Difficulties and Discouragements

Which attend the Study of the Scriptures
In the Way of Private Judgment ;

Represented in a LETTER to a Young Clergyman.

In order to show,
That, since such a Study of the Scriptures is Mens indispensable Duty, it concerns all Christian Societies to remove (as much as possible) those Discouragements.

The Difficulties and Discouragements which attend the Study of the Scriptures in the Way of Private Judgment, &c.

In a Letter to a Young Clergyman.

S I R,

Do not wonder at the Surprize with which you received, when we were last together, the Advice I ventur'd to give you in relation to the Study of the Scriptures. For one who is a Clergyman himself, to seem to dissuade those of his own Order, from a Study that has so many Arguments to recommend it; and which, in the Opinion of all good Men, ought to be their chief Business; has, I confess the appearance of a strange Paradox, and that of the worst Sort. It looks like Popery and Priest-craft; and therefore young and tender Minds may easily be forgiven, if they startle at the first Proposal of it; Those especially, who have a just Sense of the Excellency and Inspiration of the Scriptures, and are eagerly bent on the Pursuit of such Truths; as more immediately tend to the Advancement of Virtue and Religion.

As You are of that Number, and went into Orders with no other View, but that you might the better study the Scriptures your self, and advance the Knowledge of them in the World; it was not to be expected you should presently come into other Sentiments. Which I am so far from taking amiss, that I think it to your Commendation, that neither the Affection nor Esteem you so often express for an old Friend, could prevail with you to act a Part that might have the appearance of Levity in a matter of so much Consequence. Nor is it less for your Credit, that you can retain your Opinion, without losing your Temper, or shewing a backwardness to hear what is to be said against it. Most Tempers run into Extremes: They are either too volatile to be fixed; or else so fixed, that no Force of Argument can move them. But 'tis your Happiness, that you can adhere without Obstinacy, and change without Levity: And therefore I shall think it no trouble to resume the Subject, and lay before you in the best manner I can, the Reasons that seem to make against the Study of the Scriptures in the way of private Judgment; which I hope will not upon cooler Thoughts appear so strange to you. You will consider they come from one, who is not more a Friend to You, than he is to the Church. And; if Examples be of any weight, I can assure you this Side of the Question is by no means destitute of Profelytes; and that when you come to know the World more, you will find this Study neglected to a Degree you little imagined. But 'tis Reasons, not Examples, will determine you. To come therefore to them; let me in the

I. FIRST place, observe to you, that the Study of the Scriptures, such a thorough Study of them I mean, as you aim at, is extremely difficult, and not to be successfully pursued, without a very great and constant Application, and a previous Knowledge of many other Parts of useful Learning. The New Testament cannot be understood without the Old; The Truths revealed in one, are grounded on the Prophecies contained in the other; Which makes the Study of the Whole Scriptures necessary to him, that would understand thoroughly a Part of them. Nor can the Apocryphal Books, how much

foever they are generally flighted, be safely neglected; there being a great Chasm of Five hundred Years between the End of the Prophets, and the Beginning of the Gospel; which Period is of the greatest Use for the understanding of the New Testament, and yet is the least known. • But now, if the Old Testament must be well studied, a good Knowledge of the Oriental Tongues is absolutely necessary. No Man can be ignorant, who knows any thing of Letters, that no Versions of old Books can be thoroughly depended on; the Mistakes are so many, and sometimes of great Moment; especially the Versions of Books writ in a Language little understood, and many Parts of it in a Style extremely figurative, and those Figures such as these Parts of the World are almost wholly Strangers to. But put the Case these Difficulties were less than they are, is it an easy Matter to add to Greek and Latin the Knowledge of so many other Languages? Do not they Two alone find Work enough for most Scholars? What Pains then must a Man take, if he will study so many others besides? And if the Knowledge of the Old Testament could be dispenced with, give me leave to tell you that the Language even of the New Testament is not to be understood with so little Pains as is commonly imagined. 'Tis learnt indeed in Schools, and from hence thought to be the easiest Greek that can be read; But they who have read it in another manner than School-Boys, know it to be quite otherwise. Not to mention the Difficulties peculiar to St. Paul, whose Epistles are a very great Part of the New Testament; Plato and Demosthenes are in many respects not so hard, as even the easier Books. The Style indeed in the Historical Books, is plain and simple; but for all that, even these Parts have their Difficulty. And the whole is writ in a Language peculiar to the Jews: The Idiom is Hebrew or Syriac, though the Words be Greek; which makes some Knowledge of those Languages, still necessary.

AGAIN, though it were not necessary to read the Old Testament in the Original, yet the Greek Version of it must be read, and that carefully; it being oftentimes the best, if not the only Help, to explain the Language of the New; besides that that all Citations in the New, are generally made from it. But now, how laborious a thing must it be, to study an ill Version of a very hard Book; which we cannot read in the Original? I call it an Ill Version; For tho' it be indeed a very good one, considering the Time it was writ in; yet as a Version, it must be allowed by those who can judge of it, to be far from being exact or true. A Man need only consult it on some hard places in the Pentateuch, as well as in the Poetick or Prophetick Books, to be convinced of this. 'Twas certainly far from perfect at first; and is made much worse by the Corruptions it has suffered in handing down to us: So that I may venture to affirm, that should any body now a-days make a Version so imperfect; instead of Admiration and Esteem, his Work would be much despised by most of our modern Criticks.

I MIGHT to these add many other Difficulties that attend a serious Study of the New Testament. It requires a good Knowledge of the Jewish State at the time of our Saviour's Coming, a Knowledge of their Government, Sanedrim, Synagogues, Customs, Traditions, Opinions, Sects; the Kinds of Learning received among them; what they borrowed from the Greeks; when their Mystical and Allegorical Manner of Expounding the Scriptures began, and on what Grounds; what their particular Expectations were; in relation to the Messiah; and what they taught, and on what Grounds, in relation to Angels, Demons, Possessions, Oracles, Miracles, &c.

BUT 'tis in vain, you say, to tell you of Difficulties: You are resolv'd not to be deterr'd. You have Time before you, good Eyes, a strong Constitution, a Mind prepared for Fatigue, a reasonable Degree of Skill in the Languages, and are furnished with a competent Knowledge in all the Parts of useful Learning that are preparatory to this Study; So that Difficulties animate rather than dishearten you. And I am not unwilling so far to agree with you, that were there no Objection against this Study, but the Difficulty; this alone should not deter one who is so well prepared for it. But if you are able to go through so laborious a Study, I presume presume you are not fond of Difficulties for Difficulties sake. You cannot think it reasonable to take so much Pains, unless it will turn to some good Account. I shall therefore in the

II. SECOND place take leave to ask, Cui bono? What Good can come of so much Pains? For it may seem that a free, serious, impartial, and laborious Study of the Scriptures, will be of no great Service; for the following Reasons.

1st. BECAUSE 'tis plain the Orthodox Faith is not founded on a nice and critical Knowledge of the Scriptures. Many of the Antient Christians, 'twill be allow'd, were not great Criticks; but argued very much in a mystical way. Origen in particular, who was the greatest Scholar Christianity had bred to That time, perpetually turns the Letter of Scripture into Allegory. From whence we may reasonably conclude, that the Knowledge of the bare literal Sense, was, in the Judgment of Many even in those Times, thought to be of little Use.

