,

REMARKS.

VER. 513. *Poor W] Philip duke of Wharton, so much celebrated for his profligacy, wit, and eccentricity; who died an exile and an outlaw, in 1731.

VER. 517. his Cup—Which who so tastes, &c.] The Cup of Self-love, which causes a total oblivion of the obligations of Friendship, or Honour; and of the Service of God or our Country; all sacrificed to Vain-glory, Court-worship, or the yet meaner considerations of Lucre and brutal pleasures. From ver. 520 to 528.

POPE. *

Ibid. With that, a Wizard] The greater mysteries, mentioned in a remark of Warburton on this passage, have no more to do with the Dunciad, than they have with the sixth book of the Æneid. All that can be collected about the mysteries is to be found in Meursius's Collections on this subject, in the 27 vol. Folio, of Graevius' and Gronovius's Thesaur. From which collections Warburton borrowed largely in his famous dissertation on this subject, which has been so completely refuted by Gibbon.

WARTON.

Ibid. With that, a Wizard] Dr. Warton, when he wrote this note, must have forgotten, that in his Translation of Virgil he has introduced Warburton's Dissertation on the sixth Æneid, and that he bestowed on it the highest praise. Warburton's Dissertation is unquestionably a work of very uncommon learning and ability. It abounds with noble sentiments; and no person can read it with attention,

IMITATIONS.

VER. 518. Which who so tastes, forgets his former friends,—Sire, &c.] Homer of the Nepenthe, Odyss. iv.

Αὐτίκ' ἄρ' εἰς οἶνον βάλε Φάρμακον, ἔνθεν ἔπινον

Νηπιόνης τ' ἀχολόν τε, κακῶν ἐπιλήθον ἀπαντων.

WARBURTON.

Sire, Ancestors, Himself. One casts his eyes
Up to a Star, and like Endymion dies : 520

A Feather, shooting from another's head,
Extracts his brain ; and Principle is fled ;
Lost is his God, his Country, ev'ry thing ;
And nothing left but Homage to a King !

The vulgar herd turn off to roll with Hogs, 525
To run with Horses, or to hunt with Dogs ;

But,

REMARKS.

attention, without feeling his mind exalted, and his love of religion and virtue strengthened and confirmed. Gibbon's Answer, which Dr. Warton considers as a complete refutation, has a very different tendency ; he degrades Virgil into a mere Epicurean, and with the zeal of a true deist, endeavours to persuade the reader, that the great Poet had the same ideas on the subject of religion, as himself. BANNISTER.

VER. 523, 524. Lost is his God, his Country—And nothing left but Homage to a King !] So strange as this must seem to a mere English reader, the famous Monf. de la Bruyere declares it to be the character of every good subject in a Monarchy : “ Where (says he) there is no such thing as Love of our Country, the Interest, the Glory, and the Service of the Prince, supply its place.” De la Republique, chap. x.

Of this duty another celebrated French Author speaks, indeed, a little more disrespectfully ; which, for that reason, we shall not translate, but give in his own words, “ L'Amour de la Patrie, le grand motif des premiers Heros, n'est plus regardé que comme une Chimère ; l'idée du Service du Roi, étendue jusqu'à l'oubli de tout autre Principe, tient lieu de ce qu'on appelloit autrefois Grandeur d'Ame & Fidélité.” Boulaivilliers Hist. des Anciens Parlements de France, &c.—And a much greater man than either of them, the Cardinal de Retz, speaking of a conversation he had with the Regente, Anne of Austria, makes this observation on the Court,—“ Je connus en cet endroit, qu'il est impossible que la Cour conçoive ce que c'est LE PUBLIC. La flatterie, qui en est la peste, l'infecte toujours à un tel point, qu'elle lui cause un delire incurable sur cet article.” WARBURTON.

But, sad example ! never to escape
Their infamy, still keep the human shape.

But she, good Goddess, sent to ev'ry child
Firm Impudence, or Stupefaction mild ; 530
And straight succeeded, leaving shame no room,
Cibberian forehead, or Cimmerian gloom.

Kind Self-conceit to some her glass applies,
Which no one looks in with another's eyes :
But as the Flatt'rer or Dependent paint, 535
Beholds himself a Patriot, Chief, or Saint,

On other's Int'rest her gay liv'ry flings,
Int'rest, that waves on Party-colour'd wings :
Turn'd to the Sun, she casts a thousand dyes,
And, as she turns, the colours fall or rise. 540

Others the Syren Sisters warble round,
And empty heads console with empty sound.
No more, alas ! the voice of Fame they hear,
The balm of Dulness trickling in their ear.
Great C, H, P, R, K*, 545
Why all your Toils ? your Sons have learn'd to sing.
How

REMARKS.

VER. 528. keep the human shape.] Few pieces of satire are more finely imagined, than the Circe of Gelli, (copied from Plutarch,) in which the men transformed into beasts, refuse to return again into the human shape, and be again subject to the follies and miseries of that species of animals. WARTON.

VER. 529. But she, good Goddess, &c.] The only comfort such people can receive, must be owing in some shape or other to Dulness ; which makes one sort stupid, another impudent ; gives Self-conceit to some, arising from the flatteries of their dependants ; presents the false colours of Interest to others, and busies or amuses the rest with idle Pleasures or Sensualities, till they become easy under any infamy. Each of which species is here shadowed under allegorical persons. POPE. *

How quick Ambition hastes to ridicule!
The Sire is made a Peer, the Son a Fool.

On some, a Priest succinct in amice white
Attends; all flesh is nothing in his sight! 550

Beeves, at his touch, at once to jelly turn,
And the huge Boar is shrunk into an Urn:
The board with specious miracles he loads,
Turns Hares to Larks, and Pigeons into Toads.

Another (for in all what one can shine?) 555
Explains the Seve and Verdeur of the Vine.

What cannot copious Sacrifice atone?
Thy Treuffles, Perigord! thy Hams, Bayonne!
With French Libation, and Italian Strain,
Wash Bladen white, and expiate Hays's stain. 560

KNIGHT

REMARKS.

VER. 549. ——— a priest succinct in amice white] Milton, Paradise Regained, iv. 426.

“ Thus pass'd the night so foul, till morning fair Came forth with pilgrim steps in amice grey.” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 553. specious miracles] “ ——— speciosa miracula.” HOR.

VER. 556. Seve and Verdeur] French Terms relating to Wines, which signify their flavour and poignancy.

“ Et je gagerois que chez le Commandeur
Villandri priferoit sa Seve & sa Verdeur.” DEPREAUX.

St. Evremont has a very pathetic letter to a Nobleman in Disgrace, advising him to seek Comfort in a good Table; and particularly to be attentive to these qualities in his Champagne. POPE. *

VER. 560. Bladen—Hays] Names of Gamblers. Bladen is a black man. ROBERT KNIGHT Cashier of the South-Sea Company, who fled from England in 1720 (afterwards pardoned in 1742.)—These lived with the utmost magnificence at Paris, and kept open tables frequented by persons of the first Quality of England, and even by Princes of the Blood of France. POPE. *

KNIGHT lifts the head, for what are crouds undone,
 To three essential Partridges in one?
 Gone ev'ry blush, and silent all reproach,
 Contending Princes mount them in their Coach.

Next bidding all draw near on bended knees, 565
 The Queen confers her Titles and Degrees.
 Her children first of more distinguish'd fort,
 Who study Shakespear at the Inns of Court,

Impale

REMARKS.

The former Note of—Bladen is a black man, is very absurd. The Manuscript text is here partly obliterated, and doubtless could only have been—"Wasb Blackmoors white" alluding to a known Proverb.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

Colonel Martin Bladen, was a man of some literature, and translated Cæsar's Commentaries. I never could learn that he had offended Pope. He was uncle to my dear and lamented friend Mr. William Collins the Poet, to whom he left an estate, which he did not get possession of till his faculties were deranged and he could not enjoy it. I remember Collins told me that Bladen had given to Voltaire, all that account of Camoëns inserted in his essay on the Epic Poets of all Nations, and that Voltaire seemed before entirely ignorant of the name and character of Camoëns.

WARTON.

Voltaire was very ill-informed respecting Camoëns, who, he asserts, actually accompanied De Gama to the East Indies. This is not true; Camoëns was never in India till some years after its discovery.

Ver. 561. KNIGHT lifts the head,] This very man, or his son, was made Lord Catherlough in Ireland.—B. WAKEFIELD.

Ver. 567. Her children first of more distinguish'd fort,
Who study Shakespear at the Inns of Court,]

Ill would that Scholiast discharge his duty, who should neglect to honour those whom DULNESS has distinguish'd: or suffer them to lie forgotten, when their rare modesty would have left them nameless. Let us not, therefore, overlook the services which have been done her Cause, by one Mr. Thomas Edwards, a Gentleman, as he is pleas'd to call himself, of Lincoln's Inn; but, in reality, a Gentleman only of the Dunciad; or, to speak him better,

Book IV. THE DUNCIAD. 323

Impale a Glow-worm, or Vertú profess,
Shine in the dignity of F. R. S. 570

Some, deep Free-Masons, join the silent race
Worthy to fill Pythagoras's place :
Some Botanists, or Florists at the least,
Or issue Members of an Annual feast.
Nor pass the meanest unregarded, one 575
Rose a Gregorian, one a Gormogon.

The

REMARKS.

ter, in the plain language of our honest Ancestors to such mushrooms, A Gentleman of the last Edition : who nobly eluding the solicitude of his careful Father, very early retained himself in the cause of Dulness against Shakespeare ; and with the wit and learning of his Ancestor Tom Thimble in the Rehearsal, and with the air of good nature and politeness of Caliban in the Tempest, hath now happily finished the Dunce's Progress, in personal abuse. For a Libeller is nothing but a Grubstreet Critic run to Seed.

SCRIBLERUS. *

This attack on Mr. Edwards is not of weight sufficient to weaken the effects of his excellent Canons of Criticism. WARTON.

Dr. Johnson knew best how to appreciate the Canons of Criticism. After bestowing on it the applause it deserved, as an effusion of Wit, on some person's observing that the Author had shewn himself to be a better Critic than Warburton, "That," replied the Doctor, "is going rather too far : A fly may sting and tease a horse ; but yet the horse is the nobler animal."

BANNISTER.

VER. 570. Shine in the dignity] A line taken from Bramston's Man of Taste ; a satire in which Bramston has been guilty of the absurdity of making his hero laugh at himself and his own follies.

WARTON.

VER. 571. Some, deep Free-Masons, join the silent race] The Poet all along expresses a very particular concern for this silent Race : He has here provided, that in case they will not waken or open (as was before proposed) to a Humming-bird, or a Cockle, yet at worst they may be made Free-Masons ; where Taciturnity is the only essential qualification, as it was the chief of the disciples of Pythagoras.

POPE. *

The last, not least in honour or applause,
Isis and Cam made DOCTORS of her LAWS.

Then, blessing all, Go, Children of my care!
To Practice now from Theory repair. 580
All my commands are easy, short, and full:
My Sons! be proud, be selfish, and be dull.
Guard my Prerogative, assert my Throne:
This Nod confirms each Privilege your own.
The Cap and Switch be sacred to his Grace; 585
With Staff and Pumps the Marquis lead the Race;
From

REMARKS.

VER. 576. a Gregorian, one a Gormogon.] A sort of Lay-brothers, two of the innumerable Slips from the Root of the Free-Masons. POPE. *

VER. 577. DOCTORS of her LAWS.] Pope expected, at one time, to have been made LL. D. of Oxford, but was disappointed. Hence this stroke of resentment.

VER. 581. *All my commands are easy, short, and full:
My Sons! be proud, be selfish, and be dull.*]

He here treads in the steps of his poetic master, part ii. of Absalom and Achitophel:

“ The midwife laid her hand on his thick skull,
With this prophetic blessing, Be thou dull!” WAKEFIELD.

VER. 584. each Privilege your own, &c.] This speech of Dulness to her Sons at parting may possibly fall short of the Reader's expectation; who may imagine the Goddess might give them a Charge of more consequence; and, from such a Theory as is before delivered, incite them to the practice of something more extraordinary, than to personate Running-Footmen, Jockeys, Stage-Coachmen, &c.

But if it be well considered, that whatever inclination her sons might have to do mischief, they are generally rendered harmless by their Inability; and that it is the common effect of Dulness (even in her greatest efforts) to defeat her own design; the Poet, I am persuaded, will be justified, and it will be allowed, that these worthy persons, in their several ranks, do as much as can be well expected from them. POPE. *

From Stage to Stage the licens'd Earl may run,
 Pair'd with his Fellow-Charioteer the Sun ;
 The learned Baron Butterflies design,
 Or draw to filk Arachne's subtile line ; 590
 The Judge to dance his brother Sergeant call ;
 The Senator at Cricket urge the Ball ;
 The Bishop stow (Pontific Luxury !)
 An hundred Souls of Turkeys in a pie ;
 The sturdy Squire to Gallic masters stoop, 595
 And drown his Lands and Manors in a Soupe.
 Others import yet nobler arts from France,
 Teach Kings to fiddle, and make Senates dance.

Perhaps

REMARKS.

VER. 589. The learned Baron] Evidently taken from Young's Univerfal Passion, satire 1.

“ By this inspir'd (O ne'er to be forgot)
 Some lords have learnt to spell, and some to knot.”

WARTON.

VER. 590. Arachne's subtile line ;] This is one of the most ingenious employments assigned,—and therefore recommended only to Peers of Learning. Of weaving gray-filk Stockings of the Webs of Spiders, see the Philosoph. Tranfact. POPE. *

VER. 591. The Judge to dance his brother Sergeant call ;] Alluding perhaps to that ancient and solemn Dance intituled, A Call of Sergeants. POPE. *

VER. 598. Teach Kings to fiddle,] An ancient amusement of Sovereign Princes, (viz.) Achilles, Alexander, Nero ; though despised by Themistocles, who was a Republican.—Make Senates dance, either after their Prince, or to Poutoise, or Siberia.

POPE. *

Ibid. make Senates dance.] Alludes to the frequent banishments of the parliaments of France, when they exerted a noble spirit of opposition to despotic power. In the Annual Registers of those times, are many spirited remarks on these banishments by a man of great genius.

WARTON.

Perhaps more high some daring son may soar,
 Proud to my list to add one Monarch more; 600
 And nobly conscious, Princes are but things
 Born for First Ministers, as Slaves for Kings,
 Tyrant supreme! shall three Estates command,
 And MAKE ONE MIGHTY DUNCIAD OF THE LAND!

More she had spoke, but yawn'd—All Nature nods:
 What Mortal can resist the Yawn of Gods? 606
 Churches and Chapels instantly it reach'd;
 (St. James's first, for leaden G—— preach'd)

Then

REMARKS.

VER. 601. Princes are but things] Warton observes, “The making ministers of more real importance than princes, is admirably severe.”

