This little work on Bible Geography has been compiled to supply a want which many must have felt in the course of their instructions to the young on Scriptural subjects. Larger and more expensive works exist, to which the Compiler has been much indebted, particularly "Wells's Scripture Geography" and Horne's Introduction to the Study of the Scriptures; but works of this description though of the greatest value for Teachers, are not, from their extent and price, calculated for the daily study of pupils.

For a long time the contents of this little work have been taught from manuscript copies, and from the interest the pupils have shewn in the lessons the Compiler is satisfied that young persons will always feel more interest in the relation of EVENTS connected with certain PLACES than in any dry, descriptions of those places. The chapters of Fuller's "Holy War" which contain his "Pisgah Glance of Palestine," have for all readers a high interest chiefly arising from this circumstance; and this blending of local Facts with dry names, which has been long applied to ordinary Geographical teaching, cannot be without a good effect in imparting and realizing the Events and Places connected with Sacred History.

The meaning of Proper Names is often highly significant, and full of instruction. To have introduced these meanings however in the expository portion of the work, would in many instances have interrupted the narrative and increased the bulk of the volume. They are therefore introduced in the Interrogative part, and alluded to in the Questions where they are found to bear upon the matter contained in the narrative. They have been chiefly drawn from Cruden.

The favourable consideration which HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK has been pleased to extend to the Compiler's "Tabular View of the Chronology, History, and Geography of the Old Testament," will induce him to use every means to retain the good opinion of his Grace; and this he is persuaded he shall best accomplish by rendering his little works available to their correctness and practical utility to the great ends of Scriptural Education.

PART I.—THE OLD TESTAMENT.

ABANA, one of the chief rivers of Damascus, it descended from Mount Hermon, flowed through the city and divided it into two parts. When Naaman, the leper, and the captain of the Syrian army was told by Elisha to go and wash seven times in the Jordan, he said to his servants, "Are not Abana and Pharphar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?" (2 Kings v. 12.)

ABARIM, a chain of rocky, sterile mountains to the East of Jordan; among them were Nebo, Pisgah, and Peor. The Israelites had several encampments near these mountains on their way to Canaan. It was to some of these mountains that Balak, king of Moab, took Balaam to curse the Israelites. (Deut. xxxii. 49; Num. xxiii. 28.)

ABEL, a place in the tribe of Judah, near Bethshemesh; named Abel, on account of the people who were struck dead for looking into the Ark of God. (1. Sam. vi. 18.)

ABEL-BETH-MAACHA, a city of Naphtali to which Sheba fled after he had caused a rebellion against David; he was pursued by Joab, who demanded his head from the inhabitants. (2 Sam. xx. 14-22.) Eighty years after, the city was taken by Benhadad, (1 Kings xv. 20.) and 200 years after, it was destroyed by Tiglath-pileser, who carried away the people captives into Assyria. (2 Kings xv. 29.)

ABEL MEHOLAH, a town in western Manasseh, to which the army of the Midianites went when put to flight by Gideon. (Judges vii. 22.) This town was the birth-place of the prophet Elisha. (I Kings xix. 16.)

ABEL-KERAMIN, a village of the Ammonites, called the plain of the vineyards, where that people were discomfited by Jephthah. (Judges xi. 33.)

ABEL-MIZRAIM, a place on the east of the Jordan to which the Egyptians accompanied the sons of Jacob when they conveyed their father's body to Canaan for burial. It was called Abel-mizraim by the Canaanites, its previous name was the threshing-floor of Atad. (Gen. l. 11.)

ABEL-SHITTIM, a city in the plains of Moab, a few miles east of the Jordan, where the Israelites were seduced by the Moabitish women to worship Baal-peor; for which sin 24,000 were slain in one day. (Num. xxv. 9 ; xxxiii. 49.) Shittim-wood, of which the ark of God was made grew in abundance near this place. (Ex. xxv. 10.)

ACCAD, one of the five cities in the land of Shinar said to have been built by Nimrod, the founder of the Assyrian empire, and called "the beginning of his kingdom." (Gen. x. 10.)

ACCCHO, a celebrated city and sea-port in Asher, ; it was a place of great strength, from which the Canaanites were never extirpated. (Judges i. 31.) It was afterwards called Ptolemais, and is now called Acre. It is situated on the bay of Acre and is about 70 miles north of Jerusalem.

ACCRABATENE, a district of Judea at the south of the Dead Sea, near Idumea, it is mentioned (Joshua xv. 3.) as the southern extremity of Judah.

ACHMETHA, the capital of Media, in which the decree of Cyrus for the rebuilding of Je-Jerusalem and the temple, was found in the time of Darius. (Ezra vi. 2.) The city was also called Ecbatana, and is now called Hamadan.

ACHOR, a valley near Jericho where Achan and his family were all stoned by the command of Joshua, because he had taken of the spoils of Jericho, contrary to the command of God. (Joshua vii. 26; xv. 7.)

ACHSHAPH, a city near the coast of Asher, the king of which was conquered by Joshua. (Joshua xii. 20; xix. 25.)

ACHZIB, the name of two towns in Canaan, one in Asher, and the other in Judah. The prophet Micah speaks of the people of Achzib in Judah, as having deceived the king of Israel during the Assyrian invasion. (Josh. xv. 44; Micah i. 14.)

ADDON, a place in the land of the captivity, whence those who returned to Israel could not shew their father's house whether or no they belonged to Israel. (Neh. vii. 61.)

ADMAH, one of the cities of the vale of Siddim that was destroyed together with the other cities of the plain, by fire from heaven, and was afterwards overwhelmed with the waters of the Dead Sea. (Gen. xiv. 2.) There was also a fenced city of this name in Naphtali. (Josh. xix. 36.)

ADULLAM, a city of Judah whose king was killed by Joshua. (Josh. xii. 15.) In a cave near this city David hid himself from Saul; he was joined there by about 400 men, who are described as the discontented, the distressed, and the debtors, and also by some valiant Gadites. (1. Sam. xxii. 1. 2.) The city was nearly destroyed in the wars of the Israelites; but was rebuilt by Rehoboam. (2 Chron. xi. 7.) It was afterwards taken and plundered by the army of Sennacherib in the reign of Hezekiah. (Micah i. 15.)

ADUMMIM, a town and mountain in Benjamin, on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho, it was much infested by robbers. (Josh. xv. 7; xviii. 17; Luke x.)

AFRICA, one of the five great divisions of the earth, it is not mentioned by this name in Scripture, but is spoken of as the Land of Ham, in several of the Psalms. It was peopled by the descendants of Ham. Egypt was its most celebrated country; the other countries of Africa mentioned in the Scriptures are Ethiopia and Libya.

AHAVA, a small river of Babylon, the situation of which is not known, where Ezra assembled the captive Jews on his way to Jerusalem, and where he held a solemn fast. (Ezra viii. 15, 21, 31.)

AI was a city of ancient Canaan, between which and Bethel Abraham pitched his tent and built an altar. (Gen. xii. 8; xiii. 3.) At the taking of Ai, under Joshua, the Israelites were at first discomfited, in consequence of Achan having stolen from the spoils of Jericho, a

Babylonish garment, a wedge of gold, and 200 shekels of silver contrary to the Divine command. After Achan's punishment Ai was taken, the inhabitants destroyed, the king hanged, and the city burnt. (Josh. vii. viii.) The city was rebuilt by the Benjamites, and afterwards destroyed by Sennacherib.

AJALON. There were several cities of this name and a valley; it was probably over the valley of Ajalon in the territory of Dan where the moon stood still at the command of Joshua, until the Israelites had avenged themselves on their enemies. (Joshua x. 12.) Ajalon in Dan, was a Levitical city; to this city Saul's army pursued the Philistines. (1 Sam. xiv. 31.) Another Ajalon, in Benjamin, was fortified by Rehoboam; another was in Ephraim, and another in Zebulun.

ALLUSH was an encampment of the Israelites in the wilderness of Shur, and the next after Dophkah. (Num. xxxiii. 13.)

ALMON-DIBLATHAIM, a small town near Moab, where the Israelites formed an encampment before crossing the Jordan. (Num. xxxiii, 46.) Many years after, it was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar. (Jerem. xlvi. 22.)

A MALEK was a mountain in Ephraim, on which the city Pirathon was built. Abdon, one of the judges was of this city and was buried in it. (Judges xii. 15.)

AMALEKITES, a very powerful people who were enemies of the Israelites; they were descendants of Esau, their country was south of Canaan, in Arabia Petrea. Of this people, the first that warred against Israel, God said to Moses, "I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven;" (Exodus xvii. 14.) and Balaam predicted that they should perish for ever. (Numbers xxiv. 20.) When the Israelites were passing to Canaan they were opposed by the Amalekites, who were discomfited. (Exodus xvii. 8-13)

The Amalekites were defeated by Gideon (Judges vi. vii. viii) and again by Saul, who spared Agag, their king; for this he was reproved by Samuel, and God rejected him from being king. (1 Sam. xv. 7-33.) About twenty years after, they were conquered by David, (2 Sam. i. 1) and finally exterminated in the reign of Hezekiah. (1. Chron iv. 43.) Haman, the great enemy of the Jews in Persia in the time of Ahasuerus, was an Amalekite.

AMMONITES, descendants of Ammon, one of the sons of Lot, they dwelt on the east of the Jordan, they were enemies of the Israelites, and were defeated by Jephthah and by Saul. It was Nahash, the king of the Ammonites, who required the men of Jabesh-gilead to shew their obedience to him by allowing him to thrust out all their right eyes. (1 Sam. xi. 2.) Hanun, the son of Nahash abused the messengers, whom David sent to condole with him on the death of his father, Nahash; and David sent Joab with a army against him and defeated him. (2 Sam. x.) The Ammonites were made tributary to Uzziah. Their chief city was Rabbath.

AMORITES, the descendants of Eimer or Amor, the fourth son of Canaan; they were enemies of the Israelites, and they inhabited the mountainous tracts to the east and west of the Dead Sea. Moses conquered them and slew their kings, Sihon and Og; (Num. xxi. 21-33) their territory on the east of the Dead Sea was afterwards occupied by the tribes of Reuben, and Gad, and that on the west by the tribe of Judah.

ANAB, a town in the hill country of Judah near which Joshua put to death some Amorites of gigantic stature. (Josh. ii. 21; xv. 50.)

ANAKIM, a gigantic tribe who lived in some parts of Canaan; the unbelieving spies saw them and were afraid of them. (Num. xiii. 33.) Hebron and Debir were probably their chief cities. Caleb expelled them from Hebron, and his nephew, who became his son-in-law, Othniel, expelled them from Debir. (Josh. xiv. 12-14; 15.)

ANATHOTH, a levitical city, and a city of refuge in the tribe of Benjamin. (1 Chron. vi. 60.) Abiathar, the deposed high-priest was confined at Anathoth by Solomon. (1 King. ii. 26.) Jeremiah, the prophet, was a native of this place. A few of the inhabitants of this town who returned from the Babylonian captivity rebuilt it.

ANTI-LIBANUS, a chain of mountains north of Canaan, in Syria, where the Jordan rises; there is another chain westward, separated by a wide valley, and parallel with it, called Libanus or Lebanon. (Josh. xi. 17.)

APHEK, there are several cities of this name mentioned in the bible. At Aphek in Judah the Philistines encamped when they took the ark of God which had been brought from Shiloh. (1 Sam. iv.) At Aphek in the valley of Je-reel, king Saul fell, his army being near Gilboa. (1 Sam. xxix. 1.) Aphek in Syria was one of the chief cities in the kingdom of Benhadad; the Syrians being beaten near this place by Ahab and his army, rushed into their city, when the city walls fell upon them and crushed 27,000. (1 Kings xx. 26,29,30.)

AR, the chief city of Moab, called also Rabbath-Moab, and Ariel was situated on the river Arnon, it was burnt by Sihon, king of the Amorites; (Num. xxi. 28) it was also pillaged and destroyed by the Assyrians under Shalmaneser. (Isa. xv. 1.)

ARABIA, a large country in the South and East of Canaan, and to the East of Egypt. It was principally inhabited by the descendants of Ishmael. It includes Arabia Petrea, Arabia Felix, and Arabia Deserta. In the reign of Jehoshaphat, the Arabians paid him a yearly tribute of 7700 sheep and as many goats. (2 Chron. xvii. 11.)

ARABIA PETREA, was so named from its chief city Petra; it is to the north of the Red Sea, and includes the wilderness of Sinai. Its character is rocky mountains, and sand plains. Uz, the land of Job was in this country. Here, Moses kept the flocks of Jethro, and saw the burning bush on Mount Horeb, that was not consumed, when he was commissioned to go and deliver the Israelites from their slavery—here, the pillars of cloud and fire guided the Israelites, and to this country Elijah fled from the persecutions of Jezebel. (Ex. iii. 2-4; 1 Kings xix. 8.)