BUT 2<sup>dly</sup>, 'Tis certain that the Original Language of the old Testament was known to very Few, for the first Six Centuries, in which those General Councils were held, wherein all the Articles of the Orthodox Faith were settled. They govern'd themselves and determin'd all their Controverted Points by the Greek Version; And those who knew Hebrew best, whether they took to the mystical or literal way, had the Misfortune to be Least Orthodox. So it was with Origen, who knew the Scriptures so well, that he had them all by heart. And Eusebius and Others, who studied and understood the literal Sense of the Scriptures best in the next Ages, succeeded little better. So that this Study seems to have been of little Use, to the establishment of the Orthodox Faith. Now if an Exact and Critical Knowledge of the Scriptures, was not necessary to the Settling of the Faith; it cannot be necessary to the Understanding of it, or to the understanding those who have writ best in the Explication and Defense of it. On the contrary, such a Knowledge tends to lessen our Esteem for the Fathers of the Church, by discovering their Mistakes; and may weaken our Regard to the Decisions of Councils, by exposing the Falseness of the Ground they they seem to be built on. A Man well skill'd in the literal Sense of the Scriptures, will often find in the Fathers and Councils, Texts of Scripture urg'd very insufficiently; and great Strefs laid upon Passages, which when critically explain'd, prove nothing, or perhaps make against them. Which suggests to me a third Reason, why it may seem that such a Study can do no Good. And that is, 3dly, BECAUSE the Orthodox Faith does not depend upon the Scriptures considered absolutely in themselves, but as explained by Catholick Tradition. The Faith was preserved in Creeds, and handed down from one Orthodox Bishop to another, whose Business it was to keep this Sacred Depositum pure and undefiled, and to deliver it to his Successor entire as he received it. It was by this Tradition the Main Articles of Faith were preserved in the Church; and not from any particular Study of the Scriptures. The Ground therefore of these Articles must carefully be distinguished, from the Scriptures that have been brought in proof of them. These Proofs may be weak and inconclusive; but the Truth stands independent of them. 'Tis the Faith they had received; and if at any time they argue weakly for it from the Scriptures, 'tis an Argument indeed against their Learning, but none against their Orthodoxy.

THIS therefore may seem another good Argument to prove, that an Exact and Careful Study of the Scriptures, is not a safe and profitable Study. 'Tis a much safer, as well as more compendious way to make a Man Orthodox, to study the Tradition of the Church.

BUT you will say, that to send you from Scripture to Tradition, is to turn you out of Paradise, the Garden of God, into a vast confused bewildred Wood; and that This is so far from mending the Matter, that 'tis ten times more laborious than the Study I would dissuade you from. And so, I confess it is; if all the Ecclesiastical Writers were to be carefully read, in order to know the Catholick Tradition. But that is not my Meaning. The Substance of Catholick Tradition, lies in much less Compass. The established Church, you will allow, is Orthodox in all necessary Points. If therefore you know the Sense

Sense of the established Church, you have in Epitome the Church Catholick; and therefore you need only study her Opinions to make you Orthodox. And this, the most illiterate Man may find in the Liturgy and Articles. This, I trust you will allow, is as short a way, as could be wished of knowing all that is necessary to be known. A very little time will serve a Man to read, in his Mother Tongue, things which all together would not fill a moderate Volume; And he will be Orthodox enough, and have a great deal of time to spare for other Studies, that will turn to more Account. Besides that 'tis of great Advantage to go in a Way that is Safe as well as Short; and will lead you into the Knowledge of all useful Truths, without the hazard of falling into any dangerous Opinion.

4<sup>thly</sup>. BUT if you will insist that 'tis Scripture and not Tradition, that the Faith is founded on; there is one thing further I must put you in mind of, which may seem to prove, that a profound and laborious Study of the Scriptures will not make you at all more Orthodox. 'Tis a fundamental Principle among Protestants, that whatever is necessary to be believed, is plainly and clearly revealed in the Scriptures; and consequently what is not plainly and clearly revealed in them, cannot be necessary. Now if what is plain and clear in Scripture is the only Part that is necessary to be known; then a laborious Search into the obscurer Parts, may seem unnecessary to the obtaining a true Orthodox Faith. But you will say perhaps, that, notwithstanding this Declaration of Protestants, it may and has been urged against them by their Adversaries, that they do believe and maintain as necessary, Articles that cannot be proved by plain and clear Passages of Scripture. This, I confess, has been urged, and may possibly be true of all Parties of them, except the established Church. But if it be, it proves only that They are not true to their Principle; not that the Principle is not in itself True and Good. And He surely must be allowed to be the best Protestant, who adheres best to the Principle on which the Reformation was founded.

5thly, ONCE more: Supposing the Study of the Scriptures as necessary as you please; in the last place I say, and I'm sure the World will say it with me, that they have been sufficiently studied already; and if any parts remain still obscure, who can hope to clear up Passages that have puzzled so many great Men? or will presume in disputable Points to set up his Private Judgment, against Them that were Men of more Learning, of abler Parts, of greater Application, and better acquainted with the Traditions of the Church, than any one will now be allowed to be? And (which is the best Guide in Knowledge of Religion,) they were moreover Men of most exemplary Piety, Devotion, and Humility; Virtues, of which very little Footsteps are to be found in the learned Men of our Times.

MUST not now a Man have a strong bent of Mind indeed, who cannot by all these Reasons be dissuaded from giving himself up to a Study, that may by many be thought as unprofitable as 'tis laborious? but will go on, in defiance of all that has been said to convince him that he wastes himself in vain, and that there will be no Fruits of all his Labour, but to know he knows Nothing? I call That Nothing, which will turn to no Account.

BUT to show you I am disposed to make all possible Concessions, I will grant that even This Objection might be got over, were this the worst of it: But I have one Argument still in reserve, that I am persuaded will be decisive. My

III. THIRD Argument then is this; That a Painful, Exact, Impartial Study of the Scriptures, will by some be thought not only to do no Good, but also a great deal of Hurt, both to the Publick and to your self.

1st, IT will do Hurt to the Publick. It will disturb the Peace of the Church, and That cannot but have a malignant Influence on the State.

'TIS certain that Disputes in the Church, disturb the Peace of it. And 'tis as certain these Disputes have been generally raised by Men pretending to a Superiour Knowledge of the Scriptures, and to Discoveries that have escaped others.

The

The Scriptures have always been made this Use of by the Hereticks of old: And 'tis the Character of the great Hereticks of this and the last Age; who have set up for a Free and Impartial Search into the literal Sense of the Scriptures, above the rest of the Christian World. But with what Success? They have purchased their pretended Knowledge of the Scriptures at the Expence of their Reputation, and their Study has destroyed their Orthodoxy. And were not their Books and Opinions carefully suppress'd, and their Persons render'd odious to the People; who knows what Disturbances they might have created to the Church? On the other hand, the Peace the Church has enjoy'd for many Years among its own Members, seems to be owing to no one thing more, than to a general Neglect of this Study; And the Dangers that at present threaten its Tranquility, come wholly from Men, who have endeavour'd to revive a Study, that has so often proved pernicious to its Peace.

NOR can it well be otherwise. For what Security has a Man that sets out in this Way; that attempts to study the Scriptures in a free and impartial manner, laying aside all Prepossessions and previous Notions, resolving to see with his own Eyes, and judge for himself, and to believe nothing that he is not upon his own Search convinced is clearly contained in them? What Security has such a Man, that he shall not fall into some Opinions that have been already condemned as erroneous and heretical, or which may interfere with those that are commonly received; which, if they do not immediately strike at any Fundamental Point, yet will be thought to do so; and may have a Tendency to put Scruples into weak Minds, and to disturb the Peace of the Church, by raising Doubts about the Meaning or Truth of some Articles, or by asserting that an explicate Belief of them is not necessary? 'Tis so natural for curious and inquisitive Minds to deviate from the common Road, and the Examples are so many, that 'tis odds but You do so too, unless you had more Lead in your Constitution, or a more resign'd Understanding, than any curious Man ever had yet: Otherwise you cannot be sure, that you shall not study your self into Doubts at least, if not into opposite Opinions concerning some received Notions. You will doubt perhaps of the Authority or Author of some Canonical Book, and think perhaps that some Passages are interpolated, or that some celebrated Texts are not genuine, or should be otherwise read, or have not been rightly understood, or do not prove the Point they are commonly brought for. You may fall into Notions that will be thought tending to Arianism or the like. You may reject Arguments brought from the Old Testament, to prove the Trinity; as trifling, and proving nothing but the Ignorance of those that make use of them. You may think a Prophecie has a literal Meaning, where commonly the Mystical is thought the only one. You may think that many Texts in the New Testament, which are strong against the Socinians, do not prove against the Arian Notion. That the Title, Son of God, has not always one uniform Meaning in the Gospel; and that That single Expression, of it self, is no Proof of any thing in God analogous to Generation in Men. That the Identical Consubstantiality of the Son, the Eternal Procession of the Spirit, and many other Notions relating to the Trinity, tho' they may be true in themselves, are not so in Virtue of the Texts alledged for them. These Notions, Learned Men have fall'n into; and from thence 'tis to be presumed, you will not easily keep clear of them. I chuse to instance chiefly in Matters relating to the Trinity, because 'tis the Controversie now on foot: But the like may be said on many other Articles; in each of which the Truth is but One, but the Errors Infinite: And there is hardly any Notion with respect to any of them, which some learned Man, by following his own Private Judgment, instead of taking the Doctrine of the Church for his Guide, has not fall'n into.

