A Great part of the poetical works of Mr. SHENSTONE, particularly his Elegies and Pastorals, are (as he himself expresses it) “The exact transcripts of the situation of his own mind;” and abound in frequent allusions to his own place, the beautiful scene of his retirement from the world. Exclusively therefore of our natural curiosity to be acquainted with the history of an author, whose works we peruse with pleasure, some short account of Mr. SHENSTONE’S personal character, and situation in life, may not only be agreeable, but absolutely necessary, to the reader; as it is impossible he should enter into the true spirit of his writings, if he is entirely ignorant of those circumstances of his life, which sometimes so greatly influenced his reflections.

I could wish however that this task had been allotted to some person capable of performing it in that masterly manner which the subject so well

well deserves. To confess the truth, it was chiefly to prevent his remains from falling into the hands of any one still less qualified to do him justice, that I have unwillingly ventured to undertake the publication of them myself.

Mr. SHENSTONE was the eldest son of a plain uneducated country gentleman in SHROPSHIRE, who farmed his own estate. The father, sensible of his son's extraordinary capacity, resolved to give him a learned education, and sent him a commoner to PEMBROKE College in OXFORD, designing him for the church : but tho' he had the most awful notions of the wisdom, power, and goodness of God, he never could be persuaded to enter into orders. In his private opinions he adhered to no particular sect, and hated all religious disputes. But whatever were his own sentiments, he always shewed great tenderness to those, who differed from him. Tenderness, indeed, in every sense of the word, was his peculiar characteristic ; his friends, his domestics, his poor neighbours, all daily experienced his benevolent turn of mind. Indeed, this virtue in him was often carried to such excess, that it sometimes bordered upon weak-weakness : yet if he was convinced that any of those ranked amongst the number of his friends, had treated him ungenerously, he was not easily reconciled. He used a maxim, however, on such occasions, which is worthy of being observed and imitated ; “ I never (said he) will be a revengeful enemy ; but I cannot, it is not in my nature, to be half a friend.” He was in his temper quite unsuspecting ; but if suspicion was once awakened in him, it was not laid asleep again without difficulty.

He was no œconomist ; the generosity of his temper prevented him from paying a proper regard to the use of money : he exceeded therefore the bounds of his paternal fortune, which before he died was considerably encumbered. But when one recollects the perfect paradise he had raised around him, the hospitality with which he lived, his great indulgence to his servants, his charities to the indigent, and all done with an estate not more than three hundred pounds a year, one should rather be led to wonder that he left any thing behind him, than to blame his want of œconomy. He left however more than sufficient to pay all his debts ; and by his will appropriated his whole estate for that purpose.

A 2 will

It was perhaps from some considerations on the narrowness of his fortune, that he forbore to marry; for he was no enemy to wedlock, had a high opinion of many among the fair sex, was fond of their society, and no stranger to the tenderest impressions. One, which he received in his youth, was with difficulty surmounted. The lady was the subject of that sweet pastoral, in four parts, which has been so universally admired; and which, one would have thought, must have subdued the loftiest heart, and softened the most obdurate.

His person, as to height, was above the middle stature, but largely and rather inelegantly formed: his face seemed plain till you conversed with him, and then it grew very pleasing. In his dress he was negligent, even to a fault; though when young, at the university, he was accounted a BEAU. He wore his own hair, which was quite grey very early, in a particular manner; not from any affectation of singularity, but from a maxim he had laid down, that without too slavish a regard to fashion, every one should dress in a manner most suitable to his own person and figure. In short, his faults were only little blemishes, thrown in by nature, as it were on purpose to prevent him from rising too much above that level of imperfection allotted to humanity.

His character as a writer will be distinguished by simplicity with elegance, and genius with correctness. He had a sublimity equal to the highest attempts; yet from the indolence of his temper, he chose rather to amuse himself in culling flowers at the foot of the mount, than to take the trouble of climbing the more arduous steeps of PARNASSUS. But whenever he was disposed to rise, his steps, tho' natural, were noble, and always well supported. In the tenderness of elegiac poetry he hath not been excelled; in the simplicity of pastoral, one may venture to say he had very few equals. Of great sensibility himself, he never failed to engage the hearts of his readers: and amidst the nicest attention to the harmony of his numbers, he always took care to express with propriety the sentiments of an elegant mind. In all his writings, his greatest difficulty was to please himself. I remember a passage in one of his letters, where, speaking of his love songs, he says—"Some were written on occasions a good deal imaginary, others not so; and the reason there are so many is, that I wanted to write ONE good song, and could never please myself." It was this diffidence which occasioned him to throw aside many of his pieces before he had bestowed upon them his last touches. I have suppressed several on this account; and if among those which I have selected, there should be discovered some little want of his finishing polish, I hope it will be attributed to this cause, and of course be excused: yet I flatter myself there will always appear something well worthy of having been preserved. And though I was afraid of inserting what might injure the character of my friend, yet as the sketches of a great master are always valuable, I was unwilling the public should lose any thing material of so accomplished a writer. In this dilemma it will easily be conceived that the task I had to perform would become somewhat difficult. How I have acquitted myself, the public must judge. Nothing, however, except what he had already ready published, has been admitted without the advice of his most judicious friends, nothing altered, without their particular concurrence. It is impossible to please every one; but 'tis hoped that no reader will be so unreasonable, as to imagine that the author wrote solely for his amusement: his talents were various; and though it may perhaps be allowed that his excellence chiefly appeared in subjects of tenderness and simplicity, yet he frequently condescended to trifle with those of humour and drollery: these, indeed, he himself in some measure degraded by the title which he gave them of LEVITIES: but had they been entirely rejected, the public would have been deprived of some JEUX D'ESPRITS, excellent in their kind, and Mr. SHENSTONE's character as a writer would have been but imperfectly exhibited.

But the talents of Mr. SHENSTONE were not confined merely to poetry; his character, as a man of clear judgment, and deep penetration, will best appear from his prose works. It is there we must search for the acuteness of his understanding, and his profound knowledge of the human heart. It is to be lamented indeed, that some things here are unfinished, and can be regarded only as fragments : many are left as single thoughts, but which, like the sparks of diamonds, shew the richness of the mine to which they belong ; or like the foot of a HERCULES, discover the uncommon strength, and extraordinary dimensions of that hero. I have no apprehension of incurring blame from any one, for preserving these valuable remains : they will discover to every reader, the author's sentiments on several important subjects. And there can be very few, to whom they will not impart many thoughts, which they would never perhaps have been able to draw from the source of their own reflections.

But I believe little need be said to recommend the writings of this gentleman to public attention. His character is already sufficiently established. And if he be not injured by the inability of his editor, there is no doubt but he will ever maintain an eminent station among the best of our English writers.

*I*T is observable, that discourses prefixed to poetry are contrived very frequently to inculcate such tenets as may exhibit the performance to the greatest advantage. The fabric is very commonly raised in the first place, and the measures, by which we are to judge of its merit, are afterwards adjusted.

There have been few rules given us by the critics concerning the structure of elegiac poetry; and far

*be it from the author of the following trifles, to dignify his own opinions with that denomination. He would only intimate the great variety of subjects, and the different * styles in which the writers of elegy have hitherto indulged themselves, and endeavour to shield the following ones by the latitude of their example.*

If we consider the etymology of the † word, the epithet which ‡ HORACE gives it, or the confession which § OVID makes concerning it, I think we may conclude thus much however; that elegy, in its true and genuine acceptation, includes a tender and querulous idea: that it looks upon this as its peculiar characteristic, and so long as this is thoroughly sustained, admits of a variety of subjects; which by its manner of treating them, it renders its own. It throws its melancholy stole over pretty different objects; which, like the dresses at a funeral procession, gives them all a kind of solemn and uniform appearance.

It is probable that elegies were written at first upon the death of intimate friends and near relations;

celebrated beauties, or favourite mistresses; beneficent governors and illustrious men: one may add perhaps, of all these, who are placed by VIRGIL in the laurel-grove of his Elysium, (Vide HURD's Dissertation on HORACE's Epistle)

Quique fui memores alios fecere merendo.

After these subjects were sufficiently exhausted, and the severity of fate displayed in the most affecting instances, the poets sought occasion to vary their complaints; and the next tender species of sorrow that presented itself, was the grief of absent or neglected lovers. And this indulgence might be indeed allowed them; but with this they were not contented. They had obtained a small corner in the province of love, and they took advantage, from thence, to over-run the whole territory. They sung its spoils, triumphs, ovations, and rejoicings, as well as the captivity and exequies that attended it. They gave the name of elegy to their pleasantries as well as lamentations; 'till at last, through their abundant fondness for the myrtle, they forgot that the cypress was their peculiar garland.*

In this it is probable they deviated from the original design of elegy; and it should seem, that any kind of subjects, treated in such a manner as to diffuse a pleasing melancholy, might far better deserve the name, than the facetious mirth and libertine festivity of the successful votaries of love.

*But not to dwell too long upon an opinion which may seem perhaps introduced to favour the following performance, it may not be improper to examine into the use and end of elegy. The most important end of all poetry is to encourage virtue. Epic and tragedy chiefly recommend the public virtues; elegy is of a species which illustrates and endears the private. There is a truly virtuous pleasure connected with many pensive contemplations, which it is the province and excellency of elegy to enforce. This, by presenting suitable ideas, has discovered sweets in melancholy which we could not find in mirth; and has led us with success to the dusty urn, when we could draw no pleasure from the sparkling bowl; as pastoral conveys an idea of simplicity and innocence, it is in particular the task and merit of elegy to shew the innocence and simplicity of rural life to advantage; and that, in a way distinct from pastoral, as much as the plain but judicious landlord may be imagined to surpass his tenant both in dignity and understanding. It should also tend to elevate the more tranquil virtues of humility, disinterestedness, simplicity, and innocence: but then there is a degree of elegance and refinement, no way inconsistent with these rural virtues; and that raises elegy above that merum rus, that unpolished rusticity, which has given our pastoral writers their highest reputation.

Wealth and splendor will never want their proper weight: the danger is, lest they should too much preponderate. A kind of poetry therefore which throws its chief influence into the other scale, that magnifies the sweets of liberty and independence, that endears the honest delights of love and friendship, that celebrates the glory of a good name after death, that ridicules the futile arrogance of birth, that recommends the innocent amusement of letters, and insensibly prepares the mind for that humanity it inculcates, such a kind of poetry may chance to please; and if it please, should seem to be of service.

As to the style of elegy, it may be well enough determined from what has gone before. It should imitate the voice and language of grief; or if a metaphor of dress be more agreeable, it should be simple and diffuse, and flowing as a mourner's veil. A versification therefore is desirable, which, by indulging a free and unconstrained expression, may admit of that simplicity which elegy requires.

Heroic metre, with alternate rhyme, seems well enough adapted to this species of poetry; and, however exceptionable upon other occasions, its inconveniences appear to lose their weight in shorter elegies;

*and its advantages seem to acquire an additional importance. The world has an admirable example of its beauty in a collection of elegies * not long since published; the product of a gentleman of the most exact taste, and whose untimely death merits all the tears that elegy can shed.*

It is not impossible that some may think this metre too lax and prosaic: others, that even a more dissolute variety of numbers may have superior advantages. And, in favour of these last, might be produced the example of MILTON in his LYCIDAS, together with one or two recent and beautiful imitations of his versification in that monody. But this kind of argument, I am apt to think, must prove too much; since the writers I have in view seem capable enough of recommending any metre they shall chuse; though it must be owned also, that the choice they make of any, is at the same time the strongest presumption in its favour.

Perhaps it may be no great difficulty to compromise the dispute. There is no one kind of metre that is distinguished by rhimes, but is liable to some objection or other. Heroic verse, where every second line is terminated by a rhyme, (with which the judgment requires that the sense should in some measure also terminate) is apt to render the expression either scanty or

* N. B. This preface was written near twenty years ago.

constrained. And this is sometimes observable in the writings of a poet lately deceased; though I believe no one ever threw so much sense together with so much ease into a couplet as Mr. POPE. But as an air of constraint too often accompanies this metre, it seems by no means proper for a writer of elegy.

The previous rhyme in MILTON'S LYCIDAS is very frequently placed at such a distance from the following, that it is often dropt by the memory (much better employed in attending to the sentiment) before it be brought to join its partner: and this seems to be the greatest objection to that kind of versification. But then the peculiar ease and variety it admits of, are no doubt sufficient to overballance the objection, and to give it the preference to any other, in an elegy of length.

The chief exception to which stanza of all kinds is liable, is, that it breaks the sense too regularly, when it is continued through a long poem. And this may be perhaps the fault of Mr. WALLER'S excellent panegyric. But if this fault be less discernible in smaller compositions, as I suppose it is, I flatter myself, that the advantages I have before mentioned resulting from alternate rhyme (with which stanza is, I think, connected) may, at least in shorter elegies, be allowed to out-weigh its imperfections.

I shall

I shall say but little of the different kinds of elegy. The melancholy of a lover is different, no doubt, from what we feel on other mixed occasions. The mind in which love and grief at once predominate, is softened to an excess. Love-elegy therefore is more negligent of order and design, and, being addressed chiefly to the ladies, requires little more than tenderness and perspicuity. Elegies, that are formed upon promiscuous incidents, and addressed to the world in general, inculcate some sort of moral, and admit a different degree of reasoning, thought, and order.

*The author of the following elegies entered on his subjects occasionally, as particular incidents in life suggested, or dispositions of mind recommended them to his choice. If he describes a rural landscape, or unfolds the train of sentiments it inspired, he fairly drew his picture from the spot; and felt very sensibly the affection he communicates. If he speaks of his humble shed, his flocks and his fleeces, he does not counterfeit the scene; who having (whether through choice or necessity, is not material) retired betimes to country-solitudes, and sought his happiness in rural employments, has a right to consider himself as a real shepherd. The flocks, the meadows, and the grottos, are his own, and the embellishment of his farm his sole amusement. As the sentiments therefore were inspired by nature, and that in the earlier part of his life, he hopes they will retain a natural appearance; diffusing, at least some part of that amusement, which he freely acknowledges he received from the composition of them.

There will appear perhaps a real inconsistency in the moral tenour of the several elegies; and the subsequent ones may sometimes seem a recantation of the preceding. The reader will scarcely impute this to oversight; but will allow, that men's opinions as well as tempers vary; that neither public nor private, active nor speculative life, are unexceptionably happy, and consequently that any change of opinion concerning them may afford an additional beauty to poetry, as it gives us a more striking representation of life.

If the author has hazarded, throughout, the use of English or modern allusions, he hopes it will not be imputed to an entire ignorance, or to the least disesteem of the ancient learning. He has kept the ancient plan and method in his eye, though he builds his edifice with the materials of his own nation. In other words, through a fondness for his native country, he has made use of the flowers it produced, though, in order to exhibit them to the greater advantage, he has endeavoured to weave his garland by the best model he could find: with what success, beyond his own amusement, must be left to judges less partial to him than either his acquaintance or his friends.—If any of those should be so candid, as to approve the variety of subjects he has chosen, and the tendernefs of sentiment he has endeavoured to impress, he begs the metre also may not be too suddenly condemned. The public ear, habituated of late to a quicker measure, may perhaps consider this as heavy and languid; but an objection of that kind may gradually lose its force, if this measure should be allowed to suit the nature of elegy.

If it should happen to be considered as an objection with others, that there is too much of a moral cast diffused through the whole; it is replied, that he endeavoured to animate the poetry so far as not to render this objection too obvious; or to risque excluding the fashionable reader: at the same time never deviating from a fixed principle, that poetry without morality is but the blossom of a fruit-tree. Poetry is indeed like that species of plants, which may bear at once both fruits and blossoms, and the tree is by no means in perfection without the former, however it may be embellished by the flowers which surround it.

E L E G Y I.

He arrives at his retirement in the country, and takes occasion to expatiate in praise of simplicity. To a friend.

FOR rural virtues, and for native skies,
I bade AUGUSTA'S venal sons farewell ;
Now, mid the trees, I see my smoke arise ;
Now hear the fountains bubbling round my cell.

O may that genius, which secures my rest,
Preserve this villa for a friend that's dear !
Ne'er may my vintage glad the fordid breast !
Ne'er tinge the lip that dares be un sincere !

Far from these paths, ye faithless friends, depart !
Fly my plain board, abhor my hostile name !
Hence ! the faint verse that flows not from the heart,
But mourns in labour'd strains, the price of fame !

O lov'd simplicity! be thine the prize!
 Affiduous art correct her page in vain!
 His be the palm who, guiltless of disguise,
 Contemns the pow'r, the dull resource to feign!

Still may the mourner, lavish of his tears
 For lucre's venal meed, invite my scorn!
 Still may the bard dissembling doubts and fears,
 For praise, for flatt'ry fighting, sigh forlorn!

Soft as the line of love-sick HAMMOND flows,
 'Twas his fond heart effus'd the melting theme;
 Ah! never could AONIA's hill disclose
 So fair a fountain, or so lov'd a stream.

Ye loveless bards! intent with artful pains
 To form a sigh, or to contrive a tear!
 Forgo your Pindus, and on —— plains
 Survey CAMILLA's charms, and grow sincere.

But thou, my friend! while in thy youthful soul
 Love's gentle tyrant seats his awful throne,
 Write from thy bosom—let not art controul
 The ready pen, that makes his edicts known.

Pleasing when youth is long expir'd, to trace
 The forms our pencil, or our pen design'd!
 "Such was our youthful air and shape and face!
 "Such the soft image of our youthful mind!

Soft

Soft whilst we sleep beneath the rural bow'rs,
The loves and graces steal unseen away ;
And where the turf diffus'd its pomp of flow'rs,
We wake to wint'ry scenes of chill decay !

Curse the sad fortune that detains thy fair ;
Praise the soft hours that gave thee to her arms ;
Paint thy proud scorn of ev'ry vulgar care,
When hope exalts thee, or when doubt alarms.

Where with CENONE thou hast worn the day,
Near fount or stream, in meditation, rove ;
If in the grove CENONE lov'd to stray,
The faithful muse shall meet thee in the grove.

E L E G Y II.

On posthumous reputation. To a friend.

O GRIEF of griefs! that envy's frantic ire
Should rob the living virtue of its praise!
O foolish muses! that with zeal aspire
To deck the cold insensate shrine with bays!

When the free spirit quits her humble frame,
To tread the skies with radiant garlands crown'd;
Say, will she hear the distant voice of fame?
Or hearing, fancy sweetness in the sound?

Perhaps ev'n genius pours a slighted lay;
Perhaps ev'n friendship sheds a fruitless tear;
Ev'n LYTTTELTON but vainly trims the bay,
And fondly graces HAMMOND's mournful bier.

Tho' weeping virgins haunt his favour'd urn,
Renew their chaplets, and repeat their sighs;
Tho', near his tomb, Sabæan odours burn,
The loit'ring fragrance will it reach the skies?

No, shou'd his DELIA votive wreaths prepare,
DELIA might place the votive wreaths in vain:
Yet the dear hope of DELIA's future care
Once crown'd his pleasures, and dispell'd his pain.
Yes

Yes—the fair prospect of surviving praise
 Can ev'ry sense of present joys excel :
 For this, great HADRIAN chose laborious days ;
 Thro' this, expiring, bade a gay farewell.

Shall then our youths, who fame's bright fabric raise,
 To life's precarious date confine their care ?
 O teach them you, to spread the sacred base,
 To plan a work, thro' latest ages fair !

Is it small transport, as with curious eye
 You trace the story of each Attic sage,
 To think your blooming praise shall time defy ?
 Shall waft like odours thro' the pleasing page ?

To mark the day, when, thro' the bulky tome,
 Around your name the varying style refines ?
 And readers call their lost attention home,
 Led by that index where true genius shines ?

Ah let not BRITONS doubt their social aim,
 Whose ardent bosoms catch this ancient fire !
 old interest melts before the vivid flame,
 And patriot ardours, but with life, expire !

E L E G Y III.

On the untimely death of a certain learned acquaintance.

IF proud PYGMALION quit his cumbrous frame,
 Funereal pomp the scanty tear supplies ;
 Whilst heralds loud with venal voice proclaim,
 Lo ! here the brave and the puissant lies.

When humbler ALCON leaves his drooping friends,
 Pageant nor plume distinguish ALCON'S bier ;
 The faithful muse with votive song attends,
 And blots the mournful numbers with a tear.

He little knew the sly penurious art ;
 That odious art which fortune's fav'rites know ;
 Form'd to bestow, he felt the warmest heart,
 But envious fate forbade him to bestow.

He little knew to ward the secret wound ;
 He little knew that mortals cou'd ensnare ;
 Virtue he knew ; the noblest joy he found,
 To sing her glories, and to paint her fair !

Ill was he skill'd to guide his wand'ring sheep ;
 And unforeseen disaster thin'd his fold ;
 Yet, at another's loss, the swain would weep ;
 And, for his friend, his very crook were fold.

Ye

Ye fons of wealth ! protect the muse's train ;
 From winds protect them, and with food supply ;
 Ah ! helpless they, to ward the threaten'd pain !
 The meagre famine, and the wint'ry sky !

He lov'd a nymph : amidst his slender store,
 He dar'd to love ; and CYNTHIA was his theme ;
 He breath'd his plaints along the rocky shore,
 They only echo'd o'er the winding stream.

His nymph was fair ; the sweetest bud that blows,
 Revives less lovely from the recent show'r ;
 So PHILOMEL enamour'd eyes the rose ;
 Sweet bird ! enamour'd of the sweetest flow'r !

He lov'd the muse ; she taught him to complain ;
 He saw his tim'rous loves on her depend ;
 He lov'd the muse, altho' she taught in vain ;
 He lov'd the muse, for she was virtue's friend.

She guides the foot that treads on Parian floors ;
 She wins the ear when formal pleas are vain ;
 She tempts patricians from the fatal doors
 Of vice's brothel, forth to virtue's fane.

He wish'd for wealth, for much he wish'd to give ;
 He griev'd that virtue might not wealth obtain ;
 Piteous of woes, and hopeless to relieve,
 The pensive prospect sadden'd all his strain.

I saw him faint ! I saw him sink to rest !
Like one ordain'd to swell the vulgar throng ;
As tho' the virtues had not warm'd his breast,
As tho' the muses not inspir'd his tongue.

I saw his bier ignobly cross the plain ;
Saw peasant hands the pious rite supply :
The generous rustics mourn'd the friendly swain,
But pow'r and wealth's unvarying cheek was dry !

Such ALCON fell ; in meagre want forlorn !
Where were ye then ye powerful patrons, where ?
Wou'd ye the purple shou'd your limbs adorn,
Go wash the conscious blemish with a tear.

OPHELIA'S urn. To Mr. G——.

THRO' the dim veil of ev'ning's dusky shade,
Near some lone fane, or yew's funereal green,
What dreary forms has magic fear survey'd!
What shrouded spectres superstition seen!

But you secure shall pour your sad complaint,
Nor dread the meagre phantom's wan array;
What none but fear's officious hand can paint,
What none, but superstition's eye, survey.

The glim'ring twilight and the doubtful dawn
Shall see your step to these sad scenes return:
Constant, as crystal dews impearl the lawn,
Shall STREPHON'S tear bedew OPHELIA'S urn!

Sure nought unhallow'd shall presume to stray
Where sleep the reliques of that virtuous maid:
Nor aught unlovely bend its devious way,
Where soft OPHELIA'S dear remains are laid.

Haply thy muse, as with unceasing sighs
She keeps late vigils on her urn reclin'd,
May see light groups of pleasing visions rise;
And phantoms glide, but of celestial kind.

Then fame, her clarion pendent at her side,
 Shall seek forgiveness of OPHELIA'S shade ;
 “ Why has such worth, without distinction, dy'd,
 Why, like the desert's lilly, bloom'd to fade ?”

Then young simplicity, averse to feign,
 Shall unmolested breathe her softest sigh :
 And candour with unwonted warmth complain,
 And innocence indulge a wailful cry.

Then elegance with coy judicious hand,
 Shall cull fresh flow'rets for OPHELIA'S tomb :
 And beauty chide the fates' severe command,
 That shew'd the frailty of so fair a bloom !

And fancy then with wild ungovern'd woe,
 Shall her lov'd pupil's native taste explain :
 For mournful fable all her hues forego,
 And ask sweet solace of the muse in vain !

Ah gentle forms expect no fond relief ;
 Too much the sacred nine their loss deplore :
 Well may ye grieve, nor find an end of grief—
 Your best, your brightest fav'rite is no more,

E L E G Y V.

He compares the turbulence of love with the tranquillity of friendship. To MELISSA his friend.

FROM love, from angry love's inclement reign
I pass awhile to friendship's equal skies ;
Thou, gen'rous maid, reliev'ft my partial pain,
And cheer'ft the victim of another's eyes.

'Tis thou, MELISSA, thou deserv'ft my care :
How can my will and reason disagree ?
How can my passion live beneath despair !
How can my bosom sigh for aught but thee ?

Ah dear MELISSA ! pleas'd with thee to rove,
My soul has yet surviv'd its dreariest time ;
Ill can I bear the various clime of love !
Love is a pleasing, but a various clime !

So smiles immortal MARO's fav'rite shore,
PARTHENOPE, with ev'ry verdure crown'd !
When strait VESUVIO's horrid cauldrons roar,
And the dry vapour blasts the regions round.

Oh blisful regions ! oh unrival'd plains !
When MARO to these fragrant haunts retir'd !
Oh fatal realms ! and oh accurst domains !
When PLINY, 'mid sulphureous clouds, expir'd !

So smiles the surface of the treacherous main,
As o'er its waves the peaceful halcyons play ;
When soon rude winds their wonted rule regain,
And sky and ocean mingle in the fray.

But let or air contend, or ocean rave ;
Ev'n hope subside amid the billows tost ;
Hope, still emergent, still contemns the wave,
And not a feature's wonted smile is lost.

E L E G Y VI.

To a lady on the language of birds.

COME then, DIONE, let us range the grove,
 The science of the feather'd choirs explore ;
 Hear linnets argue, larks descant of love,
 And blame the gloom of solitude no more.

My doubt subsides—'tis no Italian song,
 Nor senseless ditty, cheers the vernal tree :
 Ah! who, that hears DIONE's tuneful tongue,
 Shall doubt that music may with sense agree ?

And come, my muse ! that lov'st the silvan shade ;
 Evolve the mazes, and the mist dispel :
 Translate the song ; convince my doubting maid,
 No solemn dervise can explain so well.—

Pensive beneath the twilight shades I fate,
 The slave of hopeless vows, and cold disdain !
 When PHILOMEL address'd his mournful mate,
 And thus I constru'd the mellifluent strain.

“ Sing on, my bird—the liquid notes prolong,
 At ev'ry note a lover sheds his tear ;
 Sing on, my bird—'tis DAMON hears thy song ;
 Nor doubt to gain applause, when lovers hear.

He

He the sad source of our complaining knows ;
 A foe to TEREUS, and to lawless love !
 He mourns the story of our ancient woes ;
 Ah ! cou'd our music his complaints remove !

Yon' plains are govern'd by a peerless maid ;
 And see, pale CYNTHIA mounts the vaulted sky,
 A train of lovers court the checquer'd shade ;
 Sing on, my bird, and hear thy mate's reply.

Ere while no shepherd to these woods retir'd ;
 No lover blest the glow-worm's pallid ray ;
 But ill-star'd birds, that list'ning not admir'd,
 Or list'ning envy'd our superior lay.

Chear'd by the sun, the vassals of his pow'r,
 Let such by day unite their jarring strains !
 But let us chuse the calm, the silent hour,
 Nor want fit audience while DIONE reigns."

E L E G Y VII.

He describes his vision to an acquaintance.

Cætera per terras omnes animalia, &c. VIRG.

ON distant heaths, beneath autumnal skies,
Pensive I saw the circling shades descend;
Weary and faint I heard the storm arise,
While the sun vanish'd like a faithless friend.

No kind companion led my steps aright;
No friendly planet lent its glim'ring ray;
Ev'n the lone cot refus'd its wonted light,
Where toil in peaceful slumber clos'd the day.

Then the dull bell had giv'n a pleasing sound;
The village cur 'twere transport then to hear;
In dreadful silence all was hush'd around,
While the rude storm alone distress'd mine ear.

As led by ORWELL's winding banks I stray'd,
Where tow'ring WOLSEY breath'd his native air;
A sudden lustre chas'd the fitting shade,
The founding winds were hush'd, and all was fair.

Instant a grateful form appear'd confess'd;
White were his locks with awful scarlet crown'd,
And livelier far than Tyrian seem'd his vest,
That with the glowing purple ting'd the ground.

„ Stranger, he said, amid this pealing rain,
Benighted, lonesome, whither wou'dst thou stray ?
Does wealth or pow'r thy weary step constrain ?
Reveal thy wish, and let me point the way.

For know I trod the trophy'd paths of pow'r ;
Felt ev'ry joy that fair ambition brings ;
And left the lonely roof of yonder bow'r,
To stand beneath the canopies of kings.

I bade low hinds the tow'ring ardour share ;
Nor meanly rose, to bless myself alone :
I snatch'd the shepherd from his fleecy care,
And bade his wholesome dictate guard the throne.

Low at my feet the suppliant peer I saw ;
I saw proud empires my decision wait ;
My will was duty, and my word was law,
My smile was transport, and my frown was fate.”

Ah me ! said I, nor pow'r I seek, nor gain ;
Nor urg'd by hope of fame these toils endure ;
A simple youth, that feels a lover's pain,
And, from his friend's condolance, hopes a cure.

He, the dear youth, to whose abodes I roam,
Nor can mine honours, nor my fields extend ;
Yet for his sake I leave my distant home,
Which oaks embosom, and which hills defend.

Beneath

Beneath that home I scorn the wintry wind ;
 The spring, to shade me, robes her fairest tree ;
 And if a friend my grass-grown threshold find,
 O how my lonely cot rebounds with glee !

Yet, tho' averse to gold in heaps amassed,
 I wish to bless, I languish to bestow ;
 And tho' no friend to fame's obstreperous blast,
 Still, to her dulcet murmurs not a foe.

Too proud with servile tone to deign address ;
 Too mean to think that honours are my due,
 Yet shou'd some patron yield my stores to bless,
 I sure shou'd deem my boundless thanks were few.

But tell me, thou ! that, like a meteor's fire,
 Shot'ft blazing forth ; disdain'd dull degrees ;
 Shou'd I to wealth, to fame, to pow'r aspire,
 Must I not pass more rugged paths than these ?

Must I not groan beneath a guilty load,
 Praise him I scorn, and him I love betray ?
 Does not felonious envy bar the road ?
 Or falsehood's treach'rous foot beset the way ?

Say shou'd I pass thro' favour's crowded gate,
 Must not fair truth inglorious wait behind ?
 Whilst I approach the glitt'ring scenes of state,
 My best companion no admittance find ?

Nurs'd

Nurs'd in the shades by freedom's lenient care,
Shall I the rigid sway of fortune own?
Taught by the voice of pious truth, prepare
To spurn an altar, and adore a throne?

And when proud fortune's ebbing tide recedes,
And when it leaves me no unshaken friend,
Shall I not weep that e'er I left the meads,
Which oaks embosom, and which hills defend?

Oh! if these ills the price of pow'r advance,
Check not my speed where social joys invite!
The troubled vision cast a mournful glance,
And fighting vanish'd in the shades of night.

*He describes his early love of poetry, and its consequences
To Mr. G——. * 1745.*

AH me! what envious magic thins my fold?
What mutter'd spell retards their late increase?
Such lefs'ning fleeces must the fwain behold,
That e'er with Doric pipe essays to please.

I saw my friends in ev'ning circles meet;
I took my vocal reed, and tun'd my lay;
I heard them say my vocal reed was sweet;
Ah fool! to credit what I heard them say!

Ill-fated bard! that seeks his skill to show,
Then courts the judgment of a friendly ear!
Not the poor veteran, that permits his foe
To guide his doubtful step, has more to fear.

Nor cou'd my G—— mistake the critic's laws,
Till pious friendship mark'd the pleasing way.
Welcome such error! ever blest the cause!
Ev'n tho' it led me boundless leagues astray!

• N. B. Written after the death of Mr. POPE.

Couldst

Couldst thou reprove me, when I nurs'd the flame
 On list'ning CHERWELL's osier banks reclin'd ?
 While foe to fortune, uneduc'd by fame,
 I footh'd the bias of a careless mind.

Youth's gentle kindred, health and love were met ;
 What tho' in ALMA's guardian arms I play'd ?
 How shall the muse those vacant hours forget ?
 Or deem that blifs by solid cares repaid ?

Thou know'st how transport thrills the tender breast,
 Where love and fancy fix their op'ning reign ;
 How nature shines in livelier colours drest,
 To blefs their union, and to grace their train.

So first when PHOEBUS met the Cyprian queen,
 And favour'd RHODES beheld their passion crown'd,
 Unusual flow'rs enrich'd the painted green ;
 And swift spontaneous roses blush'd around.

Now sadly lorn, from TWITNAM's widow'd bow'r,
 The drooping muses take their casual way ;
 And where they stop, a flood of tears they pour ;
 And where they weep, no more the fields are gay]

Where is the dappled pink, the sprightly rose ?
 The cowslip's golden cup no more I see :
 Dark and discolour'd ev'ry flow'r that blows,
 To form the garland, Elegy ! for thee !—

Enough

Enough of tears has wept the virtuous dead ;
 Ah might we now the pious rage controul !
 Hush'd be my grief ere ev'ry smile be fled,
 Ere the deep swelling sigh subvert the soul !

If near some trophy spring a stripling bay,
 Pleas'd we behold the graceful umbrage rise ;
 But soon too deep it works its baneful way,
 And, low on earth, the prostrate * ruin lies.

* Alludes to what is reported of the bay-tree, that if it is planted too near the walls of an edifice, its roots will work their way underneath, till they destroy the foundation.

E L E G Y IX.

He describes his disinterestedness to a friend.

I NE'ER must tinge my lip with Celtic wines ;
 The pomp of INDIA must I ne'er display ;
 Nor boast the produce of Peruvian mines,
 Nor, with Italian founds, deceive the day.

Down yonder brook my crystal bev'rage flows ;
 My grateful sheep their annual fleeces bring ;
 Fair in my garden buds the damask rose,
 And, from my grove, I hear the throstle sing.

My fellow swains ! avert your dazled eyes ;
 In vain allur'd by glitt'ring spoils they rove ;
 The fates ne'er meant them for the shepherd's prize,
 Yet gave them ample recompence, in love.

They gave you vigour from your parent's veins ;
 They gave you toils ; but toils your sinews brace ;
 They gave you nymphs, that own their amorous pains,
 And shades, the refuge of the gentle race.

To carve your loves, to paint your mutual flames,
 See ! polish'd fair, the beech's friendly rind !
 To sing soft carols to your lovely dames,
 See vocal grotts, and echoing vales assign'd !

Wou'dst

Wou'dst thou, my STREPHON, love's delighted slave !
 Tho' sure the wreaths of chivalry to share,
 Forego the ribbon thy MATILDA gave ?
 And giving, bade thee in remembrance wear.

Ill fare my peace, but ev'ry idle toy,
 If to my mind my DELIA's form it brings,
 Has truer worth, imparts sincerer joy,
 Than all that bears the radiant stamp of kings.

O my foul weeps, my breast with anguish bleeds,
 When love deplores the tyrant pow'r of gain !
 Disdaining riches as the futile weeds,
 I rise superior, and the rich disdain.

Oft from the stream, flow-wandering down the glade,
 Pensive I hear the nuptial peal rebound ;
 " Some miser weds, I cry, the captive maid,
 " And some fond lover sickens at the found."

Not SOMERVILLE, the muse's friend of old,
 Tho' now exalted to yon ambient sky,
 So shun'd a soul disdain'd with earth and gold,
 So lov'd the pure, the generous breast, as I.

Scorn'd be the wretch that quits his genial bowl,
 His loves, his friendships, ev'n his self, resigns ;
 Perverts the sacred instinct of his soul,
 And to a ducate's dirty sphere confines.

But come, my friend, with taste, with science blest,
Ere age impair me, and ere gold allure ;
Restore thy dear idea to my breast,
The rich deposit shall the shrine secure.

Let others toil to gain the sordid ore,
The charms of independence let us sing ;
Blest with thy friendship, can I wish for more ?
I'll spurn the boasted wealth of * LYDIA'S king.

* Croesus.

E L E G Y X.

To fortune, suggesting his motive for repining at her dispensations.

ASK not the cause, why this rebellious tongue
 Loads with fresh curses thy detested sway ;
 Ask not, thus branded in my softest song,
 Why stands the flatter'd name, which all obey ?

'Tis not, that in my shed I lurk forlorn,
 Nor see my roof on Parian columns rise ;
 That, on this breast, no mimic star is borne,
 Rever'd, ah ! more than those that light the skies.

'Tis not, that on the turf supinely laid,
 I sing or pipe, but to the flocks that graze ;
 And, all inglorious, in the lonesome shade,
 My finger stiffens, and my voice decays.

Not, that my fancy mourns thy stern command,
 When many an embryo dome is lost in air ;
 While guardian prudence checks my eager hand,
 And, ere the turf is broken, cries, " Forbear.

" Forbear, vain youth ! be cautious, weigh thy gold ;
 " Nor let yon rising column more aspire ;
 " Ah ! better dwell in ruins, than behold
 " Thy fortunes mould'ring, and thy domes entire.

“ HONORIO built, but dar'd my laws defy ;
 “ He planted, scornful of my fage commands ;
 “ The peach's vernal bud regal'd his eye ;
 “ The fruitage ripen'd for more frugal hands.”

See the small stream that pours its murm'ring tide
 O'er some rough rock that wou'd its wealth display,
 Displays it aught but penury and pride ?
 Ah! contrive wisely what such murmurs say.

How wou'd some flood, with ampler treasures blest,
 Disdainful view the scantling drops distil !
 How must * VELINO shake his reedy crest !
 How ev'ry cygnet mock the boastive rill !

Fortune, I yield ! and see, I give the sign ;
 At noon the poor mechanic wanders home ;
 Collects the square, the level, and the line,
 And, with retorted eye, forsakes the dome.

Yes, I can patient view the shadeless plains ;
 Can unrepining leave the rising wall ;
 Check the fond love of art that fir'd my veins,
 And my warm hopes, in full pursuit, recall.

* A river in ITALY, that falls an hundred yards perpendicular.

Descend, ye storms ! destroy my rising pile ;
 Loos'd be the whirlwind's unremitting sway ;
 Contented I, altho' the gazer smile
 To see it scarce survive a winter's day.

Let some dull dotard bask in thy gay shrine,
 As in the sun regales his wanton herd ;
 Guiltless of envy, why shou'd I repine,
 That his rude voice, his grating reed's prefer'd ?

Let him exult, with boundless wealth supply'd,
 Mine and the swain's reluctant homage share ;
 But ah ! his tawdry shepherdes's pride,
 Gods ! must my DELIA, must my DELIA bear ?

Must DELIA's softness, elegance, and ease
 Submit to MARIAN's dress ? to MARIAN's gold ?
 Must MARIAN's robe from distant INDIA please ?
 The simple fleece my DELIA's limbs enfold ?

“ Yet sure on DELIA seems the ruffet fair ;
 “ Ye glitt'ring daughters of disguise adieu ! ”
 So talk the wise, who judge of shape and air,
 But will the rural thane decide so true ?

Ah ! what is native worth esteem'd of clowns ?
 'Tis thy false glare, O fortune ! thine they see :
 'Tis for my DELIA's sake I dread thy frowns,
 And my last gasp shall curses breathe on thee.

E L E G Y XI.

He complains how soon the pleasing novelty of life is over. To Mr. J—

AH me, my friend! it will not, will not last!
 This fairy-scene, that cheats our youthful eyes!
 The charm dissolves; th' aerial music's past;
 The banquet ceases, and the vision flies.

Where are the splendid forms, the rich perfumes,
 Where the gay tapers, where the spacious dome?
 Vanish'd the costly pearls, the crimson plumes,
 And we, delightless, left to wander home!

Vain now are books, the sage's wisdom vain!
 What has the world to bribe our steps astray?
 Ere reason learns by study'd laws to reign,
 The weaken'd passions, self-subdued, obey.

Scarce has the fun sev'n annual courses roll'd,
 Scarce shewn the whole that fortune can supply;
 Since, not the miser so carefs'd his gold,
 As I, for what it gave, was heard to sigh.

On the world's stage I wish'd some sprightly part;
 To deck my native fleece with tawdry lace;
 'Twas life, 'twas taste, and—oh my foolish heart!
 Substantial joy was fix'd in pow'r and place.

And

And you, ye works of art ! allur'd mine eye,
 The breathing picture, and the living stone :
 “ Tho' gold, tho' splendour, heav'n and fate deny,
 “ Yet might I call one Titian stroke my own !”

Smit with the charms of fame, whose lovely spoil,
 The wreath, the garland, fire the poet's pride,
 I trim'd my lamp, consum'd the midnight oil—
 But soon the paths of health and fame divide !