ARABIA FELIX, this part of Arabia extends along the coast of the Red Sea to the Indian Ocean; it is fertile, and produces odoriferous shrubs, fragrant gums, frankincense, myrrh and cassia. The Queen of Sheba is said to have reigned over a part of this country. The fleets of Solomon and Hiram frequented its seas and traded in its towns.

ARABIA DESERTA, extends eastward to the

ARABIA, a large tract of land, bounded by the Persian gulf, northward to Syria, and southward to the Indian Ocean. It is chiefly inhabited by wandering tribes of Arabs who live by robbery and plunder; they are descendants of Ishmael who was to be a wild man, "his hand against every man, and every man's hand against him." (Gen. xvi. 12.)

ARAD, a small kingdom, south of Judah; its king opposed the Israelites on their march to the Promised Land, and took some of them prisoners. They afterwards defeated him, desolated the country, and destroyed the towns of Arad. (Numb. xxi. 1-3.)

ARAM, a name often given to Syria, and so called from the fifth son of Shem who was the father of the Syrians. (Gen. x. 22.)

ARARAT, a celebrated mountain of Armenia on which the Ark of Noah rested after the deluge; (Gen. viii. 4.) its summit is said to be 17,000 feet above the level of the sea and is always covered with snow.

ARBA, a name given to the ancient city of Hebron. See Hebron.

ARGOB, a fruitful district in Bashan which contained not less than sixty cities and which was called Havoth-jair (Deut. iii. 4. 14) (1 Kings iv. 13); also a place in Samaria where Pekah assassinated Pekaiah. (2 Kings xv. 25.)

ARKITES, descendants of Canaan, who inhabited Arca in Phoenicia, at the foot of Mount Lebanon. (Gen. x. 17.)

ARMENIA, an extensive country between the southern portion of the Caspian Sea, and Syria and Asia Minor. Mount Ararat was in Armenia; where the Ark rested, and God made covenant with Noah, never more to destroy the earth by a flood,—where Ham behaved undutifully to his father, and the subjection of his descendants was foretold,—whence the descendants of Noah departed to Shinar, an where Noah probably died. (Gen. viii, ix, x, xi.) The two sons of Sennacherib escaped into Armenia after they had slain their father. (2. Kings xix. 37.)

ARNON, a river of Palestine which rises in the mountains of Gilead and falls into the Dead Sea; it divided the country of the Amorites from that of the Moabites. Balak met Balaam near this river; (Numb. xxii. 36.) and the battle between the Israelites under Moses, and the Amorites under Sihon, was fought near it. (Deut. ii. 24-37.)

AROER, several cities of this name are mentioned in the Bible; the principal of them was near the Arnon, it was first possessed by the Moabites, then by the Amorites, then by the tribe of Reuben. (Josh. xiii. 16.)

ARPAD, or ARPHAD, a city of Syria; Sennacherib's general boasted of having destroyed Arphad, or the idols of Arphad. (2. Kings xviii. 34.)

ASHDOD, a city of Philistia in the tribe of Dan, near Gaza, where there was a celebrated temple to Dagon. Here Hophni and Phinehas were slain, and the Ark of God was taken by the Philistines. The Ark was placed in the temple of Dagon and the idol was twice found, fallen to the ground before it. (1. Sam. v.) Tartan the Assyrian general under Sennacherib took the city and put a garrison of soldiers in it. (Isa. xxxv. 1.) It was about thirty-four miles west of Jerusalem.

ASHDOTH-PISGAH, a city of Reuben situated in the fertile country at the foot of Mount Pisgah, near the springs of Pisgah. (Josh. xii. 3.)

ASHER the division of the promised land belonging to the tribe of Asher; the eighth son of Jacob, whose mother was Zilpah, the handmaid of Leah; it was in Phœnicia, and was bounded on the west by the Mediterranean Sea, on the north by Mount Libanus, on the south by Mount Carmel, and on the east by the tribes of Zebulun and Naphtali. This province produced abundance of grain, wine and oil. Its cities were important, its sea-ports were Acre, Achzib, and Tyre.

ASHTAROTH, a strong town of Bashan, the residence of Og, the king; near it Chedorlaomer defeated the gigantic race of the Rephaims. It was in the division of Eastern Manasseh, and was a Levitical city. (Gen. xiv. 5.; Deut. i. 4.)

ASKELON, a city and sea-port of Canaan, in the territory of Simeon, of which the Israelites became masters, but it was afterwards repossessed by the Philistines. At Askelon Samson slew thirty men. This city was in later years taken by the Assyrians; destroyed by the Chaldeans; rebuilt and again destroyed. It was about forty-five miles E. S. E. of Jerusalem. (Jud. i. 18; xiv. 19.)

ASIA, one of the great divisions of the earth. The principal countries mentioned in the Old Testament, except Egypt, were in Asia. In this division of the world was Eden, the scene of man's creation; and Palestine, the land promised to Abraham, and travelled over by the Saviour's footsteps of mercy. The great countries of Asia were Arabia, Armenia, Persia, Media, Babylonia, Syria, Assyria, and India.

ASSYRIA, an ancient kingdom of Asia, south of Armenia; its great city was Nineveh, which was built by Asshur. (Gen. x. 10-22.) Its most celebrated kings mentioned in Scripture were Pul, Tiglath-pileser, Shalmaneser, and Sennacherib. Tiglath-pileser went to the assistance of Ahaz against Rezin of Damascus, conquered him and put an end to his kingdom; he also went against Pekah king of Israel and took captive some tribes to countries beyond the Euphrates. Ahaz afterwards became tributary to him. Shalmaneser desolated the country of the Moabites, as had been predicted by Isaiah. He also went against Hoshea, attacked Samaria, and took many of the Israelites captive beyond the Euphrates. His son Sennacherib invaded Judah, but an angel of the Lord slew 185,000 of his troops in one night. Soon afterwards Sennacherib was slain by two of his sons while he was worshipping in the house of his god, Nisroch, and he was succeeded by another son named Esar-haddon who took Manasseh the king of Judah in chains to Babylon. About fifty years after, the kingdom of Assyria was conquered by Nebuchadnezzar, and annexed to the empire of Babylon.

ATAD, see Abel-mizraim.

ATAROTH, a town on the East of Jordan which the men of Gad built and fortified ; it had excellent pastures in its vicinity. (Num. xxxii. 34) There was also a town of this name in Ephraim, near Samaria.

AVIM, a people also called Hivites, who were descended from Hevæus a son of Canaan; they were the first inhabitants of the country of the Philistines. (Gen. x. 17.)

AZEKAH, a town of Judah where the five kings of the Amorites were defeated and slain by Joshua; their army was destroyed by hailstones. (Josh. x. 10, 11.) At this place the Philistines were defeated and routed after Goliath was slain.

BAALATH, a city in Lebanon, which was built by Solomon, and which is supposed to be the same with Baalbec. (2 Chron. viii. 6.) Benhadad subdued this city; but the Assyrians became its masters when the Syrian kingdom was overthrown by Tiglath-pileser. (2 Chron. xvi. 4)

BAAL-GAD, a city of the Canaanites in the valley of Lebanon at the foot of Mount Hermon; it was the northern boundary of Joshua's conquests. (Josh. xi. 17; xii. 7.)

BAAL-HAMON, the name of a vineyard which belonged to Solomon, it is supposed to have been situated in the Valley of Bocat, in which are the celebrated ruins of Baalbec. (Song of Solomon viii. 11.)

BAAL-HAZOR, the name of a place where Absalom kept his flocks, and where he slew Amnon to avenge his sister.

BAAL-MEON, a city of the Canaanites in Reuben which was afterwards taken by the Moabites, who were denounced by the Prophet Ezekiel. (Ezek. xxv. 9.)

BAAL-PEOR, one of the Abarim mountains on which was the temple of the idol Baal-peor. (Num. xxiii. 28.)

BAAL-PERAZIM, a mountain south of Jerusalem where David routed the Philistines and burnt their images; at its foot is the valley of Rephaim, or valley of giants. (Chron. xiv. 11.)

BAAL-SHALISHA, a town in that part of Ephraim called the land of Shalisha. Saul passed through the land of Shalisha when he was seeking his father's asses. (1 Sam. ix. 4.) A man of Baal-Shalisha brought twenty loaves of barley-bread to Elisha at Gilgal which was miraculously increased, and a hundred men fed therewith when there was dearth in the land. (2 Kings iv. 42.)

BAAL-TAMAR, a place in Benjamin where the tribes of Israel routed and killed 125,100 men of the Benjamites. (Jud. xx. 33.)

BABEL, the place in the land of Shinar where the posterity of Noah began to build a city and a tower whose top should reach heaven its completion was prevented by the Almighty, who confounded the language of the builders and scattered them over the earth. (Gen. xi. 1-9.)

BABYLON, the great city which was the metropolis of the Babylonian empire; it was situated on the river Euphrates, and was celebrated both for its extent and its magnificent buildings. To this city Manasseh, the son of Hezekiah was taken in fetters; it was much extended and probably rebuilt by Nebuchadnezzar. To this city Daniel and his friends, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego were carried captives when Jerusalem was destroyed; and here, in the plain of Dura, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego refused to worship the image which Nebuchadnezzar had set up. At Babylon, Nebuchadnezzar boasted of his greatness and was humbled; here also, Belshazzar, the impious grandson of Nebuchadnezzar was slain when Darius took the city. Terrible denunciations against Babylon were uttered by the prophets, especially Isaiah, and their predictions have been fulfilled.

BABYLONIA, a great province of Assyria between the rivers Euphrates and Tigris; contained many cities, the chief of which was Babylon. Its cities are now "desolations where no man dwelleth." In the Scriptures Babylonia is called "the land of Shinar." (Gen. xi. 2.)

BACA, the name of a valley, supposed by some to have been near Jerusalem, and by others among the mountains of Lebanon. (Psalm lxxxiv. 6.)

BAHURIM, a village of Benjamin to which Phaltiel accompanied Michal weeping when Ishbosheth took her from him and sent her to David. (2 Sam. iii. 15, 16.) David passed Bahurim in his flight from his rebellious son Absalom, and Shimei cursed him there. (2 Sam. xvi. 5.) Ahimaaz and Jonathan were hidden in a well at Bahurim. (2 Sam. xvii. 17,18.)

BAMOTH, a place in the plain of Moab where the Israelites encamped when journeying to Canaan. (Num. xxi. 19,20.)

BASHAN, a fertile district of Canaan, east of the Jordan, and the sea of Galilee; it was celebrated for its oaks, its pastures, and its cattle. (Num. xxxii. 33.; Deut. iii. 1.) Og, the king of Bashan was conquered by Moses. (Num. xxi. 33-35.) The half-tribe of Manasseh afterwards occupied the country; its chief cities were Ashtaroth and Edrei.

BEER-LAHAI-ROI, which means, the well of him who lives and sees me, is the name of a fountain in the wilderness on the way to Shur. To this place Hagar fled when she left her mistress, and was commanded by an angel to return. (Gen. xvi. 14.)

BEEROTH, an encampment of the Israelites

when they marched to Moseroth, just before the death of Aaron. (Num. xxxiii. 31.)

BEEROTH, a city of the Gibeonites under the hill Gibeon; it was taken by Joshua, and allotted to the tribe of Benjamin. (2 Sam. iv. 2.) It is supposed by some to be the same as Beer, the city to which Jotham fled for fear of Abimelech. (Jud. ix. 21.)

BEERSHEBA, meaning the well of the oath, was the place in the south of Canaan where Abraham and Abimelech king of Gerar made a covenant of peace. Near Beersheba Abraham resided; in the wilderness of Beersheba Hagar wandered with her son Ishmael; (Gen. xxi. 14) at Beersheba Isaac was born; (Gen. xxi. 3) and it was the frequent residence of Jacob. Joel and Abia, the sons of Samuel, were judges at Beersheba; (1 Sam. viii. 2) and the prophet Elijah retired to this place from the persecutions of Jezebel. (1 King. xix. 3.)

BEEŠTERAH, a city of eastern Manasseh, and one of the forty-eight cities of the Levites, it was the same as Ashtaroth.

BELA, the least of the cities of the plain of Sodom and supposed to be the same as Zoar. (Gen. xiv. 8.)

BENJAMIN, the district of Canaan allotted to the descendants of Jacob's youngest son; it was between the tribe of Judah on the south and Ephraim on the north; the tribe of Reuben was eastward, and that of Dan westward; it was the smallest of the tribes, but it possessed the important cities, Jericho, Rama, Bethel, Gibeah, Gibeon, Mizpeh, Ai, Gilgal, Anathoth, and part of Jerusalem. The villages of Bethany and Gethsemane were also in this district. St. Paul declared himself to be of the tribe of Benjamin.

BERACHAH, the valley of Berachah, or of blessing, was in the tribe of Judah, and in the wilderness of Tekoa. At this place Jehosdestroyed by Josiah, and its idolatrous priest slain, as Elisha had predicted. This place is called Bethaven by Hosea, signifying, the house of idolatry. The city was destroyed by the Assyrians, but was rebuilt after the return of the Jews from captivity. (Ezra ii. 28.)