Now if you should study your self into any New Opinions, or into Old ones that have been condemned, what will you do? Will you keep them to your self, or publish them? Or shall I rather say, 'Tis no Question? The Authors of new Notions are apt to be very fond of them; They think it barbarous and cruel, to stifle the Infant in its Birth. There is a secret Pleasure in Singularity. To differ from the Vulgar gar, is in appearance to be above them; and to be distinguish- ed from the Herd, is too great a Temptation to be easily resisted. But had you Prudence enough to govern your Ambition, Conscience may come in here, and make you do what Ambition could not. The Truths you think you have discovered, either are, or will be thought by you of too much Importance to the Honour of God and the Good of Religion, to be conceal'd. You will look on them as the Blessings of God on your Studies; and think it a Capital Crime to extinguish the Light, and suppress the Knowledge he has imparted to you. In short, You will think yourself under the highest Obligation not to dissemble in Religious Matters, and conceal from the Church of God, Opinions which you are convinced are not only true but of great Service to it. Let me then conclude, that the novel or revived Opinions which your Study leads you into, will be published to the World. What now will be the Consequence? Certain Mischief, but no certain Good at all. No Good, I say; for possibly your Notions may be wrong, or not of Consequence; and whether they are or not, the Presumption against you will be so strong, that your Notions will not be received, and perhaps not exam- in'd: They will be condemned as novel Notions, or as exploded ones. And, whatever you advance, 'twill be thought a certain Proof of its being of no Consequence, that in so many Ages it has never been received. There is no room therefore to expect, that what you advance, should be received, or do any Good. But the Mischief is sure and certain. It will raise Scruples in weak unstable Minds, sap the Foundations of the Orthodox Faith, and give a Handle to Sceptical Men; who, because some things are call'd into doubt, (though incidental Matters only and of little Consequence,) will think they have a Right from thence to question every thing. Thus the Church and establish'd Faith will suffer by the Scruples put into its Friends, and the Handle given to its Enemies. And when Religious Disputes are begun, designing Men know how to intermix Affairs of State with them; and then no body knows where they will end, or what Mischiefs they may not do. Whereas if you can be content to go in the beaten Road;

if you will implicitly submit to the received Notions; and humbly think the Judgment of the Church, where 'tis not the fame, better than your own; you will be out of Harm's Way, and neither hurt the Church nor your self.

2. I add, Your self; as another Motive, that ought to have great Weight with you in this Question. For you cannot disturb the Peace of the Church, without being greatly a Sufferer your self. If you really do not disturb its Peace, 'tis all one, you will be interpreted to do it; and That will bring on you more Evils, than I would wish to my greatest Enemy. In a Word, you will be thought a Heretick; a Term, which there is a strange Magick in, though it has no determinate Meaning in the Mouth of the People, nor any ill Meaning in it self. 'Tis supposed to include in it every thing that is bad; it makes every thing appear odious and deform'd; it dissolves all Friendships, extinguishes all former kind Sentiments, however just and well deserved: And from the time a Man is deem'd a Heretick, 'tis Charity to act against all Rules of Charity; and the more they violate the Laws of God in dealing with him, 'tis, in their Opinion, doing God the greater Service.

THAT you may not think this is said at random, purely to frighten you into a Compliance with me; let me desire you to consider seriously the natural Consequences of being under the Imputation of Heresie. And the first I would observe, is, that from the Moment your People have this Opinion of you, you are incapacitated from working much Good upon them; and That, I'm sure, so good a Man as you are, must think to be a great Evil. While they think you Orthodox, your virtuous and inoffensive Behaviour, your strict Sobriety and Temperance, your affable and familiar Manner of conversing with them, your generous and charitable Regard to those who are sick or in distress; these good Qualities joined to your plain and easie, but affectionate and moving Manner of instructing them, have a mighty Influence, and you may lead them as you please: They admire and endeavour to imitate your good Example: Your virtuous Conduct is a constant, though tacit, Reproof when they do amiss: The very Sight of you, is a Lecture of Virtue to them; and the Influence you have already had in the little Time you have been among them, is too visible to be denied. But from the time you are called Heretick, much of the good you could have done, is at an end. Those who before had a secret Veneration of you, think it their Duty to defame and injure you: Your Virtue they call Hypocrisie; your Humility, Spiritual Pride. They look on you as an abandon'd Wretch; that God has withdrawn his Grace, and that the Devil is at the Bottom of all you have been doing: That nothing can better testify their Orthodoxy, than to throw off all Regard both to your Doctrine and Example; And for fear they should seem to be infected with your Errors, they will return to the Vices you had persuaded them to leave; and for the future, will take effectual care not to be the better for you.

No body can do much Good, whom the People do not think a good Man; and That cannot be expected, when so much Reproach and Infamy will, right or wrong, be heaped on you, if you do not continue Orthodox. And this you cannot doubt, if you will but reflect on what passes under your own Eyes. And therefore 'tis in vain to fancy your Virtue will protect you. No, the most conspicuous Virtue will not be believed. If you are guilty of no open Vices, secret ones will be imputed to you; Your Enquiries will be called Vain, Curious and Forbidden Studies. Pride and Ambition will be said to be the secret Springs of them. A Search after Truth, will be called a Love of Novelty. The doubting of a single Text, will be Scepticism; the denial of an Argument, a renouncing of the Faith. To say what the Scriptures have said, and in the very same Words too, if not explained in the common Way, will be Blasphemy; and the most sincere Concern for the Honour of Almighty God, you cannot be sure will not be interpreted down-right Atheism. Every thing you say or do, will have a wrong Turn given it. A Slip of Memory, shall be made wilful Prevarication; A Mistake in a Citation, shall be Forgery and Corruption; An Error in an incidental Point of Learning, shall be a good Proof, that you know Nothing. Every unaccurate Expression, shall be pressed into a Crime;

Any

Any little Warmth of Temper, shall be aggravated into Pride and Positiveness; into a Contempt of Authority, and ill Manners. In short, all the Indiscretions of a Man's former Life shall be ript up; and nothing forgiven that can be remembred or strained to his Disadvantage. And where is the Man that can be fond of such Usage? For my part, I am free to declare, I am afraid I should not have Virtue or Courage enough, to undergo such a fiery Trial.

Now all this a Man will draw upon himself, that brings himself under the Imputation of Herésie. Whereas the Orthodox Man lives quiet and at ease, unmolested and unenvied. His Faults (and who has not some?) shall be extenuated or excused, if not quite buried in oblivion; His want of Temper, shall be a commendable Zeal; his Indiscretion, Good Nature; his Mistakes shall be imputed to Haste or Inadvertency; and, when they cannot be defended, it will be argued in his Favour, that the greatest Men sometimes err, and the Writers of the first Rank are not always in the right; Or perhaps a Mistake shall turn to his Advantage; It will be shown to be an Error on the right Side, and that a good Cause drew him into it. His Learning on the other Hand shall be magnified beyond measure; every body will be full of his good Qualities, and his Virtues shall be set in the best Light to show themselves and cover his Faults. In a word, Orthodoxy atones for all Vices, and Herésie extinguishes all Virtues. That this is nothing but the bare Truth, I appeal to what you every Day hear and see yourself.

THERE are, you know, Two Clergymen of the Town, who have studied themselves into Herésie, or at least into a Suspicion of it: Both of them, Men of fair unblemish'd Characters. One has all his Life been cultivating Piety and Virtue and good Learning. Rigidly constant himself in the publick and private Duties of Religion; and always promoting in Others, Virtue and such Learning as he thought would conduce most to the Honour of God, by manifesting the Greatness and Wisdom of his Works. He has given the World sufficient Proofs that he has not mispent his Time, by very useful Works of Philosophy and Mathematicks. He has applied One to the Explication of the Other, and endeavoured by Both to display the Glory of the Great Creator. And to his Study of Nature, he early join'd the Study of the Scriptures; and his Attempts, whatever the Success be, were at least well meant: And considering the Difficulty of the Subjects he has engaged in, it must be allowed that in the main they are well aimed. And if he has not succeeded, no more have others who have meddled with the same Subjects. Nor is he more to be blamed, than they. To be blamed, did I say? I should have said, not less to be commended. For sure, 'tis a commendable Design, to explain Scripture-Difficulties, and to remove the Objections of profane Men, by shewing there is nothing in the Sacred Writings, but what is true and rational.

