POEMS

BY

DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI.

A NEW EDITION.

NEW YORK:
THOMAS Y. CROWELL & CO.,
No. 13 ASTOR PLACE.

TO
WILLIAM MICHAEL ROSSETTI,
THESE POEMS,
TO SO MANY OF WHICH, SO MANY YEARS BACK,
HE GAVE THE FIRST BROTHERLY HEARING,
ARE NOW AT LAST DEDICATED.

1870-1881.

ADVERTISEMENT.

“MANY poems in this volume were written between 1847 and 1853. Others are of recent date, and a few belong to the intervening period. It has been thought unnecessary to specify the earlier work as nothing is included which the author believes to be immature.”

The above brief note was prefixed to these poems when first published in 1870. They have now been for some time out of print.

The fifty sonnets of the House of Life which first appeared here are now embodied with the full series in the volume entitled “Ballads and Sonnets.”

The fragment of The Bride's Prelude, now first printed, was written very early, and is here associated with other work of the same date; though its publication in an unfinished form needs some indulgence.

POEMS.

THE BLESSED DAMOZEL.

THE blessed damozel leaned out
From the gold bar of Heaven ;
Her eyes were deeper than the depth
Of waters stilled at even ;
She had three lilies in her hand,
And the stars in her hair were seven.

Her robe, ungirt from clasp to hem,
No wrought flowers did adorn,
But a white rose of Mary's gift,
For service meetly worn ;
Her hair that lay along her back
Was yellow like ripe corn.

Herseemed she scarce had been a day
One of God's choristers ;

THE BLESSED DAMOZEL.

The wonder was not yet quite gone
From that still look of hers ;
Albeit, to them she left, her day
Had counted as ten years.

(To one, it is ten years of years.
. . . Yet now, and in this place,
Surely she leaned o'er me — her hair
Fell all about my face. . . .
Nothing : the autumn-fall of leaves.
The whole year sets apace.)

It was the rampart of God's house
That she was standing on ;
By God built over the sheer depth
The which is Space begun ;
So high, that looking downward thence
She scarce could see the sun.

It lies in Heaven, across the flood
Of ether, as a bridge.
Beneath, the tides of day and night
With flame and darkness ridge
The void, as low as where this earth
Spins like a fretful midge.

Around her, lovers, newly met
 'Mid deathless love's acclaims,
Spoke evermore among themselves
 Their heart-remembered names ;
And the souls mounting up to God
 Went by her like thin flames.

And still she bowed herself and stooped
 Out of the circling charm ;
Until her bosom must have made
 The bar she leaned on warm,
And the lilies lay as if asleep
 Along her bended arm.

From the fixed place of Heaven she saw
 Time like a pulse shake fierce
Through all the worlds. Her gaze still strove
 Within the gulf to pierce
Its path ; and now she spoke as when
 The stars sang in their spheres.

The sun was gone now ; the curled moon
 Was like a little feather
Fluttering far down the gulf ; and now
 She spoke through the still weather.

Her voice was like the voice the stars
Had when they sang together.

(Ah sweet! Even now, in that bird's song,
Strove not her accents there,
Fain to be hearkened? When those bells
Possessed the mid-day air,
Strove not her steps to reach my side
Down all the echoing stair?)

“I wish that he were come to me,
For he will come,” she said.

“Have I not prayed in Heaven? — on earth,
Lord, Lord, has he not pray'd?
Are not two prayers a perfect strength?
And shall I feel afraid?”

“When round his head the aureole clings,
And he is clothed in white,
I'll take his hand and go with him
To the deep wells of light;
As unto a stream we will step down,
And bathe there in God's sight.

“We two will stand beside that shrine,
Occult, withheld, untrod,

Whose lamps are stirred continually
With prayer sent up to God ;
And see our old prayers, granted, melt
Each like a little cloud.

“ We two will lie i' the shadow of
That living mystic tree
Within whose secret growth the Dove
Is sometimes felt to be,
While every leaf that His plumes touch
Saith His Name audibly.

“ And I myself will teach to him,
I myself, lying so,
The songs I sing here ; which his voice
Shall pause in, hushed and slow,
And find some knowledge at each pause,
Or some new thing to know.”

(Alas ! We two, we two, thou say'st !
Yea, one wast thou with me
That once of old. But shall God lift
To endless unity
The soul whose likeness with thy soul
Was but its love for thee?)

“ We two,” she said, “ will seek the groves
Where the lady Mary is,
With her five handmaidens, whose names
Are five sweet symphonies,
Cecily, Gertrude, Magdalen,
Margaret and Rosalys.

“ Circlewise sit they, with bound locks
And foreheads garlanded ;
Into the fine cloth white like flame
Weaving the golden thread,
To fashion the birth-ropes for them
Who are just born, being dead.

“ He shall fear, haply, and be dumb :
Then will I lay my cheek
To his, and tell about our love,
Not once abashed or weak :
And the dear Mother will approve
My pride, and let me speak.

“ Herself shall bring us, hand in hand,
To him round whom all souls
Kneel, the clear-ranged unnumbered heads
Bowed with their aureoles :

And angels meeting us shall sing
To their citherns and citoles.

“There will I ask of Christ the Lord
Thus much for him and me : —
Only to live as once on earth
With Love, — only to be,
As then awhile, for ever now
Together, I and he.”

She gazed and listened and then said,
Less sad of speech than mild, —
“All this is when he comes.” She ceased.
The light thrilled towards her, fill'd
With angels in strong level flight.
Her eyes prayed, and she smil'd.

(I saw her smile.) But soon their path
Was vague in distant spheres :
And then she cast her arms along
The golden barriers,
And laid her face between her hands,
And wept. (I heard her tears.)

SISTER HELEN.

“Why did you melt your waxen man,
Sister Helen?

To-day is the third since you began.”

“The time was long, yet the time ran,
Little brother.”

*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
Three days to-day, between Hell and Heaven !)*

“But if you have done your work aright,
Sister Helen,

You’ll let me play, for you said I might.”

“Be very still in your play to-night,
Little brother.”

*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
Third night, to-night, between Hell and Heaven !)*

“You said it must melt ere vesper-bell,

Sister Helen ;

If now it be molten, all is well.”

“Even so, — nay, peace ! you cannot tell,

Little brother.”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

O what is this, between Hell and Heaven ?)

“Oh the waxen knave was plump to-day,

Sister Helen ;

How like dead folk he has dropped away !”

“Nay now, of the dead what can you say,

Little brother ?”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

What of the dead, between Hell and Heaven ?)

“See, see, the sunken pile of wood,

Sister Helen,

Shines through the thinned wax red as blood !”

“Nay now, when looked you yet on blood,

Little brother ?”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

How pale she is, between Hell and Heaven !)

“ Now close your eyes, for they’re sick and sore,
Sister Helen,

And I’ll play without the gallery door.”

“ Aye, let me rest, — I’ll lie on the floor,

Little brother.”

(*O Mother, Mary Mother,
What rest to-night, between Hell and Heaven?*)

“ Here high up in the balcony,

Sister Helen,

The moon flies face to face with me.”

“ Aye, look and say whatever you see,

Little brother.”

(*O Mother, Mary Mother,
What sight to-night, between Hell and Heaven?*)

“ Outside it’s merry in the wind’s wake,

Sister Helen ;

In the shaken trees the chill stars shake.”

“ Hush, heard you a horse-tread as you spake,

Little brother ?”

(*O Mother, Mary Mother,
What sound to-night, between Hell and Heaven?*)

“ He has made a sign and called Halloo !

Sister Helen,

And he says that he would speak with you.”

“ Oh tell him I fear the frozen dew,

Little brother.”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Why laughs she thus, between Hell and Heaven ?)

“ The wind is loud, but I hear him cry,

Sister Helen,

That Keith of Ewern’s like to die.”

“ And he and thou, and thou and I,

Little brother.”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

And they and we, between Hell and Heaven !)

“ Three days ago, on his marriage-morn,

Sister Helen,

He sickened, and lies since then forlorn.”

“ For bridegroom’s side is the bride a thorn,

Little brother ?”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Cold bridal cheer, between Hell and Heaven !)

“Three days and nights he has lain abed,

Sister Helen,

And he prays in torment to be dead.”

“The thing may chance, if he have prayed,

Little brother !”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

If he have prayed, between Hell and Heaven !)

“But he has not ceased to cry to-day,

Sister Helen,

That you should take your curse away.”

“My prayer was heard, — he need but pray,

Little brother !”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Shall God not hear, between Hell and Heaven ?)

“But he says, till you take back your ban,

Sister Helen,

His soul would pass, yet never can.”

“Nay then, shall I slay a living man,

Little brother ?”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

A living soul, between Hell and Heaven !)

“ But he calls for ever on your name,
Sister Helen,
And says that he melts before a flame.”

“ My heart for his pleasure fared the same,
Little brother.”

*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
Fire at the heart, between Hell and Heaven !)*

“ Here’s Keith of Westholm riding fast,
Sister Helen,
For I know the white plume on the blast.”

“ The hour, the sweet hour I forecast,
Little brother ! ”

*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
Is the hour sweet, between Hell and Heaven ?)*

“ He stops to speak, and he stills his horse,
Sister Helen ;
But his words are drowned in the wind’s course.”

“ Nay hear, nay hear, you must hear perforce,
Little brother ! ”

*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
What word now heard, between Hell and Heaven ?)*

“ Oh he says that Keith of Ewern's cry,
Sister Helen,
Is ever to see you ere he die.”

“ In all that his soul sees, there am I,
Little brother ! ”
*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
The soul's one sight, between Hell and Heaven !)*

“ He sends a ring and a broken coin,
Sister Helen,
And bids you mind the banks of Boyne.”

“ What else he broke will he ever join,
Little brother ? ”
*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
No, never joined, between Hell and Heaven !)*

“ He yields you these and craves full fain,
Sister Helen,
You pardon him in his mortal pain.”

“ What else he took will he give again,
Little brother ? ”
*(O Mother, Mary Mother,
Not twice to give, between Hell and Heaven !)*

“ He calls your name in agony,

Sister Helen,

That even dead Love must weep to see.”

“ Hate, born of Love, is blind as he,

Little brother !”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Love turned to hate, between Hell and Heaven !)

“ Oh it's Keith of Keith now that rides fast,

Sister Helen,

For I know the white hair on the blast.”

“ The short short hour will soon be past,

Little brother !”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Will soon be past, between Hell and Heaven !)

“ He looks at me and he tries to speak,

Sister Helen,

But oh ! his voice is sad and weak !”

“ What here should the mighty Baron seek,

Little brother ?”

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Is this the end, between Hell and Heaven ?)

Lord Sands has won the weltering slope
Whereon the white shape lay :
The clouds were still above the hill,
And the shape was still as they.

Oh pleasant is the gaze of life
And sad is death's blind head ;
But awful are the living eyes
In the face of one thought dead !

“In God's name, Janet, is it me
Thy ghost has come to seek?”
“Nay, wait another hour, Lord Sands, —
Be sure my ghost shall speak.”

A moment stood he as a stone,
Then grovelled to his knee.
“O Janet, O my love, my love,
Rise up and come with me !”
“O once before you bade me come,
And it's here you have brought me !

“O many's the sweet word, Lord Sands,
You've spoken oft to me ;
But all that I have from you to-day
Is the rain on my body.

“ And many’s the good gift, Lord Sands,
You’ve promised oft to me ;
But the gift of yours I keep to-day
Is the babe in my body.

“ O it’s not in any earthly bed
That first my babe I’ll see ;
For I have brought my body here
That the flood may cover me.”

His face was close against her face,
His hands of hers were fain :
O her wet cheeks were hot with tears,
Her wet hands cold with rain.

“ They told me you were dead, Janet, —
How could I guess the lie? ”

“ They told me you were false, Lord Sands, —
What could I do but die? ”

“ Now keep you well, my brother Giles, —
Through you I deemed her dead !
As wan as your towers seem to-day,
To-morrow they’ll be red.

“Look down, look down, my false mother,
That bade me not to grieve :
You’ll look up when our marriage fires
Are lit to-morrow eve.

“O more than one and more than two
The sorrow of this shall see :
But it’s to-morrow, love, for them, —
To-day’s for thee and me.”

He’s drawn her face between his hands
And her pale mouth to his :
No bird that was so still that day
Chirps sweeter than his kiss.

The flood was creeping round their feet.
“O Janet, come away !
The hall is warm for the marriage-rite,
The bed for the birthday.”

“Nay, but I hear your mother cry,
‘Go bring this bride to bed !
And would she christen her babe unborn
So wet she comes to wed?’

“ I’ll be your wife to cross the door
And meet your mother’s e’e.
We plighted troth to wed i’ the kirk,
And it’s there you’ll wed with me.”

He’s ta’en her by the short girdle
And by the dripping sleeve :
“ Go fetch Sir Jock my mother’s priest, —
You’ll ask of him no leave.

“ O it’s one half-hour to reach the kirk
And one for the marriage-rite ;
And kirk and castle and castle-lands
Shall be our babe’s to-night.”

“ The flood’s in the kirkyard, Lord Sands,
And round the belfry-stair.”

“ I bade you fetch the priest,” he said,
“ Myself shall bring him there.

“ It’s for the lilt of wedding bells
We’ll have the hail to pour,
And for the clink of bridle-reins
The plashing of the oar.”

Beneath them on the nether hill
A boat was floating wide :
Lord Sands swam out and caught the oars
And rowed to the hill-side.

He's wrapped her in a green mantle
And set her softly in ;
Her hair was wet upon her face,
Her face was grey and thin ;
And " Oh ! " said she, " lie still, my babe,
It's out you must not win ! "

But woe's my heart for Father John
As hard as he might pray,
There seemed no help but Noah's ark
Or Jonah's fish that day.

The first strokes that the oars struck
Were over the broad leas ;
The next stroke that the oars struck
They pushed beneath the trees ;

The last stroke that the oars struck,
The good boat's head was met,
And there the gate of the kirkyard
Stood like a ferry-gate.

He's set his hand upon the bar
And lightly leaped within :
He's lifted her to his left shoulder,
Her knees beside his chin.

The graves lay deep beneath the flood
Under the rain alone ;
And when the foot-stone made him slip,
He held by the head-stone.

The empty boat thrawed i' the wind,
Against the postern tied.
" Hold still, you've brought my love with me,
You shall take back my bride."

But woe's my heart for Father John
And the saints he clamored to !
There's never a saint but Christopher
Might hale such buttocks through !

And " Oh ! " she said " men's shoulders,
I well had thought to wend,
And well to travel with a priest,
But not to have cared or ken'd.

“And oh!” she said, “it’s well this way
That I thought to have fared, —
Not to have lighted at the kirk
But stopped at the kirkyard.

“For it’s oh and oh I prayed to God,
Whose rest I hoped to win,
That when to-night at your board-head
You’d bid the feast begin,
This water past your window-sill
Might bear my body in.”

Now make the white bed warm and soft
And greet the merry morn.
The night the mother should have died,
The young son shall be born.

THE STAFF AND SCRIP.

“ WHO rules these lands? ” the Pilgrim said.

“ Stranger, Queen Blanchelys.”

“ And who has thus harried them? ” he said.

“ It was the Duke Luke did this :

God’s ban be his ! ”

The Pilgrim said : “ Where is your house ?

I’ll rest there, with your will.”

“ You’ve but to climb these blackened boughs

And you’ll see it over the hill,

For it burns still.”

“ Which road, to seek your Queen? ” said he.

“ Nay, nay, but with some wound

You’ll fly back hither, it may be,

And by your blood i’ the ground

My place be found.”

“ Friend, stay in peace. God keep your head,
And mine where I will go ;
For He is here and there,” he said.
He passed the hill-side, slow,
And stood below.

The Queen sat idle by her loom :
She heard the arras stir,
And looked up sadly : through the room
The sweetness sickened her
Of musk and myrrh.

Her women, standing two and two,
In silence combed the fleece.
The Pilgrim said, “ Peace be with you,
Lady ;” and bent his knees.
She answered, “ Peace.”

Her eyes were like the wave within ;
Like water-reeds the poise
Of her soft body, dainty thin ;
And like the water’s noise
Her plaintive voice.

For him, the stream had never well'd
In desert tracts malign
So sweet ; nor had he ever felt
So faint in the sunshine
Of Palestine.

Right so, he knew that he saw weep
Each night through every dream
The Queen's own face, confused in sleep
With visages supreme
Not known to him.

“Lady,” he said, “your lands lie burnt
And waste : to meet your foe
All fear : this I have seen and learnt.
Say that it shall be so,
And I will go.”

She gazed at him. “Your cause is just,
For I have heard the same :”
He said : “God's strength shall be my trust.
Fall it to good or game,
'Tis in His name.”

“Sir, you are thanked. My cause is dead.

Why should you toil to break
A grave, and fall therein?” she said.

He did not pause but spake :

“For my vow’s sake.”

“Can such vows be, Sir — to God’s ear,
Not to God’s will?” “My vow
Remains : God heard me there as here,”

He said with reverent brow,

“Both then and now.”

They gazed together, he and she,
The minute while he spoke ;
And when he ceased, she suddenly
Looked round upon her folk
As though she woke.

“Fight, Sir,” she said ; “my prayers in pain
Shall be your fellowship.”

He whispered one among her train, —

“To-morrow bid her keep
This staff and scrip.”

She sent him a sharp sword, whose belt
Around his body there
As sweet as her own arms he felt.
He kissed its blade, all bare,
Instead of her.

She sent him a green banner wrought
With one white lily stem,
To bind his lance with when he fought.
He writ upon the same
And kissed her name.

She sent him a white shield, whereon
She bade that he should trace
His will. He blent fair hues that shone,
And in a golden space
He kissed her face.

Born of the day that died, that eve
Now dying sank to rest ;
As he, in likewise taking leave,
Once with a heaving breast
Looked to the west.

And there the sunset skies unseal'd,
Like lands he never knew,
Beyond to-morrow's battle-field
Lay open out of view
To ride into.

Next day till dark the women pray'd :
Nor any might know there
How the fight went : the Queen has bade
That there do come to her
No messenger.

The Queen is pale, her maidens ail ;
And to the organ-tones
They sing but faintly, who sang well
The matin-orisons,
The lauds and nones.

Lo, Father, is thine ear inclin'd,
And hath thine angel pass'd?
For these thy watchers now are blind
With vigil, and at last
Dizzy with fast.

Weak now to them the voice o' the priest
As any trance affords ;
And when each anthem failed and ceas'd,
It seemed that the last chords
Still sang the words.

“Oh what is the light that shines so red?
'Tis long since the sun set ;”
Quoth the youngest to the eldest maid :
“ 'Twas dim but now, and yet
The light is great.”

Quoth the other : “ 'Tis our sight is dazed
That we see flame i' the air.”
But the Queen held her brows and gazed,
And said, “ It is the glare
Of torches there.”

“ Oh what are the sounds that rise and spread?
All day it was so still ;”
Quoth the youngest to the eldest maid :
“ Unto the furthest hill
The air they fill.”

Quoth the other : " 'Tis our sense is blurr'd
With all the chants gone by."
But the Queen held her breath and heard,
And said, " It is the cry
Of Victory."

The first of all the rout was sound,
The next were dust and flame,
And then the horses shook the ground :
And in the thick of them
A still band came.

" Oh what do ye bring out of the fight,
Thus hid beneath these boughs? "
" Thy conquering guest returns to-night,
And yet shall not carouse,
Queen, in thy house."

" Uncover ye his face," she said.
" O changed in little space ! "
She cried, " O pale that was so red !
O God, O God of grace !
Cover his face."

His sword was broken in his hand

Where he had kissed the blade.

“O soft steel that could not withstand !

O my hard heart unstayed,

That prayed and prayed !”

His bloodied banner crossed his mouth

Where he had kissed her name.

“O east, and west, and north, and south,

Fair flew my web, for shame,

To guide Death’s aim !”

The tints were shredded from his shield

Where he had kissed her face.

“Oh, of all the gifts that I could yield,

Death only keeps its place,

My gift and grace !”

Then stepped a damsel to her side,

And spoke, and needs must weep :

“For his sake, lady, if he died,

He prayed of thee to keep

This staff and scrip.”

That night they hung above her bed,
Till morning wet with tears.
Year after year above her head
Her bed his token wears,
Five years, ten years.

That night the passion of her grief
Shook them as there they hung.
Each year the wind that shed the leaf
Shook them and in its tongue
A message flung.

And once she woke with a clear mind
That letters writ to calm
Her soul lay in the scrip ; to find
Only a torpid balm
And dust of palm.

They shook far off with palace sport
When joust and dance were rife ;
And the hunt shook them from the court ;
For hers, in peace or strife,
Was a Queen's life.

A Queen's death : as now they shake
To guests in chapel dim, —
Hung where she sleeps, not seen to wake,
(Carved lovely white and slim),
With them by him.

Stand up to-day, still armed, with her,
Good knight, before His brow
Who then as now was here and there,
Who had in mind thy vow
Then even as now.

The lists are set in Heaven to-day,
The bright pavilions shine ;
Fair hangs thy shield, and none gainsay ;
The trumpets sound in sign
That she is thine.

Not tithed with days' and years' decease
He pays thy wage He owed,
But with imperishable peace
Here in His own abode,
Thy jealous God.

AVE.

MOTHER of the Fair Delight,
Thou handmaid perfect in God's sight,
Now sitting fourth beside the Three
Thyself a woman-Trinity, —
Being a daughter borne to God,
Mother of Christ from stall to rood,
And wife unto the Holy Ghost : —
Oh when our need is uttermost,
Think that to such as death may strike
Thou once wert sister sisterlike !
Thou headstone of humanity,
Groundstone of the great Mystery,
Fashioned like us, yet more than we !

Mind'st thou not (when June's heavy breath

Warmed the long days in Nazareth,)
That eve thou didst go forth to give
Thy flowers some drink that they might live
One faint night more amid the sands?
Far off the trees were as pale wands
Against the fervid sky : the sea
Sighed further off eternally
As human sorrow sighs in sleep.
Then suddenly the awe grew deep,
As of a day to which all days
Were footsteps in God's secret ways :
Until a folding sense, like prayer,
Which is, as God is, everywhere,
Gathered about thee ; and a voice
Spake to thee without any noise,
Being of the silence : — " Hail," it said,
"Thou that art highly favorèd ;
The Lord is with thee here and now ;
Blessed among all women thou."

Ah ! knew'st thou of the end, when first
That Babe was on thy bosom nurs'd?—
Or when He tottered round thy knee
Did thy great sorrow dawn on thee?—

And through His boyhood, year by year
Eating with him the Passover,
Didst thou discern confusedly
That holier sacrament, when He,
The bitter cup about to quaff,
Should break the bread and eat thereof? —
Or came not yet the knowledge, even
Till some day forecast in Heaven
His feet passed through thy door to press
Upon His Father's business? —
Or still was God's high secret kept?

Nay, but I think the whisper crept
Like growth through childhood. Work and play,
Things common to the course of day,
Awed thee with meanings unfulfill'd ;
And all through girlhood, something still'd
Thy senses like the birth of light,
When thou hast trimmed thy lamp at night
Or washed thy garments in the stream ;
To whose white bed had come the dream
That He was thine and thou wast His
Who feeds among the field-lilies.
O solemn shadow of the end

In that wise spirit long contain'd !
O awful end ! and those unsaid
Long years when It was Finishèd !

Mind'st thou not (when the twilight gone
Left darkness in the house of John,)
Between the naked window-bars
That spacious vigil of the stars? —
For thou, a watcher even as they,
Wouldst rise from where throughout the day
Thou wroughtest raiment for His poor ;
And, finding the fixed terms endure
Of day and night which never brought
Sounds of His coming chariot,
Wouldst lift through cloud-waste unexplor'd
Those eyes which said, " How long, O Lord? "
Then that disciple whom He loved,
Well heeding, haply would be moved
To ask thy blessing in His name ;
And that one thought in both, the same
Though silent, then would clasp ye round
To weep together, — tears long bound,
Sick tears of patience, dumb and slow.
Yet, " Surely I come quickly," — so

He said, from life and death gone home.
 Amen : even so, Lord Jesus, come !