BETH-JESIMOTH, a city of Reuben about ten miles south of Jericho, where the Israelites encamped before they entered the Promised Land; (Num. xxxiii. 49) it was afterward seized by the Moabites, and finally destroyed by the Chaldeans. (Ezek. xxv. 9.)

BETHLEHEM, a small town of Judah at which Rachel the wife of Jacob died, it was at that time called Ephrath. (Gen. xxxv. 16-19.) Ibzan, one of the judges was a native of Bethlehem; also Elimelech, Boaz, and David. At this place David was secretly anointed king by Samuel; (1 Sam. xvi. 13) and it was announced as the birth-place of the Saviour by the prophet Micah, 700 years before the event. (Micah v. 2.)

BETH-MAON, a town of the Moabites in the tribe of Reuben, which was denounced by the prophet Jeremiah. (Jer. xlviii. 23.)

BETH-MILLO, the name of the place where Zabad and Jehozabad assassinated Joash king of Judah. (2 Kings xii. 20.)

BETHSHAN, a city in western Manasseh not far from the Jordan. After the battle on Mount Gilboa,—where the Philistines slew Saul's sons, and Saul ran his sword through his body,—the Philistines fastened the bodies of Saul and his sons to the walls of Bethshan; but during the night the men of Jabesh-gilead, who remembered Saul's services to them, fetched away the bodies and interred them. (1 Sam. xxxi. 10-12.)

BETHSHEMESH, a city of Judah to which the Ark of God was taken by the Philistines when they returned it to the land of Israel. The Bethshemites were smitten with death, for looking into the Ark. (1 Sam. vi. 19)

Three other places of this name are mentioned in the Scriptures.

BETHSHITTAH, a place south west of the lake of Cinneroth, within eastern Manasseh to this place Gideon pursued the Midianites (Jud. vii. 22.)

BETHSUR, a city of Judah which was fortified by Rehoboam as a check on the Danites, after the ten tribes had revolted from him.

BEZEK, a city of the Canaanites in Judah where, after Joshua's death, the men of Judah slew ten thousand men. There also they found Adoni-bezek whose thumbs and great toes they cut off; he having before treated seventy kings in the same barbarous manner (Jud. i. 4-7.) Saul reviewed his army at Bezek before he crossed the Jordan to go to help the men of Jabesh-gilead against the Ammonites. (1 Sam. xi. 8.)

BEZER, a city in Reuben, and one of the cities of refuge for him "who killed his neighbour unawares and hated him not." (Deut. iv. 43; Josh. xx. 8.)

BOCHIM, the place, probably Shiloh, where an angel reproved the Israelites for their idolatries, and told them the Canaanites would not be driven out of the land, and that their gods would be a snare to the Israelites, because they had not obeyed the divine commands. (Jud. ii. 5.)

BOZEZ, the name of a rock on which Jonathan climbed to attack the garrison of the Philistines; it was opposite to Michmash. (1 Sam. xiv. 4.)

BOZKATH, a town in Judah which was the birth-place of Jedidah the mother of Josiah king of Judah. (Josh. xv. 39; 2 Kings xxii. 1.)

BOZRAH, supposed to be Bezer; Isaiah threatened Bozrah with great calamities. (Isa. xxxiv. 6; lxiii. 1.)

CABUL, a district in the north-west of Canaan containing twenty cities which Solomon gave to Hiram, king of Tyre, after the completion of the Temple, but they pleased him not (1 Kings ix. 13.)

CALAH, a city which is supposed to have been near to the river Tigris; (Gen. x. 12.) by some supposed to be the same as Calach, the place where Shalmaneser placed some of the Israelites in captivity. (2 Kings xvii. 6; xviii. 11.)

CALNEH, a city built by Nimrod in the plain of Shinar, supposed to be the same as is spoken of by Isaiah. (Gen. x. 10; Isa. x. 9.)

CANAAN the ancient name of Palestine or the Holy Land, so called from Canaan, the son of Ham, who is supposed to have lived and died in that country. His posterity also went into Egypt, which is called the Land of Ham. Canaan was called The Promised Land, from God's promise to Abraham that his posterity should possess it;—Palestine, from the people called Philistines who inhabited its western borders;—the Land of Israel, from the Israelites;—the Land of Judah, from the tribe of Judah; and the Holy Land, because it was the place where the Saviour was born, dwelt, wrought his miracles, died, rose again, and ascended to heaven. It was a land of great fertility, “flowing with milk and honey” as God had promised; and it was divided among the twelve tribes according to his directions.

A gigantic race of men, divided into several tribes at first inhabited this country, they were the Avims, Emims, Rephaims, Zuzims and Zamzuminins. Afterwards the Philistines, the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, the Jebusites, the Arkites, the Hamathites, the Arvadites, the Zemarites, and the Sidonians possessed the land; and the Moabites and Ammonites had the south-eastern borders.

When it was divided among the tribes those of Reuben, Gad, and half Manasseh, had the country east of the Jordan; Judah, Simeon, and Dan had portions west of the Dead Sea. Benjamin a portion north of Judah; Ephraim a portion north of Benjamin; half Manasseh and Issachar, portions north of Ephraim; Zebulun a portion, north of Issachar; and Asher and Naphtali had portions north of Zebulun. The tribe of Levi had no portion of the land, but they had forty-eight cities and their suburbs assigned to them among the other tribes, where they resided as teachers of the people. (See Judah, Israel.)

CARCHEMISH, a town of Assyria on the Euphrates which Pharaoh-Necho took and fortified. His garrison was taken and destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar in the fourth year of the reign of Jehoiakim. (2 Kings xxiii. 29. 2 Chron. xxxv. 20.)

CARMEL, a town in the south east of Judah near the Dead Sea, at which the churl Nabal, the husband of Abigail resided. (1 Sam. xxv. 2.)

CARMEL, (Mount) a mountainous ridge which overlooks the bay of Acre where the prophets Elijah and Elisha occasionally resided; it was the scene of the great miracle which Elijah performed in the presence of Ahab and the priests of Baal, when God accepted Elijah's sacrifice by sending fire from heaven to consume it. (1 Kings xviii. 19-40.)

CHALDEA, a country of Babylonia supposed by some to have been peopled by the children of Cush the son of Ham. Terah and his family lived at Ur, a city of the Chaldees. (Gen. xi. 31.) The Chaldeans were a predatory people, they are spoken of in Job as having fallen on his camels, taken them away, and slain his servants. (Job. i. 17.) Chaldea is often used for Babylonia, and the Chaldeans and Babylonians are mentioned as the same people.

CHEBAR, a river of Mesopotamia which falls into the Euphrates, it was the scene of one of Ezekiel's visions. (Ezek. i. 1; x. 15.)

CHERITH, a brook near the Jordan where Elijah was commanded to conceal himself from Ahab, and where he was fed by ravens which brought him bread and flesh both in the morning and the evening, and he drank of the brook. (1 Kings xvii. 3, 5.)

CHIDON, threshing floor of, the place where Uzzah was suddenly struck dead for touching the Ark; this place was afterwards called Perez-uzzah. (1 Chron. xiii. 9.)

CHIMHAM, a piece of ground near Bethlehem which was probably settled by David upon Chinham, the son of Barzillai; it was the place to which Johanan removed after the death of Gedaliah, when Jeremiah asked counsel of God if they should remain in the land or go down to Egypt. (Jer. xli. 17.)

CINNERETH, one of the fenced cities of Naph-tali, which is supposed to have stood where Tiberias was afterwards built, on the north of the lake Cinnereth. (Josh. xix. 35.)

CUSH, a name that is frequently given to Ethiopia; in some places it signifies African Ethiopia, or the country south of Egypt; and in others Asiatic Ethiopia or Arabia. The wife of Moses was a Cushite. (Num. xii. 1.)

DAMASCUS, the capital of Syria, and a city of great antiquity, as it is known to have existed in the days of Abraham. (Gen. xv. 2.) The parents of Eliezer, Abraham's steward, were probably natives of Damascus. The city lies eastward of the ranges of mountains called Anti-libanus, and it is watered by the rivers Abana and Pharphar. When David had conquered Hadadezer, king of Zobah, who was succoured by the Syrians of Damascus, he placed garrisons in that city (2 Sam. viii. 5. 6.) One of the enemies raised up against Solomon, when he forsook God, was Rezin of Damascus; (1 Kings xi. 23, 25) this city thence became the capital of a powerful kingdom. Asa, king of Judah, sought assistance from Benhadad king of Syria (Damascus) against Baasha the king of Israel, and was reproved by Hanani the prophet. The son of Benhadad made war against Ahab and was defeated. (1 Kings xx. 13-30.) The prophet Elisha visited Damascus during the sickness of Benhadad, who sent to him to enquire if he should recover. Benhadad was murdered by Hazael, who then became king and afflicted Israel greatly, as Elisha had predicted. (2 Kings viii. 12.) Benhadad, the son of Hazael succeeded him, and Jehoash the king of Israel, took from him the cities which Hazael had taken from Jehoahaz, his father. (2 Kings xiii. 25,) Tiglath-pileser the king of Assyria—whom Ahaz called to his assistance against Rezin king of Damascus and Pekah king of Israel, conquered Damascus, and added Syria to his kingdom—The prophets, Isaiah and Amos had both predicted this conquest. Damascus is about 136 miles north of Jerusalem.

DAN, the division of the Promised Land which was occupied by the descendants of Dan, the fifth son of Jacob ; it was bounded on the north by Ephraim, on the east by Benjamin, on the south by Simeon, and on the west by the Mediterranean Sea. It was celebrated for its fertility and for the productive vineyards of Timnath and Eshcol. Its principal cities and towns were Joppa, Ashdod, Ekron, Gath, Gibbethon, Gath-rimmon, Zorah and Lydda. The Danites robbed Micah, of Mount Ephraim, of his idols, and sank into gross idolatry. Samson was the most celebrated person of this tribe.

of Canaan near the sources of the Jordan. To this city, at first called Laish, Abraham pursued the kings who conquered Sodom, and rescued Lot. The town was taken by the Danites, and called after the head of their tribe. (Jud. xviii. 29.) The expression "from Dan to Beersheba" is often used in the Old Testament to express the extent from north to south of the promised land. At this place, after the revolt of the Tribes, Jeroboam set up a golden calf. (1 Kings xii. 28,29.)

DEAD SEA, the lake which covers the guilty cities of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim,—the site of the ancient vale of Siddim, which was so beautiful as to be compared with "the garden of the Lord." Into the Dead Sea, the waters of the river Jordan fall;—it is called the Salt sea, (Gen. xiv. 3 Deut. iii. 17.), the Sea of the Plain, (Deut. ii. 17.), and in Ezekiel it is called the East Sea. (Ezek. xlvii. 18.)

DEBIR, called also Kirjath-sepher, a strong city near Hebron, in Judah, the king of which was slain by Joshua. (Josh. x. 38-39.) It fell by lot to Caleb, and was taken by Othniel, to whom Caleb gave it with his daughter Achsah. (Josh. xv. 15.)

DIBON, a town of the Moabites, first possessed by the tribe of Gad who made it a strong place, it was then assigned to Reuben. (Num. xxxii. 34 ; Josh. xiii. 9.) The Moabites again obtained it when the Israelites were taken captive by Tiglath-pileser. (Isa. xv. 2 ; Jer. xlvi. 18-22.)

DOPHKAH, one of the encampments of the Israelites between the wilderness of Sin and Mount Sinai. (Num. xxxiii. 12.)

DOR, the chief city of a district or kingdom of Canaan which was conquered by Joshua ; it was situated on a peninsula in the Mediterranean, and was included in Western Manasseh; it was destroyed at the captivity of the Ten Tribes. (Josh. xvii. 11.)

DOTHAN, the place north of Shechem to which Joseph went to seek his brethren, when they first cast him into a pit, and then sold him to the Ishmaelites. (Gen. xxxvii. 28.) There were two towns of this name, at one of them Elisha was surrounded by the soldiers of Benhadad who were sent to take him, but they were smitten with blindness. (2 Kings vi. 13.)

DURA, the name of the plain near Babylon where Nebuchadnezzar set up his golden image which all men were commanded to worship, and which Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego refused to worship. (Dan iii. 1.)

The EAST, the portions of the world thus named in the Scriptures are generally those which lie east of Judea, particularly Mesopotamia, Armenia, and Persia.

EBAL, a celebrated mountain in Ephraim, opposite Mount Gerizim; in the valley between them was the ancient city of Shechem. The blessings of the law were pronounced to the assembled Israelites from Mount Gerizim, and the cursings from Mount Ebal, under Joshua's directions, as Moses had commanded. (Deut. xxvii. 11-13; Josh. viii. 33,34.)