Oft too I pray'd, 'twas nature form'd the pray'r,
 To grace my native scenes, my rural home ;
 To see my trees express their planter's care,
 And gay, on Attic models, raise my dome.

But now 'tis o'er, the dear delusion's o'er !
 A stagnant breezeless air becalms my soul :
 A fond aspiring candidate no more,
 I scorn the palm, before I reach the goal.

O youth ! enchanting stage, profusely blest !
 Bliss ev'n obtrusive courts the frolic mind ;
 Of health neglectful, yet by health carest ;
 Careless of favour, yet secure to find,

Then glows the breast, as op'ning roses fair ;
 More free, more vivid than the linnet's wing ;
 Honest as light, transparent ev'n as air,
 Tender as buds, and lavish as the spring.

Not

Not all the force of manhood's active might,
Not all the craft to subtle age assign'd,
Not science shall extort that dear delight,
Which gay delusion gave the tender mind.

Adieu soft raptures ! transports void of care !
Parent of raptures, dear deceit, adieu !
And you, her daughters, pining with despair,
Why, why so soon her fleeting steps pursue !

Tedious again to curse the drizzling day !
Again to trace the wint'ry tracts of snow !
Or, sooth'd by vernal airs, again survey
The self-same hawthorns bud, and cowslips blow !

O life ! how soon of ev'ry bliss forlorn !
We start false joys, and urge the devious race :
A tender prey ; that cheers our youthful morn,
Then sinks untimely, and defrauds the chace.

E L E G Y XII.

His recantation.

NO more the muse obtrudes her thin disguise;
 No more with aukward fallacy complains,
 How ev'ry fervour from my bosom flies,
 And reason in her lonesome palace reigns.

Ere the chill winter of our days arrive,
 No more she paints the breast from passion free;
 I feel, I feel one loitering wish survive—
 Ah need I, FLORIO, name that wish to thee?

The star of VENUS ushers in the day,
 The first, the loveliest of the train that shine!
 The star of VENUS lends her brightest ray,
 When other stars their friendly beams resign.

Still in my breast one soft desire remains,
 Pure as that star, from guilt, from int'rest free,
 Has gentle DELIA trip'd across the plains,
 And need I, FLORIO, name that wish to thee?

While, cloy'd to find the scenes of life the same,
 I tune with careless hand my languid lays;
 Some secret impulse wakes my former flame,
 And fires my strain with hope of brighter days.

I slept not long beneath yon rural bow'rs ;
And lo ! my crook with flow'rs adorn'd I see :
Has gentle DELIA bound my crook with flow'rs,
And need I, FLORIO, name my hopes to thee ?

E L E G Y XIII.

To a friend, on some slight occasion estranged from him.

HEALTH to my friend, and many a chearful day
 Around his seat may peaceful shades abide !
 Smooth flow the minutes, fraught with smiles, away,
 And, 'till they crown our union, gently glide.

Ah me ! too swiftly fleets our vernal bloom !
 Lost to our wonted friendship, lost to joy !
 Soon may thy breast the cordial wish resume,
 Ere wintry doubt its tender warmth destroy.

Say, were it ours, by fortune's wild command,
 By chance to meet beneath the torrid zone ;
 Wou'dst thou reject thy DAMON's plighted hand ?
 Wou'dst thou with scorn thy once lov'd friend disown ?

Life is that stranger land, that alien clime :
 Shall kindred souls forego their social claim ?
 Launch'd in the vast abyss of space and time,
 Shall dark suspicion quench the gen'rous flame ?

Myriads of souls, that knew one parent mold,
 See sadly sever'd by the laws of chance !
 Myriads, in time's perennial list enroll'd,
 Forbid by fate to change one transient glance !

But

But we have met—where ills of every form,
 Where passions rage, and hurricanes descend :
 Say, shall we nurse the rage, assist the storm ?
 And guide them to the bosom—of a friend ?

Yes, we have met—thro' rapine, fraud, and wrong :
 Might our joint aid the paths of peace explore !
 Why leave thy friend amid the boist'rous throng,
 Ere death divide us, and we part no more ?

For oh ! pale sickness warns thy friend away !
 For me no more the vernal roses bloom !
 I see stern fate his ebon wand display ;
 And point the wither'd regions of the tomb.

Then the keen anguish from thine eye shall start,
 Sad as thou follow'ft my untimely bier ;
 “ Fool that I was—if friends so soon must part,
 “ To let suspicion intermix a fear.”

E L E G Y XIV.

Declining an invitation to visit foreign countries, he takes occasion to intimate the advantages of his own.

To lord TEMPLE.

WHILE others lost to friendship, lost to love,
Waste their best minutes on a foreign strand,
Be mine, with British nymph or swain to rove,
And court the genius of my native land.

Deluded youth! that quits these verdant plains,
To catch the follies of an alien soil!
To win the vice his genuine soul disdains,
Return exultant, and import the spoil!

In vain he boasts of his detested prize;
No more it blooms to British climes convey'd,
Cramp'd by the impulse of ungenial skies,
See its fresh vigour, in a moment, fade!

Th' exotic folly knows its native clime;
An aukward stranger, if we waft it o'er;
Why then these toils, this costly waste of time,
To spread soft poison on our happy shore?

I covet

I covet not the pride of foreign looms ;
 In search of foreign modes I scorn to rove ;
 Nor, for the worthless bird of brighter plumes,
 Wou'd change the meanest warbler of my grove.

No distant clime shall servile airs impart,
 Or form these limbs with pliant ease to play ;
 Trembling I view the GAUL's illusive art,
 That steals my lov'd rusticity away.

'Tis long since freedom fled th' Hesperian clime ;
 Her citron groves, her flow'r-embroider'd shore ;
 She saw the British oak aspire sublime,
 And soft CAMPANIA's olive charms no more.

Let partial suns mature the western mine,
 To shed its lustre o'er th' Iberian maid ;
 Mien, beauty, shape, O native soil, are thine ;
 Thy peerless daughters ask no foreign aid.

Let * CEYLON's envy'd plant perfume the seas,
 Till torn to season the Batavian bowl ;
 Ours is the breast whose genuine ardours please,
 Nor need a drug to meliorate the soul.

* The cinnamon.

Let the proud Soldan wound th' Arcadian groves,
 Or with rude lips th' Aonian fount profane ;
 The muse no more by flow'ry LADON roves,
 She seeks her THOMSON, on the British plain,

Tell not of realms by ruthless war dismay'd ;
 As hapless realms that war's oppression feel !
 In vain may AUSTRIA boast her Noric blade,
 If AUSTRIA bleed beneath her boasted steel.

Beneath her palm IDUME vents her moan ;
 Raptur'd she once beheld its friendly shade !
 And hoary MEMPHIS boasts her tombs alone,
 The mournful types of mighty pow'r decay'd !

No crescent here displays its baneful horns ;
 No turban'd host the voice of truth reproves ;
 Learning's free source the sage's breast adorns,
 And poets, not inglorious, chaunt their loves,

Boast, favour'd MEDIA, boast thy flow'ry stores ;
 Thy thousand hues by chymic funs refin'd ;
 'Tis not the dress or mien my soul adores,
 'Tis the rich beauties of BRITANNIA's mind.

While*GREENVILLE's breast cou'd virtue's stores afford,
 What envy'd flota bore so fair a freight ?
 The mine compared in vain its latent hoard,
 The gem its lustre, and the gold its weight.

* Written about the time of captain GREENVILLE's death.

Thee GREENVILLE, thee with calmest courage fraught,
 Thee the lov'd image of thy native shore !
 Thee by the virtues arm'd, the graces taught,
 When shall we cease to boast, or to deplore ?

Presumptuous war, which could thy life destroy,
 What shall it now in recompence decree ?
 While friends that merit every earthly joy,
 Feel every anguish ; feel—the loss of thee !

Bid me no more a fervile realm compare,
 No more the muse of partial praise arraign ;
 BRITANNIA sees no foreign breast so fair,
 And if she glory, glories not in vain.

E L E G Y XV.

*In memory of a * private family in WORCESTERSHIRE.*

FROM a lone tow'r with rev'rend ivy crown'd,
 The pealing bell awak'd a tender sigh ;
 Still, as the village caught the waving sound,
 A swelling tear distream'd from ev'ry eye.

So droop'd, I ween, each BRITON's breast of old,
 When the dull curfew spoke their freedom fled ;
 For fighting as the mournful accent roll'd,
 Our hope, they cry'd, our kind support, is dead !

'Twas good PALEMON—near a shaded pool,
 A groupe of ancient elms umbrageous rose ;
 The flocking rooks, by instinct's native rule,
 This peaceful scene, for their asylum, chose.

A few small spires, to Gothic fancy fair,
 Amid the shades emerging, struck the view ;
 'Twas here his youth respir'd its earliest air ;
 'Twas here his age breath'd out its last adieu.

* The pennis of HARBOROUGH ; a place whose name in the SAXON language, alludes to an arm. And there is a tradition that there was a battle fought, on the Downs adjoining, betwixt the BRITONS and the ROMANS.

One favour'd son engag'd his tenderest care ;
 One pious youth his whole affection crown'd :
 In his young breast the virtues sprung so fair,
 Such charms display'd, such sweets diffus'd around.

But whilst gay transport in his face appears,
 A noxious vapour clogs the poison'd sky ;
 Blasts the fair crop—the fire is drown'd in tears,
 And, scarce surviving, sees his CYNTHIO die !

O'er the pale corse we saw him gently bend ;
 Heart-chill'd with grief—my thread, he cry'd, is spun !
 “ If heav'n had meant I shou'd my life extend,
 Heav'n had preserv'd my life's support, my son.

Snatch'd in thy prime ! alas the stroke were mild,
 Had my frail form obey'd the fates' decree !
 Blest were my lot, O CYNTHIO ! O my child !
 Had heav'n so pleas'd, and I had dy'd for thee.”

Five sleepless nights he stem'd this tide of woes ;
 Five irksome suns he saw, thro' tears, forlorn !
 On his pale corse the sixth sad morning rose ;
 From yonder dome the mournful bier was borne.

'Twas on those * downs, by Roman hosts annoy'd,
 Fought our bold fathers ; rustic, unrefin'd !
 Freedom's plain sons, in martial cares employ'd !
 They ting'd their bodies, but unmask'd their mind.

'Twas

* HARBOROUGH DOWNS.

'Twas there, in happier times, this virtuous race,
 Of milder merit, fix'd their calm retreat ;
 War's deadly crimson had forsook the place,
 And freedom fondly lov'd the chosen feat.

No wild ambition fir'd their tranquil breast,
 To swell with empty sounds a spotless name ;
 If soft'ring skies, the sun, the show'r were blest,
 Their bounty spread ; their field's extent the fame.

Those fields, profuse of raiment, food, and fire,
 They scorn'd to lessen, careless to extend ;
 Bade luxury, to lavish courts aspire,
 And avarice, to city-breasts descend.

None, to a virgin's mind, prefer'd her dow'r ;
 To fire with vicious hopes a modest heir :
 The fire, in place of titles, wealth, or pow'r,
 Assign'd him virtue ; and his lot was fair.

They spoke of fortune, as some doubtful dame,
 That sway'd the natives of a distant sphere ;
 From lucre's vagrant sons had learnt her fame,
 But never wish'd to place her banners here.

Here youth's free spirit, innocently gay,
 Enjoy'd the most that innocence can give ;
 Those wholesome sweets, that border virtue's way ;
 Those cooling fruits, that we may taste and live.

Their board no strange ambiguous viand bore ;
 From their own streams their choicer fare they drew,
 To lure the scaly glutton to the shore,
 The sole deceit their artless bosom knew !

Sincere themselves, ah too secure to find
 The common bosom, like their own, sincere !
 'Tis its own guilt alarms the jealous mind ;
 'Tis her own poison bids the viper fear.

Sketch'd on the lattice of th' adjacent fane,
 Their suppliant bufts implore the reader's pray'r ;
 Ah gentle souls ! enjoy your blisful reign,
 And let frail mortals claim your guardian care.

For sure, to blisful realms the souls are flown,
 That never flatter'd, injur'd, censur'd, strove ;
 The friends of science ! music, all their own ;
 Music, the voice of virtue and of love !

The journeying peasant, thro' the secret shade,
 Heard their soft lyres engage his list'ning ear ;
 And haply deem'd some courteous angel play'd ;
 No angel play'd—but might with transport hear.

For these the sounds that chase unholy strife !
 Solve envy's charm, ambition's wretch's release !
 Raise him to spurn the radiant ills of life ;
 To pity pomp, to be content with peace.

Farewel,

Farewel, pure spirits ! vain the praise we give,
 The praise you fought from lips angelic flows ;
 Farewel ! the virtues which deserve to live,
 Deserve an ampler blifs than life bestows.

Last of his race, PALEMON, now no more
 The modest merit of his line display'd ;
 Then pious HOUGH VIGORNIA'S mitre wore—
 Soft sleep the dust of each deserving shade.

E L E G Y XVI.

He suggests the advantages of birth to a person of merit, and the folly of a superciliousness that is built upon that sole foundation.

WHEN genius grac'd with lineal splendor glows,
 When title shines, with ambient virtues crown'd,
 Like some fair almond's flow'ry pomp it shews;
 The pride, the perfume of the regions round.

Then learn, ye fair! to soften splendor's ray;
 Endure the swain, the youth of low degree;
 Let meekness join'd its temperate beam display;
 'Tis the mild verdure that endeais the tree.

Pity the fandal'd swain, the shepherd's boy;
 He sighs to brighten a neglected name;
 Foe to the dull appulse of vulgar joy,
 He mourns his lot; he wishes, merits fame.

In vain to groves and pathless vales we fly;
 Ambition there the bow'ry haunt invades;
 Fame's awful rays fatigue the courtier's eye,
 But gleam still lovely thro' the checquer'd shades.

Vainly, to guard from love's unequal chain,
 Has fortune rear'd us in the rural grove;
 Shou'd *'s eyes illumine the desert plain,
 Ev'n I may wonder, and ev'n I must love.

Nor

Nor unregarded fighs the lowly hind ;
 Tho' you contemn, the gods respect his vow ;
 Vindictive rage awaits the scornful mind,
 And vengeance, too severe ! the gods allow.

On SARUM's plain I met a wand'ring fair ;
 The look of sorrow, lovely still, she bore :
 Loose flow'd the soft redundance of her hair,
 And, on her brow, a flow'ry wreath she wore.

Oft stooping as she stray'd, she cull'd the pride
 Of ev'ry plain ; she pillag'd ev'ry grove !
 The fading chaplet daily she supply'd,
 And still her hand some various garland wove.

Erroneous fancy shap'd her wild attire ;
 From BETHLEM's walls the poor lymphatic stray'd ;
 Seem'd with her air her accent to conspire,
 When, as wild fancy taught her, thus she said.

“ Hear me, dear youth ! oh hear an hapless maid,
 Sprung from the scepter'd line of ancient kings !
 Scorn'd by the world, I ask thy tender aid ;
 Thy gentle voice shall whisper kinder things.

The world is frantic—fly the race profane—
 Nor I, nor you, shall its compassion move ;
 Come friendly let us wander, and complain,
 And tell me, shepherd ! hast thou seen my love ?

My

My love is young—but other loves are young;
 And other loves are fair, and so is mine;
 An air divine discloses whence he sprung;
 He is my love, who boasts that air divine.

No vulgar DAMON robs me of my rest,
 IANTHE listens to no vulgar vow;
 A prince, from gods descended, fires her breast;
 A brilliant crown distinguishes his brow.

What, shall I stain the glories of my race?
 More clear, more lovely bright than HESPER'S beam?
 The porc'lain pure with vulgar dirt debase?
 Or mix with puddle the pellucid stream?

See thro' these veins the saphire current shine!
 'Twas JOVE'S own nectar gave th' ethereal hue:
 Can base plebeian forms contend with mine!
 Display the lovely white, or match the blue?

The painter strove to trace its azure ray;
 He chang'd his colours, and in vain he strove;
 He frown'd—I smiling view'd the faint essay;
 Poor youth! he little knew it flow'd from JOVE.

Pitying his toil, the wond'rous truth I told;
 How am'rous JOVE trepann'd a mortal fair;
 How thro' the race the generous current roll'd,
 And mocks the poet's art, and painter's care.

Yes, from the gods, from earliest Saturn, sprung
 Our sacred race ; thro' demigods, convey'd ;
 And he, ally'd to PHOEBUS, ever young,
 My god-like boy, must wed their duteous maid.

Oft, when a mortal vow profanes my ear,
 My fire's dread fury murmurs thro' the sky ;
 And shou'd I yield—his instant rage appears,
 He darts th' uplifted vengeance—and I die.

Have you not heard unwonted thunders roll !
 Have you not seen more horrid light'nings glare !
 'Twas then a vulgar love ensnar'd my soul ;
 'Twas then—I hardly scap'd the fatal snare.

'Twas then a peasant pour'd his amorous vow,
 All as I listen'd to his vulgar strain ;—
 Yet such his beauty—wou'd my birth allow,
 Dear were the youth, and blifsful were the plain.

But oh ! I faint ! why wastes my vernal bloom,
 In fruitless searches ever doom'd to rove ?
 My nightly dreams the toilsome path resume,
 And I shall die—before I find my love.

When last I slept, methought, my ravish'd eye,
 On distant heaths his radiant form survey'd ;
 Tho' night's thick clouds encompass'd all the sky,
 The gems that bound his brow, dispell'd the shade.

O how

O how this bosom kindled at the sight !
Led by their beams I urg'd the pleasing chace ;
Till, on a sudden, these with-held their light—
All, all things envy the sublime embrace.

But now no more—behind the distant grove,
Wanders my destin'd youth, and chides my stay ;
See, see, he grasps the steel—forbear, my love—
IANTHE comes ; thy princess hastes away.”

Scornful she spoke, and heedless of reply
The lovely maniac bounded o'er the plain ;
The piteous victim of an angry sky !
Ah me ! the victim of her proud disdain !

He indulges the suggestions of spleen: an elegy to the winds.

*Æole, namque tibi divum pater atque hominum rex
Et mulcere dedit mentes & tollere vento.*

STERN monarch of the winds, admit my pray'r!
Awhile thy fury check, thy storms confine!
No trivial blast impells the passive air,
But brews a tempest in a breast like mine.

What bands of black ideas spread their wings!
The peaceful regions of content invade!
With deadly poison taint the crystal springs!
With noisome vapour blast the verdant shade!

I know their leader, spleen; and dread the way
Of rigid EURUS, his detested fire;
Thro' one my blossoms and my fruits decay;
Thro' one my pleasures, and my hopes expire.

Like some pale stripling, when his icy way
Relenting yields beneath the noontide beam,
I stand aghast; and chill'd with fear survey
How far I've tempted life's deceitful stream!

Where

Where by remorse impell'd, repuls'd by fears,
 Shall wretch'd fancy a retreat explore ?
 She flies the sad preface of coming years,
 And forr'wing dwells on pleasures now no more !

Again with patrons, and with friends she roves ;
 But friends and patrons never to return !
 She sees the nymphs; the graces, and the loves,
 But sees them, weeping o'er LUCINDA'S urn.

She visits, Isis ! thy forsaken stream,
 Oh ill forsaken for Bœotian air !
 She deems no flood reflects so bright a beam,
 No reed so verdant, and no flow'rs so fair.

She dreams beneath thy sacred shades where, peace;
 Thy bays might ev'n the civil storm repel ;
 Reviews thy social blifs, thy learned ease,
 And with no chearful accent cries, farewell !

Farewel, with whom to these retreats I stray'd !
 By youthful sports, by youthful toils ally'd !
 Joyous we sojourn'd in thy circling shade,
 And wept to find the paths of life divide.

She paints the progress of my rival's vow ;
 Sees ev'ry muse a partial ear incline ;
 Binds with luxuriant bays his favour'd brow,
 Nor yields the refuse of his wreath to mine.

She

She bids the flatt'ring mirror, form'd to please,
 Now blast my hope, now vindicate despair ;
 Bids my fond verse the love-sick parley cease ;
 Accuse my rigid fate, acquit my fair.

Where circling rocks defend some pathless vale,
 Superfluous mortal, let me ever rove !
 Alas ! there echo will repent the tale—
 Where shall I find the silent scenes I love ?

Fain would I mourn my luckless fate alone ;
 Forbid to please, yet fated to admire ;
 Away my friends ! my sorrows are my own ;
 Why should I breathe around my sick desire ?

Bear me ye winds, indulgent to my pains,
 Near some sad ruin's ghastly shade to dwell !
 There let me fondly eye the rude remains,
 And from the mould'ring refuse, build my cell !

Genius of ROME ! thy prostrate pomp display ;
 Trace ev'ry dismal proof of fortune's power ;
 Let me the wreck of theatres survey,
 Or pensive sit beneath some nodding tow'r.

Or where some duct, by rolling seasons worn,
 Convey'd pure streams to ROME's imperial wall,
 Near the wide breach in silence let me mourn ;
 Or tune my dirges to the water's fall.

Genius

Genius of CARTHAGE ! paint thy ruin'd pride ;
 Tow'rs, arches, fanes in wild confusion strewn ;
 Let banish'd * MARIUS, low'ring by thy side,
 Compare thy fickle fortunes with his own.

Ah no ! thou monarch of the storms ! forbear ;
 My trembling nerves abhor thy rude controul ;
 And scarce, a pleasing twilight soothes my care,
 Ere one vast death like darkness shocks my soul.

Forbear thy rage—on no perennial base
 Is built frail fear, or hope's deceitful pile ;
 My pains are fled—my joy resumes its place,
 Shou'd the sky brighten, or MELISSA smile.

NEAR AVON'S bank, on ARDEN'S flow'ry plain,

And funny COTSOLO' fondly lov'd the strain ;
Yet not a garland crowns the shepherd's grave !

Oh lost OPHELIA ! smoothly flow'd the day,
To feel his music with my flames agree !
To taste the beauties of his melting lay,
To taste, and fancy it was dear to thee !

When, for his tomb, with each revolving year,
I steal the musk-rose from the scented brake,
I strew my cowslips, and I pay my tear,
I'll add the myrtle for OPHELIA'S sake.

Shiv'ring beneath a leafless thorn he lay,
When death's chill rigour seiz'd his flowing tongue ;
The more I found his fault'ring notes decay,
The more prophetic truth sublim'd the song.

" Adieu

* MR. SOMERVILLE.

“ Adieu my flocks, he said ! my wonted care,
 By funny mountain, or by verdant shore !
 May some more happy hand your fold prepare,
 And may you need your COLLIN’S crook no more.

And you, ye shepherds ! lead my gentle sheep ;
 To breezy hills, or leafy shelters lead ;
 But if the sky with show’rs incessant weep,
 Avoid the putrid moisture of the mead.

Where the wild thyme perfumes the purpled heath,
 Long-loit’ring there your fleecy tribes extend—
 But what avail the maxims I bequeath ?
 The fruitless gift of an officious friend !

Ah ! what avails the tim’rous lambs to guard,
 Tho’ nightly cares, with daily labours, join ?
 If foreign sloth obtain the rich reward,
 If GALLIA’S craft the pond’rous fleece purloin !

Was it for this, by constant vigils worn,
 I met the terrors of an early grave ?
 For this, I led them from the pointed thorn ?
 For this I bath’d ’em in the lucid wave ?

Ah heedless ALBION ! too benignly prone
 Thy blood to lavish, and thy wealth resign !
 Shall ev’ry other virtue grace thy throne,
 But quick-ey’d prudence never yet be thine ?

From

From the fair natives of this peerless hill
 Thou gav'st the sheep that browse Iberian plains :
 Their plaintive cries the faithless region fill,
 Their fleece adorns an haughty foe's domains.

Ill-fated flocks ! from cliff to cliff they stray ;
 Far from their dams their native guardians far !
 Where the soft shepherd, all the livelong day,
 Chaunts his proud mistress to his hoarse guitar.

But ALBION's youth her native fleece despise ;
 Unmov'd they hear the pining shepherd's moan ;
 In silky folds each nervous limb disguise,
 Allur'd by ev'ry treasure, but their own.

Oft have I hurry'd down the rocky steep,
 Anxious, to see the wintry tempest drive ;
 Preserve, said I, preserve your fleece, my sheep !
 Ere long will PHILLIS, will my love arrive.

Ere long she came : ah ! woe is me, she came !
 Rob'd in the Gallic loom's extraneous twine :
 For gifts like these they give their spotless fame,
 Resign their bloom, their innocence resign.

Will no bright maid, by worth, by titles known,
 Give the rich growth of British hills to fame ?
 And let her charms, and her example, own
 That virtue's dress, and beauty's are the same ?

Will no fam'd chief support this gen'rous maid :
Once more the patriot's arduous path resume ?
And, comely from his native plains array'd,
Speak future glory to the British loom ?

What pow'r unseen my ravish'd fancy fires ?
I pierce the dreary shade of future days ;
Sure 'tis the genius of the land inspires,
To breathe my latest breath in * * * praise.

O might my breath for * * * praise suffice,
How gently shou'd my dying limbs repose !
O might his future glory blefs mine eyes,
My ravish'd eyes ! how calmly wou'd they close !

* * * was born to spread the gen'ral joy ;
By virtue rapt, by party uncontroul'd ;
BRITONS for BRITAIN shall the crook employ ;
BRITONS for BRITAIN'S glory shear the fold."

E L E G Y XIX.

Written in spring 1743.

A G A I N the lab'ring hind inverts the foil ;
 Again the merchant ploughs the tumid wave ;
 Another spring renews the soldier's toil,
 And finds me vacant in the rural cave.

As the soft lyre display'd my wonted loves,
 The pensive pleasure and the tender pain,
 The sordid ALPHEUS hurry'd thro' my groves ;
 Yet stop'd to vent the dictates of disdain.

He glanc'd contemptuous o'er my ruin'd fold ;
 He blam'd the graces of my fav'rite bow'r ;
 My breast, unfully'd by the lust of gold ;
 My time, unlavish'd in pursuit of pow'r.

Yes, ALPHEUS ! fly the purer paths of fate ;
 Abjure these scenes from venal passions free ;
 Know, in this grove, I vow'd perpetual hate,
 War, endless war, with lucre and with thee.

Here nobly zealous, in my youthful hours,
 I dress'd an altar to THALIA's name ;
 Here as I crown'd the verdant shrine with flow'rs,
 Soft on my labours stole the smiling dame.

DAMON, she cry'd, if pleas'd with honest praise,
 Thou court success by virtue or by song,
 Fly the false dictates of the venal race ;
 Fly the gross accents of the venal tongue.

Swear that no lucre shall thy zeal betray ;
 Swerve not thy foot with fortune's vot'ries more ;
 Brand thou their lives, and brand their lifeless day—
 The winning phantom urg'd me, and I swore.

Forth from the rustic altar swift I stray'd,
 “ Aid my firm purpose, ye celestial pow'rs !
 Aid me to quell the fordid breast, I said ;
 And * threw my jav'lin tow'rd's their hostile tow'rs.

Think not regretful I survey the deed ;
 Or added years no more the zeal allow ;
 Still, still observant to the grove I speed,
 The shrine embellish, and repeat the vow.

Sworn from his cradle ROME's relentless foe,
 Such gen'rous hate the † Punic champion bore ;
 Thy lake, O THRASIMENE ! beheld it glow,
 And CANNÆ's walls, and TREBIA's crimson shore.

* The Roman ceremony in declaring war.

† HANNIBAL.

But let grave annals paint the warrior's fame ;
 Fair shine his arms in history enroll'd ;
 Whilst humbler lyres his civil worth proclaim,
 His nobler hate of avarice and gold.—

Now Punic pride its final eve survey'd ;
 Its hosts exhausted, and its fleets on fire ;
 Patient the victors lurid frown obey'd,
 And saw th' unwilling elephants retire.

But when their gold depress'd the yielding scale,
 Their gold, in pyramidic plenty pil'd,
 He saw th' unutterable grief prevail ;
 He saw their tears, and, in his fury, smil'd.

Think not, he cry'd, ye view the smiles of ease,
 Or this firm breast disclaims a patriot's pain ;
 I smile, but from a soul estrang'd to peace,
 Frantic with grief, delirious with disdain !

But were it cordial, this detested smile,
 Seems it less timely than the grief ye shew ?
 O sons of CARTHAGE ! grant me to revile
 The fordid source of your indecent woe !

Why weep ye now ! ye saw with tearless eye
 When your fleet perish'd on the Punic wave :
 Where lurk'd the coward tear, the lazy sigh,
 When TYRE'S imperial state commenc'd a slave ?

'Tis past—O CARTHAGE! vanquish'd! honour'd shade!
Go, the mean sorrows of thy sons deplore;
Had freedom shar'd the vow to fortune paid,
She ne'er, like fortune, had forsook thy shore."

He ceas'd—abash'd the conscious audience hear;
Their pallid cheeks a crimson blush unfold;
Yet o'er that virtuous blush distreams a tear,
And falling moistens their abandon'd gold. *

* By the terms forced upon the CARTHAGINIANS by SCIPIO, they were to deliver up all the elephants, and to pay near two millions sterling.

E L E G Y XX.

He compares his humble fortune with the distress of others; and his subjection to DELIA, with the miserable servitude of an African slave.

WHY droops this heart, with fancy'd woes forlorn?
 Why sinks my soul beneath each wint'ry sky?
 What pensive crowds, by ceaseless labours worn,
 What myriads, wish to be as blest as I!

What tho' my roofs devoid of pomp arise,
 Nor tempt the proud to quit his destin'd way?
 Nor costly art my flow'ry dales disguise,
 Where only simple friendship deigns to stray?

See the wild sons of LAPLAND's chill domain,
 That scoop their couch beneath the drifted snows!
 How void of hope they ken the frozen plain,
 Where the sharp east for ever, ever blows!

Slave tho' I be, to DELIA's eyes a slave,
 My DELIA's eyes endear the bands I wear;
 The sigh she causes well becomes the brave,
 The pang she causes, 'tis ev'n bliss to bear.

See the poor native quit the Lybian shores,
 Ah ! not in love's delightful fetters bound !
 No radiant smile his dying peace restores,
 Nor love, nor fame, nor friendship heals his wound.

Let vacant bards display their boastive woes,
 Shall I the mockery of grief display ?
 No, let the muse his piercing pangs disclose,
 Who bleeds and weeps his sum of life away !

On the wild beach in mournful guise he stood,
 Ere the shrill boatswain gave the hated sign ;
 He dropt a tear unseen into the flood ;
 He stole one secret moment, to repine.

Yet the muse listen'd to the plaints he made ;
 Such moving plaints as nature could inspire ;
 To me the muse his tender plea convey'd,
 But smooth'd, and suited to the sounding lyre.

“ Why am I ravish'd from my native strand ?
 What savage race protects this impious gain ?
 Shall foreign plagues infest this teeming land,
 And more than sea-born monsters plough the main ?

Here the dire locusts horrid swarms prevail ;
 Here the blue asps with livid poison swell ;
 Here the dry dipsa writh his sinuous mail ;
 Can we not here, secure from envy, dwell ?

When

When the grim lion urg'd his cruel chace,
 When the stern panther fought his midnight prey,
 What fate reserv'd me for this * christian race?
 O race more polish'd, more severe than they!

Ye prouling wolves pursue my latest cries!
 Thou hungry tyger, leave thy reeking den!
 Ye sandy waftes in rapid eddies rise!
 O tear me from the whips and scorns of men!

Yet in their face superior beauty glows;
 Are smiles the mien of rapine and of wrong?
 Yet from their lip the voice of mercy flows,
 And ev'n religion dwells upon their tongue.

Of blisful haunts they tell, and brighter climes,
 Where gentle minds convey'd by death repair,
 But stain'd with blood, and crimson'd o'er with crimes,
 Say, shall they merit what they paint so fair?

No, careless, hopeless of those fertile plains,
 Rich by our toils, and by our sorrows gay,
 They ply our labours, and enhance our pains,
 And feign these distant regions to repay.

For them our tusky elephant expires;
 For them we drain the mine's embowel'd gold;
 Where rove the brutal nations wild desires?—
 Our limbs are purchas'd, and our life is sold!

Yet

* Spoke by a savage.

Yet shores there are, blest shores for us remain,
And favour'd isles with golden fruitage crown'd;
Where tufted flow'rets paint the verdant plain,
Where ev'ry breeze shall med'cine ev'ry wound.

There the stern tyrant that embitters life
Shall, vainly suppliant, spread his asking hand;
There shall we view the billow's raging strife,
Aid the kind breast, and waft his boat to land."

E L E G Y XXI.

Taking a view of the country from his retirement, he is led to meditate on the character of the ancient BRITONS. Written at the time of a rumoured tax upon luxury. 1746.

THUS DAMON sung—What tho' unknown to praise
Umbrageous coverts hide my muse and me ;
Or mid the rural shepherds, flow my days,
Amid the rural shepherds, I am free.

To view sleek vassals crowd a stately hall,
Say should I grow myself a solemn slave ?
To find thy tints, O TITIAN ! grace my wall,
Forego the flow'ry fields my fortune gave ?

Lord of my time my devious path I bend,
Thro' fringy woodland, or smooth-shaven lawn ;
Or pensile grove, or airy cliff ascend,
And hail the scene by nature's pencil drawn.

Thanks be to fate—tho' nor the racy vine,
Nor fatt'ning olive cloath the fields I rove,
Sequester'd shades, and gurgling founts are mine,
And ev'ry silvan grott the muses love.

Here

Here if my vista point the mould'ring pile,
 Where hood and cowl devotion's aspect wore,
 I trace the tott'ring reliques with a smile,
 To think the mental bondage is no more !

Pleas'd, if the glowing landskip wave with corn ;
 Or the tall oaks, my country's bulwark, rise ;
 Pleas'd, if mine eye, o'er thousand vallies borne,
 Discern the Cambrian hills support the skies.

And see PLINLIMMON ! ev'n the youthful fight
 Scales the proud hill's ethereal cliffs with pain !
 Such CAER-CARADOC ! thy stupendous height,
 Whose ample shade obscures th' Iernian main.

Bleak, joyless regions ! where, by science fir'd,
 Some prying sage his lonely step may bend ;
 There, by the love of novel plants inspir'd,
 Invidious view the clamb'ring goats ascend.

Yet for those mountains, clad with lasting snow,
 The freeborn BRITON left his greenest mead ;
 Receding fullen from his mightier foe,
 For here he saw fair liberty recede.

Then if a chief perform'd a patriot's part,
 Sustain'd her drooping sons, repell'd her foes,
 Above or Persian luxe, or Attic art,
 The rude majestic monument arose.

Progressive ages carol'd forth his fame ;
 Sires, to his praise, attun'd their children's tongue ;
 The hoary druid fed the generous flame,
 While, in such strains, the reverend wizard sung.

“ Go forth, my sons !—for what is vital breath,
 Your gods expell'd, your liberty resign'd ?
 Go forth, my sons !—for what is instant death
 To souls secure perennial joys to find ?

For scenes there are, unknown to war or pain,
 Where drops the balm that heals a tyrant's wound ;
 Where patriots, blest with boundless freedom, reign,
 With mistletoe's mysterious garlands crown'd.

Such are the names that grace your mystic songs ;
 Your solemn woods resound their martial fire ;
 To you, my sons, the ritual meed belongs,
 If in the cause you vanquish, or expire.

Hark ! from the sacred oak that crowns the groves
 What awful voice my raptur'd bosom warms !
 This is the favour'd moment heav'n approves,
 Sound the shrill trump ; this instant, sound, to arms.

Theirs was the science of a martial race,
 To shape the lance, or decorate the shield ;
 Ev'n the fair virgin stain'd her native grace,
 To give new horrors to the tented field.

Now,

Now, for some cheek where guilty blushes glow,
For some false FLORIMEL's impure disguise,
The lifted youth, nor war's loud signal know,
Nor virtue's call, nor fame's imperial prize.

Then if soft concord lull'd their fears to sleep,
Inert and silent slept the manly car ;
But rush'd horrific o'er the fearful steep,
If freedom's awful clarion breath'd to war.

Now the sleek courtier, indolent and vain,
Thron'd in the splend'd carriage glides supine ;
To taint his virtue with a foreign strain,
Or at a fav'rite's board, his faith resign.

Leave then, O luxury ! this happy soil !
Chase her, BRITANNIA, to some hostile shore !
Or * fleece the baneful pest with annual spoil,
And let thy virtuous offspring weep no more !

* Alludes to a tax upon luxury, then in debate.

E L E G Y XXII.

Written in the year — when the rights of sepulture were so frequently violated.

SAY, gentle sleep, that lov'st the gloom of night,
Parent of dreams ! thou great magician, say,
Whence my late vision thus endures the light ;
Thus haunts my fancy thro' the glare of day.

The silent moon had scal'd the vaulted skies,
And anxious care resign'd my limbs to rest ;
A sudden lustre struck my wond'ring eyes,
And SILVIA stood before my couch confest.

Ah ! not the nymph so blooming and so gay,
That led the dance beneath the festive shade !
But she that, in the morning of her day,
Intomb'd beneath the grass-green sod was laid.

No more her eyes their wonted radiance cast ;
No more her breast inspir'd the lover's flame,
No more her cheek the Pæstan rose surpass ;
Yet seem'd her lip's ethereal smile the same.

Nor such her hair as deck'd her living face ;
Nor such her voice as charm'd the list'ning crowd ;
Nor such her dress as heighten'd ev'ry grace ;
Alas ! all vanish'd for the mournful shroud !

Yet seem'd her lip's ethereal charm the same ;
 That dear distinction every doubt remov'd ;
 Perish the lover, whose imperfect flame
 Forgets one feature of the nymph he lov'd.

“ DAMON, she said, mine hour allotted flies ;
 Oh ! do not waste it with a fruitless tear !
 Tho' griev'd to see thy SILVIA's pale disguise,
 Suspend thy sorrow, and attentive hear.

So may thy muse with virtuous fame be blest !
 So be thy love with mutual love repaid !
 So may thy bones in sacred silence rest,
 Fast by the reliques of some happier maid !

Thou know'st, how ling'ring on a distant shore
 Disease invidious nipt my flow'ry prime ;
 And oh ! what pangs my tender bosom tore,
 To think I ne'er must view my native clime !

No friend was near to raise my drooping head ;
 No dear companion wept to see me die ;
 Lodge me within my native soil, I said ;
 There my fond parents honour'd reliques lie.

Tho' now debarr'd of each domestic tear ;
 Unknown, forgot, I meet the fatal blow ;
 Where many a friend shall grace my woeful bier,
 And many a sigh shall rise, and tear shall flow.

I spoke,

I spoke, nor fate forbore his trembling spoil ;
 Some venal mourner lent his careless aid ;
 And soon they bore me to my native soil,
 Where my fond parents dear remains were laid.

'Twas then the youths, from ev'ry plain and grove,
 Adorn'd with mournful verse thy SILVIA's bier ;
 'Twas then the nymphs their votive garlands wove,
 And strew'd the fragrance of the youthful year.

But why alas ! the tender scene display ?
 Cou'd DAMON's foot the pious path decline ?
 Ah no ! 'twas DAMON first attun'd his lay,
 And sure no sonnet was so dear as thine.

Thus was I bosom'd in the peaceful grave ;
 My placid ghost no longer wept its doom ;
 When savage robbers every sanction brave,
 And with outrageous guilt defraud the tomb !

Shall my poor corpse, from hostile realms convey'd,
 Lose the cheap portion of my native sands ?
 Or, in my kindred's dear embraces laid,
 Mourn the vile ravage of barbarian hands ?

Say, wou'd thy breast no death-like torture feel,
 To see my limbs the felon's gripe obey ?
 To see them gash'd beneath the daring steel ?
 To crowds a spectre, and to dogs a prey ?

If PÆAN's fons these horrid rites require,
 If health's fair science be by these refin'd,
 Let guilty convicts, for their use, expire ;
 And let their breathless corse avail mankind.

Yet hard it seems, when guilt's last fine is paid,
 To see the victim's corse deny'd repose !
 Now, more severe ! the poor offenceless maid
 Dreads the dire outrage of inhuman foes.

Where is the faith of ancient pagans fled ?
 Where the fond care the wand'ring manes claim ?
 Nature, instinctive, cries, Protect the dead,
 And sacred be their ashes, and their fame !

Arise, dear youth ! ev'n now the danger calls ;
 Ev'n now the villain snuffs his wonted prey ;
 See ! see ! I lead thee to yon' sacred walls—
 Oh ! fly to chase these human wolves away.”

E L E G Y XXIII.

Reflections suggested by his situation.

BORN near the scene for *KENELM's fate renown'd
 I take my plaintive reed, and range the grove,
 And raise my lay, and bid the rocks resound
 The savage force of empire, and of love.

Fast by the center of yon' various wild,
 Where spreading oaks embow'r a Gothic fane ;
 KENDRIDA's arts a brother's youth beguil'd ;
 There nature urg'd her tenderest pleas in vain.