But oh ! what human tongue can speak
 That day when Michael came¹ to break
 From the tir'd spirit, like a veil,
 Its covenant with Gabriel
 Endured at length unto the end ?
 What human thought can apprehend
 That mystery of motherhood
 When thy Beloved at length renew'd
 The sweet communion servèd, —
 His left hand underneath thine head
 And His right hand embracing thee ? —
 Lo ! He was thine, and this is He !

Soul, is it Faith, or Love, or Hope,
 That lets me see her standing up
 Where the light of the Throne is bright ?
 Unto the left, unto the right,
 The cherubim, succinct, conjoint,
 Float inward to a golden point,

¹ A Church legend of the Blessed Virgin's death.

And from between the seraphim
The glory issues for a hymn.
O Mary Mother, be not loth
To listen, — thou whom the stars clothe,
Who seëst and mayst not be seen !
Hear us at last, O Mary Queen !
Into our shadow bend thy face,
Bowing thee from the secret place,
O Mary Virgin, full of grace !

DANTE AT VERONA.

“Yea, thou shalt learn how salt his food who fares
 Upon another’s bread, — how steep his path
 Who treadeth up and down another’s stairs.”

(Div. Com. Parad. xvii.)

“Behold, even I, even I am Beatrice.”

(Div. Com. Purg. xxx.)

OF Florence and of Beatrice

Servant and singer from of old,
 O’er Dante’s heart in youth had toll’d
 The knell that gave his Lady peace ;
 And now in manhood flew the dart
 Wherewith his City pierced his heart.

Yet if his Lady’s home above

Was Heaven, on earth she filled his soul ;
 And if his City held control
 To cast the body forth to rove,
 The soul could soar from earth’s vain throng,
 And Heaven and Hell fulfill the song.

Follow his feet's appointed way ;—
But little light we find that clears
The darkness of the exiled years.
Follow his spirit's journey : — nay,
What fires are blent, what winds are blown
On paths his feet may tread alone ?

Yet of the twofold life he led
In chainless thought and fettered will
Some glimpses reach us, — somewhat still
Of the steep stairs and bitter bread, —
Of the soul's quest whose stern avow
For years had made him haggard now. .

Alas ! the Sacred Song whereto
Both heaven and earth had set their hand
Not only at Fame's gate did stand
Knocking to claim the passage through,
But toiled to ope that heavier door
Which Florence shut for evermore.

Shall not his birth's baptismal Town
One last high presage yet fulfil,
And at that front in Florence still

His forehead take the laurel-crown?
O God! or shall dead souls deny
The undying soul its prophecy?

Aye, 'tis their hour. Not yet forgot
The bitter words he spoke that day
When for some great charge far away
Her rulers his acceptance sought.
“And if I go, who stays?” — so rose
His scorn: — “and if I stay, who goes?”

“Lo! thou art gone now, and we stay:”
(The curled lips mutter): “and no star
Is from thy mortal path so far
As streets where childhood knew the way.
To Heaven and Hell thy feet may win,
But thine own house they come not in.”

Therefore, the loftier rose the song
To touch the secret things of God,
The deeper pierced the hate that trod
On base men's track who wrought the wrong;
Till the soul's effluence came to be
Its own exceeding agony.

Arriving only to depart,
From court to court, from land to land,
Like flame within the naked hand
His body bore his burning heart
That still on Florence strove to bring
God's fire for a burnt offering.

Even such was Dante's mood, when now,
Mocked for long years with Fortune's sport,
He dwelt at yet another court,
There where Verona's knee did bow
And her voice hailed with all acclaim
Can Grande della Scala's name.

As that lord's kingly guest awhile
His life we follow ; through the days
Which walked in exile's barren ways, —
The nights which still beneath one smile
Heard through all spheres one song increase, —
“ Even I, even I am Beatrice.”

At Can La Scala's court, no doubt,
Due reverence did his steps attend ;
The ushers on his path would bend

At ingoing as at going out ;
The penmen waited on his call
At council-board, the grooms in hall.

And pages hushed their laughter down,
And gay squires stilled the merry stir,
When he passed up the dais-chamber
With set brows lordlier than a frown ;
And tire-maids hidden among these
Drew close their loosened bodices.

Perhaps the priests, (exact to span
All God's circumference,) if at whiles
They found him wandering in their aisles,
Grudged ghostly greeting to the man
By whom, though not of ghostly guild,
With Heaven and Hell men's hearts were fill'd.

And the court poets (he, forsooth,
A whole world's poet strayed to court !)
Had for his scorn their hate's retort.
He'd meet them flushed with easy youth,
Hot on their errands. Like noon-flies
They vexed him in the ears and eyes.

But at this court, peace still must wrench
Her chaplet from the teeth of war :
By day they held high watch afar,
At night they cried across the trench ;
And still, in Dante's path, the fierce
Gaunt soldiers wrangled o'er their spears.

But vain seemed all the strength to him,
As golden convoys sunk at sea
Whose wealth might root out penury :
Because it was not, limb with limb,
Knit like his heart strings round the wall
Of Florence, that ill pride might fall.

Yet in the tiltyard, when the dust
Cleared from the sundered press of knights
Ere yet again it swoops and smites,
He almost deemed his longing must
Find force to wield that multitude
And hurl that strength the way he would.

How should he move them, — fame and gain
On all hands calling them at strife ?
He still might find but his one life

To give, by Florence counted vain ;
One heart the false hearts made her doubt,
One voice she heard once and cast out.

Oh ! if his Florence could but come,
A lily-sceptred damsel fair,
As her own Giotto painted her
On many shields and gates at home, —
A lady crowned, at a soft pace
Riding the lists round to the dais :

Till where Can Grande rules the lists,
As young as Truth, as calm as Force,
She draws her rein now, while her horse
Bows at the turn of the white wrists ;
And when each knight within his stall
Gives ear, she speaks and tells them all :

All the foul tale, — truth sworn untrue
And falsehood's triumph. All the tale ?
Great God ! and must she not prevail
To fire them ere they heard it through, —
And hand achieve ere heart could rest
That high adventure of her quest ?

How would his Florence lead them forth,
Her bridle ringing as she went ;
And at the last within her tent,
'Neath golden lilies worship-worth,
How queenly would she bend the while
And thank the victors with her smile !

Also her lips should turn his way
And murmur : " O thou tried and true,
With whom I wept the long years through !
What shall it profit if I say,
Thee I remember ? Nay, through thee
All ages shall remember me."

Peace, Dante, peace ! The task is long,
The time wears short to compass it.
Within thine heart such hopes may flit
And find a voice in deathless song :
But lo ! as children of man's earth,
Those hopes are dead before their birth.

Fame tells us that Verona's court
Was a fair place. The feet might still Wander for ever at their will

In many ways of sweet resort ;
And still in many a heart around
The Poet's name due honor found.

Watch we his steps. He comes upon
The women at their palm-playing.
The conduits round the gardens sing
And meet in scoops of milk-white stone,
Where wearied damsels rest and hold
Their hands in the wet spurt of gold.

One of whom, knowing well that he,
By some found stern, was mild with them,
Would run and pluck his garment's hem,
Saying, "Messer Dante, pardon me," —
Praying that they might hear the song
Which first of all he made, when young.

"Donne che avete"¹ . . . Thereunto
Thus would he murmur, having first
Drawn near the fountain, while she nurs'd

His hand against her side : a few
Sweet words, and scarcely those, half said :
Then turned, and changed, and bowed his head.

For then the voice said in his heart,
“ Even I, even I am Beatrice ; ”
And his whole life would yearn to cease :
Till having reached his room, apart
Beyond vast lengths of palace-floor,
He drew the arras round his door.

At such times, Dante, thou hast set
Thy forehead to the painted pane
Full oft, I know ; and if the rain
Smote it outside, her fingers met
Thy brow : and if the sun fell there,
Her breath was on thy face and hair.

Then, weeping, I think certainly
Thou hast beheld, past sight of eyne, —
Within another room of thine
Where now thy body may not be
But where in thought thou still remain'st, —
A window often wept against :

The window thou, a youth, hast sought,
Flushed in the limpid eventime,
Ending with daylight the day's rhyme
Of her ; where oftenwhiles her thought
Held thee — the lamp untrimmed to write —
In joy through the blue lapse of night.

At Can La Scala's court, no doubt,
Guests seldom wept. It was brave sport
No doubt, at Can La Scala's court,
Within the palace and without ;
Where music, set to madrigals,
Loitered all day through groves and halls.

Because Can Grande of his life
Had not had six-and-twenty years
As yet. And when the chroniclers
Tell you of that Vicenza strife
And of strifes elsewhere, — you must not Conceive for church-sooth he had got

Just nothing in his wits but war :
Though doubtless 'twas the young man's joy
(Grown with his growth from a mere boy.)

To mark his "Viva Cane!" scare
The foe's shut front, till it would reel
All blind with shaken points of steel.

But there were places — held too sweet
For eyes that held not the due veil
Of lashes and clear lids — as well
In favor as his saddle-seat :
Breath of low speech he scorned not there
Nor light cool fingers in his hair.

Yet if the child whom the sire's plan
Made free of a deep treasure-chest
Scoff'd it with ill-conditioned jest, —
We may be sure too that the man
Was not mere thews, nor all content
With lewdness swathed in sentiment.

So you may read and marvel not
That such a man as Dante — one
Who, while Can Grande's deeds were done,
Had drawn his robe round him and thought —

Now at the same guest-table far'd
Where keen Uguccio wiped his beard.¹

Through leaves and trellis-work the sun
Left the wine cool within the glass, —
They feasting where no sun could pass :
And when the women, all as one,
Rose up with brightened cheeks to go,
It was a comely thing we know.

But Dante recked not of the wine :
Whether the women stayed or went,
His visage held one stern intent :
And when the music had its sign
To breath upon them for more ease,
Sometimes he turned and bade it cease.

And as he spared not to rebuke
The mirth, so oft in council he
To bitter truth bore testimony :
And when the crafty balance shook
Well poised to make the wrong prevail,
Then Dante's hand would turn the scale.

And if some envoy from afar
Sailed to Verona's sovereign port
For aid or peace, and all the court
Fawned on its lord, "the Mars of war,
Sole arbiter of life and death," —
Be sure that Dante saved his breath.

And Can La Scala marked askance
These things, accepting them for shame
And scorn, till Dante's guestship came
To be a peevish sufferance :
His host sought ways to make his days
Hateful; and such have many ways.

There was a Jester, a foul lout
Whom the court loved for graceless arts ;
Sworn scholiast of the bestial parts
Of speech ; a ribald mouth to shout
In Folly's horny tympanum
Such things as make the wise man dumb.

Much loved, him Dante loathed. And so,
One day when Dante felt perplex'd
If any day that could come next

Were worth the waiting for or no,
And mute he sat amid their din, —
Can Grande called the Jester in.

Rank words, with such, are wit's best wealth.
Lords mouth'd approval ; ladies kept
Twittering with clustered heads, except
Some few that took their trains by stealth
And went. Can Grande shook his hair
And smote his thighs and laughed i' the air.

Then, facing on his guest he cried, —
“ Say, Messer Dante, how it is
I get out of a clown like this
More than your wisdom can provide.”
And Dante : “ 'Tis man's ancient whim
That still his like seems good to him.”

Also a tale is told, how once,
At clearing tables after meat,
Piled for a jest at Dante's feet
Were found the dinner's well-picked bones ;
So laid, to please the banquet's lord,
By one who crouched beneath the board.

Then smiled Can Grande to the rest : —

“ Our Dante’s tuneful mouth indeed
Lacks not the gift on flesh to feed ! ”

“ Fair host of mine, ” replied the guest,
So many bones you’d not descry
If so it chanced the dog were I.”¹

But wherefore should we turn the grout
In a drained cup, or be at strife
From the worn garment of a life
To rip the twisted ravel out?
Good needs expounding ; but of ill
Each hath enough to guess his fill.

They named him Justicer-at-Law :
Each month to bear the tale in mind
Of hues a wench might wear unfin’d
And of the load an ox might draw ;
To cavil in the weight of bread
And to see purse-thieves gibbeted.

¹ “ Messere, voi non vedreste tant’ossa se cane io fossi. ” The point of the reproach is difficult to render, depending as it does on the literal meaning of the name Cane.

And when his spirit wove the spell
 (From under even to over-noon
 In converse with itself alone,)
As high as Heaven, as low as Hell, —
 He would be summoned and must go :
 For had not Gian stabbed Giacomo ?

Therefore the bread he had to eat
 Seemed brackish, less like corn than tares ;
 And the rush-strown accustomed stairs
Each day were steeper to his feet ;
 And when the night-vigil was done,
 His brows would ache to feel the sun.

Nevertheless, when from his kin
 There came the tidings how at last
 In Florence a decree was pass'd
Whereby all banished folk might win
 Free pardon, so a fine were paid
 And act of public penance made, —

This Dante writ in answer thus,
 Words such as these : “ That clearly they
 In Florence must not have to say, —

The man abode aloof from us
Nigh fifteen years, yet lastly skulk'd
Hither to candleshrif and mulct.

“That he was one the Heavens forbid
To traffic in God's justice sold
By market-weight of earthly gold,
Or to bow down over the lid
Of steaming censers, and so be
Made clean of manhood's obloquy.

“That since no gate led, by God's will,
To Florence, but the one whereat
The priests and money-changers sat,
He still would wander ; for that still,
Even through the body's prison-bars,
His soul possessed the sun and stars.”

Such were his words. It is indeed
For ever well our singers should
Utter good words and know them good
Not through song only ; with close heed
Lest, having spent for the work's sake
Six days, the man be left to make.

Months o'er Verona, till the feast
Was come for Florence the Free Town :
And at the shrine of Baptist John
The exiles, girt with many a priest
And carrying candles as they went,
Were held to mercy of the saint.

On the high seats in sober state, —
Gold neck-chains range o'er range below
Gold screen-work where the lilies grow, —
The Heads of the Republic sate,
Marking the humbled face go by
Each one of his house-enemy.

And as each proscrip't rose and stood
From kneeling in the ashen dust
On the shrine-steps, some magnate thrust
A beard into the velvet hood
Of his front colleague's gown, to see
The cinders stuck in the bare knee.

Tosinghi passed, Manelli passed,
Rinucci passed, each in his place ;
But not an Alighieri's face

Went by that day from first to last
In the Republic's triumph ; nor
A foot came home to Dante's door.

(RESPUBLICA — a public thing :
A shameful shameless prostitute,
Whose lust with one lord may not suit,
So takes by turns its revelling
A night with each, till each at morn
Is stripped and beaten forth forlorn,

And leaves her, cursing her. If she,
Indeed, have not some spice-draught, hid
In scent under a silver lid,
To drench his open throat with — he
Once hard asleep ; and thrust him not
At dawn beneath the stairs to rot.

Such this Republic ! — not the Maid
He yearned for ; she who yet should stand
With Heaven's accepted hand in hand,
Invulnerable and unbetray'd :
To whom, even as to God, should be Obeisance one with Liberty.)

Years filled out their twelve moons, and ceased
One in another ; and alway
There were the whole twelve hours each day
And each night as the years increased ;
And rising moon and setting sun
Beheld that Dante's work was done.

What of his work for Florence ? Well
It was, he knew, and well must be.
Yet evermore her hate's decree
Dwelt in his thought intolerable : —
His body to be burned,¹ — his soul
To beat its wings at hope's vain goal.

What of his work for Beatrice ?
Now well-nigh was the third song writ, —
The stars a third time sealing it
With sudden music of pure peace :
For echoing thrice the threefold song,
The unnumbered stars the tone prolong.²

¹ Such was the last sentence passed by Florence against Dante, as a recalcitrant exile.

² "E quindi uscimmo a riveder le stelle." — INFERNO.

"Puro e disposto a salire alle stelle." — PURGATORIO.

"L'amor che muove il sole e l'altre stelle." — PARADISO.

Each hour, as then the Vision pass'd,
He heard the utter harmony
Of the nine trembling spheres, till she
Bowed her eyes towards him in the last,
So that all ended with her eyes,
Hell, Purgatory, Paradise.

“It is my trust, as the years fall,
To write more worthily of her
Who now, being made God's minister,
Looks on His visage and knows all.”
Such was the hope that love dar'd blend
With grief's slow fires, to make an end

Of the “New Life,” his youth's dear book :
Adding thereunto : “In such trust
I labor, and believe I must Accomplish this which my soul took
In charge, if God, my Lord and hers,
Leave my life with me a few years.”

The trust which he had borne in youth
Was all at length accomplished. He
At length had written worthily —

Yea even of her ; no rhymes uncouth
'Twixt tongue and tongue ; but by God's aid
The first words Italy had said.

Ah ! haply now the heavenly guide
Was not the last form seen by him :
But there that Beatrice stood slim
And bowed in passing at his side,
For whom in youth his heart made moan
Then when the city sat alone.¹

Clearly herself ; the same whom he
Met, not past girlhood, in the street,
Low-bosomed and with hidden feet ;
And then as woman perfectly,
In years that followed, many an once, —
And now at last among the suns

In that high vision. But indeed
It may be memory might recall
Last to him then the first of all, —

¹ "Quomodo sedet sola civitas !" — The words quoted by Dante in the "Vita Nuova," when he speaks of the death of Beatrice.

The child his boyhood bore in heed
Nine years. At length the voice brought peace,—
“Even I, even I am Beatrice.”

All this, being there, we had not seen.
Seen only was the shadow wrought
On the strong features bound in thought ;
The vagueness gaining gait and mien ;
The white streaks gathered clear to view
In the burnt beard the women knew.

For a tale tells that on his track,
As through Verona's streets he went,
This saying certain women sent :—
“Lo, he that strolls to Hell and back
At will ! Behold him, how Hell's reek
Has crisped his beard and singed his cheek.”

“Whereat” (Boccaccio's words) “he smil'd
For pride in fame.” It might be so :
Nevertheless we cannot know
If haply he were not beguil'd
To bitterer mirth, who scarce could tell
If he indeed were back from Hell.

So the day came, after a space,
When Dante felt assured that there
The sunshine must lie sicklier
Even than in any other place,
Save only Florence. When that day
Had come, he rose and went his way.

He went and turned out. From his shoes
It may be that he shook the dust,
As every righteous dealer must
Once and again ere life can close :
And unaccomplished destiny
Struck cold his forehead, it may be.

No book keeps record how the Prince
Sunned himself out of Dante's reach,
Nor how the Jester stank in speech :
While courtiers, used to cringe and wince,
Poets and harlots, all the throng,
Let loose their scandal and their song.

No book keeps record if the seat
Which Dante held at his host's board
Were sat in next by clerk or lord, —

If leman lolled with dainty feet
At ease, or hostage brooded there,
Or priest lacked silence for his prayer.

Eat and wash hands, Can Grande ; — scarce
We know their deeds now : hands which fed
Our Dante with that bitter bread ;
And thou the watch-dog of those stairs
Which, of all paths his feet knew well,
Were steeper found than Heaven or Hell.

TROY TOWN.

HEAVENBORN HELEN, Sparta's queen,

(O Troy Town !)

Had two breasts of heavenly sheen,

The sun and moon of the heart's desire :

All Love's lordship lay between.

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

Helen knelt at Venus' shrine,

(O Troy Town !)

Saying, " A little gift is mine,

A little gift for a heart's desire.

Hear me speak and make me a sign !

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

TROY TOWN.

“ Look, I bring thee a carven cup ;

(O Troy Town !)

See it here as I hold it up, —

Shaped it is to the heart's desire,

Fit to fill when the gods would sup.

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

“ It was moulded like my breast ;

(O Troy Town !)

He that sees it may not rest,

Rest at all for his heart's desire.

O give ear to my heart's behest !

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

“ See my breast, how like it is ;

(O Troy Town !)

See it bare for the air to kiss !

Is the cup to thy heart's desire ?

O for the breast, O make it his !

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

“ Yea, for my bosom here I sue ;

(O Troy Town !)

Thou must give it where 'tis due,

Give it there to the heart's desire.

Whom do I give my bosom to ?

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

“ Each twin breast is an apple sweet.

(O Troy Town !)

Once an apple stirred the beat

Of thy heart with the heart's desire : —

Say, who brought it then to thy feet ?

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

“ They that claimed it then were three :

(O Troy Town !)

For thy sake two hearts did he

Make forlorn of the heart's desire.

Do for him as he did for thee !

(O Troy's down,

Tall Troy's on fire !)

TROY TOWN.

“ Mine are apples grown to the south,
(O Troy Town !)

Grown to taste in the days of drouth,
Taste and waste to the heart's desire :
Mine are apples meet for his mouth.”

(*O Troy's down,
Tall Troy's on fire !*)

Venus looked on Helen's gift,
(O Troy Town !)

Looked and smiled with subtle drift,
Saw the work of her heart's desire : —
“ There thou kneel'st for Love to lift ! ”

(*O Troy's down,
Tall Troy's on fire !*)

Venus looked in Helen's face,
(O Troy Town !)
Knew far off an hour and place,
And fire lit from the heart's desire ;
Laughed and said, “ Thy gift hath grace ! ”

(*O Troy's down,
Tall Troy's on fire !*)

Cupid looked on Helen's breast,
 (O Troy Town!)
Saw the heart within its nest,
Saw the flame of the heart's desire, —
Marked his arrow's burning crest.
 (O Troy's down,
 Tall Troy's on fire!)

Cupid took another dart,
 (O Troy Town!)
Fledged it for another heart,
Winged the shaft with the heart's desire,
Drew the string and said, "Depart!"
 (O Troy's down,
 Tall Troy's on fire!)

Paris turned upon his bed,
 (O Troy Town!)
Turned upon his bed and said,
Dead at heart with the heart's desire, —
"Oh to clasp her golden head!"
 (O Troy's down,
 Tall Troy's on fire!)

EDEN BOWER.

It was Lilith the wife of Adam :

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Not a drop of her blood was human,
But she was made like a soft sweet woman.

Lilith stood on the skirts of Eden ;

(Alas the hour !)

She was the first that thence was driven ;
With her was hell and with Eve was heaven.

In the ear of the Snake said Lilith : —

(Sing Eden Bower !)

“To thee I come when the rest is over ;
A snake was I when thou wast my lover.

“I was the fairest snake in Eden :

(Alas the hour !)

By the earth's will, new form and feature
Made me a wife for the earth's new creature.

“Take me thou as I come from Adam :
(Sing Eden Bower !)

Once again shall my love subdue thee ;
The past is past and I am come to thee.

“O but Adam was thrall to Lilith !
(Alas the hour !)

All the threads of my hair are golden,
And there in a net his heart was holden.

“O and Lilith was queen of Adam !
(Sing Eden Bower !)

All the day and the night together
My breath could shake his soul like a feather.

“What great joys had Adam and Lilith !—
(Alas the hour !)

Sweet close rings of the serpent’s twining,
As heart in heart lay sighing and pining.

“What bright babes had Lilith and Adam !—
(Sing Eden Bower !)

Shapes that coiled in the woods and waters,
Glittering sons and radiant daughters.

“ O thou God, the Lord God of Eden !

(Alas the hour !)

Say, was this fair body for no man,
That of Adam's flesh thou mak'st him a woman ?

“ O thou Snake, the King-snake of Eden !

(Sing Eden Bower !)

God's strong will our necks are under,
But thou and I may cleave it in sunder.

“ Help, sweet Snake, sweet lover of Lilith !

(Alas the hour !)

And let God learn how I loved and hated
Man in the image of God created.

“ Help me once against Eve and Adam !

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Help me once for this one endeavor,
And then my love shall be thine for ever !

“ Strong is God, the fell foe of Lilith :

(Alas the hour !)

Nought in heaven or earth may affright him ;
But join thou with me and we will smite him.

“Strong is God, the great God of Eden :

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Over all He made He hath power ;
But lend me thou thy shape for an hour !

“Lend thy shape for the love of Lilith !

(Alas the hour !)