EBENEZER, the name of a place where the Israelites encamped in their war with the Philistines, and near which they were defeated and lost 30,000 men; at this time the Ark of God was taken and carried to Ashdod, and Hophni and Phinehas were slain. (1 Sam. iv. 10,11.) Twenty years after, the Israelites defeated the Philistines at the same place when Samuel set up a stone for a memorial between Mizpeh and Shen, and named it Ebenezer. (1 Sam. vii. 12.)

ECBATANA, see Achmetha.

ED, the name of the altar erected by the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and half-Manasseh, on the borders of Jordan, in Gilead, to witness that they belonged to Israel, after they were separated from the other tribes by the Jordan (Josh. xxii. 34.)

EDEN, the garden which the Lord God planted for the abode of our first parents; in it grew every tree pleasant to the sight and good for food. It was the scene of man's innocence and happiness, of his temptation, fall, and expulsion from the presence of God. It is supposed to have been situated near the head of the Persian Gulph, where the rivers Euphrates and Tigris empty their waters, but several other situations have been assigned to the garden of Eden. (Gen. ii. 8-15.)

EDOM, the country to the south of Canaan, called also Idumea, it extends into Arabia, Petra and to the borders of the Red Sea; it was peopled by the descendants of Esau who are called Edomites. The king of Edom refused to let the Israelites pass through his country on their way from Egypt to Canaan, though, by the Divine commands, they offered to pay money for the meat and water they might eat and drink; they then went round the borders of Edom, by way of Mount Hor. (Num. xx. 17.) Balaam predicted that Edom should be conquered by Israel, which was done in the reign of David, when Joab and the army of David smote every male in Edom, and Hadad, the young prince, escaped into Egypt. David placed garrisons in Edom, and the country remained in subjection to Judah for many years. The Edomites revolted from Judah in the reign of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat, whose wickedness was so great that God withdrew his protection from him, and the prophecy of Isaac was then fulfilled that Esau should break the yoke of Jacob from off his neck. (Gen. xxvii. 40.) In the reign of Amaziah a great battle took place between Judah and Edom in the valley of Salt. (2 Chron. xxv. 11,12.) Several of the prophets spoke of the desolations that should come upon Edom, which prophecies have been fulfilled. Though the descendants of Esau constantly shewed their hatred to the descendants of Jacob, the Israelites were guarded against such feelings by the law of Moses, which expressly says, "Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite, for he is thy brother."

EDREI, the metropolis of Og, king of Bashan, that king went out against the Israelites with his army, and was defeated and slain near the city. (Deut. i. 4; Num. xxi. 33-35.) It was situated east of the Jordan, and was included in the territory of eastern Manasseh; there was also a city of this name in Naphtali.

EGLON, a city of Judah the king of which confederated with Adoni-zedek and three other kings of the Amorites to attack Gibeon, b because the Gibeonites had made peace with Joshua. Joshua met the kings near Gibeon, and defeated them with great slaughter, they fled to Makkedah where he put them to death. (Josh. x. 3-27.)

EGYPT, an ancient and celebrated country, and kingdom of Africa ; it is traversed by the river Nile from south to north ; the Mediterranean Sea, into which it falls, forms the northern boundary of the country ; the Red Sea and isthmus of Suez form its eastern, and Ethiopia forms its southern boundary. Abraham went into Egypt with his family and took Lot with him when there was a famine in Canaan. (Gen. xii. 10.) Egypt was the country of Hagar, Sarah's bondwoman ; and the country into which Joseph was taken by the Israelites and sold to Potiphar, one of the king's officers. Joseph was cast into prison by Potiphar on a false accusation—was brought out to explain the dreams of Pharaoh—and for his wisdom was made governor of the country. Joseph's brethren came into Egypt at first to buy corn, and afterwards with their father to settle there. Jacob and Joseph died in Egypt, and the descendants of Jacob were persecuted by a new king who knew not of the services Joseph had rendered to the Egyptians. In Egypt Moses was born ;—was first hidden, then found and brought up by the king's daughter. From Egypt Moses fled at forty-years of age, and went to live in Midian. Forty years after, he was chosen by God to deliver his brethren the Israelites from their bondage in Egypt. God sent ten plagues on the Egyptians because the king refused to release the Israelites. Many years after Hadad, the young prince of Edom escaped into Egypt from the victorious armies of David, and married a princess of Egypt. Solomon married a daughter of one of the kings of Egypt, and Jeroboam fled to the Egyptian king Shishak, for refuge from Solomon.

When Pharaoh-Necho came through Judah to make war against Assyria, Josiah went out to oppose him and was slain. Egypt was partially conquered by Nebuchadnezzar, and afterwards wholly subjugated by Cambyses, king of Persia. The country was very fertile and had many large cities.

EKRON was a city and government of the Philistines the people of which were very powerful. When the ark of God had been taken by the Philistines, the Ekronites were the first who proposed to send it back to the Israelites because of the calamities it brought on the country. (1 Sam. v. 10,11.) The Philistines were pursued to Ekron after Goliath was slain. Beelzebub was worshipped by the Ekronites, and to this idol Ahaziah king of Israel sent to enquire respecting his health. (2 Kings i. 2.)

ELAH, a valley about three miles from Bethlehem where the Israelites were encamped under Saul when David slew Goliath. At this place David was reproved by Eliab for leaving the sheep in the wilderness and coming to see the battle. (1 Sam. xvii. 2.)

ELAM, an ancient district of Persia. Its king Chedorlaomer was very powerful, and caused the kings of the cities of the Plain to pay him tribute. (Gen. xiv. 1.) Daniel described Shushan, the residence of the kings of Persia as in Elam. (Dan. viii. 2.)

ELATH, a town and port of Arabia Petrea on the Red Sea. When David conquered Edom he took possession of this place and traded thence to all parts of the known world. (2 Sam. viii. 14; 2 Chron. viii. 17,18.) Solomon built ships here and sent them to Ophir. Azariah, king of Judah, rebuilt Elath and restored it to his kingdom. (2 Kings xiv. 22.) It was afterwards taken by Rezin king of Damascus, who "recovered Elath to Syria." (2 Kings xvi. 6.)

EL-ELOHE-ISRAEL, the name, signifying God, the God of Israel, given by Jacob to the altar which he erected in the field at Shalem, purchased by him from the children of Hamor. (Gen. xxxiii. 18-20.)

ELIM, the place at which the Israelites encamped in the wilderness after they left Marah; there were at Elin "twelve wells of water, and three-score and ten palm-trees." (Ex. xv. 27.)

ELKOTH or ELKOSHAI, a village of Israel which was the birth-place of the prophet Nahum.

EMIM, a warlike gigantic people of Canaan, east of Jordan, whom Chedorlaomer, and the allied kings defeated on the plain of Kiriathaim. (Gen. xiv. 5; Deut ii. 10.)

ENDOR, a town in western Manasseh, a few miles south of Mount Tabor. The sorceress, called the witch of Endor whom Saul consulted shortly before his death, when Samu appeared to him, rebuked him, and foretold his death, lived here. (1 Sam xxviii. 7) Near this place the army of Jabin was routed by Barak. (Jud. iv. 15.)

EN-GEDI, a city in Judah towards the southern point of the Dead Sea. Near this place was a cave where David and his men found shelter when they were pursued by Saul and his army. (1 Sam. xxiii. 29.) The armies of the Ammonites and Moabites who came against Jehoshaphat encamped at En-gedi. (2 Chron. xx. 2.) The country about was mountainous and abounded in vineyards.

ENOCH, the name of the first city built in the world, so called by Cain after his son Enoch. (Gen. iv. 17.) It was east of Eden, in the land of Nod, to which country Cain was banished after the murder of his brother.

EN-ROGEL, a place on the north-east of Jerusalem at the foot of Mount Sion. Ahimaas and Jonathan hid themselves there to procure information for David of Absalom's conspiracy. (2 Sam. xvii. 17.) Near the same place Adonijah made a feast for Abiathar, Joab, and the other supporters of his usurpation.

EPHES-DAMMIM, the place near Azekah, where the Philistines encamped when Goliath insulted the hosts of Israel. (1 Sam. xvii. 1.)

EPHRA, a city of Manasseh, supposed to be the same as Ophrah, the birth place of Gideon.

EPHRAIM, the division of Canaan which was occupied by the tribe of Ephraim, the younger of Joseph's sons. It was bounded east by the Jordan and the tribe of Gad, west by the Mediterranean Sea, north by western Manasseh, and south by Benjamin and Dan. Its towns were numerous and populous, among them were Shiloh, Samaria, Shechem, Gezer, Michmash, Naioth, and Beth-horon. At Shiloh the ark and the Tabernacle remained a considerable time. Mount Ephraim was a hilly portion of the country. In Mount Ephraim lived Mica<sup>h</sup> whose mother made an idol of the silver she had saved. Joshua was of this tribe and he was buried in his own inheritance at Timnath-serah in Mount Ephraim (Jud. ii. 9.) Abdon, one of the judges of Israel, was also of this tribe.

EPHRAIM, (forest of ) an extensive forest near the Jordan where the battle was fought against Absalom and where he was slain by Joab (2 Sam. xviii. 6, 8. 18.) Joshua advised the tribe of Ephraim to cut down this forest (Josh. xvii. 15)

EPHRATAH, EPHRATH, the ancient name of Bethlehem, on the way to which place Benjamin was born and Rachel was buried (Gen xxxv. 19.)

ESHCOL, a valley between Simeon and Dan so named from the bunch of grapes cut by the spies which was so large that it had to be carried on a pole by two men. (Num. xiii. 24.)

ETAM, a city in Judah between Bethlehem and Tekoa; in its vicinity was the rock to which Samson retired after he had destroyed the standing corn of the Philistines. (Jud. xv. 8.)

ETHAM, a place on the edge of the wilderness where the Israelites encamped after their journey from Succoth, and from whence God led them by day in a pillar of cloud, and by night in a pillar of fire. (Ex. xiii. 20; Num. xxxiii. 6.)

ETHIOPIA, a name given to several countries of Asia and Africa, the people of which had black or dark complexions. Miriam and Aaron spoke against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married. Several Ethiopian kings are mentioned who made war against the Israelites.

EUPHRATES, the great river of Asia which flowed through the garden of Eden; (Gen.

ii. 14) it rises in the mountains of Armenia flows by Syria, Mesopotamia, and the ruins of the great city Babylon, and falls into the Persian Gulf. This river is mentioned as one of the boundaries of the Promised Land (Gen. xv. 18; Deut. xi. 24; 1 Chron. v. 9)

EZION-GEBER, one of the encampments of the Israelites in the wilderness, it was on the coast of the Red Sea. (Num. xxxiii. 35) It was the place where Solomon built his ships wherewith to trade to distant countries and also the place at which Jehoshaphat and Ahaziah built ships to trade to Tarshish. (1 Kings ix. 26)

GAASH, a hill of Mount Ephraim on the north side of which was Timnath-serah, the place where Joshua was buried. (Josh. xxiv. 30.)

GAD, the district of Canaan occupied by the descendants of Gad the eighth son of Jacob it was bounded on the west by the Jordan north by eastern Manasseh, east by the Ammonites, and south by Reuben. The Gadites and the Reubenites occupied the country of the kings Sihon and Og after those kings were defeated; in this district the pasturelands were very extensive and fertile. The chief cities of Gad were Bethhoron, Mahanaim, Penuel, Ramoth-gilead, Mizpeh and Succoth.

GALEED, the name of the heap of stones set up for a pillar by Jacob in Gilead, when he made a covenant with Laban, his father-in-law; the name means the heap of witness. (Gen. xxxi. 52.)

GAULON, GOLAN, an ancient city of Bashan, afterwards in eastern Manasseh, it was a Levitical city and a city of refuge.

GALLIM, a village the situation of which is unknown; Phaltiel, to whom Saul gave his daughter Michal, David's wife, in marriage, was a man of Gallim. (1 Sam. xxv. 44.)

GATH, a city of the Philistines, and one of the places to which the ark was carried; (1 Sam. v. 8.) it was the birth-place of Goliath; it was destroyed by David, (1 Sam. xvii. 4.) rebuilt and fortified by his grandson Rehoboam; (2 Chron. xi. 8.) and again destroyed by Uzziah, king of Judah; but it recovered its strength and was laid waste by Hazael, king of Syria. Achish, the king of Gath befriended David when Saul sought to slay him. (1 Sam. xxvii. 5,6.) The posterity of Goliath were slain at Gath.

GATH-OPHER, a town which was the birth-place of the prophet Jonah, and which is said to have been situated in Zebulun.

GATH-RIMMON, the name of cities in Dan, Manasseh, and Ephraim; they were all Levitical cities.

GAZA, one of the five chief cities of the Philistines which was about sixty miles south west of Jerusalem. It is the city whose gate

Samson carried away, and to which he was taken prisoner after his eyes were put out. Here he afterwards pulled down the house of Dagon on the lords of the Philistines; this idol-temple must have been of great extent, as there were 3000 persons assembled on the roof.