Soft o'er his birth, and o'er his infant hours,
 Th' ambitious maid cou'd every care employ ;
 Then with assiduous fondness cropt the flow'rs,
 To deck the cradle of the princely boy ?

But soon the bosom's pleasing calm is flown ;
 Love fires her breast ; the sultry passions rise ;
 A favour'd lover seeks the Mercian throne,
 And views her KENELM with a rival's eyes.

* KENELM in the Saxon heptarchy was heir to the kingdom of MERCIA ; but being very young at his father's death, was, by the artifices of his sister and her lover, depriv'd of his crown and life together.

How kind were fortune, ah! how just were fate,
 Wou'd fate or fortune MERCIA's heir remove!
 How sweet to revel on the couch of state!
 To crown at once her lover, and her love!

See, garnish'd for the chace, the fraudulent maid
 To these lone hills direct his devious way;
 The youth, all prone, the sifter guide obey'd,
 Ill-fated youth! himself the destin'd prey.

But now, nor shaggy hill, nor pathless plain,
 Forms the lone refuge of the silvan game;
 Since LYTTELTON has crown'd the sweet domain
 With softer pleasures, and with fairer fame.

Where the rough Bowman urg'd his headlong speed,
 Immortal bards, a polish'd race, retire;
 And where hoarse scream'd the repent horn, succeed
 The melting graces of no vulgar lyre.

See THOMSON, loit'ring near some limpid well,
 For BRITAIN's friend the verdant wreath prepare!
 Or, studious of revolving seasons, tell,
 How peerless LUCIA made all seasons fair!

See * * * * * from civic garlands fly,
 And in these groves indulge his tuneful vein!
 Or from yon' summit, with a guardian's eye,
 Observe how freedom's hand attires the plain!

Here

Here POPE!—ah never must that tow'ring mind
 To his lov'd haunts, or dearer friend, return!
 What art! what friendships! oh! what fame resign'd!
 —In yonder glade I trace his mournful urn.

Where is the breast can rage or hate retain,
 And these glad streams and smiling lawns behold?
 Where is the breast can hear the woodland strain,
 And think fair freedom well exchang'd for gold!

Thro' these soft shades delighted let me stray,
 While o'er my head forgotten suns descend!
 Thro' these dear valleys bend my casual way,
 'Till setting life a total shade extend!

Here far from courts, and void of pompous care,
 I'll muse how much I owe mine humbler fate:
 Or shrink to find, how much ambition dares,
 To shine in anguish, and to grieve in state!

Canst thou, O sun! that spotless throne disclose,
 Where her bold arm has left no sanguine stain?
 Where, shew me where, the lineal scepter glows,
 Pure, as the simple crook that rules the plain?

Tremendous pomp! where hate, distrust, and fear,
 In kindred bosoms solve the social tie;
 There not the parent's smile is half sincere;
 Nor void of art the consort's melting eye.

There with the friendly wish, the kindly flame,
 No face is brighten'd, and no bosoms beat ;
 Youth, manhood, age, avow one fordid aim,
 And ev'n the beardless lip essays deceit.

There coward rumours walk their murd'rous round ;
 The glance, that more than rural blame instills ;
 Whispers, that ting'd with friendship doubly wound,
 Pity that injures, and concern that kills.

There anger whets, but love can ne'er engage ;
 Careffing brothers part but to revile ;
 There all men smile, and prudence warns the wife,
 To dread the fatal stroke of all that smile.

There all are rivals ! sister, son, and fire,
 With horrid purpose hug destructive arms ;
 There soft-ey'd maids in murd'rous plots conspire,
 And scorn the gentler mischief of their charms.

Let servile minds one endless watch endure ;
 Day, night, nor hour, their anxious guard resign ;
 But lay me, fate ! on flow'ry banks, secure
 Tho' my whole soul be, like my limbs, supine.

Yes, may my tongue disdain a vassal's care ;
 My lyre resound no prostituted lay ;
 More warm to merit, more elate to wear
 The cap of freedom, than the crown of bays.
 Sooth'd

Sooth'd by the murmurs of my pebbled flood,
I wish it not o'er golden sands to flow ;
Chear'd by the verdure of my spiral wood,
I scorn the quarry, where no shrub can grow.

No midnight pangs the shepherd's peace pursue ;
His tongue, his hand, attempts no secret wound ;
He sings his DELIA, and if she be true,
His love at once, and his ambition's crown'd.

E L E G Y XXIV.

*He takes occasion from the fate of ELEANOR of BRETAGNE , to suggest the imperfect pleasures of a solitary life.

WHEN beauty mourns, by fate's injurious doom,
 Hid from the chearful glance of human eye ;
 When nature's pride inglorious waits the tomb,
 Hard is that heart which checks the rising sigh.

Fair ELEONORA ! wou'd no gallant mind
 The cause of love, the cause of justice own ?
 Matchless thy charms, and was no life resign'd
 To see them sparkle from their native throne ?

Or had fair freedom's hand unveil'd thy charms,
 Well might such brows the regal gem resign ;
 Thy radiant mien might scorn the guilt of arms,
 Yet ALBION'S awful empire yield to thine.

O shame of BRITONS ! in one sullen tow'r
 She wet with royal tears her daily cell ;
 She found keen anguish ev'ry rose devour ;
 They sprung, they shone, they faded, and they fell

* ELEANOR OF BRETAGNE, the lawful heiress of the English crown, upon the death of ARTHUR, in the reign of king JOHN. She was esteemed the beauty of her time ; was imprisoned forty years (till the time of her death) in Bristol castle.

Thro'

Thro' one dim lattice fring'd with ivy round,
 Successive suns a languid radiance threw ;
 To paint how fierce her angry guardian frown'd,
 To mark how fast her waning beauty flew.

This, age might bear ; then fated fancy palls,
 Nor warmly hopes what splendor can supply ;
 Fond youth incessant mourns, if rigid walls
 Restrain its list'ning ear, its curious eye.

Believe me * * * * the pretence is vain !
 This boasted calm that smooths our early days,
 For never yet could youthful mind restrain
 Th' alternate pant for pleasure and for praise.

Ev'n me, by shady oak or limpid spring,
 Ev'n me, the scenes of polish'd life allure ;
 Some genius whispers " Life is on the wing,
 And hard his lot that languishes obscure.

What tho' thy riper mind admire no more—
 The shining cincture, and the broider'd fold
 Can pierce like light'ning thro' the figur'd ore,
 And melt to dross the radiant forms of gold.

Furs, ermins, rods may well attract thy scorn ;
 The futile presents of capricious pow'r !
 But wit, but worth, the public sphere adorn,
 And who but envies then the social hour ?

Can

Can virtue, careless of her pupil's meed,
 Forget how * * * sustains the shepherd's cause?
 Content in shades to tune a lonely reed,
 Nor join the founding pæan of applause?

For public haunts, impell'd by BRITAIN'S weal,
 See GRENVILLE quit the muse's fav'rite ease;
 And shall not swains admire his noble zeal?
 Admiring praise, admiring strive to please?

Life, says the sage, affords no bliss sincere;
 And courts, and cells in vain our hopes renew:
 But ah! where GRENVILLE charms the list'ning ear,
 'Tis hard to think the cheerless maxim true.

The groves may smile; the rivers gently glide;
 Soft thro' the vale resound the lonesome lay;
 Ev'n thickets yield delight, if taste preside,
 But can they please, when LYTTLTON'S away?

Pure as the swain's the breast of * * * glows,
 Ah! were the shepherd's phrase, like his, refin'd!
 But, how improv'd the generous dictate flows
 Thro' the clear medium of a polish'd mind!

Happy the youths who warm with BRITAIN'S love,
 Her inmost wish in * * * periods hear!
 Happy that in the radiant circle move,
 Attendant orbs, where LONSDALE gilds the sphere!
 While

While rural faith, and every polish'd art,
 Each friendly charm, in * * * conspire,
 From public scenes all pensive must you part ;
 All joyless to the greenest fields retire !

Go, plaintive youth ! no more by fount or stream,
 Like some lone halcyon, social pleasure shun ;
 Go dare the light, enjoy its chearful beam,
 And hail the bright procession of the sun.

Then cover'd by thy ripen'd shades, resume
 The silent walk ; no more by passion tost :
 Then seek thy rustic haunts ; the dreary gloom,
 Where ev'ry art that colours life, is lost."—

In vain ! the list'ning muse attends in vain !
 Restraints in hostile bands her motions wait—
 —Yet will I grieve, and sadden all my strain,
 When injur'd beauty mourns the muse's fate.

E L E G Y XXV.

To DELIA, with some flowers; complaining how much his benevolence suffers on account of his humble fortune.

WHate'er could sculpture's curious art employ,
Whate'er the lavish hand of wealth can show'r,
These would I give—and every gift enjoy
That pleas'd my fair—but fate denies the pow'r.

Blest were my lot, to feed the social fires !
To learn the latent wishes of a friend !
To give the boon his native taste admires,
And, for my transport, on his smile depend !

Blest too is he, whose ev'ning ramble strays
Where droop the sons of indigence and care !
His little gifts their gladden'd eyes amaze,
And win, at small expence, their fondest pray'r !

And oh the joy ! to shun the conscious light,
To spare the modest blush ; to give unseen !
Like show'rs that fall behind the veil of night,
Yet deeply tinge the smiling vales with green.

But

But happiest they, who drooping realms relieve !
 Whose virtues in our cultur'd vales appear !
 For whose sad fate a thousand shepherds grieve,
 And fading fields allow the grief sincere.

To call lost worth from its oppressive shade ;
 To fix its equal sphere, and see it shine ;
 To hear it grateful own the generous aid ;
 This, this is transport—but must ne'er be mine.

Faint is my bounded bliss ; nor I refuse
 To range where daizies open, rivers roll ;
 While prose or song the languid hours amuse,
 And soothe the fond impatience of my soul.

Awhile I'll weave the roofs of jasmin bow'rs,
 And urge with trivial cares the loit'ring year ;
 Awhile I'll prune my grove, protect my flow'rs,
 Then, unlamented, press an early bier !

Of those lov'd flow'rs the lifeless corse may share ;
 Some hireling hand a fading wreath bestow ;
 The rest will breathe as sweet, will glow as fair,
 As when their master smil'd to see them glow.

The sequent morn shall wake the silvan quire ;
 The kid again shall wanton ere 'tis noon ;
 Nature will smile, will wear her best attire ;
 O ! let not gentle DELIA smile so soon !

While the rude hearse conveys me flow away,
And careless eyes my vulgar fate proclaim,
Let thy kind tear my utmost worth o'erpay ;
And, softly sighing, vindicate my fame.—

O DELIA ! cheer'd by thy superior praise,
I bless the silent path the fates decree ;
Pleas'd, from the list of my inglorious days,
To raze the moments crown'd with bliss, and thee.

E L E G Y XXVI.

Describing the sorrow of an ingenuous mind, on the melancholy event of a licentious amour.

WHY mourns my friend! why weeps his downcast eye?
 That eye where mirth, where fancy us'd to shine?
 Thy chearful meads reprove that swelling sigh;
 Spring ne'er enamel'd fairer meads than thine.

Art thou not lodg'd in fortune's warm embrace?
 Wert thou not form'd by nature's partial care?
 Blest in thy song, and blest in ev'ry grace
 That wins the friend, or that enchants the fair?

DAMON, said he, thy partial praise restrain;
 Not DAMON's friendship can my peace restore;
 Alas! his very praise awakes my pain,
 And my poor wounded bosom bleeds the more.

For oh! that nature on my birth had frown'd!
 Or fortune fix'd me to some lowly cell!
 Then had my bosom 'scap'd this fatal wound,
 Nor had I bid these vernal sweets, farewell.

But led by fortune's hand, her darling child,
 My youth her vain licentious blifs admir'd;
 In fortune's train the fyre and flatt'ry smil'd,
 And rashly hallow'd all her queen inspir'd.

Of folly studious, ev'n of vices vain,
 Ah vices ! gilded by the rich and gay !
 I chas'd the guileless daughters of the plain,
 Nor dropt the chace, till JESSY was my prey.

Poor artless maid ! to stain thy spotless name,
 Expencc, and art, and toil, united strove ;
 To lure a breast that felt the purest flame,
 Sustain'd by virtue, but betray'd by love.

School'd in the science of love's mazy wiles,
 I cloath'd each feature with affected scorn ;
 I spoke of jealous doubts, and fickle smiles,
 And, feigning, left her anxious and forlorn.

Then, while the fancy'd rage alarm'd her care,
 Warm to deny, and zealous to disprove ;
 I bade my words the wonted softness wear,
 And seiz'd the minute of returning love.

To thee, my DAMON, dare I paint the rest ?
 Will yet thy love a candid ear incline ?
 Assur'd that virtue, by misfortune prest,
 Feels not the sharpness of a pang like mine.

Nine envious moons matur'd her growing shame ;
 Ere while to flaunt it in the face of day ;
 When scorn'd of virtue, stigmatiz'd by fame,
 Low at my feet desponding JESSY lay.

“ HENRY,

“ HENRY, she said, by thy dear form subdu'd,
 See the sad reliques of a nymph undone !
 I find, I find this rising sob renew'd :
 I sigh in shades, and sicken at the sun.

Amid the dreary gloom of night, I cry,
 When will the morn's once pleasing scenes return ?
 Yet what can morn's returning ray supply,
 But foes that triumph, or but friends that mourn !

Alas ! no more that joyous morn appears
 That led the tranquil hours of spotless fame ;
 For I have steep'd a father's couch in tears,
 And ting'd a mother's glowing cheek with shame.

The vocal birds that raise their matin strain,
 The sportive lambs, increase my pensive moan ;
 All seem to chase me from the chearful plain,
 And talk of truth and innocence alone.

If thro' the garden's flow'ry tribes I stray,
 Where bloom the jasmins that could once allure,
 Hope not to find delight in us, they say,
 For we are spotless, JESSY ; we are pure.

Ye flow'rs ! that well reproach a nymph so frail,
 Say, could ye with my virgin fame compare ?
 The brightest bud that scents the vernal gale
 Was not so fragrant, and was not so fair.

Now the grave old alarm the gentler young ;
 And all my fame's abhorr'd contagion flee ;
 Trembles each lip, and falters every tongue,
 That bids the morn propitious smile on me.

Thus for your sake I shun each human eye ;
 I bid the sweets of blooming youth adieu ;
 To die I languish, but I dread to die,
 Left my sad fate shou'd nourish pangs for you.

Raise me from earth ; the pains of want remove,
 And let me silent seek some friendly shore ;
 There only, banish'd from the form I love,
 My weeping virtue shall relapse no more.

Be but my friend ; I ask no dearer name ;
 Be such the meed of some more artful fair ;
 Nor could it heal my peace, or chase my shame,
 That pity gave, what love refus'd to share.

Force not my tongue to ask its scanty bread ;
 Nor hurl thy JESSY to the vulgar crew ;
 Not such the parent's board at which I fed !
 Not such the precept from his lips I drew !

Haply, when age has silver'd o'er my hair,
 Malice may learn to scorn so mean a spoil ;
 Envy may slight a face no longer fair ;
 And pity, welcome, to my native foil."

She

She spoke—nor was I born of savage race ;
 Nor could these hands a niggard boon assign ;
 Grateful she clasp'd me in a last embrace,
 And vow'd to waste her life in pray'rs for mine.

I saw her foot the lofty bark ascend ;
 I saw her breast with every passion heave ;
 I left her—torn from every earthly friend ;
 Oh ! my hard bosom, which could bear to leave !

Brief let me be ; the fatal storm arose ;
 The billows rag'd ; the pilot's art was vain ;
 O'er the tall mast the circling surges close ;
 My JESSY—floats upon the wat'ry plain !

And—see my youth's impetuous fires decay ;
 Seek not to stop reflection's bitter tear ;
 But warn the frolic, and instruct the gay,
 From JESSY floating on her wat'ry bier !

RURAL ELEGANCE :

An ODE to the late Duchefs of SOMERSET.

Written 1750.

WHILE orient skies reftore the day,
And dew-drops catch the lucid ray ;
Amid the fprightly fcenes of morn,
Will aught the mufe inspire ?
Oh ! peace to yonder clamorous horn
That drowns the facred lyre !

Ye rural thanes that o'er the moffy down
Some panting, timorous hare purfue ;
Does nature mean your joys alone to crown ?
Say, does fhe fmoothe her lawns for you ?
For you does echo bid the rocks reply,
And urg'd by rude constraint refound the jovial cry ?

[See

See from the neighbouring hill, forlorn
 The wretched swain your sport survey ;
 He finds his faithful fences torn,
 He finds his labour'd crops a prey ;
 He sees his flock—no more in circles feed ;
 Haply beneath your ravage bleed,
 And with no random curses loads the deed.

Nor yet, ye swains, conclude
 That nature smiles for you alone ;
 Your bounded souls, and your conceptions crude,
 The proud, the selfish boast disown :
 Yours be the produce of the soil ;
 O may it still reward your toil !
 Nor ever the defenceless train
 Of clinging infants, ask support in vain !

But tho' the various harvest gild your plains,
 Does the mere landscape feast your eye ?
 Or the warm hope of distant gains
 Far other cause of glee supply ?
 Is not the red-streak's future juice
 The source of your delight profound,
 Where Ariconium pours her gems profuse,
 Purpling a whole horizon round ?
 Athirst ye praise the limpid stream, 'tis true :
 But tho', the pebbled shores among,
 It mimic no unpleasing song,
 The limpid fountain murmurs not for you.

Unpleas'd ye see the thickets bloom,
Unpleas'd the spring her flowery robe resume ;
 Unmov'd the mountain's airy pile,
 The dappled mead without a smile.
 O let a rural conscious muse,
 For well she knows, your froward sense accuse :
Forth to the solemn oak you bring the square,
And span the maffy trunk, before you cry, 'tis fair.

Nor yet ye learn'd, nor yet ye courtly train,
 If haply from your haunts ye stray
 To waste with us a summer's day,
 Exclude the taste of every swain,
 Nor our untutor'd sense disdain :
 'Tis nature only gives exclusive right
 To relish her supreme delight ;
 She, where she pleases kind or coy,
 Who furnishes the scene, and forms us to enjoy.

Then hither bring the fair ingenuous mind,
 By her auspicious aid refin'd ;
 Lo ! not an hedge-row hawthorn blows,
 Or humble hare-bell paints the plain,
 Or valley winds, or fountain flows,
 Or purple heath is ting'd in vain :
 For such the rivers dash their foaming tides,
 The mountain swells, the dale subsides ;
 Ev'n thriftless furze detains their wandering flight,
 And the rough barren rock grows pregnant with delight.

With

With what suspicious fearful care
 The fordid wretch secures his claim,
 If haply some luxurious heir
 Should alienate the fields that wear his name!
 What scruples left some future birth
 Should litigate a span of earth!
 Bonds, contracts, feoffments, names unmeet for profè,
 The towering muse endures not to disclose;
 Alas! her unrevers'd decree,
 More comprehensive and more free,
 Her lavish charter, taste, appropriates all we see.

Let gondolas their painted flags unfold,
 And be the solemn day enroll'd,
 When, to confirm his lofty plea,
 In nuptial fort, with bridal gold,
 The grave Venetian weds the sea:
 Each laughing muse derides the vow;
 Ev'n ADRIA scorns the mock embrace,
 To some lone hermit on the mountain's brow,
 Allotted, from his natal hour,
 With all her myrtle shores in dow'r.
 His breast to admiration prone
 Enjoys the smile upon her face,
 Enjoys triumphant every grace,
 And finds her more his own.

Fatigu'd with form's oppressive laws,
 When SOMERSET avoids the great ;
 When cloy'd with merited applause,
 She seeks the rural calm retreat ;
 Does she not praise each mossy cell,
 And feel the truth my numbers tell ?
 When deafen'd by the loud acclaim,
 Which genius grac'd with rank obtains,
 Could she not more delighted hear
 Yon throstle chaunt the rising year ?
 Could she not spurn the wreaths of fame,
 To crop the primrose of the plains ?
 Does she not sweets in each fair valley find,
 Lost to the sons of pow'r, unknown to half mankind ?

Ah can she covet there to see
 The splendid slaves, the reptile race,
 That oil the tongue, and bow the knee,
 That slight her merit, but adore her place ?
 Far happier, if aright I deem,
 When from gay throngs, and gilded spires,
 To where the lonely halcyons play,
 Her philosophic step retires :
 While studious of the moral theme,
 She, to some smooth sequester'd stream
 Likens the swain's inglorious day ;
 Pleas'd from the flowery margin to survey,
 How cool, serene, and clear the current glides away.

O blind to truth, to virtue blind,
 Who flight the sweetly-pensive mind !
 On whose fair birth the graces mild,
 And every muse prophetic smil'd.
 Not that the poet's boasted fire
 Should fame's wide-echoing trumpet swell ;
 Or, on the music of his lyre
 Each future age with rapture dwell ;
 The vaunted sweets of praise remove,
 Yet shall such bosoms claim a part
 In all that glads the human heart ;
 Yet these the spirits, form'd to judge and prove [love.
 All nature's charms immense, and heaven's unbounded

And oh ! the transport, most ally'd to song,
 In some fair villa's peaceful bound,
 To catch soft hints from nature's tongue,
 And bid ARCADIA bloom around :
 Whether we fringe the sloping hill,
 Or smoothe below the verdant mead ;
 Whether we break the falling rill,
 Or thro' meandering mazes lead ;
 Or in the horrid bramble's room
 Bid careless groups of roses bloom ;
 Or let some shelter'd lake serene [scene.
 Reflect flow'rs, woods and spires, and brighten all the

O sweet

O sweet disposal of the rural hour !
 O beauties never known to cloy !
 While worth and genius haunt the favour'd bow'r,
 And every gentle breast partakes the joy !
 While charity at eve surveys the swain,
 Enabled by these toils to cheer
 A train of helpless infants dear,
 Speed whistling home across the plain ;
 See vagrant luxury, her hand-maid grown,
 For half her graceless deeds atone, [own.
 And hails the bounteous work, and ranks it with her

Why brand these pleasures with the name
 Of soft, unsocial toils, of indolence and shame ?
 Search but the garden, or the wood,
 Let yon admir'd carnation own,
 Not all was meant for raiment, or for food,
 Not all for needful use alone ;
 There while the seeds of future blossoms dwell,
 'Tis colour'd for the sight, perfum'd to please the smell.

Why knows the nightingale to sing ?
 Why flows the pine's nectareous juice ?
 Why shines with paint the linnet's wing ?
 For sustenance alone ? for use ?
 For preservation ? Every sphere
 Shall bid fair pleasure's rightful claim appear.

And

And sure there seem, of human kind,
 Some born to shun the solemn strife ;
 Some for amusive tasks design'd,
 To soothe the certain ills of life ;
 Grace its lone vales with many a budding rose,
 New founts of bliss disclose,
 Call forth refreshing shades, and decorate repose.

From plains and woodlands ; from the view
 Of rural nature's blooming face,
 Smit with the glare of rank and place,
 To courts the sons of fancy flew ;
 There long had art ordain'd a rival feat ;
 There had she lavish'd all her care
 To form a scene more dazzling fair,
 And call'd them from their green retreat
 To share her proud controul ;
 Had giv'n the robe with grace to flow,
 Had taught exotic gems to glow ;
 And emulous of nature's pow'r,
 Mimick'd the plume, the leaf, the flow'r ;
 Chang'd the complexion's native hue,
 Moulded each rustic limb anew,
 And warp'd the very soul !

Awhile her magic strikes the novel eye,
 Awhile the faery forms delight ;
 And now aloof we seem to fly
 On purple pinions thro' a purer sky,

Where

Where all is wonderous, all is bright :
 Now landed on some spangled shore
 Awhile each dazled maniac roves
 By saphire lakes, thro' em'rald groves.
 Paternal acres please no more ;
 Adieu the simple, the sincere delight——
 Th' habitual scene of hill and dale,
 The rural herds, the vernal gale,
 The tangled vetch's purple bloom,
 The fragrance of the bean's perfume,
 Be theirs alone who cultivate the soil,
 And drink the cup of thirst, and eat the bread of toil.

But soon the pageant fades away !
 'Tis nature only bears perpetual sway.
 We pierce the counterfeit delight,
 Fatigu'd with splendor's irksome beams.
 Fancy again demands the fight
 Of native groves, and wonted streams,
 Pants for the scenes that charm'd her youthful eyes,
 Where truth maintains her court, and banishes disguise.

Then hither oft ye senators retire,
 With nature here high converse hold ;
 For who like STAMFORD her delights admire,
 Like STAMFORD shall with scorn behold
 Th' unequal bribes of pageantry and gold ;

Beneath the British oak's majestic shade,
 Shall see fair truth, immortal maid,
 Friendship in artless guise array'd,
 Honour, and moral beauty shine
 With more attractive charms, with radiance more divine.

Yes, here alone did highest heav'n ordain
 The lasting magazine of charms,
 Whatever wins, whatever warms
 Whatever fancy seeks to share,
 The great, the various, and the fair,
 For ever should remain !

Her impulse nothing may restrain—
 Or whence the joy 'mid columns, tow'rs,
 'Midst all the city's artful trim,
 To rear some breathless vapid flow'rs,
 Or shrubs fuliginously grim :
 From rooms of filken foliage vain,
 To trace the dun far distant grove,
 Where smit with undissembled pain,
 The wood-lark mourns her absent love,
 Borne to the dusty town from native air,
 To mimic rural life, and soothe some vapour'd fair.

But how must faithless art prevail,
 Should all who taste our joy sincere,
 To virtue, truth or science dear,
 Forego a court's alluring pale,

For

For dimpled brook and leafy grove,
 For that rich luxury of thought they love !
 Ah no, from these the public sphere requires
 Example for its giddy bands ;
 From these impartial heav'n demands
 To spread the flame itself inspires ;
 To sift opinion's mingled mafs,
 Impress a nation's taste, and bid the sterling pass.

Happy, thrice happy they,
 Whose graceful deeds have exemplary shone
 Round the gay precincts of a throne,
 With mild effective beams !
 Who bands of fair ideas bring,
 By solemn grott, or shady spring,
 To join their pleasing dreams !
 Theirs is the rural bliss without alloy,
 They only that deserve, enjoy.
 What tho' nor fabled dryad haunt their grove,
 Nor naiad near their fountains rove,
 Yet all embody'd to the mental fight,
 A train of smiling virtues bright
 Shall there the wise retreat allow, [brow,
 Shall twine triumphant palms to deck the wanderer's

And though by faithless friends alarm'd,
 Art have with nature wag'd presumptuous war ;
 By SEYMOUR's winning influence charm'd,
 In whom their gifts united shine,

No longer shall their counsels jar.
 'Tis hers to mediate the peace :
 Near PERCY-lodge, with awe-struck mien,
 The rebel seeks her lawful queen,
 And havock and contention cease.
 I see the rival pow'rs combine,
 And aid each other's fair design ;
 Nature exalt the mound where art shall build ;
 Art shape the gay alcove, while nature paints the fie

Begin, ye songsters of the grove !
 O warble forth your noblest lay ;
 Where SOMERSET vouchsafes to rove
 Ye leverets freely sport and play.
 —Peace to the strepent horn !
 Let no harsh dissonance disturb the morn,
 No sounds inelegant and rude
 Her sacred solitudes profane !
 Unless her candour not exclude
 The lowly shepherd's votive strain,
 Who tunes his reed amidst his rural chear,
 Fearful, yet not averse, that SOMERSET should hear.

O D E to M E M O R Y. 1748.

O Memory! celestial maid!
 Who glean'ft the flow'rets cropt by time;
 And, fuffering not a leaf to fade,
 Preferv'ft the bloffoms of our prime;
 Bring, bring thofe moments to my mind
 When life was new, and LESBIA kind.

And bring that garland to my fight,
 With which my favour'd crook ſhe bound;
 And bring that wreath of rofes bright
 Which then my feftive temples crown'd.
 And to my raptur'd ear convey
 The gentle things ſhe deign'd to fay.

And ſketch with care the muſe's bow'r,
 Where ISIS rolls her ſilver tide;
 Nor yet omit one reed or flow'r
 That ſhines on CHERWELL's verdant ſide;
 If ſo thou may'ft thoſe hours prolong,
 When poliſh'd LYCON join'd my ſong.

The ſong it 'vails not to recite——
 But ſure, to ſoothe our youthful dreams,
 Thoſe banks and ſtreams appear'd more bright
 Than other banks, than other ſtreams:

Or by thy softening pencil shewn,
Affume they beauties not their own ?

And paint that sweetly vacant scene,
When, all beneath the poplar bough,
My spirits light, my soul serene,
I breath'd in verse one cordial vow ;
That nothing should my soul inspire,
But friendship warm, and love entire.

Dull to the sense of new delight,
On thee the drooping muse attends ;
As some fond lover, robb'd of sight,
On thy expressive pow'r depends ;
Nor would exchange thy glowing lines,
To live the lord of all that shines.

But let me chase those vows away
Which at ambition's shrine I made ;
Nor ever let thy skill display
Those anxious moments, ill repaid :
Oh ! from my breast that season raise,
And bring my childhood in its place.

Bring me the bells, the rattle bring,
And bring the hobby I bestrode ;
When pleas'd, in many a sportive ring,
Around the room I jovial rode :
E'en let me bid my lyre adieu,
And bring the whistle that I blew.

Then

[119]

Then will I muse, and penfive say,

Why did not these enjoyments last ?

How sweetly wasted I the day,

While innocence allow'd to waste ?

Ambition's toils alike are vain,

But ah ! for pleasure yield us pain.

The Princess E L I Z A B E T H :

A Ballad alluding to a story recorded of her,
when she was prisoner at WOODSTOCK, 1554.

WILL you hear how once repining
Great ELIZA captive lay ?
Each ambitious thought resigning,
Foe to riches, pomp, and sway ?

While the nymphs and swains delighted
Tript around in all their pride ;
Envyng joys by others flighted,
Thus the royal maiden cry'd.

“ Bred on plains, or born in vallies,
Who would bid those scenes adieu ?
Stranger to the arts of malice,
Who would ever courts pursue ?

Malice never taught to treasure,
Censure never taught to bear :
Love is all the shepherd's pleasure ;
Love is all the damsel's care.

How can they of humble station
Vainly blame the pow'rs above ?
Or accuse the dispensation
Which allows them all to love ?

Love

Love like air is widely given ;
Pow'r nor chance can these restrain ;
Truest, noblest gifts of heaven !
Only purest on the plain !

Peers can no such charms discover,
All in stars and garters drest,
As, on Sundays, does the lover
With his nosegay on his breast.

Pinks and roses in profusion,
Said to fade when CHLOE'S near ;
Fops may use the same allusion ;
But the shepherd is sincere.

Hark to yonder milk-maid singing
Chearly o'er the brimming pail ;
Cowslips all around her springing
Sweetly paint the golden vale.

Never yet did courtly maiden
Move so sprightly, look so fair ;
Never breast with jewels laden
Pour a song so void of care.

Would indulgent heav'n had granted
Me some rural damsel's part !
All the empire I had wanted
Then had been my shepherd's heart.

Then,

Then, with him, o'er hills and mountains,
Free from fetters, might I rove :
Fearless taste the crystal fountains ;
Peaceful sleep beneath the grove.

Rustics had been more forgiving ;
Partial to my virgin bloom :
None had envy'd me when living ;
None had triumph'd o'er my tomb."

ODE to a Young Lady,

Somewhat too sollicitous about her manner of expression.

SURVEY, my fair! that lucid stream
Adown the smiling valley stray;
Would art attempt, or fancy dream,
To regulate its winding way?

So pleas'd I view thy shining hair
In loose dishevel'd ringlets flow:
Not all thy art, not all thy care
Can there one single grace bestow.

Survey again that verdant hill,
With native plants enamel'd o'er;
Say, can the painter's utmost skill
Instruct one flow'r to please us more?

As vain it were, with artful dye,
To change the bloom thy cheeks disclose;
And oh may LAURA, ere she try,
With fresh vermilion paint the rose.

Hark, how the wood-lark's tuneful throat
Can every study'd grace excel;
Let art constrain the rambling note,
And will she, LAURA, please so well?

[124]

Oh ever keep thy native ease,
By no pedantic law confin'd !
For LAURA'S voice is form'd to please,
So LAURA'S words be not unkind.

*Nerine Galatea ! thymo mihi dulcior Hyblæ !
Candidior cygnis, kederâ formosior albâ !*

THE western sky was purpled o'er
With every pleasing ray :
And flocks reviving felt no more
The sultry heats of day :

When from an hazle's artless bower
Soft-warbled STREPHON's tongue ;
He blest the scene, he blest the hour,
While NANCY's praise he sung.

“ Let fops with fickle falsehood range
The paths of wanton love,
While weeping maids lament their change,
And sadden every grove :

But endless blessings crown the day
I saw fair ESHAM's dale !
And every blessing find its way
To NANCY of the Vale.

'Twas

'Twas from AVONA's banks the maid
 Diffus'd her lovely beams ;
 And every shining glance display'd
 The naiad of the streams.

Soft as the wild-duck's tender young,
 That float on AVON's tide ;
 Bright as the water-lily, sprung,
 And glittering near its side.

Fresh as the bordering flowers, her bloom :
 Her eye, all mild to view ;
 The little halcyon's azure plume
 Was never half so blue.

Her shape was like the reed so sleek,
 So taper, strait, and fair ;
 Her dimpled smile, her blushing cheek,
 How charming sweet they were !

Far in the winding Vale retir'd,
 This peerless bud I found ;
 And shadowing rocks, and woods conspir'd
 To fence her beauties round.

That nature in so lone a dell
 Should form a nymph so sweet !
 Or fortune to her secret cell
 Conduct my wandering feet !

Gay lordlings fought her for their bride,
But she would ne'er incline :

“ Prove to your equals true, she cry'd,
As I will prove to mine.

'Tis STREPHON, on the mountain's brow,
Has won my right good will ;
To him I gave my plighted vow,
With him I'll climb the hill.”

Struck with her charms and gentle truth,
I clasp'd the constant fair ;
To her alone I gave my youth,
And vow my future care.

And when this vow shall faithless prove,
Or I those charms forego ;
The stream that saw our tender love,
That stream shall cease to flow.”

ODE to INDOLENCE, 1750.

AH! why for ever on the wing
 Persists my weary'd soul to roam?
 Why, ever cheated, strives to bring
 Or pleasure or contentment home?

Thus the poor bird, that draws his name
 From paradise's honour'd groves,
 Careless fatigues his little frame;
 Nor finds the resting place he loves.

Lo! on the rural mossy bed
 My limbs with careless ease reclin'd;
 Ah, gentle sloth! indulgent spread
 The same soft bandage o'er my mind.

For why should lingering thought invade,
 Yet every worldly prospect cloy?
 Lend me, soft sloth, thy friendly aid,
 And give me peace, debarr'd of joy.

Lov'st thou yon calm and silent flood,
 That never ebbs, that never flows;
 Protected by the circling wood
 From each tempestuous wind that blows?

An

An altar on its bank shall rise,
Where oft thy votary shall be found ;
What time pale autumn lulls the skies,
And sickening verdure fades around.

Ye busy race, ye factious train,
That haunt ambition's guilty shrine ;
No more perplex the world in vain,
But offer here your vows with mine.

And thou, puissant queen ! be kind :
If e'er I shar'd thy balmy pow'r ;
If e'er I sway'd my active mind,
To weave for thee the rural bow'r ;

Dissolve in sleep each anxious care ;
Each unavailing sigh remove ;
And only let me wake to share
The sweets of friendship and of love.

ODE to HEALTH, 1730.

O HEALTH, capricious maid !
 Why dost thou shun my peaceful bow'r,
 Where I had hope to share thy pow'r,
 And blest thy lasting aid ?

Since thou, alas ! art flown,
 It 'vails not whether muse or grace,
 With tempting smile, frequent the place :
 I sigh for thee alone.

Age not forbids thy stay ;
 Thou yet might'st act the friendly part ;
 Thou yet might'st raise this languid heart ;
 Why speed so swift away ?

Thou scorn'st the city-air ;
 I breathe fresh gales o'er furrow'd ground,
 Yet hast not thou my wishes crown'd,
 O false ! O partial fair !

I plunge into the wave ;
 And tho' with purest hands I raise
 A rural altar to thy praise,
 Thou wilt not deign to save.

Amid

Amid my well-known grove,
Where mineral fountains vainly bear
Thy boasted name, and titles fair,
Why scorns thy foot to rove ?

Thou hear'st the sportsman's claim ;
Enabling him, with idle noise,
To drown the muse's melting voice,
And fright the timorous game.

Is thought thy foe ? adieu
Ye midnight lamps ! ye curious tomes !
Mine eye o'er hills and valley roams,
And deals no more with you.

Is it the clime you flee ?
Yet 'midst his unremitting fnows,
The poor LAPONIAN's bosom glows ;
And shares bright rays from thee.

There was, there was a time,
When tho' I scorn'd thy guardian care,
Nor made a vow, nor said a pray'r,
I did not rue the crime.

Who then more blest than I ?
When the glad school-boy's task was done,
And forth, with jocund sprite, I run
To freedom, and to joy ?

How jovial then the day !
What since have all my labours found,
Thus climbing life, to gaze around,
That can thy loss repay ?

Wert thou, alas ! but kind,
Methinks no frown that fortune wears,
Nor lessen'd hopes, nor growing cares,
Could sink my chearful mind.

Whate'er my stars include ;
What other breasts convert to pain,
My tow'ring mind should soon disdain,
Should scorn——Ingratitude !

Repair this mouldering cell,
And blest with objects found at home,
And envying none their fairer dome,
How pleas'd my soul should dwell !

Temperance should guard the doors ;
From room to room should memory stray,
And, ranging all in neat array,
Enjoy her pleasing stores——

There let them rest unknown,
The types of many a pleasing scene ;
But to preserve them bright or clean,
Is thine, fair queen ! alone.

To a LADY of QUALITY,

Fitting up her LIBRARY, 1738.

AH! what is science, what is art,
Or what the pleasure these impart?
Ye trophies which the learn'd pursue
Through endless fruitless toils, adieu!

What can the tedious tomes bestow,
To soothe the miseries they show?
What, like the bliss for him decreed,
Who tends his flock, and tunes his reed!

Say, wretched fancy! thus refin'd
From all that glads the simplest hind,
How rare that object, which supplies
A charm for too discerning eyes!

The polish'd bard, of genius vain,
Endures a deeper sense of pain:
As each invading blast devours
The richest fruits, the fairest flow'rs.

Sages, with irksome waste of time,
The steep ascent of knowledge climb;
Then, from the tow'ring heights they scale
Behold contentment range—the vale

Yet why, ASTERIA, tell us why
We scorn the crowd, when you are nigh ;
Why then does reason seem so fair,
Why learning then, deserve our care ?

Who can unpleas'd your shelves behold,
While you so fair a proof unfold
What force the brightest genius draws
From polish'd wisdom's written laws ?

Where are our humbler tenets flown ?
What strange perfection bids us own
That bliss with toilsome science dwells,
And happiest he, who most excels ?

U P O N A

V I S I T to the same in Winter, 1748.

ON fair ASTERIA's blisful plains,
 Where ever-blooming fancy reigns,
 How pleas'd we pass the winter's day ;
 And charm the dull-ey'd spleen away !

No linnet, from the leafless bough,
 Pours forth her note melodious now ;
 But all admire ASTERIA's tongue,
 Nor wish the linnet's vernal song.

No flow'rs emit their transient rays :
 Yet sure ASTERIA's wit displays
 More various tints, more glowing lines,
 And with perennial beauty shines.

Tho' rifled groves and fetter'd streams
 But ill befriend a poet's dreams :
 ASTERIA's presence wakes the lyre ;
 And well supplies poetic fire.

The fields have lost their lovely dye ;
 No chearful azure decks the sky ;
 Yet still we bless the loursing day :
 ASTERIA smiles—and all is gay.

Hence let the muse no more presume
To blame the winter's dreary gloom ;
Accuse his loitering hours no more ;
But ah ! their envious haste deplore !

For soon, from wit and friendship's reign,
The social hearth, the sprightly vein,
I go—to meet the coming year,
On savage plains, and deserts drear !

I go—to feed on pleasures flown,
Nor find the spring my loss atone !
But 'mid the flowery sweets of May
With pride recal this winter's day.

Irregular O D E after SICKNESS, 1749.

———Melius, cum venerit ipsa, canemus.

TOO long a stranger to repose,
 At length from pain's abhorred couch I rose,
 And wander'd forth alone ;
 To court once more the balmy breeze,
 And catch the verdure of the trees,
 Ere yet their charms were flown.

'Twas from a bank with pansies gay
 I hail'd once more the chearful day,
 The sun's forgotten beams :
 O fun ! how pleasing were thy rays,
 Reflected from the polish'd face
 Of yon refulgent streams !

Rais'd by the scene my feeble tongue
 Essay'd again the sweets of song :
 And thus in feeble strains and slow,
 The loitering numbers 'gan to flow.