Works

BUT what does a Life thus spent, avail? To what Purpose so many watchful Nights, and weary Days? So much Piety and Devotion? So much Mortification and Self-denial? Such a Zeal to do Good, and to be useful to the World? So many noble Specimens of a great Genius, and of a fine Imagination? 'Tis the poor Man's Misfortune, (for Poor he is, and like to be, not having the least Preferment,) to have a warm Head, and to be very zealous in what he thinks the Cause of God. He thinks Prudence the worldly Wisdom condemned by Christ and his Apostles; and that 'tis gross Prevarication and Hypocrisie, to conceal the Discoveries he conceives he has made. This Heat of Temper betrays him into some indiscreet Expressions and hasty Assertions. Designing to hurt no body, he fancies no body designs to hurt Him; and is simple enough to expect the same favourable Allowances will be made to him, that he sees made to those who write against him. As to his Learning, 'tis his Misfortune that he is not skill'd enough in the learned Languages, to be a great Critick in them; and yet seems not to be sensible of his Deficiency in this respect. And what Advantage is taken of this, that he has not less Heat and more Criticism? His Learning is treated in that manner, that you would think he did not know the first Elements of Greek; though even in That, he is much superior to most of those who make so free with him: And you every Day hear his Performances run down as Whimseys and Chimera's, by Men who never read them, and, if they did, could not understand them. Nor does his Warmth of Temper come off better: 'Tis all over Obstinaey, Pride and Heretical Pravity; a want of Modesty and due Defe-rence to just Authority. They that speak most favourably, look upon him as craz'd, and little better than a Madman. This is the poor Man's Character; and, low as he is, they cannot be content to leave him quiet in his Poverty. Whereas, had he not been early possess'd with a passionate love for the Scripture and Philosophy; had he not thought it his Duty above all things to promote the Glory of God, and been per-swaded That could no way be so well done as by the Study of his Word and Works; 'tis more than probable he had at this time been Orthodox. And then, instead of his present Treatment, his Faults would have been overlook'd; the Learning he excells in, would have been extoll'd, and no De-fect would have been found in other Parts of it. He would have been cried up as an Ornament of the Age, and no Pre-ferment would have been denied or envied him.

THIS you know to be the Case with One of the *New He-*reticks. The Other is so prudent in his Conduct, that he comes under but a Suspicion of favouring the same Notions. How now is He treated? Prudence in Him, is as great a Crime as the want of it in the Other. The imprudent Man is treated as a Madman, and a rank Arian: The Prudent one, is less a Heretick, but more dangerous: *Sobrius accessit ad evertendam Ec-*clesiam; and therefore the greater Alarm must be rais'd against Him. And what has he done? Why, he has with a great deal of Pains brought together in the best Manner he could, all the Passages in the New Testament relating to the Doctrine of the Trinity. And so far, his Work is what those who dif-fer from him, should be pleas'd with; since he has brought the Materials together, to enable Men to form a right Judg-ment of the Question in Dispute; and has put into their Hands, if he be in the wrong, the best Weapons against himself. But he has interpreted some Texts, in a manner that is not liked: 'Tis true, he has so; but not once, that I remember, has he given an Interpretation that is purely of his own Head. He brings great Vouchers, and if he errs, it is always in good Company. This is his Offence: He has maintained with many others, particularly with the late Dean of St. Paul's, in opposition to Sabellianism, that the Three Persons of the Trinity are Three real distinct Beings: and the belief of Three really distinct Beings perfectly Equal, he maintains with Dr. South to be Tritheism: And, that there must therefore be a Subordination. Now whether this Notion be right, or not; if He cannot escape ill Treatment, give me leave to say, that if your Study should lead you into any Opinions contrary to what is generally received, You can with no Reason expect better Quarter. He is a Man who has all the good Qualities that can meet together, to recommend him. He is possess'd of all the Parts of Learning that are valuable in a Clergyman, in a Degree that few possess any single one. He has join'd to a good Skill in the three Learned Languages, a great Compass of the best Philosophy and Mathematicks; as appears by his Latin Works: And his English ones are such a Proof of his own Piety, and of his Knowledge in Divinity, and have done so much Service to Religion, as would make any other Man, that was not under the Suspicion of Heresie, secure of the Friendship and Esteem of all good Churchmen, especially of the Clergy. And to all this Piety and Learning, and the good use that has been made of it; is added a Temper happy beyond Expression: A sweet, easie, modest, inoffensive, obliging Behaviour, adorn all his Actions; and no Passion, Vanity, Insolence, or Ostentation, appear either in what he Writes or Says: And yet these Faults are often incident to the best Men, in the freedoms of Conversation, and in writing against impertinent and unreasonable Adversaries, especially such as strike at the Foundations of Virtue and Religion. This is the Learning, this the Temper of the Man, whose Study of the Scriptures has betrayed him into a Suspicion of some Heretical Opinions; And because it has, he must be blackned and defamed; he must be worried out of the great and clear Reputation he is possess'd of: And he that has so many shining Qualities, must be insulted by every worthless Wretch, as if he had as little Learning and Virtue as the lowest of those who are against him. What Protection now can you promise your self from your Virtue, when a Man of such a Character cannot be safe in his good Name? Whatever therefore you do, be Orthodox: Orthodoxy will cover a Multitude of Sins, but a Cloud of Virtues cannot cover the want of the minutest Particle of Orthodoxy.

'Tis expected, no matter how unreasonably, that a Man should always adhere to the Party he has once taken. 'Tis the Opinion of the World, that he is all his Life bound by the Subscriptions he made in his first Years; as if a Man were as wise at Twenty-four, and knew as much of the Scripture and Antiquity and could judge as well of them, as he can at Fifty. And yet if a Man will be studying these things, he cannot be sure he shall continue a Year together in the same Sentiments: And, if he should not, he must either stifle his Persuasion, against the Dictates of his Conscience, or be expos'd to the worst Treatment, to be call'd a Renegado, a Falſe Brother, a Heretick, or any thing that Malice can suggest.

BUT I have not yet done. This is not the worst of it. This perhaps you may pretend to despise, and not care what the World says of you, so long as your Conscience cannot reproach you. Well; let then all Concern for Reputation go: Can you be Proof against one farther Consequence of lying under the Imputation of Heresie? Can you bear to see your self, your Wife and Children, ruin'd and undone? This I see startles you.——But you ask; What Danger can there be of that? An Englishman, you say, is out of the Reach of Persecution or an Inquisition: That Spirit, God be thanked, is banished the Land; and even convict Hereticks are protected from the Flames. Very true; The Spirit of Persecution is either gone, or is disarm'd; and That I look on as one of the invaluable Blessings of the Revolution: But can you be sure it will not return? And suppose it will not; Are you therefore secure, that an Imputation of Heresie will not end in the Ruine of your self and Family? You and your Children will not be burnt indeed; but you may be as effectually ruin'd, as if you were. You may be excommunicat'd; and in Virtue of That be thrown into Jail, to rot there, while your Family are starving.

And

And (which cannot be too well consider'd,) when once you come into those Circumstances, what is there can deliver you? Your Punishment will last and be the same, as long as you continue in the same Mind. A Rule of Punishment, peculiar to the Ecclesiastick State. In Civil Cases, the Offender, if his Crime be not Capital, suffers a Temporary Punishment, proportion'd to the Fault he has committed; and when he has undergone that, nothing further is required of him, except in some Cases to find Security for his good Behaviour for the future. But in Cases of Heresie, there is no regard to the Degree of the Offence, in the Punishment inflicted. Nor is there any End of it. 'Tis not enough to have suffer'd the severest Punishment, though for the smallest Offence; 'tis not enough to give Security of not offending for the future. The innocent Offender must declare (what 'tis oftentimes impossible he should declare,) that he has changed his Sentiments, and is become Orthodox; and This, though perhaps no Methods of Conviction have been used, except that of Punishment be one. This is the miserable Condition of a Convict Heretick: The Punishment which fell on him for expressing Thoughts Heretical, he must continue to endure for barely Thinking; Which is a Thing not in his own Power, but depends on the Evidence that appears to him: He must for ever (cruel Justice!) for ever suffer for his Private Thoughts (tho' they go not beyond his own Heart,) the Punishment which some Overt-Act has once drawn upon him. To punish Toties quoties, as often as those Overt-Acts are repeated, will not satisfy the Holy Office: Nor can a forbearance of such Acts avail any thing, or a Promise of Silence for the future; which yet is all that is in a Man's Power. No; he must recant, whether he can or not; and generally 'tis required to be done in Words drawn up for him. So that, if he do not see Reason to change his Opinion; and will not say he has changed, when he has not; he is in for Life, and his Punishment can only end with it.