GERAR, a royal city and country of which the kings were called Abimelech, the city was near Gaza, the territory was extensive. Abraham and Isaac both went to Gerar at times when there was a famine in Canaan. (Gen. xxvi.)

GERIZIM, a celebrated mountain near Shechem in Samaria opposite to Mount Ebal. In the time of Nehemiah Sanballat with the Samaritans built a temple on Gerizim.

GESHUR, a city which is supposed to have been the capital of the small kingdom of Geshur on the northern borders of Israel; to this city Absalom retired after he had killed his brother Amnon ; Talmai was then it king. (2 Sam. iii. 3 ; xiii. 37.)

GIBBETHON, a city in the district of Dan ; which Baasha the commander of the armies
slew Nadab and usurped the throne of Israel
(1 Kings xv. 27.)

GIBEAH, a city of Benjamin a few miles north of Jerusalem, it was the scene of the desolation of the tribe of Benjamin for their wickedness to the wife of a Levite of Ephraim. (Judg xx,xxi.) Gibeah was the birth-place of Saul At Gibeah Jonathan's friendship for David commenced—they covenanted to befriend each other—and Saul became jealous of the praise of David. Here also when Saul was troubled David played on the harp before him and he was refreshed. (1 Sam xviii. 1-16)

GIBEON, the chief city of the Gibeonites, people who used deceit towards the Israelites to be at peace with them, and who were punished by being made "hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation and the altar of the Lord." (Josh. ix.) Two of the Canaanitish kings attacked the Gibeonites for having made peace with Israel, but Joshua marched from Gilgal to their relief, fell on the army of the confederated kings, and slew them with great slaughter. It was at this battle that Joshua commanded the sun to stand still upon Gibeon, and the moon in the valley of Ajalon till the people had avenged themselves on their enemies. Saul slew many of the Gibeonites when he destroyed the city of Nob; and in the reign of David, Israel was visited for Saul's crime with a severe famine which lasted three years, or till Saul's cruelty was punished. The Gibeonites then demanded seven of Saul's sons to be delivered to them to be hanged, and their demand was acceded to. (2 Sam. xxi 1-9.) A great battle took place at the pool of Gibeon between the army of Ishbosheth under Abner, and that of David under Joab, when Abner was defeated, and put to flight; at this battle Asahel, Joab's brother was slain by Abner (2 Sam. ii. 12; iii. 20.) The tabernacle and altar of Moses were at Gibeon, at the beginning of Solomon's reign, and he there offered 1,000 burnt offerings to God. (1 Chron. xv. 29.) Gibeon was about four miles north of Jerusalem.

GIHON, a fountain or brook near Mount Sion at which Solomon was anointed king after Adonijah had been proclaimed by his friends. The name also of one of the rivers of Eder. (1 Kings i. 33; Gen. ii. 13.)

GILBOA, a ridge of mountains a few miles from Beth-shan. At the battle there between the Israelites and the Philistines, Saul fell upon his sword and killed himself, and three of his sons—Jonathan, Abinadab, and Melchishua were slain. (1 Sam. xxxi. 1.)

GILEAD, the mountains of Gilead lie east the Jordan and extend from Anti-libanus southward into Arabia Petrea. On one of these hills was Galeed, the heap of witness, of Jacob and Laban. (Gen. xxxi. 47.) The northern part of the land of Gilead called Bashan was celebrated for its oak-trees, and its herds of cattle; the middle part was more particularly called Gilead. Gilead was the first portion of Canaan which was conquered by the Israelites. At the fords of the Jordan the Gileadites slew 42,000 Ephraimites, because that tribe had sought to quarrel with the people of Gilead. (Jud. xii. 6.) Jair and Jephthah, two of the judges of Israel were Gileadites. (Jud. x. 3; xi. 1.) Elijah the prophet is called one of the inhabitants of Gilead. (1 Kings xvii. 1.)

GILGAL, a city on the east of Jericho about 18 miles north east from Jerusalem, and the place where the Israelites encamped after they had passed over the Jordan. It was here that Joshua set up the memorial of twelve stones taken out of the Jordan, one for each tribe—that the manna ceased falling—the first Passover in Canaan was kept—and the people ate of the old corn of the land (Josh. iv. 20. v. 10-13.) At Gilgal God instructed Joshua about the taking of Jericho. Ehud slew Eglon, the king of Moab, and thus delivered Israel from the oppression of the Moabites; (Jud. iii. 20-22) Saul was made king over Israel—sacrificed contrary to God's commands, and was informed by Samuel of God's rejection of him—he was afterwards reproved at Gilgal for having saved Agag the Amalekite, and his rejection was there more strongly repeated by Samuel, who put Agag to death. (1 Sam. xv.) At this place Elisha healed the poisonous pottage; and the bread which was brought by a man of Baal-shalish when there was a dearth in the land, was miraculously increased. (2 Kings iv. 38-44)

GIRGASA, an ancient city of the Philistines

east of the lake Cinnereth, the people of which were called Girgashites or Gergesenes. (Gen. x. 16; Josh. iii. 10; 1 Chron i. 14.)

GOB, a place where two battles were fought between the Israelites and the Philistines, and supposed to be near to, or the same place as Gezer. (2 Sam. xxi. 18,19; 1 Chron. xx. 4.)

GOMORRAH, one of the cities of the Plain of Sodom, supposed to be the second in extent, which was destroyed with its inhabitants for their abominations. (Gen. xix. 24,25.)

GOSHEN, the district of Egypt which Pharaoh gave to Jacob and his family, where they settled, where Jacob lived seventeen years, and where he died. (Gen. xlvii. 28.) It was on the eastern side of the Nile and had excellent pastures, it was preserved from the plagues with which the other parts of Egypt were afflicted.

GOZAN, a city or country of Mesopotamia and one of the places to which the Israelites were taken captive ; also the name of a river of that country. (2 Kings xvii. 6 ; xviii. 11.)

HACHILAH, a hill in the wilderness of Manasse where David concealed himself from Saul. (1 Sam. xxiii. 19 ; xxvi. 1.)

HADAD-RIMMON, a city of the valley of Jezreel, where a battle was fought between Josiah king of Judah, and Pharaoh-Necho king of Egypt when Josiah was slain. (2 Kings xxiii. 29.)

HAI, see Ai.

HALAH, a country of northern Assyria in which Shalmaneser took captive some of the tribes of Israel. (2 Kings xviii. 11 ; xvii. 6.)

HAMATH, a city of Syria and the capital of a kingdom of the same name beyond Mount Hermon. Toi, the king of Hamath in David's time sent his son with presents to David after one of his great victories over his enemies. (2 Sam. viii. 9,10.) There were several other places of this name.

HARAN, a city in the north of Mesopotamia in which Abraham sojourned with his father and brothers after leaving Ur of the Chaldees, on his way into Canaan. Its name was taken from Haran, the father of Lot. Terah is said to have died and been buried there. (Gen. xi. 31,32.)

HARETH, a forest of Judah in which David concealed himself from the pursuit of Saul. (1 Sam. xxii. 5.)

HAROD, a well at the foot of Mount Gilboa near which Gideon encamped in his war with the Midianites. (Jud. vii. 1.)

HAROSHETH, the name of a town which was the residence of Sisera, the general of Jabin, king of Canaan. (Jud. iv. 2.)

HAVOTH-JAIR, several small towns in the land of Gilead which were taken by Jair, one of the sons of Manasseh. (Num. xxxii. 41 Josh. xiii. 30.)

HAZEROTH, an encampment of the Israelites in their journey through the wilderness, and the place where Aaron and Miriam spoke against Moses, when Miriam was punished with leprosy. (Num. xi. 35; xii.)

HAZOR, a place in the north of Canaan of which Jabin was the king; when he oppressed the Israelites they were delivered by Deborah and Barak. (Jud. iv. 2.)

HEBRON, an ancient and celebrated city in the territory of Judah, it was situated on an eminence, was about twenty miles south of Jerusalem, and the same distance north of Beersheba. It is the place where Abraham lived after he was separated from Lot. Sarah died at Hebron and was buried in the cave of Machpelah where several of the patriarchs and their wives were also buried. Isaac and Jacob both lived at Hebron, and Esau and Jacob were born there. Jacob resided at Hebron when he sent Joseph to his brethren at Shechem to enquire after them and their flocks. (Gen. xxxvii. 14.) The city was taken, and its king killed by Joshua; it was again conquered by Caleb who was assisted by Othniel, (Josh. x. 36,37; xv. 13) and it was allotted to Caleb for an inheritance. At Hebron, David was first proclaimed king, and kept his court for the first seven years of his reign before he took Jerusalem. At Hebron also Absalom and Ahithophel conspired against David. (2 Sam. xv. 12.) During the captivity of the Jews the Edomites invaded Judah and took Hebron. It was appointed to be a Levitical city and a city of refuge.

HELAM, the name of a place at which the Syrians assembled under Hadadezer, and at which David defeated them. (2 Sam. x. 16.)

HELKATH-HAZZURIM, the name of a place near the city of Gibeon, so called from the combat between twelve men of Ishbosheth's army, and twelve chosen from the army of David who fought till all were destroyed. (2 Sam. ii. 16.)

HERMON, one of a chain of mountains which bounded the land of Bashan on the east of Jordan, it was celebrated for its height, and for its summit being like Lebanon covered with snow; it is mentioned as the northern boundary of the Promised Land beyond the Jordan.

HESHBON, the chief city of Sihon king of the Moabites; it was afterwards included in the tribe of Reuben. (Num. xxi. 25; xxxi. 37.) After the captivity of the Ten Tribes the Moabites again possessed it.

HIDDEKEL, one of the four rivers which watered the garden of Eden and supposed to be the same as the Tigris. (Gen. ii. 14.)

HINNOM, a valley on the south of Jerusalem and the boundary between the tribes of Judah and Benjamin. In this valley the worst kinds of idolatry were practised by the Israelites, who made their innocent children to pass through the fire, and drowned their shrieks with the din of musical instruments. (2 Kings xxiii. 10; Jer. vii. 31.)

HITTITES, the descendants of Heth the eldest son of Canaan, one of the nations of the Canaanites whom the Israelites were to expel; they dwelt in the neighbourhood of Hebron.

HIVITES, a people also descended from Canaan who were conquered by the Philistines and expelled from the country; they were settled chiefly about Shechem and Gibeon. (Gen. x. 17; Josh. ix. 11-19.)

HOBAB, a place north of Damascus to which Abraham and his servants pursued Chedor-laomer and the kings who took Lot captive.

(Gen. xiv. 15.)

HOR, a mountain of Arabia Petrea on the borders of Edom where Aaron died and was buried. (Num. xx. 22-28.) It is said to be the highest of the mountains of Seir.

HOREB, a celebrated mountain of Arabia to the west of Sinai. On Horeb, when Moses fed the flocks of Jethro, his father-in-law, God commissioned him from the burning bush to go and deliver the Israelites from bondage. (Ex. iii. 1.) At the foot of Horeb he struck the rock when the Israelites murmured for water, and the stream gushed forth. (Ex. xvii. 6.) To Horeb Elijah retired when he was persecuted by Jezebel, and here God commanded him to go and anoint Hazael to be king of Syria, Jehu to be king of Israel, and Elisha to succeed himself; and when he mourned the idolatries of the Jews, God comforted him with the assurance that there were in Israel 7,000 who had not bowed the knee to Baal. (1 Kings xix. 8-19.)

HORMAH, a place at which the Israelites were at first discomfited by the Amalekites, but which they afterwards took and destroyed, with Arad its king. It was included in the territory of Simeon, and at first called Zephath (Num. xiv. 45; xxi. 3; Jud. i. 17.)

ISHMAELITES, the descendants of Ishmael, the son of Abraham and Hagar. Ishmael was the father of twelve princes, the heads of the twelve Arab tribes, who inhabit the same wilderness in which Hagar and her son wandered when they were driven from the house of Abraham, and in whom the prophecy is fulfilled that Ishmael should be a wild man, his hand against every man and every man's hand against him. (Gen. xvi. 12; xxv. 16.)

ISHTOB, a city and country in the land of Tob at the north of the mountains of Gilead.