“ Come, gentle air ! my languid limbs restore,
 And bid me welcome from the Stygian shore :

For

For sure I heard the tender sighs,
 I seem'd to join the plaintive cries
 Of hapless youths, who thro' the myrtle grove
 Bewail for ever their unfinish'd love :

To that unjoyous clime,
 Torn from the sight of these ethereal skies ;
 Debarr'd the lustre of their DELIA's eyes ;
 And banish'd in their prime.

Come, gentle air ! and, while the thickets bloom,
 Convey the jafmin's breath divine,
 Convey the woodbine's rich perfume,
 Nor spare the sweet-leaft eglantine.
 And may'st thou shun the rugged storm
 Till health her wonted charms explain,
 With rural pleasure in her train,
 To greet me in her fairest form.
 While from this lofty mount I view
 The fons of earth, the vulgar crew,
 Anxious for futile gains beneath me stray,
 And seek with erring step contentment's obvious way.

Come, gentle air ! and thou celestial muse,
 Thy genial flame infuse ;
 Enough to lend a pensive bosom aid,
 And gild retirement's gloomy shade ;
 Enough to rear such rustic lays
 As foes may slight, but partial friends will praise."

The gentle air allow'd my claim ;
 And, more to chear my drooping frame,
 She mix'd the balm of opening flowers ;
 Such as the bee, with chymic powers,
 From HYBLA's fragrant hills inhales,
 Or scents SABEA's blooming vales.

But ah ! the nymphs that heal the pensive mind,
 By prescripts more refin'd,
 Neglect their votary's anxious moan :
 Oh, how should they relieve ?—the muses all were flown.

By flowery plain, or woodland shades,
 I fondly fought the charming maids ;
 By woodland shades, or flow'ry plain,
 I fought them, faithless maids ! in vain !
 When lo ! in happier hour,
 I leave behind my native mead,
 To range where zeal and friendship lead,
 To visit L * * * *'s honour'd bower.
 Ah foolish man ! to seek the tuneful maids
 On other plains, or near less verdant shades ;

Scarce have my footsteps press'd the favour'd ground,
 When sounds ethereal strike my ear ;
 At once celestial forms appear ;
 My fugitives are found !
 The muses here attune their lyres,
 Ah partial ! with unwonted fires ;

Here, hand in hand, with carelefs mien,
The sportive graces trip the green.

But whilst I wander'd o'er a scene fo fair,
Too well at one furvey I trace,
How every muse, and every grace,
Had long employ'd their care.
Lurks not a stone enrich'd with lively stain,
Blooms not a flower amid the vernal store,
Falls not a plume on INDIA'S distant plain,
Glow's not a shell on ADRIA'S rocky shore,
But torn methought from native lands or seas,
From their arrangement, gain fresh pow'r to please.

And some had bent the wildering maze,
Bedeckt with every shrub that blows ;
And some entwin'd the willing sprays,
To shield th' illustrious dame's repose :
Others had grac'd the sprightly dome,
And taught the portrait where to glow ;
Others arrang'd the curious tome ;
Or 'mid the decorated space,
Assign'd the laurel'd bust a place,
And given to learning all the pomp of show.
And now from every task withdrawn,
They met and frisk'd it o'er the lawn.

Ah ! woe is me, said I ;
And * * * 's hilly circuit heard my cry,

Have

Have I for this, with labour strove,
 And lavish'd all my little store
 To fence for you my shady grove,
 And scollop every winding shore ;
 And fringe with every purple rose,
 The saphire stream that down my valley flows ?

Ah ! lovely treacherous maids !
 To quit unseen my votive shades,
 When pale disease, and torturing pain
 Had torn me from the breezy plain,
 And to a restless couch confin'd,
 Who ne'er your wonted tasks declin'd.
 She needs not your officious aid
 To swell the song, or plan the shade ;
 By genuine fancy fir'd,
 Her native genius guides her hand,
 And while she marks the sage command,
 More lovely scenes her skill shall raise,
 Her lyre resound with nobler lays
 Than ever you inspir'd.
 Thus I my rage and grief display ;
 But vainly blame, and vainly mourn,
 Nor will a grace or muse return
 Till LUXBOROUGH lead the way.

Written in a FLOWER BOOK of my own
Colouring, designed for Lady PLI-
MOUTH. 1753-4.

Debitæ nymphis opifex coronæ. HOR.

BRING, FLORA, bring thy treasures here,
The pride of all the blooming year ;
And let me, thence, a garland frame,
To crown this fair, this peerless dame !

But ah ! since envious winter lours,
And HEWELL meads resign their flow'rs,
Let art and friendship's joint essay
Diffuse their flow'rets, in her way.

Not nature can, herself, prepare
A worthy wreath for LESBIA's hair,
Whose temper, like her forehead, smoothe,
Whose thoughts and accents form'd to soothe,
Whose pleasing mien, and make refin'd,
Whose artless breast, and polish'd mind,
From all the nymphs of plain or grove,
Deserv'd and won my PLIMOUTH's love.

A N A C R E O N T I C. 1738.

'T WAS in a cool Aonian glade,
 The wanton CUPID, spent with toil,
 Had sought refreshment from the shade;
 And stretch'd him on the mossy foil.

A vagrant muse drew nigh, and found
 The subtle traitor fast asleep;
 And is it thine to snore profound,
 She said, yet leave the world to weep?

But hush——from this auspicious hour,
 The world, I ween, may rest in peace;
 And robb'd of darts, and stript of pow'r,
 Thy peevish petulance decrease.

Sleep on, poor child! whilst I withdraw,
 And this thy vile artillery hide—
 When the Castalian fount she saw,
 And plung'd his arrows in the tide.

That magic fount—ill-judging maid!
 Shall cause you soon to curse the day
 You dar'd the shafts of love invade;
 And gave his arms redoubled sway.

For

For in a stream so wonderful clear,
When angry CUPID searches round,
Will not the radiant points appear ?
Will not the furtive spoils be found ?

Too soon they were ; and every dart,
Dipt in the muse's mystic spring,
Acquir'd new force to wound the heart ;
And taught at once to love and sing.

Then farewell ye Pierian quire ;
For who will now your altars throng ?
From love we learn to swell the lyre ;
And echo asks no sweeter song.

O D E. Written 1739.

Urit spes animi credula mutui. HOR.

'T WAS not by beauty's aid alone,
 That love usurp'd his airy throne,
 His boasted pow'r display'd :
 'Tis kindness that secures his aim,
 'Tis hope that feeds the kindling flame,
 Which beauty first convey'd.

In CLARA'S eyes, the lightnings view ;
 Her lips with all the rose's hue
 Have all its sweets combin'd ;
 Yet vain the blush, and faint the fire,
 'Till lips at once, and eyes conspire
 To prove the charmer kind——

Tho' wit might gild the tempting snare,
 With softest accent, sweetest air,
 By envy's self admir'd ;
 If LESBIA'S wit betray'd her scorn,
 In vain might every grace adorn
 What every muse inspir'd.

Thus airy STREPHON tun'd his lyre——
 He scorn'd the pangs of wild desire,
 Which love-sick swains endure :
 Resolv'd to brave the keenest dart ;
 Since frowns could never wound his heart,
 And smiles——must ever cure.

But ah ! how false these maxims prove,
 How frail security from love,
 Experience hourly shows !
 Love can imagin'd smiles supply,
 On every charming lip and eye
 Eternal sweets bestows.

In vain we trust the fair-one's eyes ;
 In vain the sage explores the skies,
 To learn from stars his fate :
 'Till led by fancy wide astray,
 He finds no planet mark his way ;
 Convinc'd and wise——too late.

As partial to their words we prove ;
 Then boldly join the lifts of love,
 With towering hopes supply'd :
 So heroes, taught by doubtful shrines,
 Mistook their deity's designs ;
 Then took the field——and dy'd.

*Optima quæque dies miseris mortalibus ævi
Prima fugit—* VIRG.

A Tear bedews my DELIA'S eye,
To think yon playful kid must die ;
From crystal spring, and flowery mead,
Must, in his prime of life, recede !

Erewhile, in sportive circles round
She saw him wheel, and frisk, and bound ;
From rock to rock pursue his way,
And, on the fearful margin, play.

Pleas'd on his various freaks to dwell,
She saw him climb my rustic cell ;
Thence eye my lawns with verdure bright,
And seem all ravish'd at the sight.

She tells, with what delight he stood,
To trace his features in the flood :
Then skip'd aloof with quaint amaze ;
And then drew near again to gaze.

She tells me how with eager speed
He flew, to hear my vocal reed ;
And how, with critic face profound,
And stedfast ear, devour'd the sound.

His every frolic, light as air,
 Deserves the gentle DELIA's care ;
 And tears bedew her tender eye,
 To think the playful kid must die.——

But knows my DELIA, timely wife,
 How soon this blameless æra flies ?
 While violence and craft succeed ;
 Unfair design, and ruthless deed !

Soon would the vine his wounds deplore,
 And yield her purple gifts no more ;
 Ah soon, eras'd from every grove
 Were DELIA's name, and STREPHON's love.

No more those bow'rs might STREPHON see,
 Where first he fondly gaz'd on thee ;
 No more those beds of flow'rets find,
 Which for thy charming brows he twin'd.

Each wayward passion soon would tear
 His bosom, now so void of care ;
 And, when they left his ebbing vein,
 What, but insipid age, remain ?

Then mourn not the decrees of fate,
 That gave his life so short a date ;
 And I will join thy tenderest sighs,
 To think that youth so swiftly flies !

SONGS, written chiefly between the
Year 1737 and 1742.

S O N G I.

I Told my nymph, I told her true,
My fields were small, my flocks were few ;
While faltering accents spoke my fear,
That FLAVIA might not prove sincere.

Of crops destroy'd by vernal cold,
And vagrant sheep that left my fold :
Of these she heard, yet bore to hear ;
And is not FLAVIA then sincere ?

How chang'd by fortune's fickle wind,
The friends I lov'd became unkind,
She heard, and shed a generous tear ;
And is not FLAVIA then sincere ?

How, if she deign'd my love to bless,
My FLAVIA must not hope for dress ;
This too she heard, and smil'd to hear ;
And FLAVIA sure must be sincere.

Go shear your flocks, ye jovial swains,
Go reap the plenty of your plains ;
Despoil'd of all which you revere,
I know my FLAVIA's love sincere.

S O N G II. The L A N D S K I P.

HOW pleas'd within my native bowers
Erewhile I pass'd the day!
Was ever scene so deck'd with flowers?
Were ever flowers so gay?

How sweetly smil'd the hill, the vale,
And all the landskip round!
The river gliding down the dale!
The hill with beeches crown'd!

But now, when urg'd by tender woes
I speed to meet my dear,
That hill and stream my zeal oppose,
And check my fond career.

No more, since DAPHNE was my theme,
Their wonted charms I see:
That verdant hill, and silver stream,
Divide my love and me.

S O N G III.

YE gentle nymphs and generous dames,
 That rule o'er every British mind ;
 Be sure ye soothe their amorous flames,
 Be sure your laws are not unkind.

For hard it is to wear their bloom
 In unremitting sighs away :
 To mourn the night's oppressive gloom,
 And faintly bless the rising day.

And cruel 'twere a free-born swain,
 A British youth should vainly moan ;
 Who scornful of a tyrant's chain,
 Submits to yours, and yours alone.

Nor pointed spear, nor links of steel,
 Could e'er those gallant minds subdue,
 Who beauty's wounds with pleasure feel,
 And boast the fetters wrought by you.

S O N G IV. The S K Y - L A R K.

G O, tuneful bird, that glad'st the skies,
 To DAPHNE's window speed thy way;
 And there on quiv'ring pinions rise,
 And there thy vocal art display.

And if she deign thy notes to hear,
 And if she praise thy matin song,
 Tell her the sounds that soothe her ear,
 To DAMON's native plains belong.

Tell her, in livelier plumes array'd,
 The bird from Indian groves may shine;
 But ask the lovely partial maid,
 What are his notes compar'd to thine?

Then bid her treat yon witlefs beau,
 And all his flaunting race with scorn;
 And lend an ear to DAMON's woe,
 Who sings her praise, and sings forlorn.

S O N G V,

*Ab! ego non aliter tristes evincere morbos
Optarem, quam te sic quoque velle putem.*

ON every tree, in every plain,
I trace the jovial spring in vain!
A fickly languor veils mine eyes,
And fast my waning vigor flies.

Nor flow'ry plain, nor budding tree,
That smile on others, smile on me;
Mine eyes from death shall court repose,
Nor shed a tear before they close.

What blifs to me can seasons bring?
Or, what the needless pride of spring?
The cypress bough, that suits the bier,
Retains its verdure all the year.

'Tis true, my vine so fresh and fair,
Might claim awhile my wonted care;
My rural store some pleasure yield;
So white a flock, so green a field!

My friends, that each in kindness vie,
Might well expect one parting sigh ;
Might well demand one tender tear ;
For when was DAMON unfincere ?

But ere I ask once more to view
Yon setting sun his race renew,
Inform me, swains ; my friends, declare,
Will pitying DELIA join the prayer ?

SONG VI. The Attribute of VENUS.

YES; FULVIA is like VENUS fair ;
 Has all her bloom, and shape, and air :
 But still, to perfect every grace,
 She wants—the smile upon her face.

The crown majestic JUNO wore ;
 And CYNTHIA's brow the crescent bore,
 An helmet mark'd MINERVA's mien,
 But smiles distinguish'd beauty's queen.

Her train was form'd of smiles and loves,
 Her chariot drawn by gentlest doves ;
 And from her zone, the nymph may find,
 'Tis beauty's province to be kind.

Then smile, my fair ; and all whose aim
 Aspires to paint the Cyprian dame,
 Or bid her breathe in living stone,
 Shall take their forms from you alone.

SONG VII. 1744.

THE lovely DELIA smiles again!
 That killing frown has left her brow:
 Can she forgive my jealous pain,
 And give me back my angry vow?

Love is an April's doubtful day:
 Awhile we see the tempest low'r;
 Anon the radiant heav'n survey,
 And quite forget the flitting show'r.

The flow'rs, that hung their languid head,
 Are burnish'd by the transient rains;
 The vines their wonted tendrils spread,
 And double verdure gilds the plains.

The sprightly birds, that droop'd no less
 Beneath the pow'r of rain and wind,
 In every raptur'd note, express
 The joy I feel—when thou art kind.

SONG VIII. 1742.

WHEN bright ROXANA treads the green,
 In all the pride of dress and mien;
 Averse to freedom, love, and play,
 The dazzling rival of the day:
 None other beauty strikes mine eye,
 The lilies droop, the roses die.

But when, disclaiming art, the fair
 Assumes a soft engaging air;
 Mild as the opening morn of May,
 Familiar, friendly, free and gay:
 The scene improves, where'er she goes,
 More sweetly smile the pink and rose.

O lovely maid! propitious hear,
 Nor deem thy shepherd insincere;
 Pity a wild illusive flame,
 That varies objects still the same:
 And let their very changes prove
 The never-vary'd force of love.

SONG IX. 1743. VALENTINE'S DAY.

TIS said that under distant skies,
 Nor you the fact deny;
 What first attracts an Indian's eyes
 Becomes his deity.

Perhaps a lily, or a rose,
 That shares the morning's ray,
 May to the waking swain disclose
 The regent of the day.

Perhaps a plant in yonder grove,
 Enrich'd with fragrant pow'r,
 May tempt his vagrant eyes to rove,
 Where blooms the sov'reign flow'r.

Perch'd on the cedar's topmost bough,
 And gay with gilded wings,
 Perchance, the patron of his vow,
 Some artless linnet sings.

The swain surveys her pleas'd, afraid,
 Then low to earth he bends;
 And owns upon her friendly aid,
 His health, his life depends.

Vain

Vain futile idols, bird or flow'r,
To tempt a votary's pray'r!—
How would his humble homage tow'r
Should he behold my Fair!

Yes—might the pagan's waking eyes,
O'er FLAVIA's beauty range,
He there would fix his lasting choice,
Nor dare, nor wish to change.

S O N G X. 1743.

THE fatal hours are wonderous near,
 That, from these fountains, bear my dear;
 A little space is giv'n; in vain;
 She robs my fight, and thuns the plain.

A little space, for me to prove
 My boundless flame, my endless love;
 And like the train of vulgar hours,
 Invidious time that space devours.

Near yonder beech is DELIA'S way,
 On that I gaze the livelong day;
 No eastern monarch's dazzling pride
 Should draw my longing eyes aside.

The chief, that knows of succours nigh,
 And sees his mangled legions die,
 Casts not a more impatient glance,
 To see the loitering aids advance.

Not more, the school-boy that expires
 Far from his native home, requires
 To see some friend's familiar face,
 Or meet a parent's last embrace——

She

She comes—but ah! what crouds of beaux
In radiant bands my fair enclose;
Oh! better hadst thou shun'd the green,
Oh DELIA! better far unseen.

Methinks, by all my tender fears,
By all my sighs, by all my tears,
I might from torture now be free—
'Tis more than death to part from thee!

SONG XI. 1744.

PERHAPS it is not love, said I,
 That melts my soul when FLAVIA'S nigh;
 Where wit and sense like her's agree,
 One may be pleas'd, and yet be free.

The beauties of her polish'd mind,
 It needs no lover's eye to find;
 The hermit freezing in his cell,
 Might wish the gentle FLAVIA well.

It is not love—averse to bear
 The servile chain that lovers wear;
 Let, let me all my fears remove,
 My doubts dispel—it is not love—

Oh! when did wit so brightly shine
 In any form less fair than thine?
 It is—it is love's subtle fire,
 And under friendship lurks desire.

S O N G XII. 1744.

O'ER defert plains, and rusby meers,
And wither'd heaths I rove ;
Where tree, nor spire, nor cot appears,
I pass to meet my love.

But tho' my path were damask'd o'er
With beauties e'er so fine ;
My busy thoughts would fly before,
To fix alone—on thine.

No fir-crown'd hills cou'd give delight,
No palace please mine eye :
No pyramid's aerial height,
Where mouldering monarchs lie.

Unmov'd, should Eastern kings advance ;
Could I the pageant see :
Splendour might catch one scornful glance,
Not steal one thought from thee.

SONG XIII. The SCHOLAR'S RELAPSE.

BY the side of a grove, at the foot of a hill,
 Where whisper'd the beech, and where murmur'd
 I vow'd to the muses my time and my care, [the rill;
 Since neither cou'd win me the smiles of my fair.

Free I rang'd like the birds, like the birds free I fung,
 And DELIA's lov'd name scarce escap'd from my tongue:
 But if once a smooth accent delighted my ear,
 I shou'd wish, unawares, that my DELIA might hear.

With fairest ideas my bosom I stor'd,
 Allusive to none but the nymph I ador'd!
 And the more I with study my fancy refin'd,
 The deeper impression she made on my mind.

So long as of nature the charms I pursue,
 I still must my DELIA's dear image renew:
 The graces have yielded with DELIA to rove,
 And the muses are all in alliance with love.

SONG XIV. The ROSE-BUD.

SEE, DAPHNE, see, FLORELIO cry'd,
 And learn the sad effects of pride ;
 Yon shelter'd rose, how safe conceal'd !
 How quickly blasted, when reveal'd !

The sun with warm attractive rays
 Tempts it to wanton in the blaze ;
 A gale succeeds from Eastern skies,
 And all its blushing radiance dies.

So you, my fair, of charms divine ;
 Will quit the plains too fond to shine
 Where fame's transporting rays allure,
 Tho' here more happy, more secure.

The breath of some neglected maid
 Shall make you sigh you left the shade :
 A breath to beauty's bloom unkind,
 As, to the rose, an Eastern wind,

The nymph reply'd—You first, my swain,
 Confine your sonnets to the plain ;
 One envious tongue alike difarms,
 You, of your wit, me, of my charms.

What is, unknown, the poet's skill ?
 Or what, unheard, the tuneful thrill ?
 What, unadmir'd, a charming mien,
 Or what the rose's blush, unseen ?

S O N G X V. W I N T E R. 1746.

NO more, ye warbling birds, rejoice:
 Of all that cheer'd the plain,
 Echo alone preserves her voice,
 And she—repeats my pain.

Where'er my lovesick limbs I lay,
 To shun the rushing wind,
 Its busy murmur seems to say,
 " She never will be kind !"

The naiads, o'er their frozen urns,
 In icy chains repine ;
 And each in sullen silence mourns
 Her freedom lost, like mine !

Soon will the sun's returning rays
 The cheerless frost controul ;
 When will relenting DELIA chase
 The winter of my soul ?

S O N G XVI. DAPHNE'S Visit.

YE birds ! for whom I rear'd the grove,
 With melting lay salute my love :
 My DAPHNE with your notes detain :
 Or I have rear'd my grove in vain.

Ye flow'rs ! before her footsteps rise ;
 Display at once your brightest dyes ;
 That she your opening charms may see :
 Or what were all your charms to me ?

Kind Zephyr ! brush each fragrant flow'r,
 And shed its odours round my bow'r :
 Or never more, O gentle wind,
 Shall I, from thee, refreshment find.

Ye streams ! if e'er your banks I lov'd,
 If e'er your native sounds improv'd,
 May each soft murmur soothe my fair :
 Or oh ! 'twill deepen my despair.

And thou, my grot ! whose lonely bounds
 The melancholy pine furrounds,
 May DAPHNE praise thy peaceful gloom ;
 Or thou shalt prove her DAMON's tomb.

SONG XVII. Written in a Collection of BACCHANALIAN SONGS.

A DIEU, ye jovial youths, who join
To plunge old care in floods of wine;
And, as your dazled eye-balls roll,
Discern him struggling in the bowl,

Not yet is hope so wholly flown,
Not yet is thought so tedious grown,
But limpid stream and shady tree
Retain, as yet, some sweets for me.

And see, thro' yonder silent grove,
See yonder does my DAPHNE rove:
With pride her foot-steps I pursue,
And bid your frantic joys adieu,

The sole confusion I admire,
Is that my DAPHNE'S eyes inspire:
I scorn the madness you approve,
And value reason next to love.

SONG XVIII. Imitated from the FRENCH.

YES, these are the scenes where with Iris I stray'd
But short was her sway for so lovely a maid!
In the bloom of her youth to a cloyster she run;
In the bloom of her graces, too fair for a nun!
Ill-grounded, no doubt, a devotion must prove
So fatal to beauty, so killing to love!

Yes, these are the meadows, the shrubs and the plains;
Once the scene of my pleasures, the scene of my pains;
How many soft moments I spent in this grove!
How fair was my nymph! and how fervent my love!
Be still tho', my heart! thine emotion give o'er;
Remember, the season of love is no more.

With her how I stray'd amid fountains and bow'rs,
Or loiter'd behind and collected the flow'rs!
Then breathless with ardor my fair-one purfu'd,
And to think with what kindness my garland she view'd!
But be still, my fond heart! this emotion give o'er;
Fain wouldst thou forget thou must love her no more.

The HALCYON.

WHY o'er the verdant banks of ooze
Does yonder halcyon speed so fast ;
'Tis all because she would not lose
Her fav'rite calm that will not last.

The sun with azure paints the skies,
The stream reflects each flow'ry spray ;
And frugal of her time, she flies
To take her fill of love and play.

See her, when rugged Boreas blows,
Warm in some rocky cell remain ;
To seek for pleasure, well she knows,
Would only then enhance the pain.

Descend, she cries, thou hated show'r,
Deform my limpid waves to-day,
For I have chose a fairer hour
To take my fill of love and play.

You too, my SILVIA, fure will own
Life's azure seasons swiftly roll :
And when our youth, or health is flown,
To think of love but shocks the soul.

Could

[171]

Could DAMON but deserve thy charms,
As thou art DAMON's only theme ;
He'd fly as quick to DELIA's arms,
As yonder halcyon skims the stream.

ODE.

O D E.

SO dear my LUCIO is to me,
 So well our minds and tempers blend ;
 That seasons may for ever flee,
 And ne'er divide me from my friend ;
 But let the favour'd boy forbear
 To tempt with love my only fair.

O LYCON, born when every muse,
 When every grace benignant smil'd,
 With all a parent's breast could chuse
 To bless her lov'd, her only child ;
 'Tis thine, so richly grac'd to prove
 More noble cares, than cares of love.

Together we from early youth
 Have trod the flowery tracks of time,
 Together mus'd in search of truth,
 O'er learned sage, or bard sublime ;
 And well thy cultur'd breast I know,
 What wonderful treasure it can show.

Come then, resume thy charming lyre,
 And sing some patriot's worth sublime,
 Whilst I in fields of soft desire,
 Consume my fair and fruitless prime ;
 Whose reed aspires but to display
 The flame that burns me night and day.

O come!

O come! the dryads of the woods
Shall daily foothe thy studious mind,
The blue-ey'd nymphs of yonder floods
Shall meet and court thee to be kind;
And fame sits listning for thy lays
To swell her trump with Lucio's praise.

Like me, the plover fondly tries
- To lure the sportsman from her nest,
And flutt'ring on with anxious cries,
Too plainly shews her tortur'd breast:
O let him, conscious of her care,
Pity her pains, and learn to spare.

A PASTORAL ODE,

To the Honourable

Sir RICHARD LYTTELTON.

THE morn dispens'd a dubious light;
A fullen mist had stol'n from fight
Each pleasing vale and hill;
When DAMON left his humble bowers
To guard his flocks, to fence his flowers,
Or check his wandering rill.

Tho' school'd from fortune's paths to fly,
The swain beneath each low'ring sky,
Would oft his fate bemoan;
That he, in sylvan shades, forlorn!
Must waste his cheerless even and morn,
Nor prais'd, nor lov'd, nor known.

No friend to fame's obstreperous noise,
Yet to the whispers of her voice,
Soft murmuring, not a foe:
The pleasures he thro' choice declin'd,
When gloomy fogs depress'd his mind,
It griev'd him to forego.

Griev'd

Griev'd him to lurk the lakes beside,
 Where coots in rushy dingles hide,
 And moorcocks shun the day ;
 While caitiff bitterns, undismay'd,
 Remark the swain's familiar shade,
 And scorn to quit their prey.

But see, the radiant sun once more
 The brightening face of heaven restore,
 And raise the doubtful dawn ;
 And more to gild his rural sphere,
 At once the brightest train appear,
 That ever trod the lawn.

Amazement chill'd the shepherd's frame,
 To think * BRIDGEWATER'S honour'd name
 Should grace his rustic cell ;
 That she, on all whose motions wait
 Distinction, titles, rank and state,
 Should rove where shepherds dwell.

But true it is, the generous mind,
 By candour sway'd, by taste refin'd,
 Will nought but vice disdain ;
 Nor will the breast where fancy glows
 Deem every flower a weed, that blows
 Amid the desert plain.

* The Duchess of BRIDGEWATER, married to Sir RICHARD LYTTLETON.

Beseems it such, with honour crown'd;
 To deal its lucid beams around,
 Nor equal meed receive :
 At most such garlands from the field,
 As cowslips, pinks, and pansies yield,
 And rural hands can weave.

Yet strive, ye shepherds, strive to find,
 And weave the fairest of the kind,
 The prime of all the spring ;
 If haply thus yon lovely fair
 May round their temples deign to wear
 The trivial wreaths you bring.

O how the peaceful halcyons play'd,
 Where'er the conscious lake betray'd
 ATHENIA'S placid mien !
 How did the sprightlier linnets throng,
 Where PAPHIA'S charms requir'd the song,
 Mid hazel copses green !

Lo, DARTMOUTH on those banks reclin'd,
 While busy fancy calls to mind
 The glories of his line ;
 Methinks my cottage rears its head,
 The ruin'd walls of yonder shed,
 As thro' enchantment, shine.

But who the nymph that guides their way ?
 Could ever nymph descend to stray
 From HAGLEY's fam'd retreat ?
 Else by the blooming features fair,
 The faultless make, the matchless air,
 'Twere CYNTHIA's form compleat.

So would some tuberoſe delight,
 That ſtruck the pilgrim's wondering fight
 'Mid lonely deſerts drear ;
 All as at eve, the ſovereign flower,
 Diſpenſes round its balmy power,
 And crowns the fragrant year.

Ah, now no more, the ſhepherd cry'd,
 Muſt I ambition's charms deride,
 Her ſubtle force diſown ;
 No more of fawns or fairies dream,
 While fancy, near each cryſtal ſtream,
 Shall paint theſe forms alone.

By low-brow'd rock, or pathleſs mead,
 I deem'd that ſplendour ne'er ſhould lead
 My dazled eyes aſtray ;
 But who, alas ! will dare contend,
 If beauty add, or merit blend
 Its more illuſtrious ray ?

Nor is it long—O plaintive swain !
 Since GUERNSEY saw, without disdain,
 Where, hid in woodlands green,
 The *partner of his early days,
 And once the rival of his praise,
 Had stol'n thro' life unseen.

Scarce faded is the vernal flower,
 Since STAMFORD left his honour'd bower
 To smile familiar here :
 O form'd by nature to disclose
 How fair that courtesy which flows
 From social warmth sincere.

Nor yet have many moons decay'd,
 Since POLLIO fought this lonely shade,
 Admir'd this rural maze :
 The noblest breast that virtue fires,
 The graces love, the muse inspires,
 Might pant for POLLIO's praise.

Say THOMSON here was known to rest,
 For him yon vernal seat I drest,
 Ah, never to return !
 In place of wit, and melting strains,
 And social mirth, it now remains
 To weep beside his urn.

* They were school-fellows.

Come then, my LELIUS, come once more,
 And fringe the melancholy shore
 With roses and with bays,
 While I each wayward fate accuse,
 That envy'd his impartial muse
 To sing your early praise.

While PHILO, to whose favour'd sight,
 Antiquity, with full delight,
 Her inmost wealth displays;
 Beneath yon ruin's moulder'd wall
 Shall muse, and with his friend recall
 The pomp of ancient days.

Here too shall CONWAY's name appear,
 He prais'd the stream so lovely clear,
 That shone the reeds among;
 Yet clearness could it not disclose,
 To match the rhetoric that flows
 From CONWAY's polish'd tongue.

Ev'n PITT, whose fervent periods roll
 Resistless, thro' the kindling soul
 Of senates, councils, kings!
 Tho' form'd for courts, vouchsaf'd to rove
 Inglorious, thro' the shepherd's grove,
 And ope his bashful springs.

But what can courts discover more,
 Than these rude haunts have seen before,
 Each fount and shady tree ?
 Have not these trees and fountains seen
 The pride of courts, the winning mien
 Of peerless AYLESBURY ?

And GRENVILLE, she whose radiant eyes
 Have mark'd by slow gradation rise
 The princely piles of STOW ;
 Yet prais'd these unembellish'd woods,
 And smil'd to see the babbling floods
 Thro' self-worn mazes flow.

Say DARTMOUTH, who your banks admir'd,
 Again beneath your caves retir'd,
 Shall grace the pensive shade ;
 With all the bloom, with all the truth,
 With all the sprightliness of youth,
 By cool reflection sway'd ?

Brave, yet humane, shall SMITH appear,
 Ye sailors, tho' his name be dear,
 Think him not yours alone :
 Grant him in other spheres to charm,
 The shepherds breasts tho' mild are warm,
 And ours are all his own.

O LYTTELTON! my honour'd guest,
 Could I describe thy generous breast,
 Thy firm; yet polish'd mind;
 How public love adorns thy name,
 How fortune too conspires with fame;
 The song should please mankind.

VERSES written towards the close of the Year
 1748, to WILLIAM LYTTELTON, Esq;

HOW blithely pass'd the summer's day!
 How bright was every flow'r!
 While friends arriv'd, in circles gay,
 To visit DAMON's bow'r!

But now, with silent step, I range
 Along some lonely shore;
 And DAMON's bow'r, alas the change!
 Is gay with friends no more.

Away to crowds and cities borne
 In quest of joy they steer;
 Whilst I, alas! am left forlorn,
 To weep the parting year!

O penfive Autumn! how I grieve
 Thy sorrowing face to see!
 When languid suns are taking leave
 Of every drooping tree.

Ah let me not, with heavy eye,
 This dying scene survey !
 Haste, Winter, haste ; usurp the sky ;
 Compleat my bow'r's decay.

Ill can I bear the motley cast
 Yon sickening leaves retain ;
 That speak at once of pleasure past,
 And bode approaching pain.

At home unblest, I gaze around,
 My distant scenes require ;
 Where all in murky vapours drown'd
 Are hamlet, hill, and spire.

Tho' THOMSON, sweet descriptive bard !
 Inspiring Autumn sung ;
 Yet how should we the months regard,
 That stopp'd his flowing tongue ?

Ah luckless months, of all the rest,
 To whose hard share it fell !
 For sure he was the gentlest breast
 That ever sung so well.

And see, the swallows now disown
 The roofs they lov'd before ;
 Each, like his tuneful genius, flown
 To glad some happier shore.

The wood-nymph eyes, with pale affright,
 The sportsman's frantic deed ;
 While hounds and horns and yells unite
 To drown the muse's reed.

Ye fields with blighted herbage brown !
 Ye skies no longer blue !
 Too much we feel from fortune's frown,
 To bear these frowns from you.

Where is the mead's unfullied green?
 The zephyr's balmy gale ?
 And where sweet friendship's cordial mien,
 That brighten'd every vale ?

What tho' the vine disclose her dyes,
 And boast her purple store ;
 Not all the vineyard's rich supplies
 Can soothe our sorrows more.

He! he is gone, whose moral strain
 Could wit and mirth refine;
 He! he is gone, whose social vein
 Surpass'd the pow'r of wine.

Fast by the streams he deign'd to praise,
 In yon sequester'd grove,
 To him a votive urn I raise ;
 To him, and friendly love.

Yes there, my friend ! forlorn and fad,
I grave your THOMSON'S name ;
And there, his lyre ; which fate forbad
To found your growing fame.

There shall my plaintive song recount
Dark themes of hopeless woe ;
And, faster than the dropping fount,
I'll teach mine eyes to flow.

There leaves, in spite of Autumn, green,
Shall shade the hallow'd ground ;
And Spring will there again be seen,
To call forth flowers around.

But no kind funs will bid me share,
Once more, his social hour ;
Ah Spring ! thou never canst repair
This loss, to DAMON'S bow'r.

J E M M Y D A W S O N ,

A BALLAD; written about the Time of his Execution, in the Year 1745.

C O M E listen to my mournful tale,
Ye tender hearts and lovers dear;
Nor will you scorn to heave a sigh,
Nor need you blush to shed a tear.

And thou, dear KITTY, peerless maid,
Do thou a pensive ear incline;
For thou canst weep at every woe;
And pity every plaint—but mine.

Young DAWSON was a gallant boy,
A brighter never trod the plain;
And well he lov'd one charming maid,
And dearly was he lov'd again.

One tender maid, she lov'd him dear,
Of gentle blood the damsel came;
And faultless was her beauteous form,
And spotless was her virgin fame.

But

But curse on party's hateful strife,
 That led the favour'd youth astray ;
 The day the rebel clans appear'd,
 O had he never seen that day!

Their colours, and their fash he wore,
 And in the fatal dress was found ;
 And now he must that death endure,
 Which gives the brave the keenest wound.

How pale was then his true-love's cheek,
 When JEMMY's sentence reach'd her ear!
 For never yet did Alpine snows
 So pale, or yet so chill appear.

With faltering voice, she weeping said,
 Oh DAWSON, monarch of my heart ;
 Think not thy death shall end our loves,
 For thou and I will never part.

Yet might sweet mercy find a place,
 And bring relief to JEMMY's woes ;
 O GEORGE, without a pray'r for thee,
 My orisons should never close.

The gracious prince that gave him life,
 Would crown a never-dying flame ;
 And every tender babe I bore
 Should learn to list the giver's name.

But

But tho' he should be dragg'd in scorn
To yonder ignominious tree ;
He shall not want one constant friend
To share the cruel fates' decree.

O then her mourning coach was call'd,
The sledge mov'd slowly on before ;
Tho' borne in a triumphal car,
She had not lov'd her fav'rite more.

She follow'd him, prepar'd to view,
The terrible behests of law ;
And the last scene of JEMMY'S woes,
With calm and stedfast eye she saw.

Distorted was that blooming face,
Which she had fondly lov'd so long ;
And stifled was that tuneful breath,
Which in her praise had sweetly sung:

And fever'd was that beauteous neck,
Round which her arms had fondly clos'd ;
And mangled was that beauteous breast,
On which her lovesick head repos'd :

And ravish'd was that constant heart,
She did to ev'ry heart prefer ;
For tho' it could its king forget,
'Twas true and loyal still to her.

Amid those unrelenting flames,
She bore this constant heart to see ;
But when 'twas moulder'd into dust,
Yet, yet, she cry'd, I follow thee.

My death, my death alone can shew
The pure, the lasting love I bore ;
Accept, O heav'n! of woes like ours,
And let us, let us weep no more.

The dismal scene was o'er and past,
The lover's mournful hearse retir'd ;
The maid drew back her languid head,
And sighing forth his name, expir'd.

Tho' justice ever must prevail,
The tear my KITTY sheds, is due ;
For seldom shall she hear a tale
So sad, so tender, yet so true.

A Pastoral BALLAD, in Four Parts.

Written 1743.

Arbusta humilesque myricæ. VIRG.

I. A B S E N C E.

YE shepherds so chearful and gay,
Whose flocks never carelessly roam;
Should CORYDON's happen to stray,
Oh! call the poor wanderers home,
Allow me to muse and to sigh,
Nor talk of the change that ye find;
None once was so watchful as I:
—I have left my dear PHYLLIS behind.

Now I know what it is, to have strove
With the torture of doubt and desire;
What it is, to admire and to love,
And to leave her we love and admire.
Ah lead forth my flock in the morn,
And the damps of each ev'ning repel;
Alas! I am faint and forlorn:
—I have bade my dear PHYLLIS farewell.

Since

Since PHYLLIS vouchsaf'd me a look,
 I never once dreamt of my vine ;
 May I lose both my pipe and my crook,
 If I knew of a kid that was mine.
 I priz'd every hour that went by,
 Beyond all that had pleas'd me before ;
 But now they are past, and I sigh ;
 And I grieve that I priz'd them no more.

But why do I languish in vain ?
 Why wander thus pensively here ?
 Oh ! why did I come from the plain,
 Where I fed on the smiles of my dear ?
 They tell me, my favourite maid,
 The pride of that valley, is flown ;
 Alas ! where with her I have stray'd,
 I could wander with pleasure, alone.

When forc'd the fair nymph to forego,
 What anguish I felt at my heart !
 Yet I thought—but it might not be so—
 'Twas with pain that she saw me depart.
 She gaz'd, as I slowly withdrew ;
 My path I could hardly discern ;
 So sweetly she bade me adieu,
 I thought that she bade me return.

The pilgrim that journeys all day
 To visit some far-distant shrine,
 If he bear but a relique away,
 Is happy, nor heard to repine.
 Thus widely remov'd from the fair,
 Where my vows, my devotion, I owe,
 Soft hope is the relique I bear,
 And my solace wherever I go.

II. H O P E.

MY banks they are furnish'd with bees,
 Whose murmur invites one to sleep;
 My grottos are shaded with trees,
 And my hills are white-over with sheep.
 I seldom have met with a loss,
 Such health do my fountains bestow;
 My fountains all border'd with moss,
 Where the hare-bells and violets grow.

Not a pine in my grove is there seen,
 But with tendrils of woodbine is bound:
 Not a beech's more beautiful green,
 But a sweet-briar entwines it around.
 Not my fields, in the prime of the year,
 More charms than my cattle unfold:
 Not a brook that is limpid and clear,
 But it glitters with fishes of gold.

One would think she might like to retire
 To the bow'r I have labour'd to rear ;
 Not a shrub that I heard her admire,
 But I hasted and planted it there.
 Oh how sudden the jessamine strove
 With the lilac to render it gay !
 Already it calls for my love,
 To prune the wild branches away.

From the plains, from the woodlands and groves,
 What strains of wild melody flow ?
 How the nightingales warble their loves
 From thickets of roses that blow !
 And when her bright form shall appear,
 Each bird shall harmoniously join
 In a concert so soft and so clear,
 As—she may not be fond to resign.

I have found out a gift for my fair ;
 I have found where the wood-pigeons breed :
 But let me that plunder forbear,
 She will say 'twas a barbarous deed.
 For he ne'er could be true, she aver'd,
 Who could rob a poor bird of its young :
 And I lov'd her the more, when I heard
 Such tenderness fall from her tongue.

I have

I have heard her with sweetness unfold
 How that pity was due to—a dove :
 That it ever attended the bold,
 And she call'd it the sister of love.
 But her words such a pleasure convey,
 So much I her accents adore,
 Let her speak, and whatever she say,
 Methinks I should love her the more.

Can a bosom so gentle remain
 Unmov'd, when her CORYDON sighs !
 Will a nymph that is fond of the plain,
 These plains and this valley despise ?
 Dear regions of silence and shade !
 Soft scenes of contentment and ease !
 Where I could have pleasingly stray'd,
 If aught, in her absence, could please.