Look, my mouth and my cheek are ruddy,
And thou art cold, and fire is my body.

“Lend thy shape for the hate of Adam !

(Sing Eden Bower !)

That he may wail my joy that forsook him,
And curse the day when the bride-sleep took him.

“Lend thy shape for the shame of Eden !

(Alas the hour !)

Is not the foe-God weak as the foeman
When love grows hate in the heart of a woman ?

“Would'st thou know the heart's hope of Lilith ?

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Then bring thou close thine head till it glisten
Along my breast, and lip me and listen.

“ Am I sweet, O sweet Snake of Eden ?

(Alas the hour !)

Then ope thine ear to my warm mouth’s cooing
And learn what deed remains for our doing.

“ Thou didst hear when God said to Adam : —

(Sing Eden Bower !)

‘ Of all this wealth I have made thee warden ;
Thou’rt free to eat of the trees of the garden :

“ ‘ Only of one tree eat not in Eden ;

(Alas the hour !)

All save one I give to thy freewill, —
The Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil.’

“ O my love, come nearer to Lilith !

(Sing Eden Bower !)

In thy sweet folds bind me and bend me,
And let me feel the shape thou shalt lend me !

“ In thy shape I’ll go back to Eden ;

(Alas the hour !)

In these coils that Tree will I grapple,
And stretch this crowned head forth by the apple.

“Lo, Eve bends to the breath of Lilith!

(Sing Eden Bower!)

O how then shall my heart desire
All her blood as food to its fire!

“Lo, Eve bends to the words of Lilith! —

(Alas the hour!)

‘Nay, this Tree’s fruit, — why should ye hate it,
Or Death be born the day that ye ate it?’

“‘Nay, but on that great day in Eden,

(Sing Eden Bower!)

By the help that in this wise Tree is,
God knows well ye shall be as He is.’

“Then Eve shall eat and give unto Adam;

(Alas the hour!)

And then they both shall know they are naked,
And their hearts ache as my heart hath achèd.

“Aye, let them hide ’mid the trees of Eden,

(Sing Eden Bower!)

As in the cool of the day in the garden
God shall walk without pity or pardon.

“ Hear, thou Eve, the man’s heart in Adam !

(Alas the hour !)

Of his brave words hark to the bravest : —

‘ This the woman gave that thou gavest.’

“ Hear Eve speak, yea list to her, Lilith !

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Feast thine heart with words that shall sate it —

‘ This the serpent gave and I ate it.’

“ O proud Eve, cling close to thine Adam,

(Alas the hour !)

Driven forth as the beasts of his naming

By the sword that for ever is flaming.

“ Know, thy path is known unto Lilith !

(Sing Eden Bower !)

While the blithe birds sang at thy wedding,

There her tears grew thorns for thy treading.

“ O my love, thou Love-snake of Eden !

(Alas the hour !)

O to-day and the day to come after !

Loose me, love, — give breath to my laughter.

“O bright Snake, the Death-worm of Adam!

(Sing Eden Bower!)

Wreathe thy neck with my hair's bright tether,
And wear my gold and thy gold together!

“On that day on the skirts of Eden,

(Alas the hour!)

In thy shape shall I glide back to thee,
And in my shape for an instant view thee.

“But when thou'rt thou and Lilith is Lilith,

(Sing Eden Bower!)

In what bliss past hearing or seeing
Shall each one drink of the other's being!

“With cries of ‘Eve!’ and ‘Eden!’ and ‘Adam!’

(Alas the hour!)

How shall we mingle our love's caresses,
I in thy coils, and thou in my tresses!

“With those names, ye echoes of Eden,

(Sing Eden Bower!)

Fire shall cry from my heart that burneth, —
‘Dust he is and to dust returneth!’

“Yet to-day, thou master of Lilith, —

(Alas the hour !)

Wrap me round in the form I'll borrow
And let me tell thee of sweet to-morrow.

“In the planted garden eastward in Eden,

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Where the river goes forth to water the garden,
The springs shall dry and the soil shall harden.

“Yea, where the bride-sleep fell upon Adam,

(Alas the hour !)

None shall hear when the storm-wind whistles
Through roses choked among thorns and thistles.

“Yea, beside the east-gate of Eden,

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Where God joined them and none might sever,
The sword turns this way and that for ever.

“What of Adam cast out of Eden?

(Alas the hour !)

Lo ! with care like a shadow shaken,
He tills the hard earth whence he was taken.

“ What of Eve too, cast out of Eden ?

(Sing Eden Bower !)

Nay, but she, the bride of God's giving,
Must yet be mother of all men living.

“ Lo, God's grace, by the grace of Lilith !

(Alas the hour !)

To Eve's womb, from our sweet to-morrow,
God shall greatly multiply sorrow.

“ Fold me fast, O God-snake of Eden !

(Sing Eden Bower !)

What more prize than love to impel thee ?
Grip and lip my limbs as I tell thee !

“ Lo ! two babes for Eve and for Adam !

(Alas the hour !)

Lo ! sweet Snake, the travail and treasure, —
Two men-children born for their pleasure !

“ The first is Cain and the second Abel :

(Sing Eden Bower !)

The soul of one shall be made thy brother,
And thy tongue shall lap the blood of the other.”

(Alas the hour !)

THE CARD-DEALER.

COULD you not drink her gaze like wine ?

Yet though its splendor swoon
Into the silence languidly

As a tune into a tune,
Those eyes unravel the coiled night
And know the stars at noon.

The gold that's heaped beside her hand,
In truth rich prize it were ;
And rich the dreams that wreath her brows
With magic stillness there ;
And he were rich who should unwind
That woven golden hair.

Around her, where she sits, the dance
Now breathes its eager heat ;
And not more lightly or more true
Fall there the dancers' feet

Than fall her cards on the bright board
As 'twere an heart that beat.

Her fingers let them softly through,
Smooth polished silent things ;
And each one as it falls reflects
In swift light-shadowings,
Blood-red and purple, green and blue,
The great eyes of her rings.

Whom plays she with? With thee, who lov'st
Those gems upon her hand ;
With me, who search her secret brows ;
With all men, bless'd or bann'd.
We play together, she and we,
Within a vain strange land :

A land without any order, —
Day even as night, (one saith,) —
Where who lieth down ariseth not
Nor the sleeper awakeneth ;
A land of darkness as darkness itself
And of the shadow of death.

What be her cards, you ask? Even these : —

The heart, that doth but crave
More, having fed ; the diamond,
Skilled to make base seem brave ;
The club, for smiting in the dark ;
The spade to dig a grave.

And do you ask what game she plays?

With me 'tis lost or won ;
With thee it is playing still ; with him
It is not well begun ;
But 'tis a game she plays with all
Beneath the sway o' the sun.

Thou seest the card that falls, — she knows

The card that followeth :
Her game in thy tongue is called Life,
As ebbs thy daily breath :
When she shall speak, thou'lt learn her tongue
And know she calls it Death.

LOVE'S NOCTURN.

MASTER of the murmuring courts
Where the shapes of sleep convene !—
Lo ! my spirit here exhorts
All the powers of thy demesne
For their aid to woo my queen.
What reports
Yield thy jealous courts unseen ?

Vaporous, unaccountable,
Dreamworld lies forlorn of light,
Hollow like a breathing shell.
Ah ! that from all dreams I might
Choose one dream and guide its flight !
I know well
What her sleep should tell to-night.

There the dreams are multitudes :

Some that will not wait for sleep,
Deep within the August woods ;
Some that hum while rest may steep
Weary labor laid a-heap ;
Interludes,
Some, of grievous moods that weep.

Poets' fancies all are there :

There the elf-girls flood with wings
Valleys full of plaintive air ;
There breathe perfumes ; there in rings
Whirl the foam-bewildered springs ;
Siren there
Winds her dizzy hair and sings.

Thence the one dream mutually

Dreamed in bridal unison,
Less than waking ecstasy ;
Half-formed visions that make moan
In the house of birth alone ;
And what we
At death's wicket see, unknown.

But for mine own sleep, it lies
 In one gracious form's control,
Fair with honorable eyes,
 Lamps of translucent soul :
 O their glance is loftiest dole,
 Sweet and wise,
Wherein Love descries his goal.

Reft of her, my dreams are all
 Clammy trance that fears the sky :
Changing footpaths shift and fall ;
 From polluted coverts nigh,
 Miserable phantoms sigh ;
 Quakes the pall,
And the funeral goes by.

Master, is it soothly said
 That, as echoes of man's speech
Far in secret clefts are made,
 So do all men's bodies reach
 Shadows o'er thy sunken beach, —
 Shape or shade
In those halls pourtrayed of each ?

Ah ! might I, by thy good grace
Groping in the windy stair,
(Darkness and the breath of space
Like loud waters everywhere,)
Meeting mine own image there
Face to face,
Send it from that place to her !

Nay, not I ; but oh ! do thou,
Master, from thy shadowkind
Call my body's phantom now :
Bid it bear its face declin'd
Till its flight her slumbers find,
And her brow
Feels its presence bow like wind.

Where in groves the gracile Spring
Trembles, with mute orison
Confidently strengthening,
Water's voice and wind's as one
Shed an echo in the sun.
Soft as Spring,
Master, bid it sing and moan.

Song shall tell how glad and strong
Is the night she soothes alway ;
Moan shall grieve with that parched tongue
Of the brazen hours of day :
Sounds as of the springtide they,
Moan and song,
While the chill months long for May.

Not the prayers which with all leave
The world's fluent woes prefer, —
Not the praise the world doth give,
Dulcet fulsome whisperer ;—
Let it yield my love to her,
And achieve
Strength that shall not grieve or err.

Wheresoe'er my dreams befall,
Both at night-watch, (let it say,)
And where round the sundial
The reluctant hours of day,
Heartless, hopeless of their way,
Rest and call ;—
There her glance doth fall and stay.

Suddenly her face is there :
So do mounting vapours wreathe
Subtle-scented transports where
The black firwood sets its teeth.
Part the boughs and look beneath, —
Lilies share
Secret waters there, and breathe.

Master, bid my shadow bend
Whispering thus till birth of light,
Lest new shapes that sleep may send
Scatter all its work to flight ; —
Master, master of the night,
Bid it spend
Speech, song, prayer, and end aright.

Yet, ah me ! if at her head
There another phantom lean
Murmuring o'er the fragrant bed, —
Ah ! and if my spirit's queen
Smile those alien prayers between, —
Ah ! poor shade !
Shall it strive, or fade unseen ?

How should love's own messenger
 Strive with love and be love's foe?
Master, nay! If thus, in her,
 Sleep a wedded heart should show,—
 Silent let mine image go,
 Its old share
Of thy spell-bound air to know.

Like a vapour wan and mute,
 Like a flame, so let it pass;
One low sigh across her lute,
 One dull breath against her glass;
And to my sad soul, alas!
 One salute
Cold as when death's foot shall pass.

Then, too, let all hopes of mine,
 All vain hopes by night and day,
Slowly at thy summoning sign
 Rise up pallid and obey.
Dreams, if this is thus, were they:—
 Be they thine,
And to dreamworld pine away.

LOVE'S NOCTURN.

Yet from old time, life, not death,
Master, in thy rule is rife :
Lo ! through thee, with mingling breath,
Adam woke beside his wife.
O Love bring me so, for strife,
Force and faith,
Bring me so not death but life !

Yea, to Love himself is pour'd
This frail song of hope and fear.
Thou art Love, of one accord
With kind Sleep to bring her near,
Still-eyed, deep-eyed, ah how dear !
Master, Lord,
In her name implor'd, O hear !

THE STREAM'S SECRET.

WHAT thing unto mine ear
Would'st thou convey, — what secret thing,
O wandering water ever whispering?
Surely thy speech shall be of her.
Thou water, O thou whispering wanderer,
What message dost thou bring?

Say, hath not Love leaned low
This hour beside thy far well-head,
And there through jealous hollowed fingers said
The thing that most I long to know, —
Murmuring with curls all dabbled in thy flow
And washed lips rosy red?

He told it to thee there
Where thy voice hath a louder tone ;
But where it welters to this little moan

His will decrees that I should hear.
Now speak : for with the silence is no fear,
And I am all alone.

Shall Time not still endow
One hour with life, and I and she
Slake in one kiss the thirst of memory?
Say, stream ; lest Love should disavow
Thy service, and the bird upon the bough
Sing first to tell it me.

What whisperest thou? Nay, why
Name the dead hours? I mind them well :
Their ghosts in many darkened doorways dwell
With desolate eyes to know them by.
The hour that must be born ere it can die, —
Of that I'd have thee tell.

But hear, before thou speak !
Withhold, I pray, the vain behest
That while the maze hath still its bower for quest
My burning heart should cease to seek.
Be sure that Love ordained for souls more meek
His roadside dells of rest.

Stream, when this silver thread
In flood-time is a torrent brown
May any bulwark bind thy foaming crown?
Shall not the waters surge and spread
And to the crannied boulders of their bed
Still shoot the dead drift down?

Let no rebuke find place
In speech of thine : or it shall prove
That thou dost ill expound the words of Love,
Even as thine eddy's rippling race
Would blur the perfect image of his face.
I will have none thereof.

O learn and understand
That 'gainst the wrongs himself did wreak
Love sought her aid ; until her shadowy cheek
And eyes beseeching gave command ;
And compassed in her close compassionate hand
My heart must burn and speak.

For then at last we spoke
What eyes so oft had told to eyes
Through that long-lingering silence whose half-sighs

Alone the buried secret broke,
Which with snatched hands and lips' reverberate stroke
Then from the heart did rise.

But she is far away
Now ; nor the hours of night grown hoar
Bring yet to me, long gazing from the door,
The wind-stirred robe of roseate gray
And rose-crown of the hour that leads the day
When we shall meet once more.

Dark as thy blinded wave
When brimming midnight floods the glen, —
Bright as the laughter of thy runnels when
The dawn yields all the light they crave ;
Even so these hours to wound and that to save
Are sisters in Love's ken.

Oh, sweet her bending grace
Then when I kneel beside her feet ;
And sweet her eyes' o'erhanging heaven ; and sweet
The gathering folds of her embrace ;
And her fall'n hair at last shed round my face
When breaths and tears shall meet.

Beneath her sheltering hair,
In the warm silence near her breast,
Our kisses and our sobs shall sink to rest ;
As in some still trance made aware
That day and night have wrought to fulness there
And Love has built our nest.

And as in the dim grove,
When the rains cease that hushed them long,
'Mid glistening boughs the song-birds wake to song, —
So from our hearts deep-shrined in love,
While the leaves throb beneath, around, above,
The quivering notes shall throng.

Till tenderest words found vain
Draw back to wonder mute and deep,
And closed lips in closed arms a silence keep,
Subdued by memory's circling strain, —
The wind-rapt sound that the wind brings again
While all the willows weep.

Then by her summoning art
Shall memory conjure back the sere
Autumnal Springs, from many a dying year

Born dead ; and, bitter to the heart,
The very ways where now we walk apart
Who then shall cling so near.

And with each thought new-grown,
Some sweet caress or some sweet name
Low-breathed shall let me know her thought the same ;
Making me rich with every tone
And touch of the dear heaven so long unknown
That filled my dreams with flame.

Pity and love shall burn
In her pressed cheek and cherishing hands ;
And from the living spirit of love that stands
Between her lips to soothe and yearn,
Each separate breath shall clasp me round in turn
And loose my spirit's bands.

Oh, passing sweet and dear,
Then when the worshipped form and face
Are felt at length in darkling close embrace ;
Round which so oft the sun shone clear,
With mocking light and pitiless atmosphere,
In many an hour and place.

Ah me ! with what proud growth
Shall that hour's thirsting race be run ;
While, for each several sweetness still begun
Afresh, endures love's endless drouth :
Sweet hands, sweet hair, sweet cheeks, sweet eyes,
sweet mouth.

Each singly wooed and won.

Yet most with the sweet soul
Shall love's espousals then be knit ;
For very passion of peace shall breathe from it
O'er tremulous wings that touch the goal,
As on the unmeasured height of Love's control
The lustral fires are lit.

Therefore, when breast and cheek
Now part, from long embraces free, —
Each on the other gazing shall but see
A self that has no need to speak :
All things unsought, yet nothing more to seek, —
One love in unity.

O water wandering past, —
Albeit to thee I speak this thing,
O water, thou that wanderest whispering,

Thou keep'st thy counsel to the last.
What spell upon thy bosom should Love cast,
His message thence to wring?

Nay, must thou hear the tale
Of the past days, — the heavy debt
Of life that obdurate time withholds, — ere yet
To win thine ear these prayers prevail,
And by thy voice Love's self with high All-hail
Yield up the love-secret?

How should all this be told? —
All the sad sum of wayworn days ; —
Heart's anguish in the impenetrable maze ;
And on the waste uncolored wold
The visible burthen of the sun grown cold
And the moon's laboring gaze?

Alas ! shall hope be nurs'd
On life's all-succoring breast in vain,
And made so perfect only to be slain?
Or shall not rather the sweet thirst
Even yet rejoice the heart with warmth dispers'd
And strength grown fair again?

Stands it not by the door —
Love's Hour — till she and I shall meet ;
With bodiless form and unapparent feet
That cast no shadow yet before,
Though round its head the dawn begins to pour
The breath that makes day sweet?

Its eyes invisible
Watch till the dial's thin-thrown shade
Be born, — yea, till the journeying line be laid
Upon the point that wakes the spell,
And there in lovelier light than tongue can tell
Its presence stand array'd.

Its soul remembers yet
Those sunless hours that passed it by ;
And still it hears the night's disconsolate cry,
And feels the branches wringing wet
Cast on its brow, that may not once forget,
Dumb tears from the blind sky.

But oh ! when now her foot
Draws near, for whose sake night and day
Were long in weary longing sighed away, —

The Hour of Love, 'twas airs grown mute,
Shall sing beside the door, and Love's own lute
Thrill to the passionate lay.

Thou know'st, for Love has told
Within thine ear, O stream, how soon
That song shall lift its sweet appointed tune.
O tell me, for my lips are cold,
And in my veins the blood is waxing old
Even while I beg the boon.

So, in that hour of sighs
Assuaged, shall we beside this stone
Yield thanks for grace; while in thy mirror shown
The twofold image softly lies,
Until we kiss, and each in other's eyes
Is imaged all alone.

Still silent? Can no art
Of Love's then move thy pity? Nay,
To thee let nothing come that owns his sway:
Let happy lovers have no part
With thee; nor even so sad and poor a heart
As thou hast spurned to-day.

To-day? Lo ! night is here.
The glen grows heavy with some veil
Risen from the earth or fall'n to make earth pale ;
And all stands hushed to eye and ear,
Until the night-wind shake the shade like fear
And every covert quail.

Ah ! by a colder wave
On deathlier airs the hour must come
Which to thy heart, my love, shall call me home.
Between the lips of the low cave
Against that night the lapping waters lave,
And the dark lips are dumb.

But there Love's self doth stand,
And with Life's weary wings far-flown,
And with Death's eyes that make the water moan,
Gathers the water in his hand :
And they that drink know nought of sky or land
But only love alone.

O soul-sequestered face
Far off, — O were that night but now !
So even beside that stream even I and thou

Through thirsting lips should draw Love's grace,
And in the zone of that supreme embrace
Bind aching breast and brow.

O water whispering
Still through the dark into mine ears, —
As with mine eyes, is it not now with hers? —
Mine eyes that add to thy cold spring,
Wan water, wandering water weltering,
This hidden tide of tears.

JENNY.

“Vengeance of Jenny’s case! Fie on her! Never name her, child!” — (Mrs. Quickly.)

LAZY laughing languid Jenny,
Fond of a kiss* and fond of a guinea,
Whose head upon my knee to-night
Rests for a while, as if grown light
With all our dances and the sound
To which the wild tunes spun you round :
Fair Jenny mine, the thoughtless queen
Of kisses which the blush between
Could hardly make much daintier ;
Whose eyes are as blue skies, whose hair
Is countless gold incomparable :
Fresh flower, scarce touched with signs that tell
Of Love’s exuberant hotbed : — Nay,
Poor flower left torn since yesterday
Until to-morrow leave you bare ;
Poor handful of bright spring-water
Flung in the whirlpool’s shrieking face ;

Poor shameful Jenny, full of grace
Thus with your head upon my knee ;—
Whose person or whose purse may be
The lodestar of your reverie ?

This room of yours, my Jenny, looks
A change from mine so full of books,
Whose serried ranks hold fast, forsooth,
So many captive hours of youth, —
The hours they thieve from day and night
To make one's cherished work come right,
And leave it wrong for all their theft,
Even as to-night my work was left :
Until I vowed that since my brain
And eyes of dancing seemed so fain,
My feet should have some dancing too :—
And thus it was I met with you.
Well, I suppose 'twas hard to part,
For here I am. And now, sweetheart,
You seem too tired to get to bed.

It was a careless life I led
When rooms like this were scarce so strange
Not long ago. What breeds the change, —

The many aims or the few years?
Because to-night it all appears
Something I do not know again.

The cloud's not danced out of my brain, —
The cloud that made it turn and swim
While hour by hour the books grew dim.
Why, Jenny, as I watch you there, —
For all your wealth of loosened hair,
Your silk ungirdled and unlac'd
And warm sweets open to the waist,
All golden in the lamplight's gleam, —
You know not what a book you seem,
Half-read by lightning in a dream !
How should you know, my Jenny? Nay,
And I should be ashamed to say : —
Poor beauty, so well worth a kiss !
But while my thought runs on like this
With wasteful whims more than enough,
I wonder what you're thinking of.

If of myself you think at all,
What is the thought? — conjectural
On sorry matters best unsolved? —

Or inly is each grace revolved
To fit me with a lure? — or (sad
To think !) perhaps you're merely glad
That I'm not drunk or ruffianly
And let you rest upon my knee.

For sometimes, were the truth confess'd,
You're thankful for a little rest, —
Glad from the crush to rest within,
From the heart-sickness and the din
Where envy's voice at virtue's pitch
Mocks you because your gown is rich ;
And from the pale girl's dumb rebuke,
Whose ill-clad grace and toil-worn look
Proclaim the strength that keeps her weak
And other nights than yours bespeak ;
And from the wise unchildish elf,
To schoolmate lesser than himself
Pointing you out, what thing you are : —
Yes, from the daily jeer and jar,
From shame and shame's outbraving too,
Is rest not sometimes sweet to you? —
But most from the hatefulness of man
Who spares not to end what he began,

Whose acts are ill and his speech ill,
Who, having used you at his will,
Thrusts you aside, as when I dine
I serve the dishes and the wine.

Well, handsome Jenny mine, sit up,
I've filled our glasses, let us sup,
And do not let me think of you,
Lest shame of yours suffice for two.
What, still so tired? Well, well then, keep
Your head there, so you do not sleep ;
But that the weariness may pass
And leave you merry, take this glass.
Ah ! lazy lily hand, more bless'd
If ne'er in rings it had been dress'd
Nor ever by a glove conceal'd !

Behold the lilies of the field,
They toil not neither do they spin ;
(So doth the ancient text begin, —
Not of such rest as one of these
Can share.) Another rest and ease
Along each summer-sated path
From its new lord the garden hath,

Than that whose spring in blessings ran
Which praised the bounteous husbandman,
Ere yet, in days of hankering breath,
The lilies sickened unto death.

What, Jenny, are your lilies dead?
Aye, and the snow-white leaves are spread
Like winter on the garden-bed.
But you had roses left in May, —
They were not gone too. Jenny, nay,
But must your roses die, and those
Their purpled buds that should unclose?
Even so; the leaves are curled apart,
Still red as from the broken heart,
And here's the naked stem of thorns.

Nay, nay, mere words. Here nothing warns
As yet of winter. Sickness here
Or want alone could waken fear, —
Nothing but passion wrings a tear.
Except when there may rise unsought
Haply at times a passing thought
Of the old days which seem to be
Much older than any history

That is written in any book ;
When she would lie in fields and look
Along the ground through the blown grass,
And wonder where the city was,
Far out of sight, whose broil and bale
They told her then for a child's tale.