INDEED, on every Supposition, a Man excommunicated for Heresie has a sad Time of it. For if he does not recant, he is (as I have said) in Prison for Life, and his Family must starve; And if he does recant, what does he get by it; His Liberty indeed, but What else? Will People believe he is sincere? Will they not think his Recantation loosely drawn in favour of him, to make it a Recantation in Appearance only? Or, if it be in the strongest Words, will he not, if he submit to it, be suspected to equivocate? Will they not expect the Reasons of his Change? Will they not ask, (if he says no more for the Orthodox Side than has been said before,) why, if these Reasons are convincing now, he did not think them so before? Will they not conclude, that to him they are inconclusive still; unless he can find better Reasons than the best that had been before offered him? Which I take to be a Contradiction. And will it not be argued from thence, that he is not changed? that 'tis the Punishment only, and not his Opinions, he would leave? So that if he continues in his Opinions, he must lie under all the Infamy and Punishment of Heresie; and if he does not, yet it will be suppos'd he does. He is punish'd for acting according to his Conscience; and if he would leave the Heresie imputed to him, he will be said to act against his Conscience; and perhaps be reputed a worse Man than he was before. This in all Events: once a Heretick, and always miserable. The Reputation, (change, or not,) is never to be retrieved; no Preferment or Employment to be hoped for. He will always be suspected of Heresie, who is once guilty; and his Wife and Children must see him the perpetual Subject of Reproach and Obloquy; and feel it too: Feel it in their Character, feel it in their Maintenance; as if the Children of a Heretick were a Brood of Monsters, a Nuisance to the Common-wealth, and infected the very Air they breath in.
Liberty

THESE Misfortunes, a Man of the most unblemished Life may draw upon himself and Family, if he will be meddling with so dangerous a Study, and cannot in Conscience dissemble the result of it. Misfortunes, which the vilest, lewdest, most immoral Wretch upon Earth, is in no danger of. The greatest Immoralities, nay, a long Course of them, shall oftentimes escape unpunished; especially if a Man be very Orthodox: But if they do not, the Punishment extends only to the Person of the Offender. It derives no Infamy on himself if he reforms, forms, nor on his Children if he do not. They are rather pitied for having such a Father, and every Body is willing to be kind to them. Who now, after this, can be fond of a Study, that may bring on him, let him be never so innocent, such a Load of Misery and Infamy, a Load without Measure and without End? And if this will be the Consequence of Excommunication, tell me how much better 'tis than Persecution.

BUT you will say, that 'tis possible a Man's Studies may not lead him into any Heretical Opinion; and if they should, yet 'tis not very easie to convict a Heretick, or to say what is Heresie. To the first, I have already said enough: As to the other, I confess 'tis not very easie to convict a Man of Heresie. The Law seems to be deficient in this Point; But Who knows how soon this Defect may be supply'd by a new Law? And in the mean time, it may be difficult indeed to convict a Man of Heresie; but perhaps it may be found not to be impossible. And, if it should, 'tis but changing the Word, and the Offender may become upon easily enough. If, through a Defect in the Laws, he cannot be convicted of Heresie, He may however be convicted of Writing or Speaking against the established Doctrine of the Church; and That will draw on him all the same Consequences, that Heresie would do. For Heresie is the opposing the Doctrine of the Catholic Church; But the Doctrine of the established Church, will readily be supposed to be the Doctrine of the Catholic Church; and therefore to oppose the Doctrine of one, is in effect to oppose both. So that a Man shall be deemed a Heretick to all Intents and Purposes, and sentenced to the same Punishment; though in the Sentence it self, for his Comfort, the Word Heresie may be left out.

BUT you are willing to think the Temper of the English Clergy more moderate, and the generality of them averse to every thing that looks like the Spirit of Popery; as the ruining of a good Man, merely for Matters of Opinion, must be allowed to do. I wish you may find it so, if ever there should be occasion. I confess there has appeared a good Spirit, a very Humane and Christian Temper in some late Writings, where perhaps

perhaps it was not much expected; but for all that, I must beg leave to differ from you. If indeed no one would judge in a Cause he did not understand; if no one were allowed to understand a Cause of Heresie, but who was a good Judge of the Sense of Scripture and of Primitive Antiquity; if no one were esteemed to know Scripture and Antiquity, but those who had studied them well, who had read them carefully with their own Eyes, and did not take the Sense of them upon Trust from Modern Writers; if the Arguments for his Opinion were to be examined, before his Opinion were condemned; if a Man, before he gave his Vote, were to lay his Hand upon his Heart, and declare himself thus qualified to judge; that he had consider'd the Matter, and would speak nothing but what he Thought; On these Suppositions, I am apt to think, a number of Judges would not very easily be found; and, when they were, it may reasonably be presumed that they would not be very forward to condemn. They would be sensible there was room for Honest Minds to be misled, from what they had read and observed Themselves; They would know that there is more to be said on the other Side, than the Generality at all dream of; They would be careful how they discourag'd Learning, by discouraging the Enquiries of learned Men. They would be very unwilling a Man should suffer by their Sentence, whose Life they are sure is innocent and virtuous, but whose Opinions they cannot be so sure are false or dangerous. They know Discouragements in Learning and Virtue to be of such ill Consequence, that a Man's Opinions must be very bad indeed, to make it necessary to come to such Extremities. But give me leave to say, you have no reason to expect such Judges, or such a Backwardness to judge. 'Tis always supposed, that the Doctrine of the Church you are of, is right; that it is the Doctrine of Scripture and Antiquity. And this, every body thinks he understands. So that little Learning or Reading is necessary, to make any Clergyman a Judge over the learned'st Man alive.

ANOTHER thing I take leave to tell you, is, that most Men think they can do Conscientiously whatever they can do Legally. Men of refin'd and exalted Understandings, who have a large Compass of Thought, and have lookt into the Principles of Things, know that written Laws are but Deductions of the Law of Nature, which is prior to all Humane Institutions: That these sometimes deviate from that unwritten Law; and, when they do, are of no real intrinsick Authority. They know that a thing is not just and reasonable because it is enacted; but, in good Governments, is enacted, because 'tis just and reasonable. They know that Laws are sometimes obtain'd by Surprize or Corruption, by Party-management, by Craft or Superstition. They know that Penal Laws in Matters of Religion, are seldom adviseable. They would not easily contribute to the making them; and, when they are made, would be glad to have them generally lie Dormant. They know that no Authority of Man can alter the Nature of Things, or justify a Cruel or Unjust Sentence in the Sight of God. They are sure, that if to punish Men for their Opinions be not very right, there is no Medium, it must be very wrong. 'Tis publick Robbery or Murder, to deprive a Man of his Life or Goods for his Religion; if it be not just in it self to do so as well as Legal.

SOME perhaps may think in this manner; But these must be Men of refin'd and exalted Understandings; and therefore must be very few. The Generality think they may do justly, whatever they can do Legally. And it is, no doubt, for Them, a good Rule. They cannot judge of the Nature of Things for themselves; and therefore the Law is the most proper Guide and Direction they can have. As long therefore as there are Laws to punish the Asserters of Heretical Opinions, or such as oppose the established Doctrines; you may depend on it, they will not be suffered to lie dormant. There will never be wanting great Numbers, who will call aloud to have them put in execution; and they will think their Zeal in this Matter, the best Service they can do the Church.

THIS is Humane Nature: Thus it has been in all Times. And no Experience of the Mischief done to Christianity by a forwardness to pronounce Anathema's on those who dissent from the received Opinions, will make us wiser. It may I doubt not, be demonstrated with the greatest Evidence, that all Christian Churches have suffered more by their Zeal for Orthodoxy, and by the violent Methods taken to promote it; than from the utmost Efforts of their greatest Enemies. But, for all that, the World will still think the same Methods necessary. The same Zeal will prompt to the same Persecutions or Prosecutions, (call them which you will,) without considering that the same Means must necessarily produce, at long-run, the same fatal Consequences.

