
Bodleian Libraries

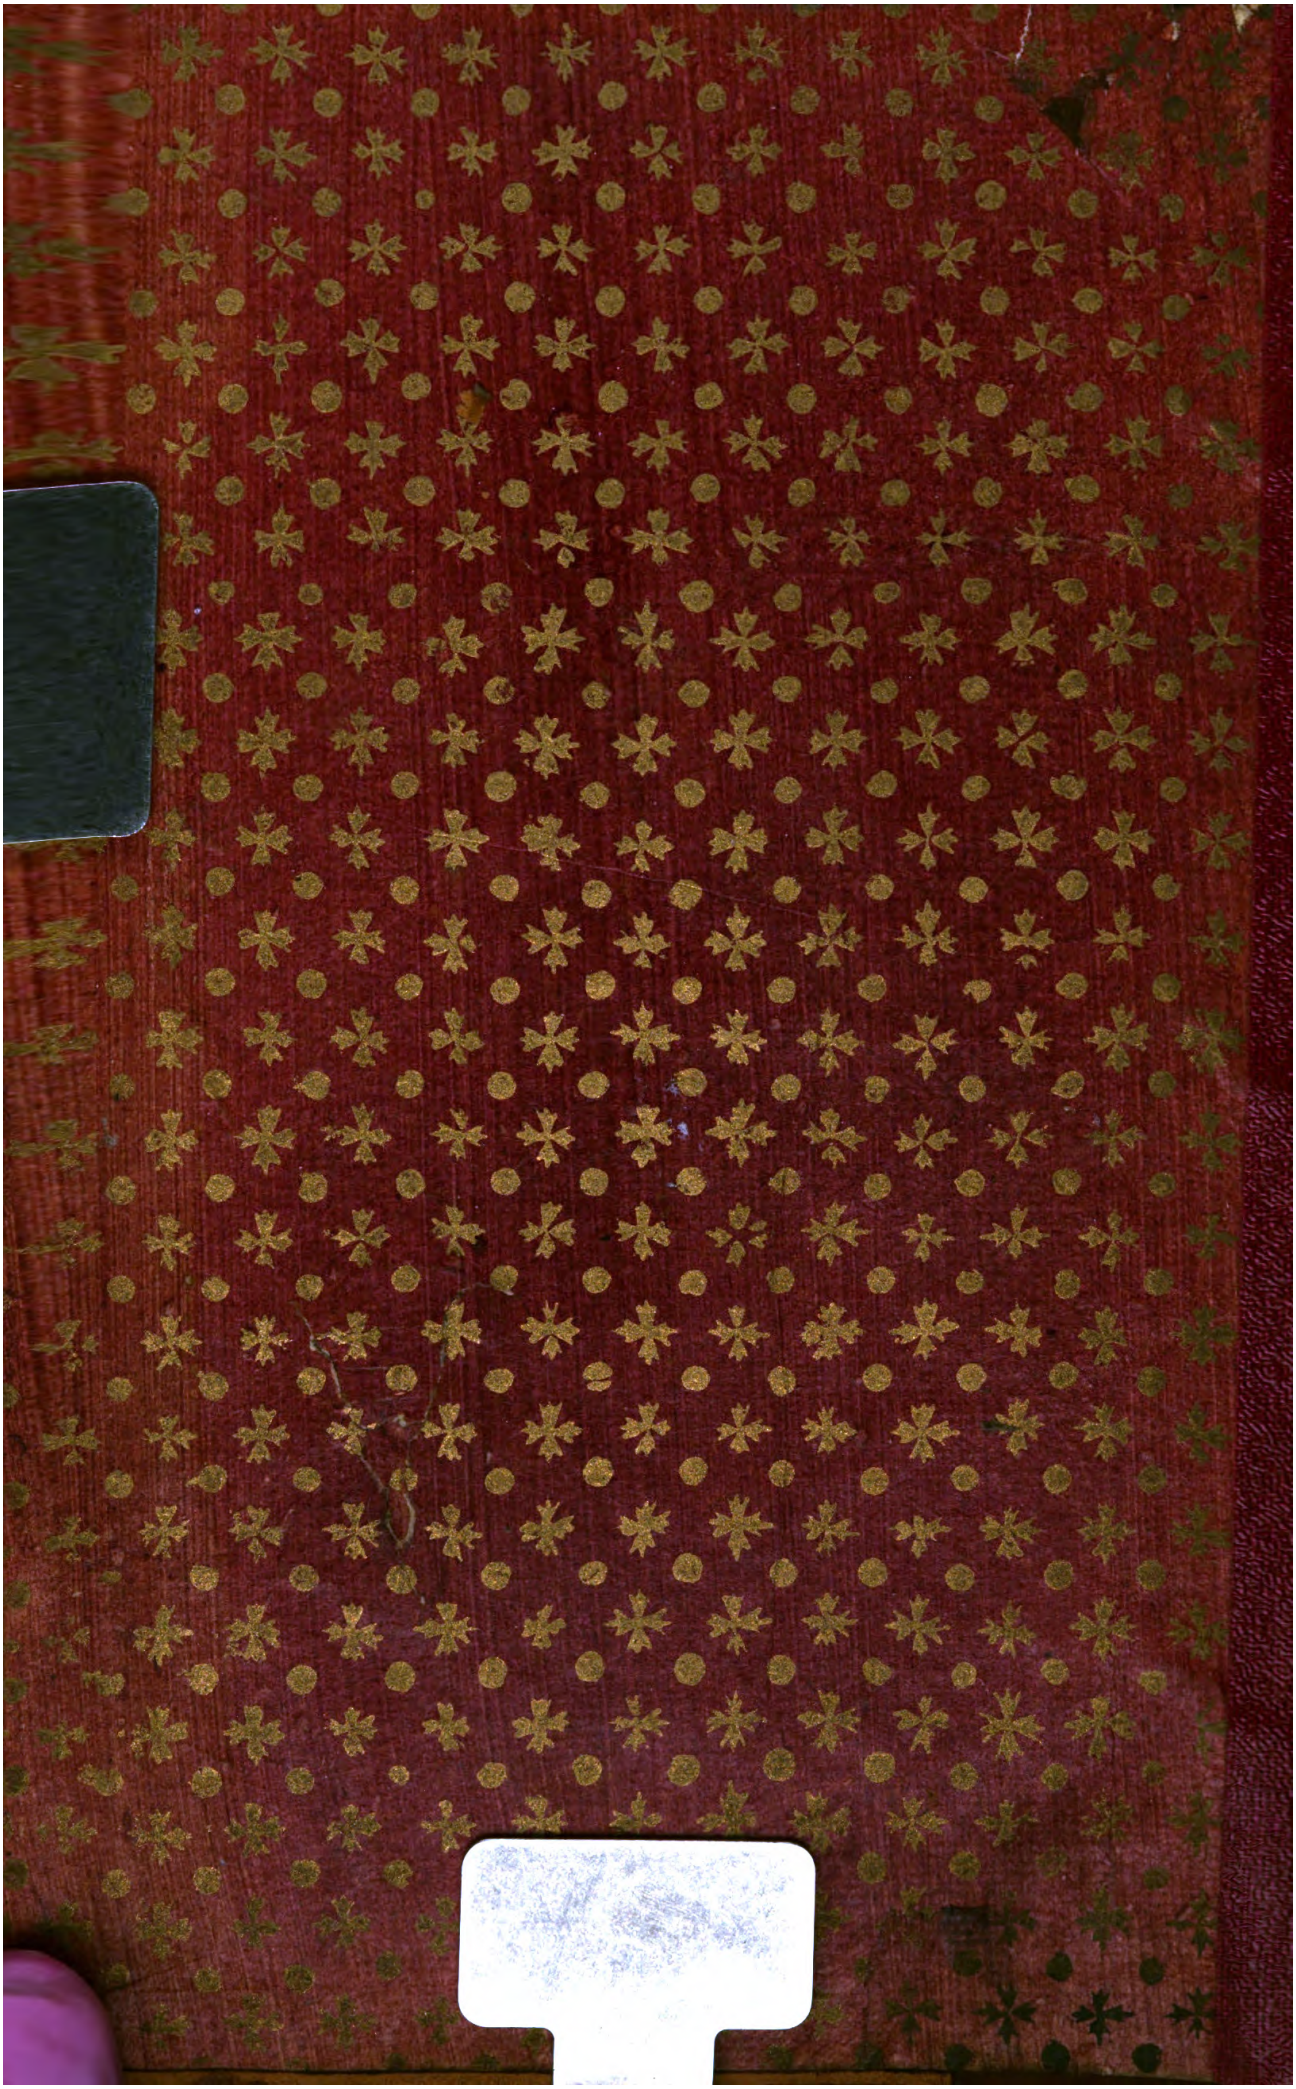
UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

This book is part of the collection held by the Bodleian Libraries and scanned by Google, Inc. for the Google Books Library Project.

For more information see:

http://www.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/dbooks

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 2.0 UK: England & Wales (CC BY-NC-SA 2.0) licence.



Hop 177.

R. Finch;
ex dono
Amici devinctissimi,
Jos. Bockett.
vid. Nov.
1811.

TAYLOR INSTITUTION.

BEQUEATHED

TO THE UNIVERSITY

BY

ROBERT FINCH, M. A.

OF BALLIOL COLLEGE.

Arch. 8° E. 1709

Ne beon ge afyhte þuh gefþinc þæf langfuman fapeldef. oððe þuh yfelfe manna ymbefpræce. S: Gribelin fculp.

AN English-Saxon Homily ON THE BIRTH-DAY OF St. GREGORY,

Anciently uſed in the Engliſh-Saxon Church.

Giving an Account of the Converſion of the ENGLISH FROM PAGANISM to CHRISTIANITY.

Tranſlated into Modern Engliſh, with NOTES, &c.

By ELIZ. ELSTOB.

LONDON:
Printed by W. Bowyer. MDCCIX.

LIBRARY OF THE TAYLOR INSTITUTION
UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD
21 NOV. 1932

S. Gribelin Sculp.

TO THE QUEEN.

MADAM,

I might ſeem too great a Preſumption to approach Your Royal Preſence in ſo unuſual a manner, to addreſs Your MAJESTY in a Language ſo outdated and antiquated, which few Men, none, I believe, of the other Sex have ventured to converſe with, ſince the time when it was the current Language; did not Your MAJESTY's moſt wiſe Judgment, and great Clemency, allow to it a favourable Audience, as the Language, in which Your Earlieſt Royal, and Pious Progenitors, both laid the Foundation of thoſe Laws, by which You ſo happily Govern, and in which They received that Orthodox Faith, of which You are the undoubted Defender. And it is humbly preſumed, that it will be

be no leſs agreable to Your MAJESTY, to conſider, That the Introduction of the Chriſtian Faith, into the Roman Empire, was Effected by the Ever Glorious Helena, and the Converſion of the Engliſh much promoted, by the Endeavours of the Firſt Engliſh Chriſtian Queen Berhta: than ſeaſonable, to remind Your MAJESTY, of her being congratulated on that Occaſion, by the ſame Holy Biſhop, whoſe Kindneſs to this Nation, is recommended to the Knowledge of Your People, in this ſmall Treatiſe, under the Patronage of Your Royal Favour. On which account account it is hoped, it may not be unpardonable to inſert, that Part of the Holy Father's Letter, which regards the preſent Subject, and which is to this Effect.

GREGORY Biſhop
To BERHTA
Queen of the Engliſh.

" We give thanks to Almighty " GOD, who hath graciouſly " vouchſafed, to reſerve the " Converſion of the Engliſh Peo- " ple for Your Reward. For as " by Helena, the never to be for- " gotten Mother of the moſt " Pious Conſtantine, Emperor " of the Romans, the Hearts of

" the

" the Romans were enflamed
" towards the Chriſtian Faith:
" ſo we truſt, that by Your " Glorious Endeavours, the " Mercy of GOD, will be mani-
" feſted upon the Engliſh Na" tion.

HERE is a noble Inſtance of two truly Royal Ladies, promoting the Advancement of the Chriſtian Faith. Another we have, highly memorable, in the Reſtitution of that Faith from many Corruptions, by Your Illuſtrious Predeceſſor Queen Elizabeth. Which altho' it is an Argument that Your MAJESTY has has had ſome great, and ſhining Examples of Female Virtue, and Piety, going before You: yet it is the Comfort of Your Subjects, that You have nothing wanting in Your moſt Illuſtrious Character, to equal all their Glories. Inaſmuch as, what they did for the Introduction of the Chriſtian Faith at firſt, and the Reformation of it when corrupted, we more than hope, with St. Gregory, will by Your MAJESTY be render'd compleat, in the future Security and laſting Eſtabliſhment of the Church of Chriſt, ſo early planted, and purely reformed, in theſe Your MAJESTY's Dominions, in and with Biſhops. May Almighty GOD, who has diſtinguiſh'd Your MAJESTY's Reign by ſuch innumerable and ſignal Bleſſings, and who continues yet daily to add freſh Laurels to Your Triumphs, finiſh all Your Succeſſes in the Fruits of ſo advantageous a Peace, as ſhall be moſt honourable, and durable: And may Your MAJESTY's Life and Reign be long, to enjoy thoſe Bleſſed Fruits: in the united Thanks and Praiſes of all Europe, the entire and unalienable Affections of Your Subjects, and the Accompliſhment of all thoſe Pious and Glorious Deſigns, which Your Royal Inclinations have ever purſued. As this muſt needs be the Prayer of all Your Good and truly Chriſtian Subjects; ſo is it by no one offer'd up more ardently and conſtantly to the Throne of Grace, than by,

MAJE-

May it pleaſe Your MAJESTY,

Your MAJESTY's moſt Loyal,

and Obedient Subject,

ELIZABETH ELSTOB.

THE PREFACE.

I Am very apprehenſive of the Expectation of ſome, and the Cenſure of others, who ſhall take this Treatiſe into their Hands: Thoſe whoſe good Nature has inclined them towards any favourable Expectation from it, I ſhould be very glad to find them, any way gratifyed with the Endeavours I have uſed to pleaſe them, In which I have employ'd much of my Deſires: And as the more candid ſort of Readers will, perhaps, be ſo generous as to think, I have alſo taken ſome Pains. Thoſe who are more addicted to Cenſure, will not be ſo eaſily ſatisfyed. For in dealing with this ſort of People, there are theſe great Obſtacles to be conquer'd. Ignorance on one Hand, or an affectation of Wit and Knowledge on the other, Both of which have their ſhare in condemning and deſpiſing all that does not immediately tend, as they imagine, to their own Honour or Advantage. Thoſe who ſet up for Cenſurers under the former of theſe Characters, are obliged to declare univerſally againſt all kinds of Learning, that Ignorance may ſeem not to be an inconſiderable thing. And yet I cannot help thinking all ſuch, not to deſerve to be conſider'd. Thoſe who pleaſe themſelves with an Opinion of their own extraordinary Wit or Learning, uſually think themſelves obliged to overlook all that they do not know themſelves, as uſeleſs, and impertinent. So that it is not a difficult Matter to foreſee, what kind of reception a Work of this Nature will meet with, from this kind of Perſons.

For firſt, I know it will be ſaid, What has a Woman to do with Learning? This I have known urged by ſome Men, with an Envy unbecoming that greatneſs of Soul, which is ſaid to dignify their Sex. For if Women may be ſaid to have Souls, and that their Souls are their better part, and that what is Beſt deſerves our greateſt Care for its Improvement; furthermore, if good Learning be one of the Soul's greateſt Improvements; we muſt retort the Queſtion. Where is the Fault in Womens ſeeking after Learning? why are they not to be valu'd for acquiring to themſelves the nobleſt Ornaments? what hurt can this be to themſelves? what Diſadvantage to others? But there are two things uſually oppoſed againſt Womens Learning. That it makes them impertinent, and neglect their houſhold Affairs.

Where

Where this happens it is a Fault. But it is not the Fault of Learning, which rather poliſhes and refines our Nature, and teaches us that Method and Regularity, which diſpoſes us to greater Readineſs and Dexterity in all kinds of Buſineſs. I do not obſerve it ſo frequently objected againſt Womens Diverſions, that They take them off from Houſhold Affairs. Why therefore ſhould thoſe few among us, who are Lovers of Learning, altho' no better account cou'd be given of it than its being a Diverſion, be deny'd the Benefit and Pleaſure of it, which is both ſo innocent and improving. But perhaps moſt of theſe Perſons mean no more than that it makes them neglect the Theatre, and long ſittings at Play, or tedious Dreſſings, and viſiting Days, and other Diverſions, which ſteal away more time than are ſpent at Study.

I ſhall not enter into any more of the Reaſons why [a] ſome Gentlemen are ſo eager to deny us this Privilege: I am more ſurpriz'd, and even aſham'd, to find any of the Ladies even more violent than they, in carrying on the ſame Charge. Who deſpairing to arrive at any eminent or laudable degree of Knowledge, ſeem totally to abandon themſelves to Ignorance, contenting themſelves to ſit down in Darkneſs, as if they either had not Reaſon, or it were not capable by being rightly cultivated, of bringing them

[a] The uſual Objections that are made by Gentlemen to Womens Learning, are fully anſwer'd in a Scholaſtick way, and in very elegant Latin, by that Glory of her Sex, Mrs. Anna Maria a Schurman, who hath alſo writ ſeveral Latin Epiſtles, to Andreas Rivetus on the ſame Subject. See her Opuſcula Hebræa, Græca, Latina, Gallica, Proſaica, & Metrica. Printed by Elzevir Lugd. Batav. M DC XLVIII.

them into the Light; but theſe Perſons have in themſelves an anſwer to all their Cavils againſt Learning, and their Puniſhment. viz. The Puniſhment of their Ignorance, for which they are to be pityed, tho' they are not ſenſible of it: and a being in love with their Ignorance, which juſtly renders them contemptible. I have often thought it very ſtrange Incogitancy in ſome Perſons, when with an air of Wit, as they imagin'd, they would declare openly they hated any Woman that knew more than themſelves. But ſo they may hate any one that's better dreſs'd than themſelves, or richer, or in a degree of Power or Authority ſuperior to them: and yet what the Conſequence of ſuch Hatred would be, if it were not fantaſtical, rather than real, might juſtly be feared; and I think the raſh Wit, and thoughtleſs Expreſſions of ſuch Perſons ought not to paſs for any thing elſe but Folly, with thoſe who have any real taſte of good Senſe, or Chriſtian Prudence.

But I ſhall not give my ſelf, or the Reader, any farther trouble with theſe Admirers of Ignorance, whether real, or pretended. I ſhall chuſe rather to converſe a little with thoſe who have ſome degrees of Learning, and know how to value it in themſelves: but are not ſo favourable to any degree or Portion of it when found in others, of which they are not poſſeſs'd themſelves. They admire a Play, a Romance, a Novel, perhaps entertain themſelves a little with Hiſtory, they read a Poem gracefully, and make Verſes prettily, they rally and repartee with abundance of Wit and readineſs; and with

theſe

theſe Embelliſhments imagine themſelves perfectly accompliſh'd. They ought not indeed to be diſturbed in this good Opinion of themſelves, and of ſuch Attainments. And this good Humour of Self-Love, which produces ſuch Improvement, might deſerve both Praiſe and Encouragement: were it innocently good natur'd to it ſelf, without being injurious to others. For my part, I could never think any part of Learning either uſeleſs, or contemptible, becauſe I knew not the Advantages of it; I have rather thought my ſelf obliged to reverence thoſe who are ſkilful in any Art or Profeſſion, and can gladly ſubſcribe to the Praiſe of any liberal Accompliſhment, be it in any Perſon, of any Sex; juſtly valuing thoſe which adorn even the Perſons above mention'd, when they confine them not to themſelves, and are not attended with Envy.

Plato, if we may lay any ſtreſs upon Heathen Authorities, makes it a mark of Ingenuity to deſpiſe no kind of Learning; [b] and one of the moſt elegant Apologies for Learning, that perhaps has ever been made, informs us, that the Arts have a mutual connexion and dependence between themſelves, mutually illuſtrate and aſſiſt each other; which Teſtimonies muſt not be refuſed by thoſe, who have any Eſteem for politer Learning, and I hope they may prepare a way for me to obviate thoſe Objections to which this Work may be thought liable.

And the next probably will be this. Admit a Woman may have Learning, is there no other kind of [b] Cicer. Orat. pro Archia Poeta.

Learning

Learning to employ her time? [c] What is this Saxon? what has ſhe to do with this barbarous antiquated Stuff? ſo uſeleſs, ſo altogether out of the way? But how came they to know that it is out of the way, and uſeleſs, who know nothing of it? and they ſeem to have forgot the Sentiments of their polite Maſters, who judg'd not any part of Learning to be out of the way. I fear, if things were rightly conſider'd, that the charge of Barbarity would rather fall upon thoſe who, while they fancy themſelves adorn'd with the Embelliſhments of foreign Learning, are ignorant, even to barbarity, of the Faith, Religion, the Laws and Cuſtoms, and Language of their Anceſtors. I aſſure you, theſe are Conſiderations which have afforded me no ſmall Encouragement in the Proſecution of theſe Studies.

But to leave theſe Cenſurers to pleaſe themſelves with their own Humours and Diſcourſe. For the Satisfaction of more candid Readers, I ſhall give ſome ſhort Acccount of the Motives that urged me to this Undertaking, and of the Performance it ſelf.

Having accidentally met with a Specimen of K. Alfred's Verſion of Oroſius into Saxon, deſign'd to be publiſh'd by a near Relation and Friend, I was very deſirous to underſtand it, and having gain'd the Alphabet, I found it ſo eaſy, and in it ſo much of the grounds of our preſent Language, and of a more particular Agreement with ſome Words which I had heard

[c] See Dr. Hickes's Apology for the Saxon Learning, both in his leſſer Grammar, and his larger Theſaurus, as alſo that learned Defence made for it by Mr. Liſle, in the Preface to his Saxon Monuments.

heard when very young in the North, as drew me in to be more inquiſitive after Books written in that Language. With this the kind Encourager of my Studies being very well pleaſed, recommended to me the Saxon Heptateuch, moſt accurately publiſh'd by Mr. Thwaites. The Matter of that Book being well known and familiar to me, made the reading of it very eaſy and agreeable: and led me on to the reading of ſeveral other Treatiſes, and to divert my ſelf in taking Tranſcripts from ſuch ancient Manuſcripts as I could meet with. Among theſe was one I made of the Athanaſian Creed, which the great Inſtaurator of Northern Literature was pleaſed to accept from me: and to think not unworthy of being publiſh'd with the Conſpectus, or account in Latin, which the learned Mr. Wotton has given us of his ample and learned Theſaurus Linguarum Vett. Septentrionalium. This great Patron of the Septentrional Studies, hath ever ſince perſevered to encourage my Proceeding in them, and to urge me: that by publiſhing ſomewhat in Saxon, I wou'd invite the Ladies to be acquainted with the Language of their Predeceſſors, and the Original of their Mother Tongue. Particularly he recommended to me the Publication of this Homily. And here I cannot but obſerve, how great an Argument Women have, for engaging in Learning, even Saxon Learning, from ſo great an Authority. Of how great importance he thinks the having a due Care for Female Education, may be underſtood by his ſo earneſtly recommending thoſe excellent Inſtructions for the Edu- cation of a Daughter, aſcribed to the Author of Telemachus. And it is no wonder that he, who is ſo well ſkill'd in Primitive Antiquity, ſhou'd in this likewiſe imitate the Practice of the Primitive Fathers, who were very zealous to encourage good Learning amongſt the Ladies: as may be ſeen by the Epiſtles of St. Jerom, St. Auguſtin, St. Chryſoſtom, and our St. Gregory, to the learned and virtuous Ladies of their times. A Catalogue of ſuch Epiſtles to excellent Women, by the Holy Fathers, was made and preſented to Mr. Aſtley, by Mr. Roger Aſcham, Tutor to the moſt Illuſtrious Queen Elizabeth, and born in the ſame Place that gave Birth to my moſt learned Friend: as if there were ſomething peculiar in the genius of that Place, not only for the Production of great and learned Men, but ſuch alſo as have been remarkable for encouraging Learning in our Sex. Mr. [a] Aſcham, in recommending this Catalogue, makes this Obſervation. That by his Enquiry into Matters of that kind, he perceived that Age to have been both moſt learned, and moſt happy: in which there were more Women, than there are now Men, celebrated for their Learning.

But, to come to the Homily upon St. Gregory. When I had read it over, and tranſcribed it, I

[a] Tandem, clariſſime Aſtlæe, Catalogum Epiſtolarum ad claras feminas ex Hieronymo, & Auguſtino tibi mitto. In quibus rebus inveſtigandis animadverti, felicíſſimum illud, & doctiſſimum ſeculum fuiſſe: in quo plures feminæ, quam nunc viri, literarum laude floruerunt. Rogeri Aſchami Epiſt. Fam. lib. ſecund. Epiſt. 37.

made

made no long Diſpute of it, whether or no I ſhou'd make it Engliſh. The Importance of the Hiſtory, and the happy Circumſtances of our Converſion, gave me no ſmall Pleaſure, in attending upon that Performance. This, I confeſs, I have not done with any great Elegance, according to the Genius of our preſent Idiom; having choſen rather to uſe ſuch Engliſh as wou'd be both intelligible, and beſt expreſs the Saxon; that, as near as poſſible, both the Saxon and the Engliſh might be diſcerned to be of the ſame Kindred and Affinity: and the Reader be more readily enabled, and encouraged to know the one by the other; which End I imagine would not be ſo well anſwer'd, by a Tranſlation more polite and elaborate. In following the courſe of the Homily, I added ſuch Notes as I thought wou'd be ſome way or other uſeful, or at leaſt diverting. I am ſenſible, in ſuch a Variety, there will be different Occaſion of Cenſure; and that things will either pleaſe or diſpleaſe, according to the different Humour and Reliſh of the ſeveral Readers.

I have fallen upon many things relating to the Charity, the Exemplary Life and Goodneſs of this holy Man, and the primitive State of the Engliſh Church: the Uſefulneſs of which, by Perſons of good Judgment, may perhaps be thought a juſt Apology for meddling with theſe Studies: ſo long as a Gratitude to their Memory, who firſt taught the Engliſh the Chriſtian Faith, is not expunged out of the number of real Virtues. Were I to inſiſt upon all that might be ſaid to the Honour of St. Gregory, it wou'd be neceſſary for me to recount all the Actions and Occurrences of his Life, which of themſelves would make a juſt Volume, and have been treated of by ſeveral Authors. Such as are Paulus, and Johannes Diaconi: and thoſe that have writ concerning him, either as a Biſhop of Rome, or as a learned Man. Of the former, are thoſe who have writ the Lives of the Popes; of the latter, are thoſe who illuſtrate the Hiſtory of Learning: eſpecially Church-Hiſtory, and the ſeveral Editors of his Works. Amongſt which the Benedictines of the Congregation of St. Maur have labour'd much, in giving us a large and full account of that great Man, in their Life of him; which was firſt written and publiſh'd by them in French, and afterwards in their beautiful Edition of this Father's Works in Latin. I ſhall only ſpeak of him in that Relation he bore to us, and wherewith the Homily intends principally to acquaint us. Of his being the Engliſh Apoſtle; and of which [b] Bede ſpeaketh in this manner. "Of whom it becomes us to diſcourſe more "largely in our Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory; inaſmuch "as by his Induſtry he converted ours, that is, "the Engliſh Nation, from the Power of Satan to "the Faith of Chriſt. Whom we may juſtly, and "ought to call him our Apoſtle; who, being ſet "over the Churches, firſt reduced our Nation, ſo "far enſlaved to Idols, into the form of a Church: "that what the Apoſtle ſays of himſelf, might

[b] Bede Eccl. Hiſt. Lib. II. Cap. i.

"well

" well be ſaid by Gregory of himſelf in regard to
" us; [c] If I be not an Apoſtle unto others, yet
" doubtleſs I am to you; for the Seal of my Apo-
" ſtleſhip are ye in the Lord. But the Zeal of this Holy Man, for the Converſion of this Nation, after he had ſeen the Engliſh Northern Boys at Rome, was ſo extraordinary, as were ſcarce to be believed, did not ſo great a Cloud of Hiſtorians bear witneſs to it. For beſides his Deſire of undertaking ſo long a Journey for our Converſion, and his Care, when prevented himſelf, of ſending ſo many, and ſo worthy Miſſioners, with ſuch powerful Recommendations to the ſeveral Princes, and Prelates whom he appointed them to viſit in their Expedition, for their Encouragement, as may be ſeen by the Epiſtles which have been for that reaſon added in the Appendix. [d] His affection was exceedingly remarkable in his buying up Engliſh Slaves,

[c] 1 Ep. Corinth ix. v. 2.

[d] See Gregory's Epiſtle to Candidus. Lib. VI. Epiſt. vii. Indict. xiv. wherein St. Gregory gives him plain direction for the purchaſing ſuch Boys. We would have you with the Mony which you ſhall receive, to provide Garments for the Poor, or purchaſe ſome Engliſh Youths, about ſeventeen or eighteen Years of Age, that being plac'd in Monaſteries they may ſerve God. And again, in the ſame Epiſtle, Or as we have ſaid before, ſome young Men, that they may profit in the Service of Almighty God. But becauſe they are Pagans, which are to be met with there, I wou'd have a Prieſt to be ſent with them, leſt any Sickneſs happen by the way; in which caſe, if he ſhall ſee any of them in Danger of Death, he may baptize them. So that the Story of the Northern Engliſh Boys, ought not perhaps to be made ſo great a Jeſt, as one of our famous Hiſtorians wou'd make of it, who ſpeaking of it, expreſſes himſelf thus, But let us return to that Fable from which we have digreſs'd. If Gregory intended to ſend Auguſtine to the Deeri, and Ella their King, and diſpoſing of them in Monaſteries, to be train'd up in the Chriſtian Faith for the future Service of their Country. A Zeal fit to be conſider'd and imitated by thoſe who are concern'd in the Plantations, who have doubtleſs a Power of turning many Souls to God, and of reſcuing them from that Sla-why choſe he rather when he arrived, to ſit down with King Ethelbert, and not go on to them. But an effeminate Man, and a Monk, being overcome by the Kindneſs of King Ethelbert in Kent, a fruitful Country, and courteous People, was detain'd from going farther into thoſe Northern Regions of the Deeri, liable to hard Froſts and Savage. But to ſee the Faithfulneſs and Conſiſtency of that Hiſtorian, this effeminate Monk is the ſame of whom Bede ſpeaking with his Followers, ſays, that they imitated the Lives of the Apoſtles, in Prayers, and Faſtings, and Watchings, &c. and is the very ſame, of whom this Writer tells us in his own Hiſtory a little after, that he uſed to go unſhod, and that by travelling barefoot, the Soles of his Feet were become callous. But Gregory had long deſign'd the Converſion of the Engliſh, tho' he met with ſeveral Impediments which would not let him do it, either ſo ſoon or in the manner he intended; and it ſeems to have too much lightneſs in it, to cavil at him for not directing his Miſſioner, immediately to Ella's Kingdom, where they were not ſure of a kind Reception. As he was a wiſe and a good Man, ſo he was for doing things by ſuch probable means, and at ſuch Seaſons, as were moſt likely to favour his Succeſs. The time that he gave his Order to Candidus for purchaſing the young Men, was the ſixth Year of his Pontificate. Theſe, when of riper Years and of ſufficient Qualification, it is not amiſs to believe, were intended to be his Miſſioners, and deſign'd for the Northern Dominions of Ella. But conſidering his own Indiſpoſitions, and the Apprehenſions he had from thence that he ſhould not live long, he was willing to loſe no time in ſo good a Work: but rather cloſe with the firſt and moſt convenient Opportunity; and hearing that the Engliſh in Kent, by the Care of Queen Berhta, and Biſhop Luidhard, her Confeſſor, were diſpoſed to receive the Chriſtian Faith. He, in the latter end of the ſame Year, directed Auguſtine thither, who the next Year arrived in Kent. The Holy Father not doubting, as we may imagine, that if the Goſpel was received there, it would ſoon reach and over-ſpread the North, as we find in a few Years it did.

why

very,

very, under which they are held by the Prince of Darkneſs; to which I wiſh the remembrance of our own Converſion to Chriſtianity, may prove an early incitement; the adding but of twenty Subjects to the Kingdom of Chriſt, being a greater Acquiſition than the Poſſeſſion of the moſt populous Nations by the Continuation of Pagan Ignorance, and Idolatry.

It is one of the great Bleſſings of our Converſion, and one of the great Comforts that attended it, that it was effected at a time, and by ſuch Perſons, as made it with reſpect to Faith, and Diſcipline, both Orthodox, and Regular. It is true, we received the Chriſtian Faith from the Roman Church, but when that Church was a ſound and uncorrupt Branch of the Catholick Church: when it taught no other Doctrine, and impos'd no other Articles of Faith, than had been deliver'd down from the firſt Ages by the Catholick Church. That Faith and Diſcipline which was firſt ſent hither by St. Gregory, which was firſt preached to the Engliſh Saxons by St. Auguſtine; the ſame continued in its Primitive Purity for ſome Ages, the ſame, after a long Night of Ignorance and Superſtition, was revived and reſtored by the Reformation.

And is it not one of the greateſt Advantages that we can boaſt of, that we of the Reformed Church of England, as to Faith, and Worſhip, and Diſcipline, and all that can make a rightly conſtituted Church, are the ſame with the Primitive Engliſh Saxon Church? that the Primitive Church of England was, as to Subſtance, the ſame with the Pri- mitive Church of Chriſt? This is the Glory of the Reformation. This is ſome, no ſmall Satisfaction that we reap, from Saxon Learning: that we ſee the Agreement of the reformed, and the ancient Saxon Church. That it is no new Church, but the ſame it was before the Roman Church was corrupted, before the Roman Church as now corrupted, notwithſtanding her boaſts of Infallibility, of Antiquity, and Univerſallity was known, or had a Being in the World.

mitive

As for the Polity and Diſcipline of the Engliſh Saxon Church, it was ſettled in Epiſcopacy; having laſted, by the Bleſſing of God, without Interruption to the Reformation; and thence, as our publick Regiſters prove, was continued in a Succeſſion of the ſame Venerable Hierarchy. There needs no other Argument for the Proof of this, than what St. Irenæus uſes to the Hereticks of his time. We can reckon up in all our Churches the Succeſſion of Biſhops, that have follow'd one another in an uninterrupted Series from the Apoſtles to theſe times. Tho' our Hiſtories will make this good, with relation to all the Epiſcopal Sees: yet I ſhall inſtance only, in the Metropolitical See. We can reckon up our Archbiſhops of Canterbury from this preſent time to St. Auguſtine, who was ſent by St. Gregory, who derived his Succeſſion from St. Peter: and who, having ſent Chriſtianity hither in the Purity of Faith and Doctrine, we have this Aſſurance that our Church is Apoſtolical, being built upon the Foundation of the Apoſtles, &c. and therefore

therefore can truly confeſs that Article of the Nicene Faith, without contradicting our ſelves, I believe one Catholick and Apoſtolick Church.

I cannot ſee for what reaſon ſome Perſons ſhou'd look with ſo ill an Eye upon the Converſion of the Engliſh Saxons by St. Auguſtine, and undervalue the great Kindneſs of St. Gregory to this Nation, in ſetting forward and encouraging his Miſſion: That all the Hiſtories which relate that Affair, ſhou'd be miſrepreſented, and perverted, to make room for Mens own Fancies, and Conjectures, of ſo much later date; but a violent Prejudice againſt every thing that bore any Relation to the Name of Rome, or want of a more perfect Acquaintance with the Affairs of that Time. This has occaſion'd ſome to ſeek any Refuge, rather than to own that our Converſion was any way deriv'd to us from St. Peter; as if ſuch a Relation to that firſt Biſhop of Rome, and Apoſtle, muſt neceſſarily involve us in all the Corruptions which crept into that Church, and, by degrees, render'd it moſt deform'd, and odious, with all the Novelties and Abſurdities of modern Popery. It is ſtrange to obſerve what Shifts and Evaſions are uſed to leſſen the Eſteem of St. Auguſtine's Negotiation, and to prove that Chriſtianity was not eſtabliſh'd here by St. Gregory's Care. 'Tis true, Chriſtianity had a long time before been preach'd and receiv'd in the Iſland; but in the time, when the Britains, and the Romans, had the Poſſeſſion of it. At the time of Gregory's Miſſion, the Saxons were Maſters of the greateſt Part of it, of that Part eſpecially, which has ſince enjoy'd the Name of England. [a] And thoſe Saxons, or Engliſh, were all of them Pagans, and Worſhippers of Idols; and we do not find that thoſe Chriſtians, who were yet remaining among the Britains, offer'd any thing towards acquainting them with the Chriſtian Faith. And the Hiſtories of thoſe Times give ſo diſmal an Account, of the corrupt Eſtate of the Britiſh Church, as does not much encourage us to be more fond of deriving our Pedigre from it, than from that of Rome, which then was Orthodox. We need no other Teſtimony than that of Gildas, their own Country Man, who uſes very ſevere Exclamations againſt them. And when ſome of the Saxons, moved in all probability by the Example of that little Church which was in the Chriſtian Queen Berhta's Family, diſcover'd an Inclination to receive the Faith; of which Gregory was made ſenſible. We find, by him, that the Complaint which was made of the great Obſtacle to their Converſion, was, that the Biſhops and Clergy in the Neighbourhood, were negligent in yielding their Aſſiſtance, to that pious Work. In which Accuſation, the Britains may very reaſonably be as much included, as their other Neighbours, the Gallican and German Biſhops, and Clergy, who were

[a] This Primate Uſher aſſures us of, from Sigebertus Gemblacenſis, in his Chronicle to the Year 599; from Alanus de Inſulis; from Martinus Polonus, in his Chron. from Alphonſus Garſias; likewiſe from Glaſton Chronogaph. Radulphus Niger in Chron. Galfrid. Monemuth. Rog. Wendov. Matth. Florileg. &c. Vide Uſſer. de Brit. Eccl. Primord. p. 142, 143. & p. 576. Edit. Dublin.

were more remote, and beyond the Sea. And it is plain, as to the Britains, even from their Behaviour at that moſt celebrated Pambritannick Council at Auguſtin's Ac, in which one of Auguſtine's Demands was, That they wou'd aſſiſt him in preaching to the Engliſh. They were not found ſo compliant as might well have been expected, but were more obſtinate, in maintaining their old Cuſtoms, than ſtudious, to promote the common Cauſe of Chriſtianity. For the ſake of which, all other Reſpects and Diſputes, about Complement and Precedency, might out of Charity have been waved. So that I wonder, that the Maligners of St. Auguſtine ſhould charge him with Haughtyneſs, when, according to their own whole Account of the Tranſaction, they make St. Auguſtine to comply with the Britains, almoſt in every thing. And the Britains, to oppoſe him with ſuch an obſtinate Reſolution, as not to joyn with him in one Particular; and that for fear, as they gave out, that if they ſubmitted in the leaſt, he would exerciſe the greateſt Tyranny over them. A popular Argument, which is never wanting to thoſe for their Excuſe, who wou'd avoid concurring with thoſe Propoſals, which they are unwilling, and many times with Reaſon little enough, to approve. How far St. Auguſtine might diſcover any thing of an aſſuming Diſpoſition, ſeems to depend as much upon Conjecture, as ſome other Circumſtances of the Hiſtory, which are urged to his Diſadvantage; certain it is, that it agrees not at all, with the general Character which was given of him, and of his Followers, and by which they ſo much prevailed upon the Saxon People, and King Ethelberht himſelf, as may be ſeen not only from this Homily, but from Bede; where we are told that Auguſtin imitated the Lives of the Apoſtles, with frequent Prayers, Watchings, and Faſtings; ſerving God, and preaching the Word of Life with all Diligence: deſpiſing all earthly things, as unprofitable; that he and his Companions, for the Love of the Truth which they preached, were ready to ſuffer Perſecution, and Death it ſelf, if it were neceſſary. That hereupon many believed, and were baptized, admiring the Simplicity of their innocent Courſe of Life, and the Sweetneſs of their heavenly Doctrine. That King Ethelberht was ſo much pleaſed and delighted with it: as that he alſo received Baptiſm, and reverenc'd theſe Chriſtians, as Men of a heavenly Converſation.

Here is nothing like that Character of Arrogance, which ſome would fix upon St. Auguſtine; and altho' St. Gregory, in a Letter to him, like a wiſe Father, and a kind Friend, cautions him againſt all Preſumption, and Vanity, which the Devil might endeavour to inſinuate into a Perſon, who had done ſuch notable things, as the Converſion of a whole Nation, and ſhewing of Miracles: yet to ſhew you what Eſteem he had of the Meekneſs of his Converſation, in the very cloſe of the ſame Epiſtle, he acquits himſelf from having any diſtruſt of his Conduct, and of the Hopefulneſs of his Condition. "This I ſay, becauſe I deſire to pro-

"ſtrate

" ſtrate the Minds of my Auditors in Humility:
" But your Humility hath wherein to place its " Confidence. For I, who am a Sinner, do enter- " tain moſt certain Hope, that by the Grace of our " Almighty Creator and Redeemer, our God and
" Lord Jeſus Chriſt, your Sins are forgiven you;
" and for this Cauſe are you choſen, that by you
" others may be abſolved. Nor ought you to be " troubled at any thing hereafter, who have cau-
" ſed Joy in Heaven, by the Converſion of many.
Nor is it likely, that St. Auguſtine, who, ſent to be inſtructed in all things of Importance, by St. Gregory, ſhou'd ſo far neglect the Rules, and Advices he had received from him, as to demand or impoſe any thing upon the Britains, which was not neceſſary to promote Peace, and Chriſtian Unity. I will here inſert both the Queſtion, and the Anſwer.

St. Auguſtine's Queſtion. " Since there is one
" Faith, but different Uſages, in ſeveral Chur- " ches, and there is one Form of Divine Service,
" for the celebration of the Euchariſt, obſerved
" in the holy Roman Church, and another in the " Churches of France; What, in this Caſe, is to " be done?

St. Gregory's Anſwer. " Your Brotherhood
" knows the Uſage of the Roman Church, in which
" you remember your ſelf to have been educated.
" But I am of Opinion, that whether in the Ro" man Church, or in thoſe of France, or in any o- " ther Church, you ſhall have diſcover'd any thing
" that may be more pleaſing to Almighty God, you

" wou'd

" would carefully make choice of it; and infuſe
" into the Church of the Engliſh, that as yet is
" new in the Faith, by a particular Appointment,
" whatſoever out of many Churches you have been " able to collect. For things are not to be valued
" for the Places from whence they come; but " we are to have an Affection for Places, upon
" the Account of Good Things. Wherefore, out
" of the ſeveral Churches, whatſoever things are
" pious, whatſoever things are religious, whatſoe-
" ver things are juſt, theſe make choice of; and
" theſe being collected, and as it were, bound up
" together, fix in the Minds of the Engliſh, that " they may grow into Practice.