VER. 606. What Mortal can resist the Yawn of Gods?] This verse is truly Homeric; as is the conclusion of the Action, where the great Mother composes all, in the same manner as Minerva at the period of the Odyssy.—It may indeed seem a very singular Epitasis of a Poem, to end as this does, with a GREAT YAWN; but we must consider it as the Yawn of a God, and of powerful effects. Nor is it out of nature; most long and grave Counsels concluding in this very manner: Nor yet without authority, the incomparable Spencer having ended one of the most considerable of his works with a ROAR; but then it is the Roar of a Lion, the effects whereof (as here of the Yawn) are described as the Catastrophe of the Poem. POPE. *

VER. 607. Churches and Chapels, &c.] The Progress of this Yawn is judicious, natural, and worthy to be noted. First it seizeth the Churches and Chapels; then catcheth the Schools, where, though the boys be unwilling to sleep, the Masters are not: Next Westminster-hall, much more hard indeed to subdue, and not totally put to silence even by the Goddess: Then the Convocation, which though extremely desirous to speak, yet cannot: Even the House of Commons, justly called the Sense of the Nation, is lost (that is to say suspended) during the Yawn (far be it from our Author to suggest it could be lost any longer!) but it spreadeth at large over all the rest of the Kingdom, to such a degree, that Palinurus himself (though as incapable of sleeping as

Then catch'd the Schools ; the Hall scarce kept awake :
 The Convocation gap'd, but could not speak : 610
 Loft was the Nation's Sense, nor could be found,
 While the long solemn Unifon went round :

Wide,

REMARKS.

Jupiter himself) yet noddeth for a moment : the effect of which, though ever so momentary, could not but cause some relaxation, for the time, in all public affairs. SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

VER. 608. for leaden G—] He meant Dr. Gilbert, archbishop of York. He had never given Pope any particular offence ; but he had attacked Dr. King of Oxford, whom Pope much respected. And this attack was made in a rude and rough manner-

WARTON.

I have been informed by a * Prelate of the most distinguished learning, candour, and good sense, that there never was an expression applied with such injustice, as “leaden” to Dr. Gilbert, who was in fact an eloquent and impressive Preacher ; so much so, that the amiable Prelate I allude to, having heard an animated discourse delivered by Gilbert, committed some of the leading ideas, and the most striking expressions, to memory ; and afterwards preached the same sermon before Dr. Gilbert, and mentioned the circumstance ; who very good-naturedly said, “Then you are not ashamed of “leaden Gilbert !”

VER. 610. The Convocation gap'd, but could not speak:] Implying a great desire so to do, as the learned Scholiast on the place rightly observes. Therefore beware, Reader, lest thou take this Gape for a Yawn, which is attended with no desire, but to go to rest : by no means the disposition of the Convocation ; whose melancholy case in short is this : She was, as is reported, infected with the general influence of the Goddesses ; and while she was yawning carelessly at her ease, a wanton Courtier took her at advantage, and in the very nick, clap'd a Gag into her mouth. Well therefore may we know her meaning by her gaping ; and this distressful posture which our Poet here describes, is just as she stands at this day, a sad example of the effects of Dulness and Malice unchecked and despised.

BENTLEY. *

* Bishop of Salisbury.

Wide, and more wide, it spread o'er all the realm ;
 Ev'n Palinurus nodded at the Helm :
 " The Vapour mild o'er each Committee crept ;
 Unfinish'd Treaties in each Office slept ; 616
 And Chiefless Armies doz'd out the Campaign ;
 And Navies yawn'd for Orders on the Main."

O Muse!

REMARKS.

VER. 613. *Wide, and more wide, it spread o'er all the realm ;
 Ev'n Palinurus nodded at the Helm :*]

This very elegant allusion he owes to Young, Sat. vii. ver. 225.

" What felt thy Walpole, pilot of the realm,
Our Palinurus slept not at the helm :
 His eye ne'er clos'd, long since inur'd to wake,
 And out-watch ev'ry star for Brunswick's fake."

The expression of the last line is taken from Milton, Penferoso, ver. 87.

" Where I may oft out-watch the Bear." WAKEFIELD.

VER. 615—618. These Verses were written many years ago, and may be found in the State Poems of that time. So that Scriblerus is mistaken, or whoever else have imagined this Poem of a fresher date. POPE. *

VER. 615. *The Vapour mild o'er each Committee crept ;
 Unfinish'd Treaties in each Office slept ;
 And Chiefless Armies doz'd out the Campaign ;
 And Navies yawn'd for Orders on the Main.]*

These four Verses are said to be taken from the State Poems ; but I am unable to point out their station there. They partly existed in the Poem, probably that intended, of Halifax on Orpheus and Signora Margarita :

" And, when the tawny Tuscan rais'd her strain,
 Rook furls his sails, and dozes on the main :
Treaties unfinish'd in the office sleep,
And Shovel yawns for orders on the deep."

Of the first of these Verses our Poet has made use in his Ode on St. Cecilia's Day :

" High on the stern the Thracian rais'd his strain."

WAKEFIELD.

O Muse! relate (for you can tell alone,
 Wits have short Memories, and Dunces none), 620
 Relate, who first, who last resign'd to rest;
 Whose Heads she partly, whose completely blest;
 What Charms could Faction, what Ambition lull,
 The Venal quiet, and intrance the Dull;

Till

REMARKS.

VER. 619. O Muse! relate] Mr. Gray's opinion of this fourth book was as follows: "The genii of operas and schools, with their attendants, the pleas of the virtuoso's and florists, and the yawn of Dulness in the end, are as fine as any thing he has written. The metaphysician's part is to me the worst; and here and there a few ill-expressed lines, and some hardly intelligible."

WARTON.

VER. 620. Wits have short Memories,] This seemeth to be the reason why the Poets, whenever they give us a Catalogue, constantly call for help on the Muses, who, as the Daughters of Memory, are obliged not to forget any thing. So Homer, Iliad ii.

Πληθὺν δ' ἔκ ἀν' ἐγὼ μνησσομαι ἔδ' ἑνομήνω,
 Εἰ μὴ Ὀλυμπιάδες Μῆσαι, Διὸς αἰγιόχοιο
 Θυγατέρες, μνησαίαντ' —

And Virg. Æneid. vii.

"Et meministis enim, Divæ, et memorare potestis:
 Ad nos vix tenuis famæ perlabitur aura."

But our Poet had yet another reason for putting this task upon the Muse, that, all besides being asleep, she only could relate what passed.

SCRIBLERUS. POPE. *

IMITATIONS.

VER. 621. *Relate, who first, who last resign'd to rest;
 Whose Heads she partly, whose completely blest;*]

"Quem telo primum, quem postremum aspera Virgo Dejicis? aut quot humi morientia corpora fundis?" VIRG.

WARBURTON.

Till drown'd was Sense, and Shame, and Right, and Wrong— 625
 O sing, and hush the Nations with thy Song!

* * * * *

In vain, in vain,—the all-composing Hour
 Refistless falls: The Muse obeys the Pow'r.
 She comes! she comes! the fable Throne behold
 Of Night Primeval, and of Chaos old! 630
 Before her, Fancy's gilded clouds decay,
 And all its varying Rain-bows die away.
Wit shoots in vain its momentary fires,
 The meteor drops, and in a flash expires.
 As one by one, at dread Medea's strain, 635
 The sick'ning stars fade off th' ethereal plain;
 As Argus' eyes, by Hermes' wand oppress'd,
 Clos'd one by one to everlasting rest;
 Thus at her felt approach, and secret might,
Art after Art goes out, and all is Night. 640
 See skulking Truth to her old cavern fled,
 Mountains of Casuistry heap'd o'er her head!

Philosophy,

REMARKS.

VER. 629. the fable Throne behold] Whatever may be thought of the justice of this satire, nothing can be more animated than the expressions and images.

IMITATIONS.

VER. 637. As Argus' eyes, &c.]

“ Et quamvis sopor est oculorum parte receptus,

Parte tamen vigilat—

Vidit Cyllenius omnes

Succubuisse oculos,” &c.

OVID. Met. ii.

WARBURTON.

Philosophy, that lean'd on Heav'n before,
Shrinks to her second cause, and is no more.

Physic

VARIATIONS.

VER. 643. In the former Edit. it stood thus,
“ Philosophy, that reach'd the Heav'ns before,
Shrinks to her hidden cause, and is no more!”

WARBURTON.

REMARKS.

VER. 643. Philosophy, that lean'd on Heav'n] Philosophy has at length brought things to that pass, as to have it esteem'd unphilosophical to rest in the first cause; as if its business were an endless indagation of cause after cause, without ever coming to the First. So that to avoid this unlearned disgrace, some of the propagators of our best philosophy have had recourse to the contrivance here hinted at. For this philosophy, which is founded on the principle of Gravitation, first considered that property in matter as something extrinsecal to it, and impressed by God upon it. Which fairly and modestly coming up to the first Cause, was pushing natural inquiries as far as they should go. But this stopping, though at the extent of our ideas, and on the maxim of the great founder of this Philosophy, Bacon, who says, Circa ultimates rerum frustranea est inquisitio, was mistaken by foreign philosophers as recurring to the occult qualities of the Peripatetics; whose sense is thus delivered by a great Poet, whom, indeed, it more became than a Philosopher:

“ Sed gravitas etiam crescat, dum corpora centro
Accedunt propius. Videor mihi cernere terrâ
Emergens quidquid caliginis ac tenebrarum
Pellai Juvenis Doctor conjecerat olim
In Physicæ studium.”

Anti-Lucr.

To avoid which imaginary discredit to the new theory, it was thought proper to seek for the cause of gravitation in a certain subtile matter or elastic fluid, which pervaded all body. By this means, instead of really advancing in natural inquiries, we were brought back again, by this ingenious expedient, to an unsatisfactory second cause:

“ Philosophy,

Physic of Metaphysic begs defence, 645
 And Metaphysic calls for aid on Sense!

See

REMARKS.

“Philosophy, that lean'd on Heaven before,
 Shrinks to her second cause, and is no more.”

For it might still, by the same kind of objection, be asked, what was the cause of that elasticity? See this folly censured, ver. 475. and confuted in the following words of an excellent Philosopher, who having demonstrated the absolute impossibility of any subtile matter or elastic fluid's being able to perform the office here assigned to it, as it must impel every particle of matter an infinite number of different ways at once, and incessantly, goes on thus: “When it is said that the higher we rise in the scale of nature towards the supreme cause, the views we have from Philosophy appear more beautiful and extensive; we may observe that the scale of material causes in philosophy is not like the rising scale of Beings in the creation: though the supposed scale here seems to have been taken from that. In the scale of BEINGS, the beginning is low: and every species rises in perfection as we ascend: There is an amazing variety, from dead matter, to living spirit; nor does the gradation end there. This is full of instruction and delight: we see ourselves in the middle of the scale, and are certain of rising higher, as rational beings were not made for utter extinction. But it is not so in a scale of material CAUSES. There are no degrees of perfection in matter. All matter is equally an unactive substance, that resists a change of its state. The higher we had ascended in such a scale, we should have met with the more obscurity. We see it is so in reality to those who pretend to mount this way. The first sort of matter might perhaps have been seen easily; the second, but darkly; and the third, not at all. This had been the way for the Deity to conceal himself: And this is the view which this Philosophy endeavours to give us. It is equivocal language to speak of rising towards the supreme cause through a scale of material causes. No Philosophy ever yet discovered the second step of the scale. I see a stone fall. I am certain there is but one step here. A fluid that impressed a crushing force on a small piece of matter, would have as much overcome my strength to wade through it, as if I had endeavoured to walk in the bottom of an ocean

See Mystery to Mathematics fly!

In vain! they gaze, turn giddy, rave, and die.

Religion blushing veils her sacred fires,

And unawares Morality expires.

650

Nor public Flame, nor private, dares to shine;

Nor human Spark is left, nor Glimpse divine!

Lo!

REMARKS.

ocean of mercury, or something more dense. Thus we see their second step is a fiction, to divert the attention, and set us a-gazing at something that cannot be seen. The views that we have from this Philosophy are indeed very dark and mysterious. Philosophers speak of not excluding the Deity out of nature, as of a favour: But they endeavour to exclude him from every thing we can point out, to discover him. They endeavour to make us easy, by telling us, he is every where active, and every where present: But at the same time they try to restrain his activity, to quadrate with their hypothesis; and make him present, only that SUBTILE MATTER may exercise his power and knowledge. Nothing can derogate more from the Government and Influences of the Deity."—BAXTER. Appendix to his Inquiry into the nature of the human soul, p. 194.

* WARBURTON.

VER. 645, 646. Physic of Metaphysic, &c.—And Metaphysic calls, &c.] Certain writers, as Malbranche, Norris, and Berkley, have thought it of importance, in order to secure the existence of the soul, to bring in question the reality of body; which they have attempted to do by a very refined metaphysical reasoning: While others of the same party, in order to persuade us of the necessity of a Revelation which promises immortality, have been as anxious to prove that those qualities which are commonly supposed to belong only to an immaterial Being, are but the result from certain dispositions of the particles of matter, and consequently that the soul is naturally mortal. Thus, between their different reasonings, these good men have left us neither Soul nor Body; nor the Sciences of Physics and Metaphysics the least support, by making them depend upon, and go a begging to, one another.

* WARBURTON.

Lo! thy dread Empire, CHAOS! is restor'd ;
 Light dies before thy uncreating word :
 Thy hand, great Anarch! lets the curtain fall ; 655
 And univerfal Darknefs buries All.

REMARKS.

VER. 656. And univerfal Darknefs buries All.] The conclusion is evidently suggested by Shakespear's

“ And darknefs be the burier of the Dead.”

So ends, according to Pope, all knowledge, virtue, art, eloquence, public spirit, and private worth,

“ Nor human spark is left, nor glimpse divine.”

I remember an obscure satire upon the follies of France, in which are these curious lines, “ Unhappy Land, where Truth's kick'd out of doors,

 Where ALL the men are rogues, and women whores!”

The author had the same ideas as Pope, but certainly not so much Poetry.

Can it be thought that this period was enlightened by Young, Thomson, Glover, &c. and many whose characters reflected equal lustre on Religion, Morals, and Philosophy? But such is Satire, when it is not guided by Truth.

By the AUTHOR

A DECLARATION.

WHEREAS certain Haberdashers of Points and Particles, being instigated by the spirit of Pride, and assuming to themselves the name of Critics and Restorers, have taken upon them to adulterate the common and current sense of our Glorious Ancestors, Poets of this Realm, by clipping, coining, defacing the images, mixing their own base alloy, or otherwise falsifying the same; which they publish, utter, and vend as genuine: The said Haberdashers having no right thereto, as neither heirs, executors, administrators, assigns, or in any sort related to such Poets, to all or any of them; Now We, having having carefully revised this our Dunciad, ^a beginning with the words The Mighty Mother, and ending with the words buries All, containing the entire sum of One thousand seven hundred and fifty-four verses, declare every word, figure, point, and comma of this impression to be authentic: And do therefore stricly enjoin and forbid any person or persons whatsoever, to erase, reverse, put between hooks, or by any other means, directly or indirectly, change or mangle any of them. And we do hereby earnestly exhort all our brethren to follow this our Example, which we heartily with our great Predecessors had heretofore set, as a remedy and prevention of all such abuses. Provided always,

^a Read thus confidently, instead of "beginning with the word Books, and ending with the word flies," as formerly it stood: Read also, "containing the entire sum of one thousand seven hundred and fifty-four verses," instead of "one thousand and twelve lines;" such being the initial and final words, and such the true and entire contents, of this Poem.

Thou art to know, Reader! that the first Edition thereof, like that of Milton, was never seen by the Author (though living and not blind): The Editor himself confessed as much in his Preface: And no two poems were ever published in so arbitrary a manner. The Editor of this had as boldly suppressed whole Passages, yea the entire last book, as the Editor of Paradise Lost added and augmented. Milton himself gave but ten books, his Editor twelve; this Author gave four books, his Editor only three. But we have happily done justice to both; and presume we shall live in this our last labour, as long as in any of our others. BENTLEY.

always, that nothing in this Declaration shall be construed to limit the lawful and undoubted right of every subject of this Realm, to judge, censure, or condemn, in the whole or in part, any Poem or Poet whatsoever.