Jenny, you know the city now.
A child can tell the tale there, how
Some things which are not yet enroll'd
In market-lists are bought and sold
Even till the early Sunday light,
When Saturday night is market-night
Everywhere, be it dry or wet,
And market-night in the Haymarket.
Our learned London children know,
Poor Jenny, all your pride and woe ;
Have seen your lifted silken skirt
Advertise dainties through the dirt ;
Have seen your coach-wheels splash rebuke
On virtue ; and have learned your look
When, wealth and health slipped past, you stare
Along the streets alone, and there,
Round the long park, across the bridge,

The cold lamps at the pavement's edge
Wind on together and apart,
A fiery serpent for your heart.

Let the thoughts pass, an empty cloud !
Suppose I were to think aloud, —
What if to her all this were said ?
Why, as a volume seldóm read
Being opened halfway shuts again,
So might the pages of her brain
Be parted at such words, and thence
Close back upon the dusty sense.
For is there hue or shape defin'd
In Jenny's desecrated mind,
Where all contagious currents meet,
A Lethe of the middle street ?
Nay, it reflects not any face,
Nor sound is in its sluggish pace,
But as they coil those eddies clot,
And night and day remember not.

Why, Jenny, you're asleep at last ! —
Asleep, poor Jenny, hard and fast, —
So young and soft and tired ; so fair,

With chin thus nestled in your hair,
Mouth quiet, eyelids almost blue
As if some sky of dreams shone through !

Just as another woman sleeps !
Enough to throw one's thoughts in heaps
Of doubt and horror, — what to say
Or think, — this awful secret sway,
The potter's power over the clay !
Of the same lump (it has been said)
For honor and dishonor made,
Two sister vessels. Here is one.

My cousin Nell is fond of fun,
And fond of dress, and change, and praise,
So mere a woman in her ways :
And if her sweet eyes rich in youth
Are like her lips that tell the truth,
My cousin Nell is fond of love.
And she's the girl I'm proudest of.
Who does not prize her, guard her well?
The love of change, in cousin Nell,
Shall find the best and hold it dear :
The unconquered mirth turn quieter

Not through her own, through others' woe :
The conscious pride of beauty glow
Beside another's pride in her,
One little part of all they share.
For Love himself shall ripen these
In a kind soil to just increase
Through years of fertilizing peace.

Of the same lump (as it is said)
For honor and dishonor made,
Two sister vessels. Here is one.

It makes a goblin of the sun.

So pure, — so fall'n ! How dare to think
Of the first common kindred link ?
Yet, Jenny, till the world shall burn
It seems that all things take their turn ;
And who shall say but this fair tree
May need, in changes that may be,
Your children's children's charity ?
Scorned then, no doubt, as you are scorn'd !
Shall no man hold his pride forewarn'd
Till in the end, the Day of Days,

At Judgment, one of his own race,
As frail and lost as you, shall rise, —
His daughter, with his mother's eyes?

How Jenny's clock ticks on the shelf !
Might not the dial scorn itself
That has such hours to register?
Yet as to me, even so to her
Are golden sun and silver moon,
In daily largesse of earth's boon,
Counted for life-coins to one tune.
And if, as blindfold fates are toss'd,
Through some one man this life be lost,
Shall soul not somehow pay for soul?

Fair shines the gilded aureole
In which our highest painters place
Some living woman's simple face.
And the stilled features thus descried
As Jenny's long throat droops aside, —
The shadows where the cheeks are thin,
And pure wide curve from ear to chin, —
With Raffael's, Leonardo's hand
To show them to men's souls, might stand,

Whole ages long, the whole world through,
For preachings of what God can do.
What has man done here? How atone,
Great God, for this which man has done?
And for the body and soul which by
Man's pitiless doom must now comply
With lifelong hell, what lullaby
Of sweet forgetful second birth
Remains? All dark. No sign on earth
What measure of God's rest endows
The many mansions of his house.

If but a woman's heart might see
Such erring heart unerringly
For once! But that can never be.

Like a rose shut in a book
In which pure women may not look,
For its base pages claim control
To crush the flower within the soul;
Where through each dead rose-leaf that clings,
Pale as transparent psyche-wings,
To the vile text, are traced such things
As might make lady's cheek indeed

More than a living rose to read ;
So nought save foolish foulness may
Watch with hard eyes the sure decay ;
And so the life-blood of this rose,
Puddled with shameful knowledge, flows
Through leaves no chaste hand may unclose :
Yet still it keeps such faded show
Of when 'twas gathered long ago,
That the crushed petals' lovely grain,
The sweetness of the sanguine stain,
Seen of a woman's eyes, must make
Her pitiful heart, so prone to ache,
Love roses better for its sake :—
Only that this can never be :—
Even so unto her sex is she.

Yet, Jenny, looking long at you,
The woman almost fades from view.
A cipher of man's changeless sum
Of lust, past, present, and to come,
Is left. A riddle that one shrinks
To challenge from the scornful sphinx.

Like a toad within a stone
Seated while Time crumbles on ;

Which sits there since the earth was curs'd
For Man's transgression at the first ;
Which, living through all centuries,
Not once has seen the sun arise ;
Whose life, to its cold circle charmed,
The earth's whole summers have not warmed ;
Which always — whitherso the stone
Be flung — sits there, deaf, blind, alone ; —
Aye, and shall not be driven out
Till that which shuts him round about
Break at the very Master's stroke,
And the dust thereof vanish as smoke,
And the seed of Man vanish as dust : —
Even so within this world is Lust.

Come, come, what use in thoughts like this?
Poor little Jenny, good to kiss, —
You'd not believe by what strange roads
Thought travels, when your beauty goads
A man to-night to think of toads !
Jenny, wake up Why, there's the dawn !

And there's an early wagon drawn
To market, and some sheep that jog

Bleating before a barking dog ;
And the old streets come peering through
Another night that London knew ;
And all as ghostlike as the lamps.

So on the wings of day decamps
My last night's frolic. Glooms begin
To shiver off as lights creep in
Past the gauze curtains half drawn-to,
And the lamp's doubled shade grows blue, —
Your lamp, my Jenny, kept alight,
Like a wise virgin's, all one night !
And in the alcove coolly spread
Glimmers with dawn your empty bed ;
And yonder your fair face I see
Reflected lying on my knee,
Where teems with first foreshadowings
Your pier-glass scrawled with diamond rings :
And on your bosom all night worn
Yesterday's rose now droops forlorn
But dies not yet this summer morn.

And now without, as if some word
Had called upon them that they heard,

The London sparrows far and nigh
Clamor together suddenly ;
And Jenny's cage-bird grown awake
Here in their song his part must take,
Because here too the day doth break.

And somehow in myself the dawn
Among stirred clouds and veils withdrawn
Strikes grayly on her. Let her sleep.
But will it wake her if I heap
These cushions thus beneath her head
Where my knee was? No, — there's your bed,
My Jenny, while you dream. And there
I lay among your golden hair
Perhaps the subject of your dreams,
These golden coins.

For still one deems
That Jenny's flattering sleep confers
New magic on the magic purse, —
Grim web, how clogged with shrivelled flies !
Between the threads fine fumes arise
And shape their pictures in the brain.
There roll no streets in glare and rain,
Nor flagrant man-swine whets his tusk ;

But delicately sighs in musk
The homage of the dim boudoir ;
Or like a palpitating star
Thrilled into song, the opera-night
Breathes faint in the quick pulse of light ;
Or at the carriage-window shine
Rich wares for choice ; or, free to dine,
Whirls through its hour of health (divine
For her) the concourse of the Park.
And though in the discounted dark
Her functions there and here are one,
Beneath the lamps and in the sun
There reigns at least the acknowledged belle Apparelled beyond parallel.
Ah Jenny, yes, we know your dreams.

For even the Paphian Venus seems
A goddess o'er the realms of love,
When silver-shrined in shadowy grove :
Aye, or let offerings nicely plac'd
But hide Priapus to the waist,
And whoso looks on him shall see
An eligible deity.

Why, Jenny, waking here alone
May help you to remember one,
Though all the memory's long outworn
Of many a double-pillowed morn.
I think I see you when you wake,
And rub your eyes for me, and shake
My gold, in rising, from your hair,
A Danaë for a moment there.

Jenny, my love rang true ! for still
Love at first sight is vague, until
That tinkling makes him audible.

And must I mock you to the last,
Ashamed of my own shame, — aghast
Because some thoughts not born amiss
Rose at a poor fair face like this?
Well, of such thoughts so much I know :
In my life, as in hers, they show,
By a far gleam which I may near,
A dark path I can strive to clear.

Only one kiss. Goodbye, my dear.

THE PORTRAIT.

THIS is her picture as she was :

It seems a thing to wonder on,
As though mine image in the glass
Should tarry when myself am gone
I gaze until she seems to stir, —
Until my eyes almost aver
That now, even now, the sweet lips part
To breathe the words of the sweet heart : —
And yet the earth is over her.

Alas ! even such the thin-drawn ray
That makes the prison-depths more rude, —
The drip of water night and day
Giving a tongue to solitude.
Yet only this, of love's whole prize,
Remains ; save what in mournful guise
Takes counsel with my soul alone, —
Save what is secret and unknown,
Below the earth, above the skies.

In painting her I shrined her face
'Mid mystic trees, where light falls in
Hardly at all ; a covert place
Where you might think to find a din
Of doubtful talk, and a live flame
Wandering, and many a shape whose name
Not itself knoweth, and old dew,
And your own footsteps meeting you,
And all things going as they came.

A deep dim wood ; and there she stands
As in that wood that day : for so
Was the still movement of her hands
And such the pure line's gracious flow.
And passing fair the type must seem,
Unknown the presence and the dream.
'Tis she : though of herself, alas !
Less than her shadow on the grass
Or than her image in the stream.

That day we met there, I and she
One with the other all alone ;
And we were blithe ; yet memory
Saddens those hours, as when the moon

Looks upon daylight. And with her
I stooped to drink the spring-water,
 Athirst where other waters sprang ;
 And where the echo is, she sang, —
My soul another echo there.

But when that hour my soul won strength
 For words whose silence wastes and kills,
Dull raindrops smote us, and at length
 Thundered the heat within the hills.
That eve I spoke those words again
Beside the pelted window-pane ;
 And there she hearkened what I said,
 With under-glances that surveyed
The empty pastures blind with rain.

Next day the memories of these things,
 Like leaves through which a bird has flown,
Still vibrated with Love's warm wings ;
 Till I must make them all my own
And paint this picture. So, 'twixt ease
Of talk and sweet long silences,
 She stood among the plants in bloom
 At windows of a summer room,
To feign the shadow of the trees.

And as I wrought, while all above
And all around was fragrant air,
In the sick burthen of my love
It seemed each sun-thrilled blossom there
Beat like a heart among the leaves.
O heart that never beats nor heaves,
In that one darkness lying still,
What now to thee my love's great will
Or the fine web the sunshine weaves?

For now doth daylight disavow
Those days, — nought left to see or hear.
Only in solemn whispers now
At night-time these things reach mine ear ;
When the leaf-shadows at a breath
Shrink in the road, and all the heath,
Forest and water, far and wide,
In limpid starlight glorified,
Lie like the mystery of death.

Last night at last I could have slept,
And yet delayed my sleep till dawn,
Still wandering. Then it was I wept :
For unawares I came upon

Those glades where once she walked with me :
And as I stood there suddenly,
 All wan with traversing the night,
 Upon the desolate verge of light
Yearned loud the iron-bosomed sea.

Even so, where Heaven holds breath and hears
 The beating heart of Love's own breast, —
Where round the secret of all spheres
 All angels lay their wings to rest, —
How shall my soul stand rapt and awed,
When, by the new birth borne abroad
 Throughout the music of the suns,
 It enters in her soul at once
And knows the silence there for God !

Here with her face doth memory sit
 Meanwhile, and wait the day's decline,
Till other eyes shall look from it,
 Eyes of the spirit's Palestine,
Even than the old gaze tenderer :
While hopes and aims long lost with her
 Stand round her image side by side,
 Like tombs of pilgrims that have died
About the Holy Sepulchre.

MY SISTER'S SLEEP.

SHE fell asleep on Christmas Eve :
At length the long-ungranted shade
Of weary eyelids overweigh'd
The pain nought else might yet relieve.

Our mother, who had leaned all day
Over the bed from chime to chime,
Then raised herself for the first time,
And as she sat her down, did pray.

Her little work-table was spread
With work to finish. For the glare
Made by her candle, she had care
To work some distance from the bed.

Without, there was a cold moon up,
Of winter radiance sheer and thin ;
The hollow halo it was in
Was like an icy crystal cup.

Through the small room, with subtle sound
Of flame, by vents the fire-shine drove
And reddened. In its dim alcove
The mirror shed a clearness round.

I had been sitting up some nights,
And my tired mind felt weak and blank ;
Like a sharp strengthening wine it drank
The stillness and the broken lights.

Twelve struck. That sound, by dwindling years
Heard in each hour, crept off ; and then
The ruffled silence spread again,
Like water that a pebble stirs.

Our mother rose from where she sat :
Her needles, as she laid them down,
Met lightly, and her silken gown
Settled : no other noise than that.

“Glory unto the Newly Born !”
So, as said angels, she did say ;
Because we were in Christmas Day,
Though it would still be long till morn.

Just then in the room over us
 There was a pushing back of chairs,
 As some who had sat unawares
So late, now heard the hour, and rose.

With anxious softly-stepping haste
 Our mother went where Margaret lay,
 Fearing the sounds o'erhead — should they
Have broken her long watched-for rest !

She stopped an instant, calm, and turned ;
 But suddenly turned back again ;
 And all her features seemed in pain
With woe, and her eyes gazed and yearned.

For my part, I but hid my face,
 And held my breath, and spoke no word :
 There was none spoken ; but I heard
The silence for a little space.

Our mother bowed herself and wept :
 And both my arms fell, and I said,
 “God knows I knew that she was dead.”
And there, all white, my sister slept.

Then kneeling, upon Christmas morn
A little after twelve o'clock
We said, ere the first quarter struck,
"Christ's blessing on the newly born!"

DOWN STREAM.

BETWEEN Holmscote and Hurstcote

The river-reaches wind,
The whispering trees accept the breeze,
The ripple's cool and kind :
With love low-whispered 'twixt the shores,
With rippling laughters gay,
With white arms bared to ply the oars,
On last year's first of May.

Between Holmscote and Hurstcote

The river's brimmed with rain,
Through close-met banks and parted banks
Now near now far again :
With parting tears caressed to smiles,
With meeting promised soon,
With every sweet vow that beguiles,
On last year's first of June.

Between Holmscote and Hurstcote

The river's flecked with foam,

'Neath shuddering clouds that hang in shrouds
And lost winds wild for home :
With infant wailings at the breast,
With homeless steps astray,
With wanderings shuddering tow'rds one rest
On this year's first of May.

Between Holmscote and Hurstcote
The summer river flows
With doubled flight of moons by night
And lilies' deep repose :
With lo ! beneath the moon's white stare
A white face not the moon,
With lilies meshed in tangled hair,
On this year's first of June.

Between Holmscote and Hurstcote
A troth was given and riven,
From heart's trust grew one life to two,
Two lost lives cry to Heaven :
With banks spread calm to meet the sky,
With meadows newly mowed,
The harvest-paths of glad July,
The sweet school-children's road.

A LAST CONFESSION.

(Regno Lombardo-Veneto, 1848.)

* * * * *

OUR Lombard country-girls along the coast
Wear daggers in their garters ; for they know
That they might hate another girl to death
Or meet a German lover. Such a knife
I bought her, with a hilt of horn and pearl.

Father, you cannot know of all my thoughts
That day in going to meet her, — that last day
For the last time, she said ; — of all the love
And all the hopeless hope that she might change
And go back with me. Ah ! and everywhere,
At places we both knew along the road,
Some fresh shape of herself as once she was
Grew present at my side ; until it seemed —

So close they gathered round me — they would all
Be with me when I reached the spot at last,
To plead my cause with her against herself
So changed. O Father, if you knew all this
You cannot know, then you would know too, Father,
And only then, if God can pardon me.
What can be told I'll tell, if you will hear.

I passed a village-fair upon my road,
And thought, being empty-handed, I would take
Some little present : such might prove, I said,
Either a pledge between us, or (God help me !)
A parting gift. And there it was I bought
The knife I spoke of, such as women wear.

That day, some three hours afterwards, I found
For certain, it must be a parting gift.
And, standing silent now at last, I looked
Into her scornful face ; and heard the sea
Still trying hard to din into my ears
Some speech it knew which still might change her heart,
If only it could make me understand.
One moment thus. Another, and her face
Seemed further off than the last line of sea,

So that I thought, if now she were to speak
I could not hear her. Then again I knew
All, as we stood together on the sand
At Iglío, in the first thin shade o' the hills.

“Take it,” I said, and held it out to her,
While the hilt glanced within my trembling hold ;
“Take it and keep it for my sake,” I said.
Her neck unbent not, neither did her eyes
Move, nor her foot left beating of the sand ;
Only she put it by from her and laughed.

Father, you hear my speech and not her laugh ;
But God heard that. Will God remember all ?

It was another laugh than the sweet sound
Which rose from her sweet childish heart, that day
Eleven years before, when first I found her
Alone upon the hill-side ; and her curls
Shook down in the warm grass as she looked up
Out of her curls in my eyes bent to hers.
She might have served a painter to portray
That heavenly child which in the latter days
Shall walk between the lion and the lamb.

I had been for nights in hiding, worn and sick
And hardly fed ; and so her words at first
Seemed fitful like the talking of the trees
And voices in the air that knew my name.
And I remembered that I sat me down
Upon the slope with her, and thought the world
Must be all over or had never been,
We seemed there so alone. And soon she told me
Her parents both were gone away from her.
I thought perhaps she meant that they had died ;
But when I asked her this, she looked again
Into my face, and said that yestereve
They kissed her long, and wept and made her weep,
And gave her all the bread they had with them,
And then had gone together up the hill
Where we were sitting now, and had walked on
Into the great red light ; “and so,” she said,
“ I have come up here too ; and when this evening
They step out of the light as they stepped in,
I shall be here to kiss them.” And she laughed.

Then I bethought me suddenly of the famine ;
And how the church-steps throughout all the town,
When last I had been there a month ago,

Swarmed with starved folk ; and how the bread was weighed

By Austrians armed ; and women that I knew
For wives and mothers walked the public street,
Saying aloud that if their husbands feared
To snatch the children's food, themselves would stay
Till they had earned it there. So then this child
Was piteous to me ; for all told me then
Her parents must have left her to God's chance,
To man's or to the Church's charity,
Because of the great famine, rather than
To watch her growing thin between their knees.
With that, God took my mother's voice and spoke,
And sights and sounds came back and things long since,
And all my childhood found me on the hills ;
And so I took her with me.

I was young,
Scarce man then, Father ; but the cause which gave
The wounds I die of now had brought me then
Some wounds already ; and I lived alone,
As any hiding hunted man must live.
It was no easy thing to keep a child
In safety ; for herself it was not safe,
And doubled my own danger : but I knew

That God would help me.

Yet a little while

Pardon me, Father, if I pause. I think
I have been speaking to you of some matters
There was no need to speak of, have I not?
You do not know how clearly those things stood
Within my mind, which I have spoken of,
Nor how they strove for utterance. Life all past
Is like the sky when the sun sets in it,
Clearest where furthest off.

I told you how

She scorned my parting gift and laughed. And yet
A woman's laugh's another thing sometimes :
I think they laugh in Heaven. I know last night
I dreamed I saw into the garden of God,
Where women walked whose painted images
I have seen with candles round them in the church.
They bent this way and that, one to another,
Playing : and over the long golden hair
Of each there floated like a ring of fire
Which when she stooped stooped with her, and when she rose
Rose with her. Then a breeze flew in among them,
As if a window had been opened in heaven

For God to give His blessing from, before
This world of ours should set ; (for in my dream
I thought our world was setting, and the sun
Flared, a spent taper ;) and beneath that gust
The rings of light quivered like forest-leaves.
Then all the blessed maidens who were there
Stood up together, as it were a voice
That called them ; and they threw their tresses back,
And smote their palms, and all laughed up at once,
For the strong heavenly joy they had in them
To hear God bless the world. Wherewith I woke :
And looking round, I saw as usual
That she was standing there with her long locks
Pressed to her side ; and her laugh ended theirs.

For always when I see her now, she laughs.
And yet her childish laughter haunts me too,
The life of this dead terror ; as in days
When she, a child, dwelt with me. I must tell
Something of those days yet before the end.

I brought her from the city — one such day
When she was still a merry loving child, —
The earliest gift I mind my giving her ;

A little image of a flying Love
Made of our colored glass-ware, in his hands
A dart of gilded metal and a torch.
And him she kissed and me, and fain would know
Why were his poor eyes blindfold, why the wings
And why the arrow. What I knew I told
Of Venus and of Cupid, — strange old tales.
And when she heard that he could rule the loves
Of men and women, still she shook her head
And wondered ; and, “Nay, nay,” she murmured still,
“So strong, and he a younger child than I !”
And then she'd have me fix him on the wall
Fronting her little bed ; and then again
She needs must fix him there herself, because
I gave him to her and she loved him so,
And he should make her love me better yet,
If women loved the more, the more they grew.
But the fit place upon the wall was high
For her, and so I held her in my arms :
And each time that the heavy pruning-hook
I gave her for a hammer slipped away
As it would often, still she laughed and laughed
And kissed and kissed me. But amid her mirth,
Just as she hung the image on the nail,

It slipped and all its fragments strewed the ground :
And as it fell she screamed, for in her hand
The dart had entered deeply and drawn blood.
And so her laughter turned to tears : and " Oh !"
I said, the while I bandaged the small hand, —
" That I should be the first to make you bleed,
Who love and love and love you !" — kissing still
The fingers till I got her safe to bed.
And still she sobbed, — " not for the pain at all,"
She said, " but for the Love, the poor good Love
You gave me." So she cried herself to sleep.

Another later thing comes back to me.
'Twas in those hardest foulest days of all,
When still from his shut palace, sitting clean
Above the splash of blood, old Metternich
(May his soul die, and never-dying worms
Feast on its pain for ever !) used to thin
His year's doomed hundreds daintily, each month
Thirties and fifties. This time, as I think,
Was when his thrift forbade the poor to take
That evil brackish salt which the dry rocks
Keep all through winter when the sea draws in.
The first I heard of it was a chance shot

In the street here and there, and on the stones
A stumbling clatter as of horse hemmed round.
Then, when she saw me hurry out of doors,
My gun slung at my shoulder and my knife
Stuck in my girdle, she smoothed down my hair
And laughed to see me look so brave, and leaped
Up to my neck and kissed me. She was still
A child ; and yet that kiss was on my lips
So hot all day where the smoke shut us in.

For now, being always with her, the first love
I had — the father's, brother's love — was changed,
I think, in somewise ; like a holy thought
Which is a prayer before one knows of it.
The first time I perceived this, I remember,
Was once when after hunting I came home
Weary, and she brought food and fruit for me,
And sat down at my feet upon the floor
Leaning against my side. But when I felt
Her sweet head reach from that low seat of hers
So high as to be laid upon my heart,
I turned and looked upon my darling there
And marked for the first time how tall she was ;
And my heart beat with so much violence

Her body bore her neck as the tree's stem
Bears the top branch ; and as the branch sustains
The flower of the year's pride, her high neck bore
That face made wonderful with night and day.
Her voice was swift, yet ever the last words
Fell lingeringly ; and rounded finger-tips
She had, that clung a little where they touched
And then were gone o' the instant. Her great eyes,
That sometimes turned half dizzily beneath
The passionate lids, as faint, when she would speak,
Had also in them hidden springs of mirth,
Which under the dark lashes evermore
Shook to her laugh, as when a bird flies low
Between the water and the willow-leaves,
And the shade quivers till he wins the light.