What Advice cou'd be more candid, and mode-rate, than this of St. Gregory? or more prudent and Apoſtolical? Nor are there any certain Reaſons to believe, that St. Auguſtine's Behaviour did not agree with theſe Directions. Here is no Uſurpa-tion of the Church of Rome, upon the Liberties of the Engliſh Church, tho' newly converted, and an Infant of her own bringing forth; to the Tuition whereof, on that account, ſhe might ſeem to have had ſome Right. No Impoſition of burthenſome Rites and Ceremonies, but the People left wholly at Liberty, to be govern'd by their own Biſhop; and their Biſhop to model and govern his Church, not by the Platform of the Church of Rome: but by ſuch Rules as he ſhould find moſt agreable to the Place and People he was ſet over, out of whatſoe-ver Churches they were taken. And this ought to have the greater Authority, that the moſt learned Author of the Antiquities of the Britiſh Churches ſo plainly allows it, tho' he aſſigns a politick Reaſon for it. His Words are, " That the Pope did not " oblige him (Auguſtine) to follow the Example " of the Roman Church; chiefly, I ſuppoſe, becauſe " the Queen being a Chriſtian before, and uſing " the Gallican Liturgy, in the publick Service; " and her Biſhop being of the Gallican Church, it " wou'd have given great Offence to them, to have " had it taken away; as likewiſe, to all the Britiſh Churches which had been accuſtom'd to it. So that it is allowed, by this learned Prelate, that Gregory had ſome Concern for a good Correſpondence with the Britains, and was willing that they ſhou'd have no Offence given them, if they wou'd have taken none. And we are not encouraged to think he had any Intentions to flatter Gregory, and his Miſſioners, much leſs to diſparage the Britiſh Biſhops. Orig. Britan. c. iv. p. 217.

have

Thoſe, who wou'd maintain an Opinion contrary to this Aſſertion, inſiſt upon thoſe Demands of St. Auguſtine, which he made to the Britiſh Biſhops, and Clergy, as drawing them into a Submiſſion to the Church of Rome. But from what has been ſaid already, it may rather be ſuppoſed with better Reaſon, and Charity: that thoſe Propoſals were intended for greater Uniformity, and to promote Catholick Communion. The three Demands were theſe, 1. That Eaſter ſhould be obſerved at its proper Seaſon. 2. That they ſhou'd celebrate brate Baptiſm, by which we are born again to God; according to the Cuſtom of the Holy, and Apoſtolical Roman Church. And, 3. That they ſhould join with them, in preaching to the Engliſh. St. Auguſtine told them, that if they wou'd concur with him in theſe Particulars, tho' they differ'd from them in many other things, they wou'd eaſily bear with all the reſt. But the Britains wou'd agree with him in no one Point, nor pay him any Reſpect, as an Archbiſhop. So that it is plain, on which ſide the Obſtinacy lay. Nay, it is very probable, that St. Auguſtine wou'd have comply'd with them yet farther, ſo far as it was ſafe, and have waved all his Pretenſions, if he then made any, to a Superiority over them, wou'd they have come to a cool Debate; but they flew off, and wou'd hearken to no Terms. And it ought not to be forgotten, that the Britiſh Biſhops, from elder Times, had not been very famous for Conformity, and Agreement amongſt themſelves. So that it is no wonder if they were not ſo complaiſant, as to fall readily into an Agreement with St. Auguſtine. [b] And perhaps it is no Abſurdity at all, to mention this Account of the high Stomach of the Britiſh Biſhops; ſince the great Biſhop Stillingfleet acquaints us with it, in the Conteſt that happen'd about the Metropolitan Juriſdiction, between the Biſhops of Landaff and St. Davids, when he tells us, that

[b] The Antiquities of the Britiſh Churches, chap. v. pag. 361. by Bp. Stillingfleet.

from

from the time of Dubricius, the See was transfer'd firſt to Landaff, and then to St. Davids. But this latter Tranſlation was not agreed unto, by all the Britiſh Biſhops. And it appears, by the foregoing Diſcourſe, That the Biſhops of Landaff did, at that time, when Oudoceus lived, challenge the Metrolitical Power of Caerleon to themſelves, and therefore wou'd not be conſecrated by the Biſhop of St. Davids. If theſe Britiſh Biſhops cou'd ſwagger thus at one of their own Patriarchs, or Metropolitans, St. Auguſtine had no reaſon to be much ſurprized, had he been acquainted with the Britiſh Hiſtory, if he met with ſome of the ſame rough treatment from their Succeſſors; himſelf being ſo great a Friend of their Enemies, the Saxons, and a Foreigner.

But to examine more particularly the Three Demands of St. Auguſtine. As to the Firſt, The Controverſy about Eaſter had, for a long time, kept a Diviſion in the Eaſtern and Weſtern Churches; it was but Prudence, and Charity in him, to endeavour to make up this Breach, by bringing them into a joint Communion, in the Places wherever he was like to be concern'd. Secondly, The Britains had been tinctured with the Pelagian Hereſy, and might poſſibly have ſome unſound Notions about Baptiſm; and it was but reaſonable that they ſhould be well ſatisfyed with their Faith, in a Point ſo neceſſary and eſſential, whom they deſigned to receive into their Communion. So that if he deſir'd a Conformity with the Church of Rome, in the Rite of Bap- tiſm, it was not to ſubject them to that Church; but becauſe their Adminiſtration of Baptiſm was beſt known to him, and to be moſt ſafe, and what was allow'd of by all the Orthodox. Thirdly, The Demand of aſſiſting them in preaching to the Saxons, in St. Auguſtine was highly charitable, and commendable; the refuſal of it, in the Britains, inexcuſable. This poſſibly was the true cauſe of their Oppoſition to St. Auguſtine; their inveterate Quarrels and Hatred to the Saxons, proceeded ſo far, as to make them envy them Chriſtianity. They wou'd not preach the Goſpel to them, and, as they reſolved not to do it themſelves, ſo they hated Auguſtine for doing of it.

This makes it the more to be admir'd, that ſome of our Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtorians ſhou'd ſpend ſo much Pains, to take the Honour of our Converſion from the Romans, and give it to the Britains; and that ſo much ſtreſs ſhould be laid upon the Relation of Munſter, a foreign Author, and not much acquainted with our Affairs; of one [a] Offa, they ſhou'd have ſaid Offo, a Saxon of Royal Blood, who was turned Chriſtian, and endeavoured the Converſion of ſome of the Germans, in the Year 603. It is ſaid he was converted at the Inſtructions of ſome pious Britains. But Munſter ſays not a Word of the Matter. Sir Henry Spelman's Note upon that Hiſtory, is much more probable and ingenuous; he ſays, this Offo ſeems to have been one of the Saxon Converts, to whom St. Auguſtine had preached the Goſpel ſix Years before, having enter'd Britain in the Year 597. Nor is there any thing in the Epiſtles of St. Gregory to Theoderic and Theodebert, and to Brunichilda, to favour this good Opinion of the Britains, much leſs to confirm it. St. Gregory declared, that one Occaſion of his ſending his Miſſioners, at that time, (for he had intended it before) was becauſe he underſtood that the Engliſh had an Inclination to become Chriſtian; but the Clergy, in the Neighbourhood, neglected their Converſion.

[a] Antiq. Britann. p. 48. Edit. Han. Franc. Godwin. De Converſ. Britan. ad Chriſt. Relig. p. 40.

xon

This Accuſation, as has been before obſerved, may as well affect the Britiſh as the Gallican Clergy. It is enquired how the Saxons ſhould come by their good Diſpoſition and Inclination to Chriſtianity, but from the Information they had from the Britains, and their Example. To which it may be anſwer'd, and I hope with ſome Probability, that they might be encouraged in this Deſire, by the Example and good Offices of Queen Berhta, who had afterwards ſo great an Influence in the Converſion of the King himſelf: And this is what ſeems to be acknowledged, even by Gregory himſelf, in his Epiſtle to that Queen. Be pleas'd to take one Sentence of it; We return thanks to Almighty God, who hath graciouſly vouchſafed to reſerve the Converſion of the Engliſh People for your Reward. And, to the Enquiry above mention'd, another may not improperly be oppoſed. If the Britains were ſo forward in the Converſion of the Saxons, what reaſon was there for Gregory's ſo ſeverely complaining of the Neighbourhood? What need was there for his ſending Miſſioners on ſo long and laborious an Expedition, and engaging the Intereſt of ſo many Princes, and Prelates in it, if the Britains were ſo zealous in the Matter, and had been ſo ready with their Aſſiſtance? But enough of their Zeal and Kindneſs has been ſeen before.

But the Zealots, againſt St. Auguſtine, carry the Matter ſo far, that they ſay he did not preach the Goſpel at all: that the deſign of his coming was only to eſtabliſh the Pope's Supremacy, with ſuperſtitious and unneceſſary Ceremonies. Than which, nothing can be more unfairly repreſented. Since the Hiſtory makes mention of him, as preaching to the Saxons, and making Converts by his preaching; that he brought Preſbyters out of the Neighbourhood, who were able to converſe with the Natives, to be his Interpreters, and explain his preaching to them; that his preaching was not of Ceremonies, and ſuperſtitious Matters, but taught them the Belief of Jeſus Chriſt. This is evident from Bede, and all the Hiſtorians. Nor was the Papal Supremacy, and Uſurpation, as yet eſtabliſh'd, nor ſo much as aimed at. But the Oppoſers of St. Auguſtine, being not content with theſe Reproaches, wou'd make him the Author and Abettor of the greateſt Cruelty, and Bloodſhed. And there ſeems to be as little ground for charging him with the Slaughter of the Monks of Bangor, as with any other of the Articles which are brought againſt him.

This

This is apparent enough from[b] Bede, who ſays, that that Slaughter did not happen till after the Death of St. Auguſtine; whoſe Words are theſe, " And ſo was fulfilled the Prophecy of the holy Bi- " ſhop Auguſtine, altho' himſelf was taken up to " Heaven long before, that the perfidious Britains " ſhou'd undergo the Vengeance of temporal Deſtru- " ction, who had deſpiſed the Councel that was of- " fer'd them for their eternal Safety. The Words of the Clauſe, that expreſs his being dead before, are ſaid to be interpolated: which Opinion is thought to be confirm'd by their not appearing in the Saxon Verſion of K. Alfred. Yet however, Mr. Whelock confeſſes he found them in all the moſt ancient Manuſcripts he had conſulted of the Original. But the Saxon has omitted it, becauſe in the following Chapter, he is ſuppoſed to be yet alive, and to ordain two Biſhops, Mellitus and Juſtus. But whether that Clauſe be genuine or no, Bede ſpeaks of the Event, as propheſyed by St. Auguſtine; and 'tis probable, had he been of that bloody, and aſſuming Character his Enemies wou'd ſuppoſe him to have been of: upon his ſurvival of the Slaughter, he would have been apt to boaſt and triumph in having liv'd to ſee his own Prophecy fulfill'd; but of this Bede is ſilent, and ſo muſt all others. But I am inform'd by the Reverend and Learned Dr. Smith, Prebendary of Durham, who is preparing a moſt exact Edition of Bede, and has examin'd a very great number of Manuſcripts; that in all the Ma-

[b] Lib. II. cap. ii. p. 114.

nuſcripts,

nuſcripts, that Sentence ſtands entire: not excepting that moſt ancient one, belonging to the Right Reverend the Lord Biſhop of Ely; which from many probable Circumſtances, as well as from the manner of writing, Mr. Wanley judges to have been written about two Years after Bede's Death. Beſides, by an exact and accurate Examination of the Chronology, Mr. Wharton ſeems to have decided this Matter; making it appear from William [c] Thorn, and other Authorities, that Auguſtine and Gregory

[c] The Author of the Antiquitates Britannicæ could not diſſemble the Authority of Thomas Spott, who was elder than Thorn; and of other Monks, who affirm, that Auguſtine did not live till Six hundred and eleven, but died a long time before. And, he ſays, they aſſerted this to take off the Infamy and ſuſpicion of the Welſh Maſſacre: and his Conjecture that they did ſo, is enough to deſtroy their Authority. But why ſhou'd not they, who were Monks, of St. Auguſtine's, and lived long before his time, underſtand the Hiſtory of their Founder? and why muſt every Man's Fancy, without other Proof, cancel the Authority of Hiſtories not diſallow'd in other Points. Leland, as I have obſerved in the Appendix, complains of the Loſs of Spott's Book, and charges the ſtifling of it upon poor Thorn. But if that Book be really loſt, there is much more reaſon to ſuſpect that it was ſuppreſt ſome time after, in an Age when, we ſee, ſuch Authorities cou'd not be born. And the declaring ſuch a truth, as that Auguſtine was not at the Welſh Maſſacre, was enough to ruin the Reputation of a Writer. But to demoliſh the Credit of one poor Hiſtorian, was a ſmall Matter with thoſe who ſpared not to plunder all the Libraries of the whole Kingdom. And it may be ſome farther defence of Thorn, what has been urged on a like Pretence of ſtifling Authors, on the behalf of Polydore Virgil, by the late Bp. of Worceſter, Orig. Sacr. p. 254. "Did he deſtroy them after he had uſed them? But this were "Madneſs, to quote their Authority, and deſtroy the Authors; for theſe "were his Vouchers, which ought moſt carefully to have been preſer-"ved. And this Opinion, I am apt to believe Thorn was of himſelf, for he owns himſelf to have taken the greateſt part of his Hiſtory from Spott, and appeals to him as his Voucher. And here I cannot but take notice, died the ſame Year, which was in the Year Six hundred and four: Whereas the Slaughter of the Monks of Bangor, was not till the Year [d] Six hundred and ſeven; ſo that Mr. Wharton, with a juſt Concern, concludes the Matter thus, " They [e] trifle " away their time, who leave nothing unattempted " to prove that Auguſtine ſurvived the Slaughter " of the Monks of Bangor. I am inclined to have " more favourable thoughts of the Apoſtle of our " Nation, nor will the Chronology admit of other " thoughts. The great Spelman ſpeaks of this with much the like concern. For mentioning ſome, who very warmly aſſerted that Auguſtine was preſent with Ethelbert and Edilfrid, tho' not at the Slaughter of the Monks of Bangor, yet at the ſame time it was committed. He adds, " How truly " they affirm this, let them take heed; That Ex- " cellent Man ſhall not fall by my Suffrage. And Mr. [f] Collier finiſhes his juſt Character of him in theſe Words. " He was a very graceful Perſon, " lived ſuitably to the Buſineſs of a Miſſionary, and notice, that Bp. Goodwin, tho' I cannot tell from what Copy of him, cites out of Thomas Spott this Diſtick, which he ſays was inſcribed upon the Tomb of St. Auguſtine.

Inclitus Anglorum præſul pius & decus altum,
Hic Auguſtinus requieſcit corpore ſanctus.
De Converſione Britanniæ ad Chriſt. Relig. pag. 53.

[d] Chron. Sax. p. 25.
[e] Vid. Not. ad Canon. Lichfeild. Angl. Sacr. Par. I. pag. 89, 90, 91.
[f] Collier's Eccl. Hiſt. Book II. pag. 78.

" practiſed

" practiſed great Auſterities: And if he fell into
" any Inequalities of Temper; if he was two warm
" in his Expoſtulations, or ſtrain'd his Privilege too
" far upon the Britains, it ought to be charged
" upon the ſcore of humane Infirmities, and co-
" ver'd with his greater Merit. This is certain,
" he ingaged in a glorious Undertaking, broke
" through Danger and Diſcouragement, and was
" bleſs'd with wonderful Succeſs: He converted
" the Kingdom of Kent by the Strength of his own
" Conduct and Miracles; and that of the Eaſt
" Saxons by his Agent and Coadjutor Mellitus.
" The ſpreading of Chriſtianity thus far among the
" Saxons was a great Step towards the Converſion
" of the reſt. Let his Memory therefore be men-
" tion'd with Honour, and let us praiſe God Al-
" mighty, for making him ſo powerful an Inſtru-
" ment in the Happineſs of this Iſland.

The Britiſh Manuſcript, were it of that Authority which is pretended, and of which Sir Henry Spelman, who beſt knew the Value of it, ſpeaks with greater Modeſty than thoſe who have ſucceeded him, and who are for catching hold of any Twig, one wou'd think ſhou'd ſignifie little: and much leſs the Authority of Nicholas Trivett, who writ in Norman French, and conſequently is to be reputed a modern Author, ought to be rely'd upon, againſt the common current of our Engliſh Hiſtorians.

As to the Independency of the Britiſh Church, from all that I have ſeen upon that Controverſy, I can- not

not ſee why the Biſhops might not juſtly claim it, and enjoy it: and yet St. Auguſtine's Reputation be ſafe, and without Blemiſh. And yet, it may be made a Queſtion; how the Britains, in refuſing to aſſiſt in the Saxon Converſion, can be defended: Since two Siſter-Churches, independent upon each other, in point of Juriſdiction, might, may I not ſay ought, to have communicated with each other, in ſo good a Work. But what is it ſince the Reformation, that has ſo much enflam'd this Controverſy? Is it not the fear that the Church of Rome, wou'd hereupon have ſome Advantage of Supremacy? is it not that having at any time been related or indebted to that Church, muſt render us guilty of thoſe Corruptions, with which, in theſe latter Ages, it has been polluted? And yet ſurely, there has been a time, when it was no Shame to be thus related: when St. Peter and St. Gregory held the Chair, it was worth owning an Acquaintance with it. And it had been well if ſome of our Writers, ſince the Reformation, had conſider'd; that none of thoſe intolerable Corruptions, that hinder our Communion with the preſent Church of Rome, were imported by St. Gregory, and his Miſſioners; nor conſequently cou'd the Primitive Saxon Church derive them from it.

I am willing to believe, that the Deſign of thoſe Writers, was to do Honour to the Reformation: which needed not to be ſet off with ſuch falſe Ornaments; and at ſo great Expence. Some better Knowledge of the State of the Saxon Church, would have inform'd them of its Purity in thoſe times; its exact Agreement with the Reform'd, and have at once diſpatch'd that impertinent Queſtion, on which the Romaniſts lay ſo great a ſtreſs, Where was your Church of England before Luther? We give them too great an Advantage to allow, that the Saxon Church, planted here by St. Auguſtine, was the ſame in Error and Corruption, with the Roman Church, at this Day. This Dr. Hickes has proved at large, in his Letters which paſs'd between him and a Romiſh Prieſt, Chapter the third, from page 58 to 74; and more cannot be ſaid upon the Subject, nor with greater plainneſs. It may not, however, be amiſs to give the Saxon Reader ſome few Inſtances, of thoſe Particulars to which the Doctor refers, the Authority whereof he has proved at large. Firſt, As to their Faith. Secondly, As to their Prayers, and the Scriptures in their own Language. Thirdly, As to the Supremacy. Fourthly, As to the worſhipping Images. And laſtly, let me add Tranſubſtantiation.

Firſt, as to their Faith, and Prayers, in their own Language, take this Inſtance; which I have tranſcribed, and tranſlated into Engliſh, from Mr. Whelock's Edition of Bede, page four hundred ninety five, as it ſtands, with this Rubrick before it.

Þeſ iſ ȝeleaſa. ⁊ ȝebeð. ⁊ bletſunȝ læpeðum mannum ðe þ Leoden nę cunnon :·

Here is the Belief, and Prayer, and Bleſſing, for the Laity, who do not underſtand Latin.

Paterſ noſter on Enȝliſc :·

PATER NOSTER in Engliſh.

Ðu uſe Fæðeſ ðe eaſt on Heoſenum. Sy ðin nama ȝehalȝoð. Tecume þin ſice :· Sy ðin ſilla ſſa ſſa on heoſenum ſſa eac on eorþan :· Syle uſ to dæȝ uſne dæȝhpomlican hlaf :· Ant ſorȝif uſ uſe ȝyltaſ. ſſa ſſa pe ſorȝyfaþ ðam ðe piþ uſ aȝyltaþ :· Ant ne læð ðu na uſ on coſtnunȝe :· Ac alyſ uſ ſnam yfle :· Sy hit ſſa :·

Thou our Father which art in Heaven, hallowed be thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, as in Heaven, ſo alſo on Earth. Give us to day, our daily bread. And forgive us, our Treſpaſſes, as we forgive them, that treſpaſs againſt us. And lead us not into Temptation, but deliver us from Evil. So be it.

Se Læſſe Cneda :·

The Leſſer Creed.

Ic ȝelyfe on Goð Fæðeſ Elmihtiȝne. ſcippend heoſenan ⁊ eorþan :· ⁊ ic ȝelyfe on hælend Criſt hiſ ancennedan ſunu uſne Dryhten. ſe pæſ ȝeeacnod of þam halȝan Gaſte. ⁊ acennes of Mariam ðam mæðene. ȝeþſopoſ undeſ ðam Pontiſcan Pilate. on

I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth; and I believe in Jeſus Chriſt, his only begotten Son our Lord; who was conceived by the Holy Ghoſt, and born of the Virgin Mary, ſuffer'd under Pontius Pilate, hanged on the Croſs. He was

ꝑoðe ahangen. he ꝓæꝛ ðeað. ⁊ bebyꝛgeð. ⁊ he nyþeꝛ aꝛtah to helle:· ⁊ he aꝛiſ oꝛ ðeaþe on þam ꝓꝛiddan ðæge:· ⁊ he aꝛtah up to heoꝛenum. ⁊ ſit nu æt ſꝛi-þꝛan Coðeꝛ ælmihtigeꝛ fæðeꝛ:· Ðanon he yle cuman to demenne æghꝛeꝛ ge ðam cucum. ge ðam deaðum:·

⁊ ic gelyfe on ðone halgan Caꝛt:· ⁊ ða halgan gelaþunge:· ⁊ halgena gemænnyſſe:· ⁊ ſynna foꝛgyfenyſſe:· ⁊ þ flæſceꝛ æꝛiſt:· ⁊ þ ece life. Sy hit ſꝛa:·

Mæſſe Cꝛeda:·

dead and buried; and he went down into Hell, and he aroſe from death on the third day. And he went up into Heaven, and now ſitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from thence he will come to judge both the Quick, and the Dead.

And I believe in the Holy Ghoſt. And the holy Church. And the Communion of Saints. And the forgiveneſs of Sins. And the Reſurrection of the Body. And everlaſting Life. So be it.

The Nicene or Conſtantinopolitan Creed, to be uſed in the Communion Service.

Ic gelyfe on ænne Coð Fæðeꝛ Ælmihtigne. ſyꝛcend [a] heoꝛenan ⁊ eoꝛþan. ⁊ ealna gefeꝛenlicna ðinga ⁊ ungefeꝛenlicna. ⁊ on ænne Cꝛiſt hælend ðnihten. þone ancennedan Coðeꝛ ſunu. oꝛ þam Fæðeꝛ

I believe in one God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth, and of all things viſible and inviſible: And in one Lord Jeſus Chriſt the only begotten Son of God, begotten of the Father,

This Creed is likewiſe among Junius's Books in the Bodleian Library, B. 22. the laſt Page, and gives us theſe different readings.

[a] Heoꝛonan Jun.

ðeſ acenneð æſ ealle ꝑulðaſ: Goð oꝼ Goðe. leoht oꝼ leohte. Soþne Goð oꝼ ſoþum Goðe. Acenneðne. na ȝeworhtne. [b] eꝼentoꝑirtlicne ðam Fæðeſ. þuruh þone ſýnð ealle [c] ðinȝ ȝeworhte. Se ꝼor uſ mannum ⁊ ꝼor ure [d] hæle niþeſ aſtah oꝼ [e] heoꝼenum. ⁊ wearþ ȝeꝼlæſc-hamoð oꝼ ðam halȝan Gaſte. ⁊ oꝼ Marian ðam mæðene. ⁊ wearþ mann ȝeworðen: He [f] þworoðe eac ſwýlce. on noðe ahanȝen ꝼor uſ. ⁊ he wæſ bebýriȝeð. ⁊ he ariſ on þam ðriðdan dæȝe ſwa ſwa ȝewritu ſecȝaþ. ⁊ he aſtah to heoꝼenum ⁊ he ſitt æt ſwiþran hiſ Fæðeſ. ⁊ he eft cýmð mið wuldre to [g] demenne ðam [h] cucum ⁊ ðam deaðum. ⁊ hiſ riceſ ne biþ nan ende:

⁊ ic ȝelýꝼe on þone halȝan Gaſt. þone [i] liꝼꝼæſtendan Goð. Se ȝæþ oꝼ þam Fæðeſ. ⁊ oꝼ þam Suna. ⁊ ſe iſ mið þam Fæðeſ ther, before all Worlds, God of God, Light of Light, very God of very God; begotten, not made, being of one Subſtance with the Father, by whom all things were made; who for us Men, and for our Salvation, came down from Heaven, and was made Fleſh, by the Holy Ghoſt, of the Virgin Mary, and was made Man. He ſuffered alſo, and was hanged on the Croſs for us, and he was buried. And he aroſe on the third Day, as the Scriptures teach. And he went up into Heaven, and he ſitteth on the right Hand of his Father. And he cometh hereafter with Glory to judge the Quick and the Dead: And of his Kingdom ſhall be no End.

And I believe in the Holy Ghoſt, the Lord and Giver of Life, who proceedeth from the Father, and from the Son, who with the Father,

[b] Eꝼeneðiriſtlicne. Jun. [c] þinc. J. [d] hælo. J. [e] heoꝼonum. J. [f] þworaðe J. [g] demanne. J. [h] cwicum. J. [i] liꝼꝼæſtan. J.

ȝ mið þam Ðuna ȝebeðen ȝ ȝepuldnoð. ȝ re rpnæc þurh pitegan: Ic anðette þa anan halgan. ȝ þa ȝeleaffullan. ȝ þa Apoſtolican ȝelaþunge. ȝ an fulluht on [k] forgyfenyſſe ſynna. ȝ ic [l] anðbiðige æriſtes deaðes manna. ȝ þæs ecan lifes þæne toweardan populðe. Ðy hit ſie:

and with the Son, is worſhipped and glorify'd, and who ſpeaketh by the Prophets. And I confeſs the one Holy, and the Faithful, and Apoſtolical Church. And one Baptiſm for the forgiveneſs of Sins. And I wait for the Reſurrection of dead Men. And the everlaſting Life of the World to come. So be it.

[k] forgyfennefre. J. [l] anbiðie. J.

You ſee here their Rule of Faith, and their Rule of Prayer, to be pure, and orthodox; that they were enjoin'd to be uſed in Engliſh: and that this was not only by private Direction, but commanded by publick Authority, is plain from the Eccleſiaſtical Laws of King Canutus, made about ſeven hundred Years ago. But be pleaſed to ſee the Law it ſelf, as publiſh'd in Mr. Lambard and Mr. Whelock.

Ut Orationem Dominicam & Symbolum calleant.

That they learn the Lord's Prayer, and the Creed.

L. 22.

And we lærað. þ ælc cri-ſten man ȝeleornige þ he hupu cunne rihtne ȝeleaf-fan

L. 22.

And we appoint, that each Chriſtian man learn, at leaſt that be able to underſtand

ƿan aꝑiht unðeꝛꝛtanðen. ⁊ Pateꝛ noꝛteꝛ. ⁊ Cꝛeðo ȝeleoꝛnnian: ꝓoꝛðam miþ ðam oðꝛum ꝛceal ælc cꝛiꝛten man hine to Coð ȝebiddan. ⁊ miþ þam oþꝛum ȝeꝛꝓutelian ꝑihtne ȝeleaꝛan. [m] Cꝛiꝛt ꝛealꝛ ꝛanȝe Pateꝛ noꝛteꝛ æꝛoꝛt. ⁊ þ ȝebeðde hiꝛ leoꝛnninȝe cnihtum tæhte: ⁊ on þam ȝoðcunðan ȝebeðe ꝛẏnð ꝛeoꝛan ȝebeoða: Miþ þam ꝛe þe hit inꝑeaꝛðlice ȝeꝛinȝþ. he ȝeæꝑenðaþ to Coðe ꝛẏlꝑum ẏmbe æꝛꝑe ælce neoðe þe man be þeaꝛꝛ. aþoꝛ ꝓoꝛ ðiꝛꝛum lẏꝑe. oþþe ꝓoꝛ þam toꝑeaꝛðum: ac hu mæȝ þonne æꝛꝑe æniȝ man hine inꝑeaꝛðlice to Coðe ȝebiðan. buton he on Coðe habbe inꝑeaꝛðlice ꝑihtne ȝeleaꝛan: Foꝛ ðam he nah æꝛteꝛ ꝓoꝛðꝛiðe miþ cꝛiꝛtene derſtand rightly the Belief, and learn Pater Noſter and Credo. Becauſe with the one ſhall each Chriſtian man make his Prayer to God: and with the other, make Confeſſion of the right Belief. [m] Chriſt himſelf firſt ſang Pater Noſter: and taught that Prayer to his Diſciples. And in that Holy Prayer are ſevenPetitions. With it, whoſo ſingeth inwardly (i. e. from his Heart) he applieth to God himſelf, upon every neceſſity with which a Man is urged either for this Life, or that which is to come. But how then may ever any Man inwardly (heartily) betake himſelf in Prayer to God, unleſs she have inwardly (in his Heart) a right belief in God. Becauſe he has no right after his departure, to Chriſtian Fellow-

[m] Cꝛiꝛt ꝛealꝛ ꝛanȝe Pateꝛ Noꝛteꝛ. Singing the Service was ſo much in Practice in theſe Times, that we find the ſame word ꝛinȝan to ſignifie both to pray, and to ſing, as in the preſent Inſtance. And likewiſe in Ælfrick's Canons to Bp. Wulfin, in his Directions for viſiting the Sick, he expreſſes that Rule of St. James, And they ſhall pray over him, in theſe words, ⁊ hi him oꝑeꝛ ꝛinȝon, that is, They ſhall ſing over him. See Sir Henry Spelman's Concil. Vol. I. p. 580. I obſerve this here, becauſe I find it in none of the Gloſſarys.

ȝemanan on ȝehalȝaðan þeȝtan. oþþe heþ on liȝe huȝleȝ beon þeoȝþe. ne he ne biꝺ þel cniȝtene. þe ƿ ȝeleoȝnian nolꝺe·: Ne he nah miꝺ niht oþþeȝ manneȝ to onȝonne æt ȝulluhte. ne æt biȝcopeȝ handa ðe ma. æþ he hit leoȝnigȝe ƿ he hit þel cunne·:

ſhip with the Saints in reſt, nor here, in this Life, to be worthy of the Sacrament. Nor is he well (reputed) a Chriſtian, that will not learn them. Nor has he any right to undertake (ſtand Godfather) for any other Man at Baptiſm, much leſs at the Biſhop's Hand (Confirmation) before he has learned it ſo well, that he has it perfect.

That they had larger Devotions in their own Tongue, may be obſerved, both from Mr. Whelock, who gives us ſeveral Prayers in his Edition of Bede, and from the Saxon Hours of Prayer, printed at the end of thoſe Letters, which paſs'd between Dr. Hickes and a Romiſh Prieſt. That they had the Scriptures likewiſe, in the Saxon Tongue, Mr. Liſle informs us, in his Edition of Ælfrick's Diſcourſe of the Old and New Teſtament. We may be further certifyed of this from Mr. Fox, and Mr. Junius's Edition of the Goſpels, with Dr. Marſhal's Notes; and from Mr. Thwaites's Heptateuch, and Sir John Spelman's Pſalter.

Their Notion of the [a] Supremacy, and the Power of the Keys, you may learn from what follows.

[a] Whelock Edit. Bed. Lib. III. cap. xxv. pag. 236. Sermo Cathol. de S. Petro. pag. 405.

Petrus him ȝpýnde: Drihten ȝif þu hit ſý hat me ȝan to ðe buron ðam ƿætere: Petrus ƿæſ ſýrmeſt on ðam ȝeneðe. ⁊ caſtode on Criſtes luſe: he ƿolde ȝelome ana andſpýnan for hi ealle. ſƿa ſƿa he ðýde ða ða Criſt hi beſpan hu men cýðdon be him. ⁊ ſýþþan axode hi. Hu cƿeþe ȝe be me: Da cƿæþ Petrus: Du eart Criſt ðæſ liſiȝendan Godes ſunu: An ȝpýnde for manegum. forþan ðe annýſ ƿæſ on him manegum: Criſt cƿæþ to him betux oþrum forðum: Ic ſecȝe ðe ðu eart Petrus. ⁊ ofer ðiſne ſtan ic ȝetimbriȝe mine cýrcan: Auguſtinus tractavit quod Petrus in figura ſignificat Eccleſiam. quia Chriſtus Petra. Petrus populus Chriſtianus: Ær þan ſýnde ƿæſ his nama Simon. ac Drihten him ȝeſette. þiſne naman Petrus. þ is ſtænen. to ði þ he hæfde ȝetacnunge Criſtes ȝelaþunge: Criſt is cƿeden Petra;

Peter anſwer'd him; Lord, if thou art he, command me to come to thee upon the water. Peter was foremoſt of the Company, and chiefeſt in Chriſt's Love. He would often alone, anſwer for them all, as he did then, when Chriſt enquired of them, what Men ſaid concerning him, and after that aſked them, what ſay ye of me? Then ſaid Peter, Thou art Chriſt, the Son of the Living God. One anſwer'd for many, becauſe the Unity of many was in him. Chriſt ſaid to him, among other Words, I ſay unto thee, thou art Peter, and upon this Stone I will build my Church. Auguſtine taught that Peter, in a figure, ſignifyed the Church, becauſe Chriſt is Petra a Rock, Petrus the Chriſtian People. Before that time his Name was Simon: but the Lord appointed him this Name Petrus, that is, ſtony. Becauſe that he had in him the Type of the Chriſtian Church. Chriſt is called Petra, that is,

Petra. þ is stan. ⁊ of ðam naman is gecweden Petrus eal cristen folc: Crist cwæþ ðu eart stænen. ⁊ ofer ðisne stan. þ is ofer þam geleafan þe þu nu andettest. ic getimbrige mine cyrcan: Ofer me sylfne ic getimbrige mine cyrcan. ofer me ic getimbrige ðe. na me ofer ðe: Ic eom seo trumnyss. ðe ðe healdan sceal. ⁊ ealle ða getimbrunge Cristenre geladunge: Nu bereþ Petrus þ his ofþe getacnunge ðære halgan gelaþunge on þære he is ealdor under Crist:

Stone. And, from that Name, all Chriſtian Folk are called Petrus. Chriſt ſaid, thou art ſtony, and upon this Stone, that is, upon that Belief which thou now confeſſeſt, I build my Church. Over my ſelf I build my Church, over me I build thee, not me over thee. I am the Strength that ſhall ſupport thee, and all the Building of the Chriſtian Church. Now Petrus beareth the Reſemblance, or Type of the Holy Church, in which he is Biſhop under Chriſt.

But not [a] ſupreme, or univerſal Biſhop, or having ſole Power of the Keys. For in the Homily In Natale unius Apoſtoli, St. Paul is declared to be equal to him.

Paulus is se ðreottepa þystes heapes. he næs lichamlice on life mid Cristе. ac he hine geceas siþþan of heofenum ⁊ he is geendebyrd to

Paul is the thirteenth of this heap [i. e. Number or Society] he was not bodily with Chriſt while he was alive; but he choſe him afterwards from Heaven, and he is ordain'd equal to S. Peter, for his great Merits and Labours.

[a] *Wheloc*k's Notes upon Bede, Lib. IV. Cap. xii. p. 289.

Petpe ꝑop hiꝛ micclum ġeeaꝛnunġum, ⁊ ġeðeoꝛ-ꝑum :·

And that he was equal to him in his Apoſtleſhip, if not ſuperior, may be diſcern'd from what follows, in the Homily upon the giving up an Account to Chriſt, of the Talents, at the laſt Day.

Ðonne ꝑceal ġehꝑa him æteoꝛian hꝑæt he miþ ðam punde ġeteoloð hæꝑð. ðæn lætt Petpuꝛ ꝑe Apoꝑtol ꝑoꝛþ ꝑ Juðeiꝛce ꝑolc ðe he ðuꝛh hiꝛ laꝛe to ġeleaꝑan ġebiġde. Pauluꝛ ðeoða laꝛeoꝛ ðæn læt ꝑoꝛþ ꝑoꝛneꝛan ealne miððan eaꝛð :·

Then ſhall every one ſhew what gain he hath made with his Talent. Then does Peter lead forth all the Jewiſh People: which by his Doctrine he had brought to the belief. Paul, the Doctor of the Gentiles, he leads forth almoſt all the World.

By which it might ſeem, that his Talent was larger, and better improved. And both Bede, and his Royal Tranſlator, K. Ælfred, ſpeak of him in a very high ſtrain. Bede ſays, Ille cæleſtis exercitus præcipuus miles. King Ælfred ſays, Se mæꝛta cempa ⁊ ꝛe hýhꝛta ðæꝛ heoꝛonlican peꝛoðeꝛ Sc̃ꝛ Pauluꝛ ꝛe Apoꝛtol :· that is, The greateſt, and the higheſt Soldier, of the heavenly Army. Bede, Lib. I. Cap. xxvii. p. 95.

Againſt the Supremacy.

Dꝛihten cꝛæþ to Petpe. Ðu eaꝛt ꝛtænen :· ꝑoꝛ þæne

The Lord ſaid to Peter, Thou art ſtony, for the

þæne ſtrencðe hiſ geleaſan. ⁊ foꝛ anꝛæðnyſſe hiſ ⁊ ðetnyſſe he unðeꝛſencg ðone naman. foꝛþan ðe he geþeoðde hine ſylfne mið fæſtum moðe to Cꝛiſte. ſe þe iſ ſtan gecꝛeðen fꝛam ðam Apoſtole Paule: ⁊ ic timbꝛige mine cyꝛcan uppon ðyſſum ſtane. Þ iſ oꝛeꝛ ðon geleaſan ðe ðu andetſt: Eall Godeſ gela þung iſ oꝛeꝛ ðam ſtane gebyldoð. Þ iſ oꝛeꝛCꝛiſte. foꝛþan ðe he iſ ſe gꝛundꝛeall eallꝛa þæꝛa getimbꝛunga hiſ agenꝛe cyꝛcan: Ealle Godeſ cyꝛcan ſyndon getealde to anre gelaþunge. ⁊ ſeo iſ mið gecoꝛenum mannum getimbꝛod· na mið deaðum ſtanum. ⁊ eall ſeo byldinꝛ ðæꝛa liſlicꝛa ſtana iſ oꝛeꝛ Cꝛiſte gelogoð. foꝛþan ðe ꝛe beoþ ðuꝛh ðone geleaſan hiſ lima getealde. ⁊ he uꝛe eallꝛa heaꝛoð: Se þe byldaþ oꝛ þam gꝛundꝛealle hiſ ꝛeoꝛc hnyſt to micclum lyꝛe: Se hælend cꝛæþ. Ne maꝛon helle gatu naht to-ſtrength of his Belief, and for the ſtedfaſtneſs of his Confeſſion, he took upon him that Name. Becauſe he ſubmitted himſelf with a conſtant mind to Chriſt, who is called Stone by St. Paul, I will build my Church upon this Stone; that is, upon the Belief which thou confeſſeſt. All God's Church is built upon this Stone; that is, upon Chriſt. For he is the Ground-wall, i.e. Foundation of all the Building of his own Church. All the Church of God is reckon'd one Congregation. And it is built with choſen Men, not with dead Stones. And all the Building of the living Stones is placed upon Chriſt. Wherefore through the Faith we are called his Members, and he is the Head of us all. He that buildeth not upon this Ground-wall, his Work will fall to great ruin. Our Saviour ſaith, The Gates of Hell ſhall not prevail againſt my Church. Sinners, and heretical Doctrine, are the

geaneſ Gates

ȝeaneſ minne cyncan. Leahtraſ ⁊ ðollic laſ ſyndon helle ȝatu. forþan ðe hi læðaþ ðone ſyndfullan ſylce ðuph ȝeat into helle pite: Maneȝa ſynda ȝatu. ac heora nan ne mæȝ ongean ða halȝan ȝelaþunȝe ðe ir ȝetimbrod uppon ðam fæſtan ſtane Criſte. forðan ðe ſe ȝelyfeda þuph Criſtes ȝefcyldnyſſe æteint þam ſneceðnyſſum ðæra ðeoflicra cortnunga:

Gates of Hell. For they lead the Sinful, as thro' a Gate, into Hell Puniſhment. Many are the Gates, but none of them hath Power againſt the holy Church, which is built on that firm Stone, Chriſt. Becauſe the Believers, through Chriſt's Protection, ſhall be deliver'd from the Temptations of the Devil.

Of the Power of the Keys.

Se cwæþ. Ic þe betæce heofonan rices cæȝe. [b] Nir reo cæiȝ ȝylden. ne ſylfren. ne of nanum antimbre ȝeſmiþod. ac ir ſe anfeald ðe him Criſt forȝeaf. ⁊ nan man ne cym'ð into Godes rice buton ſe halȝa Petrus him ȝeopeniȝe ⁊ infæp: ⁊ ſwa hwæt ſwa ðu bintſt ofer eorþan. ⁊ biþ ȝebun-

He ſaid, I give unto thee the Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven. [b] The Key is not of Gold, nor Silver, nor made of any other Material; but is the Power which Chriſt gave to him. That no Man can enter the Kingdom of God, unleſs the holy Peter open for him the Entrance. And whatſoever thou bindeſt on

[b] It is not Gold, or Silver, or any thing but the Merits of Chriſt's Death, apply'd to true Penitents, can purchaſe Remiſſion of Sins. So that there is little Encouragement, from hence, for the Trade of Indulgences.

ðen on heoƿonum: ⁊ ðƿa hƿæt ƿa ðu unbintƿt oƿer eoƿþan þ biþ unbunðen on heoƿenan: Ðiſne anƿealð he ƿoƿgeaf nu Petre ⁊ eac ſýþþan æt hiſ upſtigе eallum hiſ Apoſtolum. ðа ða he him on ableoƿ þuſ cƿeþende. onfoh haligne gaſt. ðæƿa manna ſinna ðe ge ƿoƿgýfaþ beoþ ƿoƿgýfene: ⁊ þam þe ge ƿoƿgýfenýſſe oſunnon. him biþ oſtogen ſeo ƿoƿgýfenýſ: Nellað ða Apoſtoli nænne nihtƿiſne mið heoƿa manſumnunge gebinðan. ne eac ðone manfullan miltſigende unbinðan butan he mið ƿoþſe ðæðbote gecýnne to liſeſ pege: Ðone ylcan anðƿealð hæfð ſe Almihtiga getiEarth, that is bound in Heaven: and whatſoever thou unbindeſt on Earth, is unbound in Heaven [c]. This Power he gave now to Peter: And alſo afterwards, before his Aſcenſion, to all his Apoſtles, at the time when he blew, [i. e. breathed] on them, thus ſaying, Receive the Holy Ghoſt. Thoſe Mens Sins, [d] which ye forgive, are forgiven; and from whom you retain forgiveneſs, from him forgiveneſs is retained. The Apoſtles will not bind any Righteous Man with their Excommunication; nor yet will they, with Indulgence, unbind the wicked, unleſs he, with true Repentance, turn to the way of Life. The very ſame

[c] This Power of the Keys is given equally to all the Apoſtles, as well as to St. Peter.

[d] The Gift of the Holy Ghoſt was given to them all: 'Tis here ſaid, receive Ye, not receive Thou, the Holy Ghoſt. This Power, which the Apoſtles received themſelves, according to the Commiſſion which was given them, they have communicated, and tranſmitted, to all Biſhops, and Prieſts, who are rightly conſtituted, and ordain'd, to the end of the World. God be thanked, that we have this right Ordination, and Succeſſion, in the reformed Church of England; which excludes all doubt of our belonging to the one Catholick, and Apoſtolick Church; built upon that Foundation of the Apoſtles, and Prophets, of which Chriſt is the chief corner Stone.