But where does my PHYLLIDA stray ?
 And where are her grots and her bow'rs ?
 Are the groves and the valleys as gay,
 And the shepherds as gentle as ours ?
 The groves may perhaps be as fair,
 And the face of the valleys as fine ;
 The swains may in manners compare,
 But their love is not equal to mine.

III. SOLLICITUDE.

WHY will you my passion reprove?
 Why term it a folly to grieve?
 Ere I shew you the charms of my love,
 She is fairer than you can believe.
 With her mien she enamours the brave;
 With her wit she engages the free;
 With her modesty pleases the grave;
 She is ev'ry way pleasing to me.

O you that have been of her train,
 Come and join in my amorous lays;
 I could lay down my life for the swain,
 That will sing but a song in her praise.
 When he sings, may the nymphs of the town
 Come trooping, and listen the while;
 Nay on him let not PHYLLIDA frown;
 —But I cannot allow her to smile.

For when PARIDEL tries in the dance
 Any favour with PHYLLIS to find,
 O how, with one trivial glance,
 Might she ruin the peace of my mind!
 In ringlets he dresses his hair,
 And his crook is be-studded around;
 And his pipe—oh may PHYLLIS beware
 Of a magic there is in the sound.

'Tis

'Tis his with mock passion to glow ;
 'Tis his in smooth tales to unfold,
 “ How her face is as bright as the snow,
 And her bosom, be sure, is as cold ?
 How the nightingales labour the strain,
 With the notes of his charmer to vie ;
 How they vary their accents in vain,
 Repine at her triumphs, and die.”

To the grove or the garden he strays,
 And pillages every sweet ;
 Then, suiting the wreath to his lays
 He throws it at PHYLLIS's feet.
 “ O PHYLLIS, he whispers, more fair,
 More sweet than the jessamin's flow'r !
 What are pinks, in a morn, to compare ?
 What is eglantine, after a show'r ?

Then the lily no longer is white ;
 Then the rose is depriv'd of its bloom ;
 Then the violets die with despight,
 And the wood-bines give up their perfume.”
 Thus glide the soft numbers along,
 And he fancies no shepherd his peer ;
 — Yet I never should envy the song,
 Were not PHYLLIS to lend it an ear.

Let his crook be with hyacinths bound,
 So PHYLLIS the trophy despise ;
 Let his forehead with laurels be crown'd,
 So they shine not in PHYLLIS's eyes.
 The language that flows from the heart
 Is a stranger to PARIDEL's tongue ;
 —Yet may she beware of his art,
 Or sure I must envy the song.

IV. D I S A P P O I N T M E N T .

YE shepherds give ear to my lay,
 And take no more heed of my sheep :
 They have nothing to do, but to stray ;
 I have nothing to do, but to weep.
 Yet do not my folly reprove ;
 She was fair—and my passion begun ;
 She smil'd—and I could not but love ;
 She is faithless—and I am undone.

Perhaps I was void of all thought ;
 Perhaps it was plain to foresee,
 That a nymph so compleat would be fought
 By a swain more engaging than me.
 Ah! love ev'ry hope can inspire :
 It banishes wisdom the while ;
 And the lip of the nymph we admire
 Seems for ever adorn'd with a smile.

She

She is faithless, and I am undone ;
 Ye that witness the woes I endure,
 Let reason instruct you to shun
 What it cannot instruct you to cure.
 Beware how ye loiter in vain
 Amid nymphs of an higher degree :
 It is not for me to explain
 How fair, and how fickle they be,

Alas! from the day that we met,
 What hope of an end to my woes ?
 When I cannot endure to forget
 The glance that undid my repose.
 Yet time may diminish the pain :
 The flow'r, and the shrub, and the tree,
 Which I rear'd for her pleasure in vain,
 In time may have comfort for me.

The sweets of a dew-sprinkled rose,
 The sound of a murmuring stream,
 The peace which from solitude flows,
 Henceforth shall be CORYDON'S theme.
 High transports are shewn to the sight,
 But we are not to find them our own ;
 Fate never bestow'd such delight,
 As I with my PHYLLIS had known.

O ye woods, spread your branches apace ;
To your deepest recesses I fly ;
I would hide with the beasts of the chase ;
I would vanish from every eye.
Yet my reed shall resound thro' the grove
With the same sad complaint it begun ;
How she smil'd, and I could not but love ;
Was faithless, and I am undone !

PIECES of HUMOUR.

FLIRT and PHIL;

A Decision for the LADIES.

A Wit, by learning well refin'd,
A beau, but of the rural kind,
To SILVIA made pretences;
They both profess'd an equal love:
Yet hop'd, by different means, to move
Her judgment, or her senses.

Young sprightly FLIRT, of blooming mien,
Watch'd the best minutes to be seen;
Went—when his glass advis'd him:
While meagre PHIL of books enquir'd;
A wight, for wit and parts admir'd;
And witty ladies priz'd him.

SILVIA

SILVIA had wit, had spirits too ;
 To hear the one, the other view,
 Suspended held the scales :
 Her wit, her youth too claim'd its share,
 Let none the preference declare,
 But turn up—heads or tails.

STANZAS to the Memory of an agreeable undeserving her.

'T WAS always held, and ever will,
 By sage mankind, discreeter
 T' anticipate a lesser ill,
 Than undergo a greater.

When mortals dread diseases, pain,
 And languishing conditions ;
 Who do'n't the lesser ills sustain
 Of physic—and physicians ?

Rather than lose his whole estate,
 He that but little wife is,
 Full gladly pays four parts in eight
 To taxes and excises.

 And much the case is mended !

Night's fable clouds had half the globe o'erspread,
 And silence reign'd, and folks were gone to bed:
 When love, which gentle sleep can ne'er inspire,
 Had seated DAMON by the kitchen fire.

Penfive he lay, extended on the ground;
 The little lares kept their vigils round;

The

The fawning cats compassionate his case,
And purr around, and gently lick his face :

To all his 'plaints the sleeping curs reply,
And with hoarse snorings imitate a sigh.
Such gloomy scenes with lovers' minds agree,
And solitude to them is best society.

Cou'd I (he cry'd) express, how bright a grace
Adorns thy morning hands, and well-wash'd face ;
Thou wou'dst, COLEMIRA, grant what I implore,
And yield me love, or wash thy face no more.

Ah ! who can see, and seeing, not admire,
Whene'er she sets the pot upon the fire !
Her hands out-shine the fire, and redder things ;
Her eyes are blacker than the pot she brings.

But sure no chamber-damsel can compare,
When in meridian lustre shines my fair,
When warm'd with dinner's toil, in pearly rills,
Adown her goodly cheek the sweat distills.

Oh ! how I long, how ardently desire,
To view those rosy fingers strike the lyre !
For late, when bees to change their climes began,
How did I see 'em thrum the frying-pan !

With

With her ! I shou'd not envy G—— his queen,
 Tho' she in royal grandeur deck'd be seen :
 Whilst rags, just sever'd from my fair-one's gown,
 In ruffet pomp, and greasy pride hang down.

Ah ! how it does my drooping heart rejoice,
 When in the hall I hear thy mellow voice !
 How wou'd that voice exceed the village-bell ;
 Wou'dst thou but sing, “ I like thee passing well ! ”

When from the hearth she bade the pointers go,
 How soft ! how easy did her accents flow !
 “ Get out, she cry'd, when strangers come to sup,
 “ One ne'er can raise those snoring devils up.”

Then, full of wrath, she kick'd each lazy brute,
 Alas ! I envy'd even that salute :
 'Twas sure misplac'd,—SHOCK said, or seem'd to say,
 He had as lief, I had the kick, as they.

If she the mystic bellows take in hand,
 Who like the fair can that machine command ?
 O may'st thou ne'er by EOLUS be seen,
 For he wou'd sure demand thee for his queen.

But shou'd the flame this rougher aid refuse,
 And only gentler med'cines be of use ;
 With full-blown cheeks she ends the doubtful strife,
 Foments the infant flame, and puffs it into life.

Such arts, as these, exalt the drooping fire,
 But in my breast a fiercer flame inspire :
 I burn ! I burn ! O ! give thy puffing o'er,
 And swell thy cheeks, and pout thy lips no more !

With all her haughty looks, the time I've seen ;
 When this proud damsel has more humble been,
 When with nice airs she hoist the pan-cake round,
 And dropt it, hapless fair ! upon the ground.

Look, with what charming grace ! what winning tricks !
 The artful charmer rubs the candlesticks !
 So bright she makes the candlesticks she handles,
 Oft have I said,—there were no need of candles.

But thou, my fair ! who never wou'dst approve,
 Or hear, the tender story of my love ;
 Or mind, how burns my raging breast,—a button—
 Perhaps art dreaming of—a breast of mutton.

Thus said, and wept the sad desponding swain,
 Revealing to the fable walls his pain :
 But nymphs are free with those they shou'd deny ;
 To those, they love, more exquisitely coy !

Now chirping crickets raise their tinkling voice, }
 The lambent flames in languid streams arise, }
 And smoke in azure folds evaporates and dies. }

The RAPE of the TRAP.

A BALLAD, 1737.

'T WAS in a land of learning,
The muses fav'rite city,
Such pranks of late
Were play'd by a rat,
As—tempt one to be witty.

All in a college-study,
Where books were in great plenty ;
This rat wou'd devour
More sense in an hour,
Than I cou'd write—in twenty.

Corporeal food, 'tis granted,
Serves vermin less refin'd, Sir ;
But this, a rat of taste,
All other rats surpass'd ;
And he prey'd on the food of the mind, Sir ;

His breakfast, half the morning,
He constantly attended ;
And when the bell rung
For ev'ning-song,
His dinner scarce was ended !

Such

He spar'd not ev'n heroics,
 On which we poets pride us ;
 And wou'd make no more
 Of king ARTHUR'S *, by the score
 Than—all the world beside does.

In books of geo-graphy,
 He made the maps to flutter:
 A river or a sea
 Was to him a dish of tea ;
 And a kingdom, bread and butter.

But if some mawkish potion
 Might chance to over-dose him,
 To check its rage,
 He took a page
 Of logick—to compose him—

A trap, in haste and anger,
 Was bought, you need not doubt on't ;
 And, such was the gin,
 Were a lion once got in,
 He cou'd not, I think, get out on't.

With cheefe, not books, 'twas baited,
 The fact—I'll not belye it—
 Since none—I tell you that—
 Whether scholar or rat,
 Minds books, when he has other diet.

But

* By BLACKMORE.

But more of trap and bait, Sir,
 Why shou'd I fing, or either?
 Since the rat, who knew the sleight,
 Came in the dead of night,
 And dragg'd 'em away together :

Both trap and bait were vanish'd,
 Thro' a fracture in the flooring;
 Which, tho' so trim,
 It now may seem,
 Had then—a dozen or more in.

Then answer this, ye fages !
 Nor deem I mean to wrong ye,
 Had the rat which thus did feize on
 The trap, less claim to reason,
 Than many a scull among ye ?

DAN PRIOR's mice, I own it,
 Were vermin of condition ;
 But this rat who merely learn'd
 What rats alone concern'd,
 Was the greater politician.

That England's topsy-turvy,
 Is clear from these mishaps, Sir ;
 Since traps, we may determine,
 Will no longer take our vermin,
 But vermin* take our traps, Sir.

Let fophs, by rats infested,
 Then trust in cats to catch 'em;
 Lest they grow as learn'd as we,
 In our studies; where, d'ye see,
 No mortal fits to watch 'em.

Good luck betide our captains;
 Good luck betide our cats, Sir;
 And grant that the one
 May quell the Spanish Don,
 And the t'other destroy our rats, Sir.

You make your sportsman fallies ;
Or that your prey in gardens found
Is urg'd thro' walks and allies,

Yet, in the fury of the chace,
No flope cou'd e'er retard you ;
Blest if one fly repay the race,
Or painted wing reward you.

Fierce as CAMILLA * o'er the plain
Pursu'd the glitt'ring stranger ;
Still ey'd the purple's pleasing ftain,
And knew not fear nor danger.

 You sage assistance lend her ;
 Can stoop to pimp for am'rous flies,
 And help 'em to engender.

'Tis you protect their pregnant hour ;
 And when the birth's at hand,
 Exerting your obstetric pow'r
 Prevent a mothless land.

Yet oh ! howe'er your tow'ring view
 Above gross objects rises,
 Whate'er refinements you pursue,
 Hear, what a friend advises :

A friend, who, weigh'd with yours, must prize
 DOMITIAN'S idle passion ;
 That wrought the death of teasing flies,
 But ne'er their propagation.

Let FLAVIA'S eyes more deeply warm,
 Nor thus your hearts determine,
 To flight dame nature's fairest form
 And sigh for nature's vermin.

And speak with some respect of beaux,
 Nor more as triflers treat 'em :
 'Tis better learn to save one's cloaths,
 Than cherish moths, that eat 'em.

The EXTENT of COOKERY.

Aliusque et idem.

WHEN TOM to CAMBRIDGE first was sent,
A plain brown bob he wore ;
Read much, and look'd as tho' he meant
To be a fop no more.

See him to LINCOLN'S-INN repair,
His resolution flag ;
He cherishes a length of hair,
And tucks it in a bag.

Nor COKE nor SALKELD he regards,
But gets into the house,
And soon a judge's rank rewards
His pliant votes and bows.

Adieu ye bobs ! ye bags give place !
Full-bottoms come instead !
Good L—d ! to see the various ways
Of dressing—a calve's-head !

The PROGRESS of A D V I C E.

A Common C A S E.

Suade, nam certum est.

SAYS RICHARD TO THOMAS (and seem'd half afraid)
 " I am thinking to marry thy mistress's maid :
 Now, because Mrs. LUCY to thee is well known,
 I will do't if thou bid'st me, or let it alone.

Nay don't make a jest on't ; 'tis no jest to me ;
 For 'faith I'm in earnest, so prithee be free.
 I have no fault to find with the girl since I knew her,
 But I'd have thy advice, e'er I tye myself to her."

Said THOMAS TO RICHARD, " To speak my opinion,
 There is not such a bitch in King GEORGE's dominion,
 And I firmly believe, if thou knew'st her as I do,
 Thou wou'dst chuse out a whipping post, first to bety'd to.

She's peevish, she's thievish, she's ugly, she's old,
 And a liar, and a fool, and a slut, and a scold."
 Next day RICHARD hasten'd to church and was wed,
 And, ere night, had inform'd her what THOMAS had said.

A BAL-

Trahit sua quemque voluptas.

From Lincoln to London rode forth our young squire,
 To bring down a wife, whom the swains might admire:
 But in spite of whatever the mortal cou'd say,
 The goddess objected the length of the way!

To give up the op'ra, the park, and the ball,
 For to view the stag's horns in an old country-hall;
 To have neither China nor India to see!
 Nor a lace-man to plague in a morning—not she!

To forsake the dear play-house, Quin, Garrick, & Clive,
 Who by dint of mere humour had kept her alive;
 To forego the full box for his lonesome abode,
 O heav'ns! she shou'd faint, she shou'd dye on the road!

To forget the gay fashions and gestures of France,
 And to leave dear Auguste in the midst of the dance,
 And Harlequin too!—'twas in vain to require it;
 And she wonder'd how folks had the face to desire it.

She might yield to resign the sweet-fingers of Ruckholt,
 Where the citizen-matron seduces her cuckold;
 But Ranelagh soon wou'd her footsteps recall,
 And the music, the lamps, and the glare of Vaux-hall.

To be sure she cou'd breathe no where else than in town.
Thus she talk'd like a wit, and he look'd like a clown ;
But the while honest Harry despair'd to succeed,
A coach with a coronet trail'd her to Tweed.

SLENDER'S Ghost. vid. SHAKESPEAR.

Beneath a church-yard yew,
Decay'd and worn with age,
At dusk of eve methought I spy'd
POOR SLENDER'S ghost, that whim'ring cry'd,
O sweet O sweet ANNE PAGE !

Ye gentle bards ! give ear !
Who talk of amorous rage,
Who spoil the lilly, rob the rose,
Come learn of me to weep your woes :
O sweet O sweet ANNE PAGE !

Why shou'd such labour'd strains
Your formal muse engage ?
I never dreamt of flame or dart,
That fir'd my breast, or pierc'd my heart,
But sigh'd, O sweet ANNE PAGE !

And

And you ! whose love-sick minds
No med'cine can assuage !
Accuse the leech's art no more,
But learn of SLENDER to deplore ;
O sweet O sweet ANNE PAGE !

And ye ! whose souls are held,
Like linnets in a cage !
Who talk of fetters, links, and chains,
Attend, and imitate my strains !
O sweet O sweet ANNE PAGE !

And you who boast or grieve,
What horrid wars ye wage !
Of wounds receiv'd from many an eye ;
Yet mean as I do, when I fight
O sweet O sweet ANNE PAGE !

Hence ev'ry fond conceit
Of shepherd or of sage !
'Tis SLENDER's voice, 'tis SLENDER's way
Expresses all you have to say.
O sweet O sweet ANNE PAGE !

 Whofe coach it was that trail'd along :
 " The gilded coach there—don't ye mind ?
 That, with the footmen ftuck behind."

O Sir!

O Sir! fays he, what! han't ye seen it?
 'Tis DAMON's coach, and DAMON in it.
 'Tis odd methinks you have forgot
 Your friend, your neighbour and—what not!
 Your old acquaintance DAMON!—" True;
 But faith his equipage is new."

" Bless me, said I, where can it end?
 What madness has possess'd my friend?
 Four powder'd slaves, and those the tallest,
 Their stomachs doubtless not the smallest!
 Can DAMON's revenue maintain
 In lace and food, so large a train?
 I know his land—each inch o' ground—
 'Tis not a mile to walk it round—
 If DAMON's whole estate can bear
 To keep his lad, and one-horse chair,
 I own 'tis past my comprehension."
 Yes, Sir, but DAMON has a pension—

Thus does a false ambition rule us,
 Thus pomp delude, and folly fool us;
 To keep a race of flick'ring knaves,
 He grows himself the worst of slaves.

 And when the radiant task is done,
 Confess, thro' all the globe, 'twou'd pose him,
 To match the charms that CELIA shews him.

And shou'd he boast he once had seen.
 As just a form, as bright a mien,
 Yet must it still for ever pose him,
 To match—what CELIA never shews him.

 Justice of the peace for this county :
 Who, in the whole course of his pilgrimage
 Thro' a trifling ridiculous world,
 Maintaining his proper dignity,
 Notwithstanding the scoffs of ill-dispos'd persons,
 And wits of the age,
 That ridicul'd his behaviour,
 Or censur'd his breeding ;
 Following the dictates of nature,
 Desiring to ease the afflicted,
 Eager to set the prisoners at liberty,

But the sole relief and happiness,

Of the party in distress ;

Himself resting easy,

When he cou'd render that so ;

Not griping, or pinching himself,

To hoard up superfluities ;

Not coveting to keep in his possession

What gives more disquietude, than pleasure ;

But charitably diffusing it

To all round about him :

Making the most sorrowful countenance

To smile,

In his presence ;

Always bestowing more than he was ask'd,

Always imparting before he was desir'd ;

Not proceeding in this manner,

Upon every trivial suggestion,

But the most mature, and solemn deliberation ;

With an incredible presence, and undauntedness

Of mind ;

With an inimitable gravity and economy

Of face ;

Bidding loud defiance

To

TO A FRIEND.

HAVE you ne'er seen, my gentle squire,
The humours of your kitchen fire?

Says NED to SAL, "I lead a spade,
Why don't ye play?—the girl's afraid—
Play something—any thing—but play—
'Tis but to pass the time away—
Phoo—how she stands—biting her nails—
As tho' she play'd for half her vails—
Sorting her cards, haggling and picking—
We play for nothing, do us, chicken?—
That card will do—'blood never doubt it,
It's not worth while to think about it."

SAL thought, and thought, and miss'd her aim,
And NED, ne'er studying, won the game.

Methinks, old friend, 'tis wond'rous true,
That verse is but a game at loo.

While many a bard, that shews so clearly
He writes for his amusement merely,
Is known to study, fret, and toil;
And play for nothing, all the while:
Or praise at most; for wreaths of yore
Ne'er signify'd a farthing more:
'Till having vainly toil'd to gain it,
He sees your flying pen obtain it.

Thro'

Thro' fragrant scenes the trifer roves,
 And hallow'd haunts that PHOEBUS loves ;
 Where with strange heats his bosom glows,
 And mystic flames the God bestows.
 You now none other flame require,
 Than a good blazing parlour fire ;
 Write verses—to defy the scorners,
 In shit-houses and chimney-corners.

SAL found her deep-laid schemes were vain,
 The cards are cut—come deal again—
 No good comes on it when one lingers—
 I'll play the cards come next my fingers—
 Fortune cou'd never let NED loo her,
 When she had left it wholly to her.

Well, now who wins?—why, still the same—
 For SAL has lost another game.

“ I've done ; (she mutter'd) I was faying,
 It did not argufy my playing.
 Some folks will win, they cannot chufe,
 But think or not think—some must lose,
 I may have won a game or so—
 But then it was an age ago—
 It ne'er will be my lot again—
 I won it of a baby then—
 Give me an ace of trumps and fee,
 Our NED will beat me with a three.
 'Tis all by luck that things are carry'd—
 He'll suffer for it when he's marry'd.

Thus

Thus SAL, with tears in either eye ;
While victor NED fate titt'ring by.

Thus I, long envying your success,
And bent to write, and study less,
Sate down, and scribbled in a trice,
Just what you see—and you despise.

You, who can frame a tuneful song,
And hum it as you ride along ;
And, trotting on the king's high-way,
Snatch from the hedge a sprig of bay ;
Accept this verse, howe'er it flows,
From one that is your friend in prose.

What is this wreath, so green ! so fair !
Which many wish, and few must wear ?
Which some men's indolence can gain,
And some mens vigils ne'er obtain ?
For what must SAL or poet sue,
Ere they engage with NED or you ?
For luck in verse, for luck at loo ?

Ah no ! 'tis genius gives you fame,
And NED, thro' skill, secures the game.

A SOLEMN MEDITATION.

WHAT is this life, this active guest,
Which robs our peaceful clay of rest?
This trifle, which while we retain,
Causes inquietude and pain?
This breath, which we no sooner find,
Than in a moment 'tis resign'd?
Whose momentary noise, when o'er,
Is never, never heard of more!
And even monarchs, when it ends,
Become offensive to their friends;
Emit a putrid noisome smell,
To those that lov'd 'em, e'er so well!

Pond'ring these things, within my heart,
Surely, said I—life is a f—t!

The POET and the DUN. 1741.

*These are Messengers
That feelingly persuade me what I am.*

SHAKESPEAR.

COMES a dun in the morning and raps at my door—
 “ I made bold to call--’tis a twelvemonth and more—
 I’m sorry, believe me, to trouble you thus, Sir,—
 But JOB wou’d be paid, Sir, had JOB been a mercer.”
 My friend have but patience-- “ Ay these are your ways.”
 I have got but one shilling to serve me two days—
 But Sir—prithee take it, and tell your attorney,
 If I han’t paid your bill, I have paid for your journey.

Well, now thou art gone, let me govern my passion,
 And calmly consider—consider? vexation!
 What whore that must paint, and must put on false locks,
 And counterfeit joy in the pangs of the pox!
 What beggar’s wife’s nephew, now starv’d, & now beaten,
 Who, wanting to eat, fears himself shall be eaten!
 What porter, what turnspit, can deem his case hard!
 Or what dun boast of patience that thinks of a bard!
 Well, I’ll leave this poor trade, for no trade can be poorer,
 Turn shoe-boy, or courtier, or pimp, or procurer;
 Get love, and respect, and good living, and pelf,
 And dun some poor dog of a poet myself.

One’s

One's credit, however, of course will grow better ;
Here enters the footman, and brings me a letter.

“ Dear Sir ! I receiv'd your obliging epistle,
Your fame is secure—bid the critics go whistle.
I read over with wonder the poem you sent me ;
And I must speak your praises, no soul shall prevent me.
The audience, believe me, cry'd out ev'ry line
Was strong, was affecting, was just, was divine ;
All pregnant, as gold is, with worth, weight, and beauty,
And to hide such a genius was—far from your duty.
I foresee that the court will be hugely delighted :
Sir RICHARD, for much a less genius, was knighted.
Adieu, my good friend, and for high life prepare ye ;
I cou'd say much more, but you're modest, I spare ye.”
Quite fir'd with the flatt'ry, I call for my paper,
And waste that, and health, and my time, and my taper :
I scribble 'till morn, when with wrath no small store,
Comes my old friend the mercer, and raps at my door.
“ Ah ! friend, 'tis but idle to make such a pother,
Fate, fate has ordain'd us, to plague one another.”

Written at an Inn at HENLEY.

TO thee, fair freedom! I retire
From flattery, cards, and dice, and din;
Nor art thou found in mansions higher
Than the low cott, or humble inn.

'Tis here with boundless pow'r I reign;
And ev'ry health which I begin,
Converts dull port to bright champagne;
Such freedom crowns it, at an inn.

I fly from pomp, I fly from plate!
I fly from falsehood's specious grin!
Freedom I love, and form I hate,
And chuse my lodgings at an inn.

Here, waiter! take my fordid ore,
Which lacqueys else might hope to win;
It buys, what courts have not in store;
It buys me freedom, at an inn.

Whoe'er has travell'd life's dull round,
Where'er his stages may have been,
May sigh to think he still has found
The warmest welcome, at an inn.

A SIMILE.

A S I M I L E.

WHAT village but has sometime seen
 The clumsy shape, the frightful mien,
 Tremendous claws, and shagged hair,
 Of that grim brute yclip'd a bear?
 He from his dam, the learn'd agree,
 Receiv'd the curious form you see;
 Who with her plastic tongue alone,
 Produc'd a visage—like her own.—
 And thus they hint, in mystic fashion,
 The pow'rful force of education *—
 Perhaps yon crowd of swains is viewing
 E'en now, the strange exploits of Bruin;
 Who plays his antics, roars aloud;
 The wonder of a gaping crowd!

So have I known an awkward lad,
 Whose birth has made a parish glad,
 Forbid, for fear of sense, to roam,
 And taught by kind mamma at home;
 Who gives him many a well-try'd rule,
 With ways and means—to play the fool.
 In sense the same, in stature higher,
 He shines, ere long, a rural squire,
 Pours forth unwitty jokes, and swears,
 And bawls, and drinks, but chiefly stares

The CHARMS of PRECEDENCE.

A T A L E.

“SIR, will you please to walk before ?”
 -- No, pray Sir--you are next the door.--
 --“ Upon mine honour, I'll not stir--”
 Sir, I'm at home, consider, Sir—
 “ Excuse me, Sir, I'll not go first”—
 Well, if I must be rude, I must—
 But yet I wish I cou'd evade it—
 'Tis strangely clownish, be persuaded—
 Go forward, cits ! go forward squires !
 Nor scruple each, what each admires.
 Life squares not, friends, with your proceeding ;
 It flies, while you display your breeding ;
 Such breeding as one's granam preaches,
 Or some old dancing-master teaches,
 O for some rude tumultuous fellow,
 Half crazy, or, at least, half-mellow,
 To come behind you unawares,
 And fairly push you both down stairs !
 But death's at hand—let me advise ye,
 Go forward, friends ! or he'll surprize ye.

Besides,

Besides, how insincere you are !
 Do ye not flatter, lye, forswear,
 And daily cheat, and weekly pray,
 And all for this—to lead the way ?

Such is my theme, which means to prove,
 That, tho' we drink, or game, or love,
 As that or this is most in fashion,
 Precedence is our ruling passion.

When college-students take degrees,
 And pay the beadle's endless fees,
 What moves that scientific body,
 But the first cutting at a gawdy ?
 And whence such shoals, in bare conditions,
 That starve and languish as physicians,
 Content to trudge the streets, and stare at
 The fat apothecary's chariot ?
 But that, in CHARLOT's chamber (see MOLIERE's Medecin malgre lui)
 The leach, howe'er his fortunes vary,
 Still walks before the apothecary.

FLAVIA in vain has wit and charms,
 And all that shines, and all that warms ;
 In vain all human race adore her,
 For—lady MARY ranks before her.

O CELIA, gentle CELIA ! tell us,
 You who are neither vain, nor jealous !
 The softest breast, the mildest mien !
 Wou'd you not feel some little spleen,

Nor bite your lip, nor furl your brow,
 If FLORIMEL, your equal now,
 Shou'd, one day, gain precedence of ye?
 First serv'd—tho' in a dish of coffee?
 Plac'd first, altho' where you are found,
 You gain the eyes of all around?
 Nam'd first, tho' not with half the fame,
 That waits my charming CELIA's name?

Hard fortune! barely to inspire
 Our fix'd esteem, and fond desire!
 Barely, where'er you go, to prove
 The source of universal love!—
 Yet be content, observing this,
 Honour's the offspring of caprice:
 And worth, howe'er you have pursu'd it,
 Has now no pow'r—but to exclude it.
 You'll find your general reputation
 A kind of supplemental station,

Poor SWIFT, with all his worth, cou'd ne'er,
 He tells us, hope to rise a peer;
 So, to supply it, wrote for fame:
 And well the wit secur'd his aim.
 A common patriot has a drift,
 Not quite so innocent as SWIFT:
 In BRITAIN's cause he rants, he labours;
 "He's honest, faith"—have patience, neighbours!
 For patriots may sometimes deceive,
 May beg their friend's reluctant leave,

To

To serve them in a higher sphere ;
And drop their virtue, to get there.—

As LUCIAN tells us, in his fashion,
How souls put off each earthly passion,
Ere on ELYSIUM's flow'ry strand,
Old CHARON suffer'd 'em to land ;
So ere we meet a court's careffes,
No doubt our souls must change their drestes :
And souls there be, who, bound that way,
Attire themselves ten times a day.

If then 'tis rank which all men covet,
And faints alike and finners love it ;
If place, for which our courtiers throng
So thick, that few can get along ;
For which such servile toils are seen,
Who's happier than a king?—a queen.

Howe'er men aim at elevation,
'Tis properly a female passion :
Women, and beaux, beyond all measure
Are charm'd with rank's extatic pleasure.

Sir, if your drift I rightly scan,
You'd hint a beau were not a man :
Say, women then are fond of places ;
I wave all disputable cases.
A man perhaps would something linger,
Were his lov'd rank to cost—a finger ;
Or were an ear or toe the price on't,
He might delib'rate once or twice on't ;
Perhaps ask GATAKER's advice on't.

And

And many, as their frame grows old,
Wou'd hardly purchase it with gold.

But women wish precedence ever ;
'Tis their whole life's supreme endeavour ;
It fires their youth with jealous rage,
And strongly animates their age.
Perhaps they would not sell out-right,
Or maim a limb—that was in fight ;
Yet, on worse terms, they sometimes chuse it ;
Nor, ev'n in punishments, refuse it.

Preeminence in pain, you cry !
All fierce and pregnant with reply.
But lend your patience, and your ear,
An argument shall make it clear.
But hold, an argument may fail,
Beside my title says, a tale.

Where AVON rolls her winding stream,
AVON, the Muse's fav'rite theme !
AVON, that fills the farmer's purses,
And decks with flow'rs both farms, and verses,
She visits many a fertile vale——
Such was the scene of this my tale.
For 'tis in EV'SHAM'S vale, or near it,
That folks with laughter tell, and hear it.

The soil with annual plenty blest
Was by young CORYDON possess'd.
His youth alone I lay before ye,
As most material to my story :

For

For strength and vigour too, he had 'em,
And 'twere not much amiss, to add 'em.

Thrice happy lout! whose wide domain
Now green with grass, now gilt with grain,
In russet robes of clover deep,
Or thinly veil'd, and white with sheep;
Now fragrant with the bean's perfume,
Now purpled with the pulse's bloom,
Might well with bright allusion store me;
—But happier bards have been before me!

Amongst the various year's increase,
The stripling own'd a field of pease;
Which, when at night he ceas'd his labours,
Were haunted by some female neighbours.
Each morn discover'd to his sight
The shameful havoc of the night;
Traces of this they left behind 'em,
But no instructions where to find 'em.
The devil's works are plain and evil,
But few or none have seen the devil.
Old NOLL, indeed, if we may credit
The words of ECHARD, who has said it,
Contriv'd with SATAN how to fool us;
And bargain'd face to face to rule us;
But then old NOLL was one in ten,
And fought him more than other men.
Our shepherd too, with like attention,
May meet the female fiends we mention.

He rose one morn at break of day,
 And near the field in ambush lay :
 When lo ! a brace of girls appears,
 The third, a matron much in years.
 Smiling, amidst the pease, the finners
 Sate down to cull their future dinners ;
 And, caring little who might own 'em,
 Made free as tho' themselves had sown 'em.

'Tis worth a sage's observation
 How love can make a jest of passion.
 Anger had forc'd the swain from bed,
 His early dues to love unpaid !
 And love, a god that keeps a pother,
 And will be paid one time or other,
 Now banish'd anger out o' door ;
 And claim'd the debt withheld before.
 If anger bid our youth revile,
 Love form'd his features to a smile :
 And knowing well 'twas all grimace,
 To threaten with a smiling face,
 He in few words express'd his mind—
 And none would deem them much unkind.

The am'rous youth, for their offence,
 Demanded instant recompence :
 That recompence from each, which shame
 Forbids a bashful muse to name.
 Yet, more this sentence to discover,
 'Tis what BETT * * grants her lover,

When

When he, to make the strumpet willing,
Has spent his fortune—to a shilling.

Each stood awhile, as 'twere suspended,
And loth to do, what—each intended.

At length with soft pathetic sighs,
The matron, bent with age, replies.

'Tis vain to strive—justice, I know,
And our ill stars will have it so—
But let my tears your wrath assuage,
And shew some deference for age!
I from a distant village came,
Am old, G— knows, and something lame;
And if we yield, as yield we must,
Dispatch my crazy body first.

Our shepherd, like the Phrygian swain,
When circled round on IDA's plain,
With goddesses he stood suspended,
And PALLAS's grave speech was ended,
Own'd what she ask'd might be his duty;
But paid the compliment to beauty.

O D E

To be performed by Dr. BRETTLER, and a
CHORUS of HALES-OWEN CITIZENS.

The Instrumental Part, a Viol d' Amour.

AIR by the DOCTOR.

AWAKE! I say, awake good people!
And be for once alive and gay;
Come let's be merry; stir the tipples;
How can you sleep,
Whilst I do play? how can you sleep, &c.

CHORUS of CITIZENS.

Pardon, O! pardon, great musician!
On drowsy souls some pity take!
For wond'rous hard is our condition,
To drink thy beer,
Thy strains to hear;
To drink,
To hear,
And keep awake!

SOLO

SOLO by the DOCTOR.

Hear but this strain—'twas made by HANDEL,
 A wight of skill, and judgment deep !
 Zoonterers they're gone—SAL, bring a candle—
 No, here is one, and he's asleep.

DUETTE.

DR. — How cou'd they go, Soft music.

Whilst I do play ?

SAL. How cou'd they go ? Warlike music.

How shou'd they stay ?

EPILOGUE to the Tragedy of CLEONE.

WELL, ladies—so much for the tragic stile—
 And now the custom is to make you smile.
 To make us smile !—methinks I hear you say—
 Why, who can help it, at so strange a play ?
 The captain gone three years!—and then to blame
 The faultless conduct of his virtuous dame !
 My stars !—what gentle belle would think it treason,
 When thus provok'd, to give the brute some reason ?
 Out of my house !—this night, forsooth depart !
 A modern wife had said—“ With all my heart—
 But think not, haughty Sir, I'll go alone !
 Order your coach—conduct me safe to town—

Give

Give me my jewels, wardrobe, and my maid—
And pray take care my pin-money be paid.”

Such is the language of each modish fair !
Yet memoirs, not of modern growth, declare
The time has been when modesty and truth
Were deem'd additions to the charms of youth ;
When women hid their necks, and veil'd their faces, }
Nor romp'd, nor rak'd, nor star'd at public places, }
Nor took the airs of amazons for graces :

Then plain domestic virtues were the mode,
And wives ne'er dreamt of happiness abroad ;
They lov'd their children, learnt no flaunting airs,
But with the joys of wedlock mixt the cares.

Those times are past—yet sure they merit praise,
For marriage triumph'd in those golden days :
By chaste decorum they affection gain'd ;
By faith and fondness what they won, maintain'd.

'Tis yours, ye fair, to bring those days agen,
And form anew the hearts of thoughtless men ;
Make beauty's lustre amiable as bright,
And give the soul, as well as sense, delight ;
Reclaim from folly a fantastic age,
That scorns the press, the pulpit, and the stage.
Let truth and tenderness your breasts adorn,
The marriage chain with transport shall be worn ;
Each blooming virgin rais'd into a bride,
Shall double all their joys, their cares divide ;
Alleviate grief, compose the jars of strife,
And pour the balm that sweetens human life.

JUDGMENT of HERCULES.

WHile blooming spring descends from genial skies,
By whose mild influence infant wonders rise ;
From whose soft breath Elysian beauties flow ;
The sweets of HAGLEY, or the pride of STOWE ;
Will LYTTELTON the rural landkip range,
Leave noisy fame, and not regret the change ?
Pleas'd will he tread the garden's early scenes,
And learn a moral from the rising greens ?
There, warm'd alike by Sol's enliv'ning pow'r,
The weed, aspiring, emulates the flow'r :
The drooping flow'r, its fairer charms display'd,
Invites, from grateful hands, their gen'rous aid :

R 2

Soon,

Soon, if none check th' invasive foe's designs,
The lively lustre of these scenes declines !

'Tis thus, the spring of youth, the morn of life,
Rears in our minds the rival seeds of strife,
Then passion riots, reason then contends ;
And, on the conquest, ev'ry bliss depends :
Life, from the nice decision, takes its hue :
And blest those judges who decide like you !
On worth like theirs shall ev'ry bliss attend :
The world their fav'rite, and the world their friend.

There are, who blind to thought's fatiguing ray,
As fortune gives examples, urge their way :
Not virtue's foes, tho' they her paths decline,
And scarce her friends, tho' with her friends they join,
In her's, or vice's casual road advance
Thoughtless, the sinners or the saints of chance !
Yet some more nobly scorn the vulgar voice ;
With judgment fix, with zeal pursue their choice,
When ripen'd thought, when reason born to reign,
Checks the wild tumults of the youthful vein ;
While passion's lawless tides, at their command,
Glide thro' more useful tracts, and bless the land.

Happiest of these is he whose matchless mind,
By learning strengthen'd, and by taste refin'd,
In virtue's cause essay'd its earliest pow'rs ;
Chose virtue's paths, and strew'd her paths with flow'rs.
The first alarm'd, if freedom waves her wings :
The fittest to adorn each art she brings :

Lov'd

Lov'd by that prince whom ev'ry virtüe fires :
 Prais'd by that bard whom ev'ry muse inspires :
 Blest in the tuneful art, the social flame ;
 In all that wins, in all that merits fame !

'Twas youth's perplexing stage his doubts inspir'd,
 When great ALCIDES to a grove retir'd,
 Thro' the lone windings of a devious glade,
 Resign'd to thought, with ling'ring steps he stray'd ;
 Blest with a mind to taste sincerer joys :
 Arm'd with a heart each false one to despise.
 Dubious he stray'd, with wav'ring thoughts possess'd,
 Alternate passions struggling shar'd his breast ;
 The various arts which human cares divide,
 In deep attention all his mind employ'd :
 Anxious, if fame an equal bliss secur'd ;
 Or silent ease with softer charms allur'd.
 The silvan choir whose numbers sweetly flow'd,
 The fount that murmur'd, and the flow'rs that blow'd ;
 The silver flood that in meanders led
 His glitt'ring streams along th' enliven'd mead ;
 The soothing breeze, and all those beauties join'd,
 Which, whilst they please, effeminate the mind.
 In vain ! while distant, on a summit rais'd,
 Th' imperial tow'rs of fame attractive blaz'd.

While thus he trac'd thro' fancy's puzzling maze
 The sep'rate sweets of pleasure, and of praise ;
 Sudden the wind a fragrant gale convey'd,
 And a new lustre gain'd upon the shade.

At once, before his wond'ring eyes were seen
 Two female forms, of more than mortal mien.
 Various their charms; and, in their dress and face,
 Each seem'd to vie with some peculiar grace.
 This, whose attire less clogg'd with art appear'd,
 The simple sweets of innocence endear'd.
 Her sprightly bloom, her quick sagacious eye,
 Shew'd native merit mix'd with modesty.
 Her air diffus'd a mild yet awful ray,
 Severely sweet, and innocently gay.
 Such the chaste image of the martial maid,
 In artless folds of virgin white array'd!
 She let no borrow'd rose her cheeks adorn,
 Her blushing cheeks, that sham'd the purple morn.
 Her charms nor had, nor wanted artful foils,
 Or study'd gestures, or well-practis'd smiles.
 She scorn'd the toys which render beauty less;
 She prov'd th' engaging chastity of dress;
 And while she chose in native charms to shine,
 Ev'n thus she seem'd, nay more than seem'd, divine.
 One modest em'erald clasp'd the robe she wore,
 And, in her hand, th' imperial sword she bore.
 Sublime her height, majestic was her pace,
 And match'd the awful honours of her face.
 The shrubs, the flow'rs, that deck'd the verdant ground,
 Seem'd, where she trod, with rising lustre crown'd.
 Still her approach with stronger influence warm'd;
 She pleas'd, while distant, but, when near, she charm'd.