I was a moody comrade to her then,
For all the love I bore her. Italy,
The weeping desolate mother, long has claimed
Her sons' strong arms to lean on, and their hands
To lop the poisonous thicket from her path,
Cleaving her way to light. And from her need
Had grown the fashion of my whole poor life

Which I was proud to yield her, as my father
Had yielded his. And this had come to be
A game to play, a love to clasp, a hate
To wreak, all things together that a man
Needs for his blood to ripen ; till at times
All else seemed shadows, and I wondered still
To see such life pass muster and be deemed
Time's bodily substance. In those hours, no doubt,
To the young girl my eyes were like my soul, —
Dark wells of death-in-life that yearned for day.
And though she ruled me always, I remember
That once when I was thus and she still kept
Leaping about the place and laughing, I
Did almost chide her ; whereupon she knelt
And putting her two hands into my breast
Sang me a song. Are these tears in my eyes?
'Tis long since I have wept for anything.
I thought that song forgotten out of mind ;
And now, just as I spoke of it, it came
All back. It is but a rude thing, ill rhymed,
Such as a blind man chaunts and his dog hears
Holding the platter, when the children run
To merrier sport and leave him. Thus it goes : —

La bella donna*
Piangendo disse :
“ Come son fisse
Le stelle in cielo !
Quel fiato anelo
Dello stanco sole,
Quanto m' assonna !
E la luna, macchiata

* She wept, sweet lady,
And said in weeping :
“ What spell is keeping
The stars so steady ?
Why does the power
Of the sun's noon-hour
To sleep so move me ?
And the moon in heaven,
Stained where she passes
As a worn-out glass is, —
Wearily driven,
Why walks she above me ?
“ Stars, moon, and sun too,
I'm tired of either
And all together !
Whom speak they unto
That I should listen ?
For very surely,
Though my arms and shoulders
Dazzle beholders,
And my eyes glisten,
All's nothing purely !
What are words said for
At all about them,
If he they are made for
Can do without them ? ”
She laughed, sweet lady,
And said in laughing :
“ His hand clings half in

My own already !
Oh ! do you love me ?
Oh ! speak of passion
In no new fashion,
No loud inveighings,
But the old sayings
You once said of me.

“ You said : ‘ As summer,
Through boughs grown brittle,
Comes back a little
Ere frosts benumb her, —
So bring'st thou to me
All leaves and flowers,
Though autumn's gloomy
To-day in the bowers.’ ”

“ Oh ! does he love me,
When my voice teaches
The very speeches
He then spoke of me ?
Alas ! what flavor
Still with me lingers ? ”
(But she laughed as my kisses
Glowed in her fingers
With love's old blisses.)
“ Oh ! what one favor
Remains to woo him,
Whose whole poor savor
Belongs not to him ? ”

Come uno specchio
Logoro e vecchio, —
Faccia affannata,
Che cosa vuole?

“Chè stelle, luna, e sole,
Ciascun m' annoja
E m' annojano insieme ;
Non me ne preme
Nè ci prendo gioja.
E veramente,
Che le spalle sien franche
E la braccia bianche
E il seno caldo e tondo,
Non mi fa niente.
Chè cosa al mondo
Posso più far di questi

Se non piacciono a te, come dicesti?”

La donna rise
E riprese ridendo : —
“Questa mano che prendo
E dunque mia?
Tu m' ami dunque?
Dimmelo ancora,
Non in modo qualunque,
Ma le parole
Belle e precise
Che dicesti pria.

*“Siccome suole
La state talora*

(Dicesti) un qualche istante
Tornare innanzi inverno,
Così tu fai ch' io scerno
Le foglie tutte quante,
Ben ch' io certo tenessi
Per passato l' autunno.

“Eccolo il mio alunno !
Io debbo insegnargli
Quei cari detti istessi
Ch' ei mi disse una volta !
Oimè ! Che cosa dargli,” (Ma ridea piano piano
Dei baci in sulla mano,)

“Ch' ei non m'abbia da lungo tempo tolta?”

That I should sing upon this bed ! — with you
To listen, and such words still left to say !
Yet was it I that sang? The voice seemed hers,
As on the very day she sang to me ;
When, having done, she took out of my hand
Something that I had played with all the while
And laid it down beyond my reach ; and so
Turning my face round till it fronted hers, —
“Weeping or laughing, which was best?” she said.

But these are foolish tales. How should I show
The heart that glowed then with love's heat, each day

More and more brightly? — when for long years now
The very flame that flew about the heart,
And gave it fiery wings, has come to be
The lapping blaze of hell's environment
Whose tongues all bid the molten heart despair.

Yet one more thing comes back on me to-night
Which I may tell you : for it bore my soul
Dread firstlings of the brood that rend it now.
It chanced that in our last year's wanderings
We dwelt at Monza, far away from home,
If home we had : and in the Duomo there
I sometimes entered with her when she prayed.
An image of Our Lady stands there, wrought
In marble by some great Italian hand
In the great days when she and Italy
Sat on one throne together : and to her
And to none else my loved one told her heart.
She was a woman then ; and as she knelt, —
Her sweet brow in the sweet brow's shadow there, —
They seemed two kindred forms whereby our land
(Whose work still serves the world for miracle)
Made manifest herself in womanhood.
Father, the day I speak of was the first

For weeks that I had borne her company
Into the Duomo ; and those weeks had been Much troubled, for then first the glimpses came
Of some impenetrable restlessness
Growing in her to make her changed and cold.
And as we entered there that day, I bent
My eyes on the fair Image, and I said
Within my heart, " Oh turn her heart to me !"
And so I left her to her prayers, and went
To gaze upon the pride of Monza's shrine,
Where in the sacristy the light still falls
Upon the Iron Crown of Italy,
On whose crowned heads the day has closed, nor yet
The daybreak gilds another head to crown.
But coming back, I wondered when I saw
That the sweet Lady of her prayers now stood
Alone without her ; until further off,
Before some new Madonna gaily decked,
Tinselled and gewgawed, a slight German toy,
I saw her kneel, still praying. At my step
She rose, and side by side we left the church.
I was much moved, and sharply questioned her
Of her transferred devotion ; but she seemed
Stubborn and heedless ; till she lightly laughed

And said : " The old Madonna? Aye indeed,
She had my old thoughts, — this one has my new."
Then silent to the soul I held my way :
And from the fountains of the public place
Unto the pigeon-haunted pinnacles,
Bright wings and water winnowed the bright air ;
And stately with her laugh's subsiding smile
She went, with clear-swayed waist and towering neck
And hands held light before her ; and the face
Which long had made a day in my life's night
Was night in day to me ; as all men's eyes
Turned on her beauty, and she seemed to tread
Beyond my heart to the world made for her.

Ah there ! my wounds will snatch my sense again :
The pain comes billowing on like a full cloud
Of thunder, and the flash that breaks from it
Leaves my brain burning. That's the wound he gave
The Austrian whose white coat I still made match
With his white face, only the two grew red
As suits his trade. The devil makes them wear
White for a livery, that the blood may show
Braver that brings them to him. So he looks
Sheer o'er the field and knows his own at once.

Give me a draught of water in that cup ;
My voice feels thick ; perhaps you do not hear ;
But you must hear. If you mistake my words
And so absolve me, I am sure the blessing
Will burn my soul. If you mistake my words
And so absolve me, Father, the great sin
Is yours, not mine : mark this : your soul shall burn
With mine for it. I have seen pictures where
Souls burned with Latin shriekings in their mouths :
Shall my end be as theirs? Nay, but I know
'Tis you shall shriek in Latin. Some bell rings,
Rings through my brain : it strikes the hour in hell.

You see I cannot, Father ; I have tried,
But cannot, as you see. These twenty times
Beginning, I have come to the same point
And stopped. Beyond, there are but broken words
Which will not let you understand my tale.
It is that then we have her with us here,
As when she wrung her hair out in my dream
To-night, till all the darkness reeked of it.
Her hair is always wet, for she has kept
Its tresses wrapped about her side for years ;
And when she wrung them round over the floor,

I heard the blood between her fingers hiss ;
So that I sat up in my bed and screamed
Once and again ; and once to once, she laughed.
Look that you turn not now, — she's at your back :
Gather your robe up, Father, and keep close,
Or she'll sit down on it and send you mad.

At Iglío in the first thin shade o' the hills
The sand is black and red. The black was black
When what was spilt that day sank into it,
And the red scarcely darkened. There I stood
This night with her, and saw the sand the same.

* * * * *

What would you have me tell you? Father, father,
How shall I make you know? You have not known
The dreadful soul of woman, who one day
Forgets the old and takes the new to heart,
Forgets what man remembers, and therewith
Forgets the man. Nor can I clearly tell
How the change happened between her and me.
Her eyes looked on me from an emptied heart
When most my heart was full of her ; and still
In every corner of myself I sought

To find what service failed her ; and no less
Than in the good time past, there all was hers.
What do you love? Your Heaven? Conceive it spread
For one first year of all eternity
All round you with all joys and gifts of God ;
And then when most your soul is blent with it
And all yields song together, — then it stands
O' the sudden like a pool that once gave back
Your image, but now drowns it and is clear
Again, — or like a sun bewitched, that burns
Your shadow from you, and still shines in sight.
How could you bear it? Would you not cry out,
Among those eyes grown blind to you, those ears
That hear no more your voice you hear the same, —
“ God ! what is left but hell for company,
But hell, hell, hell?” — until the name so breathed
Whirled with hot wind and sucked you down in fire?
Even so I stood the day her empty heart
Left her place empty in our home, while yet
I knew not why she went nor where she went
Nor how to reach her : so I stood the day
When to my prayers at last one sight of her
Was granted, and I looked on heaven made pale
With scorn, and heard heaven mock me in that laugh.

O sweet, long sweet ! Was that some ghost of you,
Even as your ghost that haunts me now,— twin shapes
Of fear and hatred? May I find you yet
Mine when death wakes? Ah ! be it even in flame,
We may have sweetness yet, if you but say
As once in childish sorrow : “ Not my pain,
My pain was nothing : oh your poor poor love,
Your broken love ! ”

My Father, have I not
Yet told you the last things of that last day
On which I went to meet her by the sea?
O God, O God ! but I must tell you all.

Midway upon my journey, when I stopped
To buy the dagger at the village fair,
I saw two cursed rats about the place
I knew for spies — blood-sellers both. That day
Was not yet over ; for three hours to come
I prized my life : and so I looked around
For safety. A poor painted mountebank
Was playing tricks and shouting in a crowd.
I knew he must have heard my name, so I
Pushed past and whispered to him who I was,
And of my danger. Straight he hustled me

Into his booth, as it were in the trick,
And brought me out next minute with my face
All smeared in patches and a zany's gown ;
And there I handed him his cups and balls
And swung the sand-bags round to clear the ring
For half an hour. The spies came once and looked ;
And while they stopped, and made all sights and sounds
Sharp to my startled senses, I remember
A woman laughed above me. I looked up
And saw where a brown-shouldered harlot leaned
Half through a tavern window thick with vine.
Some man had come behind her in the room
And caught her by her arms, and she had turned
With that coarse empty laugh on him, as now
He munched her neck with kisses, while the vine
Crawled in her back.

And three hours afterwards,
When she that I had run all risks to meet
Laughed as I told you, my life burned to death
Within me, for I thought it like the laugh
Heard at the fair. She had not left me long ;
But all she might have changed to, or might change to,
(I know nought since — she never speaks a word —)

Seemed in that laugh. Have I not told you yet,
Not told you all this time what happened, Father,
When I had offered her the little knife,
And bade her keep it for my sake that loved her,
And she had laughed? Have I not told you yet?

“Take it,” I said to her the second time,
“Take it and keep it.” And then came a fire
That burnt my hand ; and then the fire was blood,
And sea and sky were blood and fire, and all
The day was one red blindness ; till it seemed,
Within the whirling brain’s eclipse, that she
Or I or all things bled or burned to death.
And then I found her laid against my feet
And knew that I had stabbed her, and saw still
Her look in falling. For she took the knife
Deep in her heart, even as I bade her then,
And fell ; and her stiff bodice scooped the sand
Into her bosom.

And she keeps it, see,
Do you not see she keeps it? — there, beneath
Wet fingers and wet tresses, in her heart.
For look you, when she stirs her hand, it shows

The little hilt of horn and pearl, — even such
A dagger as our women of the coast
Twist in their garters.

Father, I have done :
And from her side now she unwinds the thick
Dark hair ; all round her side it is wet through,
But, like the sand at Iglio, does not change.
Now you may see the dagger clearly. Father,
I have told all : tell me at once what hope
Can reach me still. For now she draws it out
Slowly, and only smiles as yet : look, Father,
She scarcely smiles : but I shall hear her laugh
Soon, when she shows the crimson steel to God.

THE BURDEN OF NINEVEH.

IN our Museum galleries
To-day I lingered o'er the prize
Dead Greece vouchsafes to living eyes,—
Her Art for ever in fresh wise
 From hour to hour rejoicing me.
Sighing I turned at last to win
Once more the London dirt and din ;
And as I made the swing-door spin
And issued, they were hoisting in
 A wingèd beast from Nineveh.

A human face the creature wore,
And hoofs behind and hoofs before,
And flanks with dark runes fretted o'er.
'Twas bull, 'twas mitred Minotaur,
 A dead disbowelled mystery :

The mummy of a buried faith
Stark from the charnel without scathe,
Its wings stood for the light to bathe, —
Such fossil cerements as might swathe
 The very corpse of Nineveh.

The print of its first rush-wrapping,
Wound ere it dried, still ribbed the thing.
What song did the brown maidens sing,
From purple mouths alternating,
 When that was woven languidly?
What vows, what rites, what prayers preferr'd,
What songs has the strange image heard?
In what blind vigil stood interr'd
For ages, till an English word
 Broke silence first at Nineveh?

Oh when upon each sculptured court,
Where even the wind might not resort, —
O'er which Time passed, of like import
With the wild Arab boys at sport, —
 A living face looked in to see : —
O seemed it not — the spell once broke —
As though the carven warriors woke,

As though the shaft the string forsook,
The cymbals clashed, the chariots shook,
And there was life in Nineveh?

On London stones our sun anew
The beast's recovered shadow threw.
(No shade that plague of darkness knew,
No light, no shade, while older grew
By ages the old earth and sea.)
Lo thou ! could all thy priests have shown
Such proof to make thy godhead known?
From their dead Past thou liv'st alone ;
And still thy shadow is thine own,
Even as of yore in Nineveh.

That day whereof we keep record,
When near thy city-gates the Lord
Sheltered His Jonah with a gourd,
This sun, (I said) here present, pour'd
Even thus this shadow that I see.
This shadow has been shed the same
From sun and moon, — from lamps which came
For prayer, — from fifteen days of flame,
The last, while smouldered to a name
Sardanapalus' Nineveh.

Within thy shadow, haply, once
Sennacherib has knelt, whose sons
Smote him between the altar-stones :
Or pale Semiramis her zones
 Of gold, her incense brought to thee,
In love for grace, in war for aid :
Ay, and who else? till 'neath thy shade
Within his trenches newly made
Last year the Christian knelt and pray'd —
 Not to thy strength — in Nineveh.¹

Now, thou poor god, within this hall
Where the blank windows blind the wall
From pedestal to pedestal,
The kind of light shall on thee fall
 Which London takes the day to be :
While school-foundations in the act
Of holiday, three files compact,
Shall learn to view thee as a fact
Connected with that zealous tract :
 “ROME, — Babylon and Nineveh.”

Deemed they of this, those worshippers,
When, in some mythic chain of verse
Which man shall not again rehearse,
The faces of thy ministers

 Yearned pale with bitter ecstasy?
Greece, Egypt, Rome, — did any god
Before whose feet men knelt unshod
Deem that in this unblest abode
Another scarce more unknown god
 Should house with him, from Nineveh?

Ah! in what quarries lay the stone
From which this pillared pile has grown,
Unto man's need how long unknown,
Since those thy temples, court and cone,
 Rose far in desert history?

Ah! what is here that does not lie
All strange to thine awakened eye?
Ah! what is here can testify
(Save that dumb presence of the sky)
 Unto thy day and Nineveh?

Why, of those mummies in the room
Above, there might indeed have come

One out of Egypt to thy home,
An alien. Nay, but were not some
Of these thine own "antiquity?"
And now, — they and their gods and thou
All relics here together, — now
Whose profit? whether bull or cow,
Isis or Ibis, who or how,
Whether of Thebes or Nineveh?

The consecrated metals found,
And ivory tablets, underground,
Winged teraphim, and creatures crown'd,
When air and daylight filled the mound,
Fell into dust immediately.
And even as these, the images
Of awe and worship, — even as these, —
So, smitten with the sun's increase,
Her glory mouldered and did cease
From immemorial Nineveh.

The day her builders made their halt,
Those cities of the lake of salt
Stood firmly 'stablished without fault,
Made proud with pillars of basalt,
With sardonyx and porphyry.

The day that Jonah bore abroad
To Nineveh the voice of God,
A brackish lake lay in his road,
Where erst Pride fixed her sure abode,
As then in royal Nineveh.

The day when he, Pride's lord and Man's,
Showed all the kingdoms at a glance
To Him before whose countenance
The years recede, the years advance,
And said, Fall down and worship me : —
'Mid all the pomp beneath that look,
Then stirred there, haply, some rebuke,
Where to the wind the Salt Pools shook,
And in those tracts, of life forsook,
That knew thee not, O Nineveh !

Delicate harlot ! On thy throne
Thou with a world beneath thee prone
In state for ages sat'st alone ;
And needs were years and lustres flown
Ere strength of man could vanquish thee :
Whom even thy victor foes must bring,
Still royal, among maids that sing

As with doves' voices, taboring
Upon their breasts, unto the King, —
A kingly conquest, Nineveh ! .

. . . Here woke my thought. The wind's slow sway
Had waxed ; and like the human play
Of scorn that smiling spreads away,
The sunshine shivered off the day :

The callous wind, it seemed to me,
Swept up the shadow from the ground :
And pale as whom the Fates astound,
The god forlorn stood winged and crown'd :
Within I knew the cry lay bound
Of the dumb soul of Nineveh.

And as I turned, my sense half shut
Still saw the crowds of kerb and rut
Go past as marshalled to the strut
Of ranks in gypsum quaintly cut.

It seemed in one same pageantry
They followed forms which had been erst ;
To pass, till on my sight should burst
That future of the best or worst
When some may question which was first,
Of London or of Nineveh.

For as that Bull-god once did stand
And watched the burial-clouds of sand,
'Till these at last without a hand
Rose o'er his eyes, another land,
 And blinded him with destiny : —
So may he stand again ; till now,
In ships of unknown sail and prow,
Some tribe of the Australian plough
Bear him afar, — a relic now
 Of London, not of Nineveh !

Or it may chance indeed that when
Man's age is hoary among men, —
His centuries threescore and ten, —
His furthest childhood shall seem then
 More clear than later times may be :
Who, finding in this desert place
This form, shall hold us for some race
That walked not in Christ's lowly ways,
But bowed its pride and vowed its praise
 Unto the God of Nineveh.

The smile rose first, — anon drew nigh
The thought : . . . Those heavy wings spread high

So sure of flight, which do not fly ;
That set gaze never on the sky ;
 Those scripted flanks it cannot see ;
Its crown, a brow-contracting load ;
Its planted feet which trust the sod : . . .
(So grew the image as I trod :)
O Nineveh, was this thy God, —
 Thine also, mighty Nineveh ?

WELLINGTON'S FUNERAL.

18th November, 1852.

“ VICTORY ! ”

So once more the cry must be.
Duteous mourning we fulfil
In God's name ; but by God's will,
Doubt not, the last word is still

“ Victory ! ”

Funeral,

In the music round this pall,
Solemn grief yields earth to earth ;
But what tones of solemn mirth
In the pageant of new birth
Rise and fall ?

For indeed,

If our eyes were openèd,
Who shall say what escort floats

Here, which breath nor gleam denotes, —
Fiery horses, chariots
Fire-footed?

Trumpeter,
Even thy call he may not hear;
Long-known voice for ever past,
Till with one more trumpet-blast
God's assuring word at last
Reach his ear.

Multitude,
Hold your breath in reverent mood :
For while earth's whole kindred stand
Mute even thus on either hand,
This soul's labor shall be scann'd
And found good.

Cherubim,
Lift ye not even now your hymn?
Lo ! once lent for human lack,
Michael's sword is rendered back.
Thrills not now the starry track,
Seraphim?

Gabriel,
Since the gift of thine "All hail!"
Out of Heaven no time hath brought
Gift with fuller blessing fraught
Than the peace which this man wrought
Passing well.

Be no word
Raised of bloodshed Christ-abhorr'd.
Say: "'Twas thus in His decrees
Who Himself, the Prince of Peace,
For His harvest's high increase
Sent a sword."

Veterans,
He by whom the neck of France
Then was given unto your heel,
Timely sought, may lend as well
To your sons his terrible
Countenance.

Waterloo!
As the last grave must renew,
Ere fresh death, the banshee-strain, —

So methinks upon thy plain
Falls some presage in the rain,
In the dew.

And O thou,
Watching with an exile's brow
Unappeased, o'er death's dumb flood : —
Lo ! the saving strength of God
In some new heart's English blood
Slumbers now.

Emperor,
Is this all thy work was for? —
Thus to see thy self-sought aim,
Yea thy titles, yea thy name,
In another's shame, to shame
Bandied o'er? ¹

Wellington,
Thy great work is but begun.
With quick seed his end is rife
Whose long tale of conquering strife
Shows no triumph like his life
Lost and won.

¹ Date of the Coup d'État : 2nd December, 1851.

AN OLD SONG ENDED.

*“How should I your true love know
From another one?”*

*“By his cockle-hat and staff
And his sandal-shoon.”*

“And what signs have told you now
That he hastens home?”

“Lo! the spring is nearly gone,
He is nearly come.”

“For a token is there nought,
Say, that he should bring?”

“He will bear a ring I gave
And another ring.”

“How may I, when he shall ask,
Tell him who lies there?”

“Nay, but leave my face unveiled
And unbound my hair.”

“Can you say to me some word
I shall say to him?”

“Say I’m looking in his eyes
Though my eyes are dim.”

WORLD'S WORTH.

'Tis of the Father Hilary.

He strove, but could not pray ; so took
The steep-coiled stair, where his feet shook
A sad blind echo. Ever up
He toiled. 'Twas a sick sway of air
That autumn noon within the stair,
As dizzy as a turning cup.
His brain benumbed him, void and thin ;
He shut his eyes and felt it spin ;
'The obscure deafness hemmed him in.
He said : " O world, what world for me ? "

He leaned unto the balcony
Where the chime keeps the night and day ;
It hurt his brain, he could not pray.
He had his face upon the stone :
Deep 'twixt the narrow shafts, his eye
Passed all the roofs to the stark sky,

Swept with no wing, with wind alone.
Close to his feet the sky did shake
With wind in pools that the rains make :
The ripple set his eyes to ache.
He said : "O world, what world for me?"

He stood within the mystery
Girding God's blessed Eucharist :
The organ and the chaunt had ceas'd.
The last words paused against his ear
Said from the altar : drawn round him
The gathering rest was dumb and dim.
And now the sacring-bell rang clear
And ceased ; and all was awe, — the breath
Of God in man that warranteth
The inmost utmost things of faith.
He said : "O God, my world in Thee !"

ASPECTA MEDUSA.

ANDROMEDA, by Perseus saved and wed,
Hankered each day to see the Gorgon's head :
Till o'er a fount he held it, bade her lean,
And mirrored in the wave was safely seen
That death she lived by.

Let not thine eyes know
Any forbidden thing itself, although
It once should save as well as kill : but be
Its shadow upon life enough for thee.

THE BRIDE'S PRELUDE.

"SISTER," said busy Amelotte
 To listless Aloÿse ;
" Along your wedding-road the wheat
Bends as to hear your horse's feet,
And the noonday stands still for heat."

Amelotte laughed into the air
 With eyes that sought the sun :
But where the walls in long brocade
Were screened, as one who is afraid
Sat Aloÿse within the shade.