Given under our hand at London this third Day of January, in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred thirty and two.

Declarat' cor' me,
JOHN BARBER, Mayor.

APPENDIX.

I.

P R E F A C E

Prefixed to the five first imperfect Editions of the DUNCIAD, in three books, printed at DUBLIN and LONDON, in octavo and duodecimo, 1727.

The PUBLISHER^a to the READER.

IT will be found a true observation, though somewhat surprizing, that when any scandal is vented against a man of the highest distinction and character, either in the state or literature, the public in general afford

^a The Publisher] Who he was is uncertain; but Edward Ward tells us, in his Preface to Dungen, "that most judges are of opinion this Preface is not of English extraction, but Hibernian," &c. He means it was written by Dr. Swift, who, whether the publisher or not, may be said in a sort to be author of the Poem. For when he, together with Mr. Pope (for reasons specified in the Preface to their Miscellanies) determined to own the most trifling pieces in which they had any hand, and to destroy all that remained in their power; the first sketch of this Poem was snatched from the fire by Dr. Swift, who persuaded his friend to proceed in it, and to him it was therefore inscribed. But the occasion of printing it was as follows:

There was published in those Miscellanies, a Treatise of the Bathos, or Art of Sinking in Poetry, in which was a chapter where the species of bad writers were ranged in classes, and initial letters of names prefixed, for the most part * at Random. But afford it a most quiet reception; and the large part accept it as favourably as if it were some kindness done to themselves: whereas, if a known scoundrel or blockhead but chance to be touched upon, a whole legion is up in arms, and it becomes the common cause of all scribblers, bookfellers, and printers whatsoever.

* Certainly not at Random.

Not to search too deeply into the reason hereof, I will only observe as a fact, that every week for these two months past, the town has been persecuted with ' pamphlets, advertisements, letters, and weekly essays,

such was the Number of poets eminent in that art, that some one or other took every letter to himself. All fell into so violent a fury, that for half a year, or more, the common Newspapers (in most of which they had some property, as being hired writers) were filled with the most abusive falsehoods and scurrilities they could possibly devise; a liberty no ways to be wondered at in those people, and in those papers, that, for many years, during the uncontrouled Licence of the press, had aspersed almost all the great characters of the age; and this with impunity, their own persons and names being utterly secret and obscure. This gave Mr. Pope the thought, that he had now some opportunity of doing good, by detecting and dragging into light these common enemies of mankind; since to invalidate this universal slander, it sufficed to shew what contemptible men were the authors of it. He was not without hopes, that by manifesting the dulness of those who had only malice to recommend them; either the bookfellers would not find their account in employing them, or the men themselves, when discovered, want courage to proceed in so unlawful an occupation. This it was that gave birth to the Dunciad; and he thought it an happiness, that by the late flood of slander on himself, he had acquired such a peculiar right over their Names as was necessary to his design. WARBURTON.

^b Pamphlets, advertisements, &c.] See the list of those anonymous papers, with their dates and authors annexed, inserted before the Poem. WARBURTON.

essays, not only against the wit and writings, but against the character and person of Mr. Pope. And that of all those men who have received pleasure from his works, (which by modest computation may be about a ^c hundred thousand in these kingdoms of England and Ireland; not to mention Jersey, Guernsey, the Orcades, those in the new world, and foreigners who have translated him into their languages,) of all this number not a man hath stood up to say one word in his defence.

The only exception is the ^d Author of the following Poem, who doubtless had either a better insight into the grounds of this clamour, or a better opinion of Mr. Pope's integrity, joined with a greater personal love for him, than any other of his numerous friends and admirers.

Farther, that he was in his peculiar intimacy, appears from the knowledge he manifests of the most private

^c About a hundred thousand] It is surprizing with what stupidity this Preface, which is almost a continued irony, was taken by those authors. All such passages as these were understood by Curl, Cook, Cibber, and others, to be serious. Here the Laureate (Letter to Mr. Pope, p. 9.), "Though I grant the Dunciad a better poem of its kind than ever was writ; yet when I read it with those vain-glorious encumbrances of Notes and Remarks upon it, &c. — it is amazing, that you, who have writ with such masterly spirit upon the ruling Passion, should be so blind a slave to your own, as not to see how far a low avarice of Praise," &c. (taking it for granted that the notes of Scriblerus and others were the Author's own.)

WARBURTON.

^d The Author of the following Poem, &c.] A very plain irony, speaking of Mr. Pope himself.

WARBURTON.

private authors of all the anonymous pieces against him, and from his having in this Poem attacked ^c no man living, who had not before printed, or published, some scandal against this gentleman.

How I came possess'd of it, is no concern to the reader; but it would have been a wrong to him had I detained the publication; since those names which are its chief ornaments die off daily so fast, as must render it too soon unintelligible. If it provoke the Author to give us a more perfect edition, I have my end.

Who he is I cannot say, and (which is a great pity) there is certainly ^f nothing in his style and manner of writing, which can distinguish or discover him: For if it bears any resemblance to that of Mr. Pope, 'tis not improbable but it might be done on purpose, with a view to have it pass for his. But by the frequency of his allusions to Virgil, and a laboured (not to say affected) shortness in imitation of him, I should think him more an admirer of the Roman poet than of the Grecian, and in that not of the same taste with his friend.

I have

^c The publisher in these words went a little too far: but it is certain whatever names the reader finds that are unknown to him, are of such; and the exception is only of two or three, whose dulness, impudent scurrilities, or self-conceit, all mankind agreed to have justly entitled them to a place in the Dunciad. WARBURTON.

^f There is certainly nothing in his style, &c.] This irony had small effect in concealing the Author. The Dunciad, imperfect as it was, had not been published two days, but the whole Town gave it to Mr. Pope. WARBURTON.

I have been well informed, that this work was the labour of full ^s six years of his life, and that he wholly retired himself from all the avocations and pleasures of the world, to attend diligently to its correction and perfection; and six years more he intended to bestow upon it, as it should seem by this verse of Statius, which was cited at the head of his manuscript,

Ob mihi bissexenos multum vigilata per annos, Duncia^h!

Hence also we learn the true title of the Poem; which with the same certainty as we call that of Homer the Iliad, of Virgil the Æneid, of Camoëns the Lusiad, we may pronounce, could have been, and can be no other than

The DUNCIAD.

It

^s The labour of full six years, &c.] This also was honestly and seriously believed by divers gentlemen of the Dunciad. J. Ralph, pref. to Sawney: "We are told it was the labour of six years, with the utmost assiduity and application: It is no great compliment to the Author's sense, to have employed so large a part of his life," &c. So also Ward, pref. to Durgen: "The Dunciad, as the publisher very wisely confesses, cost the Author six years retirement from all the pleasures of life; though it is somewhat difficult to conceive, from either its bulk or beauty, that it could be so long in hatching, &c. But the length of time and closeness of application were mentioned to prepossess the reader with a good opinion of it."

They just as well understood what Scriblerus said of the Poem.

WARBURTON.

^h The prefacer to Curl's Key, p. 3. took this word to be really in Statius: "By a quibble on the word Duncia, the Dunciad is formed." Mr. Ward also follows him in the same opinion.

WARBURTON.

It is styled Heroic, as being doubly so; not only with respect to its nature, which, according to the best rules of the ancients, and strictest ideas of the moderns, is critically such; but also with regard to the heroical disposition and high courage of the writer, who dared to stir up such a formidable, irritable, and implacable race of mortals.

There may arise some obscurity in chronology from the Names in the Poem, by the inevitable removal of some Authors, and insertion of others, in their niches. For whoever will consider the unity of the whole design, will be sensible, that the Poem was not made for these Authors, but these Authors for the Poem. I should judge that they were clapped in as they rose, fresh and fresh, and changed from day to day; in like manner as when the old boughs wither, we thrust new ones into a chimney.

I would not have the reader too much troubled or anxious, if he cannot decypher them; since when he shall have found them out, he will probably know no more of the persons than before.

Yet we judged it better to preserve them as they are, than to change them for fictitious names; by which the fatire would only be multiplied, and applied to many instead of one. Had the Hero, for instance, been called Codrus, how many would have affirmed him to have been Mr. T. Mr. E. Sir R. B. &c. but now all that unjust scandal is saved, by calling him by a name, which by good luck happens to be that of a real person.

II.

A LIST of BOOKS, PAPERS, and VERSES, in which our Author was abused, before the Publication of the DUNCIAD; with the true Names of the Authors.

REFLECTIONS critical and fatirical, on a late Rhapsody, called An Essay on Criticism*. By Mr. Dennis; printed by B. Lintot, price 6d.

A new Rehearfal, or Bays the younger; containing an Examen of Mr. Rowe's plays, and a word or two on Mr. Pope's Rape of the Lock. Anon. [By Charles Gildon.] Printed for J. Roberts, 1714, price 1 s.

Homerides, or a Letter to Mr. Pope, occasioned by his intended translation of Homer. By Sir Iliad Dogrel [Tho. Burnet and G. Duckett, esquires]. Printed for W. Wilkins, 1715, price 9d.

Æfop at the Bear-garden; a vision, in imitation of the Temple of Fame, by Mr. Preston. Sold by John Morphew, 1715, price 6d.

The Catholic Poet, or Protestant Barnaby's Sorrowful Lamentation; a Ballad about Homer's Iliad. By Mrs. Centlivre, and others, 1715, price 1 d.

An Epilogue to a Puppet-shew at Bath, concerning the said Iliad. By George Duckett, esq. Printed by E. Curl.

* Pope was the aggressor, by his character of Appius.

A complete Key to the What d'ye call it. Anon.
[By Griffin a player, supervised by Mr. Th——]
Printed by J. Roberts, 1715.

A true Character of Mr. P. and his Writings, in a letter to a friend. Anon. [Dennis] Printed for S.
Popping, 1716, price 3d.

The Confederates, a Farce. By Joseph Gay. [J. D.
Breval] Printed for R. Burleigh, 1717, price 1s.

Remarks upon Mr. Pope's translation of Homer ; with two letters concerning the Windsor Forest, and the Temple of Fame. By Mr. Dennis, printed for
E. Curl, 1717, price 1s. 6d.

Satires on the translators of Homer, Mr. P. and Mr. T. Anon. [Bez. Morris] 1717, price 6d.

The Triumvirate; or, a Letter from Palæmon to Celia at Bath. Anon. [Leonard Welsted] 1711, folio, price 1s.

The Battle of Poets; an heroic poem. By Tho.
Cooke, printed for J. Roberts, folio, 1725.

Memoirs of Lilliput. Anon. [Eliza Haywood] octavo, printed in 1727.

An Essay on Criticism, in prose. By the Author of the Critical History of England [J. Oldmixon] octavo, printed 1728.

Gulliveriana and Alexandriana; with an ample preface and critique on Swift and Pope's Miscellanies.
By Jonathan Smedley, printed by J. Roberts, octavo, 1728.

Characters

Characters of the Times; or, an account of the writings, characters, &c. of several gentlemen libelled by S— and P—, in a late Miscellany, octavo, 1728.

Remarks on Mr. Pope's Rape of the Lock, in letters to a friend. By Mr. Dennis; written in 1724, though not printed till 1728, octavo.

VERSES, LETTERS, ESSAYS, OR ADVERTISEMENTS, in the PUBLIC PRINTS.

British Journal, Nov. 25, 1727. A Letter on Swift and Pope's Miscellanies. [Writ by M. Concanen.]

Daily Journal, March 18, 1728. A Letter by Philomauri. James-Moore Smith.

Id. March 29. A Letter about Therfites; accusing the Author of difaffection to the Government. By James-Moore Smith.

Mist's Weekly Journal, March 30. An Essay on the Arts of a Poet's sinking in reputation; or, a Supplement to the Art of Sinking in Poetry. [Supposed by Mr. Theobald.]

Daily Journal, April 3. A Letter under the name of Philo-ditto. By James-Moore Smith.

Flying-Post, April 4. A Letter against Gulliver and Mr. P. [By Mr. Oldmixon.]

Daily Journal, April 5. An Auction of Goods at Twickenham. By James-Moore Smith.

The Flying Post, April 6. A Fragment of a Treatise upon Swift and Pope. By Mr. Oldmixon.

The

The Senator, April 9. On the fame. By Edward Roome.

Daily Journal, April 8. Advertisement by James-Moore Smith.

Flying Post, April 13. Verses against Dr. Swift, and against Mr. P—'s Homer. By J. Oldmixon.

Daily Journal, April 23. Letter about the translation of the character of Therfites in Homer. By Thomas Cooke, &c.

Mist's Weekly Journal, April 27. A Letter of Lewis Theobald.

Daily Journal, May 11. A Letter against Mr. P. at large. Anon. [John Dennis.]

All these were afterwards reprinted in a pamphlet, entitled, A Collection of all the Verses, Effays, Letters, and Advertisements occasioned by Mr. Pope and Swift's Miscellanies, prefaced by Concanen, Anonymous, octavo, and printed for A. Moore, 1728, price 1s. Others of an elder date, having lain as waste Paper many years, were, upon the publication of the Dunciad, brought out, and their Authors betrayed by the mercenary Booksellers (in hopes of some possibility of vending a few) by advertising them in this manner—"The Confederates, a farce. By Capt. Breval (for which he was put into the Dunciad). An Epilogue to Powel's Puppet-show. By Col. Duckett (for which he was put into the Dunciad). Effays, &c. By Sir Richard Blackmore. (N. B. It was for a passage of this book that Sir Richard was put into the Dunciad.)" And so of others.

AFTER THE DUNCIAD, 1728.

An Essay on the Dunciad, octavo, printed for J. Roberts. [In this book, p. 9. it was formally declared, "That the complaint of the aforesaid Libels and Advertifements was forged and untrue; that all mouths had been silent, except in Mr. Pope's praise; and nothing against him published, but by Mr. Theobald."]

Sawney, in blank verse, occasioned by the Dunciad; with a Critique on that poem. By J. Ralph, [a person never mentioned in it at first, but inserted after,] printed for J. Roberts, octavo.

A complete Key to the Dunciad. By E. Curl. 12mo. price 6d.

A second and third edition of the same, with additions, 12mo.

The Popiad. By E. Curl, extracted from J. Dennis, Sir Richard Blackmore, &c. 12mo. price 6d.

The Curliad. By the same E. Curl.

The Female Dunciad. Collected by the same Mr. Curl, 12mo. price 6d. With the Metamorphosis of P. into a Stinging-Nettle. By Mr. Foxton, 12mo.

The Metamorphosis of Scriblerus into Snarlerus. By J. Smedley, printed for A. Moore, folio, price 6d.

The Dunciad dissected. By Curl and Mrs. Thomas, 12mo.

An

An Essay on the Taste and Writings of the present times. Said to be writ by a gentleman of C. C. C. Oxon, printed for J. Roberts, octavo.

The Arts of Logic and Rhetoric, partly taken from Bouhours, with new Reflections, &c. By John Oldmixon, octavo.

Remarks on the Dunciad. By Mr. Dennis, dedicated to Theobald, octavo.

A Supplement to the Profund. Anon. By Matthew Concanen, octavo.