þoð biſcopum. ⁊ halgum Mæſſe Preoſtum gif hi hit æfter þæne godſpellican gerætnyſſe carfullice healdaþ: Ac for ði if ſeo cæig Petre ſindeplice betæht. þ eall ðeodſcipe gleaplice to cnape. þ ſa hpa ſa oþſcyt fnam annyſſe ðæſ geleafan ðe Petrus ða andette Criſte. þ him ne biþ getiþod naþor ne ſynna forgyfenyſ ne inſæn þæſ heofenlican picef:

Power hath the Almighty granted to Biſhops, and holy Prieſts, if they are careful to preſerve it, according to the Appointment of the Goſpel. And for this reaſon is the Key given apart to Peter, that all People may wiſely know: that whoſoever flies off from the Unity of the Faith, which Peter then confeſs'd to Chriſt; that to him will be granted neither forgiveneſs of Sins, nor an Entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven.

The Danger of Schiſm is here, very clearly, and very pathetically expreſs'd: however calm and indifferent Men now ſeem, in their Notions of it. But the Breach of Unity was not made, by a not being immediately in Subjection to St. Peter: becauſe we find that the Apoſtles had an equal ſhare in the Power of the Keys, and the Government of the Church. For ſo Men continue in the Unity of the ſame Faith, which St. Peter confeſſeth: they might maintain Catholick Communion, under any other Apoſtle or Biſhop.

Againſt worſhipping Saints or Images.

La ðu unðeþbæc ſceoc- ta. hit if appiten. Man ſceal

Get thee behind me, Satan, it is written, Man ſhall

ſceal hine gebiddan to hiſ dihtne ⁊ him anum þeo-þian. hit iſ appiten on ðære ealdan æ. þ nan mann ne ſceal hine gebiddan to anum þinge buton to Gode anum. forþam ðe nan geſceaft nyſ puþþe ðæſ puþþmyntef. butan ſe ana ſeþe ſcyppen iſ ealra ðinga. to him anum þe ſceolan uſ gebiddan. he ana iſ ſoþ hlaford ⁊ ſoþ God. þe biddaþ þingunga æt halgum mannum þ hi ſceolan uſ þingian to heora dihtne. ⁊ to unum dihtne: Ne gebidde þe na ðeah hpæþere uſ to him ſpa ſpa þe to Gode doþ: Ne hi þ gedafian nellaþ ſpa ſpa ſe engel cpæþ to Johanne ðam Apoſtole. ða ða he polde feallan to hiſ fotum. he cpæþ. Ne do ðu hit na þ ðu me abuge. Ic eom Godeſ ðeopa ſpa ſpa ðu ⁊ þine gebpoþra. gebide ðe to Gode anum.

ſhall worſhip his Lord, and him only ſhall he ſerve. It is written in the old Law, that no Man ſhall pray to any thing, but to God alone: becauſe no Creature is worthy that Honour, but he alone who is the Maker of all Things. To him only we ought to pray. He only is very Lord, and very God. We deſire Interceſſion of holy Men, that they will intercede for us, to their Lord, and our Lord. Nevertheleſs, we do not pray to them, as we do to God, nor will they ſuffer it, as the Angel ſaid to John the Apoſtle, when he would have fallen at his Feet. Do it not; bow not thy ſelf to me, I am God's Servant, as thou art, and thy Brother, Pray to God only[e].

[e] Homil. in Domin. 1. in Quadrageſ. Bede Eccl. Hiſt. Lib. IV. cap. ix. page 283.

And

And for the worſhip of Images, we may learn the Senſe of the Saxon Church, concerning that Point, from Sir. [a] Henry Spelman, in his Notes upon the Council of London, where he ſpeaks to this purpoſe; in anſwer to thoſe, who affirm the uſe of Images to have been brought in by St. Auguſtine, "Who, ſays he, will not ſay, that it is one thing "to make uſe of Images, and another thing to a-"dore them; but let us ſee who they were, and "in what manner they uſed them: viz. The Enſigns of the Chriſtian Warfare carried before them; the Image of Chriſt, and his Croſs, being the Enſigns, or Profeſſion of their Warfare. They bore, ſays Bede, a Croſs of Silver, and the Image of our Saviour in a Picture. In this manner Auguſtine, and his Followers, are deſcribed, by Bede, to have come into the Preſence of King Æthelbert. But Bede ſays, they bore a Croſs for their Banner, Pro Vexillo: non pro Adoratione, not for Adoration. And again, in the next Page, "But that you may under-"ſtand the Uſe of the Images of Saints, and of our "Saviour, which our Saxon Anceſtors, and Bede "himſelf, admitted of. Let that venerable Author tell you of it himſelf; who, writing of the Images of things in Solomon's Temple, expreſſeth himſelf thus, "If it was lawful to lift up the bra-"zen Serpent upon a Pole, which the Children of "Iſrael beholding, were ſaved alive: why may we "not, by a Picture, bring into the Memory of the [a] Spel. Concil. Vol. I. pag. 217.

" Faithful, that lifting up of our Saviour upon the
" Croſs, by which he overcame Death: or thoſe
" his other Miracles, and Cures, by which he won- " derfully triumph'd over the ſame Author of Death.
" Since the ſight of theſe things make oftentimes
" a deep Impreſſion on the Minds of the Beholders,
" and to thoſe who are ignorant of Letters, open as
" it were a kind of lively reading, of the Hiſtory
" of our Lord. For Picture, in the Greek, is called
" ζωγραφια, that is, a Writing that expreſſes the Life.
" If it were lawful to make twelve brazen Bulls,
" which, bearing up the Sea that was placed over
" them, look'd towards the four Corners of the " Earth; what hinders our having Pictures of the " twelve Apoſtles, that ſhew us their going out into
" all Nations, baptizing them, in the Name of the " Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoſt;
" repreſenting them, that I may ſo ſpeak, before all
" our Eyes, by a kind of Writing that deſcribes them
" to the Life? &c. This is, that uſe of Images, al- low'd by Auguſtine, and his Followers, mentioned by Bede: And which the great Maſter of Auguſtine, Gregory the Great, declared in his Epiſtle to Sere-nus, Biſhop of Marſeilles, ſpeaking of thoſe Images, which that Biſhop had broken. For, ſays Gregory, that ought not to have been broken, which was not placed in the Churches to be adored, but only to in-form the Minds of the Ignorant. But I will give you the whole Paſſage: " Moreover we have heard
" ſome time ago, that your Brotherhood obſerving
" ſome Adorers of Images, did throw down, and

" break

" break thoſe Images, in your Churches. And in- " deed, we commend the Zeal which you had in
" not permitting any thing to be worſhip'd, that " was made with Hands. But we think you ought " not to have broken thoſe Images. For to this " End are Pictures allow'd in Churches, that they
" who know not Letters, may at leaſt be able to
" read, by looking upon the Walls, what they are " not capable of reading in Books. Wherefore, your
" Brotherhood ſhou'd both preſerve them, and hin-
" der the People from adoring them. That ſo
" thoſe who cannot read, may have, from whence
" to gather ſome Knowledge of Hiſtory: And the " People be, by no means, permitted to Sin, by the " Adoration of a Picture. Greg. Regiſt. Epiſt.
" Lib. IX. Indict. ii. Ep. 105.

Againſt Tranſubſtantiation.

Sume ꝑꝛeoꝛtaꝛ healdaþ ðæt huſel ðe biꝺ on Eaſtеꝛ dæg ȝehalgod oꝑeꝛ ȝeaꝛ to ſeocum mannum. Ac hi miſdoꝺ ſꝑýþe deope. ꝓ ðæt halige huſel ſceole ſýnegian. ⁊ nellaꝺ undeꝛſtandan hu mycele dæðbote ſeo Poenitentialiſ tæcþ be þam. ȝif ðæthuſel biꝺ ſýniȝ. oꝺꝺe hæꝑen. oþþe ȝif hit ſoꝛlogen biꝺ. oþþe ȝif muſ. oþþe

Some Prieſts keep the Euchariſt, which is conſecrated on Eaſter Day, all the Year for ſick Men. But they very greatly do amiſs; becauſe that hereby the holy Euchariſt becomes ſinnewed. And they will not underſtand how greivous Penance the Pœnitential Book teacheth concerning it; if the Euchariſt become ſinnew'd, or rotten, or if it be loſt, or

oþþe nẏtenu ðuph gẏmelearte hit etað: Man ſceal healden ðæt haligе huſel mid micelre gẏmene. ⁊ ne ſophealdan hit. ac halgian oðer ednipe to ſeocum mannum. a. embe vii. niht. oððe embe xiv. niht. þ hit hupu ſẏnig ne ſẏ. forðon þe eal ſpa halig bið þ huſel þe nu to ðæg pær gehalgod. ſpa þ þe on earter ðæg pær gehalgod: Ðæt huſel iſ Cpiſtes lichama: Na lichamlice ac gaſtlice: Na ſe lichama ðe he on ðpopode. ac ſe lichama ðe he embe ſpæc ða ða he bletſode hlaf ⁊ pin to huſle anre nihte æp hiſ ðpopunge. ⁊ cpæð be þam gebletſode hlafe. Ðiſ iſ min lichama. ⁊ eft be þam halgan pine. þiſ iſ min blode þe bið for manegum agoten on ſẏnna forgẏfennefſe: Undepſtandað nu þ ſe Dnihten ðe mihte apendon þone hlaf æp hiſ ðpopunge to hiſ lichaman. ⁊ þ pin to hiſ blode gaſtlice. Ðæt ſe ẏlca ðæghpamlice be eaten of Mouſe, or Beaſt, by Negligence. Men ſhall preſerve the Holy Sacrament with much Care, and not reſerve it too long; but conſecrate new for ſick men, always within a Week or a Fortnight, that it be not ſo much as hoary. For ſo holy is the houſel, which now to day was conſecrated, as that which was conſecrated on Eaſter Day. The Euchariſt, is Chriſt's Body, not bodily, but ghoſtly, Not the Body in which he ſuffer'd, but the Body of which he ſpake, when he bleſſed Bread and Wine to the Euchariſt, one Night before his Suffering; and ſaid of the bleſſed Bread, This is my Body: And again, of the bleſſed Wine This is my Blood, which is ſhed for many, for the Forgiveneſs of Sins. Underſtand now, that the Lord, who could turn that Bread, before his Suffering, to his Body, and that Wine to his Blood, ghoſtly: that the ſame Lord bleſſeth daily, by the Hands

of

ꝑamlice bletſaþ ðurh ſacerda handa. hlaf ⁊ ꝑin to hiſ gaſtlican licha-
man. ⁊ to hiſ gaſtlican blode:·

of the Prieſt, Bread and Wine, to his ghoſtly Body, and to his ghoſtly Blood.

The whole Paſchal Homily is, from the beginning to the end, a full and large Explication of this Doctrine. See Mr. Liſle, and Mr. Whelock, Page 462. Theſe are ſome of the innumerable Inſtances, of the pure Eſtate of the Engliſh Saxon Church. It wou'd be tedious to trouble the Reader with any more, having run the Preface out to ſo great a length, and hoping hereafter, that I may be able to give ſomewhat more of this kind to the Publick, as I ſhall find more leiſure, and that it is not refuſed Encouragement.

I have dwelt ſo long upon the Argument of St. Auguſtine's Miſſion, becauſe it ſeem'd to me, upon Examination of the whole Matter, that the Merits of that Controverſy, had not been ſo fairly ſtated, or ſo well underſtood, as might have been wiſh'd; and as had given us a Repreſentation of things more agreable to Truth, and to the Honour of our Anceſtors of the Engliſh Saxon Church: which ought not to have been charged, with thoſe Corruptions, which ſome accuſe her of, as having received them from St. Auguſtine; ſince ſhe neither was infected with them, nor did he introduce any ſuch Errors, they being known to be of much later date.

date. And I cannot but obſerve, that the Notion which has generally obtain'd, that the Church of Rome was then the ſame corrupted Church that it is now, has given a Prejudice to all who do not duly compare and conſider things, againſt every thing that comes from thence: and ſo ignorant are ſome, in this particular, as that even St. Peter is in leſs Eſteem with them, for having been Biſhop of Rome. This is the Reaſon, why St. Auguſtine coming from thence, tho' upon the moſt kind, and charitable Errand in the World, is condemned all at once. All Arguments are brought againſt him, without hearing any one willingly on his ſide. But, I hope, it has been made appear (without any Honour which the preſent Church of Rome can arrogate to herſelf upon that account) that his Cauſe is capable of defence, as well as that of the Britains, who are ſo highly favour'd in Oppoſition to him. The Reader, upon comparing Circumſtances on both ſides, is left to make his Judgment. I have had no other Deſign, or Intereſt, in this Diſpute, than to do Juſtice to Truth, and Innocence. I thought it was but Juſtice to aſſert the Innocence of his Character, whom thoſe, who ſpeak the worſt of him, are forc'd, in Contradiction to themſelves, to own to have been a Perſon of many excellent Virtues, and Qualities. And I think, moreover, our Anceſtors having received Chriſtianity from him, it has laid an Obligation of Gratitude to his Memory, upon all their Poſterity; which ſhou'd rather incline

incline them to defend, than arraign him; and which ought never to be extinguiſh'd, or forgotten. I ſhall add but one thing farther on this Head. That this Miſrepreſentation of the Primitive State of the Engliſh Saxon Church, has not only been the Occaſion of much Ignorance amongſt our ſelves, and which has deprived us of a Capacity of making a moſt noble Defence for the Doctrine of the Reformation; but has likewiſe given occaſion to the Papiſts, by our great zeal and fierceneſs againſt St. Auguſtine: to believe that we are equally Enemies to the Chriſtian Faith, and Sacraments, which it muſt be own'd, on all Hands, he introduced. Hence it comes to paſs, that we find the Benedictines of St. Maur, in ſumming up their Account of our Converſion, to upbraid us in this manner: [a] Let them aſk the Father of their Faith, St. Gregory, and he will ſhew them; their Elders Auguſtine and his Aſſiſtants, and they will tell them; what Faith at the Beginning they embraced, how great Reverence, and Obedience, they paid to the Apoſtolick See; what Sacraments they once uſed, what Rites they were accuſtom'd to, in the Worſhip of God. Alas! thoſe Altars, which they erected, have the Heterodox pulled down, and baniſh'd the Catholick Religion, of their Anceſtors; having let in all manner of Errors and Impiety. [b] God give them Repentance, to the acknowledging the Truth, that they may recover themſelves out of the Snare of [a] Deut. xxxii. v. 7. [b] 2 Tim. ii. 25, 26.

the

the Devil, who are taken Captive by him at his Will. This is a kind Prayer of the Benedictines, ſuppoſing us in ſuch a wretched Eſtate. But did they rightly underſtand the preſent State of our Religion, both in Faith and Worſhip, how much more it agrees with that which was ſent hither to us by St. Gregory, than what is now to be diſcover'd in the preſent Church of Rome; they had ſpared their commiſerating Reflection, and muſt have been aſhamed to produce it: And we aſſure them, we are not afraid, nor ſtreighten'd, in our Anſwers to the Queries they object to us. For, from the Inſtances I have given of the Faith, and Worſhip, and Diſcipline introduced hither by St. Auguſtine; and continued for ſo long time in the Engliſh Saxon Church: it will appear, that we have enquir'd of our Father, St. Gregory, concerning the Faith he tranſmitted to us; and find, to our great Satisfaction, that we ſtill retain it in the Apoſtles, and Nicene Creeds, and in the Holy Scriptures. But that he knew nothing of their Trent Articles, neither do we acknowledge them. We have enquir'd of our Elders, St. Auguſtine, and his Aſſiſtants, what Reverence was paid to the Roman See: and perceive that our Anceſtors paid it that Reverence, which the Chriſtian Religion wou'd allow them; while it had ſo good a Biſhop as St. Gregory, who pretended not to Lord it over God's Heritage; but muſt declare that neither they, nor we, ought to reverence an uſurp'd Supremacy, and a corrupt Church. We perceive farther, that they then had, and we ſtill retain thoſe two Sacraments, which Chriſt appointed in his Church: and agreeable to the intent of his Inſtitution, without the Corruptions of the Maſs, and Tranſubſtantiation. We have thoſe Rites and Ceremonies, free from all Superſtition, which are moſt reverend and decent in the Service of God, and moſt convenient for the State of our Church: herein keeping cloſe to St. Gregory's Direction to St. Auguſtine, ſo that may not we now uſe their own Exclamations? Alas! The Altars which they erected, have the Heterodox deſtroyed: But who are the Heterodox, they or we? We adhere to the Catholick Faith, which St. Gregory and St. Auguſtine taught. They have added new and Heterodox Notions to the Chriſtian Belief, and impoſe them as Articles of Faith. They have forſaken the ways of their Fathers St. Gregory and St. Peter, by bringing in ſo many Novelties and Abſurdities; having let in all the Errors, Superſtitions, and Impieties of Idolatry and Tranſubſtantiation, and thoſe other Blemiſhes, which ſo much at this Day, deface the Roman Church: ſo that the Prayer that they make for us is much more adapted to their own Circumſtances; and we are not behind hand with them, in wiſhing charitably, which I do very ſincerely. That God may give them Repentance to the acknowledging the Truth, That they may recover themſelves out of the Snare of the Devil, who are taken Captive by him at his Will.

farther

But to return to the Homily on St. Gregory. It is printed from a Tranſcript I had made of it from one made by Dr. Hopkins, I believe, out of the Cottonian Book, Vitellius D. 17. becauſe there I read it, Englircene þeode. whereas, in all the other Copies, it is Englircne þeode. The Homily is one of thoſe which were prepared by Ælfrick, to be uſed in the Engliſh Saxon Church: and is the ninth in the ſecond of thoſe two Volumes, which contain'd a courſe of Sermons, and were to be recited to the People, in the courſe of one or two Years, as ſhou'd be judged moſt fit. He ſtiles himſelf Ælfrick, Monk, and Prieſt, and dedicates both Volumes to Sigeric, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, whoſe Succeſſor he was in that See. He profeſſes, that for the Prevention of Hereſie, and the Doctrine of Deceivers, he had in theſe Sermons chiefly followed the Authority of the ancient Fathers, viz. St. Auguſtine of Hippo, St. Jerom, Bede, and St. Gregory, &c. The reaſon of his tranſlating theſe Books out of Latin into Engliſh, was not, as he himſelf declares, out of Preſumption of any great Learning: but becauſe he ſaw and obſerved, much Error in many Engliſh Books; which the unlearned, out of their Simplicity, took for great Wiſdom. That it grieved him, that they knew not, and had not, the Goſpel-Learning in their Writings; ſave ſuch alone as underſtood Latin, and ſuch as cou'd have thoſe Books which K. Ælfred wiſely tranſlated out of Latin into Engliſh. Theſe Books he humbly dedicates to Sigeric, and earneſtly earneſtly beſeeches him to correct them; and, in caſe he ſhou'd meet with any thing Heterodox in them, that he would not ſpare to blot it out; becauſe, ſays he, I had rather be reproved by your Clemency, than, by an unwary ſeducing, receive Praiſe from the Ignorant. I humbly implore your Clemency; to read this Expoſition over: in like manner as the former, and to judge whether it be fit to be received by the Faithful, or rejected. The Reprehenſions of the Envious in no wiſe move us, if this Performance ſhall not be diſcountenanc'd by Your Authority. The Tranſcript of this Homily I compared with that antient Parchment Book of Homilies in the Bodleian Library amongſt Junius's Books NE. F. 4. being the ſecond of thoſe Volumes that had formerly belong'd to the Hattonian Library, an Account of which we have in that moſt elaborate Catalogue of Saxon Manuſcripts by Mr. Wanley, which makes the ſecond Volume of Dr. Hickes's Theſaurus p. 43. I had acceſs to this Book, by the ſingular Courteſy of Dr. Hudſon, a Perſon of ſo much Learning; that as he needs not envy it in any other, ſo has he that generous Quality to be found only in thoſe great and generous Minds that are inform'd with a truly Scholar-like Genius; of not diſcouraging Learning, even in our Sex.

Having given an Account of the Homiliſt, ſome will expect, ſomewhat ſhou'd be ſaid of the Tranſlator. I have been aſkt the Queſtion, more than once, whether this Performance was all my own? How properly ſuch a Queſtion may be aſk'd by thoſe who know with whom I live, I ſhall not diſpute: But ſince ſome there are who may have a Curioſity to know the ſame thing, who yet ſuſpect the Decency of ſuch a Queſtion: that they may be under no Uneaſineſs on this account, they may be pleas'd to underſtand that I have a kind Brother, who is always ready to aſſiſt and encourage me in my Studies. I might ſay much of my Obligations on this account: wou'd he permit me to expreſs my ſelf at large on that Subject. But as I think it no ſhame to me to take any Advice where it may be ſo eaſily obtain'd: ſo I ſhould think it unpardonable to be guilty of ſuch a Silence, as might make me ſeem averſe to all Acknowledgment.

I have little more to add, than my Thanks to all my Encouragers, which have far exceeded the Number I cou'd have expected to a firſt Attempt: the greateſt Part whereof have done me a great deal of Honour by the Countenance both of their Quality and Learning, and to all I am one way or other obliged for their Kindneſſes and good Eſteem. I am very glad to find ſo many of the Ladies, and thoſe, ſeveral of them, of the beſt Rank: favouring theſe Endeavours of a Beginner, and one of their Sex. It may be ſome Excuſe for me to them, to juſtify this Undertaking, and with which they will not probably be diſpleas'd: That the Converſion of the Engliſh here celebrated in this Homily, was affected by the En- deavours

deavours of a Pious Lady; Berhta the firſt Chriſtian Queen of England: as the Converſion of the whole Roman Empire before had been by Helena Mother of Conſtantine the Great, by moſt affirm'd to have been a Native of this Iſland. That as the Southern Parts of England were firſt converted by Berhta's Endeavours, who engaged her Huſband King Ethelbert to receive the Faith: ſo the Northern Parts beyond Humber, received the ſame bleſſed Influence, by the means of her Daughter Edelburga; who was highly inſtrumental in the Converſion of her glorious Conſort, King Edwin the firſt Monarch of the Engliſh, and the greateſt of all the Saxon Princes of thoſe times. I might give many more Inſtances of this kind, Chlodeſuinda Daughter of King Chlotharius perſuaded her Huſband, Alboinus, King of the Lombards, to become Chriſtian. And Hermenegildus, by the ſollicitation of his Wife Ingundis, Daughter of Sigibert, and Siſter to King Childebert, of an Arrian, became Orthodox. It were endleſs to repeat all the Inſtances of illuſtrious Women, that might be enumerated, as contributing to the Advancement of Religion, in their ſeveral Ages. But we may content our ſelves with late, and domeſtick, Examples, of two of the greateſt Monarchs that the World has known: for Wiſdom and Piety, and conſtant Succeſs in their Affairs, QUEEN ELIZABETH, and ANNE QUEEN OF GREAT BRITAIN. And I think it ſome farther Apology

for

for me, to the Ladies of Great Britain; that this is publiſh'd in the Reign of ſo highly Excellent a Lady: who, as She ſurpaſſes all her Royal Predeceſſors, in all noble and royal Accompliſhments; ſo is She peculiarly eminent, in being both an Example, and Encourager, of all Virtues, and laudable Qualities in thoſe of Her Sex.

AN

AN ENGLISH-SAXON HOMILY, ON THE BIRTH-DAY OF St. GREGORY.

That the Curious may be able, with greater Eaſe, to read the Saxon, I have added this ALPHABET; ſhewing wherein the Roman and Saxon Letters agree, or differ.

Ā	A	ā	a
B	B	b	b
C	C	c	c
D	D	ð	d
Ē	E	ē	e
F	F	f	f
G	G	g	g
H	H	h	h
I	I	ı	i
K	K	k	k
L	L	l	l
M	M	m	m
N	N	n	n
O	O	o	o
P	P	p	p
R	R	r	r
S	S	ſ	ſ
T	T	t	t
Þ	TH	þ ð	th
U	U	u	u
Ƿ	W	ƿ	w
X	X	x	x
Y	Y	ẏ	y
Z	Z	z	z
⁊	And	⁊	and

þ for þæt, or þat; thæt or that.

The Senſe being imperfect, is ſignify'd by one Point, thus [.] but a Period, comprehending the full Senſe, is concluded by three Points, placed thus [⁘]

N A

NATALE S. GREGORII Papæ.

ON THE BIRTH-DAY of St. Gregory.

Regoriur ře halga Papa Engliscne þeode Apoſtol on þiſum anðeapðan ðæge æfter mænigfealdum ge-

GREGORY the Holy Father, the Apoſtle of the Engliſh Nation, on this preſent Day, after manifold La-

* Which was the day of his Death, the Obit, or Feſtival, or Commemoration, or Birth-day of the Saints, being uſually celebrated yearly on the day whereon they died; the Church being then aſſur'd of the Bleſſedneſs of the Saint, or that he had a new Birth or Tranſlation from the Church Militant to the Church Triumphant: By ſuch Commemorations the Church was thought to communicate with the holy Combatant, Confeſſor, or Martyr of Chriſt. That this was agreeable to antient Practice is evident from the account we have of the Martyrdom of St. Ignatius. See the Right Reverend the Lord Biſhop of Lincoln Dr. Wake's Tranſl. page 229. According to which Primitive Cuſtom the Saxon Church alſo obſerved the Commemoration of the Obits of her Saints: as more particularly with a juſt Gratitude ſhe here does ðeoꝛꝼum ⁊ halgum ġecnýꝑonýꝛꝛum Ġoðeꝛ ꝑice ġeꝛælıġlice aꝛtah· Þe ıꝛ ꝑıhtlice Englıꝛcene ðeoðe Apoꝛtol. ꝛoꝛðan þe he ꝑuꝑh hıꝛ ' næðe ⁊ ꝛanðe uꝛ ꝛꝑam ðeoꝛleꝛ bıġġenġum æt bꝛæð. ⁊ to ġoðeꝛ ġeleaꝛan ġebıġðe· Manıġe halıġe bec cýðað hıꝛ mæꝑan ðꝑohtnunge ⁊ hıꝛ halıġ lıꝼ. [b] ⁊ eac ıꝛtoꝑıa Angloꝑum ꝑa þe Ælꝼꝛeð cýnıng oꝼ leðen on Englıꝛc apenð· Ꝺeo bec ꝛꝑꝛecð ġenoh ꝛꝑutelıce be þıꝛꝛum halġum ꝑepe· Nu ꝑılle ꝑe ꝑeah ꝛum ðıng bours and Divine Studies, happily aſcended to God's Kingdom. He is rightly call'd the Apoſtle of the Engliſh People, inaſmuch as he through his Counſel and Commiſſion reſcued us from the Worſhip of the Devil, and converted us to the Belief of God. Many holy Books ſpeak of his illuſtrious converſation and his pious life; among theſe the Hiſtory of England, which King Ælfred tranſlated from the Latin into Engliſh. This Book ſpeaketh plainly enough of this holy Man. Nevertheleſs we will now ſay ſomething that of her great Apoſtle St. Gregory. This appears from an antient Kalendar, or Menologium, wherein we find the Day to be thus fixed, ad 12 Martii. See the Appendix.

' næð. Cod. Hatt.

[b] This is a remarkable Teſtimony of the Royal Tranſlation of Bede's Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory out of Latin into Engliſh, or into Saxon by King Ælfred, which Mr. Whelock, in his Preface to the Reader, introduces with no leſs Authority than that of the Saxon Church; and that with very good reaſon, the Church having appointed this Homily to be read upon the Feſtival of St. Gregory; his words are theſe, Rem vero confirmat Eccleſia Saxonica. iv Iduum Martii Sancti Gregorii Papæ Urbis Romanæ Inclyti Manıġa halıġe bec, &c. The Sermon from whence he quotes this Rubrick is referr'd to by him in the Margin, under this Title, Serm. Cath. MS. Sax. Bibl. Publ. Cantabr. pag. 300.

[1] ſcoptlice eop be him [2] bepeccan. foꝛðan þe ſeo foꝛeſæde boc niſ eop eallum cuð. þeah þe heo on Engliſc apend [3] iſ: Ðeſ eadig [c] papa Gpegoꝛiuſ pæſ of æþelne mægðe ⁊ of eappæꝛte acennes: Romaniſce pitan pæꝛon hiſ magoſ. hiſ fæðeꝛ hatte Goꝛðianuſ. ⁊ Felix ſe eappæꝛta papa pæſ hiſ fiꝛta fæðeꝛ: Ðe pæſ ſꝛa in few words concerning him; becauſe the aforeſaid Book is not known to you all, altho it is tranſlated into Engliſh. [d] This bleſſed Father Gregory was born of Noble and Religious Parents. His Anceſtors were of the Roman Nobility, his Father called Gordianus, and Felix that pious Biſhop was his [e] fifth Father. He was, as we

[1] ſceoptlice. C. Hatt. [2] gepeccan. C.H. [3] ſý. C.H.

[c] The word Papa, which is uſed in the Saxon, and which I have tranſlated ſometimes Biſhop, ſometimes Father, and ſometimes Pope, is not to be underſtood as if the Biſhop of Rome did then pretend to the Title of Univerſal Biſhop, as the Popes at preſent do; for how much this holy Biſhop diſliked any one's aſſuming to himſelf that Character, appears from the ſeveral Epiſtles referr'd to in Mr. Leſly's Letter to the Biſhop of Meaux, printed at the end of Dr. Hickes's Letters in Anſwer to a Popiſh Prieſt, and particularly in the Letter of this Excellent Biſhop to Mauricius the Emperor, in which he ſo notably taxes the Arrogance of John Patriarch of Conſtantinople, for aſſuming to himſelf the Title of an Univerſal Supremacy; which Letter I have therefore given you in the Appendix.

[d] This account of him may be alſo ſeen at large in Bede's Eccl. Hiſt. lib. 2. c. 1. altho' that part of it by the Royal Tranſlator was omitted, or has ſome way at leaſt been loſt.

[e] The Saxon Homiliſt has learnedly expreſs'd the original word Atavus by fiꝛta fæðeꝛ, that is, the fourth from his Father, or his Great-Grandfather's Grandfather: agreeable to that old Verſe of Plautus the Comedian, ſpa pe cpæðon. ſop populðe æþelboren: Ac he oferſtah hiſ æþelborenneſſ mið halgum þeapum ⁊ mið goðum peorcum geglenðe: Gregoriuſ iſ gpecirc nama ſe ſpegð on leðenum geneoroðe Vigilantiuſ. þæt iſ on Engliſce pacolne: Þe pæſ ſpyðe pacol on goðeſ bebodum þa þa he ſylf henigenðlice leoroðe. ⁊ he pacollice ymb manegra þeoda þeanra hogoðe. ⁊ have ſaid, in reſpect of the World, nobly deſcended: But he adorn'd, and exceeded his high Birth, with a holy Converſation and good Works. [f] Gregory is a Greek Name, which ſignifies in the Latin Tongue [g] Vigilantius, that is in Engliſh, [h] Watchful: He was very diligent in God's Commandments, while he himſelf lived moſt devoutly, and he was earneſtly concerned for promoting the Advantage of many Nations, and

1 2 3 4 5 6
Pater, avos, proavos, abavos, atavos, tritavos.

Atavus eſt quintus pater, the fifth Father, as Tanaquil. Fab. obſerves in his Notes on the firſt Ode in Horace. This Mr. Somner did not take notice of, explaining the Word by Tritavus, which would be the ſixta pæðep. The whole Latin Series is critically diſcuſs'd in the Etymol. of J. Ger. Voſſ. under the Word Avus.

[f] Gregoriuſ.

[g] It is the ſame alſo with Vigilius. And Goſcelin, in his Hiſt. Minor. cap. 2. ſpeaking of St. Gregory, calls him Gregorius ſecundum ſuum Nomen pervigil. Vid. Angl. Sacr. Part. II. pag. 56. And Paulus Diaconus, who firſt writ the Life of St. Gregory, and is follow'd by all the after Writers on that Subject, obſerves, that ex Græco eloquio in noſtra lingua [which is the Latin] vigilator, ſeu vigilans ſonat.

[h] Pacolne, Wakeler; of this kind we may reckon our Wake, Wakelin, or Wacelyn, Wakevil, Wakefield, &c.

heom liſer pæg gerputeloðe :· Þe pær ſpam cilðhaðe on boclicum lapum getýð. ⁊ he on þæpe lape ſpa gerælizlice þeah ⁊ on ealpe Romana býpig næſ nan hiſ gelica geþuht :· Þe gecneoðlæhte æfteſ piſpa lapeopa gebýrnunga. ⁊ næſ foſgýtel ac gefæſtnoðe hiſ lape on fæſt-hapelum gemýnðe. he hlod miþ þuſſtigum bpeoſte þa fleopenðan lape þe he eft æftep fýnſte miþ hunig ſpetſe þpohte made known unto them the way of Life. He was from his Childhood inſtructed in the knowledge of Books, and he ſo proſperouſly ſucceeded in his Studies, that in all the City of Rome there was none eſteemed to be like him. He was moſt diligent in following the Example of his Teachers, and not forgetful, but fixed his Learning in a retentive Memory. He ſuck'd in with a thirſty Deſire the flowing Learning, which he often, after ſome time, with a [i] Throat ſweeter than Honey, and with an

[i] With a Throat, i.e. Voice or Tongue. This is the very Character which Cicero, the great Roman Orator, gives of Neſtor, the wiſeſt of the Grecians; of whom he ſays, Ex ejus lingua melle dulcior fluebat oratio. De ſenectute, cap. 9. But he tells us Homer had ſaid it before him; and you'll find he did, Iliad. 1. v. 249.

Τῶ καὶ ἀπὸ γλώσσης μέλι ϐ γλυκίων ῥέεν αὐδή.

——Whoſe Tongue pour'd forth a Flood
Of more than Honey ſweet Diſcourſe. Chapman's Tranſl.

This, it ſeems, was the received Character of St. Gregory's Eloquence, as appears from Goſcelin of Canterb. who in his Hiſt. Min. c. 22. ſtyles him Melliſluus Papa Gregorius, Angl. Sacr. Part. II. p. 65. And no doubt this Author took the Notion from Paulus Diaconus, in the very words which are tranſlated in this Homily, and which are thus in Latin: Hauriebatque ſitibundo doctrinæ fluenta pectore, quæ poſt congruenti tempore mellito gutture eructaret. See his Life of St. Greg. in the Bened. Edit. p. 1. c. 2.

þæɼlice bealcoðe:· On ȝeonȝlicum ȝeaɼum þa þa hiɼ ȝeoȝuð æɼteɼ ȝecẏnðe poɼulð þinȝ luɼian ɼceolðe. þa onȝan he hine ɼẏlfne to ȝoðe ȝeðeoðan ȝ to eðle þæɼ uplican liɼeȝ miðeallum ȝepilnunȝum opðian:· Ꝼitoðlice æɼteɼ hiɼ fæðeɼ foɼðɼiðe he apæɼðe ɼix munuclif on agreeable Eloquence poured out. In his younger Years, when his Youth might naturally make him love the things of this World, then began he to dedicate himſelf to God, and with all his Deſires to breath after the Inheritance of a Heavenly Life. For after his [k] Father's departure he erected [l] ſix Monaſteries in [k] The Saxon Homily rightly makes uſe of fæðeɼ in this place, not following Paulus Diaconus, who has it Parentum obitu; for it was after the Death of his Father only, that he erected theſe Monaſteries, his Mother Silvia living ſome time after, as has been well obſerved by the Benedictines of the Congregation of St. Maur, from J. Diac. lib. 1. cap. 9. See their Life of Greg. lib. i. c. 2. §. vi.

[l] As to the number of Monaſteries the Hiſtorians generally agree. The ſeventh, which is ſaid to be built within the Walls of the City of Rome, was dedicated to the Honour of St. Andrew the Apoſtle, and ſituate near the Church of St. John and St. Paul on Mount Scaurus. In this, having taken upon him the Monaſtick Habit, he lived under the Government of two venerable Abbots, Hilarion and Maximianus; after theſe, tho' unwillingly, he was prevailed upon to take that Government upon himſelf. See Johan. Diac. in the Life of S. Greg. lib. i. c. vi.

Baronius, in the Year 581. n. 8. will have it, that Gregory had for his Inſtructor in the Monaſtick Diſcipline no other than Valentius or Valentio; to whom, having ſtruck Hilarion out of the Catalogue, ſucceeded Maximianus, Pretioſus, and Probus. But with this Account the Learned Benedictines of St. Maur are in no wiſe pleaſed; who after an ingenious Diſquiſition of the matter, give us this Series of the Abbots of St. Andrews; Hilarion, Valentius, Maximianus; who preſided in the Monaſtery at the time when Gregory was made Legat:

But

Sicilian-lande. ⁊ þæt ſeoþoðe binnon Romana bỳriġ ġetimbroðe. on þam he ſỳlf regolice unðer abboðeſ hæſum ðrohtnoðe: Ða ſeoſon mỳnſtru he ġelende mið hiſ aġenum. ⁊ ġenihtſumlice to dæġhpæmlice biġleoſan ġeġoðoðe: Done oſerneacan hiſ æhta he aſpende on ġoðeſ þeaſum. ⁊ ealle hiſ æðelboþennỳſſe to heoſonlicum pulðre apende: Þe eoðe æſ hiſ ġecỳſſneðnỳſſe

Sicily; and the ſeventh he built in the City of Rome; in which he himſelf lived as a Regular, under the Government of the Abbot. Theſe ſeven Monaſteries he adorn'd with his own Subſtance, and plentifully endow'd them for their daily Subſiſtence. The remainder of his Eſtate he beſtow'd on God's Poor; and he exchanged his Nobility of Birth for heavenly Glory. He was uſed [m] before his Converſion to

But after his Return from his Embaſſy, Gregory ruled the Monaſtery himſelf; in which Government Peter at length ſucceeded, and held the Chair while the Holy Father writ his Dialogues. See the Life of Greg. lib. i. c. 2. §. viii. by the ſame Learned Benedictines. They obſerve likewiſe that Bolandus reads from two MSS. inſtead of Hilarionis, Laurionis; but thinks it ſhould be read Valentionis. And it may not poſſibly be amiſs to take notice, that one of our Engliſh Hiſtorians agrees with the reading of his two MSS. giving this account of St. Gregory's ſucceeding to the Government of the Monaſtery: In quo poſt primos Abbates Laurionem & Maximianum tertius ipſe præfuit. See Will. Thorn Monk of St. Auguſtin's Cant. in his Hiſt. of the Abbots of St. Auguſtin's inter x. Script. pag. 1757.

[m] I. e. before his exchange of the Secular Habit for the Eccleſiaſtick. This deſcribes the Holy Father before this Change in the Secular Office of Prætor Urbanus, in which being oblig'd to uſe the Enſigns of this Authority, we find him array'd in the Robe of State appropriate to the Magiſtrate who held that high Office. Gregorius Turonenſis, and from him Paul. Diacon. tells us, it was the Trabea, and ſeems

ȝeonð Romana buſh mið [1] ꝑellenum ȝiſ-lum. ⁊ ſcinendum ȝym-mum. ⁊ neaðum ȝolð [2] ſnætepoðe:· Ac æfter hiſ ȝecỳnneðnỳſſe he ðenoðe ȝoðeſ ðeanſum ⁊ [3] hine ſỳlfe ðeanſa mið ðacum [4] ꝑæpelſe beſan-ȝen:· Sꝑa ſulfremeðlice he ðrohtnoðe on angỳn-ne hiſ ȝecỳnneðnỳſſe ſꝑa ꝧ he mihte ða iu beon paſs along the City of Rome in Garments of Silk, ſparkling with Gemms, and adorn'd with rich Embroidery of Gold and Red. But after his Converſion he miniſtred to God's Poor, and himſelf took upon him the Profeſſion of Poverty in a mean Habit. So perfectly did he behave himſelf at the beginning of his Converſion, that he might hereafter be

[1] pællenum ȝỳnlum. C. H.
[2] ȝeſnætepoðe. C. H. [3] him. C. H. [4] pæſelſe. C. H.

ſeems to give us the Image of Gregory thus habited ſerico contectus, ac gemmis micantibus ſolitus erat per urbem procedere trabeatus. By which it appears, that the Trabea was made of ſome rich Silk, and adorn'd with Jewels and Gold Embroidery. This Trabea, embelliſh'd with Jewels and Embroidery, was in antient times worn only by the Emperors themſelves in their Conſulſhip. Now we find in Gregory's time it was alſo made uſe of by the Prætor. The Poet Claudian gives us theſe flouriſhing Deſcriptions of it in the ſeveral Conſulſhips of Honorius.

——————Cinctuſque mutata Gabinos
Dives Hydaſpæis augeſcat purpura gemmis.

And again,

——————Aſperat Indus
Velamenta lapis, pretioſaque fila ſmaragdis
Ducta virent.——————

And in the laſt,

Membraque gemmato trabeæ viridantia cinctu

Thoſe

ȝeteald on fulfremedra halgena geteal: Se lufode forhæfednyſſe on metum ⁊ on drynce. ⁊ [n]on æcean. ⁊ on funderȝum gebedum. ſeofo eacan he ȝnorode ſingallice untrumnyſſe. ⁊ ſra he ſtiðlicor mid andreadum untrumnyſſum [1] ofſete ſæſ reputed in the number of perfect Saints. He obſerv'd much Abſtinence in Meat and Drink, in watching, and in frequent Devotions. He ſuffer'd moreover continual [o] Indiſpoſition of Body, and the more ſeverely he was oppreſs'd with his preſent Infirmities,

[1] ofſet. C. H.

Thoſe who would ſee more to this purpoſe may conſult the learned and ingenious Roman Antiquary Mr. B. Kennet, Antiq. Part 2. *c.*8. *p.*297. The Prætor Urbanus was a Magiſtrate who had a judicial Power of deciding Caſes of Right and Wrong between the Citizens, in ſome meaſure reſembling our Lord Mayor.

[n] Here ſeems ſome Word or other to be wanting in the Saxon.

[o] This account of his continual Indiſpoſition he gives us in his own words, in his Epiſtle to Leander Biſhop of Sevil; by which Epiſtle he dedicates to him his Moral. on Job, which he had undertaken at his requeſt. Quò malis præſentibus durius deprimor, eò de æterna certius præſumptione reſpiro. But it may not be amiſs to give you the whole thus in Engliſh: viz. " For while the Body is worn out with trouble; " the Mind alſo being affected, the Power of Eloquence decays. " Many Years now have paſs'd, in which I have been tormented with " frequent Pains in my Bowels, every hour and every moment, my dige- " ſtion being weaken'd, I begin to be quite tired out. I ſcarce breath " thro' ſlow but unintermitting Fevers. In the mean time, while I " diligently conſider with my ſelf what the Scripture ſaith, Every Son " which the Lord receiveth, he chaſteneth; Heb. xii. 6. the more I am " oppreſs'd with my preſent Infirmities, with the greater certainty " do I breath after eternal Life. And perhaps this was the Deſign " of Divine Providence, that I being ſmitten ſhould explain Job, " who was alſo ſmitten, and might better underſtand the Mind of

ſpa he ȝeopnfullicop þæſ ecan liſeſ ȝepilnode. þa unbeŋȝeat ſe papa þe on þam timan þæt apoſtollice ſætl ȝeſet hu ſe eadiȝe Gregoriuſ on halȝum mæȝnum þeonde pæſ. ȝ he þa hine

the more earneſtly did he deſire Eternal Life. Then the Pope which at that time ſat in the Apoſtolick See, when he perceived that the Holy Gregory was greatly increaſed in ſpiritual Virtues, he took him

" him that was under the Laſh by the Stripes which I feel my ſelf.