And even in shade was gleam enough
 To shut out full repose
From the bride's 'tiring-chamber, which
Was like the inner altar-niche
Whose dimness worship has made rich.

Within the window's heaped recess
 The light was counterchanged
In blent reflexes manifold
From perfume-caskets of wrought gold
And gems the bride's hair could not hold

All thrust together : and with these
 A slim-curved lute, which now,
At Amelotte's sudden passing there,
Was swept in somewise unaware,
And shook to music the close air.

Against the haloed lattice-panes
 The bridesmaid sunned her breast
Then to the glass turned tall and free,
And braced and shifted daintily
Her loin-belt through her côte-hardie.

The belt was silver, and the clasp
 Of lozenged arm-bearings ;
A world of mirrored tints minute
The rippling sunshine wrought into 't,
That flushed her hand and warmed her foot.

At least an hour had Aloyse, —
 Her jewels in her hair, —
Her white gown, as became a bride,
Quartered in silver at each side, —
Sat thus aloof, as if to hide.

Over her bosom, that lay still,
 The vest was rich in grain,
With close pearls wholly overset :
Around her throat the fastenings met
Of chevesayle and mantelet.

Her arms were laid along her lap
 With the hands open : life
Itself did seem at fault in her :
Beneath the drooping brows, the stir
Of thought made noonday heavier.

Long sat she silent ; and then raised
 Her head, with such a gasp
As while she summoned breath to speak
Fanned high that furnace in the cheek
But sucked the heart-pulse cold and weak.

(Oh gather round her now, all ye
Past seasons of her fear, —
Sick springs, and summers deadly cold !
To flight your hovering wings unfold,
For now your secret shall be told.

Ye many sunlights, barbed with darts
Of dread detecting flame, —
Gaunt moonlights that like sentinels
Went past with iron clank of bells, —
Draw round and render up your spells !)

“ Sister,” said Aloyse, “ I had
A thing to tell thee of
Long since, and could not. But do thou
Kneel first in prayer awhile, and bow
Thine heart, and I will tell thee now.”

Amelotte wondered with her eyes ;
But her heart said in her :
“ Dear Aloyse would have me pray
Because the awe she feels to-day
Must need more prayers than she can say.”

So Amelotte put by the folds
That covered up her feet,
And knelt, — beyond the arras'd gloom
And the hot window's dull perfume, —
Where day was stillest in the room.

“Queen Mary, hear,” she said, “and say
To Jesus the Lord Christ,
This bride's new joy, which He confers,
New joy to many ministers,
And many griefs are bound in hers.”

The bride turned in her chair, and hid
Her face against the back,
And took her pearl-girt elbows in
Her hands, and could not yet begin,
But shuddering, uttered, “Urscelyn !”

Most weak she was ; for as she pressed
Her hand against her throat,
Along the arras she let trail
Her face, as if all heart did fail,
And sat with shut eyes, dumb and pale.

Amelotte still was on her knees
As she had kneeled to pray.
Deeming her sister swooned, she thought,
At first, some succor to have brought ;
But Alojse rocked, as one distraught.

She would have pushed the lattice wide
To gain what breeze might be ;
But marking that no leaf once beat
The outside casement, it seemed meet
Not to bring in more scent and heat.

So she said only : " Alojse,
Sister, when happened it
At any time that the bride came
To ill, or spoke in fear of shame,
When speaking first the bridegroom's name ? "

A bird had out its song and ceased
Ere the bride spoke. At length
She said : " The name is as the thing : —
Sin hath no second christening,
And shame is all that shame can bring.

“ In divers places many an while
I would have told thee this ;
But faintness took me, or a fit
Like fever. God would not permit
That I should change thine eyes with it.

“ Yet once I spoke, hadst thou but heard : —
That time we wandered out
All the sun's hours, but missed our way
When evening darkened, and so lay
The whole night covered up in hay.

“ At last my face was hidden : so,
Having God's hint, I paused
Not long ; but drew myself more near
Where thou wast laid, and shook off fear,
And whispered quick into thine ear

“ Something of the whole tale. At first
I lay and bit my hair
For the sore silence thou didst keep :
Till, as thy breath came long and deep,
I knew that thou hadst been asleep.

“The moon was covered, but the stars
Lasted till morning broke.
Awake, thou told'st me that thy dream
Had been of me, — that all did seem
At jar, — but that it was a dream.

“I knew God's hand and might not speak.
After that night I kept
Silence and let the record swell :
Till now there is much more to tell
Which must be told out ill or well.”

She paused then, weary, with dry lips
Apart. From the outside
By fits there boomed a dull report
From where i' the hanging tennis-court
The bridegroom's retinue made sport.

The room lay still in dusty glare,
Having no sound through it
Except the chirp of a caged bird
That came and ceased : and if she stirred,
Amelotte's raiment could be heard.

Quoth Amelotte : " The night this chanced
Was a late summer night
Last year ! What secret, for Christ's love,
Keep'st thou since then ? Mary above !
What thing is this thou speakest of ?

" Mary and Christ ! Lest when 'tis told
I should be prone to wrath, —
This prayer beforehand ! How she errs
Soe'er, take count of grief like hers,
Whereof the days are turned to years ! "

She bowed her neck, and having said,
Kept on her knees to hear ;
And then, because strained thought demands
Quiet before it understands,
Darkened her eyesight with her hands.

So when at last her sister spoke,
She did not see the pain
O' the mouth nor the ashamed eyes,
But marked the breath that came in sighs
And the half-pausing for replies.

This was the bride's sad prelude-strain : —

“ I' the convent where a girl
I dwelt till near my womanhood,
I had but preachings of the rood
And Aves told in solitude

“ To spend my heart on : and my hand
Had but the weary skill
To eke out upon silken cloth
Christ's visage, or the long bright growth
Of Mary's hair, or Satan wroth.

“ So when at last I went, and thou,
A child not known before,
Didst come to take the place I left, —
My limbs, after such lifelong theft
Of life, could be but little left

“ In all that ministers delight
To noble women : I
Had learned no word of youth's discourse,
Nor gazed on games of warriors,
Nor trained a hound, nor ruled a horse.

“ Besides, the daily life i' the sun
 Made me at first hold back.
To thee this came at once ; to me
It crept with pauses timidly ;
I am not blithe and strong like thee.

“ Yet my feet liked the dances well,
 The songs went to my voice,
The music made me shake and weep ;
And often, all night long, my sleep
Gave dreams I had been fain to keep.

“ But though I loved not holy things,
 To hear them scorned brought pain, —
They were my childhood ; and these dames
Were merely perjured in saints' names
And fixed upon saints' days for games.

“ And sometimes when my father rode
 To hunt with his loud friends,
I dared not bring him to be quaff'd,
As my wont was, his stirrup-draught,
Because they jested so and laugh'd.

“ At last one day my brothers said,
 ‘ The girl must not grow thus, —
Bring her a jennet, — she shall ride.’
They helped my mounting, and I tried
To laugh with them and keep their side.

But brakes were rough and bents were steep
 Upon our path that day :
My palfrey threw me ; and I went
Upon men’s shoulders home, sore spent,
While the chase followed up the scent.

“ Our shrift-father (and he alone
 Of all the household there
Had skill in ieechcraft,) was away
When I reached home. I tossed, and lay
Sullen with anguish the whole day.

“ For the day passed ere some one brought
 To mind that in the hunt
Rode a young lord she named, long bred
Among the priests, whose art (she said)
Might chance to stand me in much stead.

“ I bade them seek and summon him :
 But long ere this, the chase
Had scattered, and he was not found.
I lay in the same weary stound,
Therefore, until the night came round.

“ It was dead night and near on twelve
 When the horse-tramp at length
Beat up the echoes of the court :
By then, my feverish breath was short
With pain the sense could scarce support.

“ My fond nurse sitting near my feet
 Rose softly, — her lamp's flame
Held in her hand, lest it should make
My heated lids, in passing, ache ;
And she passed softly, for my sake.

“ Returning soon, she brought the youth
 They spoke of. Meek he seemed,
But good knights held him of stout heart.
He was akin to us in part,
And bore our shield, but barred athwart.

“I now remembered to have seen
 His face, and heard him praised
For letter-lore and medicine,
Seeing his youth was nurtured in Priests' knowledge, as mine own had been.”

The bride's voice did not weaken here,
 Yet by her sudden pause
She seemed to look for questioning ;
Or else (small need though) 'twas to bring
Well to her mind the bygone thing.

Her thought, long stagnant, stirred by speech,
 Gave her a sick recoil ;
As, dip thy fingers through the green
That masks a pool, — where they have been
The naked depth is black between.

Amelotte kept her knees ; her face
 Was shut within her hands,
As it had been throughout the tale ;
Her forehead's whiteness might avail
Nothing to say if she were pale.

Although the lattice had dropped loose,
 There was no wind ; the heat
Being so at rest that Amelotte
Heard far beneath the plunge and float
Of a hound swimming in the moat.

Some minutes since, two rooks had toiled
 Home to the nests that crowned
Ancestral ash-trees. Through the glare
Beating again, they seemed to tear
With that thick caw the woof o' the air.

But else, 'twas at the dead of noon
 Absolute silence ; all,
From the raised bridge and guarded sconce
To green-clad places of pleasaunce
Where the long lake was white with swans.

Amelotte spoke not any word
 Nor moved she once ; but felt
Between her hands in narrow space
Her own hot breath upon her face,
And kept in silence the same place.

Aloÿse did not hear at all
The sounds without. She heard
The inward voice (past help obey'd)
Which might not slacken or be stay'd,
But urged her till the whole were said.

Therefore she spoke again : " That night
But little could be done :
My foot, held in my nurse's hands,
He swathed up heedfully in bands,
And for my rest gave close commands.

" I slept till noon, but an ill sleep
Of dreams : through all that day
My side was stiff and caught the breath ;
Next day, such pain as sickeneth
Took me, and I was nigh to death.

" Life strove, Death claimed me for his own
Through days and nights : but now
'Twas the good father tended me,
Having returned. Still, I did see
The youth I spoke of constantly.

“For he would with my brothers come
To stay beside my couch,
And fix my eyes against his own,
Noting my pulse ; or else alone,
To sit at gaze while I made moan.

“(Some nights I knew he kept the watch,
Because my women laid
The rushes thick for his steel shoes.)
Through many days this pain did use
The life God would not let me lose.

“At length, with my good nurse to aid,
I could walk forth again :
And still, as one who broods or grieves,
At noons I'd meet him and at eves,
With idle feet that drove the leaves.

“The day when I first walked alone
Was thinned in grass and leaf,
And yet a goodly day o' the year :
The last bird's cry upon mine ear
Left my brain weak, it was so clear.

“The tears were sharp within mine eyes ;
I sat down, being glad,
And wept ; but stayed the sudden flow
Anon, for footsteps that fell slow ;
'Twas that youth passed me, bowing low.

“He passed me without speech ;' but when,
At least an hour gone by,
Rethreading the same covert, he
Saw I was still beneath the tree,
He spoke and sat him down with me.

“Little we said ; nor one heart heard
Even what was said within ;
And, faltering some farewell, I soon
Rose up ; but then i' the autumn noon
My feeble brain whirled like a swoon.

“He made me sit. ‘Cousin, I grieve
Your sickness stays by you.’
‘I would,’ said I, ‘that you did err
So grieving. I am wearier
Than death, of the sickening dying year.’

“He answered: ‘If your weariness
Accepts a remedy,
I hold one and can give it you.’
I gazed: ‘What ministers thereto,
Be sure,’ I said, ‘that I will do.’

“He went on quickly: — ’Twas a cure
He had not ever named
Unto our kin, lest they should stint
Their favor, for some foolish hint
Of wizardry or magic in’t:

“But that if he were let to come
Within my bower that night,
(My women still attending me,
He said, while he remain’d there,) he
Could teach me the cure privily.

“I bade him come that night. He came;
But little in his speech
Was cure or sickness spoken of,
Only a passionate fierce love
That clamored upon God above.

“My women wondered, leaning close
Aloof. At mine own heart.
I think great wonder was not stirr'd.
I dared not listen, yet I heard
His tangled speech, word within word.

“He craved my pardon first, — all else
Wild tumult. In the end
He remained silent at my feet
Fumbling the rushes. Strange quick heat
Made all the blood of my life meet.

“And lo ! I loved him. I but said,
If he would leave me then,
His hope some future might forecast.
His hot lips stung my hand : at last
My damsels led him forth in haste.”

The bride took breath to pause ; and turned
Her gaze where Amelotte
Knelt, — the gold hair upon her back
Quite still in all its threads, — the track
Of her still shadow sharp and black.

That listening without sight had grown
 To stealthy dread ; and now
That the one sound she had to mark
Left her alone too, she was stark
Afraid, as children in the dark.

Her fingers felt her temples beat ;
 Then came that brain-sickness
Which thinks to scream, and murmureth ;
And pent between her hands, the breath
Was damp against her face like death.

Her arms both fell at once ; but when
 She gasped upon the light,
Her sense returned. She would have pray'd
To change whatever words still stay'd
Behind, but felt there was no aid.

So she rose up, and having gone
 Within the window's arch
Once more, she sat there, all intent
On torturing doubts, and once more bent
To hear, in mute bewilderment.

But Aloyse still paused. Thereon
Amelotte gathered voice
In somewise from the torpid fear
Coiled round her spirit. Low but clear
She said : " Speak, sister ; for I hear."

But Aloyse threw up her neck
And called the name of God : —
" Judge, God, 'twixt her and me to-day !
She knows how hard this is to say,
Yet will not have one word away."

Her sister was quite silent. Then
Afresh : — " Not she, dear Lord !
Thou be my judge, on Thee I call !"
She ceased, — her forehead smote the wall :
" Is there a God," she said, " at all ?"

Amelotte shuddered at the soul,
But did not speak. The pause
Was long this time. At length the bride
Pressed her hand hard against her side,
And trembling between shame and pride

Said by fierce effort : " From that night
Often at nights we met :
That night, his passion could but rave :
The next, what grace his lips did crave
I knew not, but I know I gave."

Where Amelotte was sitting, all
The light and warmth of day
Were so upon her without shade,
That the thing seemed by sunshine made
Most foul and wanton to be said.

She would have questioned more, and known
The whole truth at its worst,
But held her silent, in mere shame
Of day. 'Twas only these words came : —
" Sister, thou hast not said his name."

" Sister," quoth Aloÿse, " thou know'st
His name. I said that he
Was in a manner of our kin.
Waiting the title he might win,
They called him the Lord Urscllyn."

The bridegroom's name, to Amelotte
Daily familiar, — heard
Thus in this dreadful history, —
Was dreadful to her ; as might be
Thine own voice speaking unto thee.

The day's mid-hour was almost full ;
Upon the dial-plate
The angel's sword stood near at One.
An hour's remaining yet ; the sun
Will not decrease till all be done.

Through the bride's lattice there crept in
At whiles (from where the train
Of minstrels, till the marriage-call,
Loitered at windows of the wall,
Stray lute-notes, sweet and musical.

They clung in the green growths and moss
Against the outside stone ;
Low like dirge-wail or requiem
They murmured, lost 'twixt leaf and stem :
There was no wind to carry them.

Amelotte gathered herself back
 Into the wide recess
That the sun flooded : it o'erspread
Like flame the hair upon her head
And fringed her face with burning red.

All things seemed shaken and at change :
 A silent place o' the hills
She knew, into her spirit came :
Within herself she said its name
And wondered was it still the same.

The bride (whom silence goaded) now
 Said strongly, — her despair
By stubborn will kept underneath : —
“Sister, 'twere well thou didst not breathe
That curse of thine. Give me my wreath.”

“Sister,” said Amelotte, “abide
 In peace. Be God thy judge,
As thou hast said — not I. For me,
I merely will thank God that he
Whom thou hast lovèd loveth thee.”

Then Aloÿse lay back, and laughed
With wan lips bitterly,
Saying, "Nay, thank thou God for this, —
That never any soul like his Shall have its portion where love is."

Weary of wonder, Amelotte
Sat silent : she would ask
No more, though all was unexplained :
She was too weak ; the ache still pained
Her eyes, — her forehead's pulse remained.

The silence lengthened. Aloÿse
Was fain to turn her face
Apart, to where the arras told
Two Testaments, the New and Old,
In shapes and meanings manifold.

One solace that was gained, she hid.
Her sister, from whose curse
Her heart recoiled, had blessed instead :
Yet would not her pride have it said
How much the blessing comforted.

Only, on looking round again
 After some while, the face
Which from the arras turned away
Was more at peace and less at bay
With shame than it had been that day.

She spoke right on, as if no pause
 Had come between her speech :
“ That year from warmth grew bleak and pass'd ; ”
She said ; “ the days from first to last
How slow, — woe's me ! the nights how fast !

“ From first to last it was not known :
 My nurse, and of my train
Some four or five, alone could tell
What terror kept inscrutable :
There was good need to guard it well.

“ Not the guilt only made the shame,
 But he was without land
And born amiss. He had but come
To train his youth here at our home,
And, being man, depart therefrom.

“Of the whole time each single day
 Brought fear and great unrest :
It seemed that all would not avail
Some once, — that my close watch would fail,
And some sign, somehow, tell the tale.

“The noble maidens that I knew,
 My fellows, oftentimes
Midway in talk or sport, would look
A wonder which my fears mistook,
To see how I turned faint and shook.

“They had a game of cards, where each
 By painted arms might find
What knight she should be given to.
Ever with trembling hand I threw
Lest I should learn the thing I knew.

“And once it came. And Aure d'Honvaulx
 Held up the bended shield
And laughed : ‘Gramercy for our share !—
If to our bridal we but fare
To smutch the blazon that we bear !’

“ But proud Denise de Villenbois
 Kissed me, and gave her wench
The card, and said : ‘ If in these bowers
You women play at paramours,
You must not mix your game with ours.’

“ And one upcast it from her hand :
 ‘ Lo ! see how high he’ll soar !’
But then their laugh was bitterest ;
For the wind veered at fate’s behest
And blew it back into my breast.

“ Oh ! if I met him in the day
 Or heard his voice, — at meals
Or at the Mass or through the hall, —
A look turned towards me would appal
My heart by seeming to know all.

“ Yet I grew curious of my shame,
 And sometimes in the church,
On hearing such a sin rebuked,
Have held my girdle-glass unhooked
To see how such a woman looked.

“ But if at night he did not come,
 I lay all deadly cold
To think they might have smitten sore
And slain him, and as the night wore,
His corpse be lying at my door.

“ And entering or going forth,
 Our proud shield o'er the gate
Seemed to arraign my shrinking eyes.
With tremors and unspoken lies
The year went past me in this wise.

“ About the spring of the next year
 An ailing fell on me ;
(I had been stronger till the spring ;)
'Twas mine old sickness gathering,
I thought ; but 'twas another thing.

“ I had such yearnings as brought tears,
 And a wan dizziness :
Motion, like feeling, grew intense ;
Sight was a haunting evidence
And sound a pang that snatched the sense.

“It now was hard on that great ill
Which lost our wealth from us
And all our lands. Accursed be
The peevish fools of liberty
Who will not let themselves be free !

“The Prince was fled into the west :
A price was on his blood,
But he was safe. To us his friends
He left that ruin which attends
The strife against God's secret ends.

“The league dropped all asunder, — lord,
Gentle and serf. Our house
Was marked to fall. And a day came
When half the wealth that propped our name
Went from us in a wind of flame.

“Six hours I lay upon the wall
And saw it burn. But when
It clogged the day in a black bed
Of louring vapor, I was led
Down to the postern, and we fled.

“ But ere we fled, there was a voice
Which I heard speak, and say
That many of our friends, to shun
Our fate, had left us and were gone,
And that Lord Urscelyn was one.

“ That name, as was its wont, made sight
And hearing whirl. I gave
No heed but only to the name.
I held my senses, dreading them,
And was at strife to look the same.

“ We rode and rode. As the speed grew,
The growth of some vague curse
Swarmed in my brain. It seemed to me
Numbed by the swiftness, but would be —
That still — clear knowledge certainly.

“ Night lapsed. At dawn the sea was there
And the sea-wind : afar
The ravening surge was hoarse and loud,
And underneath the dim dawn-cloud
Each stalking wave shook like a shroud.

“ From my drawn litter I looked out
Unto the swarthy sea,
And knew. That voice, which late had cross'd
Mine ears, seemed with the foam uptoss'd :
I knew that Urscllyn was lost.

“ Then I spake all : I turned on one
And on the other, and spake :
My curse laughed in me to behold
Their eyes : I sat up, stricken cold,
Mad of my voice till all was told.

“ Oh ! of my brothers, Hugues was mute,
And Gilles was wild and loud,
And Raoul strained abroad his face,
As if his gnashing wrath could trace
Even there the prey that it must chase.

“ And round me murmured all our train,
Hoarse as the hoarse-tongued sea ;
Till Hugues from silence louring woke,
And cried : ‘ What ails the foolish folk ?
Know ye not frenzy's lightning-stroke ?’

“ But my stern father came to them
 And quelled them with his look,
Silent and deadly pale. Anon
I knew that we were hastening on,
My litter closed and the light gone.

“ And I remember all that day
 The barren bitter wind
Without, and the sea's moaning there
That I first moaned with unaware,
And when I knew, shook down my hair.

“ Few followed us or faced our flight :
 Once only I could hear,
Far in the front, loud scornful words,
And cries I knew of hostile lords,
And crash of spears and grind of swords.

“ It was soon ended. On that day
 Before the light had changed
We reached our refuge ; miles of rock
Bulwarked for war ; whose strength might mock
Sky, sea, or man, to storm or shock.

“Listless and feebly conscious, I
Lay far within the night
Awake. The many pains incurred
That day, — the whole, said, seen or heard, —
Stayed by in me as things deferred.

“Not long. At dawn I slept. In dreams
All was passed through afresh
From end to end. As the morn heaved
Towards noon, I, waking sore aggrieved,
That I might die, cursed God, and lived.

“Many days went, and I saw none
Except my women. They
Calmed their wan faces, loving me ;
And when they wept, lest I should see,
Would chaunt a desolate melody.

“Panic unthreatened shook my blood
Each sunset, all the slow
Subsiding of the turbid light.
I would rise, sister, as I might,
And bathe my forehead through the night

“To elude madness. The stark walls
 Made chill the mirk : and when
We oped our curtains, to resume
Sun-sickness after long sick gloom,
The withering sea-wind walked the room.

Through the gaunt windows the great gales
 Bore in the tattered clumps
Of waif-weed and the tamarisk-boughs ;
And sea-mews, 'mid the storm's carouse,
Were flung, wild-clamoring, in the house.

“My hounds I had not ; and my hawk,
 Which they had saved for me,
Wanting the sun and rain to beat
His wings, soon lay with gathered feet ;
And my flowers faded, lacking heat.

“Such still were griefs : for grief was still
 A separate sense, untouched
Of that despair which had become
My life. Great anguish could benumb
My soul, — my heart was quarrelsome.

“Time crept. Upon a day at length
My kinsfolk sat with me :
That which they asked was bare and plain :
I answered : the whole bitter strain
Was again said, and heard again.

“Fierce Raoul snatched his sword, and turned
The point against my breast.
I bared it, smiling : ‘To the heart
Strike home,’ I said ; ‘another dart
Wreaks hourly there a deadlier smart.’

“’Twas then my sire struck down the sword,
And said with shaken lips :
‘She from whom all of you receive
Your life, so smiled ; and I forgive.’
Thus, for my mother’s sake, I live.

“But I, a mother even as she,
Turned shuddering to the wall :
For I said : ‘Great God ! and what would I do,
When to the sword, with the thing I knew,
I offered not one life but two !’

“ Then I fell back from them, and lay
 Outwearied. My tired sense
Soon filmed and settled, and like stone
I slept ; till something made me moan,
And I woke up at night alone.

“ I woke at midnight, cold and dazed ;
 Because I found myself
Seated upright, with bosom bare,
Upon my bed, combing my hair,
Ready to go, I knew not where.