LET me therefore entreat you, not to fancy the World is alter'd in this Point. Do not think your Opinions cannot ruin you, because 'tis not reasonable they should. Do not flatter your self, that Temper, Prudence and Moderation, can in Religious Controversies get the better of indiscreet Zeal, Bigotry and Superstition. In short; be not hasty in espousing of Opinions, which can have no other Effect, but to lay the best Men at the Mercy of the worst. Every mean Person, who has nothing to recommend him but his Orthodoxy, and owes That perhaps wholly to his Ignorance; will think he has a Right to trample on you with Contempt; to asperse your Character with virulent Reflexions; to run down your Writings as mean and pitiful Performances, and give hard Names to Opinions he does not understand; Which you must bear, without the least hopes of being heard a Word in your Defense.

LET me observe one thing more; that 'tis the Misfortune of a Clergyman, that he is confined to One Profession. Other Men, if they cannot live in one Way, are at liberty to try another: But a Man who has once the indelible Character, must live by the one Profession he has made his Choice. If therefore That Livelihood be taken from him; 'tis in vain he has Learning, Parts, Industry and Application. He will not be allowed to take any other Course to repair the Loss he suffers by his Opinions as a Clergyman. His Time, and Fortunes, and Studies, have been spent to make him useful in that one Profession; and, if he had Abilities to maintain himself in any other, 'tis too late: He has made his Choice, and must abide by it. This then is the unhappy Dilemma a reputed Heretick is reduced to; he will neither be suffer'd to keep the Profession, nor to leave it; he shall neither live in it, nor out of it. So that, notwithstanding his Learning, Parts, Virtue, and Industry; tho' he could make a good Lawyer, Physician, Merchant, or Mechanick; if he be not Orthodox, all possibilities of living comfortably, at least, and reputably, are taken from him. Go now, and think, if you can, that the Advice I give you, is not the Advice of a Friend. 'Tis the Advice of one who loves Virtue and Learning, who is a Friend to all good Men, and is in particular greatly concern'd for your Success and Advancement in the World. 'Tis Advice seconded by the Examples of the greatest Men. For name me any one of the Men most famed for Learning in this or the last Age, who have seriously turned themselves to the Study of the Scriptures. I might name to you the most eminent Men down from Sca-liger and Casaubon to the present Time. Capellus indeed, and the excellent Grotius, are Exceptions; but they met with such Usage, that one has little Encouragement from their Examples. But not to go beyond our own Country; Who are the Men that have excelled most (excepting always Sir Isaac Newton) in Philosophy, Astronomy and Mathematicks? Have they not been Clergymen? And was not their Skill in these Sciences, the Effect of their great and constant Application to them? Was not That Time spent in these Studies, that you think should have been applied to the Study of the Scriptures? On the other hand, take out Two or Three from so great a Body; and where is there a Clergyman of a Great Genius, and that has made a chief Figure in the Learned Word, that has writ upon the Scriptures? at least with any masterly Skill in Critick?

AND what is it, that all this can be imputed to? Did these learned Men decline this Study, because they wanted the Abilities proper for it? Surely That will not be said of Men of their confessed Learning. Or was there want of Inclination and Good-will to it? No, they were Men of Virtue, and good Protestants, as well as Scholars and Men of Letters. What then? Did they, who have taken so much Pains upon other Books, and with so much Success, think the Scriptures the only ones that needed not their Help? Neither can That be pretended. They saw the Sacred Books, through the Injury of Time and the Ignorance of Scribes, had suffer'd as well as others; and much more by false and absurd Interpretations. To be plain: The One Thing that turned them from so noble and necessary a Study, was the want of Liberty, which in this Study Only, is denied Men. They found it was dangerous to examine impartially, and speak freely; that they must write without Liberty, or with no Safety; that it would be expected of them, to strain all their Wit and Learning, to patronize and palliate gross Errors, instead of exposing or mending of them; and to support the received Interpretations, however absurd, instead of such as Reason and Learning convinced them were the only true ones. But This was a Task, which Men of ingenuous Minds, whose Integrity and Love of Truth was equal to their Penetration and great Abilities, could not submit to. For Men to have Eyes and Understandings of their own, and yet not see or understand, but as they were bid, and That by Men who could not see or understand themselves; ὡς ἀργαλέην πρᾶγμα! To make such a blind Use of their Learning and Abilities, was, they thought, to pervert the very End of them, and really to dishonour God, whose Service they were given for. Since therefore they could not bear the Thoughts of studying the Scriptures on these Terms, no Part was left Men who could not be idle, but to turn to some other Study, in which, without fear of Danger or Offense, they might freely go whither Truth and Reason led. The Consequence of which, besides the Improvements made in Arts and Sciences, has been, that many of them have separately made more good E-mendations, and happily explained more Difficulties in the smallest Pagan Writer; than they have done, take them All together, in Two Hundred Years upon the whole Body of the Scriptures.

WHAT then I would advise you, is to follow such Examples. Turn your self to the Study of the Heathen Historians, Poets, Orators, and Philosophers. Spend Ten or Twelve Years upon Horace or Terence. To illustrate a Billet-doux, or a Drunken Catch; to explain an obscene Jest; to make a happy Emendation, on a Passage that a modest Man would blush at; will will do you more Credit, and be of greater Service to you, than the most useful Employment of your Time upon the Scriptures; unless you can resolve to conceal your Sentiments, and speak always with the Vulgar. You see a present Example in the great Bentley: What a Reputation has he acquir'd by the noble Edition he has given us of Horace? How are his Abilities confess'd and admir'd by all? But had the same Genius, the same Sagacity and Labour, been applied to the Study of the Scriptures; to Settle the Text in doubtful Places, to Mend corrupted ones, Explain hard ones, Fix the Meaning of obscure ones, and to Trace out the literal Sense where it can be done; should he, I say, have attempted a Work of this Kind; instead of Thanks and Applause, 'tis more than probable he would have been treated as a rash Man, of no Judgment, of little Learning, and less Religion; and, if his Works had been sentenc'd to the Flames, a Majority would have been for throwing him in after them.

CONSIDER well therefore, how you engage where there is no Retreat, no Repentance, no room for Pardon, if you once offend. You have Two Ways before you. One will enable you to be useful in the World, without great Trouble to your self; it will crown your Labours with Success; it will bring you Reputation and Esteem; it will put you into a Way of making a decent Provision for your Family, and giving a good Education to those Two fine Children God has blessed you with, and you may have many more. The Other will it self fatigue you with many Difficulties, and expose you to the most fatal Consequences: It will draw on you an insupportable Load of Infamy, as a Disturber of the Church, and an Enemy to the Orthodox Faith; and in all probability end in the extreme Poverty and Ruin of your self and Family. Which God forbid should ever be the Case of one who has no other Views but to dedicate his Life to God's Service. I am,

S I R,

Your Faithful Humble Servant.

The

The CONCLUSION.

AFTER all that has been said in this long Letter, I am persuaded that Many Readers will still think what is here advanced, a strange Paradox; or perhaps be scandalized at it as a very wicked one; and will on no Terms allow, that Clergymen should lay aside what ought to be their chief Study. And, to be ingenuous, I will confess I am entirely of the same Mind. I am as unwilling as They can be, to admit the Conclusion, that the Study of the Scriptures should be deserted; and yet cannot deny, but, humanely speaking, this must be the Consequence from these Premises. If therefore we will not allow the Conclusion, we must show the Premises to be untrue, and that This Study will not be attended with so much Danger. But This we in vain attempt, if we do not our Parts at least, that these may not be the Consequences. For as long as they are, the Study of the Scriptures will certainly continue to be neglected, as it Now is; And all Men who contribute to these Consequences in any Degree, do so far discourage the Study of the Scriptures, whatever they pretend.