So far was the Holy Father from thinking bodily Infirmities a juſt occaſion for excluding Men from miniſtring in Divine Offices, that he judged it a great Qualification for diſpoſing Men to that Compoſedneſs and Serioufneſs of Temper, that is fitteſt for Men employ'd in Sacred Things: but thoſe were Times, when a loud Voice, and airy Converſation, and that Eaſineſs and Indifference which is equally concern'd for all things or for nothing, were not receiv'd and admitted amongſt Men for the only Standard of Good Humour and Chriſtian Charity. Studious Men, who macerated their Bodies and impair'd their Health, by Mortification, and Watchings, and Labours, for the Good of the Church, were looked upon as venerable, and to be admir'd by all good Men: and their Prayers and Adminiſtrations, who had ſo little Intereſt in the World, were thought to have ſo much greater efficacy in procuring Heavenly Bleſſings. It is very remarkable that ſome of the greateſt Saints and Men of the moſt celebrated Virtue and Learning have not always enjoy'd the greateſt ſhare of Health. God Almighty intermingling his Bleſſings and Corrections ſo as is moſt for his Glory and our Good. Ill Health is many times a natural Conſequence of hard Study, and by an extraordinary Application and Intention of the Mind, the bodily Strength is much enfeebled: And the Goodneſs of God, which knows always what is beſt for Men, when he bleſſes them with any ſignal Improvements in Virtue or Learning, is apt to caſt in ſuch Interruptions, as may make them remember they are but Men. For this reaſon St. Paul tells us he had given him a Thorn in the Fleſh; ſuch bodily Afflictions, as he knew were the Meſſengers of Satan to buffet him, leſt he ſhould be exalted above meaſure: But he did not from hence conclude himſelf unfit for the Miniſtry; but was reſolv'd the more to acquit himſelf worthy of it, in that he was thought worthy of ſuch a Conflict for the ſake of Chriſt.

ȝenam oꝼ þæꝛe munuclicꝛe ꝺꝛohtnunȝe ⁊ him tō [1] ꝼẏlꝛt ȝeꝛeꝛt on ꝺiaconhaꝺe ȝe enꝺe bẏꝛone:· Ða ȝelamp hit æt ꝛumum ꝛæle. ꝛꝛa ꝛꝛa ȝẏt ꝼoꝛ oꝼt ꝺeꝺ. þæt Enȝliꝛce [2] cẏꝺmen bꝛohton heoꝛa paꝛe to Romana-bẏꝛiȝ. ⁊ Ꝺꝛeȝoꝛiuꝛ eoꝺe be þæꝛe ꝛtꝛæt to þam Enȝliꝛcum mannum heoꝛa þinȝ ꝛceaꝛiȝenꝺe:· Ða ȝeꝛeah he beꝛꝛuxt þam paꝛum cẏꝛecnihtaꝛ ȝeꝛettе. þa pæꝛon hꝛitꝛeꝛ lichaman ⁊ ꝼæȝneꝛ anꝺlitan men. ⁊ æꝺelice from converſing with Monks, and appointed him to be his Aſſiſtant, having ordained him a [p] Deacon. It happen'd at ſome time, as it often doth, that ſome Engliſh Merchants brought their Merchandizes to Rome: And Gregory paſſing along the Street to the Engliſh-men taking a view of their Goods, he there beheld amongſt their Merchandizes [q] Slaves ſet out to ſale. They were white complexion'd, and Men of fair countenance, having noble

[1] ȝeꝼẏlꝛt. C. H. [2] cẏꝛꝛmen. C. H.

[p] His being received to the Order of Deacon is thus expreſs'd by Paul. Diac. Eccleſiaſtici ordinis officio ſublimavit, Levitamque ſeptimum ad ſuum adjutorium adſcivit. The Pope promoted him to the Eccleſiaſtical Order, and took him to be his Aſſiſtant, having ordain'd him his ſeventh Deacon. From which there are two things to be obſerv'd; firſt, that the Order of Deacon is expreſs'd by the Word Levita, anſwerable to that of the Levites in the Moſaical Law. Secondly, that that antient Cuſtom was ſtill in force at Rome, of which Cornelius the Biſhop of Rome makes mention in his Ep. Euſeb. lib. vi. cap. 43. that there ſhould be only ſeven Deacons. In all likelihood in imitation of the firſt Apoſtolical Church, in which ſeven Deacons only were ordain'd. This matter may be ſeen in the Life of Gregory by the often cited Benedict. lib. 1.

[q] William Thorn Monk of St. Auguſtin's Canterbury tells us, there were three of theſe Boys: Vidit in foro Romano tres pueros Anglicos lactei candoris venales. X. Script. p. 1757. c. 1.

ȝeſeaxode: Gregorius þa beheolð þæra cnapena ſlihte ⁊ beornan oſ hiſilcere ðeode hi ȝebohte wæron. þa ſæde him man þ hi of Engla lande wæron ⁊ þ þara þeode mennisc ſwa ſlihtiȝ wære: Eft þa Gregorius beornan hwæðer þæt landes folc Cristen wære þe hæðene; him man ſæde þ hi heaðene wæron. Gregorius þa of inweardre heortan langsume ſiccetunge teah ⁊ cwæð. [f] Wæ la wa. þ ſwa fæȝere hiwes men [g] sýndon þam ſweartan deofle underðeode: Eft þa Gregorius beornan hu wære þeode nama wære þe hi ofcumon. him wæs ȝeandsýnd þæt hi Angle ȝenemnode wæron: Da cwæð he rihtlice hi sýndon

Heads of Hair. And Gregory, when he ſaw the Beauty of the Young Men, enquired from what Country they were brought, and the Men ſaid from England; and that all the Men in that Nation were as beautiful. Then Gregory asked them whether the Men of that Land were Chriſtians, or Heathens; and the Men ſaid unto him they were Heathens. Gregory then fetching a long Sigh from the very bottom of his Heart, ſaid, Alas! alas! that Men of ſo fair a Complexion ſhould be ſubject to the Prince of Darkneſs. After that Gregory enquired how they call'd the Nation from whence they came. To which he was anſwer'd, that they were called Angle [that is, Engliſh:] Then ſaid he, rightly they are

[f] Well a way is in common uſe to this day in the North, to expreſs their Grief, or Surprize.

[g] Sweartan deofle. Word for word the Black Devil; the Saxon Phraſe for the Prince of Darkneſs.

Angle gehatene. forðan þe hi Engla ſhihte habbaþ. ⁊ ſcilcum gedafenaþ þæt hi on heofonum Engla gefeon beon: Gyt þa Gregorius befran hu þære ſcýne nama wære þe þa cnapan of alædde wæron. him man ſæde [1] þ þe ſcinmen wæron [2] Deiri gehatene: Gregorius and-called Angle, becauſe they have the Beauty of Angels, and therefore it is very fit that they ſhould be the Companions of Angels in Heaven. Yet ſtill Gregory enquired what the Shire was nam'd from which the Young Men were brought. It was told him that the Men of that Shire were call'd [r] Deiri. Gregory an-

[1] þæt þa. C. H. [2] Dere. C. H.

[r] Dere, Deiri, & Diera. That this was part of the Kingdom of the Northumbrians, is aſſerted by the generality of our Hiſtorians, who agree with Bede, Hiſt. Eccleſiaſt. lib. iii. in the Diviſion of it into the two ſeveral Kingdoms of Deiri and Bernicii: Dera rice and Beornica rice, or as the Saxon Chron. has it, Deanne rice, p. 29. 23. & 32. 7. And Bænnice, p. 30. 2. and Beornice. 44. 26. But they are not ſo well agreed, as to the Limits of the two leſſer Kingdoms. Richard Prior of Hexham (Vid. X. Script. p. 285.) fixes the Limits of Deira between the Rivers Humber and Tees; but thoſe of Bernicia between the Tees and Twede. He affirms, That ſome of the Northumbrian Kings reign'd only over the Deiri, as Elle; others over the Bernicii only, as Adda, the Son of Ella: Some over both the Deiri and Bernicii, as Edwine Son of the ſame Ella, and St. Oſwald and Oſwius, from whoſe Times the Kingdom remain'd entirely under one. And this Diviſion Mr. Somner ſeems to approve of, in his Gloſſ. voce Deora mægþe in complaiſance to Mr. Camden, in Ottadinis. But the Learned Antiquary (which may well be excuſed in ſo large and laborious a Work) ſeems to have overlook'd what he had before deliver'd in Brigant. where he aſſigns to Deira all that lies between Tine and Humber, and to Bernicia all from Tine to the Frith of Edenburgh. To this Diviſion I am rather inclin'd to agree, in reference to the Etymology of the word, which our Antiquaries will have derived from deor, ſignifying wild Beaſts, and that this Diviſion of the Kingdom took ꝑꝑꝺe. ꝓæl hi ꝛỏnꝺon Deiꝛi ꝛwer'd, Well they are ȝehaꝺene. ꝓoꝛ ꝺam þe hi called Deiri, becauſe ꝛỏnꝺ ꝓnam ȝnaman ȝene- they are deliver'd from noꝺe ȝ to Cꝛiꝛteꝛ milꝺhe- Wrath and called to the oꝛtneꝛꝛe ȝecỏȝeꝺe ·· Cỏt Mercy of Chriſt. Yet took its Name from the Woods which gave them ſhelter. Theſe Woods, in all probability, extended from the Humber to the Derwent, which empties it ſelf into the Tine, taking in Deoꝛꝛalꝺ and Deoꝛham in its way, which all of them bear ſome affinity with the Name. The latter of which lies beyond the Tees, betwixt it and the Derwent: And there is a Deſcription of it agreeable enough to our Conjecture, given in that elegant Saxon Poem, which was firſt printed in Simeon Dunelm. X. Script. p. 76. and again in the laſt Page at the End of the Gloſſary; but ſince much more correctly in Dr. Hickes's Learned and moſt Complete Theſaurus, with a Latin Tranſlation and Notes of the Right Reverend the Lord Biſhop of Carliſle.

Ꝛnꝺ þeꝛe ȝeꝛexen
ꝓuꝺa ꝛeꝛtenn mỏcel.
ꝓuniaþ in þem ꝑicum
ꝓilꝺa ꝺeoꝛ maniȝe.
In ꝺeoꝛa ꝺalum,
Deoꝛa unȝeꝛim ··

Ibique creſcit	And there likewiſe grows
Silvarum Saltus ingens;	A woody large Defence;
Sinus poſſident	In the Thickets dwell
Feræ quamplurimæ;	Of wild Beaſts great ſtore;
In vallibus profundis	In the Vallies deep
Damarum turba innumera.	Herds numberleſs of Deer.

And now if I have given the Deiri too large an extent of Dominion, the juſtly celebrated Character of the Learned and Judicious Editor of the Saxon Chron. who carries it farther, will ſtand between me and Cenſure. He agrees in the Derivation of the Word from Deoꝛ Fera; but to the Kingdom of Deira he alots all that lies between Humber and Twede, and includes by Name Yorkſhire, Lancaſhire, Weſtmorland, Cumberland, Northumberland, and Biſhoprick of Durham: To the Beoꝛnicaꝛ he aſſigns all that lies between the Twede and the Frith of Edenburrow.

þa he beſſpan hu ıſ þæſe ſcıſe cyning ȝehaten. him peſ ȝeanðſpaſoð þ ſe cyning ælle ȝehaten pæſe: Þpæt again he enquired what was the Name of the King of their Province; he was anſwer'd, that the King's Name was [u] Ælla. Thereburrow. But after all, it will not be impoſſible to reconcile all theſe Diviſions upon the Foot of that account which the Prior of Hexham, as afore cited, gives us of the different Extent of Dominion that different Kings were poſſeſſed of, according to their ſeveral Rights or Claims of Succeſſion, and the Events of War.

[u] Ella. As it was cuſtomary with the Northern, as well as other Nations, to take Names which had ſomewhat of good Importance; ſo that of Ella may deſerve particular Obſervation, ſince it may be derived from Ellen, or according to the Cimbric Poets, eliun; the Francic Ellan, and Francic Poetical Ellean; by which is underſtood Courage, Greatneſs of Soul, Study, Labour, Diligence, Virtue, &c. Of which the Incomparable Author of the immenſe Treaſure of North. Antiq. gives us ſeveral Inſtances; as in the Saxon Paraphr.

Cunnode ȝeorne.	Full well he knew
Þpilc þæſ æþelingeſ	What the noble Hero's
Ellen pæſe:	Virtue was.

And ſo in Herbar Sag. c. xii. aſl oc eliun, Strength and Courage. For aſl, according to Ol. Verel. ſignifies Strength of Body; eliun, the Virtues of the Mind. Again, in the Francic Harmony, c. xxxvi. Þabda im ellen ȝuod thıŋta ȝitahti. He had Courage and generous Thoughts. From all which it appears, That Ella had a moſt generous Signification, intimating all kinds of Virtue, but chiefly thoſe of the Mind. Vid. Grammat. Angl. Sax. p. 128. Ella was the firſt King of the Deiri, when Ida was the firſt King of Bernicia; whoſe Progeny after them enjoy'd the two Kingdoms, ſome of them ſeparately, and ſome the whole Northumbrian Kingdom entire, according as their ſeveral Claims, or the Chance of War gave them poſſeſſion. Thus Edwine, Son of this Great King Ella, as Speed calls him, King of the Deirians, was the third King that poſſeſs'd the ſame, the Eight of Bernicia, the ſecond King, but firſt þa Gregorius gumenode mid hiſ popðum to þam naman. ⁊ cpæð. hit gebarenað þ alleluia ſy gerungen on þam lande to loſe

fore Gregory playing upon the Words in alluſion to the Name, ſaid, it is fit that Hallelujah be ſung in that Land in praiſe

firſt Chriſtian King of the Northumbrians, and after the Death of Redwald, whom he ſucceeded in the Engliſh Monarchy, the greateſt King of all the Saxons. Ella being ſo great himſelf, and his Son after him ſo glorious, it is natural to imagine, that either the Father would deſire to leave ſome Marks of his Conqueſts and planting there, or his Son do ſomewhat to perpetuate the Memory of his Father. Hence it is in all probability there are at this day ſome Towns that bear an affinity with the Name in thoſe Parts, which come within the extent of thoſe Kings Dominions; as Ellecroft, Ellington, Elton, Elſwic, Eſlaby, probably for Ellasby, &c. And ſince the Holy Father thought it not inconſiſtent with the Gravity of ſo great a Prelate to play upon the word Ella, and to give us an opportunity of alluding to the ſame Name, I will beg leave to inſert one Alluſion more, which I heard ſome time ago made to it in the Name Elſtob, or Elleſtobb, as I find it written, an. 1345. This in all likelihood at firſt was written Ellanſtope. Ellaſtope. Ellſtope. ſignifying ſome Palace of King Ella, or ſome Town built in memory of him. This, after the Conqueſt, coming to be written with this kind of ƿƿ, inſtead of the Saxon ƿ, might eaſily paſs in proceſs of time into the bbe, as Elſtobbe for Elſtoƿƿe: Nor is there any ſuch difference of Sound, as need prejudice the Conjecture; for it is a thing well known among Grammarians, that Letters which affect the ſame Organ of Speech are eaſily changed one for another: But I make no more of it than a Conjecture and ſo carry on the Alluſion to the Name; which kind of Etymological Alluſions are thought to be of no ſmall Uſe and Diverſion, not only in the Saxon, but all the Northern Languages, to thoſe who have a Genius not averſe to ſuch Speculations. This may be ſeen from the Works of ſeveral Learned Men, as of Camden, Grotius, and others, and more particularly in that moſt ample Treaſury of Northern Learning and Antiquity by Dr. Hickes. Vide Diſſert. Epiſt. p. 157. Thus we may obſerve ſome borrowing their Names from Towns, as Adam de Elneſtobb, as it appears in an antient Writing, an. 1304. Thomas de Ellford, Richard de Allington, and the like: Others from Perſons, from whom they claim their Deſcent, as from Ella, Elſing, Elſon, Elliſon, þæʃ ælmihtigan ſcyppendes: Gregorius þa eode to þam papam þæʃ Apoſtolican ſetles. ⁊ hine bæd. þ he Angelcynne ſume lareowas aſende þe hi to Criſte gebigdon mid Godes fultume. ⁊ cwæð. þ he ſylf geare wære. þ peonc to gefremmenne. gif hit þam papam ſwa gelicode: Da ne mihte ſe papa þ geðafian of the Almighty Creator. Gregory then went to the Biſhop of the Apoſtolical See, and deſired him, that he would ſend ſome Inſtructors to the Engliſh People, that they might be converted to Chriſt by the Grace of God: and ſaid that he himſelf was ready to undertake that Work, if the Pope ſhould think it fit. But the [t]Pope could not conſent Elliſon, Allaſon, &c. Names well known in the Places we have before mention'd, within the Limits of Diepalond. And that which may yet further excuſe the tediouſneſs of the Alluſion, may be this; that as the Holy Gregory's Affection to the Subjects of King Ella was the Occaſion of bringing Chriſtianity to all the Saxons; ſo it hath fallen out by Providence, to one not only born within the Circuit of thoſe Dominions, but nearly approaching to his Name, to ſhew ſome ſort of Gratitude, in reſtoring to the Engliſh this Memorial of their Apoſtle and Benefactor at ſo great a diſtance of time.

[t] The Pope indeed, at the earneſt and importunate Entreaty of Gregory, tho' very unwillingly, let him go: But the whole City was hereupon immediately in an Uproar and Confuſion. And this general Complaint from all places reach'd the Pope's Ears: Petrum offendiſti, Romam deſtruxiſti, quia Gregorium dimiſiſti. You have offended St. Peter, you have deſtroy'd Rome, in having parted with Gregory. With which Clamour the Pope was ſo far terrified, that he was forced to call him back, after he had proceeded three days on his Journey. With this Conſent of the Pope, and Gregory's being recall'd from his Undertaking, which is not mention'd by Bede, we are firſt made acquainted by Paulus Diaconus, from whom thoſe who mention this Tranſaction ſeem to have copied it; as amongſt our Hiſtorians, John Brompton, p. 726. William Thorne, p. 1758. x. Script. And many likewiſe of the Circumſtances of this whole Narration are ꝛian. þeah þe he ealh polde; forðan þe Romanisċan [1] ceastre gepapan noldon gedafian þ ꝛa getogen man ⁊ ꝛa gedungen lareop þa burh eallunga forlete. ⁊ ꝛa ꝛyplene præcride genamen. Æfter þisum gelamp þæt mycel man cpealm becom ofer þæne Romanisċe leode. ⁊ ærest þone papam Pelagium geto it, although he altogether approved of it; becauſe the Roman Citizens would not ſuffer ſo Worthy and Learned a Doctor to leave the City quite, and take ſo long a Pilgrimage. After this it happen'd that a great Plague came upon the Roman People, and firſt of all ſeized upon Pope [x] Pela-

[1] ceaſtre. C. H.

given us in a very agreeable Style and Method by our Learned Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtorian Mr. Collier, lib. 2. But the Learned Benedictines, who made it their buſineſs to gather and examine all Notices relating more particularly to the Life of St. Gregory, have accordingly obliged us with a Collection the moſt complete and accurate upon the Subject. As to the reluctancy of the Roman People to part with a Perſon of ſuch eminent Virtues and Piety as St. Gregory, this diſcovers ſuch a noble Chriſtian Zeal and Reverence for good Things and Perſons, as has not ſufficiently been imitated in all Ages or Places; and the Conſtancy of their Affection to him, which never ceaſed till they had placed him in the Papal Chair, nor in any ſucceeding part of his Life, affords an Example that may well upbraid the unſtable humor of ſome Men in after times, who never are pleaſed with any thing but that which is new, nor affect any Man's Perſon, who, like Holy Gregory, is ſo ſincere, as not to indulge them in all their Novelties: Which Love of Novelty Mankind ſhould be very cautious in embracing, leſt ſooner than they imagine it ſhould perſuade them that Chriſtianity it ſelf is grown antiquated: They ought certainly to be admoniſhed of this by the too many Inſtances of thoſe with whom it is already out of date.

[x] Subſecuta eſt de veſtigio clades, quæ, &c. Gregory Turonenſis, giving an account of the overflowing of the Tiber, and the Multitude of Serpents, and the great Dragon that lay like ſome huge Beam in the midſt of the Channel, and from thence took its Paſſage into the Sea;

ſtod ⁊ buton yldinge hine abýdde: Witodlice æfter þæſ papam ge endunge ſwa micel [1] cpælm gepeaſð þæſ folcef þat gehpæſ ſtodon aperte-huſ geond þa buph buton bugigendum. þa ne mihte ſwa þeah ſeo Romana buph buton Papam punian: Ac ealle ꝑ folc þone eadigan Gregorium to þære [2] gedinnde anmodlice geceaſ. þeah þe he mid eallum [y] mægnum piðepigende pære: Gregoriuſ þa ſend ænne pi-ſtol to þam Caſere Mauricium ſe pæſ hiſ [z] fæderna.

gius, and without delay took him off. Moreover, after the Death of this Pope, the Deſtruction was ſo great among the People, that every where throughout the City the Houſes ſtood deſolate, and without Inhabitants. Nevertheleſs it was not fit that the Roman City ſhould be without a Biſhop. But all the People unanimouſly choſe the Holy Gregory to that Honour, altho' he with all his Power oppoſed it. Then Gregory ſent an Epiſtle to Mauricius the Emperor, to whoſe Child he had ſtood Godfather,

[1] cpealm. C. H. [2] gedineðe. C. H.

Sea: But that the Beaſts being ſuffocated in the Salt Water, were caſt dead upon the Shore. He adds, that hence there immediately aroſe a Plague, which coming in the midſt of the Eleventh Month, firſt of all (according to what we read in the Prophet Ezekiel, c. ix. v. 6. Begin at my Sanctuary.) ſmote Pelagius the Biſhop, and immediately deprived him of Life. Gregor. Turon. lib. x. Hiſtoriar.

[y] Mid eallum mægnum: A Saxon Phraſe ſtill in uſe with us; as, With all his main; With might and main.

[z] The Word fæderna, Mr. Somner in his Gloſſary explains by Patruus, that is, an Uncle by the Father's ſide, a Father's Brother: But it is probable, that the Saxons had beſides that, another Meaning of the Word: For it does not appear from Hiſtory, that there was any ȝ hine halſode ȝ myċe-lum bæd. ꝧ he næſſe

þam ſolce ne ȝeðafode
ꝧ he mið þæȝ ſuſðmyntes ſulðe ȝeuſepoð pæne. ſoſðan þe he onðred ꝧ he þuſh þone micclan had on populdicum ſulðe þe he æſ apeaſſ æt ſumum ſæle bepæhte ſuſðe:· Ac þæȝ and earneſtly deſired and beſeech'd him, that he would never ſuffer the People to exalt him to the Glory of that high Promotion, becauſe he fear'd, that he, through the greatneſs of the Charge and the worldly Glory which he had ſome time before renounced, might again be enſnared. But the ſuch relation between Mauricius and Gregory. One would rather imagine, that it was ſometimes uſed to ſignifie what is expreſt by the Latin Word Compater, a reciprocal Term between the Father of the Child, and thoſe that ſtand Godfathers to it. This manner of ſpeaking is well enough known at this Day in the North of England by the Word Goſſip, from another Saxon Word God-ſibbe, Cognatus, Luſtricus, Sponſor, a Goſſip, a Coſin before God; one that in Baptiſm ſtands forth in the Infant's behalf, and undertaking for it, makes its Peace with God, as Mr. Somner interprets it. Which may yet be better underſtood by theſe and the like Phraſes, which are ſtill uſed in the North. My Goſſip Thomas——— ſtood Godfather to my Child: Harry and I are Goſſips, for I ſtood Godfather to his Child: John and I are Goſſips, for we both ſtood Godfathers to George —'s Child. And the Word Commother ſignifies the ſame relation that Women have to each other, and to the Father and Godfathers: For whoever ſtands Godmother to a Child, ſhe is the Father's Commother and the Mother's, and the Godfather's and the Godmother's. And there is no doubt but the common and ordinary Compellation of Gaffer and Gammer, that are now ſo uſual in the Southern Parts, had the ſame Original; Gaffer being only a Contraction of Godfather, Godfr. and Gammer of Godmother, Godmr. Which tho' Mr. Somner has not ſo exactly obſerved in the Word Fæðepa, applying it only to a natural Relation, while he explains it Uncle: Yet he is not much out of the way, if he had explain'd it in a ſpiritual Senſe; the Godfather, in a ſpiritual capacity, being as it were the Father's Brother, or kind of ſpiritual Uncle. The Dictionary of the French Academy ſhews us

Caſepeſ heah ȝepeca Ceapmanuſ ȝelæhte þone pirtol ⁊ hine to tæſ. ⁊ ſiðþan cýðde þam Caſepe þæt eall þat folc Cpeȝopium to papam ȝecopen hæfde: Mauricius þa ſe Caſepe þæſ Code þancode. ⁊ hine hadian hæt: Þpæt þa

Emperor's * High Marſhal Germanus intercepted the Letter and tore it in pieces, and afterwards told the Emperor that all the People had choſen Gregory to be Pope. Then Mauricius the Emperor returned thanks to Almighty God for this, and gave Orders for his Conſecration.

us likewiſe that they have much the ſame Notion in the Word Compere. And the moſt celebrated Wits of France, not having refuſed to ſtoop to ſo low and familiar a way of delivering their Explications, they ſeem as it were to make my Apology, for the vulgar and leſs polite kind of Expreſſions, I have been obliged to make uſe of in the foregoing Compariſons. Nom d'alliance ſpirituelle qui ſe donne par un homme, & par un femme à celuy, qui a tenu ſur les fonds quelqu'un de leurs enfans, & reciproquement par le parrain à celui dont on a tenu un des enfants ſur les fonds, & au pere du meſme enfant. C'eſt mon compere, il a tenu un de mes enfants. C'eſt mon compere, j'ay tenu un de ces enfants. Il eſt mon compere, j'ay tenu un enfant avec luy. That the Saxon Word Fæðepa is to be underſtood according to this Acceptation, may very fairly be conjectured from Gregorius Turonenſis, from whoſe Words the Saxon Homiliſt ſeems to have tranſlated the whole Paſſage, which is thus cited by the Benedictines: Gregorius Turonenſis refert, Sanctum Diaconum filium Mauricii Auguſti (haud dubie natu majorem) ex lavacro ſacro ſuſcepiſſe, dum Conſtantinopoli adhuc moraretur: quod quantum ei fuerit perhonorificum, nullus eſt qui non intelligat. Gregory of Tours relates, that the Holy Deacon ſtood Godfather at the ſacred Font to the Son of Mauricius the Emperor (no doubt his eldeſt) while he was yet reſident at Conſtantinople: Which thing how great an Honour it was to him, no one can be ignorant. Lib. x. c. 1.

* By Gregorius Turonenſis, and Paul. Diac. he is ſtiled Præfectus Urbis; and the former ſpeaks of him as a near Relation or Brother to St. Gregory: That St. Gregory had ſuch a Brother, the Benedictines prove from his Epiſtles, concerning which ſee their Life of him, L. 1. c. 1. n. 5.

Gregorius fleamef ceptte. ⁊ on dimhofan æt lutode: Ac hine men gelæhte. ⁊ deah to Petpef cipcan þæt he þef to papam gehalgod pupde: Gregorius þa æf hif hadunge þ Romanirc folc for þam onfigendum cpealm þýrum fordum hi to behneofrunge tihte. Mine gebroðra þa leofeftan. uf gedafenað þ se Godef frinzle þe fe on æf topeapde ondneadon fceoldon. þ se hupu nu andpeapde ⁊ apandode ondneadon: Geopenize uf upe fæfnýrfe mfæf foðne gecýfnednýrre. ⁊ þ pite þe fe ðnodiað to bnece upe heoftan heafdnýrfe: Efne nu þif folc if mid frupde þæf heofonlican gnaman offlazen. ⁊ gehpylce ænlipege fýnd mid fæflicum flýhtum afefte:

But Gregory betook himſelf to flight, and lay hid in a Cave. Nevertheleſs they found him out, and carried him by force to St. Peter's Church, that he might there be conſecrated to the Popedome. Then Gregory, before his Conſecration, by reaſon of the encreaſing Peſtilence, exhorted the Roman People to Repentance in theſe words. "My moſt beloved "Brethren, it behoveth us, "that that Rod of God which "we ought to have dreaded, "when we only expected it "would be laid upon us, "ſhould now at leaſt raiſe "in us ſome Concern when "it is preſent and we have "felt it. Let our Grief open "us a way to a true Converſion, and let that Puniſh-"ment which we endure, "break the hardneſs of our "Hearts. Behold now this "People is ſlain with the "Sword of heavenly Anger, "and each of them one by "one is deſtroy'd by a ſud-"den Slaughter. For the

Ne ſeo adl þam deaðe ne ſone ſtæpð. ac ge geſeoð þ ſe yldca deað þæne adle ſonnaðað: Se gerlagena bið mid deaðe gegripen ær þan þe he to heoſungum ſoðne be hneoſunge gecyrran mæge: Þogiað ſon þy hrylc ſe becume æt ſonan gerýhðe þær ſtrecccan deman ſe þe ne mæg þæt yfel beſepan þe he gefremede: Gehylce eorð burigende ſynd æt hroðene. ⁊ heora huſ ſtandað apeſte: Fæderaſ ⁊ moddru berſtandað heora bearnes lic. ⁊ heora yngſtumman heom ſylfum to ſorpyrðe ſore ſtæppað: Uton eornoſtlice ſleon to heoſunge ſoðne dæðbote þa hrile þe ge moton, ær þam þe ſe ' fæplice ſlege uſ arrnecce:

"Diſeaſe does not go before
"Death, but you ſee that "each Man's Death prevents
"the lingring of a Diſeaſe.
"The Slain are ſeized by "Death before they can have "an opportunity of Sighing
"and Lamentation, to ex-
"preſs their ſincere Repen"tance. Wherefore let each "Man take care how he "comes into the Preſence of
"the mighty Judge, who "will not bewail the Evil
"which he has perform'd.
"(Almoſt) all the Dwellers
"upon Earth are taken a"way, and their Houſes ſtand
"empty. Fathers and Mo"thers ſtand over the dead
"Bodies of their Children,
"and their Heirs ſtep be"fore them to Death. Let "us earneſtly betake our "ſelves to Lamentation with "true Repentance now while
"we may, before this dread"ful Slaughter ſtrike us.

' fæplica. C. H.

Uton ȝemunan ſpa hpæt ſpa pe ðpeliȝende agýlton. ⁊ uton mið pope ȝepihtnian ⁊ þæt pe manfullice aðfu-ȝon: Uton fopfiaðian Gode anfýne on andetnýſſe ſpa ſpa ſe pitega uſ manaþ. Uton ahebban upe heoptan mið handum to Gode. þæt iſ ⁊ pe ſceolon þa ȝecnýſnýſſe upe bene mið ȝeafnunge Godes peoncef up-afnæpan: He [1] fopȝifaþ ðnupan upe fophtunge ſe þe þuph hiſ pitegan clýpaþ. Nelle ic þæf finfullan ðeaþ. ac ic pille ⁊ he ȝecýpre ⁊ libbe: Ne op ðnupiȝe nan man hine ſýlfne fop hiſ ſýnna mýcelnýſſe. pitoðlice þa ealðan ȝýltaf Niniueiſcne þeode þfeopa daȝa behfeopfunge hý [2] aðýȝelode: ⁊ ſe

" Let us call to mind whatever Errors we have been " guilty of, and O! let us " do Penance with Tears " for that which we have " done amiſs. Let us reconcile God's Favour to " us by confeſſing our Sins, " as the Prophet warneth us: " [b] Let us lift up our Hearts " with our Hands unto God; " that is, that we ought " to lift up [or preſent] " the Sincerity of our Devotions with an earneſt of " Good Works. He giveth " you confidence in your " Fear, who ſpeaks to you " by his Prophet: [c] I have " no pleaſure in the Death of " the Wicked, but that the " Wicked ſhould turn from his " way and live. Let not any " Man deſpair of himſelf for " the greatneſs of his Sin, for- " aſmuch as the old Guilt of " the People of Niniveh was " expiated by their three " Days Repentance: And

[1] fopȝifaþ. C. H.

[2] aðýlegode. C. H.

[b] Lamentations, ch. iii. v. 41.

[c] Ezekiel, ch. xxxiii. v. 11.

[1]ȝecyꝑꝑeðaꝛceaꝑaonhiꝛ	" the penitent Thief by
ðeaðeꝛ cpyðe þæꝛ ecan	" his dying Words attained
liꝼeꝛ meðe ȝeaꝑnoðe:	" to the Reward of Eter-Uꝛonaꝑenðanuꝑeheoꝑ-	" nal Life. O let us then
ꝛtan to Doðe. hꝑæðlice	" turn our Hearts to God;
byð ꝛe ðema to uꝑum	" ſpeedily is the Judge in-
benum ȝebiȝeð. ȝiꝼ ꝑe	" clined to our Petitions, ꝼꝑam uꝑum þꝑyꝑnyſ-	" if we from our Per-
ꝛum beoð ȝeꝑihtleahtr	" verſeneſs be ſet ſtreight.
Uꝛon ꝛtanðan miþ ȝe-	" O let us ſtand with ear-
mahlicum ꝑoꝑum onȝean	" neſt Lamentations againſt
þam onꝛiȝenðum ꝛꝑuꝑðe	" the threatning Sword of
ꝛꝑa micleꝛ ðomeꝛ: ðoðlice	" ſo great a Judgment.
ȝemahnyſſ iꝛ þam	" Certainly Perſeverance
ꝛoðan ðeman ȝecpeme.	" is pleaſing to the juſt þeah þe heo mannum	" Judge, although it is unþancpyꝛðe ꝛy. ꝑoꝛ-	" not grateful to Men: beðanðe ꝛe æꝼeꝛꝛta ⁊ ꝛe	" cauſe the Righteous and miloheoꝑta Doð [2] pill	" Merciful God will have
þ ꝑe miþ ȝemahli-	" us with earneſt Petitions
cum benum hiꝛ miloꝛ-	" to requeſt his Mercy, heoꝑtnyſſe oꝼȝan. ⁊ he	" and he will not ſo much nelle ꝛꝑa miclum ꝛꝑa ꝑe	" as we deſerve, be anȝeeaꝑnaðuꝛ ȝeyꝑꝛi-	" gry with us. Of this an: Be þiꝛum he cpæð	" he ſpeaketh by his Pro-þuꝑh hiꝛ ꝑiteȝan. Cly-	" phet. [d] Call upon me in pa me on ðæȝe þinꝑe ȝe-	" the Day of thy Trouble,
oꝛeꝼeonyſſe ⁊ ic pille	" and I will deliver thee,
þe ahꝑæðden ⁊ þu mæꝑ-	" and thou ſhalt glorify me.

[1] ȝecyꝑꝑeðe. C. H.

[2] pile. C. H.

[d] Pſal. l. v. 15.

ſaſt me: God ſylf is his owri ıſ hiſ ȝepıta þ he mılt-ſıan pılle hım to clypı enðum. ſe þe manaþ þ pe hım to clypıan ſceolon: Foꝛ þı mine ȝehnoþnu þa [1] leoꝛoꝛtan.
Utan ȝecumon on þam
ſeoꝛðan ðæȝe þıſſepe
pucan on æne [2] moꝛı ȝen ȝ mıð eꝛtꝛullum
moðe ȝ [3] teaꝛan ſınȝan ſeoꝛonꝛealðe Letanıaſ þæt ſe ſtꝛeca ðema uſ ȝeaꝛıȝe þonne he ȝeſyhð þ pe ſylf uſe ȝyltaſ ꝓꝓeca[4]ð: Eoꝛnoꝛtlice þa þa ſeo mıcele menıȝu æȝðeꝛ ȝe

" God himſelf is his own
" Witneſs, that he will have
" compaſſion on him that
" calleth on him; who ad-
" moniſhes us, that it is
" our Duty to call upon " him. For this cauſe, my " moſt dearly beloved Bre" thren, let us come toge" ther on the fourth Day of " this Week early in the " Morning, and with a de-
" vout Mind, and with Tears,
" [e] ſing ſeven Litanies, that
" our angry Judge may ſpare
" us, when he ſeeth that we
" our ſelves take vengeance
" on our Sins. So that whilſt the whole Multitude, as well

[1] leoꝛeꝛtan. C.H. [2] meꝛıȝen. C.H. teaꝛum. C.H.

[e] Theſe are the Courſes of the ſeven ſolemn Litanies or Proceſſions which were appointed by St. Gregory. The Firſt, that of the Clergy, began from the Church of St. John Baptiſt; the Second, that of the Men, from the Church of the Bleſſed Martyr St. Marcellus; the Third, that of the Monks, from the Church of the Martyrs, St. John and St. Paul; the Fourth, that of the Nuns, from the Church of the Bleſſed Martyrs, St. Coſmus and Damianus; the Fifth, that of the Married Women, from the Church of the firſt Bleſſed Martyr St. Stephen; the Sixth, that of the Widows, from the Church of the Bleſſed Martyr Vitalis; the Seventh, that of the Poor, and of Infants, from the Church of the Bleſſed Martyr Cæcilia. Under this ſevenfold Denomination was the whole Body of the People comprehended, that thoſe of every degree might be employed and have their ſhare in that general Penance and Humiliation, for the averting that ſevere Judgment which was fallen upon all Degrees and Ages. This ſolemn ꝑꝛeoꝛꝺ-haꝺeꝛ ȝe munuc-haꝺeꝛ menn ⁊ ꝥaꝺ leaꝛeꝺe ꝼolc æꝛꝺeꝛ ꝥæꝛ eaꝺiȝan [1] Ȝꝛeȝoꝛiuꝛ hæꝛe on ꝥone ꝓoꝺneꝛ ꝺæȝ to ꝥon ꝛeoꝛꝼonꝛealꝺum Letaniam ȝecomen. to ꝥam ꝛꝛyꝺe apeꝺꝺe ꝛe ꝼoꝛe ꝛæꝺe ceꝛealm. ꝥ hund eahtatiȝ manna on ꝥæꝛe anre tiꝺe ꝛeallenꝺe oꝼ liꝛe ȝeꝛiꝛton. ꝥa hꝛyꝛle ꝥe ꝥæt ꝼolc ꝥa Letaniaꝛ ꝛanȝ: Ac ꝛe halȝa ꝛaceꝛꝺ ne ȝeꝛꝛac ꝥ ꝼolc to mannigenne ꝥ hi ꝥæꝛe bene ne ȝeꝛꝛicon oꝺ ꝥ Ȝoꝺeꝛ miltꝛunȝ ꝥone ꝛeꝺan ceꝛealm ȝeꝛtilꝺe: Þꝛæt ꝥa Ȝꝛeȝoof the Prieſtly Order, and of the Monaſtick, as of the Laity, according to the Command of the Holy Gregory, were come on the Wedneſday to the ſevenfold Litany, the aforeſaid Peſtilence raged ſo faſt, that fourſcore Men departed this tranſitory Life at the very inſtant the People were ſinging the Litany. But the Holy Prieſt did not ceaſe to adviſe the People not to deſiſt from their Supplications, until that God's Mercy ſhould aſſwage the raging Plague. In the mean time Gregory,

Depreca-

[1] Vel Ȝꝛeȝoꝛieꝛ.

Deprecation of God's Wrath was, from the Author of it, ſtyled the Litany of St. Gregory; from the Place of its firſt Inſtitution, that of Rome; from the mourning Habit that was then uſed, the Cruces nigræ; and Litania Major, by reaſon of its greater Solemnity, and to diſtinguiſh it from the Litania Minor. The Leſſer Litany or Proceſſion was uſed on the Rogation Days, the three Days immediately before the Aſcenſion of our Lord. The Major, or Greater Litany, was uſed on St. Mark's Day, the 7. Kal. Maii, or the 25th of April. See Spelm. Gloſſ. in voce Litania. As to the ſevenfold Diſtribution herein to be obſerved, it might probably allude to the Pſalmiſt's ſeven ſet Times of Devotion, Pſalm. cxix. v. 164. Seven times a day, &c. in conformity to which were the ſeven Hours obſerved in the Primitive Church. See the Ritualiſts, and the Note upon the Saxon Hours at the End of Dr. Hickes's Letters. Whereas Gregory enjoins the ſinging the Litany, this is an Argument of the early uſe of ſinging in Divine Service, even upon mournful Occaſions.

ꝑiuſ ſýððan he papan-haðunðeꝑꝑenz. zemunð hꝑæt he zeꝑýnn Enzel-cýnne zemýnte ⁊ þæꝑ ꝑihte ⁊ luſtýme ꝑeoꝑc zeꝑꝑemeðe: Þe naterꝑhꝑon ne mihte þone Romaniſcan biſceop-ſtol eallunze foꝑlætan: Ac he aſenðe oðꝑe æꝑenðꝑacan. ze-ðunzene Zoðeſ þeoꝑaſ to þiſum iz-landðe. ⁊ he ſýlf micclum mið hiſ benum ⁊ tihtinzum ſýlfte þæt þæꝑa ' æꝑenðꝑaca boðunze foꝑðzenze ⁊ Zoðe pæſtm bæꝑe ꝑýꝑðe. Ðæꝑa æꝑenðꝑacena naman ſýnð þuſ zecizeðe. Azuſtinuſ. Mellitus.

ſince he took upon him the Popedome, called to mind what he formerly had thought of, concerning the Engliſh Nation, and finiſhed that moſt beloved Work. Nevertheleſs he might not on any account be altogether abſent from the Roman Biſhop's See. Whereupon he ſent other Meſſengers, approved Servants of God, to this Iſland, and he himſelf, by his manifold Prayers and Exhortations, brought it to paſs, that the Preaching of theſe Meſſengers went abroad, and bore Fruit to God. The Meſſengers were thus named: [f] Auguſtinus, Mellitus, Lau-

' æꝑenðꝑacena. C. H.

[f] Auguſtinus, Mellitus, Laurentius, and Juſtus, were afterwards all of them Biſhops. Auguſtine was firſt Archbiſhop of Canterbury, according to the appointment of St. Gregory, having received his Conſecration, as will be ſhewn hereafter, from the Archbiſhop of Arles. He ordains Mellitus Biſhop of London, and Juſtus of Rocheſter. Laurentius ſucceeded Auguſtine in the Archbiſhoprick, being ordained by him while he was yet alive; leſt after his Death, the Church, being yet tender and in its Infancy, might begin to be ſhaken: according to the Example of St. Peter, who having founded a Chriſtian Church at Rome, is ſaid to have conſecrated St. Clement to be his Succeſſor. Laurentius ſat in the Archiepiſcopal See five Years. He died the iiii[d] Non.

Laurentius. Petrus. Johannes. Justus: Dæs læreowas ærende se eadiga papa Gregorius mid manigum oðrum munecum to Angelcynne. ⁊ hi þirum porðum to þære fare tihte. Ne beon ge afyhte þurh geswinc þæs langsumes farelðes oþðe rentius, [g] Petrus, Johannes, Justus. These Doctors the Holy Pope Gregory sent, with many other Monks, to the English People, and he perſuaded them to the Voyage in theſe Words: "[h] Be not ye afraid thro' "the Fatigue of ſo long a "Journey, or thro' what

[1] langsuman. C. H.