Mist's Weekly Journal, June 8. A long Letter, signed W. A. Writ by some or other of the Club of Theobald, Dennis, Moore, Concanen, Cooke, who for some time held constant weekly meetings for these kind of performances.

Daily Journal, June 11. A Letter signed Philo-scriblerus, on the name of Pope—Letter to Mr. Theobald, in verse, signed B. M. [Bezaleel Morris] against Mr. P—. Many other little epigrams about this time in the same papers, by James Moore, and others.

Mist's Journal, June 22. A Letter by Lewis Theobald.

Flying Post, August 8. Letter on Pope and Swift.

Daily Journal, August 8. Letter charging the Author of the Dunciad with Treason.

Durgen : a plain satire on a pompous satirist. By Edward Ward, with a little of James Moore.

Apollo's Maggot in his Cups. By E. Ward.

Gullive-

Gulliveriana fecunda. Being a Collection of many of the Libels in the Newspapers, like the former Volume, under the same title, by Smedley. Advertised in the Craftsman, Nov. 9, 1728, with this remarkable promise, that “any thing which any body should send as Mr. Pope’s or Dr. Swift’s, should be inserted and published as theirs.”

Pope Alexander’s supremacy and infallibility examined, &c. By George Duckett, and John Dennis, quarto.

Dean ^k Jonathan’s Paraphrase on the 4th chapter of Genesis. Writ by E. Roome, folio, 1729.

Labeo. A paper of verses by Leonard Welsted, which after came into One Epistle, and was published by James Moore, quarto, 1730. Another part of it came out in Welsted’s own name, under the just title of Dulness and Scandal, folio, 1731.

There have been since published,

Verses on the Imitator of Horace. By a Lady ^l [or between a Lady, a Lord, and a Court-Squire.] Printed for J. Roberts, folio.

An Epistle ^m from a Nobleman to a Doctor of Divinity, from Hampton-court [Lord H——y.] Printed for J. Roberts also, folio.

^k This is a ludicrous comparison between Pope and Theobald. Pope is called the son of Alexander the hatter. An intrigue is mentioned between Pope and his old nurse.

^l Lady Montagu.

^m Pope was the aggressor in both these instances, by his characters of Lord Fanny and Sappho.

A Letter^a from Mr. Cibber to Mr. Pope. Printed for W. Lewis in Covent Garden, octavo.

^a This is the celebrated Letter which gave Pope the greatest uneasiness.

THIS enumeration of the various pamphlets, which on every side pestered Pope, is curious, as shewing how much every thing that was said against him, whilst he affected to despise it, really nettled him. He would not have taken so much pains, if they had not been magnified into importance by his spleen and anger. In fact, Pope was so worshipped by his admirers, that, to use an expression of Bolingbroke on another occasion, "what was not flattery, was to him a libel." These things are now forgotten, with the little personal feuds that gave rise to them. They were the ephemera that attended the course of a glittering stream.

Pope, it must be confessed, often provoked their petty hostility, and then complained, that such a quiet man as himself, was not suffered to be at peace!

III.

ADVERTISEMENT

To the FIRST EDITION with Notes, in Quarto, 1729.

IT will be sufficient to say of this edition, that the reader has here a much more correct and complete copy of the DUNCIAD, than has hitherto appeared. I cannot answer but some mistakes may have slipped into it, but a vast number of others will be prevented by the names being now not only set at length, but justified by the authorities and reasons given. I make no doubt, the Author's own motive to use real rather than feigned names, was his care to preserve the innocent from any false application; whereas in the former editions, which had no more than the initial letters, he was made, by keys printed here, to hurt the inoffensive; and (what was worse) to abuse his friends, by an impression at Dublin.

The Commentary which attends this Poem was sent me from several hands, and consequently must be unequally written; yet will have one advantage over most commentaries, that it is not made upon conjectures, or at a remote distance of time: And the reader cannot but derive one pleasure from the very Obscurity of the persons it treats of, that it partakes of the nature of a Secret, which most people love to be let into, though the men or the things be ever so inconsiderable or trivial.

Of the Persons it was judged proper to give some account: For since it is only in this monument that they must expect to survive, (and here survive they will, as long as the English tongue shall remain such as it was in the reigns of Queen ANNE and King GEORGE,) it seemed but humanity to bestow a word or two upon each, just to tell what he was, what he writ, when he lived, and when he died.

If a word or two more are added upon the chief offenders, 'tis only as a paper pinned upon the breast, to mark the enormities for which they suffered; left the correction only should be remembered, and the crime forgotten.

In some articles it was thought sufficient, barely to transcribe from Jacob, Curl, and other writers of their own rank, who were much better acquainted with them than any of the authors of this comment can pretend to be. Most of them had drawn each other's characters on certain occasions; but the few here inserted are all that could be saved from the general destruction of such works.

Of the part of Scriblerus I need say nothing; his manner is well enough known, and approved by all but those who are too much concerned to be judges.

The

The Imitations of the Ancients are added to gratify those who either never read, or may have forgotten them; together with some of the parodies and allusions to the most excellent of the Moderns. If, from the frequency of the former, any man think the Poem too much a Cento, our Poet will but appear to have done the same thing in jest which Boileau did in earnest; and upon which Vida, Fracastorius, and many of the most eminent Latin Poets, professedly valued themselves.

IV.

ADVERTISEMENT

To the FIRST EDITION of the FOURTH BOOK of the DUNCIAD, when printed feperately in the Year 1742.

WE apprehend it can be deemed no injury to the Author of the three firft Books of the Dunciad, that we publifh this Fourth. It was found merely by accident, in taking a furvey of the Library of a late eminent Nobleman; but in fo blotted a condition, and in fo many detached pieces, as plainly fhewed it to be not only incorrect, but unfinifhed. That the Author of the three firft Books had a defign to extend and complete his Poem in this manner, appears from the Differtation prefixed to it, where it is faid, that the defign is more extenfive, and that we may expect other epifodes to complete it: And from the declaration in the Argument to the third Book, that the accom-plifhment of the prophecies therein would be the theme hereafter of a greater Dunciad. But whether or no he be the author of this, we declare ourfelves ignorant. If he be, we are no more to be blamed for the publication of it, than Tucca and Varius for that of the laft fix books of the Æneid, though perhaps inferior to the former.

If

If any person be possessed of a more perfect copy of this work, or of any other fragments of it, and will communicate them to the Publisher, we shall make the next edition more complete: In which we also promise to insert any Criticisms that shall be published (if at all to the purpose) with the Names of the Authors; or any letter sent us (though not to the purpose) shall yet be printed under the title of Epistolæ Obscurorum Virorum; which, together with some others of the same kind formerly laid by for that end, may make no unpleasant addition to the future impressions of this Poem.

V.

ADVERTISEMENT

To the complete EDITION of 1743.

I HAVE long had a design of giving some sort of Notes on the works of this Poet. Before I had the happiness of his acquaintance, I had written a commentary on his Essay on Man, and have since finished another on the Essay on Criticism. There was one already on the Dunciad, which had met with general approbation: but I still thought some additions were wanting (of a more serious kind) to the humorous notes of Scriblerus, and even to those written by Mr. Cleland, Dr. Arbuthnot, and others. I had lately the pleasure to pass some months with the Author in the country, where I prevailed upon him to do what I had long desired, and favour me with his explanation of several passages in his works. It happened, that just at that juncture was published a ridiculous book against him, full of Personal Reflections, which furnished him with a lucky opportunity of improving This Poem, by giving it the only thing it wanted, a more considerable Hero. He was always sensible of its defect in that particular, and owned he had let it pass with the Hero it had, purely for want of a better; not entertaining the least expectation that such an one was reserved for this Post, as has since obtained the Laurel: But since that had happened,

happened, he could no longer deny this justice either to him or the Dunciad.

And yet I will venture to say, there was another motive which had still more weight with our Author: This person was one, who from every Folly (not to say Vice) of which another would be ashamed, has constantly derived a Vanity; and therefore was the man in the world who would least be hurt by it.

W. W.

VI.

ADVERTISEMENT

Printed in the JOURNALS, 1730.

WHEREAS, upon occasion of certain Pieces relating to the Gentlemen of the Dunciad, some have been willing to suggest, as if they looked upon them as an abuse: we can do no less than own, it is our opinion, that to call these Gentlemen bad authors is no sort of abuse, but a great truth. We cannot alter this opinion without some reason; but we promise to do it in respect to every person who thinks it an injury to be represented as no Wit, or Poet, provided he procures a Certificate of his being really such, from any three of his companions in the Dunciad, or from Mr. Dennis singly, who is esteemed equal to any three of the number.

VII.

A

PARALLEL

OF THE

C H A R A C T E R S

OF

Mr. DRYDEN and Mr. POPE,

As drawn by certain of their Contemporaries.

Mr. DRYDEN,

His POLITICS, RELIGION, MORALS.

MR. Dryden is a mere renegado from monarchy, poetry, and good sense^a. A true Republican son of monarchical Church^b. A Republican Atheist^c. Dryden was from the beginning an ἀλλοπρόσαλλος, and I doubt not will continue so to the last^d.

In the poem called Abfalom and Achitophel are notoriously traduced, The KING, the QUEEN, the LORDS, and GENTLEMEN, not only their honourable persons exposed,

^a Milbourn on Dryden's Virgil, 8vo. 1698. p. 6.

^b Page 38.

^c Page 192.

^d Page 8.

VII.
 A PARALLEL
 OF THE CHARACTERS
 OF
 Mr. POPE and Mr. DRYDEN,
 As drawn by certain of their Contemporaries.

Mr. POPE,

HIS POLITICS, RELIGION, MORALS.

MR. Pope is an open and mortal enemy to his country, and the commonwealth of learning^a. Some call him a popish whig, which is directly inconsistent^b. Pope, as a papist, must be a tory and high flyer^c. He is both a whig and tory^d.

He hath made it his custom to cackle to more than one party in their own sentiments^e.

In

^a Dennis Rem. on the Rape of the Lock, pref. p. xii.

^b Dunciad dissected. ^c Pref. to Gulliveriana.

^d Dennis, Character of Mr. P.

^e Theobald, Letter in Miff's Journal, June 22, 1728.

exposed, but the whole NATION and its REPRESENTATIVES notoriously libelled. It is scandalum magnatum, yea of MAJESTY itself^e.

He looks upon God's gospel as a foolish fable, like the Pope, to whom he is a pitiful purveyor^f. His very Christianity may be questioned^g. He ought to expect more severity than other men, as he is most unmerciful in his reflections on others^h. With as good a right as his Holiness, he sets up for poetical infallibilityⁱ.

Mr. DRYDEN only a Versifier.

His whole Libel is all bad matter, beautify'd (which is all that can be said of it) with good metre^k. Mr. Dryden's genius did not appear in any thing more than his Versification, and whether he is to be ennobled for that only, is a question^l.

Mr. DRYDEN'S VIRGIL.

Tonson calls it Dryden's Virgil, to shew that this is not that Virgil so admired in the Augustean age; but a Virgil of another stamp, a silly, impertinent, non-sensical

^e Whip and Key, 4to. printed for R. Janeway, 1682. Preface.

^f Ibid.

^g Milbourn, p. 9.

^h Ibid. p. 175.

ⁱ Page 39.

^k Whip and Key, Pref.

^l Oldmixon, Essay on Criticism, p. 84.

In his Miscellanies the Persons abused are, The KING, the QUEEN, his late MAJESTY, both Houses of PARLIAMENT, the Privy-Council, the Bench of BISHOPS, the Established CHURCH, the present MINISTRY, &c. To make Sense of some passages, they must be construed into ROYAL SCANDAL^f.

He is a Popish Rhymester, bred up with a contempt of the Sacred Writings^g. His Religion allows him to destroy Heretics, not only with his pen, but with fire and sword; and such were all those unhappy Wits whom he sacrificed to his accursed Popish Principles^h. It deserved Vengeance to suggest, that Mr. Pope had less infallibility than his Namefake at Romeⁱ.

Mr. POPE only a Versifier.

The smooth numbers of the Dunciad are all that recommend it, nor has it any other merit^k. It must be owned that he hath got a notable knack of rhyming and writing smooth verse^l.

Mr. POPE'S HOMER.

The Homer which Lintot prints, does not talk like Homer, but like Pope; and he who translated him,
one

^f List at the end of a Collection of Verses, Letters, Advertisements, 8vo. Printed for A. More, 1728, and the Preface to it, p.6.

^g Dennis's Rem. on Homer, p. 27. ^h Preface to Gulliveriana, p. 11.

ⁱ Dedication to the Collection of Verses, Letters, &c. p. 9. ^k Mist's Journal of June 8, 1728.

^l Character of Mr. P. and Dennis on Hom.

senfical writer ^m. None but a Bavius, a Mævius, or a Bathyllus, carped at Virgil; and none but such unthinking Vermin admire his Translator ⁿ. It is true, soft and easy lines might become Ovid's Epistles or Art of Love—But Virgil, who is all great and majestic, &c. requires strength of lines, weight of words, and closeness of expression; not an ambling Muse running on Carpet-ground, and shod as lightly as a Newmarket racer.—He has numberless faults in his Author's meaning, and in propriety of expression ^o.

Mr. DRYDEN understood no Greek nor Latin.

Mr. Dryden was once, I have heard, at Westminster-school: Dr. Busby would have whipt him for so childish a Paraphrase ^p. The meanest Pedant in England would whip a Lubber of twelve for construing so absurdly ^q. The Translator is mad, every line betrays his Stupidity ^r. The faults are innumerable, and convince me that Mr. Dryden did not, or would not understand his Author ^s. This shews how fit Mr. D. may be to translate Homer! A mistake in a single letter might fall on the Printer well enough, but εἰχωρῆ for ἰχωρῆ must be the error of the Author: Nor had he art enough to correct it at the Press ^t. Mr. Dryden writes for the Court Ladies——He writes for the Ladies, and not for use ^u.

The

^m Milbourn, p. 2.

ⁿ Page 35.

^o Page 22, and 102.

^p Milbourn, p. 72.

^q Page 203.

^r Page 78.

^s Page 206.

^t Page 19.

^u Page 144, 190.

one would swear, had a Hill in Tipperary for his Parnassus, and a Puddle in some Bog for his Hippocrene^m. He has no admirers among those that can distinguish, discern, and judgeⁿ.

He hath a knack at smooth verse, but without either Genius or good Sense, or any tolerable knowledge of English. The qualities which distinguish Homer are the beauties of his Diction and the Harmony of his Versification.—But this little Author, who is so much in vogue, has neither Sense in his Thoughts, nor English in his Expressions^o.

Mr. POPE understood no Greek.

He hath undertaken to translate Homer from the Greek, of which he knows not one word, into English, of which he understands as little^p. I wonder how this Gentleman would look, should it be discovered, that he has not translated ten verses together in any book of Homer with justice to the Poet, and yet he dares reproach his fellow-writers with not understanding Greek^q. He has stuck so little to his Original as to have his knowledge in Greek called in question^r. I should be glad to know which it is of all Homer's Excellencies which has so delighted the Ladies, and the Gentlemen who judge like Ladies^s.

But

^m Dennis Rem. on Pope's Homer, p. 12.

ⁿ Ibid. p. 14.

^o Character of Mr. P. p. 17. and Remarks on Homer, p. 91.

^p Dennis's Rem. on Homer, p. 12.

^q Daily Journ.

April 23, 1728.

^r Suppl. to the Profund, Pref.

^s Oldmixon, Essay on Criticism, p. 66.