IN Truth, there is nothing more absurd, than to say the glorious Things we do daily of the Scriptures; and, at the same time, make the Study of them, to Men of sincere and honest Minds, so extremely hazardous and inconvenient. If then we would not be guilty of discouraging a Study, which we acknowledge to be the great Duty of the Clergy, as we are Christians; if we would be true to the Fundamental Principles of the Reformation, as Protestants, that the Scriptures are the only Rule of Faith; Let us use our best Endeavours to remove the great Obstacles that lie against the Study of them; Let us do what we can, that learned Men may have full Liberty to study the Scriptures freely and impartially; good Incouragement given them to go thro' the Labour and Difficulties of such a Study, not slightly and superficially, but with such Application and Diligence as the Nature of the Thing requires; and have Leave to speak their Sense with with all manner of Safety : That their Opinions may be examin'd fairly and with Temper : that their Names be not unjustly loaded with Calumny and Slander ; that their Words and Actions may be interpreted with the same Candour, as is shown to those that differ from them : That, if what they advance be right, it may be received ; if wrong, their Errors may be refuted, as the Mistakes of learned Men on other Subjects ; If doubtful, and the Scriptures say so little, or speak so obscurely, that nothing can certainly be decided either way ; that then no body may be obliged to take either Side as necessary : That, whether their Notions be right or wrong, their Persons may in all Events be safe, and their Maintenance not affected by it : That, as long as they live virtuously, and write with all due Modesty and good Manners, and advance nothing that breaks in upon Morality and Government, they may be treated in all respects as Those are or ought to be, who employ themselves in any other Part of useful Learning.

I MUST add, let them be never so much in the Wrong, I can apprehend no Danger from it to the Church ; or that the Errors of a few Men, can have any considerable Influence in opposition to a great Body of a vigilant and learned Clergy, who will be always able and ready to defend the received Notion, if they can be defended ; and if they cannot, it must be allowed they ought not. But if some Inconveniencies would arise from the Liberty I contend for, they are nothing in comparison of those that must follow from the want of it.

TILL there is such a Liberty allowed to Clergy-men ; till there is such a Security for their Reputations, Fortunes, and Persons ; I fear I must add, till so difficult a Study meets with proportionable Encouragement ; 'tis impossible a sincere, impartial and laborious Application to it, should generally prevail : And till it does, it is as impossible the Scriptures should be well understood : And till they are, they are a Rule of Faith in Name only. For 'tis not the Words of Scripture, but the Sense, which is the Rule ; And so far as That is not understood, so far the Scriptures are not our Rule, whatever we pretend ; but the Sense that Men have put on them ; Men fallible as our selves, and who were by no means so well furnished, as the Learned at present are, with the proper Helps to find out the true Meaning of Scripture. And while

while we take the Sense of the Scriptures in this manner upon Content, and see not with our own Eyes; we insensibly relapse into the Principles of Popery, and give up the only Ground on which we can justify our Separation from the Church of Rome: 'Twas a Right to study and judge of the Scriptures for themselves, that our first Reformers asserted with so good effect; and their Successors can defend their adherence to them, on no other Principle.

IF then we are concerned for the Study of the Scriptures, further than in Words; if we in earnest think them the only Rule of Faith; let us act as if we thought so: Let us heartily encourage a free and impartial Study of them; Let us lay aside that malignant, arbitrary, persecuting, Popish Spirit; Let us put no Fetters on Mens Understandings, nor any other Bounds to their Enquiries, but what God and Truth have set. Let us, if we would not give up the Protestant Principle, that the Scriptures are plain and clear in the necessary Articles; declare nothing to be necessary, but what is clearly revealed in them.

THEN may we hope to see the Study of these Divine Books so happily cultivated by the united Labours of the Learned, when under no Discouragements; that All may in the Main agree in the true Meaning of them. Places that can be understood, they will agree in understanding alike; such at least as are of Consequence to the Faith. And for such as are too obscure to be cleared up with any certainty, those likewise they will agree about, and unanimously confess they are such as no Article of Faith can be grounded upon, or proved from. Next to the understanding a Text of Scripture, is to know it can't be certainly understood. When the clear and dark Parts of Scripture are thus distinguished, an Unity may then reasonably be hoped for among Protestants in necessary Points; And a Difference of Opinion in such as are not necessary, can have no manner of ill Consequence, nor any way disturb the Peace of the Church; since there will then be nothing left in its Doctrines, to inflame Mens Passions, or feed their corrupt Interests, when we are all agreed about what is essential to Religion; and what is not essential, is look'd on as indifferent, so that a Man may take one Side, or the other, or neither, or may change, as he sees Reason, without Offense.

UPON the whole, a free and impartial Study of the Scriptures, either ought to be encouraged, or it ought not. There is no Medium; and therefore those who are against one Side, which ever it be, are necessarily Esposers of the other. Those who think it ought not to be encouraged, will, I hope, think it no Injury to be thought to defend their Opinion upon such Reasons as have here been brought for it, till they give better. On the other hand, those who think these Reasons inconclusive, and can't find better; will find themselves obliged to confess, that such a Study ought to be encouraged; and consequently must take care how they are accessory to such Practices, as in their natural Consequence can't but tend to its Discouragement; Least they come into the Condemnation of those who love Darknes rather than Light, and, for their Punishment, be finally adjudg'd to it. There is in this Case no other Medium between Encouraging and Discouraging, but what there is between Light and Darknes. Every Degree of Darknes, is a want of so much Light; and all want of Light, is a certain Degree of Darknes. To refuse then a greater Degree of Light, where it can be had; is in truth to prefer Darknes: Which in my humble Opinion, can never be reasonable or excusable. Those who are of another Mind, plainly distrust themselves or their Cause. Which if it can bear the Light, why should it not be shown in it? But if it cannot, 'tis not the Cause of God, or of the Son of God; For God is Light, and in him is no Darknes; and the Son of God is the True Light, which lighteth every Man that cometh into the World.

LETTER

*Written by the Reverend Mr John
Hales of Eaton, to Arch-Bishop LAUD, upon Occasion of his Tract concerning SCHISM.*

May it please Your Grace,

HEREAS of late an abortive Discourse, indited by Me for the use of a Private Friend, hath, without Lawful Pass, wandred abroad; and mistaking its Way, is arrived at Your Grace's Hands; I have taken the Boldness to present my Self before You, in behalf of it, with this either Apology or Excuse indifferently, being resolved in utramvis aleam, to beg either your Approbation, or your Pardon. For my Self, I have much marvelled, whence a Scribbled Paper, dropt from so worthless and inconsiderable a Hand as mine, should recover so much Strength, as to be able to give Offence. But I confess it to be most true, that Bellum inchoant inertes, fortes finiunt; And a weak Hand often kindles that Fire, which which the Concourse of the whole Vicinity cannot quench. If therefore any Fire can arise out of so poor a Spark, (which I can hardly conceive,) I am my Self here at hand to pour on Water, to prevent a farther Mischiefe.

WHATSOEVER there is in that Schedule, which may seem apt to give Offense; consists either in Phrase and manner of Expression; or in the Concepts, and Things themselves, there press'd and insisted upon. For the First: Whosoever hath the Misfortune to read it, shall find in it, for Stile, some things over-familiar and Sub-rustick; some things more pleasant than need-ed; some things more Sour and Satyrical. For these, my Apology is but this, that Your Grace would be pleas'd to take in consideration, first, what the Liberty of a Letter and the Hopes of Privacy might entice me to. Secondly, I am, by Genius, Open and Uncautelous; and therefore some Pardon might be afforded to harmless Freedom, and Gayety of Spirit, utterly devoid of all Distemper and Malignity. Thirdly, Some part of the Theme I was to touch upon, was (or at least seem'd to me) of so small and inconsiderable a Moment; and yet hath rais'd that Noise and Tumult in the Church, that I confess it drew from me that Indignation which is there expressed. When Augustus the Emperour was asked what was become of his Agax; (for he made a Tragedy upon the Life and Fortunes of That Man;) he answer'd, incubuit in spongiam. For all these things which I have above touch'd upon, my Answer is, incumbant in spongiam. And I could heartily wish, (for, in the Case I am, I have nothing but good Wishes to help me,) that They into whose Hands That Paper is unluckily fallen, would favour me so much as to Sponge them out.