Non. of February, and was buried near St. Auguſtine in the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, without the Walls of the City of Canterbury. He was ſucceeeed by Mellitus, who was tranſlated from London, ruled the See five Years, dyed the viii[th] Cal. May, and was buried with his Predeceſſors. Juſtus Biſhop of Rocheſter ſucceeded him, to whom Pope Boniface writes in this manner. By the Authority of St. Peter we firmly enjoin, that the City of Canterbury ſhall be the Metropolis of all Britain. This Juſtus ordain'd Paulinus Archbiſhop of the Northumbrians, by whoſe Preaching King Edwin and his People having received Baptiſm, Edwin in the Eleventh Year of his Reign gave Paulinus the City of York for the Seat of his Archbiſhoprick. See Stephen Birchington's Lives of the Archbiſhops of Canterbury, Angl. Sacr. Part. 1. p. 2. Bede's Eccleſ. Hiſt. and the reſt of our Church Hiſtorians.

[g] Petrus was the firſt Abbot of the Monaſtery of St. Peter and St. Paul, in the Suburbs of Canterbury, Bede Eccl. Hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 33.

[h] Auguſtine and his Followers, after they had made ſome progreſs on their Journey, being ſore afraid, and diſcouraged, choſe rather to return home, than to venture among a ſavage, barbarous, and unbelieving People, with whoſe Manners they were unacquainted, and whoſe Language they did not ſo much as underſtand: And ſo reſolving on a Retreat, they immediately diſpatch Auguſtine, (who was deſign'd to be their Biſhop in caſe the Engliſh ſhould receive them) to St. Gregory, with all humility to beſeech him, that he wou'd not oblige them to undertake ſo dangerous, laborious, and uncertain an Expedition; to whom he ſends Letters of Exhortation to encourage them in the Work they had begun: Which Letters are to the effect above ſpecified. See Bede's Eccl. Hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 23.

þuþh ỳrelne manna ymberrpæce. ac mid-ealne anræðnerre ȝ rỳlme þære rodan lufe þar ongunnenan ðinȝ þuþh Godes fultume ȝefremmaþ. ȝ pite ȝe þ eopen mede on þam ecum edleane rpa micle mare bið. rpa micelum rpa ȝe mare rop Godes pillan rpincaþ: Gehỳrrumiaþ eaðmodlice on eallum þingum Agurtine þone þe pe eop to ealdre ȝeretton: Þit

" wicked Men may diſcourſe
" concerning it: But with all
" Stedfaſtneſs and Zeal, and
" earneſt Affection, by the " Grace of God, perfect the " Work ye have begun, and
" be ye aſſur'd, that the Re-
" compence of your Eternal
" Reward is ſo much great" er, by how much the great" er Difficulties you have un" dergone in fulfilling the " Will of God. [i] Be obedient
" with all Humility in all " things to Auguſtine, whom
" we have ſet over you to " be your Abbot. It will be

[i] He has here the Apoſtolical Advice altogether in his Eye: Obey them that have the Rule over you, and ſubmit your ſelves: for they watch for your Souls, as they that muſt give account; that they may do it with Joy, and not with Grief: for that is unprofitable for you. Heb. chap. xiii. v. 17. It agrees alſo with the ſeveral ſolemn Obteſtations and preſſing Injunctions of St. Ignatius.

Τῷ ἐπισκόπῳ προσέχετε ἵνα ᾖ ὁ Θεὸς ὑμῖν. Ἀντίψυχον ἐγὼ τῶν ὑποτασσομένων τῷ ἐπισκόπῳ, πρεσβυτέροις, διακόνοις. καὶ μετ' αὐτῶν μοι τὸ μέρος γένοιτο ἔχειν ἐν Θεῷ.

Hearken unto the Biſhop, that God alſo may hearken unto you. My Soul be ſecurity for them that ſubmit to their Biſhop, with their Preſbyters and Deacons: And may my Portion be together with theirs in God. Ignat. Ep. to Polycarp.

And again in his Epiſtle to the Magneſians: Be ye united to your Biſhop, and thoſe who preſide over you, to be your Pattern and Direction in the way to Immortality. The Epiſtles of this Holy Father are full of ſuch Inſtances and Exhortations.

ꝑꝑemaꝺ eoꝑꝑum ꝛap- " for your Souls Health, ſo lum ꝛꝑa hꝑæꞇ ꝛꝑa ȝe be " far as ye fulfil his Admohiꝛ myneȝunȝe ȝeꝛÿl- " nitions. Almighty God laꝺ ⁘ Se ealmihꞇiȝa " through his Grace pro-Ꝺoꝺ ꝺuꝑh hiꝛ ȝiꝛe eoꝑ " tect you, and grant that ȝeꝛcÿlꝺe. ⁊ ȝe unne me " I may behold the Fruit ꝺ ic maȝe eoꝑꝑeꝛ ȝe- " of your Labour in the ꝛꝑinceꝛ ꝑæꝛꞇm on ꝺam " Eternal Reward, and that ecan eꝺleane ȝeꝛeon. " I may be found together ꝛꝑa ꝺ ic beo ȝemeꞇ ꝛa- " with you in the Joy of moꝺ on bliꝛꝛa eoꝑꝑeꝛ " your Reward. Becauſe aleꝺleaneꝛ ⁘ Ðeah ꝺe ic " tho' I cannot labour with miꝺ eoꝑ ꝛꝑincan ne mæ- " you, yet I have a Goodȝe ꝑoꝛꝺan ꝺe ic ꝑille " will to ſhare with you in ꝛꝑincan ⁘ Aguſꞇinuſ " your Labour. [k] Auguſtinus
ꝺa miꝺ hiꝛ ȝeꝛeꝑum then with his Companions,

[k] Theſe were the Stages of Auguſtine's Journey with his Fellow-Labourers. From Rome to Lerina, a little Iſland, now St. Honorat. From thence to Maſſilia, now Marſeilles, where Serenus was Biſhop, whom they ſaluted, giving him a Letter from St. Gregory. After that they went to Arles, and viſited Virgilius the Archbiſhop, and Vicar of the Holy See, to whom they were moſt powerfully recommended by the Pope. Then they went to Vienna, the Biſhop whereof was Deſiderius, one of thoſe to whom Gregory ſent Letters for their Recommendation. Thence 'tis likely they proceeded to Lugdunum, now Lions in France, tho' we find no Letter to Etherius, who was Biſhop there. Thence they ſet forward to Cabillon, now Chalons, the uſual Reſidence of King Theoderic and Brunichilda. To both of theſe St. Gregory commends Auguſtin and his Aſſociates in particular Letters. Hence they took their courſe to Auguſtodunum, now Autun, in the Dukedom of Burgundy, there to deſire the Aſſiſtance of Syagrius the Biſhop, and to deliver the Pope's Letters. After having paſſed through ſeveral other Places, they arrived at laſt either at Divodurum Mediomatricum, or Durocortum Remorum, the Seat of Theodebert King of Auſtraſia, with whom he very earneſtly ſollicites by his Letters for the kind Reception

ꝥ rỳnꝺ ȝeꝛehte ꝓeo-ꝛeꝛtiȝ ꝺe ꝓeꝛꝺon be Ꝺꝛeȝoꝛieꝛ hæꝛe oꝺ ꝺæt
hi becomon ȝeꝛunꝺfulllice to ꝺiꝛum iȝlanꝺe :·
On ꝺam ꝺaȝum ꝛixoꝺe Æꝺelbỳꝛihꝛ cỳninȝ on Ꝺanꝛꝓaꝛabỳꝛiȝ. ⁊ hiꝛ
ꝛice ꝺæꝛ aꝛꝛeht ꝓam micclan ea Ꝺumbꝛe oꝺ
ꝛuꝺ ꝛæ :· Ægu ſtinuſ
hæꝓꝺe ȝenummen ꝺe-alhꝛeoꝺaꝛ on ꝓꝛancena
ꝛice ꝛꝓa ꝛꝓa Ꝺꝛeȝoꝛiuꝛ

which are reckoned to be about Forty, that journied with him by Gregory's command, proceeded on their Journey until they arrived proſperouſly in this Iſland. In thoſe days reigned King Æthelbyriht in the City of Canterbury, whoſe Kingdom was ſtretched from the great River Humber to the South Sea. Auguſtine had taken [1] Interpreters in the Kingdom of the Franks, as Gre-

Reception of his Miſſioners. From that King's Court they paſs on to Cæſarodunum Turonum, now Tours, to viſit the Tomb of St. Martin. Whether or no they turned out of their Road to Mediolanum Santonum, Saintes, or Xaintes, to wait upon Palladius the Biſhop, to whom the Pope had written, it is not eaſy to determine: He being much in favour with the Kings of the Franks, 'tis poſſible they might meet with him at Court, and there preſent him with their Letters.

[1] Theſe Interpreters were Presbyters: Which ſhews us how careful St. Gregory was, that nothing ſhould be done irregular or indecent, even in the Infancy of a Church. The preaching of the Goſpel being a peculiar Office of the Miniſtry, he permits not the Laity to aſſume any ſhare in the ſacred Employment, enjoining, that the very Interpreters they made uſe of ſhould be Men in Orders, and honour'd with the Prieſtly Dignity, as well to avoid all Pretences from a contrary Precedent of the Laity's medling in ſacred things, as alſo to encreaſe the number of the Labourers, in Preaching and Baptizing, &c. in caſe the Harveſt ſhould prove great. That St. Gregory order'd Auguſtine to do this, appears from an Epiſtle of his to Theoderic and Theodebert, Kings of the Franks. For having recommended Auguſtin and his Companions to them, he adds: Quibus etiam injunximus, ut aliquos ſecum è vicino debeant Presbyteros ducere, cum quibus eorum poſſint mentes agnoſ-

him bebeaɔ. ⁊ he þuſh þæna pealhſtoɔa muɔ ðam cyninge ⁊ hiſ leoɔe Goɔeſ ponð boɔoɔe. hu ſe milðheopta hælenð miɔ hiſ agenne þnogory had order'd him; and he by the Mouths of the Interpreters, preached God's Word to the King and his People, viz.[m] How our merciful Saviour by his own agnoſcere, & voluntates admonitione ſua, quantum Deus donaverit, adjuvare. Whom we enjoin to take with them from the Neighbourhood ſome Presbyters, that they may know the Minds of the People, and to forward their Intentions by their Advice, as God ſhall give them Ability.

Auguſtine's firſt coming over was in the ſixth Year of Gregory's Pontificat, the fourteenth of the Reign of Mauricius the Emperor, and the Year of Chriſt 596. as may be ſeen in Bede's Eccl. Hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 23.

[m] This firſt Sermon of St. Auguſtine, Goſceline gives us more at large to this effect. "He preaches to him, God the Creator of all things; "and that the Almighty Son of God did ſo love Mankind that was "made by Him, that preſerving his Deity uninjur'd, he vouchſafed "to be made Man, and the Son of Man, that being redeemed by "his Blood, he might make Men become the Sons of God: At whoſe "Nativity a new Star appeared: To whoſe Feet the Sea being ren-"der'd paſſable, was ſubſervient: At the Indignity of whoſe Paſ-"ſion the Sun hid his Rays: At whoſe Burial and Reſurrection, the "whole Earth trembled and was amazed. The ſame, ſays he, is "the Lord Jeſus, declared to be the Son of God, from the begin-"ing of the World, by all the Patriarchs and Prophets; conceived "by the Holy Ghoſt, born of a Virgin, and declared every where by "innumerable Miracles to be both God and Man; and now believed "in, and known and received as the Saviour of all Men by all Na-"tions. Him therefore, his Love exciting us, by which he laid "down his Life for us, and by which we deſire with our moſt "earneſt Affections, to have you Partners with us in his Everlaſt-"ing Kingdom, as we are all the Offspring of one Man: Him, I ſay, "the Maker and Saviour of all Mankind, in whom if ye believe ye "ſhall be ſaved, we preach to you; becauſe without doubt the pro-"miſed Rewards ſhall truly be received by all that believe, and infi-"nite Puniſhments be inflicted upon all that ſhall ſhew their Con-"tempt. Hiſt. Min. chap. 10. Angl. Sacr. Part II. p. 59.

punge þyrne ſcýldigan middan eaſde alýſde ȝ ȝeleaffullum mannum heofona rices inſæþ [1] ȝeoponode: Đa andſýſde ſe cýning Æþelbryht Águſtine ȝ cpæð. Þ he fægene foſd ȝ behat him cýdde ȝ cpæð· þæt he ne mihte ſwa hrædlice done aldan ȝefunan. þe he mid Angelcynne heold ſonlætan: Cpæð Þ he moſte ſneolice þa heofonlican lare hiſ leode bodian ȝ Þ he him ȝ hiſ ȝefæſrum bigleofan þenian polde. ȝ ſonȝeaf him þa punnunge on Cantpara býrig ſeo pær ealler hiſ rices heofod buph: Ongan þa Águſtinus mid hiſ munecum to ȝe-æfenlecanne þæra Apoſtola life mid ſingalum ȝebedum. ȝ þæccan. ȝ fæſtnum Gode þeoniȝende. ȝ lifes fond þam

Sufferings redeem'd this guilty World, and to all that believe hath open'd an Entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven. Then King Æthelbright anſwer'd Auguſtine, and ſaid, that thoſe were fair Words and Promiſes which he gave him: But that he could not ſo ſuddenly leave the antient Cuſtoms which he and the Engliſh People had held. He ſaid, he might freely preach the Heavenly Doctrine to his People, and that he would allow Maintenance to him and his Companions: And gave him a Dwelling in the City of Canterbury, which was the head City in all his Kingdom. [n] Then began Auguſtine with his Monks to imitate the Life of the Apoſtles, with frequent Prayers, Watchings and Faſtings, ſerving God, and preaching the Word of Life with all Diligence;

[1] ȝeopenode. C. H.

[n] See Bede's Eccleſiaſt. Hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 26.

þe hi mihton boðigende. ealle miðdan-eanðlice þing ſpa ſpa ælfremeðe ſophogigende. þa þing ana þe hi to bigleofan behofoðon unðenſonde. be þam þe hi tæhton ſylfe lybbende. ⁊ for þære roðfæſtnyſſe luſe. þe hi boðeðon geappu pænon ehtnyſſe to ðoligenne ⁊ deað ſpeltan gif hi ðonfton: Þæt þa gelyfdon for pel mænigra ⁊ on Godes naman gefullode punðon. punðrigende þære bylepitnyſſe heora unſceaðige lifes. ⁊ ſpetnyſſe heora heofonlican lare: Ða æt nextan gelufulfullode þam cyninge Æþelbyrihte heora clæn life ⁊ heora pinſume behat. ða roðlice poroon mið manigum tacnum gefeðede ⁊ he þa gelyfende peard gefullode. ⁊ micelum þa [2]Criſtenam geappuroðe, ⁊ despising all earthly things as unprofitable to them, providing only so much as was necessary for their common subsistence, agreeable to what they taught, living themselves, and for the Love of the Truth which they preached being ready to suffer Persecution, and Death it self, if it were necessary. Therefore very many believed, and were baptized in the Name of God, admiring the Simplicity of their innocent Course of Life, and the Sweetness of their heavenly Doctrine. Afterwards King Æthelbyriht was much pleased with the Purity of their Lives, and their delightful Promises, which were indeed confirmed by many Miracles. And he believing was baptized, and he reverenc'd the Christians, and looked upon

[1] unſceaðbigef. C. H. [2] Criſtenan. C. H.

ꝼꝑa ꝼꝑa heoꝼonlice ceaꝼtep ȝepaꝑan luꝼoðe ·· Noldе ꝛe ꝥeah nænne to Cꝛiꝼtendome ȝeneaðian. ꝼoꝛðan ðe he oꝼ axoðe æt ꝥam laꝛeopam hiꝛ hæle. ꝥ Cꝛiꝼtеꝼ ꝥeoꝛðom ne [a] ꝼceol beon ȝeneaðoð. ac ꝛÿlꝼ ꝛÿlleꝛ·· Onȝunnon ꝥa ðæȝhꝑamlice ꝼoꝛ ꝛel menȝe eꝼꝼtan to ȝehÿꝛnenne ꝥa halȝan boðunȝe. ȝ ꝼoꝛlætan heoꝛa hæðenꝛcÿꝛe. ȝ heo ꝛÿlꝼe ȝeðeoðan to Cꝛiꝼtеꝼ ȝelaꝥunȝe on hine ȝelÿꝼenðe ·· Betweox ꝥiꝛum ȝepenðe Auȝuꝼtinuꝼ oꝼeꝛ ꝛæ to ꝥam Aꝛcebiꝼceop Ecðeꝛium [b] oꝼ Aꝛela. ȝ he hine ȝethem as Men of a heavenly Polity. Nevertheleſs he would not force any one to receive Chriſtianity, becauſe he had found upon enquiry, from the Miniſters of his Salvation, that the Service of Chriſt ought not to be forc'd, but voluntary. Then began very many daily to hearken to the Divine Preaching, and leave their Heatheniſm, and to join themſelves to Chriſt's Church, believing in him. In the mean time Auguſtine went over Sea to [c] Etherius Archbiſhop of Arles, by whom he was conſecrated Archbiſhop of [a] ꝛceal. C. H. [b] on aꝑela. Junii manu.

[c] For Etherius we ſhould read Virgilius, who was then Biſhop of Arles. Etherius was Biſhop of Lyons. See Gregor. Turon. lib. 10. c. 8. & Fredegarius in Chronic. c. 22. This Miſtake is taken from the Copiers of Bede, Hiſt. Eccl. lib. 1. c. 27. among which, are Radulp. de Dicet. abbrev. Cron. X. Script. p. 436. Joh. Bromt. ibid. 730. W. Thorne, ibid. 1760. Gervas of Canterbury calls him Euletherius, ibid. 1630, but all theſe are corrected by the ſo often mentioned Benedict. of St. Maur. They are very nice in their Diſquiſitions, and the Reader is referr'd to them, in their moſt beautiful Edition of the Works of St. Gregory. Gervas of Canterbury is at a loſs for a Reaſon, why Gregory ſhould require Auguſtine to go ſo far as Arles to receive his Conſecration; ſince there were ſo many other Biſhops in France, ſo much haꝺoꝺe Ænglecyn to Æncebiſceop ſpa ſpa him Gregoꝛiuſ æꝛ geꝛiſꝛoꝺe: Auguſtinuſ þa gehaꝺoꝺ cyꝛꝺe to hiꝛ biſceopſtole ⁊ aſenꝺe æꝛenꝺꝛacan to Rome. ⁊

the Engliſh, as Gregory before had given him direction. Auguſtine being conſecrated, returned to his Biſhoprick, and ſent [p] Meſſengers to Rome, to much nearer this Iſland: But the Reaſon, tho' he knew it not, was obvious enough. Arles was at that time the moſt celebrated City in thoſe Parts, inſomuch that it was called the Rome of France. Hence probably the Archbiſhop was honour'd with the Title of Vicar of the Holy See; and had a Superiority over the neighbouring Biſhops, with a Power to make enquiry, and give deciſion in difficult points of Faith, by the Counſel of twelve other Prelates. It ſeems therefore reaſonable enough, that Auguſtine ſhould be directed to Arles for the greater Solemnity of the thing, and where the number of Biſhops might be probably found, or ſooner got together, that was requiſite according to the Canons, for his Conſecration.

As we cannot but with the greateſt Rejoicing and Gratitude reflect upon our Converſion, ſo have we reaſon to bleſs God, that this was brought about in ſuch a regular manner, that there was nothing wanting to make us a true Church of Chriſt, not only in Faith, but in Diſcipline. For no ſooner did St. Auguſtine perceive the Reception of Chriſtianity like to be eſtabliſh'd, and a number of Believers to make a Church, but he takes care according to Gregory's appointment, that they ſhould be united under one Biſhop that ſhould be over them, who might, not only confirm ſuch as already were baptized, but ordain other Biſhops to aſſiſt in the Government of the Church, which then began to be enlarged. That herein the Apoſtolical Rule might truly be obſerved, by Auguſtin from St. Gregory, as it was by Titus from St. Paul, of ſetting in order the things that were wanting, and ordaining Elders in every City. Herein likewiſe keeping ſtrictly to that Rule of St. Ignatius, Ep. ad Smyrn. §. viii. That wherever the Biſhop appears, there the Multitude ought to be, in like manner as wherever Jeſus Chriſt is, there is the Catholick Church.

[p] The Perſons who were imploy'd in this Affair were Laurentius the Presbyter, who ſucceeded Auguſtine in the Archbiſhoprick, and Peter the Monk, the firſt Abbot of the Monaſtery of St. Peter and St. Paul near Canterbury. See Bede's Eccl. Hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 27. and St. Gregory's Epiſtle to Queen Bertha.

cyðde þam eadigan Gregorie þæt Angelcyn Cristendom underfeng. ⁊ he eac mid gewritum fela ðinga beforan. hu him to ðohtnigende wære betweox þam nigþonfeanum folce: Hwæt þa Gregorius micelum Gode þancode mid blissigendum mode þ Angelcynne frða gelumpen wæs. frða he sylf geornlice gewilnode: And sende ongean ærendracan to þam geleafullum cyninge Æþelbrihte mid gewritum. ⁊ mænigfealdum lacum. ⁊ oðre gewrite to Augustine. mid andswarum ealra þæra þinga þe he hi beforan. ⁊ hine eac þirum worðum manode. [1] Broðor min se leofesta ic wat þ se ealmihtiga fela wundra þurh þe [2] þæra þeoda þe he gecear gewurðelað. þæs þu assure the Blessed Gregory, that the English People had received Christianity; and he also in Writing made many Enquiries, as touching the manner, how he ought to behave himself towards the new Converts. Whereupon Gregory gave many thanks to God with a joyful Mind, that that had happen'd to the English Nation, which himself had so earnestly desired. And he sent Embassadors to the believing King Æthelbriht, with Letters and many Presents: And other Letters he sent to Augustine, with Answers to all the things after which he had enquired, and advised him in these Words: [q] "Most Dear-"ly beloved Brother, I "know that the Almighty "hath by you shewn forth "many Wonders to the "People whom he hath cho-

[1] Broðor. C. H. [2] þære. C. H.

[q] Bede's Eccl. Hist. lib. 1. cap. 31.

mihꞇ blıſſıan ȝ eac onoꝑæoan: Ðu mihꞇ blıſſıan ȝepıſlice ꝥ þæꝛe þeoꝺe ſaꝛl þuꝛh þa ẏttꝛan ꝓunoꝛe beoꝺ ȝetoȝene to þæꝛe mcunoan ȝıꝛe: Onoꝑæꝺ þe ſꝛa þeah ꝥ
þın moꝺ ne beo ahaꝑen mıꝺ ı oẏꝛſtıȝneſſe on þam ꝉacnum þe Ꝺoꝺ
þuꝛh þe ȝeꝑꝛemaꝺ. ȝ þu þanon on ıꝺelum
ꝓulꝺꝛe beꝑealle pıþın-
nan. þanon þe þu pıꝺuꝉan on puꝛꝺmẏnꝉe ahaꝑen bıſꝉ: Ꝺꝛeȝoꝛıuſ
aꝛenꝺe eac Auȝuſtıne halıȝe lac on mæſſe neaꝑum ȝ on bocum. ȝ þæꝛa apoſtola. ȝ maꝛ-tıꝛa ꝑelıquıaſ ſamoꝺ.

" ſen, for which you have
" reaſon both to rejoice and " to be afraid. You may " very prudently rejoice,
" that the Souls of this
" People by outward Mi" racles are brought to have " inward Grace. Never-
" theleſs be afraid that your " Mind be not lifted up
" with Arrogance by rea-
" ſon of the Miracles which
" God hath wrought by you,
" and you then fall into
" Vain-glory within, when " you are extoll'd with out" ward Reſpect. Gregory ſent alſo to Auguſtine holy [r] Pre-ſents of ſacred Veſtments and of [s] Books, and the Reliques of the Apoſtles and Martyrs,

[1] oẏꝛſtnẏſſe. C. H.

[2] Bede's Eccleſiaſt. Hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 29.

[s] An Account of theſe Books, that is, of Gregory's Bibles, and the Pſalter of St. Auguſtin, of the Sacerdotal Veſtments, the Gold and Silver Veſſels, with the Pall, &c. Mr. Wheloc promiſed in his Notes upon Bede, l. 1. c. 29. p. 99. from the Canterbury Book, in Trinity Hall in Cambridge; which ſpeaking of theſe very Books, has this Note: HÆ SUNT PRIMITIÆ LIBRORUM TOTIUS ECCLESIÆ ANGLICANÆ. This Account, which Mr. Wheloc only promiſed, Mr. Wanley has given us in his large and Learned Catalogue of Saxon Manuſcripts, which it may not be amiſs to give the Reader here tranſlated into Engliſh.

I. The

ꝛ bebeaþ ꝥ hiꝛ æꝛꝛendgen- and order'd that his Suc-gaꝛ ꝛymlle ꝥ. þæt pal- ceſſors ſhould fetch the lium ꝛ þone eꝛcebiſc æt Pall of the Archbiſhoprick þam Apoꝛtolican ſetle from the Apoſtolical See

I. The firſt Book in the Library is Gregory's Bible in two Volumes, the firſt of which hath in the firſt Page this Rubrick, De Capitulis libri Geneſeos. The ſecond begins, A Prologo beati Jeronymi ſuper Iſaiam Prophetam. In the beginning of the ſaid Volumes certain Leaves are inſerted, ſome of a Purple and ſome of a Roſe Colour, which held againſt the Light, ſhew a wonderful Reflection.

II. In the ſame Library is the Pſalter of St. Auguſtin, which Gregory ſent to him; in the firſt of which certain devout Meditations begin with theſe Notes: Ecce quantum ſpaciatus ſum in memoria mea, &c. to the fifth Page, where it begins, Omnis ſcriptura divinitus inſpirata. And in the other part of the ſame Leaf is Symbolum Apoſtolorum, Oratio Dominica, Gloria in Excelſis, and Scs. Scs. Scs. &c. In the ſixth Fol. begins the Pſalter; at the End of the ſame Pſalter are Hymns, as well for the Night as for the Day. The firſt Hymn for Midnight is this, Mediæ noctis tempus eſt. The ſecond at the Cock crowing, Eternæ rerum conditor. For the Mattins, Splendor paternæ Gloriæ. At Prime, Venite fratres ocyus. At the Third Hour, Jam ſurgit hora tertia. At the Sixth Hour, Bis ternas horas explicans. At the Ninth Hour, Ter hora terna volvitur. At the Veſpers, Deus creator omnium. At the Compline, Te deprecamur, Domine. In Lent, Xpe, qui lux es & dies. The Hymn for the Lord's Day, Rex æterne Domine. The Hymn for the Birth-day of our Lord, Intende qui regis Iſrael ſuper cherubin, qui ſedes à patre eſſre excitâ potentiam tuam & veni. And another for the ſame occaſion, Veni redemptor gentium, unto the End. The Hymn for Eaſter, Hic eſt dies verus Dei. The Feſtivals of the Apoſtles St. Peter and St. Paul, Apoſtolorum paſſio; of St. John the Evangeliſt, Amore Chriſti nobilis.

III. In the Veſtry is alſo a Book of the Goſpels, in the beginning of which are the Ten Canons, and it is called, Textus S. Mildredæ; The ſame which a certain Country-man ſwearing falſly upon in Thanet, loſt both his Eyes.

IV. There is alſo another Pſalter placed upon the Table of the High Altar, which hath on its Out-ſide the Picture of Chriſt in Silver, with the four Evangeliſts. The firſt Leaf of this Pſalter begins, Omnis ſcriptura divinitus inſpirata. In the third Leaf begins, Epiſtola Damaſi Papæ ad Jeronimum, with the Verſes of Damaſus at the end.

And

Romaniſcne ȝelaðunge æfteccan ſceolðon: Auguſtinus ȝeſette æfter þiſum biſceopaſ oþ hiſ ȝe-

of the Roman Church. After this Auguſtine placed Biſhops out of thoſe that had accompanied him, in

And then, Epiſtola Jeronimi ad Damaſum, cum Jeronimi verſibus. Then in the fourth Leaf, De origine Pſalmorum; in the end of which the Pſalter is divided into Five Books. The firſt Book concludes with the XLth Pſalm, viz. Beatus qui intelligit, and ends with fiat, fiat. The Second Book reaches to Pſalm LXXI, viz. Deus judicium tuum; the End fiat, fiat. The Third Book to Pſalm LXXX, [it ſhould be LXXXVIII.] viz. Miſericordias Domini, the End fiat, fiat. The Fourth Book to the CVth Pſalm, viz. Confitemini; the End fiat, fiat. The Fifth Book to Pſalm CL, viz. Laudate Dominum de Cœlis; and ends, Omnis ſpiritus laudet Dominum. In the fifth Leaf of the ſame Pſalter follows the Explication of Alleluia, according to the Hebrews, Chaldeans, Syrians, and Latins. Alſo the Interpretation of Glory by the Chaldeans; alſo the Interpretation of the CXVIIIth Pſalm, through the ſeveral Letters. In the ſixth Leaf follows, when they ought to be ſung or read, according to Jerome's Preſcription; alſo the Order of the Pſalms by A, B, C, D. In the ſeventh Leaf concerning the Hebrew Letters, which are written in the Pſalter. In the eighth Leaf, the Interpretation of the Pſalms to the eleventh Leaf, where the Text of the Pſalms begins with the Image of Samuel the Prieſt. And at the end of the Pſalter are Hymns for Mattins and Veſpers, and the Lord's-day, as in the other Pſalter has before been noted.

V. In the Library there is alſo another Text of the Evangeliſts, with the Ten Canons placed before them, and a Prologue which begins thus: Prologus Canonum.

VI. Alſo upon the Table of the High Altar there is placed a Book with the Picture of Chriſt in Silver ſtanding upright, and in a Poſture of bleſſing with his Right Hand, in which is contained, Conflictus Apoſtolorum Petri & Pauli cum Simone Mago, & Paſſio eorundem. Alſo Paſſio S. Andreæ Apoſtoli. Alſo Paſſio S. Jacobi; Paſſio S. Thomæ Apoſtoli; Paſſio Bartholomæi Apoſtoli; Paſſio S. Matthæi Apoſtoli & Evangeliſtæ; Paſſio S.S. Apoſtolorum Simonis & Judæ; Vita S. Johannis Apoſtoli & Evangeliſtæ.

VII. There is another Book alſo placed on the ſame Table of the High Altar, which hath on the outſide the Glory, or the Rays of Divine Majeſty, in Silver gilt, ſet round with Cryſtals and Beryls; in ꝛeꝑum on gehꝑilcum burgum on Engla ꝑeode. ⁊ hi on Godes geleaꝛan

ꝑeonde ꝑurh ꝑunedon oð

each City of the Eng- liſh Nation, and they have remain'd promoting the Chriſtian Faith con-

which Book is contained Paſſionarium Sanctorum, beginning with St. Apollinaris, and ending with the Paſſion of St. Simplicius, Fauſtinus, and Beatrix.

VIII. And upon the ſame Table of the High Altar is placed a Book which hath on the Cover a large Beryl ſet round on all ſides with Cryſtals; in which is an Expoſition on the Epiſtles and Goſpels, from the Third Sunday after the Octaves of Eaſter, to the Fourth Sunday after the Octaves of Whitſuntide. AND THESE ARE THE FIRST FRUITS OF THE BOOKS OF THE WHOLE ENGLISH CHURCH.

The firſt of theſe venerable Books, is the Gregorian Bible in two Volumes; which Bible appears to have been not long ago extant in England, from an Apologetick Petition of the Lay Catholicks (as they call themſelves) to James the Firſt, King of Great Britain, in the Month of July 1604. in which are theſe Expreſſions. The very Original Bible, the ſelf-ſame Numero which S. Gregory ſent in with our Apoſtle S. Auguſtine, being as yet preſerved by God's ſpecial Providence. Which Words are cited by Dr. Sutcliff in his Anſwer to that Apologetical Petition, pag. 87.

The ſecond Book, that is, the Pſalter, after diligent Enquiry, I have not found.

The Third and Fifth Books, tho' imperfect, I believe to be extant. The one in the Bodleian Library at Oxford; the other adorn'd with Figures in Corpus Chriſti College in Cambridge. For to ſay the truth, both theſe Books have a face of Antiquity, both of 'em being written in the round and large Roman Hand, and in Letters much differing from the Saxon of that kind; both the Parchment and the Ink declaring them to have been written abroad. In both of them were the Ten Canons of Euſebius, inaſmuch as in the Margin there are to be ſeen the Notes and Figures referring to them; and that they were brought into England above Eight Hundred Years ago, appears from the Diſtinctions and Emendations of the Bodleian Book, in an old Saxon Hand: and from the laſt Will of Ealhburga in the Bennet College Book, made about the Year Eight Hundred and Fifty, in which are reckon'd up what Legacies ſhe left to the Abby of St. Auguſtine's, to which this Book belonged. So that there ſeems no reaſon to doubt,

that

þiſum ðæġðeplicum ðæ- tinually unto this Day.
ġe :· Se eaðiġa Ꝥpeġo- The Holy Gregory com-þiuſ ġeðihte maniġa haliġe poſed many Divine that theſe old Books are the very ſame which St. Gregory ſent to St. Auguſtine, in the Infancy of the Engliſh Church.

The Fourth Book, that is, the Pſalter, ſeems to be loſt; nevertheleſs, there is in the Cottonian Library, VESPAS. A. I. a Pſalter of St. Jerome's in Latin, in the old Saxon Character, written about a Thouſand Years ago. In which you have likewiſe in great Letters, but in a foreign Hand, before the Pſalms, all thoſe things, and in the ſame Order, which are ſaid to be in this Book of Gregory. From whence I am inclined to believe the one might be a Copy of the other.

The Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth as yet I have not ſeen. But there ſeems to be many antient Tranſcripts of them in ſeveral of our Libraries. As for the ſixth Book, it ſeems in proceſs of time to have been tranſlated into Saxon; becauſe the ſame Paſſions of the Saints, &c. are to be found in the Saxon Homilies: and perhaps the ſame may be ſaid of the Seventh Volume.

Theſe Books, ſays the Writer of the Annals, are the Firſt Fruits of the Engliſh Church, whom I ſhall not contradict, provided the Reader who is a Lover of Antiquity, ſhall remember that Auguſtine brought with him into England Gregory the Great his Book of the Paſtoral Care, as is atteſted by King Ælfred in his Poetical Preface prefixed to his Tranſlation of this Work.

To conclude, the Learned Reader may obſerve, that this celebrated Book hath this Note in the beginning of it. "This Book "once belonged to the Monaſtery of the Bleſſed Apoſtles Peter and "Paul, or of Auguſtine, near the Walls of the City of Canterbury. "But this Monaſtery in the Reign of Henry the Eighth being diſſol- "ved, and all the Goods of the Monks being taken from them, and "converted to the King's uſe; this Book by accident came into the "hands of Maſter Robert Haer, who gave the ſame to the College or "Hall of the Sacred Trinity in Cambridge, there to be kept ſafe and "ſecure. But with this condition, that if hereafter it ſhould hap- "pen by God's permiſſion that this Monaſtery be rebuilt, then the "Maſter and Fellows of the ſaid College or Hall of the Sacred Trinity "ſhall take care that the Book ſhall be reſtored to the Monks of the "ſame Monaſtery.

ꝥhaht bec. ⁊ mid micelne ġecneordnyſſe Godes folc to þam ecan life ġeþiſſode. ⁊ fela wundra on his life ġeworhte. ⁊ wuldorfullice þær papan ſetles ġeweold xiii ġear. ⁊ ſix monðas. ⁊ ten dagas. ⁊ siðdan on þyſum dæġe ġewat to þam ecan ſetle heofonan rices on þam he leofaþ mid Gode Almihtiġum a butan ende: Amen:

[t] Treatiſes, and with great diligence inſtructed God's People in the way to Eternal Life, and wrought many Miracles in his Life-time, and behaved himſelf in a moſt glorious manner upon the Epiſcopal Throne thirteen Years, and ſix Months, and ten Days, and afterwards [u] as on this Day departed to the Eternal Throne of the heavenly Kingdom, in which he liveth with God Almighty World without End. Amen.

As the Learned are obliged to Mr. Wanley for this Account of Auguſtine's Library, and his ingenious Conjectures relating to it, ſince it has been diſperſed; ſo am I particularly obliged to him for acquainting me with the Name of the Annaliſt who firſt gave this account, which was Thomas de Elmham Monk of the Abby of St. Auguſtine's in the Reign of King Henry the Fifth. See Mr. Wanley's Catalogue at the End of Dr. Hickes's Theſaurus, pag. 172.

[t] An Account of theſe Books may be ſeen in Dr. Cave's Hiſtor. Literar. pag. 431. and in the Benedictine Edition of St. Gregory's Works.

[u] St. Gregory died anno DCV. Bede's Eccleſ. Hiſt. lib. 2. c. 1. Lat. Edit. Par. Chifflet. Alſo Edit. Sax. Whel. With this agrees W. Thorn. & Canonic. Lichfield. Chron. Auguſt. Cant. Gervaſ. Dorobern.

But the Saxon Chronicle aſſigns it to the Year DCVI. See Wheloc. Edit. & Gibſ. but in Gibſ. Edit. Cod. Laud. 605.

HOMI-

HOMILIÆ
ANGLO-SAXONICÆ
IN
S. GREGORII
NATALE
VERSIO LATINA.

GULIELMUS ELSTOBIUS

ELIZABETHÆ

Sorori ſuæ cariſſimæ

S. D.

DUM tu, ſoror mea dilectiſſima, Homiliæ Saxonicæ, de gentis noſtræ Converſione paras verſionem Anglicam fæminis liberalibus: nonnulli forte ex amicis noſtris, tum Academicis tum aliis, Latinam poſtulant hominibus eruditis. Id te velle accommodare venis ad me dicens, bene autem poſſe negâſti. Verecundius ſane id quam verius. Sed favendum omnino verecundiæ, præſertim mulie-

bri

bri : maximè autem tuæ, cum in te virtus illa ſit notiſſima. Quare, quod poſcis, dulcis & indefeſſa ſtudiorum meorum comes, do tibi Latinè. Non Ciceronianè, ut tu velis, id eſt ornatè, at non ineptè tamen : iiſdem ferè verbis repoſitis quæ in Saxonica olim tranſfuſa, vel ex Turonenſi Gregorio, vel tuo, vel ex Beda noſtrate, vel utroque Diacono, & Johanne & Paulo. Eadem plane ratione, qua jam pridem Oroſium à nobis elucubratum ſcis, & qua Gregorii tui Curam Paſtoralem, Deo favente, & adjutrice te, Eruditis perlibenter darem. Vale.

Kal. Jun. MDCCIX.

NATALE

NATALE
S. GREGORII.

REGORIUS Papa beatus, Anglicæ gentis Apoſtolus, hac inſtanti die, poſt varios labores, meditationeſque divinas, ad Dei regnum feliciter aſcendit. Anglicæ gentis rectè is Apoſtolus eſt; ipſius quippe per conſilium, & legationem à ſe miſſam & in-inſtitutam, à cultu Diaboli nos eripuit, & ad Dei fidem convertit. Libri ſacri quamplurimi præclaram ejus converſationem prædicant, vitamque ſanctam; inter quos & ea Anglorum hiſtoria quam rex Alfredus in ſermonem Anglicum tranſtulit ex Latino. Liber iſte, de viro iſthoc ſancto ſatis loquitur apertè. Volumus tamen nonnihil de eo vobis enarrare breviter: cùm & liber antememoratus, omnibus nondum innotuerit, etiamſi verſus ſit Anglicè. Gregorius papa beatus ex nobili proſapia, & religioſa, duxit originem. Romani ſenatores ejus anteceſſores erant. Patris nomen erat Gordianus. Et Felix pontifex ſanctiſſimus ejus fuit atavus. Fuit quidem is, prout diximus, genere nobilis. Sed tamen hanc tantæ nobilitatis lineam moribus extulit, probis actibus decoravit. Gregorii nomen vox planè Græca eſt, quæ ſonat in lingua Latina Vigilantius, in Anglica verò Wacolpe. Re etenim vera præceptis divinis invigilavit, dum & ipſe vixit laudabiliter. Diligenter etiam & multarum gentium commodo providebat, & viam iis vitæ annunciabat. Fuit quidem à puero diſciplinis liberalibus inſtitutus. Et in doctrina eo uſque feliciter eſt progreſſus, ut in univerſa Romæ civitate, æqualis ei nemo judicaretur. Prudentum inſtitutorum ſedulò in exempla intentus erat, nec quæ didicerat, oblivioni ea ſegniter tradidit: ſed tenaci potius commendavit memoriæ. hauriebatque ſitibundo doctrinæ fluenta pectore, quæ poſt congruenti tempore mellito gutture eructaret. Hic in annis adoleſcentiæ (in quibus ſolet ea ætas vias ſeculi ingredi) Deo cæpit devotus exiſtere; & ad ſupernæ vitæ patriam totis deſideriis anhelare. Poſt obitum denique patris ſex in Sicilia monaſteria conſtruxit; ſeptimum verò intra urbis Romæ muros inſtituit, in quo & ipſe regulari tramite ſub Abbatis imperio militavit. Septem monaſteria de redditibus prædiorum adornavit, & ſufficienter ad victum quotidianum locupletavit; reliquas poſſeſſiones Dei pauperibus erogavit, totamque ſecularem nobilitatem, ad nanſciſcendam cæleſtem gloriam convertit. Ipſius ante converſionem, ſerico contextu, gemmis micantibus auroque rubro ſolitus erat per urbem procedere trabeatus; poſtea verò vili contectus tegmine, miniſtrabat pauper ipſe pauperibus. In tanta perfectionis gratia cœpit converſari, ut jam tunc in ipſis initiis perfectorum poſſet numero deputari. Amabat abſtinentiam in cibo & potu; erat autem multùm occupatus in vigiliis, & orationibus crebris. Suſtinebat præterea aſſiduas corporis infirmitates. Sed quo malis præſentibus duriùs premebatur, eo vehementiùs ad æternam vitam anhelabat. Tum verò intelligebat pontifex, qui eo tempore ſedem tenebat apoſtolicam, quibus virtutum gradibus Gregorius ad alta conſcenderet: eum igitur abſtraxit ex monaſterio, adſcivitque in ſuum adjutorium cùm in ordine diaconi primùm illum conſtituerat. Tum verò factum eſt quodam tempore, quòd uſu venit quàm ſæpiſſimè, ut Anglici quidam mercatores merces Romam aſportarent. Tranſibat tum beatus Gregorius per plateas, illorum ut inſpiceret mercimonia; viditque inter homines pueros venales poſitos, lactei corporis, ac venuſti vultûs, capillos quoque præcipui candoris habentes. Gregorius ergo, cùm puerorum formam adſpexiſſet, rogabat ſtatim ex quanam eſſent gente adducti? Tum dictum eſt illi, eſſe eos ex Anglia profectos; præterea eſſe iſtius gentis homines ſimili venuſtate. Rogabat autem poſthac Gregorius, eſſentne iſtius gentis homines Ethnici an Chriſtiani? Dictum eſt, Ethnicos eſſe. Gregorius tum ex intimo corde trahebat longa ſuſpiria, dicebatque, Proh dolor! vultûs adeo candidi homines nigro ſubjici Diabolo! Rogabat deinde Gregorius, quo nomine gentis iſtius populus, ex qua venerunt, inſigniretur. Reſponſum verò tum eſt ei, Anglos eſſe nominatos. Rectè tum is, Angli vocantur, vultus enim habent Angelicos. Tales etiam, æquum eſt, in cœlis Angelorum comites fieri. Ultra percontatus eſt Gregorius, quonam ea Provincia nomine diceretur, ex qua pueri fuiſſent allati? Annuntiatum eſt igitur illi, quod Provinciales iſti

DEIRI vocarentur. Reſpondit Gregorius, bene quidem Deiri vocantur, quoniam de ira Dei eruti ſunt, & ad miſericordiam Chriſti converſi. Jam verò eſt iterum percontatus, quo demum nomine provinciæ Rex iſtius appellaretur? Eique fuit reſponſum, quod rex appellaretur Ælle. Verbis igitur ſuis Gregorius nomini alluſit, ac dixit. Oportet tum ibi in ea gente Alleluia decantari, ad laudes Omnipotentis Creatoris. Continuò autem Gregorius apoſtolicæ ſedis Papam adiit, eum verò rogavit ſuppliciter, ut Anglicæ genti doctores quoſdam mittendos curaret, qui Dei auxilio ad Chriſtum eos converterent. Dixitque præterea etiam ipſum ſe ad iſtud opus perficiendum eſſe quàm paratiſſimum, ſi Papæ ſaltem iſtud placeret: ſed permittere id Pontifici non liceret, etiamſi vellet quàm maximè. Permittendum enim id nequaquam erat à civibus Romanis, virum ita celebrem, doctorem eouſque inſtructum, civitatem omnino relinquere, & peregrinationem ſuſcipere tam longinquam. Factum eſt autem deinceps, ut immanis peſtis Genti Romanæ immineret, & in primis Papam ipſum Pelagium invaderet, ſine mora etiam illum extingueret. Verùm enim verò poſt iſtius Papæ obitum tanta populi ſtrages ingruit, ut undequaque per civitatem ædes ſtarent vacuæ, ſine incolis. Non autem oportebat urbem Romanam Papa diu carere. Univerſus igitur populus beatum Gregorium ad iſtam dignitatem unanimiter elegerunt, eo interim totis viribus renitente. Miſit tum Gregorius ad Cæſarem Mauricium literas, cujus filium ex lavacro ſacro ſuſceperat, eumque obteſtatus eſt multis precibus, ut populo nunquam permitteret, is ut ad tantæ dignitatis gloriam exaltaretur: verebatur enim, ne majeſtate ſecularis gloriæ, quam ipſe prius abjecerat, aliquando iterum ſeduceretur. Cæſaris autem nobilis Præfectus

Germa-

Germanus literas iſtas intercepit, ac laceravit. Poſtea verò annunciavit Cæſari, univerſum populum Pontificem ſibi Gregorium elegiſſe. Mauricius igitur Cæſar Deo gratias egit, eumque juſſit conſecrari. Gregorius autem fugam arripit, & abdidit ſeſe in ſpelunca. Populus autem apprehenderunt eum, & ad Petri eccleſiam deduxerunt, ibi ut Papa conſecraretur. Deinde Gregorius, ipſius ante conſecrationem, ad Populum Romanum de imminente Mortalitate, hujuſmodi verbis orationem habuit.