“ It dawned light day, — the last of those
 Long months of longing days.
That noon, the change was wrought on me
In somewise, — nought to hear or see, —
Only a trance and agony.”

The bride's voice failed her, from no will
 To pause. The bridesmaid leaned,
And where the window-panes were white,
Looked for the day : she knew not quite
If there were either day or night.

It seemed to Alojse that the whole
Day's weight lay back on her
Like lead. The hours that did remain
Beat their dry wings upon her brain
Once in mid-flight, and passed again.

There hung a cage of burnt perfumes
In the recess : but these,
For some hours, weak against the sun,
Had simmered in white ash. From One
The second quarter was begun.

They had not heard the stroke. The air,
Though altered with no wind,
Breathed now by pauses, so to say :
Each breath was time that went away, —
Each pause a minute of the day.

I' the almonry, the almoner,
Hard by, had just dispensed
Church-dole and march-dole. High and wide
Now rose the shout of thanks, which cried
On God that He should bless the bride.

Its echo thrilled within their feet,
 And in the furthest rooms
Was heard, where maidens flushed and gay
Wove with stooped necks the wreaths alway
Fair for the virgin's marriage-day.

The mother leaned along, in thought
 After her child ; till tears,
Bitter, not like a wedded girl's,
Fell down her breast along her curls,
And ran in the close work of pearls.

The speech ached at her heart. She said :
 “ Sweet Mary, do thou plead
This hour with thy most blessed Son
To let these shameful words atone,
That I may die when I have done.”

The thought ached at her soul. Yet now : —
 “ Itself — that life ” (she said,)
Out of my weary life — when sense
Unclosed, was gone. What evil men's
Most evil hands had borne it thence

“ I knew, and cursed them. Still in sleep
I have my child ; and pray
To know if it indeed appear
As in my dream's perpetual sphere,
That I — death reached — may seek it there.

“ Sleeping, I wept ; though until dark
A fever dried mine eyes
Kept open ; save when a tear might
Be forced from the mere ache of sight.
And I nursed hatred day and night.

“ Aye, and I sought revenge by spells ;
And vainly many a time
Have laid my face into the lap
Of a wise woman, and heard clap
Her thunder, the fiend's juggling trap.

“ At length I feared to curse them, lest
From evil lips the curse
Should be a blessing ; and would sit
Rocking myself and stifling it
With babbled jargon of no wit.

“ But this was not at first : the days
 And weeks made frenzied months
Before this came. My curses, pil'd
Then with each hour unreconcil'd,
Still wait for those who took my child.”

She stopped, grown fainter. “ Amelotte,
 Surely,” she said, “ this sun
Sheds judgment-fire from the fierce south :
It does not let me breathe : the drouth
Is like sand spread within my mouth.”

The bridesmaid rose. I' the outer glare
 Gleamed her pale cheeks, and eyes
Sore troubled ; and aweary weigh'd
Her brows just lifted out of shade ;
And the light jarred within her head.

'Mid flowers fair-heaped there stood a bowl
 With water. She therein
Through eddyng bubbles slid a cup,
And offered it, being risen up,
Close to her sister's mouth, to sup.

The freshness dwelt upon her sense,
Yet did not the bride drink ;
But she dipped in her hand anon
And cooled her temples ; and all wan
With lids that held their ache, went on.

“Through those dark watches of my woe,
Time, an ill plant, had waxed
Apace. That year was finished. Dumb
And blind, life's wheel with earth's had come
Whirled round : and we might seek our home.

“Our wealth was rendered back, with wealth
Snatched from our foes. The house
Had more than its old strength and fame :
But still 'neath the fair outward claim
I rankled, — a fierce core of shame.

“It chilled me from their eyes and lips
Upon a night of those
First days of triumph, as I gazed
Listless and sick, or scarcely raised
My face to mark the sports they praised.

“The endless changes of the dance
 Bewildered me : the tones
Of lute and cithern struggled tow'rds
Some sense ; and still in the last chords
The music seemed to sing wild words.

“ My shame possessed me in the light
 And pageant, till I swooned.
But from that hour I put my shame
From me, and cast it over them
By God's command and in God's name

“ For my child's bitter sake. O thou
 Once felt against my heart
With longing of the eyes, — a pain
Since to my heart for ever, — then
Beheld not, and not felt again ! ”

She scarcely paused, continuing : —

“ That year drooped weak in March ;
And April, finding the streams dry,
Choked, with no rain, in dust : the sky
Shall not be fainter this July.

“ Men sickened ; beasts lay without strength ;
The year died in the land.
But I, already desolate,
Said merely, sitting down to wait, —
‘ The seasons change and Time wears late.’

“ For I had my hard secret told,
In secret, to a priest ;
With him I communed ; and he said
The world’s soul, for its sins, were sped.
And the sun’s courses numberèd.

“ The year slid like a corpse afloat :
None trafficked, — who had bread
Did eat. That year our legions, come
Thinned from the place of war, at home
Found busier death, more burdensome.

“ Tidings and rumors came with them,
The first for months. The chiefs
Sat daily at our board, and in
Their speech were names of friend and kin :
One day they spoke of Urscllyn.

“The words were light, among the rest :
Quick glance my brothers sent
To sift the speech ; and I, struck through,
Sat sick and giddy in full view :
Yet did none gaze, so many knew.

“Because in the beginning, much
Had caught abroad, through them
That heard my clamor on the coast :
But two were hanged ; and then the most
Held silence wisdom, as thou know'st.

“That year the convent yielded thee
Back to our home ; and thou
Then knew'st not how I shuddered cold
To kiss thee, seeming to enfold
To my changed heart myself of old.

“Then there was showing thee the house,
So many rooms and doors ;
Thinking the while how thou would'st start
If once I flung the doors apart
Of one dull chamber in my heart.

“And yet I longed to open it ;
And often in that year
Of plague and want, when side by side
We’ve knelt to pray with them that died,
My prayer was, ‘Show her what I hide !’”

END OF PART I.

LYRICS.

LOVE-LILY.

BETWEEN the hands, between the brows,
 Between the lips of Love-Lily,
A spirit is born whose birth endows
 My blood with fire to burn through me ;
Who breathes upon my gazing eyes,
 Who laughs and murmurs in mine ear,
At whose least touch my color flies,
 And whom my life grows faint to hear.

Within the voice, within the heart,
 Within the mind of Love-Lily,
A spirit is born who lifts apart
 His tremulous wings and looks at me ;
Who on my mouth his finger lays,
 And shows, while whispering lutes confer,
That Eden of Love's watered ways
 Whose winds and spirits worship her.

Brows, hands, and lips, heart, mind, and voice,
 Kisses and words of Love-Lily, —
Oh ! bid me with your joy rejoice
 Till riotous longing rest in me !
Ah ! let not hope be still distraught,
 But find in her its gracious goal,
Whose speech Truth knows not from her thought
 Nor Love her body from her soul.

FIRST LOVE REMEMBERED.

PEACE in her chamber, wheresoe'er
It be, a holy place :
The thought still brings my soul such grace
As morning meadows wear.

Whether it still be small and light,
A maid's who dreams alone,
As from her orchard-gate the moon
Its ceiling showed at night :

Or whether, in a shadow dense
As nuptial hymns invoke,
Innocent maidenhood awoke
To married innocence :

There still the thanks unheard await
The unconscious gift bequeathed :
For there my soul this hour has breathed
An air inviolate.

PLIGHTED PROMISE.

IN a soft-complexioned sky,
Fleeting rose and kindling gray,
Have you seen Aurora fly
At the break of day?
So my maiden, so my plighted may,
Blushing cheek and gleaming eye
Lifts to look my way.

Where the inmost leaf is stirred
With the heart-beat of the grove,
Have you heard a hidden bird
Cast her note above?
So my lady, so my lovely love,
Echoing Cupid's prompted word,
Makes a tune thereof.

Have you seen, at heaven's mid-height,
In the moon-rack's ebb and tide,
Venus leap forth burning white,
Dian pale and hide?
So my bright breast-jewel, so my bride,
One sweet night, when fear takes flight,
Shall leap against my side.

SUDDEN LIGHT.

I HAVE been here before,
But when or how I cannot tell :
I know the grass beyond the door,
The sweet keen smell,
The sighing sound, the lights around the shore.

You have been mine before, —
How long ago I may not know :
But just when at that swallow's soar
Your neck turned so,
Some veil did fall, — I knew it all of yore.

Has this been thus before ?
And shall not thus time's eddying flight
Still with our lives our love restore
In death's despite,
And day and night yield one delight once more ?

A LITTLE WHILE.

A LITTLE while a little love
The hour yet bears for thee and me
Who have not drawn the veil to see
If still our heaven be lit above.
Thou merely, at the day's last sigh,
Hast felt thy soul prolong the tone ;
And I have heard the night-wind cry
And deemed its speech mine own.

A little while a little love
The scattering autumn hoards for us
Whose bower is not yet ruinous
Nor quite unleaved our songless grove.
Only across the shaken boughs
We hear the flood-tides seek the sea,
And deep in both our hearts they rouse
One wail for thee and me.

A LITTLE WHILE.

A little while a little love
 May yet be ours who have not said
 The word it makes our eyes afraid
To know that each is thinking of.
Not yet the end : be our lips dumb
 In smiles a little season yet :
I'll tell thee, when the end is come,
 How we may best forget.

THE SONG OF THE BOWER.

SAY, is it day, is it dusk in thy bower,
Thou whom I long for, who longest for me?
Oh ! be it light, be it night, 'tis Love's hour,
Love's that is fettered as Love's that is free.
Free Love has leaped to that innermost chamber,
Oh ! the last time, and the hundred before :
Fettered Love, motionless, can but remember,
Yet something that sighs from him passes the door.

Nay, but my heart when it flies to thy bower,
What does it find there that knows it again?
There it must droop like a shower-beaten flower,
Red at the rent core and dark with the rain.
Ah ! yet what shelter is still shed above it, —
What waters still image its leaves torn apart?
Thy soul is the shade that clings round it to love it,
And tears are its mirror deep down in thy heart.

What were my prize, could I enter thy bower,
This day, to-morrow, at eve or at morn ?

Large lovely arms and a neck like a tower,
Bosom then heaving that now lies forlorn.
Kindled with love-breath, (the sun's kiss is colder !)
Thy sweetness all near me, so distant to-day ;
My hand round thy neck and thy hand on my shoulder,
My mouth to thy mouth as the world melts away.

What is it keeps me afar from thy bower, —
My spirit, my body, so fain to be there ?
Waters engulfing or fires that devour ? —
Earth heaped against me or death in the air ?
Nay, but in day-dreams, for terror, for pity,
The trees wave their heads with an omen to tell ;
Nay, but in night-dreams, throughout the dark city,
The hours, clashed together, lose count in the bell.

Shall I not one day remember thy bower,
One day when all days are one day to me ? —
Thinking, " I stirred not, and yet had the power ! " —
Yearning, " Ah God, if again it might be ! "
Peace, peace ! such a small lamp illumines, on this highway,
So dimly so few steps in front of my feet, —
Yet shows me that her way is parted from my way. . . .
Out of sight, beyond light, at what goal may we meet ?

PENUMBRA.

I DID not look upon her eyes,
(Though scarcely seen, with no surprise,
'Mid many eyes a single look,)
Because they should not gaze rebuke,
At night, from stars in sky and brook.

I did not take her by the hand,
(Though little was to understand
From touch of hand all friends might take,)
Because it should not prove a flake
Burnt in my palm to boil and ache.

I did not listen to her voice,
(Though none had noted, where at choice
All might rejoice in listening,)
Because no such a thing should cling
In the wood's moan at evening.

I did not cross her shadow once,
(Though from the hollow west the sun's
Last shadow runs along so far,)
Because in June it should not bar
My ways, at noon when fevers are.

They told me she was sad that day,
(Though wherefore tell what love's soothsay,
Sooner than they, did register?)
And my heart leapt and wept to her,
And yet I did not speak nor stir.

So shall the tongues of the sea's foam
(Though many voices therewith come
From drowned hope's home to cry to me,)
Bewail one hour the more, when sea
And wind are one with memory.

A NEW-YEAR'S BURDEN.

ALONG the grass sweet airs are blown
Our way this day in Spring.
Of all the songs that we have known
Now which one shall we sing?
Not that, my love, ah no!—
Not this, my love? why, so!—
Yet both were ours, but hours will come and go.
The grove is all a pale frail mist,
The new year sucks the sun.
Of all the kisses that we kissed
Now which shall be the one?
Not that, my love, ah no!—
Not this, my love?— heigh-ho
For all the sweets that all the winds can blow!
The branches cross above our eyes,
The skies are in a net:
And what's the thing beneath the skies
We two would most forget?
Not birth, my love, no, no,—
Not death, my love, no, no,—
The love once ours, but ours long hours ago.

EVEN SO.

So it is, my dear.

All such things touch secret strings

For heavy hearts to hear.

So it is, my dear.

Very like indeed :

Sea and sky, afar, on high,

Sand and strewn seaweed, —

Very like indeed.

But the sea stands spread

As one wall with the flat skies,

Where the lean black craft like flies

Seem well-nigh stagnated,

Soon to drop off dead.

Seemed it so to us

When I was thine and thou wast mine,

And all these things were thus,

But all our world in us?

Could we be so now?

Not if all beneath heaven's pall

Lay dead but I and thou,

Could we be so now !

THE WOODSPURGE.

THE wind flapped loose, the wind was still,
Shaken out dead from tree and hill :
I had walked on at the wind's will, —
I sat now, for the wind was still.

Between my knees my forehead was, —
My lips, drawn in, said not Alas !
My hair was over in the grass,
My naked ears heard the day pass.

My eyes, wide open, had the run
Of some ten weeds to fix upon ;
Among those few, out of the sun,
The woodspurge flowered, three cups in one.

From perfect grief there need not be
Wisdom or even memory :
One thing then learnt remains to me, —
The woodspurge has a cup of three.

THE HONEYSUCKLE.

I PLUCKED a honeysuckle where
The hedge on high is quick with thorn,
And climbing for the prize, was torn,
And fouled my feet in quag-water ;
And by the thorns and by the wind
The blossom that I took was thinn'd,
And yet I found it sweet and fair.

Thence to a richer growth I came,
Where, nursed in mellow intercourse,
The honeysuckles sprang by scores,
Not harried like my single stem,
All virgin lamps of scent and dew.
So from my hand that first I threw,
Yet plucked not any more of them.

A YOUNG FIR-WOOD.

THESE little firs to-day are things
To clasp into a giant's cap,
Or fans to suit his lady's lap.
From many winters many springs
Shall cherish them in strength and sap,
Till they be marked upon the map,
A wood for the wind's wanderings.

All seed is in the sower's hands :
And what at first was trained to spread
Its shelter for some single head, —
Yea, even such fellowship of wands, —
May hide the sunset, and the shade
Of its great multitude be laid
Upon the earth and elder sands.

THE SEA-LIMITS.

CONSIDER the sea's listless chime :
Time's self it is, made audible, —
The murmur of the earth's own shell.
Secret continuance sublime
Is the sea's end : our sight may pass
No furlong further. Since time was,
This sound hath told the lapse of time.

No quiet, which is death's, — it hath
The mournfulness of ancient life,
Enduring always at dull strife.
As the world's heart of rest and wrath,
Its painful pulse is in the sands.
Last utterly, the whole sky stands,
Gray and not known, along its path.

Listen alone beside the sea,
Listen alone among the woods ;
Those voices of twin solitudes

Shall have one sound alike to thee :

 Hark where the murmurs of thronged men
 Surge and sink back and surge again, —
Still the one voice of wave and tree.

Gather a shell from the strown beach

 And listen at its lips : they sigh
 The same desire and mystery,
The echo of the whole sea's speech.
 And all mankind is thus at heart
 Not anything but what thou art :
And Earth, Sea, Man, are all in each.

SONNETS.

FOR

“OUR LADY OF THE ROCKS”

BY LEONARDO DA VINCI.

MOTHER, is this the darkness of the end,
The Shadow of Death? and is that outer sea
Infinite imminent Eternity?
And does the death-pang by man's seed sustain'd
In Time's each instant cause thy face to bend
Its silent prayer upon the Son, while he
Blesses the dead with his hand silently
To his long day which hours no more offend?

Mother of grace, the pass is difficult,
Keen as these rocks, and the bewildered souls
Throng it like echoes, blindly shuddering through.
Thy name, O Lord, each spirit's voice extols,
Whose peace abides in the dark avenue
Amid the bitterness of things occult.

FOR A VENETIAN PASTORAL

BY GIORGIONE.

(In the Louvre.)

WATER, for anguish of the solstice : — nay,
But dip the vessel slowly, — nay, but lean
And hark how at its verge the wave sighs in Reluctant. Hush ! Beyond all depth away
The heat lies silent at the brink of day :
Now the hand trails upon the viol-string
That sobs, and the brown faces cease to sing,
Sad with the whole of pleasure. Whither stray
Her eyes now, from whose mouth the slim pipes creep
And leave it pouting, while the shadowed grass
Is cool against her naked side? Let be : —
Say nothing now unto her lest she weep,
Nor name this ever. Be it as it was, —
Life touching lips with Immortality.

FOR AN ALLEGORICAL DANCE OF WOMEN

BY ANDREA MANTEGNA.

(In the Louvre.)

SCARCELY, I think ; yet it indeed may be
The meaning reached him, when this music rang
Clear through his frame, a sweet possessive pang,
And he beheld these rocks and that ridged sea.
But I believe that, leaning tow'ards them, he
Just felt their hair carried across his face
As each girl passed him ; nor gave ear to trace
How many feet ; nor bent assuredly
His eyes from the blind fixedness of thought
To know the dancers. It is bitter glad
Even unto tears. Its meaning filleth it,
A secret of the wells of Life : to wit : —
The heart's each pulse shall keep the sense it had
With all, though the mind's labor run to nought.

FOR
"RUGGIERO AND ANGELICA"

BY INGRES.

I.

A REMOTE sky, prolonged to the sea's brim :
One rock-point standing buffeted alone,
Vexed at its base with a foul beast unknown,
Hell-birth of geomaunt and teraphim :
A knight, and a winged creature bearing him,
Reared at the rock : a woman fettered there,
Leaning into the hollow with loose hair
And throat let back and heartsick trail of limb.

The sky is harsh, and the sea shrewd and salt :
Under his lord the griffin-horse ramps blind
With rigid wings and tail. The spear's lithe stem
Thrills in the roaring of those jaws : behind,
That evil length of body chafes at fault.
She doth not hear nor see — she knows of them.

II.

CLENCH thine eyes now, — 'tis the last instant, girl :
Draw in thy senses, set thy knees, and take
One breath for all : thy life is keen awake, —
Thou mayst not swoon. Was that the scattered whirl
Of its foam drenched thee? — or the waves that curl
And split, bleak spray wherein thy temples ache?
Or was it his the champion's blood to flake
Thy flesh? — or thine own blood's anointing, girl?

Now, silence : for the sea's is such a sound
As irks not silence ; and except the sea,
All now is still. Now the dead thing doth cease
To writhe, and drifts. He turns to her : and she,
Cast from the jaws of Death, remains there, bound,
Again a woman in her nakedness.

"THE WINE OF CIRCE."

BY EDWARD BURNE JONES.

DUSK-HAIRED and gold-robed o'er the golden wine
She stoops, wherein, distilled of death and shame,
Sink the black drops ; while, lit with fragrant flame,
Round her spread board the golden sunflowers shine.
Doth Helios here with Hecatè combine
(O Circe, thou their votaress?) to proclaim
For these thy guests all rapture in Love's name,
Till pitiless Night give Day the countersign?

Lords of their hour, they come. And by her knee
Those cowering beasts, their equals heretofore,
Wait ; who with them in new equality
To-night shall echo back the sea's dull roar
With a vain wail from passion's tide-strown shore
Where the dishevelled seaweed hates the sea.

MARY'S GIRLHOOD.

THIS is that blessed Mary, pre-elect
God's Virgin. Gone is a great while, and she Dwelt young in Nazareth of Galilee.
Unto God's will she brought devout respect,
Profound simplicity of intellect,
And supreme patience. From her mother's knee
Faithful and hopeful ; wise in charity ;
Strong in grave peace ; in pity circumspect.

So held she through her girlhood ; as it were
An angel-watered lily, that near God
Grows and is quiet. Till, one dawn at home,
She woke in her white bed, and had no fear
At all, — yet wept till sunshine, and felt awed :
Because the fulness of the time was come.

THE PASSOVER IN THE HOLY FAMILY.

(*For a Drawing.*¹)

HERE meet together the prefiguring day
And day prefigured. "Eating, thou shalt stand,
Feet shod, loins girt, thy road-staff in thine hand,
With blood-stained door and lintel," — did God say
By Moses' mouth in ages passed away.
And now, where this poor household doth comprise
At Paschal-Feast two kindred families, —
Lo ! the slain lamb confronts the Lamb to slay.

The pyre is piled. What agony's crown attained,
What shadow of Death the Boy's fair brow subdues
Who holds that blood wherewith the porch is stained
By Zachary the priest? John binds the shoes
He deemed himself not worthy to unloose ;
And Mary culls the bitter herbs ordained.

¹ The scene is in the house-porch, where Christ holds a bowl of blood from which Zacharias is sprinkling the posts and lintel. Joseph has brought the lamb, and Elizabeth lights the pyre. The shoes which John fastens, and the bitter herbs which Mary is gathering form part of the ritual.

MARY MAGDALENE

AT THE DOOR OF SIMON THE PHARISEE.

(For a Drawing.¹)

“WHY wilt thou cast the roses from thine hair?
Nay, be thou all a rose, — wreath, lips, and cheek.
Nay, not this house, — that banquet-house we seek;
See how they kiss and enter; come thou there.
This delicate day of love we two will share
Till at our ear love’s whispering night shall speak.
What, sweet one, — hold’st thou still the foolish freak?
Nay, when I kiss thy feet they’ll leave the stair.”

“Oh loose me! See’st thou not my Bridegroom’s face
That draws me to Him? For His feet my kiss,
My hair, my tears He craves to-day: — and oh!
What words can tell what other day and place
Shall see me clasp those blood-stained feet of His?
He needs me, calls me, loves me: let me go!”

¹ In the drawing Mary has left a procession of revellers, and is ascending by a sudden impulse the steps of the house where she sees Christ. Her lover has followed her and is trying to turn her back.

CASSANDRA.

(For a Drawing.¹)

I.

REND, rend thine hair, Cassandra : he will go.

Yea, rend thy garments, wring thine hands, and cry

From 'Troy still towered to the unreddened sky.

See, all but she that bore thee mock thy woe : —

He most whom that fair woman arms, with show

Of wrath on her bent brows ; for in this place

This hour thou bad'st all men in Helen's face

The ravished ravishing prize of Death to know.

What eyes, what ears hath sweet Andromache,

Save for her Hector's form and step ; as tear

On tear make salt the warm last kiss he gave ?

He goes. Cassandra's words beat heavily

Like crows above his crest, and at his ear

Ring hollow in the shield that shall not save.

¹ The subject shows Cassandra prophesying among her kindred, as Hector leaves them for his last battle. They are on the platform of a fortress, from which the Trojan troops are marching out. Helen is arming Paris ; Priam soothes Hecuba ; and Andromache holds the child to her bosom.

II.

“ O HECTOR, gone, gone, gone ! O Hector, thee
Two chariots wait, in Troy long bless'd and curs'd ;
And Grecian spear and Phrygian sand athirst
Crave from thy veins the blood of victory.
Lo ! long upon our hearth the brand had we,
Lit for the roof-tree's ruin : and to-day
The ground-stone quits the wall, — the wind hath way, —
And higher and higher the wings of fire are free.

O Paris, Paris ! O thou burning brand,
Thou beacon of the sea whence Venus rose,
Lighting thy race to shipwreck ! Even that hand
Wherewith she took thine apple let her close
Within thy curls at last, and while Troy glows
Lift thee her trophy to the sea and land.”

VENUS VERTICORDIA.