Now concerning the Things discuss'd in the Pamphlet, I humbly beg leave, before I come to particulars, to speak for my self thus much in general. If they be Errors which I have here vented, (as perchance they are;) yet my Will hath no part in them, and they are but the Issues of unfortunate Inquiry. Galen, that great Physician, speaks thus of Himself, 'Εγὼ δ' οὐκ οἶδ' ὑπὸς ἑδύς &c. I Know not how (says That worthy Person) even from my Youth up, in a wonderful manner, whether by divine Inspiration, or by Fury and Possession, or however you may please to stile it, I have much contemn'd the Opinion of the MANY; but TRUTH and KNO WLEDGE, I have above Measure affected; verily perswading my Self, that a fairer, more divine Fortune, could never besal a Man. Some Title, some little Claim I may justly lay to the Words of this excellent Person: For, the Pursuit of TRUTH hath been my only Care, ever since I first understood the meaning of the Word. For This, I have forsaken all Hopes, all Friends, all Desires, which might bias me, and hinder me from driving right at what I aimed. For This, I have spent my Moneys, my Means, my Youth, my Age, and all I have; that I might remove from my Self that Censure of Tertullian,—Suo vitio quis quid ignorat. If with all this Cost and Pains, my Purchase is but Error; I may safely say, To err hath cost Me more, than it has Many to find the Truth: And Truth it Self shall give me this Testimony at last, that if I have missed of Her, it is not my Fault, but my Misfortune.

HAVING begged your Graces Pardon for this περιαυτολογια, (peradventure unseasonable;) I will take Liberty to consider of the Things themselves discussed in the Pamphlet. And first, howsoever I have Miscast some parcels of my account, yet I am most certain that the Total Sum is right; For it amounts to no more than That Precept of the Apostle—As far as it is possible, have peace with all Men. For this Purpose, having summoned up sundry Occasions of SCHISM, and valuing them with the best Judgment I could; I still ended with Advice to all possible Accommodation and Communion, One only excepted. Now certainly there could be no great Harm in the Premises, where the Conclusion was nothing else but Peace.

ONE of the ancient Grammarians, delivering the Laws of a Comedy somewhat scrupulously, thought Non posse Ferrum nominari in Comediâ, ne transeat in Tragœdiam; that to name a Sword in a Comedy, was enough to fright it into a Tragedy. The very Theme I handled, caused me to fall on Words of Dissention and Noise and Tumult and Stirr: Yet I hope it is but an unnecessary Fear, that, the last Scene being Peace, the Discourse will prove any other than Comical.

To touch upon every jarring String in it, were too much to abuse abuse Your Grace's Patience, of which once already you have been so extraordinary liberal unto Me. All that may seem to lie open to Exception, I will comprize under Two Heads: within compass of which, all other petty and inferiour Matters will easily fall. The First, concerns my Carriage towards Antiquity; the Second, towards Authority: Against Both which, I may be supposed to trespass. For the First, I am thought to have been too Sharp in censuring Antiquity, beyond that good respect which is due unto it. In this point, my Error, if any be, sprang from this; that taking Actions to be the Fruit by which Men are to be judged, I judged of the Persons by their Actions, and not of Actions by the Persons from whom they proceeded. For, to judge of Actions, By Persons and Times, I have always taken it to be most unnatural. Hence it is, that having no good conceit (for I will speak the Truth,) of our Rule by which we celebrate the Feast of Easter; (First, because 'tis borrowed of Moses, without any Warrant for ought I know: Secondly, because it is of no use; for which way is the Service of God or Man any jot more advanced by making That Feast wander betwixt Day and Day, than by fixing it on one known Day? Thirdly, because it is obscure and intricate, few Scholars acquainting themselves therewith, and there being nothing more ridiculous than Difficiles Nugæ, Useless Intricacies and Obscurities:) I could not with Patience speak Gently of Those, who used so small and contemptible an occasion, to the great disturbance and rending of the Churches; and, in maintenance of a Toy and simple Ceremony which it is no way beneficial to preserve, to fall into That Error, than which themselves every where tell us there can scarcely Any be more dangerous.

WHEREAS in one Point, speaking of Church-Authority, I bluntly added, [which is None;) I must acknowledge it was uncautiously spoken; and, being taken in a generality, is false; tho' as it refers to the Occasion which there I fall upon, 'tis (as I think I may safely say) most true. For Church-Authority, that is, Authority residing in Ecclesiastical Persons, is either of Jurisdiction in Church-Causes, and Matter of Fact; or of Decision in Point of Church-Questions, and disputable Opinion.

As

As for the First; in Church-Causes or Matter of Fact, Ecclesiastical Persons in Cases of their Cognizance have the same Authority as any Others have, to whom Power of Jurisdiction is committed. Their Consistories, their Courts, their Determinations, stand upon as warrantable Evidence, as the Decisions of other Benches and Courts do. I count in Point of decision of Church-Questions, if I say of the Authority of the Church, that it was None; I know no Adversary that I have, the Church of Rome only excepted. For This cannot be True, except we make the Church Judge of Controversies; the contrary to which, we generally maintain against That Church. Now it plainly appears, that upon This Occasion I spake it: For, beginning to speak of Schism arising by reason of Ambiguous Opinion, I brought in nakedly those Words which gave Occasion of Offense; which if I had spoken with due Qualification, I had not erred at all. Again, whereas I did too plainly deliver my Self De Origine Domini, and denied it to be founded either in Nature or in Religion, I am very well content to put off the decision of this point till Elias comes. In the mean time, whether it be true or false, let it pass for my Mistake; for 'tis but a point of mere Speculation, which we fall upon when we study Aristotle's Politicks; and in common Life and Use, hath no place at all. For Authority is not wont to dispute; and it goes hardly with it, when it must defend it self by Argument in the Schools. Whether Dominion in Civilibus, or in Sacris be æquus &c. or comes in by Divine Right, it concerns Them to look to, who have Dominion committed to Them. To Others, whose Duty it is Obey, (and to my Self above all, who am best contented to live and die a Poor and Private Man,) it is a Speculation meerly useles. Our Saviour questions not Herod's or Augustus's Title; and confessed that Pilate had his Power from above; which yet we know came but by Delegation from Tiberius Cæsar. Let Titles of Honour and Dominion, go as the Providence of God will have; Yet quiet and peaceable Men will not fail of their Obedience. No more will I, of ought; so be that God and good Conscience command not the contrary. A higher Degree of Duty, I do not see how any Man can demand at my Hands. For whereas the Exceptions of good Conscience, sounds not well with many Men; because oftentimes under that Term, Pertinacy and Wilfulness is suspected to couch itself: In This Case, it concerns every Man sincerely to know the Truth of his own Heart, and so accordingly to determine of his ways, whatsoever the Judgment of his Superiors be, or whatsoever Event befall Him. For since in Case of Conscience, many times there is a necessity to fall either into the Hands of Men, or into the Hands of God; of these two, whether is the best, I leave every particular Man to judge. Only I will add thus much: It is a fearful thing to trifle with Conscience: For most assuredly, according unto it a Man shall stand or fall at the last.

ONE Thorn more there is, which I would, if I might, pull out of the Foot of Him, who shall tread upon that Paper. For, by reason of a Passage there, wherein I sharply tasked Episcopal Ambition, I have been suspected by some, into whose Hands That Schedule fell before ever it came to Your Grace's View, that in my Heart I did secretly lodge a Malignity against the Episcopal Order, and That, under pretence of Taxing the Antients, I secretly lashed at the present Times. What Obedience I owe unto Episcopal Jurisdiction, I have already plainly and sincerely opened unto your Grace; and my Trust is, you do believe me: So that in That Regard, I intend to say no more; And the very Consideration of the Things themselves, which there I speak of, will free me from all Suspicion of secret gliding at the Present. For I speak of Schisms arising either out of Plurality of Bishops in one Diocess, or Superiority of Bishops in sundry Diocesses: Both these are strangers to Ours, and proper to the Antient Times; the First arising from the unruliness of the People, in whose Hands in those Times the Nomination of Bishops was; the other, from somewhat (whether good or bad I know not) in the Princes Then Living, who left the Bishops to themselves, (among whom some there were no better than other Men,) and took no Keep of the Antient Canons of the Church, by which the Limits, Orders, and Preeminences of all Diocesses and Provinces were set. But Our Times have seen a prosperous Change: For the Nomination nation of Bishops (which was sometimes in the People;) is now most happily devolved into the Prince's Hand, together with the Care of the preservation of the Bounds of Bishops Sees, and Antient Titles of Precedency. So that now, since that happy Change, for well near one Hundred Years, we have had no Experience of any such Misorders; neither are we likely hereafter to fear any, so long as so Good, so Moderate, so Gracious a Royal Hand shall hold the Stern: Which God grant may be either in Him, or His, till Times be no more.