[a] ORATIO S. GREGORII ad PLEBEM de Mortalitate.

" OPortet, fratres cariſſimi, ut flagella Dei, quæ " metuere ventura debuimus, ſaltem præſen- " tia & experta timeamus. Converſionis nobis adi- " tum dolor aperiat, & cordis noſtri duritiam ipſa jam " quam patimur pœna diſſolvat. [b Ut enim, Prophetâ " teſte, prædictum eſt; Pervenit gladius uſque ad ani- " mam.] Ecce enim cuncta plebs cæleſtis iræ mucrone " percutitur, & repentina ſinguli cæde vaſtantur. " Nec languor mortem prævenit, ſed & languoris mo- " ras, ut cernitis, mors ipſa præcurrit. Percuſſus " quiſque ante rapitur, quàm ad lamenta pœnitentiæ " convertatur. Penſate ergo, qualis ad conſpectum di- " ſtricti judicis pervenit, cui non vacat flere quod

[] Quæ Uncis hiſce includuntur Homil. Angl. Sax. non agnoſcit.

[a] Quam hic Orationem Gregorii exhibemus, ex Edit. Op. Greg. Benedict. Tom. 1. ad fin. tota eſt deſcripta: ſed notandum, Homiliſtam Saxonicum, Pauli Diaconi veſtigiis omnino inſiſtere.

[b] Jer. iv. 10.

" fecit,

" fecit. Habitatores [c] quippe non ex parte ſubtrahun-
" tur, ſed pariter corruunt. Domus vacuæ relinquun-
" tur, filiorum funera parentes aſpiciunt, & ſui eos
" ad interitum hæredes præcedunt. Unuſquiſque ergo
" noſtrum ad pœnitentiæ lamenta confugiat, dum
" flere ante percuſſionem vacat. Revocemus ante
" oculos mentis, quidquid errando commiſimus: &
" quod nequiter egimus, flendo puniamus. [d] Præve-
" niamus faciem ejus in confeſſione; & ſicut Propheta
" admonet: [e] Levemus corda noſtra cum manibus ad
" Deum. Ad Deum quippe corda cum manibus le-
" vare, eſt orationis noſtræ ſtudium cum merito bonæ
" operationis erigere. Dat profectò, dat tremori no-
" ſtro fiduciam, qui per Prophetam clamat: [f] Nolo
" mortem peccatoris, ſed ut convertatur, & vivat.
" Nullus autem de iniquitatum ſuarum immanitate
" deſperet. Veternoſas namque [g] Ninivitarum culpas
" triduana pœnitentia abſterſit: & converſus latro vitæ
" præmia etiam in ipſa ſententia ſuæ mortis, emeruit.
" Mutemus igitur corda, [& præſumamus nos jam per-
" cepiſſe quod petimus.] Citius ad precem judex fle-" ctitur, ſi à pravitate ſua [h] petitor corrigatur. Immi-
" nente ergo tantæ animadverſionis gladio, nos im" portunis [i] precibus inſiſtamus. Ea namque quæ in-
" grata eſſe hominibus importunitas ſolet, [k] judicio ve-

[c] Quique. Paul. Diac. Vit. S. Gr. Pap. §. xi. unde Hom. A. Saxon. ȝehpylce eop ðbuȝiȝende.

[d] Pſal. xcv. 2.

[e] Lam. iii. 41.

[f] Ezech. xxxiii. 11.

[g] Jon. iii. Luc. xxiii.

[h] Animus corrigitur. Paul. Diac.

[i] Fletibus. Paul. Diac.

[k] Judici. Paul Diac. Unde Hom. Sax. ðeman, quod voci Judici ſemper reſpondet, Judicio melius accommodâſſent ðome.

" ritatis

" ritatis placet: quia pius ac miſericors Deus à ſe vult
" veniam precibus exigi, qui quantum meremur, non
" vult iraſci. Hinc etenim per Pſalmiſtam dicitur:
" [1] Invoca me in die tribulationis tuæ; & eripiam te, &
" magnificabis me. Ipſe ergo ſibi teſtis eſt, quia in-
" vocantibus miſereri deſiderat, qui monet ut invoce-
" tur. Proinde, fratres cariſſimi, contrito corde, &
" correctis operibus craſtina die ab ipſo feriæ quartæ
" diluculo, ad Litaniam ſeptiformem, [juxta diſtribu" tionem inferius deſignatam, devota mente cum
" lachrymis veniamus. Nullus veſtrûm ad terrena
" opera in agros exeat, nullus quodlibet negotium
" agere præſumat: quatenus ad ſanctæ genetricis Do-
" mini eccleſiam convenientes, qui ſimul omnes pec-
" cavimus, ſimul omnes mala quæ fecimus deplore-
" mus:] ut diſtrictus judex dum culpas noſtras nos pu-
" nire conſiderat, ipſe à ſententia propoſitæ damna-
" tionis parcat. [Litania Clericorum exeat ab eccleſia
" beati Johannis Baptiſtæ: Litania virorum, ab ec-
" cleſia beati martyris Marcelli: Litania Monacho-
" rum, ab eccleſia martyrum Johannis & Pauli: Li-
" tania ancillarum Dei, ab eccleſia beatorum marty-
" rum Coſmæ & Damiani: Litania fæminarum conju-
" gatarum, ab eccleſia beati primi martyris Stephani:
" Litania viduarum, ab eccleſia beati martyris Vita-
" lis: Litania Pauperum & Infantium, ab eccleſia
" beatæ martyris Cæciliæ.]

Quapropter multitudo tum Preſbyterorum, tum Monachorum, tum etiam Laicorum, ſecundum beati Gregorii inſtitutum, die Mercurii, ad ſeptiformem Litaniam venerunt, eouſque tamen prius memorata lues

[1] Pſal. xlix. 15.

deſævit,

deſævit, ut octaginta homines unius horæ ſpatio, ex vita hac caduca diſcederent, populo adhuc canente Litanias. At pius ſacerdos nequaquam ceſſavit populum admonere, ut ab oratione nunquam deſiſterent, donec peſtem ipſam divina miſeratio propulſaret. Gregorio autem poſtquam Papatum ſuſceperat, quod Anglicæ genti deſtinârat, venit in mentem: quod & opportuno tempore opus gratiſſimum perfecit. Non licuit tamen ei ſedem Romanam omnino relinquere: miſit tamen alios nuntios, Dei ſervos approbatos, in hanc Inſulam. Ipſe autem multis ſuis benedictionibus atque exhortationibus effecit, ut horum nuntiorum prædicatio exiret, & uberes quidem fructus ederet. Nunciorum nomina hujuſmodi fuerunt: Auguſtinus, Mellitus, Laurentius, Petrus, Johannes, Juſtus, Hoſce doctores miſit beatus Papa Gregorius, cum multis aliis monachis, ad Anglicanam Gentem, quos hujuſmodi verbis de eorum itinere commonefecit. " [m] Nec labor vos tam longinqui itineris, nec maledi- " corum hominum linguæ deterreant. Sed omni in- " ſtantia, omnique fervore quæ inchoaſtis, Deo auctore, " peragite; ſcientes quòd laborem magnum æternæ " retributionis gloria ſequitur, tanto major quanto " vos majori ſtudio Dei cauſa laboratis. Obedite igi- " tur humiliter in omnibus Auguſtino (Præpoſito ve- " ſtro) quem & Abbatem vobis conſtituimus. Hoc " enim per omnia veſtris animabus eſt profuturum, " quicquid à vobis in ejus admonitione ſit completum. " Omnipotens Deus ſua vos gratia protegat, & veſtri " laboris fructum in æterna me patria videre conce- " dat, quatenus etſi vobiſcum laborare nequeo, ſimul " in gaudio retributionis inveniar, quia laborare ſcili- " cet volo.

[m] Vide Bed. Hiſt. Eccl. lib. 1. c. 23.

Deinde

[h] Deinde Auguſtinus cum ſociis, qui quadraginta numerarentur, Gregorii juſſu cum illo iter facientes, eouſque ſunt profecti donec proſperis avibus huic Inſulæ appuliſſent. Regnabat eo tempore Rex Æthelbyrihtus in civitate Cantuariæ, cujus imperium à magno flumine Humbre ad mare uſque Auſtrale extendebatur. Acceperat autem, præcipiente Gregorio, Auguſtinus de gente Francorum interpretes, quorum interpretum interveniente ſermone uſus, Regi ejuſque populo ipſe & ejus comites prædicaverunt verbum Dei. Quemadmodum miſericors Jeſus propria ipſius paſſione orbis hujuſce univerſitatem peccatricem redemerat, & omnibus verè fidelibus in cœleſtia regna aditum patefecerat. Auguſtino tunc reſpondebat Rex Æthelbertus, dicens, pulchra quidem eſſe verba & promiſſa quæ attulerat; ſed ei tamen æquum non videre, veteres quas ipſe cum Anglis ſuis conſuetudines diu obſervarat, citò eſſe dimittendas. Dicebat autem liberum ei fore, verbum Dei populo ſibi ſubjecto prædicare. Inſuper quæ forent victui neceſſaria, prorſus ſe miniſtrare velle. Dedit etiam eis manſionem in civitate Dorovernenſi, quæ imperii ſui totius erat metropolis. Tum cœpit Auguſtinus cum monachis vitam [i] Apoſtolorum imitari, orationibus videlicet aſſiduis, vigiliis ac jejuniis Deo ſerviendo, verbum vitæ quibus poterant prædicando, cuncta hujus mundi velut aliena ſpernendo; quæ victui neceſſaria videbantur, ab eis quos docebant accipiendo, ſecundum ea quæ docebant per omnia vivendo, & paratum ad patiendum adverſa quæque, vel etiam ad moriendum pro eo quam prædicabant veritatis amore, ſi opus fuerit, animum habendo. Quid mora? crediderunt permulti, & in Dei nomine baptizabantur, mirantes

[h] Bed. Hiſt. Eccl. lib. 1. cap. 25. [i] Ibid. c. 26.

ſimplicitatem innocentis vitæ, ac dulcedinem doctrinæ illorum cœleſtis. Ac tandem ipſe Rex Æthilbertus delectatus eſt vitâ mundiſſimâ eorum, & promiſſis eorum ſuaviſſimis, quæ vera eſſe miraculorum quoque multorum oſtenſione firmârunt, & credens baptizatus eſt. Multiplici igitur reverentia Chriſtianis rex congratulatus eſt, ac quaſi concives ſibi Regni cœleſtis arctiori dilectione eſt amplexus. Nullum tamen cogeret ad Chriſtianiſmum, didicerat enim à doctoribus auctoribuſque ſuæ ſalutis, ſervitium Chriſti VOLUNTARIUM, non COACTITIUM debere eſſe. Cœpere demum plures ad audiendum verbum confluere, ac relicto Gentilitatis ritu, unitati ſe SANCTÆ CHRISTI ECCLESIÆ credendo ſociare. Interea Auguſtinus per mare tranſportatus, Etherium Archiepiſcopum Arelatenſem adiit, à quo juxta quod juſſu Gregorii acceperat, Archiepiſcopus genti Anglorum ordinatus eſt. Auguſtinus igitur conſecratus, reverſus eſt ad Epiſcopatum, & nuntios Romam miſit, ac beato Gregorio retulit, gentem Anglorum fidem Chriſti accepiſſe. Simul & per literas plura interrogabat, quonam ſcilicet modo cum nuper converſis oportebat eum converſari. Quapropter Gregorius lætanti animo plurimas Deo gratias egit, id apud Anglos eveniſſe quod ipſe vehementiſſimè exoptârat. Miſit etiam legatos ad Regem Æthilbertum credentem, cum literis pariter ac donis quamplurimis. Alias autem epiſtolas ad Auguſtinum miſit, cum reſponſis ad ea omnia de quibus eum interrogârat, illum verò hujuſmodi verbis commonefecit: " [k] Scio, frater cariſſime, quia Omnipo-
" tens Deus per te in gentem quam eligi voluit magna
" miracula oſtendit: unde & timendo gaudeas, & gau-

[k] Bed. Eccl. Hiſt. lib. 1. cap. 27. [l] Ibid. cap. 31.

" dendo

" dendo pertimeſcas. Gaudeas videlicet, quia Anglo-
" rum animæ per exteriora miracula ad interiorem
" gratiam pertrahuntur. Pertimeſcas verò ne inter
" ſigna quæ fiunt infirmus animus in ſua præſumtione
" ſeſe elevet, & unde foris in honorem tollitur, inde
" per inanem gloriam intus cadat. Præterea miſit Gregorius Auguſtino dona ſacra, veſtimenta ſcilicet & libros, ſimul cum Apoſtolorum & Martyrum reliquiis. Ordinavit etiam ut ſucceſſores ejus Pallium & Archiepiſcopatum ab Apoſtolica Romana Eccleſia ſemper peterent. Poſtea conſtituit Auguſtinus ex ſociis epiſcopos per ſingulos Angliæ civitates, qui permanſerunt fidem Chriſti promoventes (per ſucceſſores) ad hunc uſque diem. Beatus Gregorius divinos tractatus quamplures compoſuit, & ſumma diligentia Dei populum in via æternæ vitæ inſtruxit, ac plurima miracula vivus perfecit. Ac mirificè ſedem Papalem rexit, tredecim annos, ſex menſes, & dies decem, & demum hac præſenti die, ad æternam cœleſtis regni ſedem tranſlatus eſt, ubi vivit cum Deo Omnipotente in ſecula. Amen.

AN

APPENDIX,

Containing ſeveral

EPISTLES

OF

St. GREGORY,

AND

NOTES,

That Illuſtrate the foregoing Homily.

Qui Præest Sit Perinde ac qui Ministrat Luc. 22.

GREGORIUS

Mauricio Auguſto.

IISSIMUS atque à Deo conſtitutus Dominus noſter, inter cæteras auguſtorum ponderum curas, conſervandæ quoque ſacerdotali caritati rectitudine ſtudii ſpiritalis invigilat: videlicet piè veraciterque conſiderans, neminem poſſe rectè terrena regere, niſi noverit divina tractare, pacemque Reipublicæ, ex univerſalis Eccleſiæ pace pendere. Quæ enim, ſereniſſime Domine, virtus humana, quodque carnei robur brachii contra veſtri Chriſtianiſſimi culmen Imperii irreligioſas præſumeret manus erigere, ſi ſtuderet concors Sacerdotum mens Redemtorem ſuum lingua pro vobis, atque, ut oportebat, meritis exorare? Aut quis ferociſſimæ gentis gladius in necem fidelium

tanta

tanta crudelitate graſſaretur, niſi noſtra vita, qui Sacerdotes nominamur, & non ſumus, à praviſſimis gravaretur operibus? Sed dum nos competentia nobis relinquimus, & nobis incompetentia cogitamus, peccata noſtra barbaricis viribus ſociamus, & culpa noſtra hoſtium gladios exacuit, quæ Reipublicæ vires gravat. Quid autem dicturi ſumus, qui populum Dei, cui indigne præſumus, peccatorum noſtrorum oneribus premimus? qui quod per linguam prædicamus, per exempla deſtruimus? qui iniqua docemus operibus, & ſola voce ea quæ ſunt juſta prætendimus? Oſſa jejuniis atteruntur, & mente turgemus. Corpus deſpectis veſtibus tegitur, & elatione cordis purpuram ſuperamus. Jacemus in cinere, & [a] excelſa deſpicimus. Doctores humilium, duces ſuperbiæ, ovinâ facie lupinos dentes abſcondimus. Sed quis horum finis eſt, niſi quòd hominibus ſuademus, Deo autem manifeſti ſumus? Quamobrem providentiſſimè [b] piiſſimus Dominus ad compeſcendos bellicos motus pacem quærit Eccleſiæ, atque ad hujus compagem Sacerdotum dignatur corda reducere. Quod quidem ego opto, atque quantùm ad me attinet, ſereniſſimis juſſionibus obedientiam præbeo. Quia verò non cauſa mea, ſed Dei eſt: & quia non ſolus ego, ſed tota turbatur Eccleſia, quia piæ leges, [c] quia venerandæ ſynodi, quia ipſa etiam Domini noſtri Jeſu Chriſti mandata ſuperbi atque pompatici cujuſdam ſermonis inventione turbantur: piiſſimus Dominus locum ſecet vulneris, atque reſiſtentem

[a] Recent. ed. excelſa non deſpicimus, invitis MSS. Vatic. Anglic. Norm. &c.

[b] Excuſi, Dominus noſter. Abeſt noſter à Vatic. Norm. &c.

[c] Norm. & Corb. quia veneranda ſynodus.

ægritu

[a] ægrum auguſtæ auctoritatis vinculis conſtringat. Adſtringendo enim iſta, Rempublicam ſublevatis; & dum talia reciditis, de regni veſtri prolixitate tractatis.

Cunctis enim Evangelium ſcientibus liquet, quod voce Dominica ſancto & omnium Apoſtolorum Petro principi Apoſtolo, totius Eccleſiæ cura commiſſa eſt. Ipſi quippe dicitur: [c] Petre, amas me? Paſce oves meas. Ipſi dicitur: [f] Ecce Satanas expetiit cribrare vos ſicut triticum; & ego pro te rogavi, Petre, ut non deficiat fides tua. Et tu aliquando converſus confirma fratres tuos. Ipſi dicitur: [g] Tu es Petrus, & ſuper hanc petram ædificabo Eccleſiam meam, & portæ inferi non prævalebunt adverſus eam. Et tibi dabo claves regni cœlorum: & quodcunque ligaveris ſuper terram, erit ligatum & in cœlis: & quodcunque ſolveris ſuper terram, erit ſolutum & in cœlo.

Ecce claves regni cœleſtis accepit, poteſtas ei ligandi ac ſolvendi tribuitur, cura ei totius Eccleſiæ, & principatus committitur, & tamen univerſalis Apoſtolus non vocatur: & vir ſanctiſſimus conſacerdos meus Johannes vocari univerſalis Epiſcopus conatur. Exclamare compellor ac dicere: O tempora, O mores!

Ecce cuncta in Europæ partibus Barbarorum juri ſunt tradita, deſtructæ urbes, everſa caſtra, depopulatæ provinciæ, nullus terram cultor inhabitat: ſæviunt & dominantur quotidie in necem fidelium cultores idolorum; & tamen ſacerdotes, qui in pavimento & cinere flentes jacere debuerunt, vanitatis ſibi

[a] Hic MSS. non conſentiunt. Gemet. Audoën. Pratell. Lyr. cum tribus Vatic. habent, ægrum anguſtet vinculis auctoritatis. Aſtringendo enim iſta re penitus Rempublicam ſublevatis. Parum diſcrepat Regius. Becc. anguſtet vinculis auctoritatis. Dum enim iſta reprimitis, Rempublicam ſublevatis. Conſentit Corb. Sequimur Vatic. A. & alios.

[c] Johan. xxi. 17. [f] Luk. xii. 31. [g] Matth. xvi. 8.

nomina expetunt: & novis ac profanis vocabulis gloriantur.

Numquid ego hac in re, piiſſime Domine, propriam cauſam defendo? Numquid ſpecialem injuriam vindico? [h] cauſam Omnipotentis Dei, cauſam univerſalis Eccleſiæ?

Quis eſt iſte, qui contra ſtatuta Evangelica, contra canonum decreta, novum ſibi uſurpare nomen præſumit? Utinam vel ſine aliorum imminutione unus ſit, qui vocari appetit univerſalis.

Et certè multos Conſtantinopolitanæ Eccleſiæ in hæreſeos voraginem incidiſſe novimus ſacerdotes, & non ſolum hæreticos, ſed etiam hæreſiarchas factos. Inde quippe Neſtorius, qui mediatorem Dei & hominum Jeſum Chriſtum duas eſſe perſonas exiſtimans, quia Deum fieri hominem potuiſſe non credidit, uſque ad Judaïcam perfidiam erupit. Inde Macedonius, qui conſubſtantialem patri & filio Spiritum Sanctum Deum eſſe denegavit. Si igitur illud nomen in ea Eccleſia ſibi quiſquam arripit, [i] quod apud bonorum omnium judicium fecit: [k] univerſa ergo Eccleſia, quod abſit, à ſtatu

[h] Vatic. D. cui conſentiunt plerique excuſi, vindico, & non magis cauſam omnipotentis Dei & cauſam, &c. Sequimur tres Vaticanos, Norm. Corb. Reg. &c.

[i] Obſcurus eſt hic locus, qui tamen ita legitur in Norm. Reg. tribus Vatic. & pleriſque: nec clarior eſt excuſorum lectio mutando fecit in fuit. Solus Vatic. D. habet, quod bonorum omnium judicium fecit: & quidem optimo ſenſu. At meliori adhuc Jameſius legit in MS. Anglic. quo caput ſe bonorum omnium facit: univerſa ergo. In Sagienſi, quod caput, &c. Hanc lectionem præferat qui voluerit.

[k] Multis argumentis hanc novam appellationem concutit. 1. Cadente univerſali Epiſcopo univerſa ruit Eccleſia. 2. Nullus Romanorum Pontificum hoc nomen aſſumſit. 3. Honore debito univerſi Sacerdotes privarentur, ſi quis etiam Romanus Pontifex hoc appellaretur nomine. 4. Præ-

ſtatu ſuo corruit, quando is qui appellatur univerſalis cadit. Sed abſit à cordibus Chriſtianis nomen iſtud blaſphemiæ, in quo omnium ſacerdotum honor adimitur, dum ab uno ſibi dementer arrogatur.

Certè pro beati Petri Apoſtolorum principis honore, [l] per venerandam Chalcedonenſem ſynodum Romano Pontifici oblatum eſt. Sed nullus eorum unquam [m] hoc ſingularitatis nomine uti conſenſit, ne dum privatum aliquid daretur uni, honore debito ſacerdotes privarentur univerſi. Quid eſt ergo quod nos hujus vocabuli gloriam & oblatam non quærimus, & alter ſibi hanc arripere & non oblatam præſumit?

4. Præceptis canonicis adverſatur iſta appellatio. 5. Omnes hac de re ſcandalum patiuntur. In ſynodo VII. act. 2. contendit Papa Hadrianus cum Taraſio de nomine Patriarchæ œcumenici, & concedit. Vide Epiſtolam Hadriani, & ſententiam Baſilii Ancyrani, Stauratii Chalcedonenſis, Nicephori Dyrrachii, Epiphanii Catanenſis, Gregorii Synopes, Sabæ monachi, Gregorii monachi. Idem, act. 3. in titulo Epiſtolæ Orientalium, necnon in votis epiſcoporum Agapii, Johannis Conſtantin. Baſilii, &c. Leo IX. Michaeli Conſtant. Patriarchæ ſcribens de S. Leone I. ait: Superbum refutavit vocabulum penitus, quo videbatur par dignitas ſubtrahi cunctis per orbem præſulibus, dum uni ex toto arrogaretur. Vide totam Epiſtolam. Quid ſi Græci nomen œcumenici ſuo Patriarchæ ea tantum de cauſa tribuerunt, quod toti cuidam parti orbis præeſſet, ut videtur ſenſiſſe Anaſtaſius bibliothecarius in præfatione VII. ſynodi, in editione Romana. Lege S. Hieronymum, l. 5. in Iſa. ad illa verba, c. 13. Vox multitudinis, & viſitabo ſuper orbis mala. Ubi explicat quid per omnem terram, quid per orbem, & οἰκουμένην ſit intelligendum Guſſanv.

[l] Melius diceretur in univerſali Chalcedonenſi ſynodo, ſcilicet actione 3. in aliquot libellis, & in voto Paſchaſini legati S. Leonis, & act. 6. in voto ejuſdem Paſchaſini, vocem per, interpretantur, durante &c. Guſſanv. Vide ſup. Ep. 18. circa medium.

[m] Ita Vatic. Norm. Corb. Reg. in quibuſdam tamen, pro nomine, legitur, vocabulo. In vulgatis, hoc ſingularitatis nomen aſſumſit, nec uti conſenſit.

Ille ergo magis eſt piiſſimorum Dominorum præceptione flectendus, qui præceptis canonicis obedientiam præbere contemnit. Ille coercendus eſt, qui ſanctæ univerſali Eccleſiæ injuriam facit, qui corde tumet, qui gaudere de nomine ſingularitatis appetit, qui honori quoque imperii veſtri ſe per privatum vocabulum ſuperponit?

Ecce omnes hac de re ſcandalum patimur. Ad vitam ergo rectam revertatur auctor ſcandali, & omnia ſacerdotum jurgia ceſſabunt. Ego enim cunctorum ſacerdotum ſervus ſum, in quantum ipſi ſacerdotaliter vivunt. Nam qui contra Omnipotentem Dominum per inanis gloriæ tumorem, atque contra ſtatuta patrum ſuam cervicem erigit, in omnipotenti Domino confido, quia meam ſibi nec cum gladiis flectit.

Quid autem nuper in hac urbe ex hujus auditu vocabuli geſtum ſit, Sabiniano diacono ac reſponſali meo ſubtiliùs indicavi. Cogitet ergo Dominorum Pietas de me proprio ſuo, quem ſpecialiter præ cæteris ſemper fovit atque [h] continuit, qui & vobis obedientiam præbere deſidero, & tamen de mea negligentia reperiri reus in ſuperno tremendoque judicio pertimeſco; ac ſecundum petitionem prædicti Sabiniani diaconi, aut piiſſimus Dominus ipſum dignetur judicare negotium, aut ſæpe nominatum virum, [o] ut ab hac tandem intentione ceſſet, inflectere. Si ergo judicio pietatis veſtræ juſtiſſimo, vel clementibus juſſionibus ceſſerit, Omnipotenti Deo gratias referimus, atque de conceſſa per vos omni Eccleſiæ pace gaudemus. Sin autem in eadem diutius

[h] Eodem modo interpretandum eſt hoc loco verbum continere, ac in Ep. 5. libri 1. nomen continentia. Vide notas.

[o] Tres Vatic. aut ſæpe nomin. virum, ab hac tandem intentione non eſſet (forte non ceſſet) inflectere.

Conten-

contentione perſtiterit, hac de re jam veritatis ſententiam certam tenemus, quæ ait: [p] Omnis qui ſe exaltat humiliabitur. Et rurſus ſcriptum eſt: [q] Ante ruinam exaltatur cor. Ego autem Dominorum juſſionibus obedientiam præbens, prædicto conſacerdoti meo & dulciter ſcripſi, & humiliter, ut ab hac inanis gloriæ appetitione ſeſe emendet, admonui. Si igitur me audire voluerit, habet devotum fratrem. Si verò in ſuperbia perſiſtit, jam quid ſequatur aſpicio, quia illum ſibi adverſarium invenit, de quo ſcriptum eſt: [r] Deus ſuperbis reſiſtit, humilibus autem dat gratiam [s].

---

[t] AUGUSTINE going for England, is recommended by GREGORY to PELAGIUS Biſhop of Tours, and to SERENUS Biſhop of Marſeilles in Gaul.

ALtho', to Prieſts who are endued with a Charity that is well pleaſing unto God, devout Men ſtand in need of no Recommendations. Yet ſince a fit Opportunity has offer'd it ſelf, we have taken care to tranſmit Letters to your Brotherhood. Intimating that the Bearer of theſe, Auguſtine the Ser- R. Ep. lib. vi. Ep. 52.

[p] Luc. xiv. 11. & xviii. 14. [q] Prov. xvi. 18. [r] Jac. iv. 6.

[s] Vid. S. Gregorii Regiſt. Epiſt. lib. v. Indict. xiii. Ep. xx. ex Edit. Benedict.

[t] It may be obſerved, that where a Letter is ſuperſcribed, as here, to two Perſons, it is to be underſtood that Auguſtine carried them Duplicates of the ſame Original; for thus we are to interpret the Latin Note à Paribus.

vant

vant of God, of whoſe good Intentions we are well aſſured, together with other Servants of God, are for the Advantage of Souls, thro' the Divine Aſſiſtance, directed thither by us. Whom it is neceſſary your Holineſs ſhould make haſte to aſſiſt with all Epiſcopal Affection, and to yield him all Encouragement. For the furtherance whereof that you may be the readier, we have enjoin'd him to give you an exact account of the whole Affair. Being aſſured, that when it is made known to you, you will out of Piety towards God, apply your ſelf, ſo far as the matter requires, wholly to ſet it forward.

GREGORY recommends AUGUSTINE to VIRGILIUS Biſhop of Arles, Metropolitan.

R. Ep. lib. vi. Ep. 53.

ALtho' we are confident of your Brotherhood's being intent upon Good Works, and that it is voluntarily apt to declare it ſelf ready in Cauſes that are well-pleaſing to God. We have nevertheleſs thought fit to addreſs our ſelves to you with brotherly Affection, that what Aſſiſtances of your own accord you ought to impart, you may increaſe by the Importunity of our Letters. And therefore we acquaint your Holineſs, that Auguſtine the Servant of God, the Bearer hereof, whoſe Zeal and good Inclination we know by ſufficient Experience, is with other Servants of God, for the Benefit of Souls ſent by us (to England); as he when admitted to your Preſence will be able to inform you. In which it is neceſſary that you forward him with your Prayers and and Aſſiſtance, and as far as ſhall be requiſite, that you afford him your comfortable Advice, and cheriſh him with all Paternal and Epiſcopal Encouragement, that in caſe thro' your Holineſſes Advice and Encouragement, he ſhall, as we truſt he will, be any way a Gainer to our God, you may likewiſe find your Reward in having promoted him in his pious Endeavours, by the devout Encouragement of your Approbation.

GREGORY commends AUGUSTINE going into England, to DESIDERIUS Biſhop of Vienna, and SYAGRIUS Biſhop of Autun, in France. From the ſame Original.

WE have great confidence in your Brotherhood's ſincere Charity, that for the Love of St. Peter the Prince of the Apoſtles, you ſhew ſo much Kindneſs towards our Meſſengers. Eſpecially ſince the nature of the Cauſe requires it. In which however you deſire rather to concur and labour of your own accord. Wherefore we ſignify to your Holineſs, that we have ſent Auguſtine a Servant of God, the Bearer of theſe Preſents, of whoſe Zeal and Diligence we have good knowledge, (to England) with other Servants of God, in order by the Divine Diſpenſation to the Good of Souls. From whoſe Relation, you being made perfectly acquainted with what we have enjoin'd him, your Brotherhood will by all means aſſiſt him with your Favour and Encouragement, ſo far as the Occaſion ſhall demand. That ſo you may, as is both fit and decent, be the Promoter of a good good Work. May your Brotherhood therefore ſo acquit your ſelf with Devotion and Earneſtneſs in this Affair, that the good Opinion which we have conceived of you by Report, may by your Works be effectually eſtabliſh'd.

R. Ep. lib. vi. Ep. 54.

GREGORY to THEODERIC and THEODEBERT Kings of the Franks,

To whom he recommends AUGUSTINE and his Companions going into England.

R. Ep. lib. vi. Ep. 58.

SInce Almighty God hath adorn'd your Kingdom with a right Faith, and hath made the Purity of the Chriſtian Religion conſpicuous among other Nations: we have conceived great Hopes, concerning you, that you deſire your Subjects every where to be converted to the ſame Faith, which you your ſelves profeſs, who are their Kings and Lords. And ſince we are informed that the Engliſh Nation by the Grace of God greatly deſire to be converted to the Chriſtian Faith: but the Biſhops in the Neighbourhood are negligent, and ceaſe to inflame their Deſires by their good Advice. For this reaſon we have taken care to ſend thither Auguſtine a Servant of God, the Bearer of theſe Preſents, whoſe Zeal and Diligence is well known to us, with other Servants of God. Whom alſo we have enjoin'd to take with them from the Neighbourhood ſome PRESBYTERS, with whom they may know their Minds, and forward their Inclinations by their Advice, as God ſhall give them Ability. In which thing that they may may appear well qualified and ſucceſsful: ſaluting your Excellencies with a Paternal Affection, we beſeech you; that thoſe whom we have ſent may be found to merit your gracious Favour. And becauſe it is the Cauſe of Souls, aſſiſt and protect them with your Powers. That God Almighty, who knows you take delight with a devout Mind, and with all your Abilities to yield your Aſſiſtance in his Cauſe: may ſo diſpoſe your Affairs by his Mercy, as after an Earthly Dominion, to bring you to the Kingdom of Heaven.

GREGORY to BRUNICHILDA Queen of the Franks.

THE Zeal of your Excellency towards the Chriſtian Faith hath been long ſince ſo well known to us, that we can in no wiſe doubt of the Goodneſs of it: but we are become by all means the more certain of it, becauſe of its devout and earneſt Concurrence in the promoting of the Chriſtian Faith. And that it ſo largely and bountifully affords the Comforts of its Religious Sincerity. By which thing having well grounded our confidence, we ſaluting you with our Paternal Affection, declare to you that whereof we are inform'd, that the Engliſh Nation by the Grace of God deſire to be made Chriſtians; but the Prieſts which are in the Neighbourhood have not a Paſtoral Concern for them. Whoſe Souls that they ſhou'd not periſh in eternal Damnation, it was our care to direct thither, the preſent Bearer Auguſtine a Servant of God, whoſe Zeal and Induſtry is well known to us, with other Servants of God, that by them

R. Ep. lib. vi. Ep. 59.

them we may know their Inclinations, and, as much as is poſſible, hope for their Converſion by your aſſiſtance. Whom we have alſo enjoin'd, towards the doing of this, to take with them ſome Preſbyters from the Neighbourhood. Therefore your Excellency, who is accuſtomed to be forward in doing Good Works, as well for the regard you have to our Requeſt, as in reſpect to the Fear of God, will be pleaſed to admit in all things of his Recommendation: and being very earneſt in affording him the Favour of your Protection, aſſiſt his Labour with your Patronage, and that your Excellency may have its full Reward, provide for his Safe-conduct to the above-mention'd Engliſh Nation: that as our God hath adorn'd you in this World with all things that are pleaſing to him, ſo he may continue to bleſs you here, and make you for ever happy with his Saints in Eternal Reſt.

GREGORY to AUGUSTINE Biſhop of the Engliſh.

R. Ep. lib. xi. u Ep. 28.

GLory be to God on high, in Earth Peace, Good-will towards Men [x]. Becauſe [y] a Grain of Wheat falling into the Earth, periſhes, that he might not only reign in Heaven, by whoſe Death

[u] This Angelical Hymn was formerly uſed on Occaſions of Thankſgiving, as here in this Epiſtle, and Epiſtle the 39th of the 5th Book of St. Greg. Regiſt. Epiſt. See the Benedictines Notes upon them both.

[x] Luke ii. 14. John xii.

[y] Some MSS. read, mortuum cadens in terram multum fructum attulit, ne ſolum. Then the Senſe will run thus: Becauſe a Grain of Wheat falling into the Earth, being dead, hath produced much Fruit, &c.

we

we live, by whoſe Weakneſs we are made ſtrong, by whoſe Sufferings we are deliver'd from ſuffering, by whoſe Love we ſought thoſe Brethren in Britain which we knew not, by whoſe Grace we have found thoſe whom we ſought, but did not know. But who is ſufficient to relate how great Joy is ariſen in the Hearts of all true Believers? that the ENGLISH People, by the Operation of God's Grace, and the Induſtry of you our Brother, the Darkneſs of Error being expell'd, are overſpread with the Light of Faith? that with a moſt ſincere Mind they now tread under foot thoſe Idols, to which before with a mad Superſtition they proſtrated themſelves, that they fall down before Almighty God with a pure Heart, that from the Lapſes of looſe and evil Actions being recover'd, they are tyed up by the Rules of the Holy Goſpel; that they ſubmit their Minds to the Divine Precepts, and are raiſed in their Underſtandings; that by Prayer they humble themſelves even to the Ground, that their Minds may not grovel upon the Earth? But whoſe Work can this be, but his? who ſaith: [z] My Father worketh hitherto, and I work. Who that he might ſhew that the World was not converted by Man's Wiſdom, but by his own Power, his Preachers which he ſent into the World he choſe them without Learning. Doing likewiſe in this manner, when he vouchſafed to do mighty things in the Engliſh Nation by Perſons that were weak. But there is in this heavenly Gift, my moſt Dear Brother, that which beſides the great Joy that it affords, ought to be dreaded moſt exceedingly. I know that Almighty God, in the Nation which he is pleaſed to make choice of, by your Goodneſs hath ſhewn forth many Miracles. From [z] John v. 17.

whence it is neceſſary, that on account of the ſame heavenly Gift you ſhould rejoice with Fear, and fear amidſt your Rejoicing. For you have great reaſon to rejoice, that the Souls of the Engliſh by outward Miracles are brought to have inward Grace: but be afraid leſt among the Miracles which are wrought by you, your Soul, weak through Human Infirmity, in its own Preſumption ſhould exalt it ſelf; and you then fall through Vain-glory within, when you are extoll'd with outward Reſpect. For we ought to remember, that the Diſciples returning with Joy from preaching the Goſpel, while they ſaid to their heavenly Maſter: * Lord, even the Devils are ſubject unto us through thy Name; they were ſtraightway told, † Notwithſtanding rejoice not in this, but rather rejoice becauſe your Names are written in Heaven. For they had fixed their Mind on private and temporal Joy, who rejoiced in doing Miracles; but they are recalled from private, to common; from temporal, to eternal Rejoicing; to whom it is ſaid: In this rejoice, becauſe your Names are written in Heaven. For all that are choſen do not work Miracles; nevertheleſs all their Names are kept enroll'd in Heaven. For the Diſciples of Truth ought to have no other Joy, but in that Good which is common to them all, and in which there will be no end of their Rejoicing. It remains therefore, moſt Dear Brother, that among thoſe things which you outwardly perform by the Divine Aid, you ſhould accurately examine your ſelf within, and exactly know both what you are your ſelf, and how much the Grace of God is in that Nation, for whoſe Converſion you have received the Power of working Miracles. And if you ſhall at any time remember that you have offended

* Luke x. 17. † V. 20.

our

our Creator either by Word or Deed, you ſhall always have this in your Mind, that the remembrance of your Guilt may ſubdue the growing Pride of your Heart. And whatſoever you have, or ſhall receive in doing of Miracles, look not upon this as given to your ſelf, but for their Salvation for whom it is conferr'd on you.

But it comes into my Mind while I think on theſe things, what was done by a Servant of God, one highly choſen. For certain it is, that [a] Moſes, while he led the People of God out of Egypt, many wonderful things, as your Brotherhood knows, were done by him. Faſting Forty Days and Nights on Mount Sina, he received the Tables of the Law in the midſt of Thunder and Lightning, the People being all afraid. He alone was admitted into the Service of Almighty God, ſo as to talk with him Face to Face [b]. He divided the Red Sea. In his Journey he was led by a Pillar of a Cloud [c]. The People being hungry, he brought down Manna from Heaven [d]. Deſiring Fleſh in the Wilderneſs, he ſupply'd them by a Miracle beyond what they could deſire. But now in the time of Drought, when he was come to the Rock, he deſpaired, and doubted whether he was able to bring Water out of it; which nevertheleſs at the Command of God he open'd in a large Current [e]. But what Miracles he afterwards wrought for thirty eight Years that he was in the Wilderneſs, who can number them? Who is able to trace them out? As often as any thing doubtful ſhock'd his Mind, having recourſe to the Tabernacle, he enquired ſecretly of God, and [a] Exod. xix. 31.

[b] Exod. cap. xiv.

[c] Exod. cap. xiii.

[d] Exod. cap. xvi.

[e] Exod. cap. xvii. Numb. xx.

was

was immediately anſwer'd in the matter, the Lord diſcourſing with him [f]. He appeaſed the Lord being angry with his People by the intervention of his Prayers. Thoſe that were lifted up with Pride, and thoſe who cauſed Diſſentions and Diſcord, he made the Earth to open and ſwallow them up. He overcame his Enemies with Victory, and ſhewed Wonders to his People. But when he was come in ſight of the Land of Promiſe, he was called to the Mount: and that Offence, as I have ſaid, whereof he had been guilty thirty and eight Years before: the ſame he then heard of, becauſe he doubted of bringing the Water out of the Rock. For which reaſon he acknowledged he could not enter the Land of Promiſe. In which thing we ought diligently to conſider, how much the Judgment of Almighty God is to be feared, who by this his Servant wrought ſo many Miracles, whoſe Offence notwithſtanding he kept for ſo long time in his Thoughts.

Therefore, moſt dear Brother, if we are certain he died for his Sin, after he had wrought Miracles, whom we know to have been eſpecially choſen of Almighty God; how much ought we to tremble with Fear, who as yet know not whether we are choſen or no?

But of the Miracles which were wrought by thoſe in a reprobate State what ſhall I ſay? When your Brotherhood well knows what the Truth in the Goſpel ſaith: [i] Many will ſay to me in that Day, Lord, Lord, have we not propheſied in thy Name? and in thy Name have caſt out Devils? and in thy Name done many [f] Exod. xxxiii, &c.