ISRAEL, the kingdom of the ten tribes who revolted from Rehoboam, and chose Jeroboam to be their king, its capital was at first Shechem, and afterwards Samaria. Jeroboam set up calves at Dan and Bethel, and his people early fell away from the worship of God; he also made priests of the "lowest of the people, who were not of the sons of Levi." The kings of Israel and their people fell into gross idolatry, and disregarded the warnings of the prophets whom God sent to them. Many enemies were raised up against them and in the reign of Pekah two tribes and a half were taken captive into Assyria by Tiglath-pileser the king of that empire. In the following reign, Shalmaneser came against Israel, besieged and destroyed Samaria, and took captive the other tribes of Israel. Strangers from different parts of Assyria were then placed in Israel; they intermarried with the few Israelites who were left in the land, rebuilt Samaria, and took the name of Samaritans. At first all these people were idolaters, but after some years they built a temple for the true worship of God on Mount Gerizim, where the writings of Moses were regularly read. When the tribes of Judah returned from their captivity in Babylon, the Samaritans opposed the rebuilding of the temple at Jerusalem, and the walls of the city, but Nehemiah and the princes of Judah overcame their enmity and opposition. The successive kings of Israel were Jeroboam, Nadab, Baasha, Elah, Zimri, Omri, Ahab, Ahaziah, Joram, Jehu, Jehoahaz, Jehoash, Jeroboam II, Zachariah, Shallum, Menahem, Pekaiiah, Pekah, and Hoshea, in whose reign the kingdom was wholly subverted by the Assyrians. The chief prophets of Israel were, the man of God from Judah, and Ahijah, in the reign of Jeroboam; Elijah, Elisha, and Micaiah, from the reign of Ahab to that of Jehoash; Jonah, Hosea, and Amos, chiefly in the reign of Jeroboam II; and Oded in the reign of Pekah.

ISSACHAR, the portion of Canaan occupied by this tribe was bounded on the north by Zebulun, on the south by western Manasseh, on the east by Gad, and on the west by the Mediterranean sea. The head of the tribe was the ninth son of Jacob, his mother was Leah. The beautiful valley of Jezreel was in this territory, which also included the mountains of Carmel, Gilboa and Tabor. The chief towns of Issachar were Shunem, Jezreel, Bethshemesh, Megiddo, Dothan, Kishon, and Aphek. Tola, one of the Judges of Israel was of this tribe.

JABBOK, a small river which rises in the mountains of Gilead, and falls into the Jordan to the south of the Lake Cinnereth; it was at one time the boundary between the country of the Amorites and that of the Ammonites (Num. xxi. 24; Deut. ii. 37; iii. 16.) Jacob crossed this river when he returned from Padan-aram to Canaan, at the time when he wrestled with an angel and had his name changed to Israel. (Gen. xxxii. 22.)

JABESH-GILEAD, a city beyond Jordan, in eastern Manasseh, at the foot of one of the mountains of Gilead. The Benjamites procured themselves wives at this city after their tribe was nearly destroyed for their sin at Gibeah. (Jud. xxi. 8-12.) Nahash king of the Ammonites besieged Jabesh-gilead and required the inhabitants to allow him to thrust out their right eye to shew their submission to him. Saul however came to their assistance and delivered them from the Ammonites. (1 Sam. xi. 2.) The people of Jabesh-gilead ever after felt grateful to Saul and his family and when, after his death, his body, and those of his sons were fixed to the walls of Bethshan, the men of Jabesh-gilead fetched them away and interred them with honour. (1 Sam. xxxi. 11-13.)

JACOB'S WELL, a fountain near Shechem

where Jacob lived before the Shechemites were slaughtered by his sons Simeon and Levi.

JARMUTH, a city in Judah the king of which was slain by Joshua ; (Josh. xii, 11.) also a Levitical city, and a city of refuge in the tribe of Issachar.

JAZER, a city of the Gadites situated at the foot of the mountains of Gilead, and near a river and a small lake of the same name.

JEBUS, an ancient name of Jerusalem before it was conquered by David ; its founder was Jebus the father of the Jebusites who occupied the city and the surrounding country. (Chron. xi. 4.)

JEHOSHAPHAT, a valley east of Jerusalem through which the brook Kidron flows, it lies between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives.

JERICHO, a large city in Benjamin, situated about six miles west of the Jordan, and twenty two north-east of Jerusalem; it is called by Moses "the city of palm trees." (Deut. xxxiv. 3.) It was the first city that was taken by the Israelites after they entered the promised land; it was taken by Joshua exactly in accordance with the commands of God, and its walls fell down as God had purposed. (Josh. vi. 20.) The city was quite destroyed and the inhabitants, except Rahab, who had sheltered the spies were put to the sword. At that time Joshua pronounced a curse on any one who should rebuild the city, and this curse was accurately fulfilled about 500 years after, when it was rebuilt by Hiel the Bethelite. (Josh. vi. 26; 1 Kings xvi. 34.) In the time of Elijah and Elisha there was a school of the prophets at Jericho, but the waters near the city were both salt and bitter, and the land was barren. Elisha healed the waters by throwing salt into them, and thenceforth they became both wholesome and fertilizing. (2 Kings ii. 19-22.)

JERUSALEM, was the metropolis of the Israelites, it is often spoken of in the Scriptures as the Holy City, because God chose it to place there his name, his temple and his worship. It was in the southern portion of Canaan which was occupied by the Jebusites, and was situated partly in Judah, and partly in Benjamin. It is supposed to have been the city of Melchizedek, king of Salem. (Gen. xiv. 18.) Joshua partly conquered it from the Jebusites, and the Israelites and the Jebusites jointly occupied the city, but in different parts. After about 400 years had elapsed David expelled the Jebusites and removed his own residence from Hebron to Jerusalem. He brought the ark from Kirjath-jearim to the city by a stately procession of Levites, musicians and singers, amid a vast assemblage of the people. It was sometimes called the city of David. (2 Sam. v. 9.) David began to enlarge and to beautify it; Solomon greatly extended it, built palaces in it and the Temple. During the reigns of David and Solomon Jerusalem was the metropolis of all Israel. In the reign of Rehoboam, after the separation of the Ten Tribes it was the capital of the kingdom of Judah, and it was taken and pillaged by Shishak, king of Egypt. (2 Chron. xii.) In the reign of Amaziah, it was again taken and plundered by Jehoash king of Israel. (2 Chron. xxv. 23.) Pharaoh-Necho also entered the city when he deposed Jehoahaz, and made Jehoiakim king. (2 Chron. xxxvi.) It was several times ravaged by Nebuchadnezzar, and in the reign of Zedekiah, after undergoing a siege for two years it was taken by the Babylonians and burnt. (2 Kings xxv. 2-9.) It then lay in ruins till after the return of the Jews from the seventy years captivity; when Cyrus not only proclaimed liberty to the Jews, but also issued a decree for the rebuilding of the city and the temple; this was accomplished under the superintendance of Nehemiah, Zerubbabel, Ezra, Eliashib, and others ; though strongly opposed by the Samaritans who had erected their temple on Mount Gerizim. The Jews were however protected by the kings of Persia to whom they paid tribute ; and the Temple, the city, and the walls to protect both, were completed.

JEZREEL, a celebrated city in the valley of Jezreel in the tribe of Issachar. Ahab had a residence there which was near Naboth's vineyard, "the inheritance of his fathers, which Ahab wished to purchase, but which Naboth refused to sell. Jezebel then procured false witnesses against him and caused him to be put to death. This wickedness was denounced by the prophet Elijah, who foretold the miserable end of both Ahab and Jezebel (1 Kings xxi.)

JOPPA, the chief sea-port and harbour of the Israelites ; it was about thirty-two miles north-west of Jerusalem and was situated in the territory of Dan. On the west of the town was the Mediterranean Sea, by which the cedars of Lebanon were brought in ships for the building of the Temple. At this port Jonah embarked for Tarshish, to "flee from the presence of the Lord," when he was commanded to go to Nineveh. (Jonah i. 3.)

JORDAN, the celebrated river of Canaan, it rises in Lebanon, and flows southward through the marshes, formerly called the waters of Merom; thence into the Lake of Cinnereth; and thence southwards to the Dead Sea, into which it falls. Its length is about 150 miles. The Israelites passed over this river when they entered Canaan, its waters retiring and leaving a dry passage as soon as the priests who carried the Ark touched them with their feet. Some shallow parts of the river are called the fords or passages of the Jordan and they are often mentioned in the history of Israel. The fords of Jordan were taken possession of by Ehud and the Israelites after he had slain Eglon the king of Moab, and there they slew about 10,000 men of Moab and delivered Israel from the oppression of the Moabites. (Jud. iii. 28-30.) Some years after the Gileadites took the passage of Jordan before the Ephraimites, who had sought to quarrel with the men of Gilead, and slew there 42,000 Ephraimites, ascertaining them by their pronounciation of the word Shibboleth which the Ephraimites pronounce Sibboleth. (Jud. xii. 6.) Elijah divided the waters of the Jordan with his mantle when he wished to cross over, before he ascended to heaven, and Elisha divided them, with Elijah's mantle on his return to Jericho. (Kings ii. 8-14.) In the waters of Jordan Naaman washed seven times by Elisha's command and was healed of his leprosy. (Kings v.)

JUDAH, the province of Canaan which was inhabited by the descendants of Judah, the fourth son of Jacob and Leah; it extended from Benjamin on the north to the mountains of Edom southwards, was bounded on the east by the Dead Sea, and west by the tribes of Dan and Simeon. It was the most populous of all the tribes. Jerusalem was partly in Judah, and partly in Benjamin. The other principal places of Judah were Hebron, Debir, Bethlehem, Maon, Adullam, Makkedah, Azekah, Tekoa, Engedi, and Ziph. It was from this tribe that Christ was descended, according to Jacob's prophecy. (Gen. lxxix. 10.)

JUDAH, (Kingdom.) The kingdom of Judah was separated from that of Israel after the death of Solomon; its metropolis was Jerusalem, its first king Rehoboam. It embraced the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, and parts of those of Simeon and Dan. Many of the kings of Judah adhered to the true worship of God, while others fell into gross idolatry. The people of Judah never so totally forsook God as the people of Israel.

Hostile attacks were made on Judah by Shishak, king of Egypt in the reign of Rehoboam; by the Ethiopians, under Zerah, in the reign of Asa; by the Edomites, Philistines, and Arabians, in the reign of Jehoram; by Israel under Jehoash in the reign of Amaziah; by the Assyrians, under Sennacherib, in the reign of Hezekiah; by the Babylonians, in the reign of Manasseh; and again by the Babylonians, under Nebuchadnezzar in the reign of Jehoiachin and Zedekiah, when the people of Judah were taken captive to Babylon, and remained there for seventy years, according to the prophecies of Jeremiah, or till Cyrus proclaimed liberty to them. The successive sovereigns of Judah were Rehoboam, Abijah, Asa, Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, Ahaziah, Athaliah (the mother of Ahaziah) Joash, the son of Ahaziah, Amaziah, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, Amon, Josiah, Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin, and Zedekiah (a brother of Jehoiakim.) All the kings were sons of preceding monarchs except the last.

 The chief prophets of Judah were Shemaiah, Oded, Eliezer, Zachariah, Isaiah, Micah, Nahum, Joel, Jeremiah, Habbakuk, Zephaniah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and Obadiah. Judah was a separate kingdom, for 369 years, or from the revolt of the tribes under Rehoboam to the Babylonish Captivity.

KADESH-BARNEA, a city near the wilderness of Paran on the southern border of the promised land. From this place the spies were sent to view the land, and to it they returned after an absence of forty days. (Num. xiii. 26.) At this place Miriam died; and Moses and Aaron having struck the rock to procure water, when commanded only to speak to it, were here told that they would not be permitted to enter Canaan. (Num. xx. 3-12.) From this place the Israelites returned into the wilderness, and commenced their wanderings which lasted forty years from their leaving Egypt to their entering in Canaan. (Num. xiv. 27-33.)

KADMONITES, an ancient tribe of Canaanites who inhabited a portion of Canaan east of the Jordan, near Mount Lebanon. (Gen. xv. 19.)

KEDAR, a name which is sometimes applied to Arabia Deserta, derived from one of Isaac's sons. The descendants of Kedar were a wandering tribe, they lived in tents, had vast flocks of sheep and goats, and frequently changed their habitations. (Gen. xxv. 13; Jerem. xlix. 28,29.)

KEDESH, a city of Judah, and also one of Naphtali, which was of some importance, was Levitical and a city of refuge. Heber the Kenite, whose wife Jael smote Sisera at the temple as he slept, had his tent at Kedesh. (Jud. iv. 16-22.)

KEILAH, a town in Judah to which Abiathar followed David. David was directed to go and smite the Philistines there but to save the town; Saul followed David there to slay him, but he escaped into the wilderness of Ziph. (1 Sam. xxiii. 2.)

KENATH, a city of Gilead, in Manasseh, and the place where Gideon overtook the Moabitish princes Zebah and Zalmunnah. (Num. xxxii. 42; Jud. viii. 11.)

KENITES, a people who inhabited a region west of the Dead Sea, and who appear to have lived among the Amalekites. Their dwelling-places were in the mountains and rocks to which circumstance Balaam alluded in his prophecy of their captivity. They were carried into captivity by Nebuchadnezzar. Heber the husband of Jael was a Kenite. (1 Sam. xv. 6; Num. xxiv. 20,21.)

KIBROTH HATTA AVAH, an encampment of the Israelites in the wilderness at which they desired flesh, being tired of the manna. Quails were sent of which they ate, but the wrath of God visited them and great numbers of them died. (Num. xi. 34,35; Psalm lxxviii. 30,31.)