The Translator puts in a little burlesque now and then into Virgil, for a Ragout to his cheated Subscribers^w.

Mr. DRYDEN tricked his Subscribers.

I wonder that any man, who could not but be conscious of his own unfitness for it, should go to amuse the learned world with such an undertaking! A man ought to value his Reputation more than money; and not to hope that those who can read for themselves, will be imposed upon, merely by a partially and unreasonably celebrated Name^x. Poetis quidlibet audendi shall be Mr. Dryden's Motto, though it should extend to picking of Pockets^y.

Names bestowed on Mr. DRYDEN.

An APE.] A crafty Ape dressed up in a gaudy gown—Whips put into an Ape's paw, to play pranks with—None but Apish and Papish brats will heed him^z.

An ASS.] A Camel will take upon him no more burden than is sufficient for his strength, but there is another beast that crouches under all^a.

A FROG.] Poet Squab endued with Poet Maro's Spirit! an ugly, croaking kind of Vermin, which would swell to the bulk of an Ox^b.

A COWARD.]

^w Page 67.

^x Page 192.

^y Page 125.

^z Whip and Key, Pref.

^a Milb. p. 105.

^b Page 11.

But he has a notable talent at Burlesque; his genius slides so naturally into it, that he had burlesqued Homer without designing it †.

Mr. POPE tricked his Subscribers.

'Tis indeed somewhat bold, and almost prodigious, for a single man to undertake such a work: But 'tis too late to dissuade by demonstrating the madness of the Project. The Subscribers' expectations have been raised in proportion to what their Pockets have been drained of^u. Pope has been concerned in Jobs, and hired out his Name to Booksellers^v.

Names bestowed on Mr. POPE.

An APE.] Let us take the initial letter of his Christian name, and the initial and final letters of his surname, viz. APE, and they give you the same Idea of an Ape as his Face^x, &c.

An Ass.] It is my duty to pull off the Lion's skin from this little Ass^y.

A FROG.] A squab short Gentleman—a little creature, that, like the Frog in the Fable, swells, and is angry that it is not allowed to be as big as an Ox^z.

A COWARD.]

† Dennis's Rem. p. 28.

^u Homerides, p. 1, &c.

^w British Journ. Nov. 25, 1727.

^x Dennis, Daily Journal,

May 11, 1728. ^y Dennis, Rem. on Hom. Pref.

^z Dennis's Rem. on the Rape of the Lock, Pref. p. 9.

A COWARD.] A Clinias or a Damætas, or a Man of Mr. Dryden's own Courage^c.

A KNAVE.] Mr. Dryden has heard of Paul, the Knave of Jesus Christ: And, if I mistake not, I've read somewhere of John Dryden, Servant to his Majesty^d.

A FOOL.] Had he not been such a self-conceited Fool^e.—Some great Poets are positive Blockheads^f.

A THING.] So little a Thing as Mr. Dryden^g.

^c Page 176.

^d Page 57.

^e Whip and Key, Pref.

^f Milbourn, p. 34.

^g Ibid. p. 35.

A COWARD.] A lurking way-laying coward ^a.

A KNAVE.] He is one whom God and Nature have marked for want of common honesty ^b.

A FOOL.] Great Fools will be christened by the names of great Poets, and Pope will be called Homer ^c.

A THING.] A little abject Thing ^d.

^a Char. of Mr. P. page 3.

^b Ibid.

^c Dennis, Rem. on Homer, p 37.

^d Ibid. p. 8.

I N D E X

O F

PERSONS celebrated in this POEM.

[The first Number shews the BOOK, the second the VERSE.]

- A
- AMBROSE Philips, i. 105. iii. 326.
Attila, iii. 92.
Alaric, iii. 91.
Alma Mater, iii. 338.
Annius, an Antiquary, iv. 347.
Arnal, William, ii. 315.
- B
- Blackmore, Sir Richard, i. 104. ii. 268.
Befaleel Morris, ii. 126. iii. 168.
Banks, i. 146.
Broome, ibid.
Bond, ii. 126.
Brown, iii. 28.
Bladen, iv. 560.
Budgel, Esq. ii. 397.
Bentley, Richard, iv. 201.
Bentley, Thomas, ii. 205.
Boyer, Abel, ii. 413.
Bland, a Gazetteer, i. 231.
Breval, J. Durant, ii. 126. 238.
Benlowes, iii. 21.
Bavius, ibid.
Burmannus, iv. 237.
Benson, William, Esq. iii. 325. iv. 110.
Burgerfdick, iv. 198.
Bœotians, iii. 50.
- Bruin and Bears, i. 101.
Bear and Fiddle, i. 224.
- C
- Cibber, Colley, Hero of the Poem, passim.
Cibber, jun. iii. 139. 326.
Caxton, William, i. 149.
Curl, Edm. i. 40. ii. 3. 58. 167, &c.
Cooke, Thomas, ii. 138.
Concanen, Matthew, ii. 299.
Centlivre, Sufannan, ii. 411.
Cæsar in Egypt, i. 251
Chi Ho-am-ti, emperor of China, iii. 75.
Crouzaz, iv. 198.
Codrus, ii. 144.
- D
- De Foe, Daniel, i. 103. ii. 147.
De Foe, Norton, ii. 415.
De Lyra, or Harpsfield, i. 153.
Dennis, John, i. 106. ii. 239. iii. 173.
Dunton, John, ii. 144.
Durfey, iii. 146.
Dutchmen, ii. 405. iii. 51.
Doctors, at White's, i. 203.
Douglas, iv. 394.

I N D E X.

E

Eufden, Laurence, Poet Laureate, i. 104.
 Eliza Haywood, ii. 157, &c.

F

Fleckno, Richard, ii. 2.
 Faustus, Dr. iii. 233.
 Fleetwood, iv. 326.
 Free-Masons, iv. 576.
 French Cooks, iv. 553.

G

Gildon, Charles, i. 296.
 Goode, Barn. iii. 153.
 Goths, iii. 90.
 Gazetteers, i. 215. ii. 314.
 Gregorians and Gormogons, iv. 575.

H

Holland, Philemon, i. 154.
 Hearne, Thomas, iii. 185.
 Horneck, Philip, iii. 152.
 Haywood, Eliza, ii. 157, &c.
 Howard, Edward, i. 297.
 Henley, John, the Orator, ii. 2. 425. iii. 199, &c.
 Huns, iii. 90.
 Heywood, John, i. 98.
 Harpsfield, i. 153.
 Hays, iv. 560.

J

John, King, i. 252.
 James I. iv. 176.
 Jacob, Giles, iii. 149.
 Janffen, a gamester, iv. 326.

K

Knight, Robert, iv. 561.
 Kuster, iv. 237.

L

Lintot, Bernard, i. 40. ii. 53.
 Law, William, ii. 413.
 Log, King, i. lin. ult.

M

More, James, ii. 50, &c.
 Morris, Befaleel, ii. 126. iii. 168.
 Mist, Nathaniel, i. 208.
 Milbourn, Luke, ii. 349.
 Mahomet, iii. 97.
 Mears, William, ii. 125. iii. 28.
 Motteux, Peter, ii. 412.
 Monks, iii. 52.
 Mandevil, ii. 414.
 Morgan, ibid.
 Montalto, iv. 105.
 Mummius, an antiquary, iv. 371.

N

Newcastle, Duchefs of, i. 141.
 Nonjuror, i. 253.

O

Ogilvy, John, i. 141. 328.
 Oldmixon, John, ii. 281.
 Ozell, John, i. 285.
 Ostrogoths, iii. 93.
 Omar, the Caliph, iii. 81.
 Owls, i. 271. 290. iii. 54.
 —Athenian, iv. 362.
 Osborne, bookfeller, ii. 167.
 Osborne, mother, ii. 312.

P

Prynn, William, i. 103.
 Philips, Ambrose, i. 105. iii. 326.
 Paridel, iv. 341.

Quarles.

I N D E X.

Q

Quarles, Francis, i. 140.
 Querno, Camillo, ii. 15.

R

Ralph, James, i. 216. iii. 165.
 Roome, Edward, iii. 152.
 Ridley, Tho. iii. 327.
 Ridpath, George, i. 208. ii.
 149.
 Roper, Abel, ii. 149.
 Rich, iii. 261.

S

Settle, Elkanah, i. 90. 146. iii.
 37.
 Smedley, Jonathan, ii. 291, &c.
 Shadwell, Thomas, i. 240. iii.
 22.
 Scholiasts, iv. 231.
 Silenus, iv. 492.
 Sooterkins, i. 126.

T

Tate, i. 105. 238.
 Theobald, or Tibbald, i. 133,
 286.
 Tutchin, John, ii. 148.

Toland, John, ii. 399. iii. 212.
 Tindal, Dr. ii. 399. iii. 212.
 iv. 492.
 Taylor, John, the Water-Poet,
 iii. 19.

V

Vandals, iii. 86.
 Visigoths, iii. 94.

W.

Walpole, [late Sir Robert] praised by our Author, ii. 314.
 Withers, George, i. 296.
 Wynkin de Werde, i. 149.
 Ward, Edward, i. 233. iii. 34.
 Webster, ii. 258.
 Whitfield, ibid.
 Warner, Thomas, ii. 125.
 Wilkins, ibid.
 Wellsted, Leonard, ii. 207. iii.
 170.
 Woolton, Thomas, iii. 212.
 Wormius, iii. 188.
 Waffe, iv. 237.
 Walker, Hat-bearer to Bentley,
 iv. 206. 273.

THAT the Reader may see at one view, the nature, conduct, and coherence of this Poem, how perfect it was in three books, and how much it suffered, and was disfigured, by a fourth book, and by a new hero, the Dunciad is here added, as it stood in the quarto edition, 1728.

WARTON.

THE
D U N C I A D :

TO
DR. JONATHAN SWIFT.

ARGUMENT TO BOOK the FIRST.

THE Proposition, the Invocation, and the Inscription. Then the Original of the great Empire of Dulness, and cause of the continuance thereof. The beloved seat of the Goddess is described, with her chief attendants and officers, her functions, operations, and effects. Then the Poem hastes into the midst of things, presenting her on the evening of a Lord Mayor's day, revolving the long succession of her sons, and the glories past and to come. She fixes her eye on Tibbald to be the instrument of that great event which is the Subject of the Poem. He is described pensive in his study, giving up the cause, and apprehending the period of her empire from the old age of the present monarch Settle: Wherefore debating whether to betake himself to Law or Politicks, he raises an altar of proper books, and (making first his solemn prayer and declaration) purposes thereon to sacrifice all his unsuccessful writings. As the pile is kindled, the Goddess beholding the flame from her seat, seat, flies in person, and puts it out, by casting upon it the poem of Thule. She forthwith reveals herself to him, transports him to her Temple, unfolds her arts, and initiates him into her mysteries; then announcing the death of Settle that night, anoints, and proclaims him Successor.

ARGUMENT.

B O O K I.

BOOKS and the Man I sing, the first who brings
 The Smithfield Muses to the Ear of Kings.
 Say, great Patricians ! (since yourselves inspire
 These wond'rous works : so Jove and Fate require)
 Say from what cause, in vain decry'd and curst, 5
 Still Dunce the second reigns like Dunce the first.

In eldest time, e'er mortals writ or read,
 E'er Pallas issu'd from the Thund'rer's head,
 Dulness o'er all possess'd her ancient right,
 Daughter of Chaos and eternal Night : 10
 Fate in their dotage this fair ideot gave,
 Gross as her fire, and as her mother grave,
 Laborious, heavy, busy, bold, and blind,
 She rul'd in native Anarchy, the mind.

Still her old empire to confirm, she tries, 15
 For born a Goddess, Dulness never dies.

O THOU ! whatever title please thine ear,
 Dean, Drapier, Bickerstaff, or Gulliver,
 Whether thou chuse Cervantes' serious air,
 Or laugh and shake in Rab'lais easy Chair, 20
 Or praise the Court, or magnify Mankind,
 Or thy griev'd Country's copper chains unbind ;
 From thy Bæotia tho' Her Pow'r retires,
 Grieve not, my SWIFT ! at ought our realm acquires,

Here

Here pleas'd behold her mighty wings out-spread, 25
To hatch a new Saturnian Age of Lead.

Where wave the tatter'd ensigns of Rag-fair,
A yawning ruin hangs and nods in air ;
Keen, hollow winds howl thro' the bleak recess,
Emblem of Music caus'd by Emptiness. 30

Here in one bed two shiv'ring Sisters lye,
The Cave of Poverty and Poetry.

This, the Great Mother dearer held than all
The clubs of Quidnunc's, or her own Guild-hall.
Here stood her Opium, here she nurs'd her Owls, 35
And destin'd here the imperial seat of fools.

Hence springs each weekly Muse, the living boast
Of Curl's chaste press, and Lintot's rubric post,
Hence hymning Tyburn's elegiac lay,
Hence the soft sing-song on Cecilia's day, 40
Sepulchral Lyes, our holy walls to grace,
And New-year Odes, and all the Grubstreet race.

'Twas here in clouded majesty she shone ;
Four guardian Virtues, round, support her throne ;
Fierce champion Fortitude, that knows no fears 45
Of hisses, blows, or want, or loss of ears :
Calm Temperance, whose blessings those partake
Who hunger, and who thirst, for scribbling sake :
Prudence, whose glass presents th' approaching jayl :
Poetic Justice, with her lifted scale ; 50
Where, in nice balance, truth with gold she weighs,
And solid pudding against empty praise.

Here she beholds the Chaos dark and deep,
Where nameless Somethings in their causes sleep,

Till

Book I. THE DUNCIAD. 383

Till genial Jacob, or a warm Third-day 55
Call forth each mass, a poem, or a play :
How hints, like spawn, scarce quick in embryo lie,
How new-born nonsense first is taught to cry,
Maggots half-form'd, in rhyme exactly meet,
And learn to crawl upon poetic feet. 60
Here one poor word a hundred clenches makes,
And ductile dulness new meanders takes ;
There motley Images her fancy strike,
Figures ill-pair'd, and Similies unlike.
She sees a Mob of Metaphors advance, 65
Pleas'd with the madness of the mazy dance :
How Tragedy and Comedy embrace ;
How Farce and Epic get a jumbled race ;
How Time himself stands still at her command,
Realms shift their place, and Ocean turns to land. 70
Here gay Description Ægypt glads with show'rs,
Or gives to Zembla fruits, to Barca flow'rs ;
Glitt'ring with ice here hoary hills are seen,
There painted vallies of eternal green,
On cold December fragrant chaplets blow, 75
And heavy harvests nod beneath the snow.

All these and more, the cloud-compelling Queen
Beholds thro' fogs, that magnify the scene :
She, tinsel'd o'er in robes of varying hues,
With self-applause her wild creation views, 80
Sees momentary monsters rise and fall,
And with her own fools-colours gilds them all.

'Twas on the day, when Thorold, rich and grave,
Like Cimon triumph'd both on land and wave : 84

(Pomps

(Pomps without guilt, of bloodless swords and maces,
Glad chains, warm furs, broad banners, and broad
faces)

Now Night descending, the proud scene was o'er,
But liv'd, in Settle's numbers, one day more.
Now May'rs and Shrieves all hush'd and fatiate lay,
Yet eat, in dreams, the custard of the day; 90
While pensive Poets painful vigils keep,
Sleepless themselves to give their readers sleep.
Much to the mindful Queen the feast recalls
What City Swans once sung within the walls;
Much she revolves their arts, their ancient praise, 95
And sure succession down from Heywood's days.
She saw with joy the line immortal run,
Each fire impress'd and glaring in his son;
So watchful Bruin forms with plastic care
Each growing lump, and brings it to a Bear. 100
She saw old Pryn in restless Daniel shine,
And Eusden eke out Blackmore's endless line;
She saw slow Philips creep like Tate's poor page,
And all the mighty Mad in Dennis rage.