So

So strikes the gazer's eye, the silver gleam
 That glitt'ring quivers o'er a distant stream :
 But from its banks we see new beauties rise,
 And, in its crystal bosom, trace the skies.

With other charms the rival vision glow'd ;
 And from her dress her tinsel beauties flow'd.
 A flutt'ring robe her pamper'd shape conceal'd,
 And seem'd to shade the charms it best reveal'd.
 Its form, contriv'd her faulty size to grace ;
 Its hue, to give fresh lustre to her face.
 Her plaited hair disguis'd with brilliants glar'd ;
 Her cheeks the ruby's neighb'ring lustre shar'd ;
 The gawdy topaz lent its gay supplies,
 And ev'ry gem that strikes less curious eyes ;
 Expos'd her breast with foreign sweets perfum'd ;
 And, round her brow, a roseate garland bloom'd.
 Soft-smiling, blushing lips conceal'd her wiles ;
 Yet ah ! the blushes artful as the smiles.
 Oft-gazing on her shade, th' enraptur'd fair
 Decreed the substance well deserv'd her care :
 Her thoughts, to other's charms malignly blind,
 Center'd in that, and were to that confin'd ;
 And if on other's eyes a glance were thrown,
 'Twas but to watch the influence of her own.
 Much like her guardian, fair CYTHERA'S queen,
 When for her warrior she refines her mien ;
 Or when, to bless her DELIAN fav'rite's arms,
 The radiant fair invigorates her charms.

Much like her pupil, EGYPT's sportive dame,
 Her dress expressive, and her air the same,
 When her gay bark o'er silver CYDNOS roll'd,
 And all th' emblazon'd streamers wav'd in gold.
 Such shone the vision; nor forbore, to move,
 The fond contagious airs of lawless love.
 Each wanton eye deluding glances fir'd,
 And am'rous dimples on each cheek conspir'd.
 Lifeless her gait, and slow, with seeming pain,
 She dragg'd her loitering limbs along the plain;
 Yet made some faint efforts, & first approach'd the swain. }
 So glaring draughts, with taudry lustre bright,
 Spring to the view, and rush upon the sight:
 More slowly charms a RAPHAEL's chaster air,
 Waits the calm search, and pays the searcher's care.

Wrap'd in a pleas'd suspense, the youth survey'd
 The various charms of each attractive maid:
 Alternate each he view'd, and each admir'd,
 And found, alternate, varying flames inspir'd.
 Quick o'er their forms his eyes with pleasure ran,
 When she, who first approach'd him, first began.

" Hither, dear boy, direct thy wand'ring eyes;
 'Tis here the lovely vale of pleasure lies.
 Debate no more, to me thy life resign;
 Each sweet which nature can diffuse is mine.
 For me the nymph diversifies her pow'r,
 Springs in a tree, or blossoms in a flow'r;
 To please my ear, she tunes the linnet's strains;
 To please my eye, with lilies paints the plains;

To

To form my couch, in mossy beds she grows ;
 To gratify my smell, perfumes the rose ;
 Reveals the fair, the fertile scene you see,
 And swells the vegetable world, for me.

Let the gull'd fool the toils of war pursue,
 Where bleed the many to enrich the few :
 Where chance from courage claims the boasted prize :
 Where, tho' she give, your country oft denies.
 Industrious thou shalt CUPID'S wars maintain,
 And ever gently fight his soft campaign.
 His darts alone shalt wield, his wounds endure,
 Yet only suffer, to enjoy the cure.
 Yield but to me—a choir of nymphs shall rise,
 And fire thy breast, and bless thy ravish'd eyes.
 Their beauteous cheeks a fairer rose shall wear,
 A brighter lily on their necks appear ;
 Where fondly thou thy favour'd head shall rest,
 Soft as the down that swells the cygnet's nest !
 While PHILOMEL in each soft voice complains,
 And gently lulls thee with mellifluous strains :
 Whilst, with each accent, sweetest odours flow ;
 And spicy gums round ev'ry bosom glow.
 Not the fam'd bird Arabian climes admire,
 Shall in such luxury of sweets expire.
 At sloth let war's victorious sons exclaim ;
 In vain ! for pleasure is my real name :
 Nor envy thou the head with bays o'er-grown ;
 No, seek thou roses to adorn thy own :

For

For well each op'ning scene, that claims my care,
Suits and deserves the beauteous crown I wear.

Let others prune the vine; the genial bowl
Shall crown thy table, and enlarge thy fowl.
Let vulgar hands explore the brilliant mine,
So the gay produce glitter still on thine.
Indulgent BACCHUS loads his lab'ring tree,
And, guarding, gives its clust'ring sweets to me.
For my lov'd train, APOLLO's piercing beam
Darts thro' the passive glebe, and frames the gem.
See in my cause consenting gods employ'd,
Nor slight those gods, their blessings unenjoy'd!
For thee the poplar shall its amber drain;
For thee, in clouded beauty, spring the cane;
Some costly tribute ev'ry clime shall pay;
Some charming treasure ev'ry wind convey;
Each object round some pleasing scene shall yield;
Art build thy dome, while nature decks thy field;
Of CORINTH's order shall the structure rise;
The spiring turrets glitter thro' the skies;
Thy costly robe shall glow with Tyrian rays;
Thy vase shall sparkle, and thy car shall blaze;
Yet thou, whatever pomp the fun display,
Shalt own the am'rous night exceeds the day.

When melting flutes, and sweetly-sounding lyres
Wake the gay loves, and cite the young desires;
Or, in th' Ionian dance, some fav'rite maid
Improves the flame her sparkling eyes convey'd;

Think,

Think, can'st thou quit a glowing DELIA's arms,
 To feed on virtue's visionary charms ?
 Or slight the joys which wit and youth engage,
 For the faint honour of a frozen sage ?

To find dull envy ev'n that hope deface,
 And, where you toil'd for glory, reap disgrace ?

O! think that beauty waits on thy decree,
 And thy lov'd loveliest charmer pleads with me.
 She, whose soft smile, or gentler glance to move,
 You vow'd the wild extremities of love ;
 In whose endearments years, like moments, flew ;
 For whose endearments millions seem'd too few ;
 She, she implores ; she bids thee seize the prime,
 And tread with her the flow'ry tracts of time ;
 Nor thus her lovely bloom of life bestow
 On some cold lover, or insulting foe.

Think, if against that tongue thou canst rebel,
 Where love yet dwelt, and reason seem'd to dwell ;
 What strong persuasion arms her softer sighs !
 What full conviction sparkles in her eyes !

See nature smiles, and birds salute the shade,
 Where breathing jafmin screens the sleeping maid :
 And such her charms, as to the vain may prove,
 Ambition seeks more humble joys than love !
 There busy toil shall ne'er invade thy reign,
 Nor sciences perplex thy lab'ring brain :
 Or none, but what with equal sweets invite ;
 Nor other arts, but to prolong delight :

Some-

Sometimes thy fancy prune her tender wing,
 To praise a pendant, or to grace a ring ;
 To fix the dress that suits each varying mien ;
 To shew where best the clustering gems are seen ;
 To sigh soft strains along the vocal grove,
 And tell the charms, the sweet effects of love !
 Nor fear to find a coy disdainful muse ;
 Nor think the sisters will their aid refuse.
 Cool grots, and tinkling rills, or silent shades,
 Soft scenes of leisure ! suit th' harmonious maids ;
 And all the wise, and all the grave decree
 Some of that sacred train ally'd to me.

But if more specious ease thy wishes claim,
 And thy breast glow with faint desire of fame,
 Some softer science shall thy thoughts amuse,
 And learning's name a solemn sound diffuse :
 To thee all nature's curious stores I'll bring,
 Explain the beauties of an insect's wing ;
 The plant, which nature, less diffusely kind,
 Has to few climes with partial care confin'd ;
 The shell she scatters with more careless air,
 And, in her frolics, seems supremely fair ;
 The worth that dazzles in the tulip's stains,
 Or lurks beneath a pebble's various veins.

Sleep's downy god, averse to war's alarms,
 Shall o'er thy head diffuse his softest charms ;
 Ere anxious thought thy dear repose assail,
 Or care, my most destructive foe, prevail.

The wat'ry nymphs shall tune the vocal vales,
 And gentle zephyrs harmonize their gales,
 For thy repose, inform, with rival joy,
 Their streams to murmur, and their winds to sigh.
 Thus shalt thou spend the sweetly-flowing day,
 Till lost in bliss thou breathe thy soul away :
 Till the t' Elysian bow'rs of joy repair,
 Nor find my charming scenes exceeded there."

She ceas'd ; and on a lily'd bank reclin'd,
 Her flowing robe wav'd wanton with the wind :
 One tender hand her drooping head sustains ;
 One points, expressive, to the flow'ry plains.
 Soon the fond youth perceiv'd her influence roll
 Deep in his breast, to melt his manly soul :
 As when FAVONIUS joins the solar blaze,
 And each fair fabric of the frost decays.
 Soon, to his breast, the soft harangue convey'd
 Resolves too partial to the specious maid.
 He sigh'd, he gaz'd, so sweetly smil'd the dame ;
 Yet sighing, gazing, seem'd to scorn his flame ;
 And, oft as virtue caught his wand'ring eye,
 A crimson blush condemn'd the rising sigh.
 'Twas such the ling'ring TROJAN's shame betray'd,
 When MAIA's son the frown of JOVE display'd :
 When wealth, fame, empire, cou'd no ballance prove
 For the soft reign of DIDO, and of love.
 Thus ill with arduous glory love conspires ;
 Soft tender flames with bold impetuous fires !

Some

Some hov'ring doubts his anxious bosom mov'd,
And virtue, zealous fair! those doubts improv'd.

“ Fly, fly, fond youth, the too indulgent maid,
Nor err, by such fantastic scenes betray'd.
Tho' in my path the rugged thorn be seen,
And the dry turf disclose a fainter green ;
Tho' no gay rose, or flow'ry product shine,
The barren surface still conceals the mine.
Each thorn that threatens, ev'n the weed that grows
In virtue's path, superior sweets bestows—
Yet shou'd those boasted, specious toys allure,
Whence cou'd fond sloth the flatt'ring gifts procure ?
The various wealth that tempts thy fond desire,
'Tis I alone, her greatest foe, acquire.
I from old ocean rob the treasur'd store ;
I thro' each region, latent gems explore ;
'Twas I the rugged brilliant first reveal'd,
By num'rous strata deep in earth conceal'd ;
'Tis I the surface yet refine, and shew
The modest gem's intrinsic charms to glow.
Nor swells the grape, nor spires its feeble tree
Without the firm supports of industry.

But grant we sloth the scene herself has drawn,
The mossy grotto, and the flow'ry lawn ;
Let PHILOMELA tune th' harmonious gale,
And with each breeze eternal sweets exhale ;
Let gay POMONA flight the plains around,
And chuse, for fairest fruits, the favour'd ground ;

To bless the fertile vale shou'd virtue cease,
 Nor mossy grotts, nor flow'ry lawns cou'd please ;
 Nor gay POMONA's luscious gifts avail,
 The sound harmonious, or the spicy gale.

Seest thou yon rocks in dreadful pomp arise,
 Whose rugged cliffs deform th' encircling skies ?
 Those fields, whence PHOEBUS all their moisture drains,
 And, too profusely fond, disrobes the plains ?
 When I vouchsafe to tread the barren soil,
 Those rocks seem lovely, and those deserts smile.
 The form thou view'st, to ev'ry scene with ease
 Transfers its charms, and ev'ry scene can please.
 When I have on those pathless wilds appear'd,
 And the lone wand'rer with my presence chear'd ;
 Those cliffs the exile has with pleasure view'd,
 And call'd that desert blissful solitude !

Nor I alone to such extend my care :
 Fair-blooming health surveys her altars there.
 Brown exercise will lead thee where she reigns,
 And with reflected lustre gild the plains.
 With her, in flow'r of youth, and beauty's pride,
 Her offspring, calm content and peace, reside.
 One ready off'ring suits each neighb'ring shrine ;
 And all obey their laws, who practise mine.

But health averse from sloth's smooth region flies,
 And, in her absence, pleasure droops and dies.
 Her bright companions, mirth, delight, repose,
 Smile where she smiles, and sicken when she goes.

A galaxy

A galaxy of pow'rs ! whose forms appear
For ever beauteous, and for ever near.

Nor will soft sleep to sloth's request incline,
He from her couches flies unbid to mine.

Vain is the sparkling bowl, the warbling strain,
Th' incentive song, the labour'd viand vain !
Where she relentless reigns without controul,
And checks each gay excursion of the soul :
Unmov'd, tho' beauty, deck'd in all its charms,
Grace the rich couch, and spread the softest arms :
Till joyless indolence suggests desires ;
Or drugs are sought to furnish languid fires :
Such languid fires as on the vitals prey,
Barren of blifs, but fertile of decay.

As artful heats, apply'd to thirsty lands,
Produce no flow'rs, and but debase the sands.

But let fair health her chearing smiles impart,
How sweet is nature, how superfluous art !
'Tis she the fountain's ready draught commends,
And smooths the flinty couch which fortune lends.
And, when my hero from his toils retires,
Fills his gay bosom with unusual fires,
And, while no checks th' unbounded joy reprove,
Aids and refines the genuine sweets of love.
His fairest prospect rising trophies frame :
His sweetest music is the voice of fame ;
Pleasures to sloth unknown ! she never found
How fair the prospect, or how sweet the found.

See

See fame's gay structure from yon summit charms,
 And fires the manly breast to arts or arms :
 Nor dread the steep ascent, by which you rise
 From grov'ling vales to tow'rs which reach the skies.

Love, fame, esteem, 'tis labour must acquire ;
 The smiling offspring of a rigid fire !
 To fix the friend, your service must be shewn ;
 All, ere they lov'd your merit, lov'd their own.
 That wond'ring GREECE your portrait may admire,
 That tuneful bards may string for you their lyre,
 That books may praise, or coins record your name,
 Such, such rewards 'tis toil alone can claim !
 And the same column which displays to view
 The conqueror's name, displays the conquest too.

'Twas slow experience, tedious mistress ! taught
 All that e'er nobly spoke, or bravely fought.
 'Twas she the patriot, she the bard refin'd,
 In arts that serve, protect, or please mankind.
 Not the vain visions of inactive schools ;
 Not fancy's maxims, not opinion's rules
 E'er form'd the man whose gen'rous warmth extends
 T' enrich his country, or to serve his friends.
 On active worth the laurel war bestows :
 Peace rears her olive for industrious brows :
 Nor earth, uncultur'd, yields its kind supplies :
 Nor heav'n, its show'rs without a sacrifice.

See far below such grov'ling scenes of shame,
 As lull to rest IGNAVIA'S slumb'ring dame.

Her friends, from all the toils of fame secure,
 Alas! inglorious, greater toils endure.
 Doom'd all to mourn, who in her cause engage,
 A youth enervate, and a painful age!
 A sickly sapless mass, if reason flies;
 And, if she linger, impotently wise!
 A thoughtless train, who pamper'd, sleek, and gay,
 Invite old age, and revel youth away;
 From life's fresh vigour move the load of care,
 And idly place it where they least can bear.
 When to the mind, diseas'd, for aid they fly,
 What kind reflection shall the mind supply?
 When, with lost health, what shou'd the loss allay,
 Peace, peace is lost: a comfortless decay!
 But to my friends, when youth, when pleasure flies,
 And earth's dim beauties fade before their eyes,
 Thro' death's dark vista flowery tracts are seen,
 Elysian plains, and groves for ever green.
 If o'er their lives a refluent glance they cast,
 Their's is the present who can praise the past.
 Life has its bliss for these, when past its bloom,
 As wither'd roses yield a late perfume.

Serene, and safe from passion's stormy rage,
 How calm they glide into the port of age!
 Of the rude voyage less depriv'd than eas'd;
 More tir'd than pain'd, and weaken'd than diseas'd.
 For health on age, 'tis temp'rance must bestow;
 And peace from piety alone can flow;

And all the incense bounteous Jove requires,
Has sweets for him who feeds the sacred fires.—

Sloth views the tow'rs of fame with envious eyes;
Desirous still, still impotent to rise:

Oft, when resolv'd to gain those blissful tow'rs,
The pensive queen the dire ascent explores,

Comes onward, wafted by the balmy trees,
Some silvan music, or some scented breeze:

She turns her head, her own gay realm she spies,
And all the short-liv'd resolution dies.

Thus some fond insect's fault'ring pinions wave,
Clasp'd in its fav'rite sweets, a lasting slave:

And thus in vain these charming visions please
The wretch of glory, and the slave of ease:

Doom'd ever in ignoble state to pine,
Boast her own scenes, and languish after mine.

But shun her snares: nor let the world exclaim,
Thy birth, which was thy glory, prov'd thy shame.

With early hope thine infant actions fir'd;
Let manhood crown what infancy inspir'd.

Let gen'rous toils reward with health thy days,
Prolong thy prime, and eternize thy praise.

The bold exploit that charms th' attesting age,
To latest times shall gen'rous hearts engage;

And with that myrtle shall thy shrine be crown'd,

With which, alive, thy graceful brows were bound:
Till time shall bid thy virtues freely bloom,

And raise a temple where it found a tomb.

Then in their feasts thy name shall GRECIANS join;
 Shall pour the sparkling juice to JOVE's and thine.
 Thine, us'd in war, shall raise their native fire;
 Thine, us'd in peace, their mutual faith inspire.
 Dullness perhaps thro' want of fight, may blame,
 And spleen, with odious industry, defame;
 And that, the honours giv'n, with wonder view,
 And this, in secret sadness, own them due:
 Contempt and envy were by fate design'd
 The rival tyrants which divide mankind;
 Contempt, which none, but who deserve, can bear;
 While envy's wounds the smiles of fame repair.
 For know, the gen'rous thine exploits shall fire,
 Thine ev'ry friend it suits thee to require,
 Lov'd by the gods, and, till their seats I shew,
 Lov'd by the good their images below."

Cease, lovely maid, fair daughter of the skies!
 My guide! my queen! th' extatic youth replies.
 In thee I trace a form design'd for sway;
 Which chiefs may court, and kings with pride obey.
 And, by thy bright immortal friends I swear,
 Thy fair idea shall no toils impair.
 Lead me! O lead me where whole hosts of foes,
 Thy form depreciate, and thy friends oppose!
 Welcome all toils th' unequal fates decree,
 While toils endear thy faithful charge to thee.
 Such be my cares, to bind th' oppressive hand,
 And crush the fetters of an injur'd land:

To

To see the monster's noxious life resign'd,
 And tyrants quell'd, the monsters of mankind!
 Nature shall smile to view the vanquish'd brood,
 And none, but envy, riot unsubstu'd.
 In cloister'd state let selfish sages dwell,
 Proud that their heart is narrow as their cell;
 And boast their mazy labyrinth of rules,
 Far less the friends of virtue, than the fools:
 Yet such in vain thy fav'ring smiles pretend;
 For HE is thine, who proves his country's friend.
 Thus when my life well-spent the good enjoy,
 And the mean envious labour to destroy;
 When, strongly lur'd by fame's contiguous shrine,
 I yet devote my choicer vows to thine;
 If all my toils thy promis'd favour claim,
 O lead thy fav'rite thro' the gates of fame!

He ceas'd his vows, and, with disdainful air,
 He turn'd to blast the late exulting fair.
 But vanish'd, fled to some more friendly shore,
 The conscious phantom's beauty pleas'd no more:
 Convinc'd, her spurious charms of dress and face
 Claim'd a quick conquest, or a sure disgrace.
 Fantastic pow'r! whose transient charms allur'd,
 While error's mist the reas'ning mind obscur'd:
 Not such the victress, virtue's constant queen
 Endur'd the test of truth, and dar'd be seen.
 Her bright'ning form and features seem'd to own,
 'Twas all her wish, her int'rest to be known:

And, when his longing view the fair declin'd,
Left a full image of her charms behind.

Thus reigns the moon, with furtive splendor crown'd,
While glooms oppress us, and thick shades surround.
But let the source of light its beams display,
Languid and faint the mimic flames decay, }
And all the sick'ning splendor fades away.

The PROGRESS of TASTE:

O R,

The FATE of DELICACY.

A POEM on the Temper and Studies of the AUTHOR; and how great a Misfortune it is, for a Man of small Estate to have much TASTE.

PART the FIRST.

PErhaps some cloud eclips'd the day,
When thus I tun'd my pensive lay.
"The ship is launch'd—we catch the gale—
On life's extended ocean sail:

For

For happiness our course we bend,
 Our ardent cry, our general end !
 Yet ah! the scenes which tempt our care
 Are like the forms dispers'd in air,
 Still dancing near disorder'd eyes ;
 And weakest his, who best descries !

Yet let me not my birth-right barter,
 (For wishing is the poet's charter ;
 All bards have leave to wish what's wanted,
 Tho' few e'er found their wishes granted ;
 Extensive field ! where poets pride them
 In singing all that is deny'd them.)

For humble ease, ye pow'rs ! I pray ;
 That plain warm suit for ev'ry day !
 And pleasure, and brocade, bestow ;
 To flaunt it—once a month, or so.
 The first for constant wear we want ;
 The first, ye pow'rs ! for ever grant !
 But constant wear the last bespatters,
 And turns the tissue into tatters.

Where'er my vagrant course I bend,
 Let me secure one faithful friend.
 Let me, in public scenes, request
 A friend of wit and taste, well-dress'd :
 And, if I must not hope such favour,
 A friend of wit and taste, however.

Alas ! that wisdom ever shuns
 To congregate her scatter'd sons ;

Whose nervous forces, well combin'd,
 Would win the field, and sway mankind.
 The fool will squeeze, from morn to night,
 To fix his follies full in sight ;
 The note he strikes, the plume he shews,
 Attract whole flights of fops and beaux ;
 And kindred-fools, who ne'er had known him,
 Flock at the sign ; carefs, and own him.
 But ill-star'd sense, nor gay nor loud,
 Steals soft, on tip-toe, thro' the crowd ;
 Conveys his meagre form between ;
 And slides, like pervious air, unseen :
 Contracts his known tenuity,
 As though 'twere ev'n a crime, to be :
 Nor ev'n permits his eyes to stray,
 And win acquaintance in their way.

In company, so mean his air,
 You scarce are conscious he is there :
 Till from some nook, like sharpen'd steel,
 Occurs his face's thin profile.
 Still seeming, from the gazer's eye,
 Like VENUS, newly-bath'd, to fly.
 Yet while reluctant he displays
 His real gems before the blaze,
 The fool hath, in its center, plac'd
 His tawdry stock of painted paste.
 Disus'd to speak, he tries his skill ;
 Speaks coldly, and succeeds but ill ;

His

His penfive manner, dulnefs deem'd ;
 His modefty, referve esteem'd ;
 His wit unknown, his learning vain,
 He wins not one of all the train.

And thofe who, mutually known,
 In friendship's faireft lift had fhone,
 Lefs prone, than pebbles, to unite,
 Retire to fhades from public fight ;
 Grow favage, quit their focial nature ;
 And ftarve, to ftudy mutual fatire.

But friends, and fav'rites, to chagrin them,
 Find counties, countries, feas, between them :
 Meet once a year, then part, and then
 Retiring, wifh to meet again.

Sick of the thought, let me provide
 Some human form to grace my fide ;
 At hand, where'er I fhape my courfe ;
 An ufeful, pliant, ftalking-horfe !

No gesture free from fome grimace ;
 No seam, without its fhare of lace ;
 But, mark'd with gold or filver either,
 Hint where his coat was piec'd together.
 His legs be lengthen'd, I advife,
 And ftockings roll'd abridge his thighs.
 What tho' VANDYCK had other rules,
 What had VANDYCK to do with fools ?
 Be nothing wanting, but his mind ;
 Before, a folitaire ; behind,

A twifted

A twisted ribbon, like the track
 Which nature gives an ass's back.
 Silent, as midnight! pity 'twere
 His wisdom's slender wealth to share ; -
 And, whilst in flocks our fancies stray,
 To wish the poor man's lamb away.

This form attracting ev'ry eye,
 I strole all unregarded by :
 This wards the jokes of ev'ry kind,
 As an umbrella fun or wind ;
 Or, like a sponge, absorbs the follies,
 And pestilential fumes of malice ;
 Or like a splendid shield is fit
 To screen the templar's random wit ;
 Or what some gentler cit lets fall,
 As wool-packs quash the leaden ball.

Allusions these of weaker force,
 And apter still the stalking-horse !
 O let me wander all unseen,
 Beneath the sanction of his mien !
 As lilies soft, as roses fair !
 Empty as air-pumps drain'd of air !
 With steady eye and pace remark
 The speckled flock that haunts the park ; *
 Level my pen with wond'rous heed
 At follies, flocking there to feed :
 And, as my satire bursts amain,
 See, feather'd fopp'ry strew the plain.

But

* St. JAMES'S.

But when I seek my rural grove,
 And share the peaceful haunts I love,
 Let none of this unhallow'd train
 My sweet sequester'd paths profane.
 Oft may some polish'd virtuous friend
 To these soft-winding vales descend ;
 And, love with me inglorious things,
 And scorn with me the pomp of kings :
 And check me, when my bosom burns
 For statues, paintings, coins and urns.
 For I in DAMON's pray'r cou'd join,
 And DAMON's wish might now be mine—
 But all dispers'd ! the wish, the pray'r,
 Are driven to mix with common air.

P A R T the S E C O N D.

HOW happy once was DAMON's lot,
 While yet romantic schemes were not !
 Ere yet he sent his weakly eyes,
 To plan frail castles in the skies ;
 Forsaking pleasures cheap and common,
 To court a blaze, still flitting from one.

Ah happy DAMON ! thrice and more,
 Had taste ne'er touch'd thy tranquil shore.

Oh days ! when to a girdle ty'd
 The couples gingled at his side ;
 And DAMON swore he wou'd not barter
 The sportsman's girdle, for a garter !

Whoever

Whoever came to kill an hour,
 Found easy DAMON in their pow'r ;
 Pure social nature all his guide,
 " DAMON had not a grain of pride."

He wish'd not to elude the snares
 Which knav'ry plans, and craft prepares ;
 But rather wealth to crown their wiles ;
 And win their universal smiles :
 For who are chearful, who at ease,
 But they who cheat us as they please ?

He wink'd at many a gross design,
 The new-fall'n calf might countermine :
 Thus ev'ry fool allow'd his merit ;
 " Yes ! DAMON had a gen'rous spirit !"

A coxcomb's jest, however vile,
 Was sure, at least, of DAMON's smile :
 That coxcomb ne'er deny'd him sense ;
 For why ? it prov'd his own pretence :
 All own'd, were modesty away,
 DAMON cou'd shine as much as they.

When wine and folly came in season,
 DAMON ne'er strove to save his reason ;
 Obnoxious to the mad uproar :
 A spy upon a hostile shore !
 'Twas this his company endear'd ;
 Mirth never came till he appear'd :
 His lodgings—ev'ry draw'r cou'd shew 'em ;
 The slave was kick'd, who did not know 'em.

Thus

Thus DAMON, studious of his ease,
 And pleasing all, whom mirth cou'd please ;
 Defy'd the world, like idle COLLEY,
 To shew a softer word than folly.
 Since wisdom's gorgon-shield was known
 To stare the gazer into stone ;
 He chose to trust in folly's charm,
 To keep his breast alive and warm.

At length grave learning's sober train
 Remark'd the trifler with disdain ;
 The sons of taste contemn'd his ways,
 And rank'd him with the brutes that graze :
 While they to nobler heights aspir'd,
 And grew belov'd, esteem'd, admir'd.

Hence with our youth, not void of spirit,
 His old companions lost their merit :
 And ev'ry kind well-natur'd wit
 Seem'd a dull play, without a plot ;
 Where ev'ry yawning guest agrees,
 The willing creature strives to please ;
 But temper never could amuse ;
 It barely led us to excuse ;
 'Twas true, conversing, they aver'd,
 All they had seen, or felt, or heard :
 Talents of weight ! for wights like these,
 The law might chuse for witnesses :
 But sure th' attesting dry narration
 Ill suits a judge of conversation.

What

* What were their freedoms? mere excuses
 To vent ill manners, blows, and bruises.
 Yet freedom, gallant freedom! hailing,
 At form, at form, incessant railing,
 Would they examine each offence,
 Its latent cause, its known pretence,
 Punctilio ne'er was known to breed 'em,
 So sure as fond prolific freedom.
 Their courage? but a loaded gun;
 Machine the wise wou'd wish to shun;
 Its guard unsafe, its lock an ill one,
 Where accident might fire and kill one.

In short, disgusted out of measure,
 Thro' much contempt, and slender pleasure,
 His sense of dignity returns;
 With native pride his bosom burns;
 He seeks respect—but how to gain it?
 Wit, social mirth, cou'd ne'er obtain it.
 Laughter, how kind soe'er it seem,
 Discards, and dissipates esteem:
 The man who gravely bows, enjoys it;
 But shaking hands, at once, destroys it.
 Precarious plant, which, fresh and gay,
 Shrinks at the touch, and fades away!

Come then reserve! yet from thy train
 Banish contempt, and curst disdain.
 Teach me, he cry'd, thy magic art
 To act the decent distant part:

To

* Boisterous mirth.

To husband well my complaisance,
 Nor let ev'n wit too far advance ;
 But chuse calm reason for my theme,
 In these her loyal realms supreme ;
 And o'er her charms, with caution shewn,
 Be still a graceful umbrage thrown ;
 And each abrupter period crown'd,
 With nods, and winks, and smiles profound.
 Till rescu'd from the crowd beneath,
 No more with pain to move or breathe,
 I rise with head elate, to share
 Salubrious draughts of purer air.
 Respect is won by grave pretence
 And silence, surer ev'n than sense—

'Tis hence the sacred grandeur springs
 Of Eastern—and of other kings.
 Or whence this awe to virtue due,
 While virtue's distant as PERU ?
 The sheathless sword the guard displays,
 Which round emits its dazzling rays :
 The stately fort, the turrets tall,
 Portcullis'd gate, and battled wall,
 Less screens the body, than controuls,
 And wards contempt from royal souls.

The crowns they wear but check the eye,
 Before it fondly pierce too nigh ;
 That dazzled crowds may be employ'd
 Around the surface of—the void.

O! 'tis the statesman's craft profound
 To scatter his amusements round ;
 To tempt us from their conscious breast,
 Where full-fledg'd crimes enjoy their nest.
 Nor awes us every worth reveal'd
 So deeply, as each vice conceal'd.

The lordly log, dispatch'd of yore,
 That the frog-people might adore,
 With guards to keep them at a distance,
 Had reign'd, nor wanted wit's assistance :
 Nay—had addresses from his nation ;
 In praise of log-administration.

P A R T the T H I R D.

THE buoyant fires of youth were o'er,
 And fame and finery pleas'd no more ;
 Productive of that gen'ral stare,
 Which cool reflection ill can bear !
 And, crowds commencing mere vexation,
 Retirement sent its invitation.

Romantic scenes of pendent hills,
 And verdant vales, and falling rills,
 And mossy banks the fields adorn,
 Where DAMON, simple swain, was born.

The dryads rear'd a shady grove ;
 Where such as think, and such as love,
 Might safely sigh their summer's day ;
 Or muse their silent hours away.

The

The oreads lik'd the climate well ;
 And taught the level plain to swell
 In verdant mounds, from whence the eye
 Might all their larger works descry.

The naiads pour'd their urns around,
 From nodding rocks o'er vales profound.
 They form'd their streams to please the view,
 And bade them wind, as serpents do :
 And having shewn them where to stray,
 Threw little pebbles in their way.

These fancy, all-sagacious maid,
 Had at their several tasks survey'd :
 She saw and smil'd ; and oft would lead
 Our DAMON's foot o'er hill and mead ;
 There, with descriptive finger, trace
 The genuine beauties of the place ;
 And when she all its charms had shewn,
 Prescribe improvements of her own.

See yonder hill, so green, so round,
 Its brow with ambient beeches crown'd !
 'Twould well become thy gentle care
 To raise a dome to VENUS there :
 Pleas'd would the nymphs thy zeal survey ;
 And VENUS, in their arms, repay.
 'Twas such a shade, and such a nook,
 In such a vale, near such a brook ;
 From such a rocky fragment springing ;
 That fam'd APOLLO chose, to sing in.

There let an altar wrought with art
 Engage thy tuneful patron's heart.
 How charming there to muse and warble
 Beneath his bust of breathing marble !
 With laurel wreath, and mimic lyre,
 That crown a poet's vast desire.
 Then, near it, scoop the vaulted cell
 Where music's * charming maids may dwell ;
 Prone to indulge thy tender passion,
 And make thee many an assignation.
 Deep in the grove's obscure retreat
 Be plac'd MINERVA's sacred seat ;
 There let her awful turrets rise,
 (For wisdom flies from vulgar eyes :)
 There her calm dictates shalt thou hear
 Distinctly strike thy list'ning ear :
 And who wou'd shun the pleasing labour,
 To have MINERVA for his neighbour ?"
 In short, so charm'd each wild suggestion,
 Its truth was little call'd in question :
 And DAMON dreamt he saw the fawns,
 And nymphs, distinctly, skim the lawns ;
 Now trac'd amid the trees, and then
 Lost in the circling shades again.
 With leer oblique their lover viewing—
 And CUPID—panting—and pursuing—
 Fancy, enchanting fair, he cry'd,
 Be thou my goddess! thou my guide !

For

* The muses.

For thy bright visions I despise
 What foes may think, or friends advise.
 The feign'd concern, when folks survey
 Expence, time, study cast away ;
 The real spleen, with which they see :
 I please myself, and follow thee.

Thus glow'd his breast by fancy warm'd ;
 And thus the fairy landskip charm'd.
 But most he hop'd his constant care
 Might win the favour of the fair ;
 And, wand'ring late thro' yonder glade,
 He thus the soft design betray'd.

“ Ye doves ! for whom I rear'd the grove,
 With melting lays salute my love !
 My DELIA with your notes detain,
 Or I have rear'd the grove in vain !
 Ye flow'rs ! which early spring supplies,
 Display at once your brightest dyes !
 That she your op'ning charms may see,
 Or what were else your charms to me ?
 Kind zephyr ! brush each fragrant flow'r,
 And shed its odours round my bow'r,
 Or ne'er again, O gentle wind !
 Shall I, in thee, refreshment find
 Ye streams, if e'er your banks I lov'd,
 If e'er your native sounds improv'd,
 May each soft murmur soothe my fair ;
 Or oh 'twill deepen my despair !

Be sure, ye willows ! you be seen
 Array'd in liveliest robes of green ;
 Or I will tear your slighted boughs,
 And let them fade around my brows.
 And thou, my grott ! whose lonely bounds
 The melancholy pine furrounds !
 May she admire thy peaceful gloom,
 Or thou shalt prove her lover's tomb."

And now the lofty domes were rear'd ;
 Loud laugh'd the squires, the rabble star'd.

" See, neighbours, what our DAMON's doing !
 I think some folks are fond of ruin !
 I saw his sheep at random stray—
 But he has thrown his crook away—
 And builds such huts as, in foul weather,
 Are fit for sheep nor shepherd neither."

Whence came the sober swain misled ?
 Why, PHOEBUS put it in his head.
 PHOEBUS befriends him, we are told ;
 And PHOEBUS coins bright tuns of gold.
 'Twere prudent not to be so vain on't :
 I think he'll never touch a grain on't.
 And if, from PHOEBUS, and his muse,
 Mere earthly laziness ensues ;
 'Tis plain, for aught that I can say,
 The dev'l inspires, as well as they.
 So they—while fools of grosser kind,
 Less weeting what our bard design'd,

Impute

Impute his schemes to real evil ;
 That in these haunts he met the devil,
 He own'd, tho' their advice was vain,
 It suited wights who trod the plain:
 For dullness—tho' he might abhor it—
 In them, he made allowance for it.
 Nor wonder'd, if beholding mottos,
 And urns, and domes, and cells, and grottos,
 Folks, little dreaming of the muses,
 Were plagu'd to guess their proper uses.

But did the muses haunt his cell ?
 Or in his dome did VENUS dwell ?
 Did PALLAS in his counsels share ?
 The Delian god reward his pray'r ?
 Or did his zeal engage the fair ?
 When all the structures shone compleat ;
 Not much convenient, wond'rous neat ;
 Adorn'd with gilding, painting, planting,
 And the fair guests alone were wanting ;
 Ah me ! ('twas DAMON's own confession)
 Came poverty, and took possession.

P A R T the F O U R T H.

WHY droops my DAMON, whilst he roves
 Thro' ornamented meads and groves ?
 Near columns, obelisks, and spires,
 Which ev'ry critic eye admires ?

'Tis poverty, detested maid,
Sole tenant of their ample shade !
'Tis she, that robs him of his ease ;
And bids their very charms displease.

But now, by fancy long controul'd,
And with the sons of taste enroll'd,
He deem'd it shameful, to commence
First minister to common-sense :
Far more elated, to pursue
The lowest task of dear vertu.

And now behold his lofty soul,
That whilom flew from pole to pole,
Settle on some elaborate flow'r ;
And, like a bee, the sweets devour !
Now, of a rose enamour'd, prove
The wild folicitudes of love !
Now, in a lily's cup enshrin'd,
Forego the commerce of mankind !

As in these toils he wore away
The calm remainder of his day ;
Conducting sun, and shade, and show'r,
As most might glad the new-born flow'r,
So fate ordain'd—before his eye—
Starts up the long-fought butterfly !
While flutt'ring round, her plumes unfold
Celestial crimson, dropt with gold.

Adieu, ye bands of flow'rets fair !
The living beauty claims his care :

For

For this he strips—nor bolt, nor chain,
 Cou'd DAMON's warm pursuit restrain.

See him o'er hill, morafs, or mound,
 Where'er the fpeckled game is found,
 Tho' bent with age, with zeal purfue ;
 And totter tow'rds the prey in view.

Nor rock, nor fream, his fteps retard,
 Intent upon the bleft reward !

One vaffal fly repays the chace !

A wing, a film, rewards the race !

Rewards him, tho' difeafe attend,

And in a fatal furfeit, end.

So fierce CAMILLA skim'd the plain,
 Smit with the purple's pleafing ftain,
 She ey'd intent the glitt'ring ftranger,
 And knew alas ! nor fear, nor danger :
 'Till deep within her panting heart,
 Malicious fate impell'd the dart !

How ftudious he what fav'rite food
 Regales dame nature's tiny brood !
 What junkets fat the filmy people !
 And what liqueurs they chufe to tipple !

Behold him, at fome crife, prefcibe,
 And raife with drugs the fick'ning tribe !
 Or haply, when their fpirits fau'ter,
 Sprinkling my Lord of CLOYNE's tar-water.

When nature's brood of infects dies,
 See how he pimps for am'rous flies !

See him the timely succour lend her,
 'And, help the wantons to engender !
 Or see him guard their pregnant hour ;
 Exert his soft obstetric pow'r :
 And, lending each his lenient hand,
 With new-born grubs enrich the land !

* O WILKS ! what poet's loftiest lays
 Can match thy labours, and thy praise ?
 Immortal fame ! by fate decreed
 To guard the moth's illustrious breed !
 'Till flutt'ring swarms on swarms arise,
 And all our wardrobes teem with flies !

And must we praise this taste for toys ?
 Admire it then in girls and boys.
 Ye youths of fifteen years, or more,
 Resign your moths—the season's o'er.
 'Tis time more social joys to prove ;
 'Twere now your nobler task—to love.
 Let * * * *'s eyes more deeply warm ;
 Nor, slighting nature's fairest form,
 The biases of your souls determine
 Tow'rd's the mean love of nature's vermin.

But ah ! how wond'rous few have known,
 To give each stage of life its own.

'Tis the pretexta's utmost bound,
 With radiant purple edg'd around,
 To please the child ; whose glowing dyes
 Too long delight maturer eyes :

And

* Alluding to Mr. WILKS's very expensive proposals.

And few, but with regret, assume
 The plain-wrought labours of the loom.
 Ah! let not me by fancy steer,
 When life's autumnal clouds appear;
 Nor ev'n in learning's long delays
 Consume my fairest, fruitless days:
 Like him, who should in armour spend
 The sums that armour should defend.

Awhile, in pleasure's myrtle bow'r,
 We share her smiles, and bless her pow'r:
 But find at last, we vainly strive
 To fix the worst coquette alive.

O you! that with assiduous flame
 Have long pursu'd the faithless dame;
 Forfake her soft abodes awhile,
 And dare her frown, and slight her smile.
 Nor scorn, whatever wits may say,
 The foot-path road, the king's high-way.
 No more the scrup'lous charmer teize,
 But seek the roofs of honest ease;
 The rival fair, no more pursu'd,
 Shall there with forward pace intrude;
 Shall there her ev'ry art essay,
 To win you to her slighted sway;
 And grant your scorn a glance more fair
 Than e'er she gave your fondest pray'r.