[g] Numb. xvi.

[h] Numb. xxvii.

[i] Matth. vii. 22, 23.

wonder-

wonderful Works? [k] And then will I profeſs unto them, I never knew you: Depart from me ye that work Iniquity. Therefore the Mind is greatly to be humbled amidſt Signs and Miracles, leſt by chance it ſeeks its own Glory, and pleaſe it ſelf with the Joy of its own Exaltation. For by Miracles the gaining of Souls is to be ſought, and his Glory by whoſe Power theſe Miracles are wrought. But the Lord hath given us one Sign, concerning which we may both exceedingly rejoice, and find in our ſelves the Glory of our Election, ſaying: [l] By this ſhall all Men know that ye are my Diſciples, if ye have Love one to another. Which Sign the Prophet required, when he ſaid: [m] Shew ſome Token upon me for good, that they who hate me may ſee it, and be aſhamed.

But this I ſay, becauſe I deſire to proſtrate the Minds of my Auditors in Humility. But your Humility hath wherein to place its Confidence. For I who am a Sinner do entertain moſt certain Hope, that by the Grace of our Almighty Creator and Redeemer, our God and Lord Jeſus Chriſt, your Sins are forgiven you; and for this cauſe you are choſen, that by you others may be abſolved. Nor ought you to be troubled at any thing hereafter, who have cauſed Joy in Heaven by the Converſion of many. But the ſame which our Saviour and Redeemer ſpeaking of Man's Repentance, ſaith, [n] I ſay unto you, that likewiſe Joy ſhall be in Heaven over one Sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine juſt Perſons, which need no Repentance. And if there is ſo much Joy in Heaven for one Penitent, how great Joy may we believe is [k] Luke xiii. 27.

[l] John xiii. 34.

[m] Pſalm lxxxvi. 17.

[n] Luke xv. 7.

made

made by the Converſion from their Error of ſo many People, who coming to the Faith, have condemn'd the Evil which they have done, by Repentance? In this Joy therefore of Heaven and of the Angels, let us repeat the Words of the Angels which we have before mention'd, let us all ſay: [o] Glory be to God on high, and on Earth Peace, Good-will towards Men.

GREGORY to BERTHA Queen of the Engliſh.

R. Ep. lib. xi. Ep. 29.

WHoſoever after the Poſſeſſion of Earthly Power, deſires to obtain the Glory of the Kingdom of Heaven, that Perſon ought above all things to labour with his utmoſt diligence to prove gainful to his Creator, that to what he deſires, he may by Good Works gradually aſcend. Which thing being done by you, is an occaſion to us of much Joy. For our moſt beloved Son Laurentius the Preſbyter, and Petrus the Monk, returning to us, they informed us in what manner your glorious Majeſty had been pleaſed to appear towards Auguſtine our Moſt Reverend Brother, and Fellow Biſhop; and how great Encouragement, and what kind of Charity you vouchſafed him. And we return Thanks to Almighty God, who hath graciouſly vouchſafed to reſerve the Converſion of the Engliſh People for your Reward. For as by HELENA, the never to be forgotten Mother of the moſt Pious CONSTANTINE, Emperor of the Romans, the Hearts of the Romans were enflamed towards the Chriſtian Faith. So we truſt that by your [o] Luke ii. 14.

glorious

glorious Endeavours the Mercy of God will be manifeſted upon the Engliſh Nation. And indeed, you ought by the Benefit of your Prudence, ſo far as it is truly Chriſtian, to have long before inclined the Mind of our glorious Son your Conſort, for the Safety of his own Soul, and of his Kingdom, to embrace the ſame Faith which you entertain. Inaſmuch as by him, and thro' him, there might ariſe up to you a worthy Retribution in the Joys of Heaven, for the Converſion of the whole Nation. For after that, as we have ſaid, your Majeſty is both fortified with a right Faith, and inſtructed in good Learning, this ought not to have been a matter of any Delay or Difficulty. And ſince by the Bleſſing of God, a fit Occaſion is now offer'd, be careful in cooperating with the Divine Grace, to repair what has been already neglected, by a proportionable Encreaſe of your future Endeavours.

Wherefore by continual Exhortations ſtrengthen the Mind of your glorious Conſort in the Love of the Chriſtian Faith. Let your Concern for him infuſe into him an Encreaſe of Love towards God, and ſo enflame his Mind with a Deſire for the full Converſion of the whole Nation that is ſubject to him, that he may have a large Sacrifice to offer to Almighty God, for the Earneſtneſs of your Devotion, and that the things we are told concerning you, may both encreaſe, and be in all reſpects approved to be true: For the Fame of your Virtues has not only come unto the Romans, who with earneſt Devotion pray for you; but to ſeveral other Places, and has reacht as far as Conſtantinople, to the moſt Serene Emperor.

Whereupon as we have had great Rejoicing from the Comfort of your Chriſtian Faith; ſo let there be

Joy in Heaven among the Angels for the perfecting of your Good Work. Shew your ſelf ſo devoutly and with all your Might in the Aſſiſtance of our moſt Reverend Brother and Fellow Biſhop, and thoſe Servants of God that we have ſent with him, for the Converſion of your People, that you may both Reign happily here with our glorious Son your Conſort, and after a long Tract of Years receive thoſe Joys of the Life to come which know no end. We beſeech Almighty God, that he would both inflame your Majeſty's Heart with the Fire of his Grace, to do what we have mentioned; and likewiſe give you the Fruits of an Eternal Reward, for the Work that is well pleaſing to him.

To our Moſt Reverend and Moſt Holy Brother AUGUSTINE our Fellow Biſhop, GREGORY, Servant of the Servants of God.

R. Ep. lib. xi. Ep. 65.

WHereas it is certain, that for thoſe who labour in the Cauſe of Almighty God, the ineffable Rewards of an Eternal Kingdom are reſerved; it is nevertheleſs neceſſary that we ſhould allow them the Benefit of External Honour, that they may be encouraged to multiply their Labour in the ſpiritual Work, from the Hopes of their Reward. And becauſe the new Church of the Engliſh, by our Lord's Bounty and your Labour, is brought to partake of the Grace of God: We grant to you the Pall, to be uſed uſed only in the Miſſal Solemnity; ſo that you may ordain Twelve Biſhops in ſeveral Places that are ſubject to your Dominion, in ſuch manner that the Biſhop of London ſhall always be conſecrated by his own Synod, and that he receive the Pall from this Holy and Apoſtolical See, to which by the Divine Authority I miniſter. But to the City of York I would deſire you to ſend a Biſhop, ſuch as you think fit to Ordain; but on ſuch Conditions, that if that City with the adjacent Places ſhall receive the Word of God, he may in like manner ordain Twelve Biſhops, and enjoy the Honour of a Metropolitan. For we deſign alſo by God's Favour, if we live, to ſend the Pall to Him, whom we will have to be nevertheleſs under the Direction of your Brotherhood; but after your Deceaſe he ſhall in ſuch wiſe preſide over the Biſhops whom he has ordain'd, as to be by no means ſubject to the Power of the Biſhop of London. But let there be for the future, between the Biſhops of London and of York, this Diſtinction of Precedence, that he ſhall take place who was firſt ordain'd; but by joint Counſel and Agreement in Practice, let them unanimouſly diſpoſe of all things that are to be done with Zeal for Chriſt; let them have right Sentiments, and agreeable to ſuch Sentiments let them perform all things without differing between themſelves. But to your Brotherhood, by the permiſſion of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, not only thoſe Biſhops which you have ordain'd, or that have been ordain'd by the Biſhop of York; but the whole Britiſh Clergy ſhall be ſubject. Inſomuch that both from your Inſtruction, and the Holineſs of your Life, they may receive both the Pattern of Orthodox Belief and of Good Life, and having here fulfilled their Duty both as to Faith and Manners, they may in our Lord's due time arrive at the Kingdom of Heaven. May God preſerve you in Safety, moſt Reverend Brother.

Dat. x. Kal. Jul. in the Reign of our moſt pious Emperor Mauricius Tiber. Auguſt. an. 19. after his Conſulat. 18. Indict. iv.

GREGORY to ETHELBERT King of the Engliſh.

R. Ep. lib. xi Ep. 66.

FOR this reaſon does Almighty God bring good Men to have Rule over his People, that by their means, the Gifts of his Divine Bounty may be beſtowed on all who are made ſubject to them. Which thing we know to have happen'd to the Engliſh Nation, over which Your Majeſty is therefore placed, that by thoſe good things which have been vouchſafed to you, your Subjects might receive the Divine Bleſſings from above. Wherefore, my moſt glorious Son, that Divine Grace which you have received, keep with a careful Mind. Make haſte to enlarge the Chriſtian Faith amongſt all your People. Multiply your Righteouſneſs in their Converſion, expel the Worſhip of Idols, overturn the Buildings of the Heathen Temples, edify and inform the Manners of your Subjects, with great Purity of Life, by Exhortation, and Threatning, by Allurements, and Corrections, and by ſhewing forth an Example of Good Works: That you may find your Reward from him in Heaven, whoſe Name and Knowledge you have ſpread abroad upon the Earth. He alſo will make your Majeſty's Glorious Glorious Name to be illuſtrious to Poſterity, whoſe Honour you both ſeek and preſerve amongſt the Nations. In like manner heretofore Conſtantine the moſt pious Emperor, drawing off the Roman Republick from their perverſe Idolatry, he ſubdued them with himſelf to Jeſus Chriſt our Almighty Lord God, and turned himſelf to Him, and all the People that were under him, with his whole Mind. From whence it came to paſs, that that Perſon far ſurpaſſed in Honour the Renown of the antient Princes, and ſo far exceeded them in Reputation, as he outdid them in Good Works. And now may your glorious Majeſty loſe no time in infuſing the Knowledge of One God the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoſt, into the Kings and People that are under you, that ſo you may exceed in Glory and Merit the antient Kings of that Nation. By how much the more induſtrious you have been in doing away the Sins of other Men amongſt your Subjects; by ſo much the more ſecure may you be as to your own Offences before the terrible Judgment of Almighty God.

But our moſt Reverend Brother, Auguſtine the Biſhop, inſtructed in the Rules of the Monaſtick Diſcipline, repleniſh'd with the Knowledge of the Scriptures, by the Grace of God furniſhed with Good Works, whatſoever he ſhall adviſe you, hear it willingly, perform it devoutly, and ſtudiouſly retain it in your Memory. For if you hearken to him in thoſe things which he ſhall ſpeak to you on the behalf of Almighty God, the ſame Almighty God will the more readily hearken to his Supplication when he prays for you. But if, which God forbid, you caſt his Words behind you; when do you think will Almighty God hear him for you, whom you neglect to hear for God.

Apply

Apply your ſelf therefore with your whole Mind to all Zeal and Fervour in the Faith, and truſting in that Grace of God which is vouchſafed to you, give him your Aid: That he may make you the Partaker of his Kingdom, whoſe Faith you occaſion to be received and preſerved in your Dominions.

Moreover we deſire your Majeſty may know, as we learn from the ſacred Scriptures of Almighty God, that the End of this preſent World is at hand, and the Kingdom of the Saints will come, which can never be terminated with any End. But that End of the World being near, many things will threaten us, which have not been known before; that is to ſay, great Changes in the Air, and Terrors from Heaven, and Tempeſts out of Seaſon, and War, and Famine, and Peſtilence, and Earthquakes in all Places. Which things however ſhall not happen in our Days; but follow ſome time after. If you ſhall therefore perceive any thing of this kind to happen in your Land, let it by no means diſturb your Mind. For, for this cauſe, do theſe things come before the End of the World, that we ſhould be careful of our Souls, uncertain of the Hour of Death, and be found prepared with Good Works to meet our Judge. Theſe things, my moſt glorious Son, have I in few Words ſpoken to you, that when the Chriſtian Faith is farther increaſed in your Kingdom, our Diſcourſe with you may expatiate and enlarge it ſelf, and we ſhall have the greater deſire to diſcourſe with you, by how much the more the Joy we conceive in our Mind for the perfect Converſion of your People ſhall be multiplied.

I have tranſmitted to you theſe ſmall Preſents, which however will not be ſmall in your eſteem, being received by you with St. Peter's Bleſſing.

Where-

Wherefore may Almighty God preſerve and accompliſh in you that Grace which he has begun, and both prolong your Life here thro' a long Current of many Years, and at length receive you into the Aſſembly of the Saints in your Celeſtial Inheritance. May the Divine Favour preſerve your Excellency in Safety, my Lord, my Son.

Dat. x. Kal. Jun. of the Reign of our moſt pious Lord Mauricius Tiberius Auguſtus, an. 16. after his Conſulat. an. 18. Indict. iv.

ADDITIONAL NOTES to the HOMILY.

Ad 12. MARTII.

ON þone tpelfetan dæg þæf monðef biþ fēe Lpegopief geleopnef unef fæðef fe uf fulpihte onfænd on þæf Bpytene. he if upe Altop ⁊ pe fynðon hif Alumni. þ if. he if feftef fæðef on Lhift. ⁊ pe fynðon hif feftef beapn on fullpihte.

ON the Twelfth Day of this Month is St. Gregory's Feſtival, the Parent of our Inſtruction, who ſent Baptiſm to us here in Britain. He is our Altor, and we are his Alumni; that is, he is our Foſter Father in Chriſt, and we are his Foſter Children in Baptiſm.

This

This is that Note of the Menologium, to which you are referr'd in the firſt Page of the Homily, in which are theſe two things very remarkable: Firſt, the great Happineſs they poſſeſt, and the great Obligation that they juſtly believed was laid upon them, from their having the Chriſtian Baptiſm tranſmitted to them. And next their Gratitude to the Memory of that Perſon, by whoſe Care and Kindneſs they received it. The Original MS. of the Menologium is in the Cottonian Library, Jul. A. 10. 2. and is printed in Dr. Hickes's Theſaurus, p. 218. A Tranſcript of it, with ſome part of it tranſlated into Latin, by the Reverend and Learned Dr. Hopkins late Prebendary of Worceſter, is to be met with in Mr. Harley's Library. Nor is this the only Inſtance of Reſpect which we find our Saxon Anceſtors to have had for the Memory of their great Doctor and Apoſtle. For in that moſt elegant Piece of antient Poetry, the Dano-Saxon Calendar tranſlated into Latin, and adorn'd with Learned Notes by Dr. Hickes, we have this mention of him.

Þrime ȝehyþrteð.	When rough March begins,
Þaȝol ſcuþum ſæþ	Loudly boiſterous,
Eeoð miðdan ȝeaþ	Bearded with grey Froſt,
Maþtiuſ ne ðe.	With Showers of ratling Hail,
Þlyða healic:	He terrifies the World.
Ðænne ſe halȝa	When eleven Days are paſt,
Ðæſ emb xi. niht	Then did Gregory,
Æðele ſcynde.	That Glorious Saint
Gregoriuſ	In Britain moſt renown'd,
In Godeſ pæpe.	Amidſt the Heavenly Hoſt
Bleome in Bryhtene:	Illuſtrious ſhine.

The

The Doctor's Learned Remarks very much deſerve our Attention. For it is obſerved by him, that in this Noble and Antient Calendar there are ſcarce any other Feſtivals obſerved, than thoſe which our Church has thought fit to retain from the time of the Reformation to this Day: if you except the Feſtivals of St. Gregory, and Auguſtine, and St. Benedict. The former being the Apoſtles and Fathers of our Converſion. The latter much reverenced, by thoſe of the Monaſtick Order as their chief Patron and Founder. And it cannot but be matter of much Conſolation to a true Church of England Proteſtant, to find ſo happy an Agreement between the antient Anglo-Saxon, and the preſent Reformed Engliſh Church. Not only in this matter of the Saints Feſtivals, but in things of higher Importance; as that of Tranſubſtantiation, and the Papal Supremacy, and the like. So that they ſhew themſelves to be very ignorant, of whatſoever Party, who aſk us where the Church of England was before Luther. As to our Reformers leaving out of the Calendar, the Commemorations of St. Gregory and St. Auguſtine; It is rather to be aſcribed to their great Moderation and Prudence, at a time, when Mens Affections were hurried on violently againſt every thing that ſeem'd to have the leaſt relation to Rome and to the Pope; than to any want of Gratitude to the Memory of thoſe Excellent Doctors whom God was pleaſed to make the Inſtruments of delivering us from the Power of Darkneſs, and who had nothing of Modern Popery in them. It is farther remarkable, that theſe were the true and allowed Feaſts of the Saxon Church, and not a Poetical Eſſay of ſome private Perſon, but approved by Royal Authority, and as was uſual in all Matters of publick Importance, eſpecially in Times of Peace, by the Advice of the King's Great Council. That it had the Royal fiat theſe Words ſufficiently declare.

Nu ge finðan magon	Now may be found out
Halige tiþ.	Thoſe Holy Times,
Ðe man healðan ſceal.	Which Men ſhall obſerve
Ofer bebugeð geboð	O'er the Britiſh Empire,
Leonð Bryten ricu.	By the Royal Edict
Sexna Cyninger:	Of the Saxon King.

That the Regulation of the Calendar was provided for both in their Eccleſiaſtical Synods, and Great Councils or Parliaments, may be ſeen both from the Canons of the Council of Cloveſhoe under Cuthbert Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Anno DCCXLVII. and the Laws of King Alfred the Great. For the Firſt ſee the Councils of the Noble Knight Sir H. Spelman, Vol. I. pag. 249. Can. 17. It is appointed by the ſeventeenth Canon, "That the "Birth-day of the Holy Father Gregory, and the Day "of the Depoſition of St. Auguſtine Archbiſhop and "Confeſſor (viz. vii. Kal. Jun.) who being ſent by "the aforeſaid Pope Gregory our Father, firſt brought "to us the knowledge of the Faith, the Sacrament of "Baptiſm, and the Proſpect of our Heavenly Coun-"try, be by all Men obſerved with an honourable "Solemnity as they ought to be.

And for King Ælfred, ſee his Laws publiſhed by Lambard and Wheelock, L. 39. in Lam. fol. 41. in Wheel. fol. 33.

Be Mæſſe dæge ſpeolſe:·

Of the Solemnization of Holy-days.

Callum ſpeoum mannum þæſ dæga ſýn forgýfene. butan [a] þeopum monnum. ȝ eſne nihtum:· xii dagaſ [b] on Gehol. ȝ þone dæg ðe Criſt ðone

Theſe Days are allowed to all Men of liberal Condition, Servants and Slaves being excepted. Twelve Days [at Yule] or Chriſtmaſs, and the Day on which

[a] Ðeopum monnum. ȝ eſne nihtum. are Terms imperfectly underſtood by our Antiquaries: And it will be Preſumption for me to decide the matter; unleſs we allow of the Diſtinction between Slaves and Apprentices, and hired Servants, to be as early as the Saxons. And then we have ſomewhat of this antient Indulgence, even to this Day; in the uſual Allowances that are made to Servants of working for themſelves, and viſiting their Friends, and gathering of Box-money, eſpecially on the greater Feſtivals.

[b] Gehol. ȝeol. Angl. Sax. Iol, vel Iul, Dano-Sax. and to this day in the North Yule, Youle, ſignifies the ſolemn Feſtival of Chriſtmaſs, and were Words uſed to denote a Time of Feſtivity very antiently, and before the Introduction of Chriſtianity among the Northern Nations. Learned Men have diſputed much about this Word, ſome deriving it from Julius Cæſar, others from the Word ȝehpeol, a Wheel, as Bede, who would therefore have it ſo called, becauſe of the Return of the Sun's annual Courſe after the Winter Solſtice: but he writing de ratione temporum, ſpeaks rather as an Aſtronomer, than an Antiquary. The beſt Antiquaries derive it from the Word Ol, Ale, which was much uſed in their Feſtivities and Merry-meetings. And the I in Iol, iul. Cimbr. as the ȝe and ȝi in Gehol, ȝeol, ȝiul, Sax. are premiſed only as Intenſives to add a little to the Signification, and make it more emphatical. Ol, or Ale, as has been obſerved, did not only ſignify the Liquor then made uſe of, but gave Denomination likewiſe to their greateſt Feſtivals, as that of ȝehol, or Yule, at Midwinter: and as is yet plainly to be diſcerned in that ðeopol oferþrifðe. ⁊ ðeintur Gregorius gemynde ðæg. ⁊ vii. dagas to [c]Easton. ⁊ vii ofer. ⁊ an ðæg æt Seint Petres tide ⁊ Seint Paules: [d] ⁊ on hærfeste ða fullan fucan æfter Sctan Marian mæssan. ⁊ [e] ealna haligna feorðunge

our Saviour overcame the Devil. And St. Gregory's Commemoration-day. And ſeven Days before, and ſeven Days after Eaſter. And one Day at St. Peter's and one at St. Paul's tide. And one whole Week at Harveſt, before St. Mary's Feſtival.

Cuſtom of the Whitſun-ale, at the other great Feſtival. If it be enquired how theſe Heathen Solemnities came to be continued after our Anceſtors received Chriſtianity. It may be preſumed that this Indulgence was connived at, the more eaſily to forward their Converſion, who were tenacious of their antient native Rites and Cuſtoms. And it was judged more ſafe and prudent, by the Doctors of Chriſtianity, to ſubſtitute the Obſervance of the Chriſtian Solemnities, in the room of the Heathen Feaſts, under a Regulation of greater Modeſty and Sobriety, than to aboliſh all at once, and abridge them entirely of their Freedom.

The twelve Days after Chriſtmaſs are yet well known by the very ſame Denomination in Twelftide.

[c] Seven Days before and ſeven Days after Eaſter. Paſſion and Eaſter Week. Paſſion Week, no doubt, as a time of ſtricter Humiliation and Penance; and Eaſter Week for Feſtival Joy, as it is ſtill every where obſerved, with great difference of Solemnity, agreeable to the Cuſtoms of ſeveral Places.

[d] One whole Week at Harveſt, before St. Mary's Feſtival, which falls upon the Eighth of September. September is called Haligmonaþ ⁊ hærfestmonaþ in the Dan. Sax. Calendar and Angl. Sax. Menologium, in the Francic, Herbſtmonat. There are ſome Footſteps yet remaining of this in our Harveſt-home, and Mell Supper in the North; but by enlarging this Time of Liberty from St. Mary's Feaſt to the twenty fourth of the foregoing Month, as now is uſual, it will be better known by the Name of Bartholomew-tide.

[e] The

an dæge :· ⁊ ꝼeoꝑeꝑ ꝑoðneꝛdagaꝛ on ꝼeꝑeꝑ [f] ymb-bꝑen ꝑucum. ðeoꝑum eallum ꝛynð ꝑoꝛgyꝛen. ðæm ðe him leoꝑoꝛt ꝛy to ꝛyllanne. æghꝑæt ðæꝛ ðe him mon ꝑoꝑ Goðeꝛ na-man ꝛeꝛylle. oþþe hi on ænigum heoꝑa hꝑilꝛtic-
cum ꝛeæꝑnian magon :·

One Day at the [e] Commemoration of All Saints, and the four Wedneſdays in the four Ember Weeks. To all Servants is allow'd, i. e. to thoſe to whom their Maſters have moſt a mind to indulge this Favour, all that is permitted to them for Godſake, or all that they can earn for themſelves within the ſpace of any of them.

[e] The Commemoration of All Saints the very ſame ſince the Reformation, the Reaſon whereof I give you from the Excellent Biſhop Coſins, in his Introduction to the Calendar. " Foraſmuch as in " proceſs of time the Multitude of Men and Women reputed holy in " this kind, became ſo exceeding numerous, that all the Days of the " Year would not have been ſufficient for a ſeveral Commemoration " of them; it was the great Wiſdom and Moderation of thoſe reli- " gious grave Prelates, by whom God (of his eſpecial Bleſſing to our " Church above others) did reform ſuch things as were many ways " amiſs here among us, to chuſe One Solemn Day alone, wherein to " magnify God for the generality of All his Saints together, and to " retain ſome few ſelected Days in every Month, for the ſpecial Me- " mory of others, both holy Perſons and holy Actions, which they ob- " ſerved not our People alone, but the univerſal Church of Chriſt alſo " to be moſt affected unto, and beſt acquainted withal; hereby " avoiding only the Burthen, and the unneceſſary number of Feſtival " Days; not diſallowing the Multitude of God's true Martyrs and " Saints, whoſe Memorials we are to ſolemnize howſoever in the " general Feſtival of All Saints Day, as by the proper Leſſons, the " Collect, Epiſtle, and Goſpel then appointed in our publick Liturgy, " doth moſt evidently appear.

[f] The Obſervation of Ember Week was antiently as it is now.

The

The Care of our Anceſtors about the Obſervation of Holy-days and ſolemn Feſtivals may be further learn'd from the Laws of King Edgar, L. 5.

Be ꝑneolſ ðæġum ⁊ ꝑæꝛtenum:·

Of the FEASTS and FASTS.

Þealðe mon ælceſ ſunnan ðæġeſ ꝑneolſ. ꝑꝛam nontiðe ðæſ ſæteꝛneſ ðæġeſ. oþþæſ monan ðæġeſ liht inġ. be ðæm ꝑite ðe ðom boc tæcþ:· ⁊ ælcne oþꝛene mæſſe ðæġ ſꝑa he beboden beo:· ⁊ mon beboden ꝑæſten healðe miþ ælcne ġeoꝛnfulnyſſe:·

Let every Lord's-Day be kept as a Feſtival, from three of the Clock in the Afternoon on Saturday, to Break of Day on Monday Morning, under the Penalty enjoined in the Penitential. And every other Holiday as it is appointed to be obſerv'd. And the appointed Faſts ſhall be kept, with all due care.

With theſe Laws, to the ſame purpoſe, may be compared LL. Inæ, c. 3. Fœd. Edrici, c. 7, 8. LL. Canuti, 14, 15, 16, 17. LL. Wiſigoth, lib. 12. c. 6.

This Account of the Devotion of our Forefathers in obſerving the Feſtivals of the Church, I thought might not be unacceptable to the Engliſh Reader, and more eſpecially what concerns St. Gregory and St. Auguſtine. I had indeed ſome Intentions with this Homily on St. Gregory, of publiſhing that upon St. Auguſtine's Feſtival, in the ſame Method; but was diſappointed to find nothing but a very ſhort Fragment of it: Which being tranſcribed for me from the Bennet College Book, by an Ingenious and Induſtrious Perſon of Pembroke Hall, I will give you thus Engliſhed.

IN DIE DEPOSITIONIS BEATI AUGUSTINI ANGLORUM DOCTORIS.

Men þa leofertan we willaþ eow sume gerecednysse cyþan embe þyres þuph haligan symbel dæges mæssunge ⁊ wuþþunge þe nu anþwenþ ys. Serest on fruman þe us gedafenaþ to herigenne ⁊ to wuldrigenne ælmihtigne scyppend þuph þæne. ⁊ on þam fyrst ealle gesceafta gesceapene ⁊ undeorþe-oþþe: þe eac sylce hiss gecorenan ⁊ his haligan on heofena rices gefean þægene geloga þ:

Sume synd gecwedene englas. sume heah englas. þe gewæpnon. on fruman of Godes onsyne ⁊ blæde beorhte gesceapene: We na þurfon embe þæt deoppur geneccean: Forþon hit ys

ON THE OBIT OF SAINT AUGUSTINE, DOCTOR OF THE ENGLISH.

Men moſt beloved, we will now declare unto you ſome Account of the Celebration and Solemnity of this moſt ſolemn Feſtival, which is now preſent. Firſt of all, in the beginning, we are to praiſe and glorify the Almighty Creator, thro' whom and by whom all things were created. And to whom all things are made ſubject. Who moreover doth happily place his Elect, and his Saints in the Joy of the Kingdom of Heaven.

Some are called Angels, ſome Archangels, which were in the Beginning, by the Breath and Spirit of God, beautifully framed. But we dare not thereinto ſearch too deeply. Becauſe it is not fit, either for Rich or Poor, to yr unnihc nicum ge heanum. þ hi Godes digelu deoplice ſpyrian. Ac we willað embe þæt ſecgan ⁊ neccean. þa we oft bocalarnæ. leornigað gelome. þ he heonan geceas haligra mænigu. Sume pæron heah fæderas healice :·

to ſearch too narrowly into the Hidden things of God. But we will ſay and declare ſo much of the matter, as we have often learned from Books, That from hence he made choice of many Saints. Some were Patriarchs highly. Here the Homily ends.

Mr. Wanley, from whoſe complete and accurate Catalogue, you have already had an Account of the Books, which St. Gregory ſent to Auguſtine, has been ſo kind as to write out and ſend me an Account alſo of the Veſtments, Veſſels, Reliques, and Pall. From a Tranſcript taken from Thomas de Elmham's Original Book; which Tranſcript is now in Mr. Harley's Library. Which I thought the Reader might deſire to ſee in Engliſh.

Of the Veſtments which St. Gregory gave to Auguſtine.

" FOR the ſacred Veſtments, and the ſacerdotal " Habits, are to this time preſerved in the " Veſtry, viz. one Cope all Silk, of a Saphir or Azure " Colour adorn'd with a Gold Border, and with Jewels " on the upper part before. Two Copes all Silk of a " Purple Colour, adorn'd with Gold Borders, in other " things alike. Three Copes of Silk of a Purple Co- " lour, but flower'd or embroider'd with Gold and " White;

" White, and wove throughout. One little Cloak of " Purple Silk adorn'd with Gold and Jewels on the " upper part behind.

" Nor are ſuch and ſo great Ornaments of our Pri- " mitive Endowment to be thought without ſome " Myſtery.

" By the one Cope of Saphir or Azure Colour, may " be underſtood the Unity and Stability of the Chri- " ſtian Faith. By the two Copes which are of the " ſame Purple Colour, with the little Cloak or Che- " ſible, you are given to underſtand, that Chriſt chu- " ſing ſeventy two Diſciples, he ſent them two by two " before his face to all the Cities and Places to which he " deſign'd to come himſelf, and that he ſaid to them; " Where two or three are gather'd together in my Name, " there am I in the midſt of them. But the Identity of " the Purple Colour ſhews, that by the virtue of " Chriſt's Blood, if we follow his Steps, and bear one " another's Burdens, when he ſhall appear we ſhall be " like unto him, and we ſhall ſee him as he is. There- " fore that we may preſerve the Agreement of the " twofold Number in the Unity, let the Hope of Grace " in Confeſſion follow the Hope of Pardon in Contri- " tion, and ſo let the Hope of Glory in Satisfaction; " which is ſignified in the Purple Colour. Which " threefold Hope proceeds from the Unity and Stabi- " lity of the Faith, which is threefold. Firſt from " Belief of the Precepts; Secondly from Belief of the " Miracles; Thirdly from Belief of the Promiſes. " That there are three Copes of the ſame Purple Co- " lour, but flower'd with Aurora or Gold Colour, and " White all of a piece, may very well be underſtood " Charity, which conſiſts in three things, according " to the Apoſtle, in a pure Heart, and in a good Per-

" ſeverance, and in Faith unfeigned[f]. By the White or " Snow Colour therefore may be underſtood Purity of " Heart; by the Aurora or Gold Colour, Perſeverance " in Goodneſs; by the Purple, Integrity of Faith; " by the flowered Work of the ſame Contexture you " may obſerve the Virtues that are founded in Cha- " rity. But that the Purple is the Ground, or princi- " pal Colour in the three flower'd Copes, and in the " other two: you are given to underſtand. [g] For " other Foundation can no Man lay, than that is laid, " which is Jeſus Chriſt. In whom all the Building fitly " framed together groweth unto an Holy Temple in the " Lord. And obſerve that the Number of Copes an- " ſwer to the number of the Legates, viz. Mellitus, " Juſtus, Paulinus, and Rufinianus, join'd with Lau- " rentius the Preſbyter, and Peter the Abbot.

Of the Gold and Silver Veſſels given to Auguſtine.

" OF the Gold and Silver Veſſels, which Bede and " the other Hiſtorians mention to have been " ſent to Auguſtine by St. Gregory, and given to this " Monaſtery, what I ſhould now write (which I " cannot obſerve without Sighing) I am altogether " ignorant. For ſome report, that in the time when " the ſacrilegious Danes laid waſte this Land, by rea- " ſon of their frequent Irruptions, all things were " hid in ſome ſecret Places, and have not as yet been " diſcover'd. Others ſay, that in Richard the Firſt's " Time they were taken out of the Monaſtery, being [f] 1 Ep. Tim. i. 5. [g] 1 Ep. Cor. iii. 11.

" given

" given to the Duke of Oſtricia in order to his Ran" ſom. Others are of opinion, that in the Time of " Egelſine the Abbot, who in the Year 1070. fled into " Denmark, for fear of William the Conqueror, he " having confiſcated the Monaſtery and all that be-
" long'd to it, and ſet one Scotlandus to be Abbot
" over it; theſe things of Value, and ſeveral other,
" were laid up in ſome ſecret Repoſitory, and have " never been made known ſince to Poſterity.

Of the Relicks given to St. Auguſtine, and which St. Gregory ſent him.

" THere are ſeveral Relicks the Gift of St. Gregory,
" which, as is reported, were given by St. Au-
" guſtine to the Monaſtery, yet remaining in the Ve-
" ſtiary: One double Croſs, which by Thomas Sprot
" and others is ſaid to be bifurcata, two forked:
" Some of the ſacred Wood, and of the ſeamleſs
" Coat: The Hair of the Bleſſed Virgin, ſome of " Aaron's Rod, of the Relicks of the Apoſtles and " Martyrs, with many others that are reverently
" placed in the Veſtiary.

Of the Apoſtolical Pall.

" THerefore the Apoſtolical Pall, with thoſe ſa-cred Preſents, were ſent by the ſame Meſſen-
" gers, as is premiſed, to Auguſtine at the ſame time
" by Gregory, viz. in the Year of our Lord DCI. and " was tranſmitted as a great Sacrament of Chriſt and " his Church, and as a Cloathing of all Virtues,
" which is the Bond of our Affection towards God

" and our Brother. So that the Vicar of Chriſt is a " kind of Mediator to reconcile God and Man, who " being girt with the Paternal Girdle of Righteouſ- " neſs, makes a League between Men and Angels, " between Heaven and Earth.

Upon this Account of Thomas de Elmham we may make theſe Remarks: And firſt as to the Veſtments. We find but two ſorts here mentioned, the Cappa and Caſula. The Cappa, or Capa, is ſometimes uſed for a Covering of the Head derived from Caput. From whence alſo the Word Capucium ſignifying a Monk's Coule, gives Denomination to thoſe Friers Mendicant who are uſually called Capuchins. From Cappa we ſtill retain the Word Cap. See Somner's Gloſſary to the X. Script. But becauſe the Cappa is here ranged under the Denomination of Veſtments, it hath been thought more proper to expreſs it by the Word Cope, which ſignifies a large outward Veſtment covering the Shoulders, and the whole Body, like a Cloak; and uſed upon the moſt ſolemn Occaſions. Of this kind I take to be thoſe rich Copes, which are ſtill preſerved and made uſe of by the Epiſtler and Goſpeller in the Cathedral Church of Durham.

Caſula, otherwiſe Caſubula or Planeta, is by Minſhew Chaſuble. Sir H. Spelman calls it Cheſuble or Cheſible, a little Cope. It is by ſome derived from Caſa, which is thought alſo to give Original to the French Word Caſaque, Belg. Caſacke, Engliſh Caſocke. See more both of the Cappa and Caſula in the aforecited Gloſſary of Somner, and in that of the Noble Knight Sir H. Spelman.

As to the Myſtery which Thomas de Elmham finds in theſe Ornaments of their firſt Endowment, with the notable notable Alluſions he makes, I ſhou'd have taken no notice, but to give a taſte of the Humour or Superſtition of that Age. However, in his Diſtribution of the Copes to Mellitus, Juſtus, Paulinus, and Rufinianus, Laurentius, and Petrus, he ſeems not to have been ſo exact, having left out John, who is mention'd in the Homily, and in moſt of the Hiſtorians.

What he was next to give us an account of was the Veſſels. But alas! he has only acquainted us with the Loſs of them, without letting us know what they were, in which reſpect we are ſtill altogether in the dark. Nor are we much help'd by William Thorne, who has only told us that they were Calices & cætera Vaſa Aurea & Argentea, Chalices and other Veſſels of Gold and Silver. He gives much the ſame account with Thomas de Elmham, nor cou'd we have expected much more from Thomas Sprot, otherwiſe called Spot or Spottey, who writ the Hiſtory of the Monaſtery of St. Auguſtine, and who has been mention'd above by Thomas de Elmham. Mr. Somner, and the Biſhop of Carliſle, ſeem both of them to have given Spot's Hiſtory up for loſt. And Leland, who ſaw a Manuſcript of Thorne's Hiſtory in the Monaſtery of St. Auguſtine's, and who tells us, as Thorne himſelf acknowledges in the Proemium of his Hiſtory, that his Book was in great meaſure taken from it, not only laments the Loſs of this Hiſtory with much regret; but would put us out of all hopes of ever retrieving it; not without intimating a Suſpicion, that Thorne had ſuppreſſed it to make his own Book of greater Value and Credit. His Words are theſe: Sed quam hic vellem Thornum minus diligentem fuiſſe. Nam dum ſuum ornaret munus, alieno forſitan injurius erat. Nuſquam etenim illic appareret Spotti Hiſtoria, & veriſimile eſt omnino periiſſe. But we will hope this was only a Suſpicion of Mr. Leland's; for we Antiquaries ſhould be willing where there are the leaſt apparent grounds for it, to ſhew our Candour to one another. For beſides that Thorne ſpeaks honourably of Spott's Hiſtory, and owns himſelf to have borrowed from him. Thomas de Elmham quotes the ſame Book, who as I am informed lived about the time of Henry the Fifth, and probably wrote from the Book it ſelf: and then Thorne cannot be juſtly accuſed of having deſtroy'd that Book, ſince the laſt time we hear of him is in the Year MCCCXCVII. in which his Hiſtory ends: and he promiſed to carry it on to the End of his Life, uſque ad tempus meæ reſolutionis, as he words it. So that it is probable he died the ſame Year. But Henry the Fifth, before whoſe time Thomas de Elmham is not ſaid to have flouriſhed, arrived not to the Throne till the Year MCCCCXII. that is, fifteen Year after the Death of Thorne. So that we muſt either acquit Thorne of Mr. Leland's Charge, or ſuppoſe that Spott is quoted by Elmham upon the Credit of Thorne; which, I confeſs, may not be altogether improbable, de Elmham's Citation being very little different from Thorne's Words, as will appear by the Compariſon. Thorne ſays, Utputa Thomas Sprott & alii, de Elmham, quæ à Thoma Sprot, & ab aliis. Which is very near a Tranſcript. But if Thomas de Elmham, who by the way was Prior of the Monaſtery of the Sacred Trinity at Lenton, was Contemporary with Thorne, as may appear from his writing a Book, intitl'd, Annals of the Britiſh, Saxon, and Engliſh Kings, from Brute to the time of Henry the Fourth, that is, to the Year of Chriſt MCCCLXXXVIII. and he quotes Sprott's Hiſtory, which poſſibly he might have ſeen, it can ſcarce be imagin'd that Thorne

we

wou'd

wou'd attempt to ſuppreſs a Book, which he, and no doubt ſeveral others, had been acquainted with; and that no body ſhou'd diſcover the Fraud and Impoſition till Leland's time. But I leave the Deciſion of this matter to the Reader, which the Reverend and Learned Dr. Smith has made very eaſy, by informing us, that there are two Copies of Sprott ſtill remaining in the Cottonian Library, the one Vitellius, D. XI. 9. under this Title: Chronica Monaſterii S. Auguſtini Cantuarienſis, per Thomam Sprot, Monachum Auguſtinenſem. The other Vitellius, E. IV. 7. Fragmentum hiſtoriæ Thomæ Sprott, Monachi Monaſterii S. Auguſtini Cantuarienſis ab anno 1055. ad annum 1202. ſecundum ſeriem abbatum, à Wilfrico ad Rogerum primum. But however deficient Maſter Thorne is, which we find was againſt his Will, in the account he gives of the Sacred Veſſels; he ſeems willing to make ſome amends for it in the Deſcription of Gregory's Preſents to King Ethelbert; which alſo of his Royal Bounty he beſtow'd upon the Monaſtery; and which by a Charter of Donation, if it may be depended upon as genuine, of the ſaid King, and an Inſpeximus of the ſame Charter made in the Reign of K. Edward the Third, appear to have been as follows.

Miſſurium etiam argenteum, ſcapton aureum, iterum ſellam cum freno aureo & gemmis exornatam, ſpeculum argenteum, armigaiſia oloſerica, camiſiam ornatam, quod michi de domino papa Gregorio ſedis apoſtolicæ directum fuerat. Alſo a Silver Diſh, a Golden Scepter, in like manner a Saddle with its Furniture of a Gold Bridle and Jewels, a Silver Looking-glaſs, a Royal Robe of State, or Dalmatica, all of Silk, a fine wrought Camiſia, which were ſent me by Gregory Biſhop of the Apoſtolick See.

Miſſu-

Miſſurium ſignifies a large Diſh or Patten, and ſaid to be ſo called quòd dono miſſum, as Somner in his Gloſſary tells us from Freherus, where he alſo refers us to de la Cerda and Voſſ. But why may it not be thought to ſignify moſt properly the Patten uſed in the Celebration of the Euchariſt; and ſo Miſſurium be immediately derived from Miſſa? A preſent proper enough for a new converted King, and probably for the Uſe of his own Chapel.

Scapton Mr. Somner fancies to be a Miſtake for Sceptrum.

Armigaiſia. Which is alſo writ Armiliaſia in the Inſpeximus before cited. This Word I find puzzles the Antiquaries. Mr. Somner, who follows Iſidore, derives it from Armus, as a Robe that covers or reaches from the Shoulders; and he ſays Reyner makes it the ſame with the Dalmatica, a Garment or Habit ſtill uſed in the Coronation of our Kings, as Mr. Somner and Sir Henry Spelman both affirm.

Now that Leland may make ſome amends for his hard Treatment of William Thorne, he ſhall give his Account of the Library of St. Auguſtine's, which I believe has never been in Engliſh before. I hope it will oblige the Reader: He ſeems very confident it will.

" What, ſays he, if I ſhall now recommend the " Library of St. Auguſtine, which I have juſt men- " tion'd, to Poſterity? Shou'd I not by this means " very much gratify all the Admirers of Antiquity? " Accept therefore, O ye Antiquaries, of things not " known to the Vulgar. Auguſtine being ſent by Gre- " gory the Great into Britain, did by his Friends in " Italy gather together many Greek and Latin Vo- " lumes, and procured them to be ſent over to him: " All

" All of which, he dying, left to his Monks, as cer" tain Pledges of his Goodneſs. The Greek Books,
" partly by the Violence of Time, partly by Fire,
" and in part by Rapine, had been loſt and taken " away. But of the Latin Books written in the large " Roman Letter, according to the Cuſtom of the An-" tients, there are even theſe yet remaining, which " carry an incredible and Majeſtick appearance of " Antiquity; viz. Two Volumes containing the four " Goſpels, but of a different Tranſlation from the " Vulgar. Alſo the Pſalter, which is dedicated by
" Jerome himſelf to Damaſus the Roman Biſhop,
" which I am inclined to believe is the very Original.
" Moreover, two moſt elegant Commentaries on the " Pſalms, which by reaſon of their too great Age ad" mit not of a Reader, unleſs of moſt diſcerning Eyes:
" but in none of theſe do the Names of the Authors
" appear. There are there likewiſe extant the Com" mentaries of Philip upon Job, as likewiſe many " other Authors of good note, whoſe Titles do not
" now occur to me. But thoſe Kentiſh Archbiſhops
" and Abbots who follow'd the Age of St. Auguſtine,
" enlarged this Library with great Care and Expence.
" Amongſt which Theodore the Cilician, and Adrianus
" the African were the chief: Both of them very ex" cellent Perſons, and both of them Men of the " greateſt Learning, and to whom indeed Britain in " general is entirely indebted for the reſtoring of the " Languages.