In each she marks her image full express'd, 105
But chief, in Tibbald's monster-breeding breast;
Sees Gods with Dæmons in strange league engage,
And earth, and heav'n, and hell her battles wage.

She ey'd the Bard, where supperless he fate,
And pin'd, unconscious of his rising fate; 110
Studious he fate, with all his books around,
Sinking from thought to thought, a vast profound!

Plung'd

Plung'd for his sense, but found no bottom there ;
 Then writ, and flounder'd on, in mere despair.
 He roll'd his eyes that witness'd huge dismay, 115
 Where yet unpawn'd, much learned lumber lay :
 Volumes, whose size the space exactly fill'd,
 Or which fond authors were so good to gild,
 Or where, by sculpture made for ever known,
 The page admires new beauties, not its own. 120
 Here swells the shelf with Ogilby the great :
 There, stamp'd with arms, Newcastle shines compleat :
 Here all his suff'ring brotherhood retire,
 And 'scape the martyrdom of jakes and fire ;
 A Gothic Vatican ! of Greece and Rome 125
 Well purg'd, and worthy Withers, Quarles, and Blome.

But high above, more solid Learning shone,
 The Classics of an Age that heard of none ;
 There Caxton slept, with Wyntkin at his side,
 One clasp'd in wood, and one in strong cow-hide, 130
 There, sav'd by spice, like mummies, many a year,
 Old Bodies of Philosophy appear :
De Lyra there a dreadful front extends,
 And here, the groaning shelves Philemon bends.

Of these, twelve volumes, twelve of amplest size,
 Redeem'd from tapers and defrauded pyes, 136
 Inspir'd he seizes : These an altar raise :
 An hecatomb of pure, unfully'd lays
 That altar crowns : A folio Common-place
 Founds the whole pyle, of all his works the base ;
 Quarto's, octavo's, shape the less'ning pyre ; 141
 And last, a little Ajax tips the spire.

So spins the filk-worm small its slender store,
 And labours, 'till it clouds itself all o'er.
 Not that my quill to Critiques was confin'd,
 My Verse gave ampler lessons to mankind ;
 So gravest precepts may successless prove, 175
 But sad examples never fail to move.
 As forc'd from wind-guns, lead itself can fly,
 And pond'rous slugs cut swiftly thro' the sky :
 As clocks to weight their nimble motion owe,
 The wheels above urg'd by the load below ; 180
 Me, emptiness and dulness could inspire,
 And were my elasticity and fire.
 Had Heav'n decreed such works a longer date,
 Heav'n had decreed to spare the Grubstreet-state.
 But see great Settle to the dust descend, 185
 And all thy cause and empire at an end !
 Cou'd Troy be sav'd by any single hand,
 His grey-goose weapon must have made her stand.
 But what can I? my Flaccus cast aside,
 Take up th' Attorney's (once my better) guide? 190
 Or rob the Roman geese of all their glories,
 And save the state by cackling to the Tories ?
 Yes, to my Country I my pen consign,
 Yes, from this moment, mighty Mist ! am thine,
 And rival, Curtius ! of thy fame and zeal, 195
 O'er head and ears plunge for the publick weal.
 Adieu my children ! better thus expire
 Unstall'd, unfold, thus glorious mount in fire
 Fair without spot ; than greas'd by grocer's hands,
 Or ship'd with Ward to ape and monkey lands, 200

Or wafting ginger, round the streets to go,
And visit alehouse where ye first did grow.

With that, he lifted thrice the sparkling brand,
And thrice he dropt it from his quiv'ring hand :
Then lights the structure, with averted eyes ; 205
The rowling smokes involve the sacrifice.
The opening clouds disclose each work by turns,
Now flames old Memnon, now Rodrigo burns,
In one quick flash see Proserpine expire,
And last, his own cold Æschylus took fire. 210
Then gush'd the tears, as from the Trojan's eyes
When the last blaze sent Ilion to the skies.

Rouz'd by the light, old Dulness heav'd the head ;
Then snatch'd a sheet of Thulé from her bed,
Sudden she flies, and whelms it o'er the pyre, 215
Down sink the flames, and with a hiss expire.

Her ample presence fills up all the place ;
A veil of fogs dilates her awful face :
Great in her charms ! as when on Shrieves and May'rs
She looks, and breathes herself into their airs. 220
She bids him wait her to the sacred Dome ;
Well-pleas'd he enter'd, and confess'd his home :
So Spirits ending their terrestrial race,
Ascend and recognize their native place.
Raptur'd, he gazes round the dear retreat, 225
And in sweet numbers celebrates the feat.

Here to her Chosen all her works she shews ;
Prose swell'd to verse, Verse loit'ring into prose ;
How random thoughts now meaning chance to find,
Now leave all memory of sense behind : 230

How

How prologues into prefaces decay,
 And these to notes are fritter'd quite away.
 How index-learning turns no student pale,
 Yet holds the eel of science by the tail.
 How, with less reading than makes felons 'scape, 235
 Less human genius than God gives an ape,
 Small thanks to France, and none to Rome or Greece,
 A past, vamp'd, future, old, reviv'd, new piece,
 'Twixt Plautus, Fletcher, Congreve, and Corneille,
 Can make a Cibber, Johnson, or Ozell. 240
 The Goddesses then, o'er his anointed head,
 With mystic words, the sacred Opium shed;
 And lo! her bird, a monster of a fowl!
 Something betwixt a Heideggre and owl,
 Perch'd on his crown. All hail! and hail again, 245
 My son! the promis'd land expects thy reign.
 Know, Settle cloy'd with custard, and with praise,
 Is gather'd to the dull of antient days,
 Safe, where no Critics damn, no Duns molest,
 Where wretched Withers, Banks, and Gildon rest,
 And high-born Howard, more majestic fire, 251
 Impatient waits, till * * grace the quire.
 I see a Chief, who leads my chosen sons,
 All arm'd with points, antitheses and puns!
 I see a Monarch, proud my race to own! 255
 A Nursing-mother, born to rock the throne!
 Schools, courts, and senates shall my laws obey,
 Till Albion, as Hibernia, blefs my sway.
 She ceas'd: her owls responsive clap the wing,
 And Grubstreet garrets roar, God save the king. 260

So when Jove's block descended from on high,
(As sings thy great forefather, Ogilby,)
Loud thunder to its bottom shook the bog,
And the hoarse nation croak'd, God save King Log.

END OF THE FIRST BOOK.

THE
D U N C I A D.

ARGUMENT TO BOOK the SECOND.

THE King being proclaimed, the solemnity is graced with publick games and sports of various kinds; not instituted by the Hero, as by Æneas in Virgil, but for greater honour by the Goddess in person (in like manner as the games Pythia, Isthmia, &c. were anciently said to be by the Gods, and as Thetis herself appearing, according to Homer, Odyss. 24. proposed the prizes in honour of her son Achilles). Hither flock the Poets and Criticks, attended, as is but just, with their Patrons and Booksellers. The Goddess is first pleased for her disport to propose games to the Booksellers, and setteth up the phantom of a Poet which they contend to overtake. The Races described, with their divers accidents: next, the Game for a Poetess: then follow the exercises for the Poets, of tickling, vociferating, diving: the first holds forth the arts and practices of Dedicators, the second of Disputants and sustian Poets, the third of profound, dark, and dirty Authors. Lastly, for the Critics, the Goddess proposes (with great propriety) an exercise not of their parts, but their patience; in hearing the works of two voluminous authors, one in verse and the other in prose, deliberately read, without sleeping: The various effects of which, with the several degrees and manners of their operation, are here set forth: till the whole number, not of critics only, but of spectators, actors, and all present, fall fast asleep, which naturally and necessarily ends the games.

B O O K II.

HIGH on a gorgeous feat, that far out-shone
Henley's gilt tub, or Fleckno's Irish throne,
 Or that, where on her Curls the public pours,
 All-bounteous, fragrant grains, and golden show'rs :
 Great Tibbald nods : The proud Parnassian sneer, 5
 The conscious smiler, and the jealous leer,
 Mix on his look. All eyes direct their rays
 On him, and crowds grow foolish as they gaze.
 Not with more glee, by hands pontific crown'd,
 With scarlet hats, wide waving, circled round, 10
Rome in her capitol saw Querno sit,
 Thron'd on sev'n hills, the Antichrist of wit.

To grace this honour'd day, the Queen proclaims
 By herald hawkers, high heroic games.
 She summons all her sons : An endless band 15
 Pours forth, and leaves unpeopled half the land ;
 A motley mixture ! in long wigs, in bags,
 In silks, in crapes, in garters, and in rags,
 From drawing-rooms, from colleges, from garrets,
 On horse, on foot, in hacks, and gilded chariots, 20
 All who true dunces in her cause appear'd,
 And all who knew those dunces to reward.

Amid

Amid that Area wide she took her stand,
 Where the tall May-pole once o'erlook'd the Strand.
 But now, so ANNE and Piety ordain, 25
 A church collects the faints of Drury-lane.

With authors, Stationers obey'd the call,
 The field of glory is a field for all ;
 Glory, and gain, th' industrious tribe provoke ;
 And gentle Dulness ever loves a joke. 30
 A Poet's form she plac'd before their eyes,
 And bade the nimblest racer seize the prize ;
 No meagre, muse-rid mope, adust and thin,
 In a dun night-gown of his own loose skin,
 But such a bulk as no twelve bards could raise, 35
 Twelve starveling bards of these degen'rate days.
 All as a partridge plump, full-fed, and fair,
 She form'd this image of well-bodied air,
 With pert flat eyes she window'd well its head,
 A brain of feathers, and a heart of lead, 40
 And empty words she gave, and sounding strain,
 But senseless, lifeless ! idol void and vain !
 Never was dash'd out, at one lucky hit,
 A fool, so just a copy of a wit ;
 So like, that critics said, and courtiers swore, 45
 A Wit it was, and call'd the phantom More.

All gaze with ardour : some, a poet's name,
 Others, a sword-knot and lac'd suit inflame.
 But lofty Lintot in the circle rose ;
 " This prize is mine ; who tempt it, are my foes :

With

With me began this genius, and shall end." 51

He spoke, and who with Lintot shall contend!

Fear held them mute. Alone untaught to fear
Stood dauntless Curl, "Behold that rival here!

The race by vigor, not by vaunts is won; 55

So take the hindmost, Hell!"—He said, and run.

Swift as a bard the bailiff leaves behind,

He left huge Lintot, and out-strip'd the wind.

As when a dab-chick waddles thro' the copse,

On feet, and wings, and flies, and wades, and hops;

So lab'ring on, with shoulders, hands, and head, 61

Wide as a windmill all his figure spread,

With legs expanded Bernard urg'd the race,

And seem'd to emulate great Jacob's pace.

Full in the middle way there stood a lake, 65

Which Curl's Corinna chanc'd that morn to make:

(Such was her won't, at early dawn to drop

Her evening cates before his neighbour's shop,)

Here fortun'd Curl to slide; loud shout the band,

And Bernard! Bernard! rings thro' all the Strand.

Obscene with filth the miscreant lies bewray'd, 71

Fall'n in the plash his wickedness had laid:

Then first (if poets aught of truth declare)

The caitiff Vaticide conceiv'd a prayer.

Hear, Jove! whose name my bards and I adore,

As much at least as any God's, or more; 76

And him and his if more devotion warms,

Down with the Bible, up with the Pope's Arms.

A place

A place there is, betwixt earth, air, and seas,
 Where from Ambrosia, Jove retires for ease. 80
 There in his seat two spacious vents appear,
 On this he sits, to that he leans his ear,
 And hears the various vows of fond mankind,
 Some beg an eastern, some a western wind :
 All vain petitions, mounting to the sky, 85
 With reams abundant this abode supply ;
 Amus'd he reads, and then returns the bills
 Sign'd with that Ichor which from Gods distils.

In office here fair Cloacina stands,
 And ministers to Jove with purest hands ; 90
 Forth from the heap she pick'd her vot'ry's pray'r,
 And plac'd it next him, a distinction rare !
 (Oft, as he fish'd her nether realms for wit,
 The Goddess's favour'd him, and favours yet)
 Renew'd by ordure's sympathetic force, 95
 As oil'd with magic juices for the course,
 Vig'rous he rises, from th' effluvia strong
 Imbibes new life, and scours and stinks along :
 Re-passes Lintot, vindicates the race,
 Nor heeds the brown dishonours of his face. 100

And now the victor stretch'd his eager hand
 Where the tall Nothing stood, or seem'd to stand ;
 A shapeless shade, it melted from his sight,
 Like forms in clouds, or visions of the night !
 To seize his papers, Curl, was next thy care ; 105
 His papers light, fly diverse, tost in air :

Songs,

Songs, sonnets, epigrams the winds uplift,
 And whisk 'em back to Evans, Younge, and Swift.
 Th' embroider'd fuit, at least, he deem'd his prey ;
 That fuit, an unpay'd taylor snatch'd away ! 110
 No rag, no scrap, of all the beau, or wit,
 That once so flutter'd, and that once so writ.

Heav'n rings with laughter : Of the laughter vain,
 Dulness, good Queen, repeats the jest again.
 Three wicked imps of her own Grubstreet choir, 115
 She deck'd like Congreve, Addison, and Prior ;
Mears, Warner, Wilkins run : delusive thought !
Breval, Befaleel, Bond, the varlets caught.
Curl stretches after Gay, but Gay is gone,
 He grasps an empty Joseph for a John : 120
 So Proteus, hunted in a nobler shape,
 Became, when seiz'd, a puppy, or an ape.

To him the Goddess. Son ! thy grief lay down,
 And turn this whole illusion on the town.
 As the sage dame, experienc'd in her trade, 125
 By names of Toasts retails each batter'd jade,
 (Whence hapless Monsieur much complains at Paris
 Of wrongs from Duchesses and Lady Mary's)
 Be thine, my stationer ! this magic gift ;
Cook shall be Prior, and Concanen, Swift : 130
 So shall each hostile name become our own,
 And we too boast our Garth and Addison.

With that, she gave him (piteous of his case,
 Yet smiling at his rueful length of face)

A shaggy

A shaggy tap'stry, worthy to be spread 135
 On Codrus' old, or Dunton's modern bed ;
 Instructive work ! whose wry-mouth'd portraiture
 Display'd the fates her confessors endure.
 Ear-lets on high, stood un-abash'd Defoe,
 And Tuchin flagrant from the scourge, below : 140
 There Ridpath, Roper, cudgell'd might ye view,
 The very worsted still look'd black and blue :
 Himself among the storied Chiefs he spies,
 As from the blanket high in air he flies, 144
 And oh ! (he cry'd) what street, what lane but knows
 Our purgings, pumpings, blanketings, and blows ?
 In ev'ry loom our labours shall be seen,
 And the fresh vomit run for ever green !

Seen in the circle next, Eliza plac'd ;
 Two babes of love close clinging to her waist ; 150
 Fair as before her works she stands confess'd,
 In flow'rs and pearls by bounteous Kirkall dress'd.
 The Goddesses then : " Who best can send on high
 The salient spout, far-streaming to the sky :
 His be yon Juno of majestic size, 155
 With cow-like udders, and with ox-like eyes.
 This China-Jordan, let the chief o'ercome
 Replenish, not ingloriously, at home."