KIDRON, a brook which flows through the valley of Jehoshaphat, which David crossed over barefoot and weeping when he fled from Absalom. (2 Sam. xv. 23-30.) Into this brook Asa, Hezekiah, and Josiah cast the ashes of the idols and idolatrous altars they destroyed. (2 Chron. xv. 16; xxx. 14; Kings xxiii. 4.)

KIR, a district under the dominion of Assyria through which the river Kir flows; this river falls into the Caspian Sea. Tiglath-pileser took the people of Damascus captive into the land of Kir. (Isai. xxii. 6; 2 Kings xvi. 9.)

KIRJATH-ARBA, the ancient name of Hebron

KIRJATH-HUZOTH, the royal city of Ba

BAAL the king of Moab to which Balaam accompanied him. (Num. xxii. 39.)

KIRJATH-JEARIM, called also Kirjath-Baal, a city of the Gibeonites afterwards in Judah, and about nine miles from Jerusalem. The Ark remained in this city in the house of Abinadab for twenty years after its removal from Bethshemesh; it was removed to Jerusalem by David after he had taken that city from the Jebusites. (1 Sam. vii. 1,2.)

KIRJATH-SEIPHER, a name of the ancient city Debir.

KISHON, a brook which forms two streams at the foot of Mount Carmel one of which flows eastward and falls into Lake Cinnereth, and the other westward into the Mediterranean Sea, at the Bay of Acre. It was at this river, probably when much swollen by rains, that the bands of Sisera perished in its waters. (Jud. v. 21.) The prophets of Baal were also slain at this river. (1 Kings xviii. 40.)

LACHISH, a city of Judah which was about twenty miles south-west of Jerusalem. Its king joined Adonizedek against the Gibeonites, and he was slain by Joshua. (Josh. x. 5-32.) It was one of the cities which Rehoboam made exceeding strong, and the one to which Amaziah fled when his servants conspired against him. (2 Chron. xi. 9.) Sennacherib occupied Lachish when his armies came against Jerusalem: (2 Kings xvii. 14.) and when Nebuchadnezzar was about to besiege Jerusalem, he first took Lachish. (Jer. xxxiv. 7.) After the revolt of the ten tribes Lachish was the first city in Judah to imitate the idolatries of Israel, and it was denounced by the prophet Micah. (Micah i. 13.)

LAISH, the city to which Abraham pursued the kings to recover Lot, it was afterwards conquered with a small district round it, by the tribe of Dan, and named after the father. (Gen. xiv. 14; Jud. xviii. 29.)

LEBANON, two ranges of mountains on the borders of Syria and Canaan, the eastern range is called Anti-lebanon, and the western, Lebanon; the valley between them is called Cœlo Syria. The district of Lebanon is fertile and abounds in fountains, wells, streams, flowers, fir-trees, and box-trees, and it is celebrated for its cedars; these cedars supplied wood for the temple and for the palace which Solomon built. For these works 30,000 men were appointed to hew timber in Lebanon.

LEHI, the place where Samson slew a thousand Philistines with the jaw-bone of an ass, and where a fountain of water sprang up at his prayer, which fountain was also called Lehi. (Jud. xv. 9.)

LIBNAH, a Levitical city of Judah about twelve miles south-west of Jerusalem; its inhabitants revolted from Jehoram because he had forsaken the God of his fathers. (2 Chron. xxi. 10.) Near this city the Assyrian host encamped under Sennacherib, who came against Jerusalem in Hezekiah's reign when 185,000 were smitten by the angel of God. (Isai. xxxvii. 8.)

LODEBAR, a city of Gilead supposed to be on the border of the tribe of Gad; it was the residence of Mephibosheth during his childhood. (2 Sam. ix. 4.)

LUZ, a city of the Canaanites where Jacob slept on his way to Padan-aram, and had the vision of angels ascending and descending; he afterwards built an altar at this place and named it Bethel. (Gen. xxxv. 6-15.)

MAACHA, MAACHATHITES, a country and a people on the east of Jordan, near Damascus. The Israelites did not expel the Maachathites, nor their neighbours the Geshurites, but lived among them. (Josh. xii. 13; Deut. iii. 14.)

MACHPELAH, the name of the cave near

Hebron which Abraham purchased of Ephron the Hittite for a burial place for Sarah ; at this place several of the patriarchs and their wives were buried. (Gen. xxiii. 17.)

MAHANAIM, a Levitical city beyond the Jordan, between Mount Gilead and the brook Jabbok ; its name was given to it by Jacob because the angels of God met him there when he was returning from Padan-aram to Canaan. It afterwards became a place of great strength, and it was chosen by Abner for the residence of Ishbosheth the son of Saul, who was there proclaimed king, and who lived there during the wars between him and David. It was the temporary residence of David during the rebellion of Absalom ; near to it was the Wood of Ephraim, where the army of David defeated that of Absalom, and where Absalom was slain. (Gen. xxxii. 2 ; Josh. xiii. 26-30 ; 2 Sam. ii. 8 ; xvii. 24-27 ; xviii. 6-8.)

MAHANEH-DAN, a place near Kirjath-jearim in Judah where 600 Danites encamped on their way to Laish; the name signifies "the camp of Dan." (Jud. xviii. 12.)

MAKKEDAH, a city in the plain of Judah and one of the royal cities of the Canaanites; in a cave at this place Joshua took the five kings of the Amorites and put them to death, he then slew the king of Makkedah, and destroyed the city. (Josh. x. 15-28.)

MAMRE, a plain near Hebron where Abraham went to reside after he had separated from Lot. At Mamre God made a covenant with Abraham and promised him a son; at this place Ishmael was born, and the names of Abram and Sarai were changed. Near Mamre was the cave of Machpelah. (Gen. xiii. 18)

MANASSEH, the province of Canaan which was occupied by the descendants of Joseph's elder son, it was in two portions. Eastern Manasseh which was bounded on the south by Gad, on the west and north by lake Cinnereth and the source of the Jordan, and on the east by Syria;—and Western Manasseh which was between the tribes of Ephraim and Issachar. The most celebrated places in Western Manasseh were Tirzah, Megiddo, Gath-rimmon, Abel-meholah, Bethshan, Endor, and Ophrah; those of Eastern Manasseh Ashtaroth, Beeshterah, Geshur, Jabesh-gilead, and Lodebar. Jair was one of the most noted persons of this tribe; he took three-score cities and several towns and villages, which he called Havoth-jair.

MAON, a city in the south of Judah, not far from Carmel, it was the residence of Nabal the churl, who had large possessions there and in Carmel. Near to it was a wilderness in which David abode for some time when Saul was seeking to slay him. (1 Sam xxv. 1,2.)

MARAH, a place in the wilderness of Shur to which the Israelites came after three days' journey from the Red Sea, and where they found the waters so bitter that neither they nor their cattle could drink of it. At the command of God, Moses made the waters sweet by casting into them the branch of a tree. The name signifies bitterness. (Ex. xv. 23; Num. xxxiii. 8.)

MARESHA, a city of Judah near which, in the valley of Zephathah, Asa king of Judah conquered Zerah the Ethiopian. Of this city the prophet Micah, and Eliezer, who prophesied against Jehoshaphat when he allied himself with Ahaziah, were probably natives. (2 Chron. xiv. 9.)

MASSAH, an encampment of the Israelites near Horeb, where the people murmured for water, and where Moses, being commanded to smite the rock with his rod, did so and water gushed forth. (Ex. xvii. 7.)

MEDEBA, a city in the south of Reuben.

near Heshbon, where Joab gained a great victory over the Ammonites and Syrians. (1 Chron. xix. 7-14.)

MEDIA, an extensive country of Asia, south of the Caspian Sea, and north of Persia, supposed to have been peopled by the descendants of Madai, the third son of Japheth. The Medes were subjugated by Tiglath-pileser the king of Assyria, but they afterwards revolted from Sennacherib. Tiglath-pileser placed some of the captive Israelites in "Halah and Habor, by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes." Nebuchadnezzar went against Media and Persia after he had defeated Pharaoh-Necho king of Egypt and conquered Judah. Babylonia was afterwards taken from Belshazzar, the grandson of Nebuchadnezzar, by Darius the Mede, the uncle of Cyrus. Soon after Media was attached to the Persian Empire.

MEDITERRANEAN SEA, this vast body of water is often mentioned in the Scriptures it is called the "great sea," (Num. xxxiv. 6,7. "the sea of the Philistines"; (Ex. xxiii. 31. "the uttermost sea" (Deut. xi. 24.) Many rivers flow into this sea from Canaan and the surrounding countries, the chief of which is the Nile which traverses Egypt.

MEGIDDO, a fortified city of Manasseh, near to which the army of Jabin was routed by Deborah and Barak; to which Ahaziah fled when pursued by the orders of Jehu, and where he died; and where Josiah was defeated and mortally wounded when he went against Pharaoh-Necho. (Jud. i. 27; v. 19. 2 Kings ix. 27; 2 Chron. xxxv. 22,23.)

MERIBAH, an encampment of the Israelites at Rephidim where the people thirsted and murmured against Moses and Aaron, and where God commanded Moses to procure the people water by striking the rock. At this place the Amalekites fought against Israel and were discomfited. (Ex. xvii. 1-13.)

MEROM, a lake not far from the head of the river Jordan; near it Joshua met the confederated kings of Canaan in battle and completed the conquest of the Promised land. (Josh. xi. 5-8.)

MEROZ, a place near the waters of Merom the inhabitants of which were cursed because they refused to assist their brethren when they fought against Sisera. (Jud. v. 23.)

MESOPOTAMIA, a large province of Asia, situated between the Euphrates and the Tigris. In a part of Mesopotamia called the Land of Shinar, were the first dwellings of men after the Deluge, where they began to build the Tower of Babel. In the same plain after many years, the great city Babylon was built. In another part, called Padan-aram, were born, Heber, the father of the Hebrews, Terah, Abraham, Nahor, Lot, Sarah, Rebekah, Laban, Rachel, Leah, and the sons of Jacob. To this part Jacob came when he fled from Esau, and here he kept the flock of Laban his uncle for twenty years. Balaam the wicked prophet resided in Mesopotamia and it was the kingdom of Chusan-rishathaim from whose oppression Othniel delivered the Israelites. Mesopotamia became a part of the Assyrian Empire, and afterwards, successively of the Babylonian, Persian, and Macedonian Empires. It is now included in Persia.

MICHMASH, a city of Benjamin about ten miles from Jerusalem near which were the rocks Bozez and Sineh. Jonathan and his armour-bearer ascended one of these rocks and attacked a garrison of the Philistines (1 Sam. xiv. 4-14.) Sennacherib laid up his carriages at Michmash when he invaded Judah. (Isa. x. 28.)

MIDIAN, a country of Arabia Petrea the people of which were descendants of Midian the fourth son of Abraham and Keturah. The merchants who bought Joseph of his brethren are called Midianites and also Ishmaelites ; the party was probably composed of descendants of both Midian and Ishmael, who were carrying spices to Egypt. (Gen. xxxvii. 25.) When Moses slew the Egyptian he fled into the land of Midian where he fed the flocks of Jethro forty years ; (Ex. ii. 15.) at the end of which time God appeared to him and appointed him to deliver the Israelites from their bondage in Egypt. When the Israelites were journeying to Canaan through the plains of Moab, they were seduced into idolatry by the Midianitish women, on which occasion Zimri, a chief of the tribe of Simeon, and Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, were slain by Phinehas. (Num. xxv. 6-9.) Soon after five kings of Midian and Balaam the prophet were slain, and many of the cities of Midian were destroyed. Many years after, when Gideon was raised up to deliver Israel from the Midianites, two princes of Midian Oreb and Zeeb were slain by the Ephraimites and two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunah were slain by Gideon. (Jud. vii. 25-28; viii. 12-21.)

MIGDOL, a town of Egypt towards the Red Sea between which and the sea the Israelites encamped before passing over; the Jews whom Nebuchadnezzar left in Judah came to this city with Johanan. (Ex. xiv. 25; Jer. xliv. 1.)

MINNITH, a city east of the Jordan near Heshbon, it was taken from the Ammonites by Jephthah. The prophet Ezekiel states that Judah took wheat of Minnith to the markets of Tyre. (Jud. xi. 33; Eze. xxvii. 17.)

MIZPAH, a city in Benjamin at which Saul was anointed king of Israel. (1 Sam. x. 1-17.) Mizpeh, in Gilead was so called by Laban, it is mentioned as the residence of Jephthah ; at this place Gedaliah was made governor of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, and slain by Johanan (Gen. xxxi. 49 ; Jud. xi. 11 ; Jer. xl. 6.) Mizpeh in Moab was one of the places to which David fled from Saul, his parents joined him there ; but the prophet Gad caused him to return into Judah. (1 Sam. xxii. 3-5.) A district near Mount Hermon was also called Mizpeh.