SHE hath the apple in her hand for thee,
Yet almost in her heart would hold it back ;
She muses, with her eyes upon the track
Of that which in thy spirit they can see.
Haply, " Behold, he is at peace," saith she ;
" Alas ! the apple for his lips, — the dart
That follows its brief sweetness to his heart, —
The wandering of his feet perpetually ! "

A little space her glance is still and coy ;
But if she give the fruit that works her spell,
Those eyes shall flame as for her Phrygian boy.
Then shall her bird's strained throat the woe foretell,
And her far seas moan as a single shell,
And through her dark grove strike the light of Troy.

WHAT of the end, Pandora? Was it thine,
The deed that set these fiery pinions free?
Ah! wherefore did the Olympian consistory
In its own likeness make thee half divine?
Was it that Juno's brow might stand a sign
For ever? and the mien of Pallas be
A deadly thing? and that all men might see
In Venus' eyes the gaze of Proserpine?

What of the end? These beat their wings at will,
The ill-born things, the good things turned to ill,—
Powers of the impassioned hours prohibited.
Aye, clench the casket now! Whither they go
Thou mayst not dare to think: nor canst thou know
If Hope still pent there be alive or dead.

ON REFUSAL OF AID BETWEEN NATIONS.

NOR that the earth is changing, O my God !
Nor that the seasons totter in their walk, —
Not that the virulent ill of act and talk
Seethes ever as a winepress ever trod, —
Not therefore are we certain that the rod
Weighs in thine hand to smite thy world ; though now
Beneath thine hand so many nations bow,
So many kings : — not therefore, O my God !—

But because Man is parcelled out in men
To-day ; because, for any wrongful blow,
No man not stricken asks, “ I would be told
Why thou dost thus ; ” but his heart whispers then,
“ He is he, I am I.” By this we know
That our earth falls asunder, being old.

ON THE "VITA NUOVA" OF DANTE.

As he that loves oft looks on the dear form
And guesses how it grew to womanhood,
And gladly would have watched the beauties bud
And the mild fire of precious life wax warm : —
So I, long bound within the threefold charm
Of Dante's love sublimed to heavenly mood,
Had marvelled, touching his Beatitude,
How grew such presence from man's shameful swarm.

At length within this book I found portrayed
Newborn that Paradisal Love of his,
And simple like a child ; with whose clear aid
I understood. To such a child as this,
Christ, charging well his chosen ones, forbade
Offence : " for lo ! of such my kingdom is."

DANTIS TENEBRÆ.

(In Memory of my Father.)

AND did'st thou know indeed, when at the font
Together with thy name thou gav'st me his,
That also on thy son must Beatrice
Decline her eyes according to her wont,
Accepting me to be of those that haunt
The vale of magical dark mysteries
Where to the hills her poet's foot-track lies
And wisdom's living fountain to his chaunt
Trembles in music? This is that steep land
Where he that holds his journey stands at gaze
Tow'rd sunset, when the clouds like a new height
Seem piled to climb. These things I understand:
For here, where day still soothes my lifted face,
On thy bowed head, my father, fell the night.

BEAUTY AND THE BIRD.

SHE fluted with her mouth as when one sips,
And gently waved her golden head, inclin'd
Outside his cage close to the window-blind ;
Till her fond bird, with little turns and dips,
Piped low to her of sweet companionships.

And when he made an end, some seed took she
And fed him from her tongue, which rosily
Peeped as a piercing bud between her lips.

And like the child in Chaucer, on whose tongue
The Blessed Mary laid, when he was dead,
A grain, — who straightway praised her name in song :
Even so, when she, a little lightly red,
Now turned on me and laughed, I heard the throng
Of inner voices praise her golden head.

A MATCH WITH THE MOON.

WEARY already, weary miles to-night
I walked for bed : and so, to get some ease,
I dogged the flying moon with similes.
And like a wisp she doubled on my sight
In ponds ; and caught in tree-tops like a kite ;
And in a globe of film all liquorish
Swam full-faced like a silly silver fish ; —
Last like a bubble shot the welkin's height
Where my road turned, and got behind me, and sent
My wizened shadow craning round at me,
And jeered, "So, step the measure, — one two three !" —
And if I faced on her, looked innocent.
But just at parting, halfway down a dell,
She kissed me for good-night. So you'll not tell.

TRANSLATIONS.

THE BALLAD OF DEAD LADIES.

(François Villon, 1450.)

TELL me now in what hidden way is Lady Flora the lovely Roman?
Where's Hipparchia, and where is Thais,
Neither of them the fairer woman?
Where is Echo, beheld of no man,
Only heard on river and mere, —
She whose beauty was more than human? . . .
But where are the snows of yester-year?

Where's Héloïse, the learned nun,
For whose sake Abeillard, I ween,
Lost manhood and put priesthood on?
(From Love he won such dule and teen !)
And where, I pray you, is the Queen
Who willed that Buridan should steer
Sewed in a sack's mouth down the Seine? . . .
But where are the snows of yester-year?

White Queen Blanche, like a queen of lilies,
With a voice like any mermaid, —
Bertha Broadfoot, Beatrice, Alice,
And Ermengarde the lady of Maine, —
And that good Joan whom Englishmen
At Rouen doomed and burned her there, —
Mother of God, where are they then? . . .
But where are the snows of yester-year?

Nay, never ask this week, fair lord,
Where they are gone, nor yet this year,
Save with thus much for an overword, —
But where are the snows of yester-year?

TO DEATH, OF HIS LADY.

(François Villon.)

DEATH, of thee do I make my moan,
Who hadst my lady away from me,
Nor wilt assuage thine enmity
Till with her life thou hast mine own ;
For since that hour my strength has flown.
Lo ! what wrong was her life to thee,
Death ?

Two we were, and the heart was one ;
Which now being dead, dead I must be,
Or seem alive as lifelessly
As in the choir the painted stone,
Death !

HIS MOTHER'S SERVICE TO OUR LADY.

(François Villon.)

LADY of Heaven and earth, and therewithal
Crowned Empress of the nether clefts of Hell, —
I, thy poor Christian, on thy name do call,
Commending me to thee, with thee to dwell,
Albeit in nought I be commendable.
But all mine undeserving may not mar
Such mercies as thy sovereign mercies are ;
Without the which (as true words testify)
No soul can reach thy Heaven so fair and far.
Even in this faith I choose to live and die.

Unto thy Son say thou that I am His,
And to me graceless make Him gracious.
Sad Mary of Egypt lacked not of that bliss,
Nor yet the sorrowful clerk Theophilus,
Whose bitter sins were set aside even thus

Though to the Fiend his bounden service was.
Oh help me, lest in vain for me should pass
 (Sweet Virgin that shalt have no loss thereby !)
The blessed Host and sacring of the Mass.
 Even in this faith I choose to live and die.

A pitiful poor woman, shrunk and old,
 I am, and nothing learn'd in letter-lore.
Within my parish-cloister I behold
 A painted Heaven where harps and lutes adore,
 And eke an Hell whose damned folk seethe full sore :
One bringeth fear, the other joy to me.
That joy, great Goddess, make thou mine to be, —
 Thou of whom all must ask it even as I ;
And that which faith desires, that let it see.
 For in this faith I choose to live and die.

O excellent Virgin Princess ! thou didst bear
King Jesus, the most excellent comforter,
Who even of this our weakness craved a share
 And for our sake stooped to us from on high,
Offering to death His young life sweet and fair.
Such as He is, Our Lord, I Him declare,
 And in this faith I choose to live and die.

JOHN OF TOURS.

(Old French.)

JOHN of Tours is back with peace,
But he comes home ill at ease.

“ Good-morrow, mother.” “ Good-morrow, son ;
Your wife has borne you a little one.”

“ Go now, mother, go before,
Make me a bed upon the floor ;

“ Very low your foot must fall,
That my wife hear not at all.”

As it neared the midnight toll,
John of Tours gave up his soul.

“ Tell me now, my mother my dear,
What’s the crying that I hear ? ”

“ Daughter, it’s the children wake
Crying with their teeth that ache.”

“Tell me though, my mother my dear,
What’s the knocking that I hear?”

“Daughter, it’s the carpenter
Mending planks upon the stair.”

“Tell me too, my mother my dear,
What’s the singing that I hear?”

“Daughter, it’s the priests in rows
Going round about our house.”

“Tell me then, my mother my dear,
What’s the dress that I should wear?”

“Daughter, any reds or blues,
But the black is most in use.”

“Nay, but say, my mother my dear,
Why do you fall weeping here?”

“Oh! the truth must be said, —
It’s that John of Tours is dead.”

“Mother, let the sexton know
That the grave must be for two;

“Aye, and still have room to spare,
For you must shut the baby there.”

MY FATHER'S CLOSE.

(Old French.)

INSIDE my father's close,
(Fly away O my heart away !)
Sweet apple-blossom blows
So sweet.

Three kings' daughters fair,
(Fly away O my heart away !)
They lie below it there
So sweet.

" Ah ! " says the eldest one,
(Fly away O my heart away !)
" I think the day's begun
So sweet."

“ Ah ! ” says the second one,
 (Fly away O my heart away !)
“ Far off I hear the drum
 So sweet.”

“ Ah ! ” says the youngest one,
 (Fly away O my heart away !)
“ It's my true love, my own,
 So sweet.

“ Oh ! if he fight and win,”
 (Fly away O my heart away !)
“ I keep my love for him,
 So sweet :
Oh ! let him lose or win,
 He hath it still complete.”

BEAUTY.

(A combination from Sappho.)

I.

LIKE the sweet apple which reddens upon the topmost
bough,
A-top on the topmost twig, — which the pluckers
forgot, somehow, —
Forgot it not, nay, but got it not, for none could get it till now.

II.

Like the wild hyacinth flower which on the hills is found,
Which the passing feet of the shepherds for ever tear
and wound,
Until the purple blossom is trodden into the ground.

YOUTH AND LORDSHIP.¹*(Italian Street-Song.)*

My young lord's the lover
 Of earth and sky above,
 Of youth's sway and youth's play,
 Of songs and flowers and love.

1 GIOVENTÙ E SIGNORÌA.

È GIOVINE il signore,
 Ed ama molte cose, —
 I canti, le rose,
 La forza e l'amore.

Quel che più vuole
 Ancor non osa:
 Ahi più che il sole,
 Più ch' ogni rosa,
 La cara cosa,
 Donna a gioire.

È giovine il signore,
 Ed ama quelle cose
 Che ardor dispose
 In cuore all' amore.

Bella fanciulla,
 Guardalo in viso;
 Non mancar nulla,
 Motto o sorriso;
 Ma viso a viso
 Guarda a gradire.

È giovine il signore,
 Ed ama tutte cose,

Vezzose, giojose,
 Tenenti all' amore.

Prendilo in braccio
 Adesso o mai;
 Per più mi taccio,
 Chè tu lo sai;
 Bacialo e l'avrai,
 Ma non lo dire.

È giovine il signore,
 Ed ama ben le cose
 Che Amor nascose,
 Che mostragli Amore.

Deh trionfando
 Non farne pruova;
 Ahimè! che quando
 Gioja più giova,
 Allor si trova
 Presso al finire.

È giovine il signore,
 Ed ama tante cose,
 Le rose, le spose,
 Quante gli dona Amore.

Yet for love's desire

Green youth lacks the daring ;
Though one dream of fire,
All his hours ensnaring,
Burns the boy past bearing, —
That dream that girls inspire.

My young lord's the lover

Of every burning thought
That Love's will, that Love's skill
Within his breast has wrought.

Lovely girl, look on him

Soft as music's measure ;
Yield him, when you've won him,
Joys and toys at pleasure ;
But to win your treasure,
Softly look upon him.

My young lord's the lover

Of every tender grace
That woman, to woo man,
Can wear in form or face.

Take him to your bosom
Now, girl, or never ;
Let not your new blossom
Of sweet kisses sever ;
Only guard for ever
Your boast within your bosom.

My young lord's the lover
Of every secret thing,
Love-hidden, love-bidden
This day to banqueting.

Lovely girl, with vaunting
Never tempt to-morrow :
From all shapes enchanting
Any joy can borrow,
Still the spectre Sorrow
Rises up for haunting.

And now my lord's the lover
Of ah ! so many a sweet, —
Of roses, of spouses,
As many as love may greet.

THE LEAF.

(Leopardi.)

“TORN from your parent bough,
Poor leaf all withered now,
Where go you?” “I cannot tell.
Storm-stricken is the oak-tree
Where I grew, whence I fell.
Changeful continually,
The zephyr and hurricane
Since that day bid me flee
From deepest woods to the lea,
From highest hills to the plain.
Where the wind carries me
I go without fear or grief:
I go whither each one goes, —
Thither the leaf of the rose
And thither the laurel-leaf.”

FRANCESCA DA RIMINI.

(Dante.)

* * * * *

WHEN I made answer, I began : “ Alas !

How many sweet thoughts and how much desire
Led these two onward to the dolorous pass ! ”

Then turned to them, as who would fain inquire,
And said : “ Francesca, these thine agonies

Wring tears for pity and grief that they inspire :
But tell me, — in the season of sweet sighs,

When and what way did Love instruct you so
That he in your vague longings made you wise ?

Then she to me : “ There is no greater woe
Than the remembrance brings of happy days

In misery ; and this thy guide doth know.
But if the first beginnings to retrace

Of our sad love can yield thee solace here,
So will I be as one that weeps and says.

One day we read, for pastime and sweet cheer,

Of Lancelot, how he found Love tyrannous :

We were alone and without any fear.

Our eyes were drawn together, reading thus,

Full oft, and still our cheeks would pale and glow ;

But one sole point it was that conquered us.

For when we read of that great lover, how

He kissed the smile which he had longed to win, —

Then he whom nought could sever from me now

For ever, kissed my mouth, all quivering.

A Galahalt was the book, and he that writ :

Upon that day we read no more therein.”

At the tale told, while one soul uttered it,

The other wept : a pang so pitiable

That I was seized, like death, in swooning-fit,

And even as a dead body falls, I fell.

“Remember Jacob Abbott’s sensible rule to give children something that they are growing up to, not away from, and keep down the stock of children’s books to the very best.”

CLASSIC JUVENILES

BY JACOB ABBOTT,

“The Prince of Writers for the Young.”

“Jacob Abbott’s books contain so much practical wisdom concerning the every-day life of children, and so many lessons in honor, truthfulness, and courtesy, that they should not be left out of the libraries of boys and girls.” — From “Books for the Young,” compiled by C. M. Hewins, Librarian of the Hartford Library Association.

The author of the Rollo Books is well known wherever the English language is spoken, and his books have become standard classics in the domain of children’s literature. It is a part of every child’s education to become familiar with them.

Jacob Abbott's Classic Juveniles.

"The republication by the house of Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. of thirty-four volumes of Jacob Abbott's Books for Children, is an event deserving more than ordinary mention in a journal that aims to be a chronicle of educational progress in our country. For a long generation, now quite fifty years, these charming and thoroughly wholesome little volumes have been appearing, year by year, for the entertainment and instruction of thousands of children of all ages; including a great many people who have found the heart of their childhood renewed, under gray hairs, as they glanced over the homely adventures of Rollo, or the straightforward stories of Jonas, and saw the old world of the New England of half a century ago once more around them. In 1834, Jacob Abbott, a young minister of Roxbury, Mass., wrote the first simple story of the series which, under the title of the 'Rollo Books,' afterwards grew to the three dozen handsome juveniles now republished. Without striking features of any sort, with no glare of unusual brilliancy, and nothing sensational, they struck the keynote of a genuine American child's literature. Like his predecessor, Peter Parley (S. G. Goodrich), he dealt exclusively with American life as he found it in the country in the New England States. And this feature we regard one of the most valuable in these writings. They are to the country life of New England what the poetry of Crabbe was to the common rural life of his day. Were every other book sunk in the sea, it would be possible for the historian to reconstruct a complete picture of the common life of the New England of fifty years ago from this series of juveniles. In reading the history of the American Revolution in this series, we are struck with the author's ability to tell a plain story and bring out the points most interesting to the young in natural relief." — Journal of Education.

"We welcome, and we think the present juvenile generation will welcome, T. Y. Crowell & Co.'s republication of this series of juvenile classics. The 'Rollo' and the 'Lucy' and 'Jonas' Books are written with only the children within the writer's horizon, as the children were first in the writer's heart. Some years ago the New York Nation called for a reprint of the 'Rollo Books,' and placed them among the best, if it did not declare them to be absolutely the best of all modern juveniles." — Christian Union.

"After all, can any new books for children — do any — have quite the charm of these old favorites? Oh, there never were such books as these in their day; and there are some wise heads who maintain that there never have been their like since. The author's faculty for arresting attention by means of common things and turning it to instructive uses, amounts almost, if not quite, to genius." — Literary World.

"No recent publication is likely to meet a more cordial reception among young people than the reprint of Jacob Abbott's works just issued by Messrs. T. Y. Crowell & Co. Good juvenile literature is one of the most urgent demands of the time. Delightfully refreshing as they were to a generation now, in a sense, beyond them, they have not yet become stale to the unvitiated mind of youth. The boy or girl of to-day will devour them with the same eagerness, the same healthy and unfailling relish with which they were originally received by his parents. The American History is equally admirable in its own way, and boys and girls desiring a simple, lucid, interesting recital of American History will look in vain for a book better suited to their need." — N. Y. School Journal.

The illustrations for these volumes are deserving of especial mention, having been prepared at great expense, a large proportion of them engraved by Geo. T. Andrew, whose work on "The Cambridge Book of Poetry" adds so much to its value.

The paper, printing, and binding are also first-class in all respects, and no effort has been spared to make this series attractive and popular.

The price has also been fixed at a low rate, in order to insure the favor of the public ; and it is hoped that this line of Poets will prove adapted to the wants of those desiring attractive books at popular prices.

A most Reliable and Valuable Book of Reference.

A DICTIONARY
QUOTATIONS FROM THE POETS.

Based upon Bohn's Edition, with numerous additions from American authors.
Carefully revised and corrected, with Index of Authors and Chronological Data, and a Concordance Index
to Every Passage in the Volume.

INTRODUCTORY PREFACE BY R. H. STODDARD.

Crown 8vo, 768 pp., $2.50. Interleaved Edition, $3.50.

Especial care has been taken to insure accuracy of text, the copy having been compared with author's text before putting in type, and again verified by comparing the proof-sheets with the original text, so that each quotation has been verified not only by the compiler, but also by an expert employed for this purpose.

Extract from Introductory Preface.

"I have examined this Dictionary of Poetical Quotations carefully, and, bearing in mind the multitude of difficulties which must have beset the making of it, I can honestly say that, in my opinion, they have been triumphed over by the maker. This Dictionary of Poetical Quotations ought to be the best that has yet been compiled, partly because it is the latest, and partly because it covers more ground and embraces more poets than any other. I agree with Oldys in regard to the qualifications necessary in an editor of poetic anthologies, and that they are largely possessed by the reader-general for mankind who has digested whatever is most exquisite in our poets into this Dictionary of Poetical Quotations."

R. H. STODDARD.

The Century, NEW YORK, June 20, 1883.

From the Editor's Preface.

"The present work is the American version of the latest edition of Bohn's Dictionary of Poetical Quotations. It largely represents American authors, and embraces many additions from English writers. All the quotations have been carefully compared with the author's text, not one being included the accuracy of which has not been verified. Full references have been supplied in every instance.

"The quotations from Shakespeare's Plays have been verified by Charles Knight's text, and those from his Poems, by Mrs. Horace Howard Furness's Concordance to Shakespeare; those from the Old Dramatists by Routledge's edition; and those from other authors, by the best editions of their works.

"Subjects have been grouped, and full cross-references have been made.

"Every quotation has been consecutively numbered, and a Concordance Index added, giving the prominent words in each extract twice or more, so that every passage can be readily referred to.

"The places, and dates of birth and death are given, with the authors' names,

A Dictionary of Quotations from the Poets.

in an Index showing the quotations from each writer. In long poems the lines have been counted, and the extracts verified by a reference to the exact passage.

"It is believed that by these methods, and by the great care observed in proof-reading, this volume will approve itself to the tastes and necessities of the ordinary reader, as well as to all literary and studious persons, containing, as it does, so choice a representation of English verse."

Notices of the Press.

"This handsome volume of 770 pages seems to include about everything necessary for the use of the student or professional reader in the matter of poetical quotation. Thousands of young people, during the closing years of their school-life, need such a dictionary of the poets as this, with carefully-selected passages under appropriate headings, a copious index of quotations, and such an invaluable index of authors as the book contains. The present work appears to us to meet the requirements of the great mass of readers of poetry better than any that has fallen under our observation. — Journal of Education.

"The system of indexing by numbering the passages, and referring to them by numbers in the Index of Authors and General Index is a very thorough piece of work." — Good Literature.

"The highest ambition of the compiler in this kind of work should be accuracy, good judgment in the selection of quotations, and their arrangement, on all these points the compilation stands strong, and cannot fail to prove highly useful." — Independent.

"Not only very comprehensive, but is also admirably indexed and arranged." — Christian Union.

"Those who have need of poetical quotations will find nothing more completely adapted to their desires than this book. We know of none as good — Bohn's edition has no index." — Christian Intelligencer.

"The more competent the critic who examines it the heartier will be his favorable verdict." — Congregationalist.

"The commendation of R. H. Stoddard, which is embodied as a preface, is a sufficient testimonial to its merits." — Boston Pilot.

"For variety, fullness of illustration of each topic, scope, and value of the quotations, the work is superior to any other with which I am acquainted. It should find a place in every library." — Cyrus Northrop, Prof. of Rhetoric and English Literature in Yale College.

"It has been compiled with excellent judgment and evidently with great care, and is printed and indexed in a way to satisfy the most exacting. It is a useful and attractive book." — Prof. Edwin H. Griffin, Williams College, Mass.

"It seems to be unusually full and accurate. I tested it on various critical passages, and found it always correct." — Prof. Wm. Hand Browne, Johns Hopkins University.

"A work which will add materially to our stock of useful works of reference." — Wm. E. Foster, Librarian Prov. Public Library.

"A vast improvement upon Bohn's original compendium." — E. C. Stedman.

"Highly creditable to the compiler's taste, industry, and accuracy." — John G. Whittier.

"Contains a vast amount of quotable verse, and appears to be faithfully indexed." — Oliver Wendell Holmes.

"An exceptionally thorough and conscientious work, showing a catholicity of taste that adds greatly to its value. A careful search through the most familiar passages has revealed no errors, a fact that is extremely creditable." — Thos. S. Collier.

"The volume well deserves a place in every working library, and will be found useful by all readers and students." — Boston Journal.

"A treasure-house of high thoughts, elegantly expressed. It will be found exceedingly useful for reference." — Portland Transcript.

In a work of this character great literary taste and discrimination are required to successfully winnow the chaff from the wheat. For this task, Miss Bates has proved herself peculiarly fitted, and has given much time and labor to gather in one volume such selections as are worthy of a place among the choicest poetry of the English language.

The collection is especially full and complete in extracts from living American authors, many of whom are represented in no other compilation; while care has been taken to include those also without which a work of this description would be incomplete.

Especial care has also been taken to have the text accurate and free from typographical errors, the copy having been carefully revised by the compiler and competent proof-readers. The indexes, three in number, are minute and complete in every respect, and leave nothing to be desired in this particular. The arrangement of the poems is on a plan wholly different from that commonly pursued; the authors being placed alphabetically, and all the extracts from each author will be found in one section instead of being scattered through the book under different headings. It is believed this feature will prove a great convenience to those who may use the work for reference.

The illustrations have been designed by some of the best and most eminent artists in this country, expressly for this book, and are superior to anything ever before attempted in any similar work. The engraver has faithfully reproduced the drawings to the entire satisfaction of the artists, and the value of the book is greatly enhanced by these beautiful specimens of American art.

The whole work has been faithfully performed, both in the matter of the preparation of the material and of mechanical execution, including the presswork and the binding, all of which combine to give it that standard character which it has been the aim of the publishers to produce.