But would you happiness pursue?
 Partake both ease, and pleasure too?

Would

Would you, thro' all your days, dispense
 The joys of reason, and of sense ?
 Or give to life the most you can,
 Let social virtue shape the plan.
 For does not to the virtuous deed
 A train of pleasing sweets succeed ?
 Or, like the sweets of wild desire,
 Did social pleasures ever tire ?

Yet midst the groupe be some prefer'd,
 Be some abhorr'd—for DAMON err'd :
 And such there are—of fair address—
 As 'twere unsocial to carefs.
 O learn by reason's equal rule
 To shun the praise of knave, or fool !
 Then, tho' you deem it better still
 To gain some rustic 'squire's good will ;
 And souls, however mean or vile,
 Like features, brighten by a smile ;
 Yet reason holds it for a crime,
 The trivial breast shou'd share thy time :
 And virtue, with reluctant eyes,
 Beholds this human sacrifice !

Thro' deep reserve, and air erect,
 Mistaken DAMON won respect ;
 But cou'd the specious homage pass,
 With any creature, but an ass ?
 If conscious, they who fear'd the skin,
 Wou'd scorn the sluggish brute within.

What

What awe-struck slaves the tow'rs enclose,
 Where Persian monarchs eat, and doze ?
 What prostrate rev'rence all agree,
 To pay a prince they never see !
 Mere vassals of a royal throne !
 The sopher's virtues must be shewn,
 To make the reverence his own.

As for THALIA—wouldst thou make her
 Thy bride without a portion ?—take her.
 She will with duteous care attend,
 And all thy pensive hours befriend ;
 Will swell thy joys, will share thy pain ;
 With thee rejoice, with thee complain ;
 Will smooth thy pillow, pleat thy bow'rs ;
 And bind thine aching head with flow'rs.
 But be this previous maxim known,
 If thou canst feed on love alone :
 If blest with her, thou canst sustain
 Contempt, and poverty, and pain :
 If so—then rifle all her graces—
 And fruitful be your fond embraces.

Too soon, by caitiff-spleen inspir'd,
 Sage DAMON to his groves retir'd :
 The path disclaim'd by sober reason ;
 Retirement claims a later season ;
 Ere active youth and warm desires
 Have quite withdrawn their ling'ring fires.
 With the warm bosom, ill agree,
 Or limpid stream, or shady tree.

Love

Love lurks within the rosy bow'r,
 And claims the speculative hour ;
 Ambition finds his calm retreat,
 And bids his pulse too fiercely beat ;
 Ev'n social friendship duns his ear,
 And cites him to the public sphere.
 Does he resist their genuine force ?
 His temper takes some froward course ;
 Till passion, misdirected, fights
 For weeds, or shells, or grubs, or flies !

Far happiest he, whose early days
 Spent in the social paths of praise,
 Leave, fairly printed on his mind,
 A train of virtuous deeds behind :
 From this rich fund, the mem'ry draws
 The lasting meed of self-applause.

Such fair ideas lend their aid
 To people the sequester'd shade.
 Such are the naiads, nymphs, and fawns,
 That haunt his floods, or cheer his lawns.
 If where his devious ramble strays,
 He virtue's radiant form surveys ;
 She seems no longer now to wear
 The rigid mien, the frown severe ;*
 To shew him her remote abode ;
 To point the rocky arduous road :
 But from each flower, his fields allow,
 She twines a garland for his brow.

A RHAPSODY, addressed to young PoETS.

*Infans ; omnes gelidis quicunque lacernis
Sunt tibi, Nasones Virgiliosque vides.* MART.

P A R T THE F I R S T.

TO you, ye bards ! whose lavish breast requires
This monitory lay, the strains belong ;
Nor think some miser vents his sapient saw,
Or some dull cit unfeeling of the charms
That tempt profusion, sings ; while friendly zeal,
To guard from fatal ills the tribe he loves,
Inspires the meanest of the muse's train !
Like you I loath the groveling progeny,
Whose wily arts, by creeping time matur'd,
Advance them high on pow'r's tyrannic throne :
To lord it there in gorgeous useflessness,
And spurn successful worth that pines below !

See the rich churl, amid the social fons
Of wine and wit, regaling ! hark he joins
In the free jest delighted ! seems to shew
A meliorated heart ! he laughs ! he sings !
Songs of gay import, madrigals of glee,

And

And drunken anthems set agape the board.
 Like *DEMEA, in the play, benign and mild,
 And pouring forth benevolence of soul,
 Till MICIO wonders: or, in SHAKESPEAR'S line,
 Obstrep'rous silence; drowning SHALLOW'S voice,
 And startling FALSTAFF, and his mad compeers.

He owns 'tis prudence, ever and anon,
 To smooth his careful brow; to let his purse
 Ope to a six-pence's diameter!
 He likes our ways; he owns the ways of wit
 Are ways of pleasaunce, and deserve regard.
 True, we are dainty good society,
 But what art thou? alas! consider well,
 Thou bane of social pleasure, know thyself.
 Thy fell approach, like some invasive damp
 Breath'd thro' the pores of earth from Stygian caves,
 Destroys the lamp of mirth; the lamp which we
 Its flamens boast to guard, we know not how:
 But at thy sight the fading flame assumes
 A ghastly blue, and in a stench expires.

True, thou seem'st chang'd; all fainted, all ensky'd;
 The trembling tears that charge thy melting eyes
 Say thou art honest; and of gentle kind,
 But all is false! an intermitting sigh
 Condemns each hour, each moment giv'n to smiles,
 And deems those only lost, thou dost not lose.
 Ev'n for a demi-groat, this open'd soul,
 This boon companion, this elastic breast

Re-

* In TERENCE'S ADELPHI.

Revibrates quick ; and sends the tuneful tongue
 To lavish music on the rugged walls
 Of some dark dungeon. Hence thou caitiff, fly !
 Touch not my glass, nor drain my sacred bowl,
 Monster, ingrate ! beneath one common sky
 Why should'st thou breathe ; beneath one common roof
 Thou ne'er shalt harbour ; nor my little boat
 Receive a foul with crimes to press it down.
 Go to thy bags, thou recreant ! hourly go,
 And gazing there, bid them be wit, be mirth,
 Be conversation. Not a face that smiles
 Admit thy presence ! not a soul that glows
 With social purport, bid or ev'n or morn
 Invest thee happy ! but when life declines,
 May thy sure heirs stand titt'ring round thy bed,
 And ush'ring in their fav'rites, burst thy locks,
 And fill their laps with gold ; till want and care
 With joy depart, and cry, " We ask no more."

Ah never never may th' harmonious mind
 Endure the worldly ! poets ever kind,—
 Guileless, distrustless, scorn the treasur'd gold,
 And spurn the miser, spurn his deity.
 Ballanc'd with friendship, in the poet's eye
 The rival scale of interest kicks the beam,
 Than lightning swifter. From his cavern'd store
 The fordid soul, with self-applause, remarks
 The kind propensity ; remarks and smiles,
 And hies with impious haste to spread the snare.
 Him we deride, and in our comic scenes

Contemn the niggard form MOLIERE has drawn,
 We loath with justice ; but alas the pain
 To bow the knee before this calf of gold ;
 Implore his envious aid, and meet his frown !

But 'tis not GOMEZ, 'tis not he whose heart
 Is crufted o'er with dross, whose callous mind
 Is senseless as his gold, the slighted muse
 Intensely loaths. 'Tis sure no equal task
 To pardon him, who lavishes his wealth
 On racer, fox-hound, hawk or spaniel, all
 But human merit ; who with gold essays
 All, but the noblest pleasure, to remove
 The wants of genius, and its smiles enjoy.

But you, ye titled youths ! whose nobler zeal
 Would burnish o'er your coronets with fame ;
 Who listen pleas'd when poet tunes his lay ;
 Permit him not, in distant solitudes,
 To pine, to languish out the fleeting hours
 Of active youth ! then virtue pants for praise.
 That season unadorn'd, the careless bard
 Quits your worn threshold, and like honest GAY
 Contemns the niggard boon ye time so ill.
 Your favours then, like trophies giv'n the tomb,
 Th' enfranchis'd spirit soaring not perceives,
 Or scorns perceiv'd ; and execrates the smile
 Which bade his vig'rous bloom, to treacherous hopes
 And servile cares a prey, expire in vain !—

Two lawless pow'rs, engag'd by mutual hate
 In endless war, beneath their flags enroll

The

The vassal world. This avarice is nam'd,
 That luxury ; 'tis true their partial friends
 Assign them softer names ; usurpers both !
 That share by dint of arms the legal throne
 Of just œconomy ; yet both betray'd
 By fraudulent ministers. The niggard chief
 Lift'ning to want, all faithless, and prepar'd
 To join each moment in his rival's train,
 His conduct models by the needless fears
 The slave inspires ; while luxury, a chief
 Of amplest faith, to plenty's rule resigns
 His whole campaign. 'Tis plenty's flatt'ring sounds
 Engross his ear ; 'tis plenty's smiling form
 Moves still before his eye. Discretion strives,
 But strives in vain, to banish from the throne
 The perjurd minion. He, secure of trust,
 With latent malice to the hostile camp
 Day, night, and hour, his monarch's wealth conveys.

Ye tow'ring minds ! ye sublimated souls !
 Who careless of your fortunes, seal and sign,
 Set, let, contract, acquit, with easier mien
 Than fops take snuff ! whose œconomic care
 Your green-silk purse engrosses ! easy, pleas'd,
 To see gold sparkle thro' the subtle folds ;
 Lovely, as when th' Hesperian fruitage smil'd
 Amid the verd'rous grove ! who fondly hope
 Spontaneous harvests ! harvests all the year !
 Who scatter wealth, as tho' the radiant crop
 Glitter'd on ev'ry bough ; and ev'ry bough

Like that the Trojan gather'd, once avuls'd
 Were by a splendid successor supply'd
 Instant, spontaneous ! listen to my lays.
 For 'tis not fools, whate'er proverbial phrase
 Have long decreed, that quit with greatest ease
 The treasur'd gold. Of words indeed profuse,
 Of gold tenacious, their torpescent soul
 Clenches their coin, and what electral fire
 Shall solve the frosty gripe, and bid it flow ?
 'Tis genius, fancy, that to wild expence
 Of health ! of treasure ! stimulates the soul :
 These, with officious care, and fatal art,
 Improve the vinous flavour ; these the smile
 Of CLOE soften ; these the glare of dress
 Illume ; the glitt'ring chariot gild anew,
 And add strange wisdom to the furs of pow'r.

Alas ! that he, amid the race of men,
 That he, who thinks of purest gold with scorn,
 Shou'd with unsated appetite demand,
 And vainly court the pleasure it procures !
 When fancy's vivid spark impels the soul
 To scorn quotidian scenes, to spurn the bliss
 Of vulgar minds, what nostrum shall compose
 Its fatal tension ? in what lonely vale
 Of balmy med'cine's various field, aspires
 The blest refrigerent ? Vain, ah vain the hope
 Of future peace, this orgasm uncontroul'd !
 Impatient, hence, of all, the frugal mind
 Requires ; to eat, to drink, to sleep, to fill

A chest

A chest with gold, the sprightly breast demands
 Incessant rapture ; life, a tedious load
 Deny'd its continuity of joy.
 But whence obtain ? philosophy requires
 No lavish cost ; to crown its utmost pray'r
 Suffice the root-built cell, the simple fleece,
 The juicy viand, and the crystal stream.
 Ev'n mild stupidity rewards her train
 With cheap contentment. Taste alone requires
 Entire profusion ! Days and nights and hours
 Thy voice, hydropic fancy ! calls aloud
 For costly draughts, inundant bowls of joy,
 Rivers of rich regalement ! seas of blifs !
 Seas without shore ! infinity of sweets !

And yet, unless sage reason join her hand
 In pleasure's purchase, pleasure is unsure :
 And yet, unless œconomy's consent
 Legitimate expence, some graceless mark,
 Some symptom ill-conceal'd, shall, soon or late,
 Burst like a pimple from the vicious tide
 Of acid blood, proclaiming want's disease,
 Amidst the bloom of shew. The scanty stream
 Slow-loitering in its channel, seems to vie
 With VAGA's depth ; but should the sedgy pow'r
 Vain-glorious empty his penurious urn
 O'er the rough rock, how must his fellow-streams
 Deride the tinklings of the boastive rill !

I not aspire to mark the dubious path
 That leads to wealth, to poets mark'd in vain !

But ere self-flattery soothe the vivid breast
 With dreams of fortune near ally'd to fame,
 Reflect how few, who charm'd the list'ning ear
 Of satrap or of king, her smiles enjoy'd !
 Consider well, what meagre alms repay'd
 The great Mæonian, sire of tuneful song,
 And prototype of all that soar'd sublime,
 And left dull cares below ; what griefs impell'd
 The modest bard of learn'd ELIZA'S reign
 To swell with tears his MULLA'S parent stream,
 And mourn aloud the pang " to ride, to run,
 To spend, to give, to want, to be undone."
 Why shou'd I tell of COWLEY'S pensive muse
 Belov'd in vain ? too copious is my theme !
 Which of your boasted race might hope reward
 Like loyal BUTLER, when the lib'ral CHARLES,
 The judge of wit, perus'd the sprightly page
 Triumphant o'er his foes ? Believe not hope,
 The poet's parasite ; but learn alone
 To spare the scanty boon the fates decree.
 Poet and rich ! 'tis solecism extreme !
 'Tis heighten'd contradiction ! in his frame,
 In ev'ry nerve and fibre of his soul,
 The latent seeds and principles of want
 Has nature wove ; and fate confirm'd the clue.

Nor yet despair to shun the ruder gripe
 Of penury ; with nice precision learn
 A dollar's value. Foremost in the page
 That marks th' expence of each revolving year,

Place inattention. When the lust of praise,
 Or honour's false idea, tempts thy soul
 To slight frugality, assure thine heart
 That danger's near. This perishable coin
 Is no vain ore. It is thy liberty,
 It fetters misers, but it must alone
 Enfranchise thee. The world, the cit-like world
 Bids thee beware ; thy little craft essay ;
 Nor, piddling with a tea-spoon's slender form,
 See with soup-ladles devils gourmandize.

Œconomy ! thou good old-aunt ! whose mien
 Furrow'd with age and care the wife adore,
 The wits contemn ! reserving still thy stores
 To cheer thy friends at last ! why with the cit,
 Or bookless churl, with each ignoble name,
 Each earthly nature, deign'st thou to reside ?
 And shunning all, who by thy favours crown'd
 Might glad the world, to seek some vulgar mind
 Inspiring pride, and selfish shapes of ill ?

Why with the old, infirm, and impotent,
 And childless, love to dwell, yet leave the breast
 Of youth, unwarn'd, unguided, uninform'd ?
 Of youth, to whom thy monitory voice
 Were doubly kind ? for sure to youthful eyes,
 (How short foe'er it prove) the road of life
 Appears protracted ; fair on either side
 The loves, the graces play, on fortune's child
 Profusely smiling ; well might youth essay
 The frugal plan, the lucrative employ,

Source of their favour all the livelong day.
 But fate assents not. Age alone contracts
 His meagre palm, to clench the tempting bane
 Of all his peace, the glitt'ring seeds of care !

O that the muse's voice might pierce the ear
 Of gen'rous youth ! for youth deserves her song.
 Youth is fair virtue's season, virtue then
 Requires the pruner's hand ; the sequent stage,
 It barely vegetates ; nor long the space
 Ere robb'd of warmth its arid trunk display
 Fell winter's total reign. O lovely source
 Of gen'rous foibles, youth ! when op'ning minds
 Are honest as the light, lucid as air,
 As foftring breezes kind, as linnets gay,
 Tender as buds, and lavish as the spring !
 Yet hapless state of man ! his earliest youth
 Cozens itself ; his age defrauds mankind.

Nor deem it strange that rolling years abrade
 The social bias. Life's extensive page
 What does it but unfold repeated proofs
 Of gold's omnipotence ? With patriots, friends,
 Sick'ning beneath its ray, enervate some,
 And others dead, whose putrid name exhales
 A noisome scent, the bulky volume teems.
 With kinsmen, brothers, sons, moist'ning the shroud,
 Or honouring the grave, with specious grief
 Of short duration ; soon in fortune's beams
 Alert, and wond'ring at the tears they shed.

But who shall save by tame prosaic strain

That

That glowing breast, where wit with youth conspires
 To sweeten luxury? The fearful muse
 Shall yet proceed, tho' by the faintest gleam
 Of hope inspir'd, to warn the train she loves.

P A R T T H E S E C O N D.

IN some dark season, when the misty show'r
 Obscures the sun, and saddens all the sky;
 When linnets drop the wing, nor grove nor stream
 Invites thee forth, to sport thy drooping muse;
 Seize the dull hour, nor with regret assign
 To worldly prudence. She nor nice nor coy
 Accepts the tribute of a joyless day;
 She smiles well-pleas'd, when wit and mirth recede,
 And not a grace, and not a muse will hear.
 Then, from majestic MARO's awful strain,
 Or tow'ring HOMER, let thine eye descend
 To trace, with patient industry, the page
 Of income and expence. And oh! beware,
 Thy breast, self-flatt'ring, place no courtly smile,
 No golden promise of your faithless muse,
 Nor latent mine which fortune's hand may shew,
 Amid thy solid store. The fire's song
 Wrecks not the list'ning sailor, half so sure.
 See by what avenues, what devious paths,
 The foot of want, detested, steals along,
 And bars each fatal pass. Some few short hours
 Of punctual care, the refuse of thy year

On frugal schemes employ'd, shall give the muse
To sing intrepid many a chearful day.

But if too soon before the tepid gales
Thy resolution melt ; and ardent vows
In wary hours preferr'd or dye forgot,
Or seem the forc'd effect of hazy skies ;
Then, ere surprize, by whose impetuous rage
The massy fort, with which thy gentler breast
I not compare, is won, the song proceeds.

Know too by nature's undiminis'd law,
Throughout her realms obey'd, the various parts
Of deep creation, atoms, systems, all !
Attract and are attracted ; nor prevails the law
Alone in matter ; soul alike with soul
Aspires to join ; nor yet in souls alone,
In each idea it imbibes, is found
The kind propensity. And when they meet,
And grow familiar, various tho' their tribe,
Their tempers various, vow perpetual faith :
That, shou'd the world's disjointed frame once more
To chaos yield the sway, amid the wreck
Their union shou'd survive ; with Roman warmth,
By sacred hospitable laws endear'd,
Shou'd each idea recollect its friend.

Here then we fix, on this perennial base
Erect thy safety, and defy the storm,
Let soft profusion's fair idea join
Her hand with poverty ; nor here desist,
'Till, o'er the groupe that forms their various train
Thou

Thou sing loud hymenéals. Let the pride
 Of outward shew in lasting leagues combine
 With shame thread-bare ; the gay vermilion face
 Of rash intemp'rance, be discreetly pair'd
 With fallow hunger ; the licentious joy,
 With mean dependence ; ev'n the dear delight
 Of sculpture, paint, intaglio's, books, and coins,
 Thy breast, sagacious prudence ! shall connect
 With filth and beggary ; nor disdain to link
 With black insolvency. Thy soul alarm'd
 Shall shun the fire's voice ; nor boldly dare
 To bid the soft enchantress share thy breast,
 With such a train of horrid fiends conjoin'd.

Nor think, ye fordid race ! ye groveling minds !
 I frame the song for you ! for you, the muse
 Cou'd other rules impart. The friendly strain
 For gentler bosoms plan'd, to yours wou'd prove
 The juice of lurid aconite, exceed
 Whatever COLCHOS bore ; and in your breast
 Compassion, love, and friendship all destroy !

It greatly shall avail, if e'er thy stores
 Increase apace, by periodic days
 Of annual payment, or thy patron's boon,
 The lean reward of gross unbounded praise !
 It much avails, to seize the present hour,
 And, undeliberating, call around
 Thy hungry creditors ; their horrid rage
 When once appeas'd, the small remaining store
 Shall rise in weight tenfold, in lustre rise,

As

As gold improv'd by many a fierce assay.
 'Tis thus the frugal husbandman directs
 His narrow stream, if o'er its wonted banks
 By sudden rains impell'd, it proudly swell ;
 His timely hand thro' better tracks conveys
 The quick-decreasing tide ; ere borne along
 Or thro' the wild morafs, or cultur'd field,
 Or bladed grafs mature, or barren sands,
 It flow destructive, or it flow in vain !
 But happiest he who sanctifies expence
 By present pay ! who subjects not his fame
 To tradesmen's varlets, nor bequeaths his name,
 His honour'd name, to deck the vulgar page
 Of base mechanic, sordid, unsincere !
 There haply, while thy muse sublimely soars
 Beyond this earthly sphere, in heav'n's abodes,
 And dreams of nectar and ambrosial sweets,
 Thy growing debt steals unregarded o'er
 The punctual record ; till nor PHOEBUS self—
 Nor sage MINERVA's art can aught avail
 To soothe the ruthless dun's detested rage.
 Frantic and fell, with many a curse profane
 He loads the gentle muse ; then hurls thee down
 To want, remorse, captivity and shame.

Each public place, the glitt'ring haunts of men,
 With horror fly. Why loiter near thy bané?—
 Why fondly linger on a hostile shore
 Disarm'd, defenceless ? why require to tread
 The precipice ? or why alas to breathe

A moment's space, where ev'ry breeze is death ?
 Death to thy future peace ! Away, collect
 Thy dissipated mind ; contract thy train
 Of wild ideas o'er the flow'ry fields
 Of shew diffus'd, and speed to safer climes.
 Economy presents her glass, accept
 The faithful mirror ; powerful to disclose
 A thousand forms, unseen by careless eyes,
 That plot thy fate. Temptation in a robe
 Of Tyrian dye, with every sweet perfum'd,
 Befets thy sense ; extortion follows close
 Her wanton step ; and ruin brings the rear.
 These and the rest shall her mysterious glass
 Embody to thy view ; like VENUS, kind,
 When to her lab'ring son, the vengeful pow'rs
 That urg'd the fall of ILIUM, she display'd.
 He, not imprudent, at the sight declin'd
 Th' unequal conflict, and decreed to raise
 The Trojan welfare on some happier shore.
 For here to drain thy swelling purse await
 A thousand arts, a thousand frauds attend,
 " The cloud-wrought canes, the gorgeous snuff-boxes,
 The twinkling jewels, and the gold etwee,
 With all its bright inhabitants, shall waste
 Its melting stores, and in the dreary void
 Leave not a doit behind." Ere yet exhaust
 Its flimsy folds offend thy pensive eye,
 Away ! embosom'd deep in distant shades,
 Nor seen nor seeing, thou may'st vent thy scorn

Of lace, embroidery, purple, gems, and gold !
 There of the farded fop, and effenc'd beau,
 Ferocious with a stoic's frown, disclose
 Thy manly scorn, averse to tinsel pomp ;
 And fluent thine harangue. But can thy soul
 Deny thy limbs the radiant grace of dress,
 Where dress is merit ! where thy graver friend
 Shall wish thee burnish'd ! where the sprightly fair
 Demand embellishment ! ev'n DELIA's eye,
 As in a garden, roves, of hues alone
 Inquirent, curious ? Fly the curst domain ;
 These are the realms of luxury and shew ;
 No classic soil, away ! the bloomy spring
 Attracts thee hence ; the waning autumn warns ;
 Fly to thy native shades, and dread ev'n there,
 Lest busy fancy tempt thy narrow state
 Beyond its bounds. Observe FLORELIO's mien.
 Why treads my friend with melancholy step
 That beauteous lawn ? why pensive strays his eye
 O'er statues, grottos, urns by critic art
 Proportion'd fair ? or from his lofty dome
 Bright glittering thro' the grove, returns his eye
 Unpleas'd, disconsolate ? And is it love,
 Disastrous love, that robs the finish'd scenes
 Of all their beauty ? cent'ring all in her
 His soul adores ? or from a blacker cause
 Springs this remorseful gloom ? is conscious guilt
 The latent source of more than love's despair ?
 It cannot be within that polish'd breast

Where

Where science dwells, that guilt shou'd harbour there.

No! 'tis the sad survey of present want,
 And past profusion! Lost to him the sweets
 Of yon pavilion, fraught with ev'ry charm
 For other eyes; or, if remaining, proofs
 Of criminal expence! Sweet interchange
 Of river, valley, mountain, woods, and plains!
 How gladfome once he rang'd your native turf,
 Your simple scenes, how raptur'd! ere expence
 Had lavish'd thousand ornaments, and taught
 Convenience to perplex him, art to pall,
 Pomp to deject, and beauty to displease.

Oh! for a soul to all the glare of wealth,
 To fortune's wide exhaustless treasury,
 Nobly superior! but let caution guide
 The coy disposal of the wealth we scorn,
 And prudence be our almoner! Alas!
 The pilgrim wand'ring o'er some distant clime,
 Sworn foe of av'rice! not disdains to learn
 Its coin's imputed worth; the destin'd means
 To smoothe his passage to the favour'd shrine.
 Ah let not us, who tread this stranger-world,
 Let none, who sojourn on the realms of life,
 Forget the land is merc'nary; nor waste
 His fare, ere landed on no venal shore.

Let never bard consult PALLADIO's rules;
 Let never bard, O BURLINGTON! survey
 Thy learned art, in CHISWICK's dome display'd;
 Dang'rous incentive! nor with ling'ring eye

Survey

Survey the window VENICE calls her own.
 Better for him, with no ingrateful muse,
 To sing a requiem to that gentle soul
 Who plan'd the sky-light ; which to lavish bards
 Conveys alone the pure ethereal ray.
 For garrets him, and squalid walls await,
 Unless, presageful, from this friendly strain,
 He glean advice, and shun the scribler's doom.

P A R T T H E T H I R D .

YET once again, and to thy doubtful fate
 The trembling muse consigns thee. Ere contempt,
 Or want's empoison'd arrow, ridicule,
 Transfix thy weak unguarded breast, behold !
 The poet's roofs, the careless poet's, his
 Who scorns advice, shall close my serious lay.

When GULLIVER, now great, now little deem'd,
 The play-thing of comparison, arriv'd
 Where learned bosoms their aerial schemes
 Projected, studious of the public weal ;
 Mid these, one subtler artist he descry'd,
 Who cherish'd in his dusty tenement
 The spider's web, injurious, to supplant
 Fair ALBION's fleeces ! Never, never may
 Our monarch on such fatal purpose smile,
 And irritate MINERVA's beggar'd sons
 The MELKSHAM weavers ! Here in ev'ry nook
 Their webs they spun ; here revell'd uncontroul'd,
 And,

And, like the flags from WESTMINSTER's high roof
 Dependent, here their fluttering textures wav'd.
 Such, so adorn'd, the cell I mean to sing !
 Cell ever squalid ! where the sneerful maid
 Will not fatigue her hand ! broom never comes,
 That comes to all ! o'er whose quiescent walls
 ARACHNE's unmolested care has drawn
 Curtains subfusc, and save th' expence of art.

Survey those walls, in sady texture clad,
 Where wand'ring snails in many a slimy path,
 Free, unrestrain'd, their various journeys crawl ;
 Peregrinations strange, and labyrinths
 Confus'd inextricable ! such the clue
 Of Cretan ARIADNE ne'er explain'd !
 Hooks ! angles ! crooks ! and involutions wild !
 Mean time, thus silver'd with meanders gay
 In mimic pride the snail-wrought tissue shines,
 Perchance of tabby, or of aretine,
 Not ill expressive ! such the pow'r of snails !

Behold his chair, whose fractur'd seat infirm
 An aged cushion hides ! replete with dust
 The foliag'd velvet ; pleasing to the eye
 Of great ELIZA's reign, but now the snare
 Of weary guest that on the specious bed
 Sits down confiding. Ah ! disastrous wight !
 In evil hour and rashly dost thou trust
 The fraudulent couch ! for tho' in velvet cas'd,
 Thy fated thigh shall kiss the dusty floor.
 The trav'ler thus, that o'er Hibernian plains

Hath shap'd his way ; on beds profuse of flow'rs,
 Cowslip, or primrose, or the circ'lar eye
 Of daisie fair, decrees to bask supine.
 And see ! delighted, down he drops, secure
 Of sweet refreshment, ease without annoy,
 Or luscious noon-day nap. Ah much deceiv'd,
 Much suff'ring pilgrim ! thou nor noon-day nap,
 Nor sweet repose shalt find ; the false morass
 In quiv'ring undulations yields beneath
 Thy burden, in the miry gulph enclos'd !
 And who would trust appearance ? cast thine eye
 Where 'mid machines of het'rogenous form
 His coat depends ; alas ! his only coat,
 Eldest of things ! and napless, as an heath
 Of small extent by fleecy myriads graz'd.
 Not diff'rent have I seen in dreary vault
 Display'd, a coffin ; on each fable side
 The texture unmolested seems entire.
 Fraudful, when touch'd it glides to dust away !
 And leaves the wond'ring swain to gape, to stare,
 And with expressive shrug, and piteous sigh,
 Declare the fatal force of rolling years,
 Or dire extent of frail mortality.
 This aged vesture, scorn of gazing beaux,
 And formal cits, (themselves too haply scorn'd)
 Both on its sleeve and on its skirt, retains
 Full many a pin wide-sparkling : for, if e'er
 Their well-known crest met his delighted eye,
 Tho' wrapt in thought, commercing with the sky,
 He,

He, gently stooping, scorn'd not to upraise,
 And on each sleeve, as conscious of their use,
 Indenting fix them ; nor, when arm'd with these,
 The cure of rents and separations dire,
 And chafms enormous, did he view dismay'd
 Hedge, bramble, thicket, bush, portending fate
 To breeches, coat and hose ! had any wight
 Of vulgar skill, the tender texture own'd ;
 But gave his mind to form a sonnet quaint
 Of SILVIA'S shoe-string, or of CLOE'S fan,
 Or sweetly-fashion'd tip of CELIA'S ear.

Alas ! by frequent use decays the force
 Of mortal art ! the refractory robe
 Eludes the taylor's art, eludes his own ;
 How potent once, in union quaint conjoin'd !

See near his bed (his bed too falsely call'd
 The place of rest, while it a bard sustains ;
 Pale, meagre, muse-rid wight ! who reads in vain
 Narcotic volumes o'er) his candlestick,
 Radiant machine, when from the plastic hand
 Of MULCIBER, the may'r of BIRMINGHAM,
 The engine issu'd ; now alas disguis'd
 By many an unctuous tide, that wand'ring down
 Its sides congeal ; what he, perhaps, essays
 With humour forc'd, and ill-dissembled smile,
 Idly to liken to the poplar's trunk
 When o'er its bark the lucid amber, wound
 In many a pleasing fold, incrusts the tree.
 Or suits him more the winter's candy'd thorn,

When from each branch, anneal'd, the works of frost
Pervasive, radiant icicles depend ?

How shall I sing the various ill that waits
The careful sonneteer ? or who can paint
The shifts enormous, that in vain he forms
To patch his paneless window ; to cement
His batter'd tea pot, ill-retentive vase ?
To war with ruin ? anxious to conceal
Want's fell appearance, of the real ill
Nor foe, nor fearful. Ruin unforeseen
Invades his chattels ; ruin will invade ;
Will claim his whole invention to repair,
Nor, of the gift, for tuneful ends design'd,
Allow one part to decorate his song.
While ridicule, with ever-pointing hand
Conscious of ev'ry shift, of ev'ry shift
Indicative, his inmost plot betrays,
Points to the nook, which he his study deems
Pompous and vain ! for thus he might esteem
His chest, a wardrobe ; purse, a treasury ;
And shews, to crown her full display, himself.
One whom the powr's above, in place of health,
And wonted vigour ; of paternal cot,
Or little farm ; of bag, or scrip, or staff,
Cup, dish, spoon, plate, or worldly utensil,
A poet fram'd ; yet fram'd not to repine,
And wish the cobbler's loftiest site his own ;
Nor, partial as they seem, upbraid the fates,
Who to the humbler mechanism, join'd

Goods so superior, such exalted bliss!

See with what seeming ease, what labour'd peace
 He, hapless hypocrite! refines his nail,
 His chief amusement! then how feign'd, how forc'd,
 That care-defying sonnet, which implies
 His debts discharg'd, and he of half a crown
 In full possession, uncontested right
 And property! Yet ah! who'er this wight
 Admiring view, if such there be, distrust
 The vain pretence; the smiles that harbour grief,
 As lurks the serpent deep in flow'rs enwreath'd.
 Forewarn'd, be frugal; or with prudent rage
 Thy pen demolish; chuse the trustier flail,
 And bless those labours which the choice inspir'd.
 But if thou view'st a vulgar mind, a wight
 Of common sense, who seeks no brighter name,
 Him envy, him admire, him, from thy breast,
 Prescient of future dignities, salute
 Sheriff, or may'r, in comfortable furs
 Enwrap, secure: nor yet the laureat's crown
 In thought exclude him! He perchance shall rise
 To nobler heights than foresight can decree.

When fir'd with wrath, for his intrigues display'd
 In many an idle song, Saturnian Jove
 Vow'd sure destruction to the tuneful race;
 Appeas'd by suppliant PHOEBUS, "Bards, he said,
 Henceforth of plenty, wealth, and pomp debarr'd,
 But fed by frugal cares, might wear the bay
 Secure of thunder."—Low the Delian bow'd,
 Nor at th' invidious favour dar'd repine.

The R U I N ' D A B B Y ;

O R,

The E F F E C T S of S U P E R S T I T I O N .

AT length fair peace with olive crown'd regains
Her lawful throne, and to the sacred haunts
Of wood or fount the frighted muse returns.

Happy the bard, who, from his native hills,
Soft-musing on a summer's eve, surveys
His azure stream, with pensile woods enclos'd!
Or o'er the glassy surface, with his friend,
Or faithful fair, thro' bord'ring willows green
Wafts his small frigate. Fearless he of shouts,
Or taunts, the rhetoric of the wat'ry crew
That ape confusion from the realms they rule!
Fearless of these; who shares the gentler voice
Of peace and music; birds of sweetest song
Attune from native boughs their various lay,
And cheer the forest; birds of brighter plume
With busy pinion skim the glitt'ring wave,
And tempt the sun; ambitious to display
Their several merit, while the vocal flute,
Or number'd verse, by female voice endear'd,
Crowns his delight, and mollifies the scene.

If solitude his wand'ring steps invite
To some more deep recess, (for hours there are,
When gay, when social minds to friendship's voice,
Or beauty's charm, her wild abodes prefer)
How pleas'd he treads her venerable shades,

Her

Her solemn courts ! the center of the grove !
 The root-built cave, by far-extended rocks
 Around embosom'd, how it soothes the soul !
 If scoop'd at first by superstitious hands
 The rugged cell receiv'd alone the shoals
 Of bigot-minds, religion dwells not here,
 Yet virtue pleas'd, at intervals, retires :
 Yet here may wisdom, as she walks the maze,
 Some serious truths collect, the rules of life,
 And serious truths of mightier weight than gold !

I ask not wealth ; but let me hoard with care,
 With frugal cunning, with a niggard's art,
 A few fix'd principles ; in early life,
 Ere indolence impede the search, explor'd.
 Then like old LATIMER, when age impairs
 My judgment's eye, when quibbling schools attack
 My grounded hope, or subtler wits deride,
 Will I not blush to shun the vain debate,
 And this mine answer ; " Thus, 'twas thus I thought.
 " My mind yet vigorous, and my soul entire ;
 " Thus will I think, averse to listen more
 " To intricate discussion, prone to stray.
 " Perhaps my reason may but ill defend
 " My settled faith ; my mind, with age impair'd,
 " Too sure its own infirmities declare.
 " But I am arm'd by caution, studious youth,
 " And early foresight ; now the winds may rise,
 " The tempest whistle, and the billows roar ;
 " My pinnace rides in port, despoil'd and worn,

“ Shatter'd by time and storms, but while it shuns
 “ Th' inequal conflict; and declines the deep,
 “ Sees the strong vessel fluctuate less secure.”

Thus while he strays, a thousand rural scenes
 Suggest instruction, and instructing please.
 And see betwixt the grove's extended arms
 An abby's rude remains attract thy view,
 Gilt by the mid-day sun : with ling'ring step
 Produce thine axe, (for, aiming to destroy
 Tree, branch, or shade, for never shall thy breast
 Too long deliberate) with timorous hand
 Remove th' obstructive bough ; nor yet refuse,
 Tho' sighing, to destroy that fav'rite pine,
 Rais'd by thine hand, in its luxuriant prime
 Of beauty fair, that screens the vast remains.
 Aggriev'd but constant as the Roman fire,
 The rigid MANLIUS, when his conqu'ring son
 Bled by a parent's voice ; the cruel meed
 Of virtuous ardor, timelessly display'd ;
 Nor cease till, thro' the gloomy road, the pile
 Gleam unobstructed ; thither oft thine eye
 Shall sweetly wander ; thence returning, soothe
 With pensive scenes thy philosophic mind.

These were thy haunts, thy opulent abodes,
 O superstition ! hence the dire disease,
 (Ballanc'd with which the fam'd Athenian pest
 Were a short head-ach, were the trivial pain
 Of transient indigestion) seiz'd mankind.

Long time she rag'd, and scarce a southern gale

Warm'd our chill air, unloaded with the threats
Of tyrant ROME; but futile all, till she,
ROME's abler legate, magnify'd their pow'r,
And in a thousand horrid forms attir'd.

Where then was truth, to sanctify the page
Of British annals? if a foe expir'd,
The perjur'd monk suborn'd infernal shrieks,
And fiends to snatch at the departing soul
With hellish emulation. If a friend,
High o'er his roof exultant angels tune
Their golden lyres, and waft him to the skies.

What then were vows, were oaths, were plighted faith?
The sovereign's just, the subjects loyal pact
To cherish mutual good, annull'd and vain,
By Roman magic, grew an idle scroll
Ere the frail sanction of the wax was cold.

With thee, *PLANTAGENET, from civil broils
The land awhile respir'd, and all was peace.
Then BECKET rose, and impotent of mind,
From regal courts with lawless fury march'd
The church's blood-stain'd convicts, and forgave;
Bid murd'rous priests the sov'reign frown contemn,
And with unhallowed †crozier bruise'd the crown.

Yet yielded not supinely tame a prince
Of HENRY's virtues; learn'd, courageous, wife,
Of fair ambition. Long his regal soul
Firm and erect the peevish priest exil'd,
And brav'd the fury of revengeful ROME.

* HENRY II.

† RICHARD I.

In vain ! let one faint malady diffuse
 The pensive gloom which superstition loves,
 And see him, dwindled to a recreant groom,
 Rein the proud palfrey while the priest ascends !

Was COEUR-DE-LION blest with whiter days ?
 Hear the cowl'd zealots with united cries
 Urge the crusade ; and see, of half his stores
 Despoil'd the wretch, whose wiser bosom chose
 To bless his friends, his race, his native land.

Of ten fair suns that roll'd their annual race,
 Not one beheld him on his vacant throne :
 While haughty *LONGCHAMP, 'mid his liv'ry'd files
 Of wanton vassals, spoil'd his faithful realm,
 Battling in foreign fields ; collecting wide
 A laurel harvest for a pillag'd land.

Oh dear-bought trophies ! when a prince deserts
 His drooping realm, to pluck the barren sprays !

When faithless JOHN usurp'd the fully'd crown
 What ample tyranny ! the groaning land
 Deem'd earth, deem'd heav'n its foe ! six tedious years
 Our helpless fathers in despair obey'd
 The papal interdict ; and who obey'd,
 The sovereign plunder'd. O inglorious days !
 When the French tyrant by the futile grant
 Of papal rescript, claim'd BRITANNIA'S throne,
 And durst invade ; be such inglorious days
 Or hence forgot, or not recall'd in vain !

Scarce had the tortur'd ear dejected heard

ROME'S

* Bishop of ELY, Lord Chancellor.

ROME's loud anathema, but heartless, dead
 To ev'ry purpose, men nor wish'd to live,
 Nor dar'd to die. The poor laborious hind
 Heard the dire curse, and from his trembling hand
 Fell the neglected crook that rul'd the plain.
 Thence journeying home, in ev'ry cloud he sees
 A vengeful angel, in whose waving scroll
 He reads damnation; sees its fable train
 Of grim attendants, pencil'd by despair!

The weary pilgrim from remoter climes
 By painful steps arriv'd; his home, his friends,
 His offspring left, to lavish on the shrine
 Of some far-honour'd saint his costly stores,
 Inverts his footstep; sickens at the sight
 Of the barr'd fane, and silent sheds his tear.