" And now, as we have given you an agreeable Ac" count of the Encreaſe of the Auguſtinian Library:
" So I ſhall now ſay ſomewhat of its Decreaſe; for in " all things there is a Change. During the Reign of " Ethelred, Father of Edward the Third, the ravaging
" Danes unmercifully laid waſte the City of Canter-

" bury. At which time, however the Auguſtinians " might eſcape, yet it is very likely, that in " ſo great a Tumult the Library would not be un- " rifled. But this by the Confeſſion of William Thorne " is evident, that in the Year MCLXVIII. the Church " of St. Auguſtine's was burnt: Which Calamity took " away from them a great number of good Authors, " as the ſame Perſon teſtifies. But the following Age " proved far more injurious to their Books; for the " illiterate Monks tore in pieces thoſe Greek Books " which they did not underſtand, and thoſe Latin " ones which by reaſon of their Antiquity they had " little reliſh for, to ſerve their private Uſes, that I " may ſay no worſe. But yet even to our Times " there hath ſome part of the antient Library re- " main'd entire. For I know very well, that ſome " Years ago there were ſeveral Authors of very good " account removed from St. Auguſtine's to the Library " which is in the Palace of my moſt Illuſtrious Prince. " Henry the Eighth of that Name. And that for my own " part I may declare how far I am concern'd, there are " ſome Copies now by me, and of no mean Learning, ta- " ken from the Auguſtinians, which in a few Days will " come to light. But whither have I ſtray'd? You " will, perhaps, Reader, expect that I ſhou'd long be- " fore have made an end. Here therefore let us fix it.

There is in the Bodleian Library, NE. E. 7, 8, an antient Manuſcript in the Saxon Character, and judged to have been written before King Ælfred's time, with this Title: Liber Commentarii Philippi Preſbyteri ad Nectarium Epiſc. in libris S. Job. A Specimen whereof, as a piece of venerable Antiquity, we have in Dr. Hickes's Theſaurus. This probably is the very Book which Leland ſaw in St. Auguſtine's Library.

But to go on with our Remarks on Thomas de Elmham;

ham, the next thing we are to ſpeak to is the Relicks he mentions. Whether or no they were the ſame which we are told by Bede were ſent by St. Gregory to Auguſtine, or the Merchandiſe of ſome more modern Traders in that ſort of Ware, I ſhall not diſpute, nor yet ſay much of their Virtues. St. Gregory's Notion of theſe matters may be ſeen in ſeveral of his Epiſtles; and as they were very careful in old times in diſcovering and puniſhing ſuch holy Frauds as were committed by thoſe who made it their Employment, to ſell and diſperſe abroad falſe Relicks; ſo ſome of the more ſerious and Learned Roman Catholicks at this time, if we may believe the Benedictines, ſeem to be aſhamed of them, and wiſh for a Reformation of ſuch Abuſes, as being a great Diſgrace and Scandal to Chriſtianity, which they therefore earneſtly recommend to the Inſpection of the Biſhops.

The laſt thing our Author ſpeaks of is the Pall, which he does in ſuch a myſtical ſtrain, as makes Mr. Whelock very angry with him: For my part I don't very well underſtand it. As to his calling it Grande Chriſti Sacramentum, Mr. Whelock anſwers him very well, that Chriſt is the ſole Author of his own Sacraments: and whereas he ſays that Chriſti Vicarius conciliator Dei & Hominum, he refers him very well to 1 Tim. ii. 5. There is one God, and one Mediator between God and Man, the Man Chriſt Jeſus. We muſt preſume however that Mr. Whelock muſt here mean that Reconcilement which ſhall be, without any prejudice to the ſubordinate Miniſterial Office of rightly conſtituted Biſhops and Prieſts, who as the Servants of Chriſt, by his Authority, and in virtue of his Merits, are appointed as a kind of Mediators between God and Man, to bleſs the People in God's Name, and to offer up to him Prayers and Sacrifices in their behalf.

For to this end, as St. Paul ſpeaks, is given unto them the Miniſtry of Reconciliation: And as he goes on; To wit, that God was in Chriſt, reconciling the World unto himſelf, not imputing their Treſpaſſes unto them; and hath committed unto us the Word of Reconciliation. Now then we are Ambaſſadors for Chriſt, as tho' God did beſeech you by us: We pray you in Chriſt's ſtead, be ye reconciled to God. 2 Corinth. ch. v. 18, 19, 20.

To give a particular Deſcription of the Pall, and the Uſes of it, wou'd require a diſtinct Treatiſe, and many Authors have written concerning it. Mr. Collier is pretty large upon it in his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory. I ſhall only obſerve, that in St. Gregory's time it was confer'd as a Badge of Honour, and worn by the Biſhops as a Robe of State and Magnificence during the time of the Miſſal Solemnity. I do not find in St. Gregory's Epiſtles, where it is very often ſpoken of, that it is ever called a Sacrament: but he every where inſiſts, that the receiving of it ought to put the Biſhops in mind of Juſtice and Humility. Thus Reg. Epiſt. Lib. 9. Ep. 125. Therefore we ſend you the Pall to be uſed in the Miſſal Solemnity, the Nature whereof we wou'd have you to maintain in all things; for the Glory of this Habit is Humility and Juſtice. Wherefore your Brotherhood will be ready to ſhew your ſelf with your whole Mind, humble in Proſperity, and in Adverſity, if it ſhall happen to you, bearing up with Righteouſneſs, friendly to the Good, but otherwiſe to thoſe that are perverſe, &c. And having reckoned up a great many other excellent Virtues, he thus at length concludes. This is, my moſt dear Brother, the reaſon of your having received the Pall; which if you carefully obſerve, what you appear to have received outwardly, you will be ſure inwardly to poſſeſs. Again, in the Concluſion of a Letter to Conſtantius Biſhop of Milan. But I beſeech you, while you take this upon you,

you, vindicate the Deſign and Honour of it by Humility. There are innumerable other Inſtances in the Epiſtles of this Holy Father: but I will not be farther tedious in the recital of them. And now I think it time to conclude theſe Obſervations with the Epitaph of St. Gregory in Latin and Saxon, taken out of Bede's Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, lib. 2. cap. 1.

Suſcipe terra tuo corpus de corpore ſumptum,
Reddere quod valeas, vivificante Deo.
Spiritus aſtra petit, [c] lethi nil jura nocebunt,
Cui vitæ alterius mors magis ipſa via eſt.
Pontificis Summi hoc clauduntur membra ſepulchro,
Qui innumeris ſemper vivit ubique bonis.
Eſuriem dapibus ſuperavit, frigora veſte,
Atque animas monitis texit ab hoſte ſacris:
Implebatque actu quicquid ſermone docebat,
Eſſet ut exemplum, myſtica verba loquens.
[a] Ad Chriſtum Anglos convertit pietate magiſtra,
[[d] Acquirens fidei agmina gente nova.]
Hic labor, hoc ſtudium, hæc [b] tibi cura, hoc paſtor agebas,
Ut Domino offerres plurima lucra gregis.
Hiſque Dei conſul factus, lætare triumphis,
Nam mercedem [e] operum jam ſine fine tenes.

Onfoh þu eorþe.
Lichoman of þinum.
Lichoman genumen,
þ ðu hine eft,
Agyfan mæge.
Ðonne hine God liffæſtæð:
Se gaſt up heofon gefohte.
Nænig gepealð.

[a] Anglos ad Chriſtum vertit pietate Magiſtra, Acquirens fideique agmina gente nova.
Johan. Diac. ex Edit. Benedict. Lib. iv. p 170.

[b] ——Tibi cura hæc Paſtor agebas. Ibid.

Deaþeſ

Deaþeſ him ſceððað.
Ðam oþþeſ liſeſ.
Se ſylfa ðeaþ meiſ feg:
Ðæſ hean Biſcoþeſ leoma.
On þyſſe byriġenne.
Syndon beċyneð.
Se ſymle leoſað.
Ġehpæp on unpim ġoðum:
Eapmpa hungup he.
Oſep ſpyþðe miþ mettum.
ȝ heopa cyle miþ hpæġle.
ȝ he miþ halġum monunġum.
Saule ſpam ſeonðum ġeſcylde.
ȝ he miþ ðæðe.
Ġeſyldе ſpa hpæt ſpa.
Þe miþ poncðe læncðe.
Þæſ he ġenyhelico.
Foncð ſpþecenðe.
Þ he liſeſ byſen.
Fæpe haliġpa manna.
To Ċpiſte he Angle ġehpyncðe.
Miþ anſæſtnyſſe lapeopðomeſ.
Ðiſ ġepin.
ȝ þyſſum * ġelic.
Ðeoſ ġymen.
ȝ ðuſ ðu hyncðe ðyðeſt.
Þ ðu ðnihtne bpohteſt.
Mycel ġeſtpeon.
Þaliġpa ſaula.
Ðyſſum ſiġopum þu Ċoðeſ
Biſceop bliſſian miht.
Fonðon þu ðinpa.
Feopca ece meðe.
Butan endе nimeſt:

A Body from thy Body fram'd receive,
Earth, to reſtore, when God ſhall it revive:
Upwards to Heaven the Soul has ſoar'd on high,
Nor from Death's Laws fears any Injury.
Another Life Death rather hath made known,
And plain'd his Way to a Celeſtial Crown.
The Prelate's Bones, 'tis true, are here inſhrin'd,
With Saints un-number'd lives his Deathleſs Mind.
The Hungry Poor he with his Bounty cheer'd,
And Warmth and Clothing kindly miniſter'd.

* Lege ġelic idem quod ġeleſe ſtudium.

By

By wiſe Advice, and pious Counſels taught,
He many Souls from Satan's Empire caught.
In Deed fulfill'd what in Diſcourſe he ſaid,
A Pattern of the Doctrine he diſplay'd.
Sought by his Piety the Engliſh Race, Added new Subjects to Chriſt's Realm of Grace.
Much Labour this, much Thought and Care it coſt,
Nor was the Shepherds bleſt Oblation loſt.
Then, Holy Biſhop, with theſe Triumphs ſhine,
In your Reward Eternal and Divine.

The Latin, with little Difference, is to be found in the Sylloge of ancient Chriſtian Inſcriptions, publiſh'd ſome time ago, by the Right Reverend and Learned Dr. William Fleetwood, Lord Biſhop of St. Aſaph: The Differences are theſe, [c] loeti, for lethi; [d] adquirens, [e] operis.

In Thomas de Elmham's Deſcription of the ſecond Book, ſent by St. Gregory to St. Auguſtine, ſee the Notes upon the Homily, pag. 40. whereas there are ſome Words that ſeem, through the Ignorance, or Careleſneſs, of the Scribe, to be miſplaced, viz. Intende qui Regis Iſrael, ſuper Cherubin qui ſedes a patre Effrē. Note that the true reading of theſe Words may be had Pſal. lxxix. v. 1, 2, 3. Qui Regis Iſrael intende, qui deducis velut ovem Joſeph, qui ſedes ſuper Cherubin, appare coram Ephraim [vel Effrayn] Benjamin, & Manaſſe. Excita potentiam tuam & veni, ut ſalvos facias nos.

FINIS.

The NAMES of the Subſcribers to this BOOK.

A.

THE Right Reverend William Lord Bp. of St. Aſaph.
Henry Aldrich, D. D. Dean of Chriſt Church, Oxon.
Mr. James Anderſon.
Benjamin Angier, M. D.
John Anſtis, Eſq;
William Aſheton, D.D. Rector of Beckenham, in Kent, and Chaplain to his Grace the Duke of Ormond.
John Atkinſon, of Leedes, Gent.
Joſeph Atkinſon, Eſq; Alderman of Newcaſtle.
Mrs. Anne Ayloffe.

B.

His Grace the Duke of Beaufort.
Her Grace the Dutcheſs of Beaufort.
Her Grace the Dutcheſs of Bolton.
The Lord John Berkeley.
The Lady Bland, of Kipax Park, in Yorkſhire.
Sir Richard Blackmore, Knt.
The Revd. Mr. Banks, of Hull.
The Revd. Mr. Joſhua Barnes, Profeſſor of the Greek Tongue, in Cambridge.
Joſeph Barns, Eſq; Barriſter at Law.
Mr. John Bateman, A. M. of Univerſity College, Oxon.
Charles Batteley, Eſq; of Weſtminſter.
Mrs. Anne Belk.
Mrs. Benſon.
The Revd. Mr. Benſon, Chaplain to the Lord Biſhop of Carliſle.
Moſes Bercenger, of London, Merchant.
Mr. Bertue.
Thomas Bigg, in the County of Northumberland, Gent.
The Revd. Mr. William Biſhop.
Thomas Bowdler, Eſq;
John Bootel, B. D. Fellow of St. John's.
Mrs. Agnes Bray, Wife to the Revd. Dr. Tho. Bray, Miniſter of St. Botolph, without Aldgate.
Mr. Brett.
Mrs. Suſanna Brewſter.
Richard Brookes, M. A. Student of Chriſt Church, Oxon.
Mrs. Mary Broughton.
Mrs. Anne Broughton.
Mark Browell, of Newcaſtle, Gent.
Mr. Edward Browell, of S. John's College, Cambridge.
The Revd. Mr. Mich. Bull, A. M. one of the Six Preachers at Chriſt-Church, Canterbury.
Mrs. Jane Burdet.

C.

The Right Revd. the Lord Biſhop of Carliſle.
The Right Honourable the Counteſs of Carliſle.
The Lady Cleaver.
Sir Richard Child.
The Lady Child.
The Lady Child.
Mrs. Katherine Canby.
The Revd. Dr. Charlett, Maſter of Univerſity College, Oxon.
Charles Clarke, of Newcaſtle, Gent.

The

The Rev^d. Mr. Robert Clavering, A. M. Fellow of Univ. Coll. Oxon.
Will. Cockburne, M. D.
Mrs. Mary Colſton.
Edward Cook, Eſq; of Newcaſtle.
Mr. John Cookſon, of Bread-ſtreet, London.
Robert Cotton, Eſq;
Mrs. Mary Cotton.
Mr. Thomas Copleſton.
Mr. Alexander Crow.
John Cuthbert, Eſq; Recorder of Newcaſtle.

D.

The Right Honourable the Counteſs of Dalkeith.
The Right Honourable the Counteſs Dowager of Donegall.
The Rev^d. Mr. Robert Dannye, A. M. Chaplain to his Grace the Duke of Somerſet.
The Rev^d. Mr. Tho. Dawſon, Vicar of New Windſor.
Thomas Deniſon, of Leedes, Merchant.
The Rev^d. Mr. William Denny.
Mrs. Eliz. Denny.
Mrs. Mary Digby.
Charles Duckinfield, Eſq;
The Rev^d. Mr. Fielding Dun, A. M. of Hull, late of Univ. Coll. Oxon.

E.

The Right Reverend the Lord Biſhop of Ely.
Mr. James Eckerſal.
Robert Eden, Eſq; Alderman of Newcaſtle.
Nathaniel Elliſon, D. D. Vicar of Newcaſtle.
Charles Elſtob, D. D. Prebendary of Canterbury.
Mrs. Matilda Elſtob, Wife to Dr. Elſtob.
Mr. John Elſtob, of Foxton, in the Biſhoprick of Durham.
Mr. Charles Elſtob.
Mrs. Anne Elſtob.
Mrs. Matilda Elſtob.

F.

The Lady Furneſſe.
The Rev^d. Mr. George Fage, M. A. Prebendary of Lincoln, and one of the Six Preachers at Chriſt Church, Canterbury.
Mrs. Felton, at Northumberland-Houſe.
Robert Fenwick, Eſq; Mayor of Newcaſtle.
Matthew Fetherſton, of Newcaſtle, Merchant.
Ralph Fetherſton Halgh, of Newcaſtle, Gent.
Thomas Foley, Eſq;
John Forteſcue, of the Middle Temple, Eſq;
Mr. William Freeman, Book-ſeller, in Durham.

G.

The Right Honourable the Lady Granvile.
George Granvile, Eſq;
Mrs. Mary Gaſcoigne, of Parlington, in Yorkſhire.
Mrs. Suſanna Gawler.
Mr. Gregory Geering, of Queen's College, Oxon.
William Green, of Newcaſtle, Gent.
Mr. William Greenwell.
The Rev^d. Dr. Gibſon, Rector of Lambeth, &c.
Mr. John Gibſon, Fellow of Queen's College, Oxon.
Dr. Thomas Gilmore, Fellow of Magd. Coll. Oxon.
The Reverend John Erneſt Grabe, D. D.
Mr. S. Gribelin.
Mrs. Suſanna Griffith.
Mr. Joſeph Gynes.

H.

The Right Honourable the Counteſs of Hereford.
The Right Honourable the Lady Eliz. Haſtings.
The Honourable the Lady How.
The Right Honourable George Hay Lord Dupplin, eldeſt Son to the Earl of Kinnoul.
The Rev^d. Mr. Geo. Harbin.
John Harding, of Horbling, Com. Linc. V. D. M.
The Right Honourable Robert Harley, Eſq; Mrs. Sarah Harley.
Edward Harley, Eſq;
Mrs. Elizabeth Harley.
Mrs. Abigail Harley.
Sir Francis Head, Baronett.
Mr. Thomas Hearne, of Edmund Hill.
Mrs. Rebeccah Hamilton.
Mrs. Roſe Hawkins.
Mr. Peter Herſent, of Queens College, Oxon.
Mr. Richard Hewit, of Stockton.
The Rev^d. Dr. George Hickes.
Mr. John Hill, of Queens College, Oxon.
Mrs. Julian Hindmarſh, of Newcaſtle.
Mr. Thomas Hindmarſh, of Newcaſtle.
Mrs. Hoare.
Mrs. Eliz. Holbrook.
Mr. Holmes.
The Rev^d. Dr. Hudſon, Fellow of Univ. Coll. and Keeper of the Bodleian Library at Oxford.
Mr. George Hudſon, of Queens College, Oxon.
Mr. Stephen Hunt, of Canterbury.
William Hutchinſon, Merchant, of Newcaſtle.
The Rev^d. Dr. Hutton, of Ayno.

I.

The Right Honourable the Lady Katharine Jones.
Mrs. Katherine Jackſon.
Dr. James, Maſter of Queens College, and Regius Profeſſor of Divinity, at Cambridge.
The Rev^d. Mr. Robert Jenkin.
Mrs. Margaret Jenkes.
Mr. David Jones, Maſter of the King's School at Canterbury.
Edward Iveſon, of Leeds, Gent.

K

Robert Keck, Eſq;
Mrs. Mary Kem.
Mrs. Martha Kenn.
Thomas Kitchinman, Jun. of Leeds, Merchant.

L.

The Right Rev^d. the Lord Biſhop of Lincoln.
Mrs. Martha Letton.
The Lady Lucy.
Sir Nicholas L'Eſtrange.

M.

Mr. Joſeph Madox.
Mr. Thomas Madox.
The Lady Maſon.
Mrs. Anne Maſon.
Mrs. March, of Heighington, in the Biſhoprick of Durham.
Mr. Henry Marſhall.
Mrs. Katherine Marſhall.
The Lady Maſter.
Mrs. Anne Medcalfe.
Mrs. Mary Milner.
Mrs. Mary Milner, of Leeds.
Mr. Henry Milbourn, of Newcaſtle, Merchant.
Mr. William Milbourne, of Newcaſtle, Merchant.
Mrs. Elizabeth Myles.

N.

Mr. Geo. Nelthrop, Merchant.
Mrs. Bridget Nevile, of Leeds.
Mrs. Mary Newcomen, of Theddlethorp

dlethorp, in Lincolnſhire.
Dr. Denton Nicholas.
Mrs. Katherine Nicholls.
Mrs. Nixon, of Canterbury.
Mrs. Suſanna Nurſe.

O.

Mrs. Sarah Oldry.
John Ord, of Newcaſtle, Gent.

P.

The Right Honourable the Lady Powlett.
The Rev^d. Mr. Samuel Palmer.
Mrs. Paunçefort.
Mr. Francis Pearſon.
The Rev^d. Mr. Pearſon, Archdeacon of Nottingham.
The Rev^d. Dr. Thomas Pearſon, Principal of Edmund-Hall, Oxon,
Mr. Thomas Peaſe, Jun. of Leeds, Merchant.
Mrs. Anne Pierce.
Mrs. Anna Plaxton.
The Rev^d. Dr. Potter, Canon of Chriſt-Church, and Reg. Prof. of Divin. at Oxford,
The Rev^d. Dr. Pickering, Prebendary of Durham, and Rector of Sedgefield.
Mr. Edmund Pittman, of Queens College, Oxon.
The Rev^d. Mr. Pratt, of Tottenham.
The Rev^d. Mr. Price, of Tillington, in Suſſex.

R.

The Right Honourable Thomas Lord Raby, Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the Queen of Great Britain to the King of Pruſſia, and Lieutenant General of all Her Majeſty's Forces of G. Britain and Colonell of Her Majeſty's own Regiment of Royal Dragoons.
Mr. Herbert Randolph, of Cant.
Mrs. Mary Randolph, of Cant.
Mrs. Frances Reed, of Newcaſtle.
Mr. Samuel Reed, Fellow of Queen's College, Oxon.
Mrs. Renaut.
Mrs. Elizabeth Renew.
Mrs. Mary Renew.
Mrs. Elizabeth Reynel.
Mrs. Richardſon.
Nicholas Ridley, Eſq; Alderman of Newcaſtle.
Mr. Richard Ridley, of Newcaſtle.
The Lady Roberts.
Mrs. J Roche.
Mr. Jonathan Roddam, of Newcaſtle.
Mrs. Mary Roepel.
Dr. Roderick, Dean of Ely, and Provoſt of Kings Coll. Cambridge.

S.

Her Grace the Dutcheſs of Somerſet.
The Right Honourable the Lady Anne Seymour.
The Right Honourable the Lady Henrietta Somerſet.
The Right Honourable Lady Carolina Schomberg.
Charles Sanderſon, of Newcaſtle, Gent.
Ralph Sanderſon, of the Midd. Temple, Gent.
The Rev^d. Mr. Claude Scoffier.
The Rev^d. Mr. Leonard Shafto, Rector of Gateſhead.
Mrs. Mary Skinner, of Leeds.
Dr. Richard Smallbrook, Fellow of Magd. Coll. Oxon. and Chaplain to his Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of Cant.
Mrs. Smith.
Mrs. Frances Smith.
Mr. James Smith.
Dr. Smith, Preb. of Durh.
Mr. Robert Smith, of Morton-Houſe, in the Biſhoprick of Durham.
Mr. Thomas Snell, of Stockton.

Dr.

Dr. Snape, Rector of St. Mary Hill.
Mrs. Margaret Snape.
Mrs. Anne Snape.
Mr. Matthew Shephard.
Mrs. Elizabeth Shephard.
Mr. John Shephard.
Mrs. Mary Stanhope.
Mrs. Stephens.
Mrs. Margaret Stote.
Mrs. Dorothy Stote.
Mrs. Elizabeth Swan.

T.

The Right Honourable Counteſs of Thomond.
The Right Honourable Lady Dowager Thanet.
The Right Honourable Thomas Thynne, Lord Viſcount Weymouth, &c.
The Right Honourable Viſcounteſs Weymouth.
The Hon^ble. Thomas Thynne, Eſq;
The Honourable the Lady Mary Thynne, his Wife, only Daughter to Edward Earl of Jerſey.
The Honourable Mrs. Grace Thynne.
Mrs. Mary Thynne,
Mr. John Talman.
Mrs. Mary Teſtard.
Mr. Richard Theed.
Mrs. Bridget Thornton, of Leeds.
Mr. Chriſtopher Todd.
The Rev^d. Mr. Andrew Trebeck.
John Triſtram, M. D.
Ralph Thoresby, of Leeds, Gent.
The Rev^d. Mr. Thwaites, Fellow of Queens Coll. and Prof. of the Greek Tongue in Oxon.

U.

Mrs. Vanhattem.
Mrs. Katherine Vanhattem.
Mr. Vaſlet, of Hampſtead.
Mrs. Jane Vernon.
Mrs. Mary Unit.

W.

The Right Honourable the Lady Katherine Windham.
The Honourable the Lady Worſely.
The Honourable Frances Worſeley, eldeſt Daughter to Sir Robert Worſely, Baronet.
The Lady Wiſhart.
Mrs. Suſanna Wallis.
The Rev^d. Mr. George Walker, of Gateſhead.
The Rev^d. Mr. Charles Ward, of Newcaſtle.
The Rev^d. Dr. Waugh, Rector of St. Peter's, Cornhill.
Mrs. Rebeccah Way.
Mrs. Julian Wentworth.
Matthew White, Eſq; Alderman of Newcaſtle.
Mr. Francis Whitworth.
Mrs. Willoughby.
Mrs. Wilſon.
Mrs. Elizabeth Winder.
Thomas Wiſe, S. T. P. and Fellow of Exeter College, Oxon.

Y.

Sir Thomas Yarbrough.

Omitted by Miſtake.

Mrs. Frances Fitzherbert.
The Lady Dowager Radnor.
The Rev^d. Mr. Samuel Hawes.

Other Names omitted.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moſely.
Mrs. Martha Hardret.
Mrs. Frances Dobree.
Mr. Humphry Wanley.

Theſe have been ſent ſince the foregoing Liſt was Printed off.

The Right Honourable Edward Lord Clifton.
The Right Honourable John Lord Carteret.
Mr. Chriſtopher Frederick Kreienberg.
The Honourable James Bertie, Eſq;
Mr. Robert Corher.
The Widow Lady Child.
Mrs. Higgins.
Mr. John Hare.

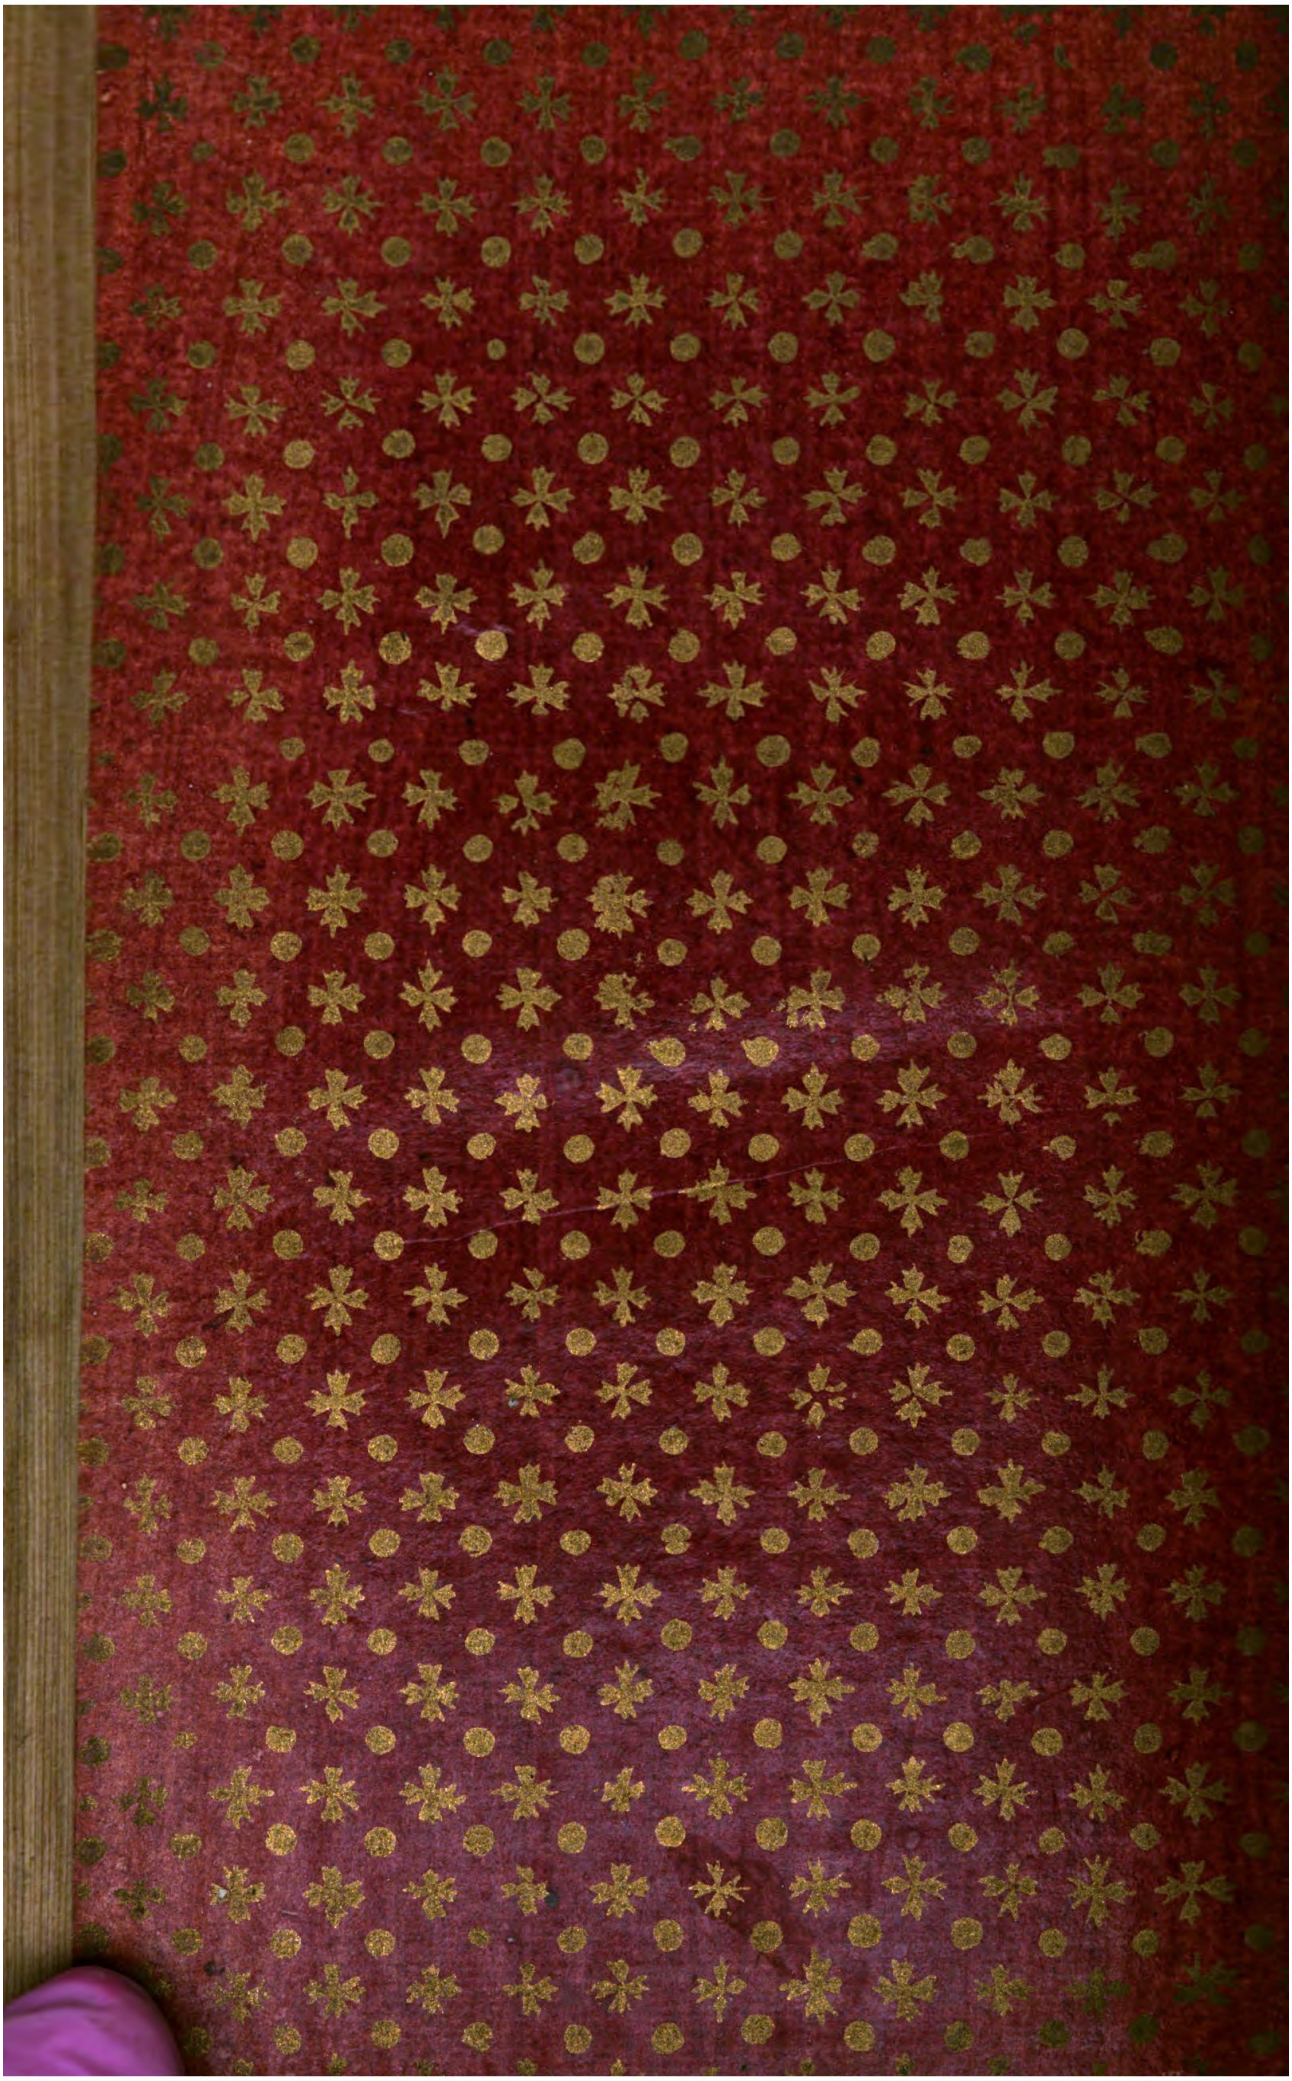
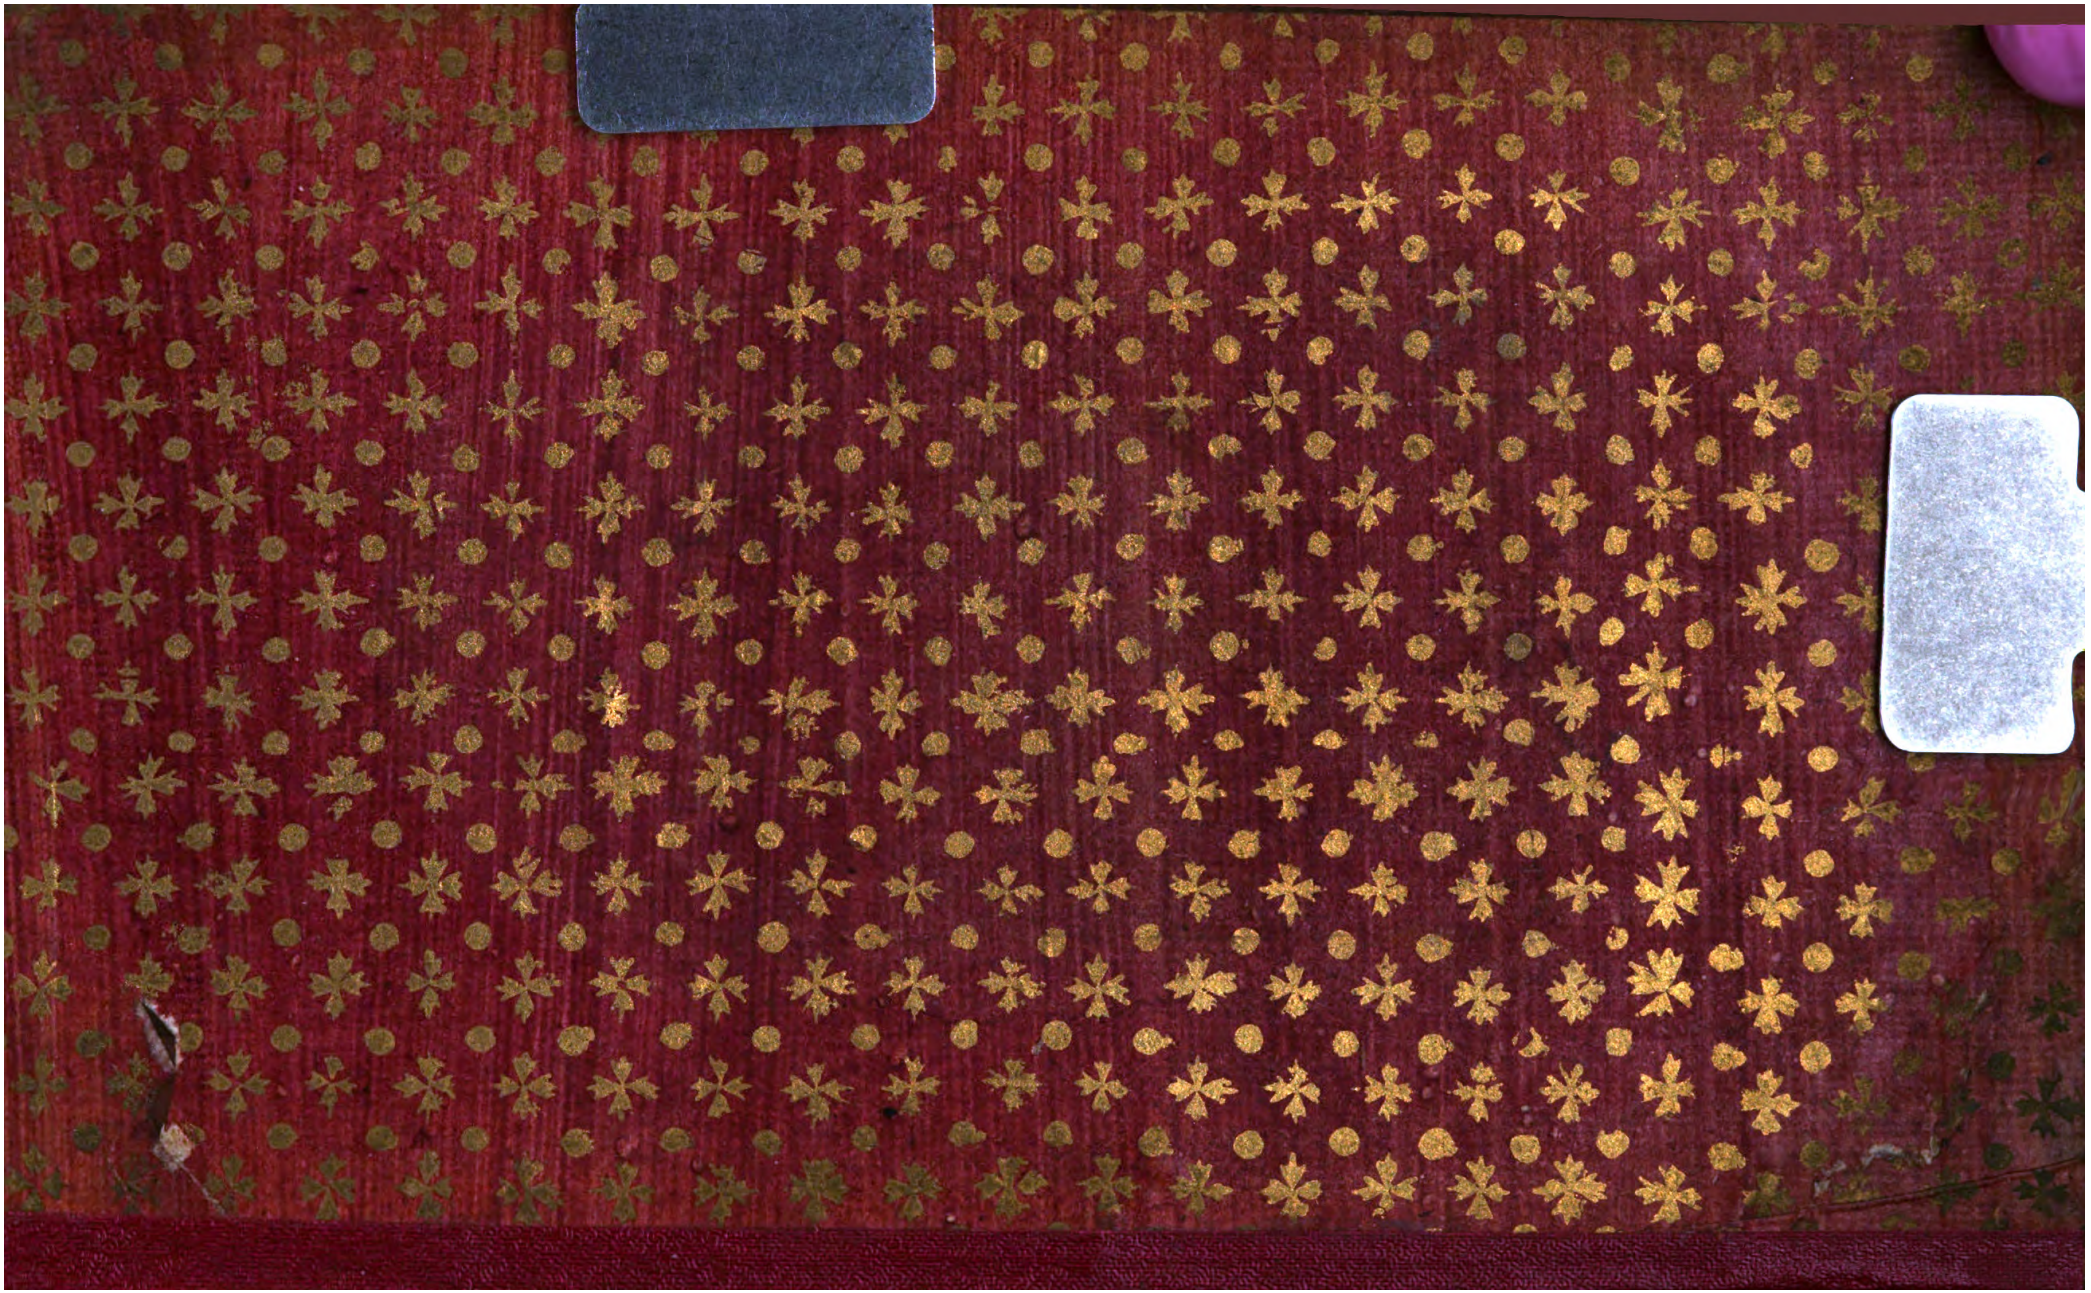
Notwithſtanding all the Diligence that cou'd be uſed in ſuperviſing the Sheets, ſome Errors have eſcap'd, which the favourable Reader is deſir'd to rectifie and excuſe.




Ex. gr. Pref. pag. iii. lin. 16, either read Hours for Time, or is for are. Pref. p. xxviii. l. 31. read Orig Brit. p. xlv. r. may for might. p. lviii. l. ult. r. effected. The reſt being of the ſame kind, and not very material, may eaſily be corrected.