Chapman and Curl accept the glorious strife,
 (Tho' one his son dissuades, and one his wife) 160
 This on his manly confidence relies,
 That on his vigour and superior size.

First

First Chapman lean'd against his letter'd post ;
 It rose, and labour'd to a curve at most.
 So Jove's bright bow displays its wat'ry round, 165
 (Sure sign, that no spectator shall be drown'd)
 A second effort brought but new disgrace,
 The wild Mæander wash'd the Artist's face :
 Thus the small jett which hasty hands unlock,
 Spirits in the gard'ner's eyes who turns the cock. 170
 Not so from shameless Curl; impetuous spread
 The stream, and smoking, flourish'd o'er his head.
 So, (fam'd like thee for turbulence and horns,)
Eridanus his humble fountain scorns ;
 Thro' half the heav'ns he pours th' exalted urn ; 175
 His rapid waters in their passage burn.

Swift as it mounts, all follow with their eyes ;
 Still happy Impudence obtains the prize.
 Thou triumph'ft, Victor of the high-wrought day,
 And the pleas'd dame, soft-smiling, leads away. 180
Chapman, thro' perfect modesty o'ercome,
 Crown'd with the Jordan, walks contented home.
 But now for Authors nobler palms remain ;
 Room for my Lord ! three Jockeys in his train :
 Six huntsmen with a shout precede his chair ; 185
 He grins, and looks broad nonsense with a stare.
 His honour'd meaning Dulness thus exprest ;
 " He wins this Patron who can tickle best."

He chinks his purse, and takes his seat of state :
 With ready quills the Dedicators wait, 190
 Now

Now at his head the dex'trous task commence,
 And instant, fancy feels th' imputed sense ;
 Now gentle touches wanton o'er his face,
 He struts Adonis, and affects grimace :
Rolli the feather to his ear conveys, 195
 Then his nice taste directs our Opera's :
Bentley his mouth with classic flatt'ry opes,
 And the puff'd orator bursts out in tropes.
 But Welfted most the poet's healing balm
 Strives to extract, from his soft, giving palm ; 200
 Unlucky Welfted ! thy unfeeling master,
 The more thou ticklest, gripes his fist the faster.

While thus each hand promotes the pleasing pain,
 And quick sensations skip from vein to vein,
 A youth unknown to Phæbus, in despair, 205
 Puts his last refuge all in heav'n and pray'r.
 What force have pious vows ? the Queen of Love
 His Sister sends, her vot'refs, from above.
 As taught by Venus, Paris learnt the art
 To touch Achilles' only tender part ; 210
 Secure, thro' her, the noble prize to carry,
 He marches off, his Grace's Secretary.

Now turn to diff'rent sports (the Goddess cries),
 And learn, my sons, the wond'rous pow'r of Noise.
 To move, to raise, to ravish ev'ry heart, 215
 With Shakespear's nature, or with Johnson's art,
 Let others aim : 'Tis yours to shake the soul
 With Thunder rumbling from the mustard bowl,

With

With horns and trumpets now to madnefs swell,
 Now fink in forrows with a tolling Bell, 220
 Such happy arts attention can command,
 When fancy flags, and fenfe is at a ftand.

Improve we thefe. Three Cat-calls be the bribe,
 Of him, whofe chatt'ring fhames the Monkey tribe,
 And his this Drum, whofe hoarfe heroic bafe 225
 Drowns the loud clarion of the braying Afs.

Now thoufand tongues are heard in one loud din :
 The Monkey-mimicks ruft discordant in :
 'Twas chatt'ring, grinning, mouthing, jabb'ring all,
 And Noife, and Norton, Brangling, and Breval, 230
Dennis, and Diffonance ; and captious art,
 And fnip-fnap fhort, and interruption fmart.

Hold (cry'd the Queen), A Cat-call each fhall win,
 Equal your merits ! equal is your din !
 But that this well-difputed game may end, 235
 Sound forth, my Brayers, and the welkin rend.

As when the long-ear'd milky mothers wait
 At fome fick mifer's triple-bolted gate,
 For their defrauded, abfent foals they make
 A moan fo loud, that all the Guild awake ; 240
 Sore fighs Sir Gilbert, ftarting, at the bray,
 From dreams of millions, and three groats to pay !
 So fwells each wind-pipe ; Afs intones to Afs,
 Harmonic twang, of leather, horn, and brafs ;
 Such, as from lab'ring lungs th' Enthufiaft blows,
 High founds, attempted to the vocal nofe. 246

But far o'er all, fonorous Blackmore's strain ;
 Walls, steeples, skies, bray back to him again :
 In Tot'nam fields, the brethren with amaze
 Prick all their ears up, and forget to graze ; 250
 Long Chanc'ry-lane retentive rolls the found,
 And courts to courts return it round and round :
Thames wafts it thence to Rufus' roaring hall,
 And Hungerford re-echoes bawl for bawl.
 All hail him victor in both gifts of song, 255
 Who sings so loudly, and who sings so long.

This labour past, by Bridewell all descend,
 (As morning-pray'r and flagellation end)
 To where Flect-ditch with difemboguing streams
 Rolls the large tribute of dead dogs to Thames, 260
 The King of dykes ! than whom no sluice of mud
 With deeper fable blots the silver flood.

“ Here strip my children ! here at once leap in !
 Here prove who best can dash thro' thick and thin,
 And who the most in love of dirt excel, 265
 Or dark dexterity of groping well.

Who flings most filth, and wide pollutes around
 The stream, be his the Weekly Journals bound ;
 A pig of lead to him who dives the best :
 A peck of coals a-piece shall glad the rest.” 270

In naked majesty Oldmixon stands,
 And Milo-like, surveys his arms and hands,
 Then fighting, thus. “ And am I now threescore ?
 Ah why, ye Gods ! should two and two make four ?

He

He said, and climb'd a stranded Lighter's height,
Shot to the black abyfs, and plung'd down-right. 276

The Senior's judgment all the croud admire,
Who but to sink the deeper, rose the higher.

Next Smedley div'd ; flow circles dimpled o'er
The quaking mud, that clos'd, and op'd no more.
All look, all sigh, and call on Smedley lost ; 281
Smedley in vain resounds thro' all the coast.

Then * essay'd ; scarce vanish'd out of sight,
He buoys up instant, and returns to light :
He bears no token of the fabler streams, 285
And mounts far off among the Swans of Thames.

True to the bottom, see Concanen creep,
A cold, long-winded, native of the deep !
If perseverance gain the Diver's prize,
Not everlasting Blackmore this denies : 290
No noise, no stir, no motion can't thou make,
Th' unconscious flood sleeps o'er thee like a lake.

Not so bold Arnall ; with a weight of scull,
Furious he sinks, precipitately dull.
Whirlpools and storms his circling arm invest, 295
With all the might of gravitation blest.
No crab more active in the dirty dance,
Downward to climb, and backward to advance.
He brings up half the bottom on his head,
And loudly claims the Journals and the Lead. 300

Sudden, a burst of thunder shook the flood :
Lo Smedley rose in majesty of mud !

Shaking the horrors of his ample brows,
 And each ferocious feature grim with ooze.
 Greater he looks, and more than mortal stares ; 305
 Then thus the wonders of the deep declares.

First he relates, how sinking to the chin,
 Smit with his mien, the mud-nymphs suck'd him in :
 How young Lutetia, softer than the down,
Nigrina black, and Merdamante brown, 310
 Vy'd for his love in jetty bow'rs below ;
 As Hylas fair was ravish'd long ago.
 Then sung, how shown him by the nut-brown maids
 A branch of Styx here rises from the Shades,
 That tinctur'd as it runs with Lethe's streams, 315
 And wafting vapours from the land of Dreams,
 (As under seas Alphæus' secret fluice
 Bears Pisa's offering to his Arethuse)
 Pours into Thames : Each City bowl is full
 Of the mixt wave, and all who drink grow dull. 320
 How to the banks where bards departed doze,
 They led him soft ; how all the bards arose,
Taylor, sweet Swan of Thames, majestic bows,
 And Shadwell nods the poppy on his brows ;
 While Milbourn there, deputed by the rest, 325
 Gave him the cassock, surcingle, and vest ;
 And "Take (he said) these robes which once weremine,
 Dulness is sacred in a sound Divine."

He ceas'd, and show'd the robe ; the crowd confess
 The rev'rend Flamen in his lengthen'd drefs. 330

Slow

Slow moves the Goddess from the fable flood,
 (Her Priest preceding) thro' the gates of Lud.
 Her Critics there she summons, and proclaims
 A gentler exercise to close the games.

Here you! in whose grave heads, as equal scales,
 I weigh what author's heaviness prevails; 336
 Which most conduce to sooth the soul in slumbers,
 My Henley's periods, or my Blackmore's numbers?
 Attend the trial we propose to make:
 If there be man who o'er such works can wake, 340
 Sleep's all-subduing charms who dares defy,
 And boasts Ulysses' ear with Argus' eye;
 To him we grant our amplest pow'rs to fit
 Judge of all present, past, and future wit,
 To cavil, censure, dictate, right or wrong, 345
 Full, and eternal privilege of tongue.

Three Cambridge Sophs and three pert Templars
 came,
 The same their talents, and their tastes the same,
 Each prompt to query, answer, and debate,
 And smit with love of Poesy and Prate, 350
 The pond'rous books two gentle readers bring,
 The heroes fit; the vulgar form a ring.
 The clam'rous crowd is hush'd with mugs of Mum,
 Till all tun'd equal, send a gen'ral hum.
 Then mount the clerks, and in one lazy tone, 355
 Thro' the long, heavy, painful page, drawl on;
 Soft creeping, words on words, the sense compose,
 At ev'ry line, they stretch, they yawn, they doze.

As to soft gales top-heavy pines bow low
 Their heads, and lift them as they cease to blow ;
 Thus oft they rear, and oft the head decline, 361
 As breathe, or pause, by fits, the airs divine :
 And now to this side, now to that, they nod,
 As verse, or prose, infuse the drowzy God.
 Thrice Budgel aim'd to speak, but thrice suppress'd
 By potent Arthur, knock'd his chin and breast. 366
Toland and Tindal, prompt at priests to jeer,
 Yet silent bow'd to Christ's No kingdom here.
 Who fate the nearest, by the words o'ercome
 Slept first, the distant nodded to the hum. 370
 Then down are roll'd the books ; stretch'd o'er 'em lies
 Each gentle clerk, and mutt'ring seals his eyes.
 At what a Dutchman plumps into the lakes,
 One circle first, and then a second makes,
 What Dulness dropt among her sons impress 375
 Like motion, from one circle to the rest ;
 So from the mid-most the nutation spreads
 Round, and more round, o'er all the sea of heads.
 At last Centlivre felt her voice to fail,
Motteux himself unfinish'd left his tale, 380
Boyer the State, and Law the Stage gave o'er,
 Nor Kelfey talk'd, nor Naso whisper'd more ;
Norton, from Daniel and Ostræa sprung,
 Bless'd with his father's front, and mother's tongue,
 Hung silent down his never-blushing head ; 385
 And all was hush'd, as Folly's self lay dead.

Thus

Thus the soft gifts of Sleep conclude the day,
And stretch'd on bulks, as usual, Poets lay.
Why should I sing what bards the nightly Muse
Did flumbring visit, and convey to stews : 390
Who prouder march'd, with magistrates in state,
To some fam'd round-house, ever open gate :
How Laurus lay inspir'd beside a sink,
And to mere mortals seem'd a Priest in drink :
While others, timely, to the neighbouring Fleet 395
(Haunt of the Muses) made their safe retreat.

THE END OF THE SECOND BOOK.

T H E
D U N C I A D.

ARGUMENT TO BOOK the THIRD.

*AFTER the other persons are disposed in their proper places of rest, the Goddess transports the King to her Temple, and there lays him to slumber with his head on her lap; a position of marvellous virtue, which causes all the Visions of wild enthusiasts, projectors, politicians, inamoratos, castle-builders, chymists, and poets. He is immediately carried on the wings of Fancy to the Elyzian shade; where on the banks of Lethe the souls of the dull are dipped by Bavius, before their entrance into this world. There he is met by the ghost of Settle, and by him made acquainted with the wonders of the place, and with those which he is himself destined to perform. He takes him to a Mount of Vision, from whence he shews him the past triumphs of the Empire of Dulness, then the present, and lastly the future: How small a part of the world was ever conquered by Science, how soon those conquests were stopped, and those very nations again reduced to her dominion. Then distinguishing the Island of Great Britain, shews by what aids, and by what persons, it shall be forthwith brought to her empire. These he causes to pass in review before his eyes, describing each by his proper figure, character, and qualifications. On a sudden the scene shifts, and a vast number of miracles and prodigies appear, utterly surprizing and unknown to the King himself, till they are explained to be the wonders of his own reign now commencing. On this subject Settle breaks into a congratulation, yet not unmixed with concern, that his own times were but the types of these. He prophesies how first the nation shall be over-run with Farces, Operas, and Shows; and the throne of Dulness advanced over both the Theatres; then how her sons shall preside in the seats of Arts and Sciences, till in conclusion all shall return to their original Chaos: A scene, of which the present Action of the Dunciad is but a Type or Foretaste, giving a Glympse, or Pisgah-sight of the promised Fulness of her Glory; the accomplishment whereof will, in all probability, hereafter be the Theme of many other and greater Dunciads.
the*

B O O K III.

BUT in her Temple's last recess inclos'd,
 On Dulness' lap th' Anointed head repos'd.
 Him close she curtain'd round with vapours blue,
 And soft besprinkled with Cimmerian dew.
 Then raptures high the seat of sense o'erflow, 5
 Which only heads refin'd from reason know.
 Hence, from the straw where Bedlam's Prophet nods,
 He hears loud Oracles, and talks with Gods :
 Hence the Fool's paradise, the Statesman's scheme,
 The air-built Castle, and the golden Dream, 10
 The Maid's romantic wish, the Chymist's flame,
 And Poet's vision of eternal fame.

And now, on Fancy's easy wing convey'd,
 The King descended to th' Elyzian Shade.
 There, in a dusky vale where Lethe rolls, 15
 Old Bavius sits, to dip poetic Souls,
 And blunt the sense, and fit it for a scull
 Of solid proof, impenetrably dull :
 Instant when dipt, away they wing their flight,
 Where Brown and Mears unbar the gates of Light,
 Demand new bodies, and in Calp's array, 21
 Rush to the world, impatient for the day.
 Millions and millions on these banks he views,
 Thick as the stars of night, and morning dews,

As

As thick as bees o'er vernal blossoms fly, 25
As thick as eggs at Ward in Pillory.

Wond'ring he gaz'd : When lo ! a Sage appears,
By his broad shoulders known, and length of ears,
Known by the band and suit which Settle wore,
(His only suit) for twice three years before : 30
All as the vest, appear'd the wearer's frame,
Old in new state, another yet the same.
Bland and familiar as in life, begun
Thus the great Father to the greater Son.