The wretch whose hope by stern oppression chas'd
 From ev'ry earthly bliss, still as it saw
 Triumphant wrong, took wing and flew to heav'n,
 And rested there, now mourn'd his refuge lost
 And wanted peace. The sacred fane was barr'd,
 And the lone altar, where the mourners throng'd
 To supplicate remission, smok'd no more;
 While the green weed, luxuriant round uprose.
 Some from their death-bed, whose delirious faith
 Thro' ev'ry stage of life to ROME's decrees
 Obsequious, humbly hop'd to die in peace,
 Now saw the ghastly king approach, begirt
 In tenfold terrors; now expiring heard
 The last loud clarion sound, and heav'n's decree

With

With unremitting vengeance bar the skies.
 Nor light the grief, by superstition weigh'd,
 That their dishonour'd corse, shut from the verge
 Of hallow'd earth, or tutelary fane,
 Must sleep with brutes their vassals; on the field;
 Unneath some path, in marle unexorcis'd!
 No solemn bell extort a neighbour's tear!
 No tongue of priest pronounce their soul secure!
 Nor fondest friend assure their peace obtain'd!

The priest! alas so boundless was the ill!
 He, like the flock he pillag'd, pin'd forlorn;
 The vivid vermeil fled his fady cheek,
 And his big paunch, distended with the spoils
 Of half his flock: emaciate, groan'd beneath
 Superior pride, and mightier lust of pow'r!
 'Twas now ROME's fondest friend, whose meagre hand
 Told to the midnight lamp his holy beads
 With nice precision, felt the deeper wound
 As his gull'd soul rever'd the conclave more.

Whom did the ruin spare? for wealth, for pow'r,
 Birth, honour, virtue, enemy and friend,
 Sunk helpless in the dreary gulph involv'd;
 And one capricious curse envelop'd all!

Were kings secure? in tow'ring stations born,
 In flatt'ry nurs'd, inur'd to scorn mankind,
 Or view diminish'd from their site sublime;
 As when a shepherd, from the lofty brow
 Of some proud cliff, surveys his less'ning flock
 In snowy groups diffusive, stud the vale.

Awhile

Awhile the furious menace JOHN return'd,
 And breath'd defiance loud. Alas! too soon
 Allegiance sick'ning saw its sov'reign yield,
 An angry prey to scruples not his own.
 The loyal soldier, girt around with strength,
 Who stole from mirth and wine his blooming years,
 And seiz'd the fauchion, resolute to guard
 His sovereign's right, impalfy'd at the news,
 Finds the firm bias of his soul revers'd
 For foul desertion; drops the lifted steel,
 And quits fame's noble harvest, to expire
 The death of monks, of surfeit and of sloth!

At length fatigu'd with wrongs, the servile king
 Drain'd from his land its small remaining stores
 To buy remission. But could these obtain?
 No! resolute in wrongs the priest obdur'd;
 Till crawling base to ROME's deputed slave
 His fame, his people, and his crown he gave.
 Mean monarch! slighted, brav'd, abhor'd before!

And now, appeas'd by delegated sway,
 The wily pontiff scorns not to recall
 His interdictions. Now the sacred doors
 Admit repentant multitudes, prepar'd
 To buy deceit; admit obsequious tribes
 Of satraps! princes! crawling to the shrine
 Of fainted villainy! the pompous tomb
 Dazling with gems and gold, or in a cloud
 Of incense wreath'd, amidst a drooping land
 That sigh'd for bread! 'Tis thus the Indian clove

Displays

Displays its verdant leaf, its crimson flow'r,
 And sheds its odours; while the flocks around
 Hungry and faint the barren sands explore
 In vain! nor plant nor herb endears the soil;
 Drain'd and exhaust to swell its thirsty pores,
 And furnish luxury—Yet, yet in vain
 BRITANNIA strove; and whether artful ROME
 Carefs'd or curs'd her, superstition rag'd,
 And blinded, fetter'd, and despoil'd the land.

At length some murd'rous monk, with pois'nous art
 Expell'd the life his brethren robb'd of peace.

Nor yet surceas'd with JOHN's disastrous fate
 Pontific fury! English wealth exhaust,
 The sequent reign * beheld the beggar'd shore
 Grim with Italian usurers; prepar'd
 To lend, for griping unexampled hire,
 To lend—what ROME might pillage uncontroul'd.
 For now with more extensive havoc rag'd
 Relentless GREG'RY, with a thousand arts,
 And each rapacious, born to drain the world!
 Nor shall the muse repeat, how oft he blew
 The croise's trumpet; then for fums of gold
 Annull'd the vow, and bade the false alarm
 Swell the gross hoards of HENRY, or his own.
 Nor shall she tell, how pontiffs dar'd repeal
 The best of charters! dar'd absolve the tye
 Of British kings by legal oath restrain'd.
 Nor can she dwell on argosies of gold

From

* Henry III. who cancell'd the Magna Charta.

From ALBION'S realm to servile shores convey'd,
 Wrung from her sons, and speeded by her kings!
 Oh irksome days! when wicked thrones combine
 With papal craft, to gull their native land!

Such was our fate, while ROME'S director taught
 Of subjects, born to be their monarch's prey,
 To toil for monks, for gluttony to toil,
 For vacant gluttony; extortion, fraud,
 For av'rice, envy, pride, revenge, and shame!
 O doctrine breath'd from Stygian caves! exhal'd
 From inmost EREBUS!—Such HENRY'S reign!
 Urging his loyal realms reluctant hand
 To wield the peaceful sword, by JOHN erewhile
 Forc'd from its scabbard; and with burnish'd lance
 Essay the savage cure, domestic war!

And now some nobler spirits chas'd the mist
 Of general darkness. GROSTED * now adorn'd
 The mitred wreath he wore, with reason's sword
 Stagg'ring delusion's frauds; at length beneath
 ROME'S interdict expiring calm, resign'd
 No vulgar soul that dar'd to heav'n appeal!
 But ah this fertile glebe, this fair domain
 Had well nigh ceded to the slothful hands
 Of monks libidinous; ere EDWARD'S care
 The lavish hand of death-bed fear restrain'd.
 Yet was he clear of superstition's taint?
 He too, misdeemful of his wholesome law,
 Ev'n he, expiring, gave his treasur'd gold

To

* Bishop of LINCOLN, called Malleus Romanorum.

To fatten monks on SALEM's distant soil!

Yes, the third EDWARD's breast, to papal sway
So little prone, and fierce in honour's cause,
Cou'd superstition quell! before the tow'rs
Of haggard PARIS, at the thunder's voice
He drops the sword, and signs ignoble peace!

But still the night by Romish art diffus'd
Collects her clouds, and with slow pace recedes.
When by soft BOURDEAU's braver queen approv'd,
Bold WICKLIFF rose: and while the bigot pow'r
Amidst her native darkness skulk'd secure,
The demon vanish'd as he spread the day.
So from his bosom CACUS breath'd of old
The pitchy cloud, and in a night of smoke
Secure awhile his recreant life sustain'd;
'Till fam'd ALCIDES, o'er his subtlest wiles
Victorious, cheer'd the ravag'd nations round.

Hail honour'd WICKLIFF! enterprising sage!
An Epicurus in the cause of truth!
For 'tis not radiant suns, the jovial hours
Of youthful spring, an ether all serene,
Nor all the verdure of CAMPANIA's vales,
Can chase religious gloom! 'Tis reason, thought,
The light, the radiance that pervades the soul,
And sheds its beams on heav'n's mysterious way!
As yet this light but glimmer'd, and again
Error prevail'd; while kings by force uprais'd
Let loose the rage of bigots on their foes,
And seek affection by the dreadful boon

Of licens'd murder. Ev'n the kindest prince,
 The most extended breast, the royal HAL !
 All unrelenting heard the Lollards cry
 Burst from the center of remorseless flames ;
 Their shrieks endur'd ! Oh stain to martial praise !
 When COBHAM, gen'rous as the noble peer
 That wears his honours, pay'd the fatal price
 Of virtue blooming ere the forms were laid !

'Twas thus, alternate, truth's precarious flame
 Decay'd or flourish'd. With malignant eye
 The pontiff saw BRITANNIA's golden fleece,
 Once all his own, invest her worthier sons !
 Her verdant valleys, and her fertile plains,
 Yellow with grain abjure his hateful sway !
 Essay'd his utmost art, and inly own'd
 No labours bore proportion to the prize.

So when the tempter view'd, with envious eye,
 The first fair pattern of the female frame,
 All nature's beauties in one form display'd,
 And cent'ring there, in wild amaze he stood ;
 Then only envying heav'n's creative hand :
 Wish'd to his gloomy reign his envious arts
 Might win this prize, and doubled ev'ry snare.

And vain were reason, courage, learning, all,
 Till pow'r accede : till TUDOR's wild caprice
 Smile on their cause ; TUDOR, whose tyrant reign
 With mental freedom crown'd, the best of kings
 Might envious view, and ill prefer their own !

Then from its tow'ring height with horrid sound

Rush'd

Rush'd the proud abby. Then the vaulted roofs,
 Torn from their walls, disclos'd the wanton scene
 Of monkish chastity ! Each angry friar
 Crawl'd from his bedded strumpet, mutt'ring low
 An ineffectual curse. The pervious nooks
 That, ages past, convey'd the guileful priest
 To play some image on the gaping crowd,
 Imbibe the novel day-light ; and expose
 Obvious, the fraudulent engin'ry of ROME.
 As tho' this op'ning earth to nether realms
 Shou'd flash meridian day, the hooded race
 Shudder abash'd to find their cheats display'd :
 And conscious of their guilt, and pleas'd to wave
 Its fearful meed, resign'd their fair domain.

Nor yet supine, nor void of rage, retir'd
 The pest gigantic ; whose revengeful stroke
 Ting'd the red annals of MARIA's reign.
 When from the tenderest breast, each wayward priest
 Cou'd banish mercy, and implant a fiend !
 When cruelty the fun'ral pyre uprear'd,
 And bound religion there, and fir'd the base !
 When the same blaze, which on each tortur'd limb
 Fed with luxuriant rage, in ev'ry face
 Triumphant faith appear'd, and smiling hope.
 O blest ELIZA ! from thy piercing beam
 Forth flew this hated fiend, the child of ROME ;
 Driv'n to the verge of ALBION, linger'd there,
 Then with her JAMES receding, cast behind
 One angry frown, and sought more servile climes.

Hence.

Henceforth they ply'd the long-continued task
 Of righteous havoc, cov'ring distant fields
 With the wrought remnants of the shatter'd pile.
 Then WOLSEY rose, by nature form'd to seek
 Ambition's trophies, by address to win,
 By temper to enjoy—whose humbler birth
 Taught the gay scenes of pomp to dazzle more.
 While thro' the land the musing pilgrim sees
 A tract of brighter green, and in the midst
 Appears a mouldering wall, with ivy crown'd ;
 Or gothic turret, pride of ancient days !
 Now but of use to grace a rural scene ;
 To bound our vistas, and to glad the fons
 Of GEORGE's reign, reserv'd for fairer times !

LOVE AND HONOUR.

*Sed neque Medorum silvæ, ditissima terra,
 Nec pulcher Ganges, atque auro turbidus Hæmus,
 Laudibus Angligenûm certent: non Baëtra, nec Indi,
 Totaque turrisferis Panchaia pinguis arenis.*

LET the green olive glad Hesperian shores ;
 Her tawny citron, and her orange-groves,
 These let IBERIA boast ; but if in vain,
 To win the stranger plant's diffusive smile,
 The BRITON labours, yet our native minds,
 Our constant bosoms, these, the dazled world

May view with envy ; these, Iberian dames
Survey with fixt esteem and fond desire.

Hapless ELVIRA ! thy disastrous fate
May well this truth explain ; nor ill adorn
The British lyre ; then chiefly, if the muse,
Nor vain nor partial, from the simple guise
Of ancient record catch the pensive lay ;
And in less groveling accents give to fame.
ELVIRA ! loveliest maid ! th' Iberian realm
Could boast no purer breast, no sprightlier mind,
No race more splendid, and no form so fair.
Such was the chance of war, this peerless maid
In life's luxuriant bloom, enrich'd the spoil
Of British victors, vict'ry's noblest pride !
She, she alone, amid the wailful train,
Of captive maids, assign'd to HENRY'S care ;
Lord of her life, her fortune, and her fame !

He, gen'rous youth, with no penurious hand,
The tedious moments that unjoyous roll
Where freedom's chearful radiance shines no more,
Essay'd to soften ; conscious of the pang
That beauty feels, to waste its fleeting hours
In some dim fort, by foreign rule restrain'd,
Far from the haunts of men, or eye of day !

Sometimes, to cheat her bosom of its cares,
Her kind protector number'd o'er the toils
Himself had worn : the frowns of angry seas,
Or hostile rage, or faithless friend, more fell
Than storm or foe : if haply she might find

Her

Her cares diminish'd ; fruitless fond essay !
 Now to her lovely hand, with modest awe
 The tender lute he gave : she not averse
 Nor destitute of skill, with willing hand
 Call'd forth angelic strains ; the sacred debt
 Of gratitude, she said ; whose just commands
 Still might her hand with equal pride obey !

Nor to the melting sounds the nymph refus'd
 Her vocal art ; harmonious, as the strain
 Of some imprison'd lark, who daily cheer'd
 By guardian cares, repays them with a song :
 Nor droops, nor deems sweet liberty resign'd.

The song, not artless, had she fram'd to paint
 Disastrous passion ; how, by tyrant laws
 Of idiot custom sway'd, some soft-ey'd fair
 Lov'd only one ; nor dar'd their love reveal !
 How the soft anguish banish'd from her cheek
 The damask rose full-blown ; a fever came ;
 And from her bosom forc'd the plaintive tale.
 Then, swift as light, he sought the love-lorn maid,
 But vainly sought her ; torn by swifter fate
 To join the tenants of the myrtle shade,
 Love's mournful victims on the plains below.

Sometimes, as fancy spoke the pleasing task,
 She taught her artful needle to display
 The various pride of spring : then swift upsprung
 Thickets of myrtle, eglantine, and rose :
 There might you see, on gentle toils intent,
 A train of busy loves ; some pluck the flow'r,

Some twine the garland, some with grave grimace
 Around a vacant warrior cast the wreath.
 'Twas paint, 'twas life ! and sure to piercing eyes
 The warrior's face depictur'd HENRY's mien.

Now had the gen'rous chief with joy perus'd
 The royal scroll, which to their native home,
 Their ancient rights, uninjur'd, unredeem'd,
 Restor'd the captives. Forth with rapid haste
 To glad his fair ELVIRA's ear, he sprung ;
 Fir'd by the bliss he panted to convey ;
 But fir'd in vain ! Ah ! what was his amaze,
 His fond distress, when o'er her pallid face
 Dejection reign'd, and from her lifeless hand
 Down dropt the myrtle's fair unfinish'd flow'r !
 Speechless she stood ; at length with accents faint,
 " Well may my native shore, she said, rebound
 " Thy monarch's praise ; and ere ELVIRA prove
 " Of thine forgetful, flow'rs shall cease to feel
 " The soft'ring breeze, and nature change her laws."

And now the grateful edict wide alarm'd
 The British host. Around the smiling youths
 Call'd to their native scenes, with willing haste
 Their fleet unmoor ; impatient of the love
 That weds each bosom to its native soil.
 The patriot passion ! strong in ev'ry clime,
 How justly theirs, who find no foreign sweets
 To dissipate their loves, or match their own.

Not so ELVIRA ! she, disastrous maid,
 Was doubly captive ! pow'r nor chance cou'd loose

The

The subtle bands ; she lov'd her gen'rous foe.
 She, where her HENRY dwelt, her HENRY smil'd,
 Could term her native shore ; her native shore
 By him deserted, some unfriendly strand,
 Strange, bleak, forlorn ! a desert waste and wild.

The fleet careen'd, the wind propitious fill'd
 The swelling sails, the glitt'ring transports wav'd
 Their pennants gay, and halcyons azure wing
 With flight auspicious skim'd the placid main.

On her lone couch in tears ELVIRA lay,
 And chid th' officious wind, the tempting sea,
 And wish'd a storm as merciless, as tore
 Her lab'ring bosom. Fondly now she strove
 To banish passion ; now the vassal days,
 The captive moments that so smoothly past,
 By many an art recall'd ; now from her lute
 With trembling fingers call'd the fav'rite sounds
 Which HENRY deign'd to praise ; and now essay'd
 With mimic chains of filken fillets wove
 To paint her captive state ; if any fraud
 Might to her love the pleasing scenes prolong,
 And with the dear idea feast the soul.

But now the chief return'd ; prepar'd to launch
 On ocean's willing breast, and bid adieu
 To his fair pris'ner. She, soon as she heard
 His hated errand, now no more conceal'd
 The raging flame ; but with a spreading blush,
 And rising sigh, the latent pang disclos'd.

“ Yes, gen'rous youth ! I see thy bosom glow

With virtuous transport, that the task is thine
 To solve my chains ; and to my weeping friends,
 And every longing relative, restore
 A soft-ey'd maid, a mild offenceless prey !
 But know, my soldier, never youthful mind,
 Torn from the lavish joys of wild expence
 By him he loath'd, and in a dungeon bound
 To languish out his bloom, could match the pains
 This ill-star'd freedom gives my tortur'd mind.

What call I freedom ? is it that these limbs
 From rigid bolts secure, may wander far
 From him I love ? Alas, ere I may boast
 That sacred blessing, some superior pow'r
 To mortal kings, to sublunary thrones,
 Must loose my passion, must unchain my soul.
 Ev'n that I loath ; all liberty I loath !
 But most the joyless privilege to gaze
 With cold indifference, where desert is love.

True, I was born an alien to those eyes
 I ask alone to please ; my fortune's crime !
 And ah ! this flatter'd form, by dress endear'd
 To Spanish eyes, by dress may thine offend.
 Whilst I, ill-fated maid ! ordain'd to strive
 With custom's load, beneath its weight expire.

Yet HENRY'S beauties knew in foreign garb
 To vanquish me ; his form, how'er disguis'd,
 To me were fatal ! no fantastic robe
 That e'er caprice invented, custom wore,
 Or folly smil'd on, cou'd eclipse thy sway.

Perhaps by birth decreed, by fortune plac'd
 Thy country's foe, ELVIRA's warmest plea
 Seems but the subtler accent fraud inspires ;
 My tenderest glances, but the specious flow'rs
 That shade the viper while she plots her wound.
 And can the trembling candidate of love
 Awake thy fears ? and can a female breast
 By ties of grateful duty bound, ensnare ?
 Is there no brighter mien, no softer smile
 For love to wear, to dark deceit unknown ?
 Heav'n search my soul, and if thro' all its cells
 Lurk the pernicious drop of pois'nous guile ;
 Full on my fenceless head its phial'd wrath
 May fate exhaust ; and for my happiest hour
 Exalt the vengeance I prepare for thee !

Ah me ! nor HENRY'S, nor his country's foe,
 On thee I gaz'd, and reason soon dispell'd
 Dim error's gloom, and to thy favour'd isle
 Assign'd its total merit, unrestrain'd.
 Oh ! lovely region to the candid eye !
 'Twas there my fancy saw the virtues dwell,
 The loves, the graces play ; and blest the soil
 That nurtur'd thee ! for sure the virtues form'd
 Thy gen'rous breast ; the loves, the graces plan'd
 Thy shapely limbs. Relation, birth essay'd
 Their partial pow'r in vain : again I gaz'd,
 And ALBION'S isle appear'd, amidst a tract
 Of savage wastes, the darling of the skies !
 And thou by nature form'd, by fate assign'd

To paint the genius of thy native shore,
 'Tis true, with flow'rs, with many a dazzling scene
 Of burnish'd plants, to lure a female eye,
 IBERIA glows : but ah ! the genial sun,
 That gilds the lemon's fruit, or scents the flow'r,
 On Spanish minds, a nation's nobler boast !
 Beams forth ungentle influences. There
 Sits jealousy enthron'd, and at each ray
 Exultant lights his slow-consuming fires.
 Not such thy charming region ; long before
 My sweet experience taught me to decide
 Of English worth, the sound had pleas'd mine ear.
 Is there that savage coast, that rude sejourne
 Stranger to British worth ? the worth which forms
 The kindest friends ; the most tremendous foes ;
 First, best supports of liberty and love !
 No, let subjected INDIA, while she throws
 O'er Spanish deeds the veil, your praise resound.
 Long as I heard, or ere in story read
 Of English fame, my bias'd partial breast
 Wish'd them success, and happiest she, I cry'd,
 Of women happiest she, who shares the love,
 The fame, the virtues of an English lord.
 And now what shall I say ? blest be the hour
 Your fair-built vessels touch'd th' Iberian shores :
 Blest did I say the time ? if I may bless
 That lov'd event, let HENRY's smiles declare.
 Our hearts and cities won, will HENRY's youth
 Forego its nobler conquest ? will he slight

The

The soft endearments of the lovelier spoil ?
 And yet IBERIA's fons, with every vow
 Of lasting faith, have sworn these humble charms
 Were not excell'd ; the source of all their pains,
 And love her just desert, who sues for love ;
 But sues to thee, while natives sigh in vain.

Perhaps in HENRY's eye (for vulgar minds Differ from his) it spreads an hateful stain
 On honest fame, amid his train to bear
 A female friend. Then learn, my gentle youth !
 Not love himself, with all the pointed pains
 That store his quiver, shall seduce my soul
 From honour's laws. ELVIRA once deny'd
 A consort's name, more swift than lightning flies,
 When elements discordant vex the sky,
 Shall blushing from the form she loves retire.

Yet if the specious wish the vulgar voice
 Has titled prudence, sways a soul like thine,
 In gems or gold what proud Iberian dame
 Eclipses me ? nor paint the dreary storms
 Or hair-breadth scapes that haunt the boundless deep,
 And force from tender eyes the silent tear ;
 When mem'ry to the pensive maid suggests
 In full contrast, the safe domestic scene
 For these resign'd. Beyond the frantic rage
 Of conq'ring heroes brave, the female mind,
 When steel'd by love, in love's most horrid way
 Beholds not danger, or beholding scorns.
 Heav'n take my life, but let it crown my love."

She

She ceas'd, and ere his words her fate decreed,
 Impatient, watch'd the language of his eye :
 There pity dwelt, and from its tender sphere
 Sent looks of love, and faithless hopes inspir'd.

“ Forgive me, gen'rous maid, the youth return'd,
 If by thy accents charm'd, thus long I bore
 To let such sweetness plead, alas ! in vain !
 Thy virtue merits more than crowns can yield
 Of solid bliss, or happiest love bestow.
 But ere from native shores I plough'd the main,
 To one dear maid, by virtue and by charms
 Alone endear'd, my plighted vows I gave ;
 To guard my faith, whatever chance should wait
 My warring sword : if conquest, fame, and spoil
 Grac'd my return, before her feet to pour
 The glitt'ring treasure, and the laurel wreath ;
 Enjoying conquest then, and fame and spoil.
 If fortune frown'd adverse ; and death forbade
 The blissful union, with my latest breath
 To dwell on MEDWAY'S and MARIA'S name.
 This ardent vow deep-rooted, from my soul
 No dangers tore ; this vow my bosom fir'd
 To conquer danger, and the spoil enjoy.
 Her shall I leave, with fair events elate,
 Who crown'd mine humblest fortune with her love ?
 Her shall I leave, who now perchance alone
 Climbs the proud cliff, and chides my slow return ?
 And shall that vessel, whose approaching fails
 Shall swell her breast with extasies, convey

Death

Death to her hopes, and anguish to her soul?
 No! may the deep my villain-corse devour,
 If all the wealth Iberian mines conceal,
 If all the charms Iberian maids disclose,
 If thine, ELVIRA, thine, uniting all!
 Thus far prevail—nor can thy virtuous breast
 Demand, what honour, faith, and love denies.”

“ Oh! happy she, rejoin'd the pensive maid,
 Who shares thy fame, thy virtue, and thy love!
 And be she happy! thy distinguish'd choice
 Declares her worth, and vindicates her claim.
 Farewel my luckless hopes, my flatt'ring dreams
 Of rapt'rous days! my guilty suit, farewell!
 Yet, fond howe'er my plea, or deep the wound
 That waits my fame, let not the random shaft
 Of censure pierce with me th' Iberian dames:
 They love with caution, and with happier stars.
 And oh! by pity mov'd, restrain the taunts
 Of levity, nor brand ELVIRA's flame;
 By merit rais'd; by gratitude approv'd;
 By hope confirm'd; with artless truth reveal'd;
 Let, let me say, but for one matchless maid
 Of happier birth, with mutual ardor crown'd.

These radiant gems, which burnish happiness,
 But mock misfortune, to thy fav'rite's hand
 With care convey. And well may such adorn
 Her chearful front, who finds in thee alone
 The source of ev'ry transport; but disgrace
 My pensive breast, which doom'd to lasting woe,

In thee the source of ev'ry blifs resign.

And now farewell, thou darling youth ! the gem
Of English merit ! peace, content, and joy,
And tender hopes, and young desires, farewell !
Attend, ye smiling train, this gallant mind
Back to his native shores ; there sweetly smooth
His ev'ning pillow ; dance around his groves ;
And, where he treads, with vi'lets paint his way.
But leave ELVIRA ! leave her, now no more
Your frail companion ! in the sacred cells
Of some lone cloister let me shroud my shame :
There, to the matin bell, obsequious, pour
My constant orisons. The wanton loves,
And gay desires shall spy the glim'ring tow'rs,
And wing their flight aloof : but rest confirm'd,
That never shall ELVIRA's tongue conclude
Her shortest pray'r, ere HENRY's dear success
The warmest accent of her zeal employ."

Thus spoke the weeping fair, whose artless mind
Impartial scorn'd to model her esteem
By native customs ; dress, and face, and air,
And manners, less ; nor yet resolv'd in vain.
He, bound by prior loves, the solemn vow
Giv'n and receiv'd, to soft compassion gave
A tender tear ; then with that kind adieu
Esteem could warrant, weary'd heav'n with pray'rs
To shield that tender breast he left forlorn.

He ceas'd, and to the cloister's pensive scene
ELVIRA shap'd her solitary way,

The

The SCHOOL-MISTRESS.

In Imitation of SPENSER.

*Auditæ voces, vagitus & ingens,
Infantumque animæ flentes in limine primo.* VIRG.

ADVERTISEMENT.

What particulars in Spenser were imagined most proper for the author's imitation on this occasion, are his language, his simplicity, his manner of description, and a peculiar tenderness of sentiment remarkable throughout his works.

AH me! full forely is my heart forlorn,
To think how modest worth neglected lies;
While partial fame doth with her blasts adorn
Such deeds alone, as pride and pomp disguise;
Deeds of ill fort, and mischievous emprise!
Lend me thy clarion, goddess! let me try
To found the praise of merit, ere it dies;
Such as I oft have chaunced to espy,
Lost in the dreary shades of dull obscurity.

In

In ev'ry village mark'd with little spire,
 Embow'r'd in trees, and hardly known to fame,
 There dwells, in lowly shed, and mean attire,
 A matron old, whom we school-mistress name;
 Who boasts unruly brats with birch to tame;
 They grieven fore, in piteous durance pent,
 Aw'd by the pow'r of this relentless dame;
 And oft-times, on vagaries idly bent,
 For unkempt hair, or task unconn'd, are forely shent.

And all in fight doth rise a birchen tree,
 Which learning near her little dome did stowe;
 Whilom a twig of small regard to see,
 Tho' now so wide its waving branches flow;
 And work the simple vassals mickle woe;
 For not a wind might curl the leaves that blew,
 But their limbs shudder'd, and their pulse beat low;
 And, as they look'd, they found their horror grew,
 And shap'd it into rods, and tingled at the view.

So have I seen (who has not, may conceive,)
 A lifeless phantom near a garden plac'd;
 So doth it wanton birds of peace bereave,
 Of sport, of song, of pleasure, of repast;
 They start, they stare, they wheel, they look aghast:
 Sad servitude! such comfortless annoy
 May no bold Briton's riper age e'er taste!
 Ne superstition clog his dance of joy,
 Ne vision empty, vain, his native bliss destroy.

Near

Near to this dome is found a patch so green,
 On which the tribe their gambols do display ;
 And at the door impris'ning board is seen,
 Left weakly wights of smaller size should stray ;
 Eager, perdie, to bask in sunny day !
 The noises intermix'd, which thence resound,
 Do learning's little tenement betray :
 Where sits the dame, disguis'd in look profound,
 And eyes her fairy throng, and turns her wheel around.

Her cap, far whiter than the driven snow,
 Emblem right meet of decency does yield :
 Her apron dy'd in grain, as blue, I trowe,
 As is the hare-bell that adorns the field :
 And in her hand, for scepter, she does wield
 Tway birchen sprays ; with anxious fear entwinn'd,
 With dark distrust, and sad repentance fill'd ;
 And stedfast hate, and sharp affliction join'd,
 And fury uncontroul'd, and chastisement unkind.

Few but have ken'd, in semblance meet pourtray'd,
 The childish faces of old Eol's train ;
 LIBS, NOTUS, AUSTER : these in frowns array'd,
 How then would fare our earth, or sky, or main,
 Were the stern god to give his slaves the rein ?
 And were not she rebellious breasts to quell,
 And were not she her statutes to maintain,
 The cott no more, I ween, were deem'd the cell,
 Where comely peace of mind, and decent order dwell.

A ruffet

A ruffet stole was o'er her shoulders thrown ;
 A ruffet kirtle fenc'd the nipping air ;
 'Twas simple ruffet, but it was her own ;
 'Twas her own country bred the flock so fair ;
 'Twas her own labour did the fleece prepare ;
 And, footh to say, her pupils, rang'd around,
 Thro' pious awe, did term it passing rare ;
 For they in gaping wonderment abound,
 And think, no doubt, she beenthegreatestwightonground

Albeit ne flatt'ry did corrupt her truth,
 Ne pompous title did debauch her ear ;
 Goody, good-woman, goffip, n'aunt, forsooth,
 Or dame, the sole additions she did hear ;
 Yet these she challeng'd, these she held right dear !
 Ne would esteem him act as mought behove,
 Who should not honour'd eld with these revere :
 For never title yet so mean could prove,
 But there was eke a mind which did that title love.

One ancient hen she took delight to feed,
 The plodding pattern of the busy dame ;
 Which, ever and anon, impell'd by need,
 Into her school, begirt with chickens, came ;
 Such favour did her past deportment claim :
 And, if neglect had lavish'd on the ground !
 Fragment of bread, she would collect the same ;
 For well she knew, and quaintly could expound,
 What sin it were to waste the smallest crumb she found.

Herbs

Herbs too she knew, and well of each could speak
 That in her garden sip'd the silv'ry dew ;
 Where no vain flow'r disclos'd a gawdy streak ;
 But herbs for use, and physick, not a few,
 Of grey renown, within those borders grew :
 The tufted basil, pun-provoking thyme,
 Fresh baum, and mary-gold of chearful hue ;
 The lowly gill, that never dares to climb ;
 And more I fain would sing, disdain'g here to rhyme.

Yet euphrasy may not be left unfung,
 That gives dim eyes to wander leagues around ;
 And pungent radish, biting infant's tongue ;
 And plantain ribb'd, that heals the reaper's wound ;
 And marj'ram sweet, in shepherd's posie found ;
 And lavender, whose spikes of azure bloom
 Shall be, ere-while, in arid bundles bound,
 To lurk amidst the labours of her loom,
 And crown her kerchiefs clean, with mickle rare perfume.

And here trim rosmarine, that whilom crown'd
 The daintiest garden of the proudest peer ;
 Ere, driven from its envy'd site, it found
 A sacred shelter for its branches here ;
 Where edg'd with gold its glitt'ring skirts appear.
 Oh wassel days ; O customs meet and well !
 Ere this was banish'd from its lofty sphere :
 Simplicity then fought this humble cell,
 Nor ever would she more with thane and lordling dwell.

Here oft the dame, on sabbath's decent eve,
 Hymned such psalms as STERNHOLD forth did mete,
 If winter 'twere, she to her hearth did cleave ;
 But in her garden found a summer feat :
 Sweet melody ! to hear her then repeat
 How ISRAEL'S sons, beneath a foreign king,
 While taunting foe-men did a song intreat,
 All, for the nonce, untuning ev'ry string,
 Uphung their uselefs lyres—small heart had they to sing.

For she was just, and friend to virtuous lore,
 And pass'd much time in truly virtuous deed ;
 And, in those elfins' ears, would oft deplore
 The times, when truth by popish rage did bleed ;
 And tortious death was true devotion's meed ;
 And simple faith in iron chains did mourn,
 That nould on wooden image place her creed ;
 And lawny saints in smould'ring flames did burn :
 Ah ! dearest Lord, forefend, thilk days should e'er return.

In elbow chair, like that of Scottish stem
 By the sharp tooth of cank'ring eld defac'd,
 In which, when he receives his diadem,
 Our sovereign prince and liefest liege is plac'd,
 The matron fate ; and some with rank she grac'd,
 (The source of children's and of courtier's pride !)
 Redress'd affronts, for vile affronts there pass'd ;
 And warn'd them not the fretful to deride,
 But love each other dear, whatever them betide.

Right well she knew each temper to descry;
 To thwart the proud, and the submits to raise;
 Some with vile copper prize exalt on high,
 And some entice with pittance small of praise;
 And other some with baleful sprig she 'frays:
 Ev'n absent, she the reins of pow'r doth hold,
 While with quaint arts the giddy crowd she sways,
 Forewarn'd, if little bird their pranks behold,
 'Twill whisper in her ear, and all the scene unfold.

Lo now with state she utters the command!
 Eftsoons the urchins to their tasks repair;
 Their books of stature small they take in hand,
 Which with pellucid horn secured are;
 To save from finger wet the letters fair:
 The work so gay, that on their back is seen,
 St. GEORGE'S high achievements does declare;
 On which thilk wight that has y-gazing been,
 Kens the forth-coming rod, unpleasing sight, I ween!

Ah luckless he, and born beneath the beam
 Of evil star! it irks me whilst I write!
 As erst the * bard by MULLA'S silver stream,
 Oft, as he told of deadly dolorous plight,
 Sigh'd as he sung, and did in tears indite.
 For brandishing the rod, she doth begin
 To loose the brogues, the stripling's late delight!
 And down they drop; appears his dainty skin,
 Fair as the furry coat of whitest ermilin.

O ruthless scene! when from a nook obscure,
 His little sister doth his peril see :
 All playful as she fate, she grows demure ;
 She finds full soon her wonted spirits flee ;
 She meditates a pray'r to set him free :
 Nor gentle pardon could this dame deny,
 (If gentle pardon could with dames agree)
 To her sad grief that swells in either eye,
 And wrings her so that all for pity she could dye.

Nor longer can she now her shrieks command ;
 And hardly she forbears, thro' awful fear,
 To rushen forth, and, with presumptuous hand,
 To stay harsh justice in its mid career.
 On thee she calls, on thee her parent dear !
 (Ah ! too remote to ward the shameful blow !)
 She sees no kind domestic visage near,
 And soon a flood of tears begins to flow ;
 And gives a loose at last to unavailing woe.

But ah ! what pen his piteous plight may trace ?
 Or what device his loud laments explain ?
 The form uncouth of his disguised face ?
 The pallid hue that dyes his looks amain ?
 The plenteous show'r that does his cheek distain ?
 When he, in abject wise, implores the dame,
 Ne hopeth aught of sweet reprieve to gain ;
 Or when from high she levels well her aim,
 And, thro' the hatch, his cries each falling stroke proclaim.

The

The other tribe, aghaft, with fore difmay,
 Attend, and conn their tasks with mickle care :
 By turns, aftony'd, ev'ry twig furvey,
 And, from their fellow's hateful wounds, beware ;
 Knowing, I wift, how each the fame may fhare ;
 Till fear has taught them a performance meet,
 And to the well-known cheft the dame repair ;
 Whence oft with fugar'd cates ſhe doth 'em greet,
 And ginger-bread y-rare ; now, certes, doubly fweet !

See to their feats they hye with merry glee,
 And in befeemly order fitten there ;
 All but the wight of bum y-galled, he
 Abhorreth bench and ſtool, and fourm, and chair ;
 (This hand in mouth y-fix'd, that rends his hair ;)
 And eke with ſnubs profound, and heaving breaft,
 Convulfions intermitting ! does declare
 His grievous wrong ; his dame's unjuft beheft ;
 And ſcorns her offer'd love, and ſhuns to be carefs'd.

His face beſprent with liquid crystal ſhines,
 His blooming face that ſeems a purple flow'r,
 Which low to earth its drooping head declines,
 All ſmear'd and fully'd by a vernal ſhow'r.
 O the hard boſoms of deſpotic pow'r !
 All, all, but ſhe, the author of his ſhame,
 All, all, but ſhe, regret this mournful hour :
 Yet hence the youth, and hence the flow'r, ſhall claim,
 If ſo I deem aright, tranſcending worth and fame.

Behind some door, in melancholy thought,
 Mindless of food, he, dreary caitiff! pines ;
 Ne for his fellow's joyaunce careth aught,
 But to the wind all merriment resigns ;
 And deems it shame, if he to peace inclines ;
 And many a fullen look ascance is sent,
 Which for his dame's annoyance he designs ;
 And still the more to pleasure him she's bent,
 The more doth he, perverse, her haviour past resent.

Ah me ! how much I fear lest pride it be !
 But if that pride it be, which thus inspires,
 Beware, ye dames, with nice discernment see,
 Ye quench not too the sparks of nobler fires :
 Ah ! better far than all the muses' lyres,
 All coward arts, is valour's gen'rous heat ;
 The firm fixt breast which fit and right requires,
 Like VERNON'S patriot soul ; more justly great
 Than craft that pimps for ill, or flow'ry false deceit.

Yet nurs'd with skill, what dazzling fruits appear !
 Ev'n now sagacious foresight points to show
 A little bench of heedless bishops here,
 And there a chancellor in embryo,
 Or bard sublime, if bard may e'er be so,
 As MILTON, SHAKESPEAR, names that ne'er shall dye !
 Tho' now he crawl along the ground so low,
 Nor weeting how the muse shou'd soar on high,
 Wisbeth, poor starv'ling elf ! his paper-kite may fly.
And

And this perhaps, who, cens'ring the design,
 Low lays the house which that of cards doth build,
 Shall DENNIS be! if rigid fates incline,
 And many an epic to his rage shall yield;
 And many a poet quit th' Aonian field;
 And, four'd by age, profound he shall appear,
 As he who now with 'sdainful fury thrill'd
 Surveys mine work; and levels many a sneer,
 And furlshiswrinklyfront, andcries, "What stuffishere?"

But now DAN PHOEBUS gains the middle skie,
 And liberty unbars her prison-door;
 And like a rushing torrent out they fly,
 And now the grassy cirque han cover'd o'er
 With boist'rous revel-rout and wild uproar;
 A thousand ways in wanton rings they run,
 Heav'n shield their short-liv'd pastimes, I implore!
 For well may freedom, erst so dearly won,
 Appear to British elf more gladsome than the sun.

Enjoy, poor imps! enjoy your sportive trade;
 And chase gay flies, and cull the fairest flow'rs
 For when my bones in grass-green sods are laid;
 For never may ye taste more careles hours
 In knightly castles, or in ladies bow'rs.
 O vain to seek delight in earthly thing!
 But most in courts where proud ambition tow'rs;
 Deluded wight! who weens fair peace can spring
 Beneath the pompous dome of kefar or of king.

See in each sprite some various bent appear !
 These rudely carol most incondite lay ;
 Those faunt'ring on the green, with jocund leer
 Salute the stranger passing on his way ;
 Some builden fragile tenements of clay ;
 Some to the standing lake their courses bend,
 With pebbles smooth at duck and drake to play ;
 Think to the huxter's fav'ry cottage tend,
 In pastry kings and queens th' allotted mite to spend,

Here, as each season yields a different store,
 Each season's stores in order ranged been ;
 Apples with cabbage-net y-cover'd o'er,
 Galling full fore th' unmoney'd wight, are seen ;
 And goose-b'rie clad in liv'ry red or green ;
 And here of lovely dye, the cath'rine pear,
 Fine pear ! as lovely for thy juice, I ween :
 O may no wight e'er pennylefs come there,
 Left smit with ardent love he pine with hopelefs care !

See ! cherries here, ere cherries yet abound,
 With thread so white in tempting posies ty'd,
 Scatt'ring like blooming maid their glances round,
 With pamper'd look draw little eyes aside ;
 And must be bought, tho' penury betide.
 The plumb all azure and the nut all brown,
 And here each season, do those cakes abide,
 Whose honour'd names th' inventive city own,
 Rend'ring thro' Britain's isle Salopia's praises known. *

Admi'd

* SHREWSBURY cakes.

Admir'd SALOPIA ! that with venial pride
 Eyes her bright form in SEVERN's ambient wave,
 Fam'd for her loyal cares in perils try'd,
 Her daughters lovely, and her striplings brave :
 Ah ! midst the rest, may flowers adorn his grave,
 Whose art did first these dulcet cates display !
 A motive fair to learning's imps he gave,
 Who chearless o'er her darkling region stray ;
 'Till reason's morn arise, and light them on their way.