Oh born to see what none can see awake ! 35
Behold the wonders of th' oblivious Lake.
Thou, yet unborn, hast touch'd this sacred shore ;
The hand of Bævius drench'd thee o'er and o'er.
But blind to former, as to future Fate,
What mortal knows his pre-existent state ? 40
Who knows how long, thy transmigrating soul
Might from Bæotian to Bæotian roll !
How many Dutchmen she vouchsaf'd to thrid ?
How many stages thro' old Monks she rid ?
And all who since, in mild benighted days, 45
Mix'd the Owl's ivy with the Poet's bays ?
As man's mæanders to the vital spring
Roll all their tydes, then back their circles bring ;
Or whirligigs, twirl'd round by skilful swain,
Suck the thread in, then yield it out again : 50
All nonsense thus, of old or modern date,
Shall in thee center, from thee circulate.
For this, our Queen unfolds to vision true
Thy mental eye, for thou hast much to view :

Old

Book III. 'THE DUNCIAD. 413

Old scenes of glory, times long cast behind 55
Shall first recall'd, rush forward to thy mind ;
Then stretch thy sight o'er all her rising reign,
And let the past and future fire thy brain.

Ascend this hill, whose cloudy point commands
Her boundless empire over seas and lands. 60
See round the Poles where keener spangles shine,
Where spices smoke beneath the burning Line,
(Earth's wide extreams) her fable flag display'd ;
And all the nations cover'd in her shade !

Far eastward cast thine eye, from whence the Sun
And orient Science at a birth begun. 66
One god-like Monarch all that pride confounds,
He, whose long wall the wand'ring Tartar bounds.
Heav'ns ! what a pile ? whole ages perish there :
And one bright blaze turns Learning into air. 70

Thence to the south extend thy gladden'd eyes ;
There rival flames with equal glory rise,
From shelves to shelves see greedy Vulcan roll,
And lick up all their Phyick of the foul.

How little, mark ! that portion of the ball, 75
Where, faint at best, the beams of Science fall ;
Soon as they draw, from Hyperborean skies,
Embody'd dark, what clouds of Vandals rise !
Lo where Mæotis sleeps, and hardly flows
The freezing Tanais thro' a waste of snows, 80
The North by myriads pours her mighty fons,
Great nurse of Goths, of Alans, and of Huns.
See Alaric's stern port ! the martial frame
Of Genferic ! and Attila's dread name !

See,

See, the bold Ostrogoths on Latium fall ; 85
 See, the fierce Visigoths on Spain and Gaul.
 See, where the morning gilds the palmy shore
 (The foil that arts and infant letters bore)
 His conqu'ring tribes th' Arabian prophet draws,
 And saving Ignorance enthrones by Laws. 90
 See Christians, Jews, one heavy sabbath keep ;
 And all the Western world believe and sleep.

Lo Rome herself, proud mistress now no more
 Of arts, but thund'ring against heathen lore ;
 Her gray-hair'd Synods damning books unread, 95
 And Bacon trembling for his brazen head ;
Padua with sighs behold her Livy burn,
 And ev'n th' Antipodes Virgilius mourn.
 See, the Cirque falls, th' unpillar'd Temple nods,
 Streets pav'd with Heroes, Tyber choak'd with Gods :
 Till Peter's keys some christen'd Jove adorn, 101
 And Pan to Moses lends his pagan horn ;
 See graceless Venus to a Virgin turn'd,
 Or Phidias broken, and Apelles burn'd.

Behold yon' Isle, by Palmers, Pilgrims trod, 105
 Men bearded, bald, cowl'd, uncowl'd, shod, unshod,
 Peel'd, patch'd, and pyebald, linsley-woolsey brothers,
 Grave mummers ! fleevless some, and shirtless others.
 That once was Britain—Happy ! had she seen
 No fiercer sons, had Easter never been ! 110
 In peace, great Goddess, ever be ador'd ;
 How keen the war, if Dulness draw the sword ?
 Thus visit not thy own ! on this blest age
 Oh spread thy Influence, but restrain thy Rage.

And

Book III. THE DUNCIAD. 415

And see! my son, the hour is on its way, 115

That lifts our Goddess to imperial sway ;

This fav'rite Isle, long sever'd from her reign,

Dove like, she gathers to her wings again.

Now look thro' Fate! behold the scene she draws!

What aids, what armies, to assert her cause? 120

See all her progeny, illustrious fight!

Behold, and count them, as they rise to light.

As Berecynthia, while her off-spring vye

In homage, to the Mother of the sky,

Surveys around her in the blest abode 125

A hundred sons, and every son a God :

Not with less glory mighty Dulness crown'd

Shall take thro' Grubstreet her triumphant round,

And her Parnassus glancing o'er at once,

Behold a hundred sons, and each a dunce. 130

Mark first that youth who takes the foremost place,

And thrusts his person full into your face.

With all thy father's virtues blest, be born!

And a new Cibber shall the stage adorn.

A second see, by meeker manners known, 135

And modest as the maid that sips alone ;

From the strong fate of drams if thou get free,

Another Durfey, Ward! shall sing in thee.

Thee shall each Ale-house, thee each Gill-house mourn,

And answering Gin-shops sower sighs return. 140

Lo next two slipshod Muses traipse along,

In lofty madness, meditating song,

With tresses staring from poetic dreams,

And never wash'd, but in Castalia's streams :

Haywood,

Haywood, Centlivre, glories of their race! 145
 Lo Horneck's fierce, and Room's funereal face;
 Lo sneering Goode, half malice and half whim,
 A fiend in glee, ridiculously grim.

Jacob, the scourge of Grammar, mark with awe,
 Nor less revere him, blunderbush of Law. 150

Lo Bond and Foxton, ev'ry nameless name,
 All crowd, who foremost shall be damn'd to fame.
 Some strain in rhyme; the Muses, on their racks,
 Scream like the winding of ten thousand jacks:
 Some free from rhyme or reason, rule or check, 155
 Break Priscian's head, and Pegasus's neck;
 Down, down they larum, with impetuous whirl,
 The Pindars, and the Miltons of a Curl.

Silence, ye Wolves! while Ralph to Cynthia howls,
 And makes Night hideous—Answer him ye Owls!

Sense, speech, and measure, living tongues and dead,
 Let all give way—and Morris may be read.

Flow, Welfted, flow! like thine inspirer Beer,
 Tho' stale, not ripe; tho' thin, yet never clear;
 So sweetly mawkish, and so smoothly dull; 165
 Heady, not strong; and foaming, tho' not full.

Ah Dennis! Gildon ah! what ill-starr'd rage
 Divides a friendship long confirm'd by age?
 Blockheads with reason wicked wits abhor,
 But fool with fool is barb'rous civil war. 170
 Embrace, embrace my sons! be foes no more!
 Nor glad vile Poets with true Critics gore.

Behold yon Pair, in strict embraces join'd;
 How like in manners, and how like in mind!

Fam'd

Book III. THE DUNCIAD. 417

Fam'd for good nature, Burnet, and for truth; 175

Ducket for pious passion to the youth.

Equal in wit, and equally polite,

Shall this a Pasquin, that a Grumbler write;

Like are their merits, like rewards they share,

That shines a Consul, this Commissioner. 180

“ But who is he, in closet close y pent,
Of sober face, with learned dust besprent?
Right well mine eyes arede the myster wight,
On parchment scraps y fed, and Wormius hight.”

To future ages may thy dulness last, 185

As thou preserv'st the dulness of the past!

There, dim in clouds, the poring Scholiasts mark,

Wits, who like owls see only in the dark,

A Lumberhouse of books in ev'ry head,

For ever reading, never to be read! 190

But, where each Science lifts its modern type,

Hist'ry her Pot, Divinity his Pipe,

While proud Philosophy repines to show,

Dishonest fight! his breeches rent below;

Imbrown'd with native bronze, lo Henley stands, 195

Tuning his voice, and balancing his hands,

How fluent nonsense trickles from his tongue!

How sweet the periods, neither said nor sung.

Still break the benches, Henley! with thy strain,

While Kennet, Hare, and Gibson preach in vain. 200

Oh great Restorer of the good old Stage,

Preacher at once, and Zany of thy age!

Oh worthy thou of Ægypt's wife abodes,

A decent priest, where monkeys were the gods!

But fate with butchers plac'd thy priestly stall, 205
 Meek modern faith to murder, hack, and mawl;
 And bade thee live, to crown Britannia's praise,
 In Toland's, Tindal's, and in Woolston's days.

Yet oh my sons! a father's words attend:
 (So may the fates preserve the ears you lend) 210

'Tis yours, a Bacon or a Locke to blame,
 A Newton's Genius, or a Milton's flame:
 But O! with one, immortal One dispense,
 The source of Newton's Light, of Bacon's Sense!
 Content, each Emanation of his fires 215

That beams on earth, each Virtue he inspires,
 Each Art he prompts, each Charm he can create,
 Whate'er he gives, are giv'n for you to hate.
 Persist, by all divine in Man unaw'd,
 But learn, ye Dunces! not to scorn your God. 220

Thus he, for then a ray of Reason stole
 Half thro' the solid darkness of his soul;
 But soon the cloud return'd—and thus the Sire:
 See now, what Dulness and her sons admire!
 See what the charms that smite the simple heart, 225
 Not touch'd by Nature, and not reach'd by Art.

He look'd, and saw a fable Sorcerer rise,
 Swift to whose hand a winged volume flies:
 All sudden, Gorgons hiss, and dragons glare,
 And ten-horn'd fiends and Giants rush to war. 230
 Hell rises, Heav'n descends, and dance on Earth,
 Gods, imps, and monsters, music, rage, and mirth,
 A fire, a jugg, a battle, and a ball,
 Till one wide conflagration swallows all.

Thence a new world to Nature's laws unknown,
Breaks out refulgent, with a heav'n its own. 236

Another Cynthia her new journey runs,
And other planets circle other suns :
The forests dance, the rivers upward rise,
Whales sport in woods, and dolphins in the skies ;
And last, to give the whole creation grace, 241
Lo ! one vast Egg produces human race.
Joy fills his soul, joy innocent of thought :
What pow'r, he cries, what pow'r these wonders
wrought ?

Son ! what thou seek'st is in thee. Look, and find
Each monster meets his likenefs in thy mind. 246
Yet would'st thou more ? In yonder cloud behold,
Whose farcenet skirts are edg'd with flamy gold,
A matchless youth ! His nod these worlds controuls,
Wings the red lightning, and the thunder rolls. 250
Angel of Dulness, sent to scatter round
Her magic charms o'er all unclassic ground :
Yon stars, yon suns, he rears at pleasure higher,
Illumes their light, and sets their flames on fire.
Immortal Rich ! how calm he sits at ease 255
Mid snows of paper, and fierce hail of pease ;
And proud his mistress' orders to perform,
Rides in the whirlwind, and directs the storm.

But lo ! to dark encounter in mid air
New wizards rise : here Booth, and Cibber there : 260
Booth in his cloudy tabernacle shrin'd,
On grinning dragons Cibber mounts the wind :

Dire is the conflict, dismal is the din,
 Here shouts all Drury, there all Lincoln's Inn;
 Contending Theatres our empire raise, 265
 Alike their labours, and alike their praise.

And are these wonders, Son, to thee unknown?
 Unknown to thee? These wonders are thy own.
 For works like these let deathless Journals tell,
 "None but thyself can be thy parallel." 270
 These, Fate reserv'd to grace thy reign divine,
 Foreseen by me, but ah! withheld from mine.
 In Lud's old walls tho' long I rul'd renown'd,
 Far, as loud Bow's stupendous bells resound;
 Tho' my own Aldermen conferr'd my bays, 275
 To me committing their eternal praise,
 Their full-fed Heroes, their pacific May'rs,
 Their annual trophies, and their monthly wars:
 Tho' long my Party built on me their hopes,
 For writing pamphlets, and for roasting Popes; 280
 (Diff'rent our parties, but with equal grace
 The Goddess smiles on Whig and Tory race,
 'Tis the same rope at several ends they twist,
 To Dulness, Ridpath is as dear as Mist.)
 Yet lo! in me what authors have to brag on! 285
 Reduc'd at last to his in my own dragon.
 Avert it, heav'n! that thou or Cibber e'er
 Should wag two serpent-tails in Smithfield fair.
 Like the vile straw that's blown about the streets,
 The needy Poet sticks to all he meets, 290
 Coach'd, carted, trod upon, now loose, now fast,
 And carry'd off in some Dog's tail at last.

Happier

Happier thy fortunes! like a rolling stone,
 Thy giddy dulness still shall lumber on,
 Safe in its heaviness can never stray, 295
 And licks up every blockhead in the way.

Thy dragons Magistrates and Peers shall taste,
 And from each show rise duller than the last;
 Till rais'd from Booths to Theatre, to Court,
 Her seat imperial, Dulness shall transport. 300

Already Opera prepares the way,
 The sure fore-runner of her gentle sway.
 To aid her cause, if heav'n thou can'st not bend,
 Hell thou shalt move; for Faustus is thy friend:
Pluto with Cato thou for her shalt join, 305

And link the Mourning Bride to Proserpine.
Grub-street! thy fall should men and Gods conspire,
 Thy stage shall stand, ensure it but from fire,
 Another Æschylus appears! prepare
 For new abortions, all ye pregnant fair! 310

In flames, like Semele's, be brought to bed,
 While opening Hell spouts wild-fire at your head.

Now Bavius take the poppy from thy brow,
 And place it here! here all ye Heroes bow!
 This, this is he, foretold by ancient rhymes: 315
 Th' Augustus, born to bring Saturnian times:
 Beneath his reign, shall Eusden wear the bays,
Cibber preside, Lord-Chancellor of Plays.

Benson sole judge of architecture fit,
 And Ambrose Philips be preferr'd for wit! 320
 While naked mourns the Dormitory wall,
 And Jones and Boyle's united labours fall,

While

While Wren with sorrow to the grave descends,
Gay dies unpension'd with a hundred friends,
Hibernian politicks, O Swift, thy fate, 325
 And Pope's whole years to comment and translate.

Proceed great days! till learning fly the shore,
 Till birch shall blush with noble blood no more,
 Till Thames see Eton's sons for ever play,
 Till Westminster's whole year be holiday; 330
 Till Isis's elders reel, their pupils sport;
 And Alma Mater lye dissolv'd in port!

Signs following signs lead on the mighty year;
 See! the dull star roll round and re-appear. 334
 She comes! the cloud-compelling Pow'r behold!
 With Night primæval, and with Chaos old.
 Lo! the great Anarch's ancient reign restor'd;
 Light dies before her uncreating word.

As one by one, at dread Medæa's strain,
 The sick'ning stars fade off th' æthereal plain; 340
 As Argus's eyes, by Hermes's wand oppress'd,
 Clos'd one by one to everlasting rest;
 Thus at her felt approach, and secret might,
 Art after art goes out, and all is night.

See sculking Truth in her old cavern lye, 345
 Secur'd by mountains of heap'd casuistry:
 Philosophy, that touch'd the heav'ns before,
 Shrinks to her hidden cause, and is no more:
 See Phycic beg the Stagyrite's defence!

See Metaphycic call for aid on sense! 350
 See mystery to Mathematics fly;
 In vain! they gaze, turn giddy, rave, and die.

Thy

Book III. THE DUNCIAD. 423

Thy hand, great Dulness! lets the curtain fall,
And universal darkness buries all.

Enough! enough! the raptur'd monarch cries;
And thro' the Ivory gate the vision flies. 356

END OF THE FIFTH VOLUME.

Strahan and Preston,
Printers, Street.

[The body of the document contains extremely faint and illegible text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. The text is scattered across the page and cannot be transcribed accurately.]