MOAB, the part of Arabia Petrea on the east of the Dead Sea, it was inhabited, after the gigantic race of the Emim were conquered, by the descendants of Moab, one of the sons of Lot. The Moabites combined with the Midianites against Israel as they journeyed to Canaan, and encamped on the borders of Moab, when Balaam was sent for by Balak the king of Moab to curse them. (Num. xxii. 1-5.) After the death of Joshua, Eglon then king of Moab took possession of Gilgal and kept the Israelites in subjection for eighteen years, he was slain by Ehud, a Benjamite, who pretended to have a secret message to him ; after which the men of Israel put to death 10,000 men of valour of Moab at the fords of Jordan as they endeavoured to escape to their own country. (Jud. iii. 14-30.) In the time of David the king of Moab shewed kindness to him when he was persecuted by Saul. (1 Sam. xxii. 3,4.) The Moabites afterwards joined the Ammonites against David, were defeated by Joab and became tributary to the kings of Israel. (2 Sam. xii. 26-31.) After Ahab's death the kings of Moab refused to pay their tribute, and Jehoram and Jehoshaphat went against them and subdued them. (2 Kings iii. 5.) The Moabites were taken captive by Nebuchadnezzar to Babylon, and some of them probably returned when the decree of Cyrus gave liberty to the Jews. (Jer. xii. 14, 15 ; xlviii. 46, 47.)

MORIAH, the name of a mountain on the north-east of Jerusalem, it was at first without the city, but David purchased it from Araunah the Jebusite, and erected on it an altar to God ; it was afterwards chosen as the situation for the Temple which Solomon built, when it was included within the walls of the city. (2 Sam. xxiv. 15-23 ; 2 Chron iii. 1.) It is also said to be the place to which Abraham was directed to go to sacrifice his son Isaac. (Gen. xxii. 1,2.)

NACHON, the name of a threshing-floor in, or adjacent to Jerusalem, and near the house of Obed-edom. At this place Uzzah was struck dead for touching the ark, it was afterwards called Perez-uzzah. (2 Sam. vi. 6.)

NAIOTH, a place near Ramah to which David retired when he began to be persecuted by Saul, it was a residence of Samuel, and a school of the prophets ; to this place Saul sent messengers twice to take David, and the Spirit of God came on them and they prophesied; he then went himself to take him, but the Spirit of God came on him also and he prophesied. (1 Sam. xix. 18-24.)

NAPHTALI, this portion of Canaan was inhabited by the descendants of the sixth son of Jacob, whose mother was Bilhah. It was bounded on the north by Lebanon, west by Asher, and east by the Jordan and the Sea of Cinnereth. It was one of the most fertile and beautiful of the provinces of Palestine; it abounded in timber and fruits; its chief towns were Abel-beth-maacha, Harosheth of the Gentiles, Hamath, Cinnereth, and Kedesh. Benhadad ravaged Naphtali when he went against Baasha, at the instigation of Asa. (1 Kings xv. 20.) This tribe was carried away captive by Tiglath-pileser. (2 Kings xv. 29.)

NEBO, a mountain of the Abarim range in the land of Moab, near to Jordan and opposite Jericho. From the summit of this mountain, called Pisgah, Moses viewed the promised land before he died. (Deut. xxxiv. 1.)

NEBO, a city of Reuben near Moab which that people conquered and took, it is spoken of by Jeremiah xlviii. 1.

NILE, the principal river of Egypt which overflows its banks at certain seasons, and thus waters and enriches the surrounding country. The chief cities, towns, and villages of Egypt are built along the banks of this river. In Exodus it is called, "the River." in Isaiah and Jeremiah it is spoken of as the "Sihor." On the brink of this river Moses was placed in an Ark of bulrushes when he could be no longer hidden by his mother. (Ex. ii. 3.)

NINEVEH, the metropolis of Assyria; it was founded by Asshur, (Gen. x. 11.) and situated on the river Tigris. It became a vast city, and in the time of Jonah it was three days journey through it, its inhabitants having been computed at 600,000. This city was threatened with destruction for its wickedness, but the people were saved by their repentance on Jonah's preaching to them (Jonah i. 2 ; iii.) Nahum and Zephaniah prophesied its utter ruin, and their predictions have been fulfilled, for no remains of Nineveh are now to be seen, nor is its exact site known.

NO, (THEBES) the metropolis of Lower or northern Egypt; it was built on both sides of the Nile, and it was of vast extent. The prophets Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Nahum denounced its wickedness and idolatry. It was taken and destroyed by the Persians.

NOB, a Levitical city of Benjamin, at which eighty-five priests and their families were slain by Doeg the Edomite at Saul's command, because Ahimelech had shewn kindness to David. (1 Sam. xxii. 9-20.) Sennacherib halted at Nob when he was marching against Jerusalem. (Isa x. 32)

NOD, the land into which Cain went when he was driven from men after the murder of his brother, it is said to have been "east of Eden." (Gen. iv. 16.)

NOPH, - (MEMPHIS) the ancient capital of Upper, or southern Egypt, it was a city of great extent and magnificence; it was denounced by Jeremiah and Ezekiel for its wickedness. It was plundered, and destroyed successively by the Persians, Greeks, Arabs, and Romans, and it is now, as Jeremiah predicted, "waste and desolate, without an inhabitant."

OLIVES, MOUNT OF, a celebrated mountain near Jerusalem which is separated from that city by the valley of Jehoshaphat. Here when David fled from Jerusalem with his friends weeping, at the time of Absalom's conspiracy, Shimei cursed him; and here Solomon erected altars to the gods of the Moabites and Ammonites. (2 Sam. xv. 30; xvi. 5-7.)

ON, a city of Egypt near to the land of Goshen, noted for its idolatry. HELIOPOLIS, one of its names, means the city of the Sun, and BETHSHEMESH, another name of the city, means the house, or temple of the sun. It was the daughter of the priest of On whom Pharaoh gave in marriage to Joseph. Jeremiah predicted that Nebuchadnezzar should break the images of Bethshemesh, which prophecy was fulfilled. (Gen. xli. 45; Jer. xliii. 13.)

OPHIR, a country to which Solomon and Hiram king of Tyre traded by ships for gold, almug-trees and precious stones; thought by some to be in India, by others in Arabia, and by others in Africa. (1 Kings ix. 27, 28; x. 11.)

OPHRAH, a city in eastern Manasseh, also called Ephrah, and said to be the birth-place of Gideon. Joash, the father of Gideon, erected an altar at Ophrah which Gideon was commanded to destroy. Gideon after wards made an idol at Ophrah which caused idolatry. At Ophrah Abimelech slew the lawful sons of Gideon except Jotham. (Jud. vi. 11 ; viii. 27 ; ix. 5.)

PADAN-ARAM, a district of Mesopotamia in which some of Abraham's kindred were settled. Eliezer was sent there to fetch a wife for Isaac ; and Jacob sojourned there with Laban his uncle for twenty years. (Gen. xxviii. 2.)

PALESTINE, (See Canaan.)

PARAN, the wilderness to which Hagar and Ishmael went after they left Beersheba, and where they resided, it is in Arabia Petrea ; the wilderness of Zin, and that of Edom, were adjacent to it ; Esau married a daughter of Ishmael in Paran. Into this wilderness called, "the great and terrible wilderness," the children of Israel went when they left Mount Sinai. (Deut. i. 19.) From the northern part of the wilderness of Paran, the twelve spies were sent forth to examine Canaan and God punished them for their unfaithful report of the land. (Num. xiii. 26.) In the wilderness of Paran the Sabbath-breaker was stoned ;—(Num. xv. 32-36.) Korah, Dathan and Abiram rebelled, and were punished; (Num. xvi-xvii.) and Aaron's rod budded.

PENIEL, PENUEL, a place east of the Jordan near the ford of the brook Jabbok, where Jacob rested on his return from Padan-aram and received the name of Israel. The tribe of Gad built a town near the place and called it Penuel. Gideon threw down a tower in this city and put many of the inhabitants to death on his return from pursuing the Midianites, for refusing his soldiers provision. Jeroboam rebuilt the city, which was probably on the south of the brook. (Gen. xxx. 30; Jud. viii. 17.)

mountains. It is mentioned as one of the mountains to which Balak took Balaam to curse the Israelites when God caused him to bless them and foretell their future prosperity. Near this place the Israelites fell into idolatry. (Num. xxiii. 28.)

PEREZ-UZZA, the name given to the place at which Uzzah was struck dead for touching the Ark, it was also called the threshing floor of Nachon. (2 Sam vi. 6.)

PERIZZITES, one of the more ancient tribes that inhabited Canaan, who were to be destroyed by the Israelites; those who were not destroyed were made tributary in the time of Solomon. (1 Kings ix. 20,21.)

PERSIA, a vast and celebrated country of Asia of which Elam formed a small part. The Persian kings took Babylon while the Jews were there in captivity. Cyrus, one of the Persian kings decreed freedom to the Jews, as had been previously foretold by Isaiah (Isa. xliv. 28.) Ahasuerus, another king of Persia was married to a Jewish maiden named Esther. Daniel had a vision of the greatness of the Persian empire, its dominion, and its overthrow, and the establishment of a much greater empire after it. (Dan viii.) Nehemiah was the cupbearer to one of the kings of Persia. (Neh. i. 11.)

PETHOR, a city of Mesopotamia on the Euphrates, and the residence of Balaam the wicked prophet for whom Balak sent. (Num. xxii. 5.)

PETRA, the ancient capital of Arabia Petrea. King Amaziah slew of Edom in the valley of Salt 10,000 men and took Selah. (2 King xiv. 7.)

PHARPHAR, one of the chief rivers of Damascus. (See Abana.)

PHILISTIA, the country of the Philistines, a people who chiefly inhabited the west, and south-west coast of Palestine, they were never entirely dispossessed of their territory. They had five principalities namely Gaza, Gath, Ashdod, Ekron, and Askelon, and several other cities at which kings resided, or royal cities. Their wars with the Israelites were very frequent. Abimelech, the king of Gerar whom Abraham deceived was a Philistine king. After the Israelites began to be settled in Canaan the Philistines became very powerful enemies to them. On one occasion Shamgar routed the Philistines and delivered Israel; on another Samson began to deliver Israel, and slew a vast number of the Philistines. David subdued them, and made them pay tribute. Uzziah destroyed several of their cities, but their power again increased in the days of Ahab. Hezekiah subjugated them, and about the same time Sennacherib destroyed many of their cities. They however, recovered their strength in the days of the last kings of Judah.

PI-HA-HIROTH, an encampment of the Israelites on the Red Sea, to which they were pursued by Pharaoh's Host. (Ex. xiv. 9.)

PIRATHON, a city of Ephraim of which Abdon, one of the judges of Israel was a native, he was buried there. (Jud. xii. 15.)

PISGAH. one of the mountains of the Abarim range; it is celebrated as the place where Moses died after he had surveyed the promised land. Moses was buried in a valley in the land of Moab. (Num. xxvii. 12,13.)

PISON, one of the four great rivers which flowed through the garden of Eden, and which compassed the land of Havilah. (Gen. ii. 11,12.)

PITHOM. one of the store-cities built in Egypt by the Israelites during their bondage. Its situation is now unknown. (Ex. i. 11.)

RAAMAH, a district in Arabia, supposed to be near the Persian Gulf, whose merchants traded to Tyre with spices, gold, and precious stones. (Gen. x. 7; Ezek. xxvii. 22.)

RAAMSES, RAMESES, a treasure-city in Egypt which the Israelites built during their bondage, it is supposed to have been in the land of Goshen, and the place from which they departed when they left Egypt after the death of the first-born. (Ex. i. 11; xii. 37.)

RABBAH, or RABBATH-AMMON, a city of the Ammonites in Gilead, it was near the source of the river Jabbok, and the residence of Og, king of Bashan. It was at the siege of this city under the command of Joab that Uriah the Hittite was slain. After the city was taken it remained subject to the kings of Judah. (Deut. iii. 11; 2 Sam. xii. 26.)

RABBATH-MOAB, the capital of the Moabites, called also Ar, and Ariel. (Num. xxi. 28; Jer. xlviii. 31-36.)

some of the spoils taken from the Amalekites who plundered Ziklag. (1 Sam. xxx. 29.)

RAMAH, a city of Benjamin, six miles north of Jerusalem, near which Rachel was buried after the birth of Benjamin. (Gen. xxix. 16.) At another Ramah, the residence of Samuel, the Israelites demanded a king to govern them, and Samuel was commanded to comply with their desire, and informed that Saul was appointed to be their king, and at this place Saul was anointed. There were several places of this name in Canaan.

RAMOTH-GILEAD, a celebrated city in the mountains of Gilead, belonging to the tribe of Gad, built near Galeed, and sometimes called Ramoth-Mizpeh. During the reigns of the kings of Israel it was the scene of several wars. At Ramoth-gilead Jehu was anointed king of Israel; (2 Kings ix. 1-10.) and Ahab was mortally wounded by an arrow shot from a bow at a venture. (2 Chron xviii. 3-5.) Ahaziah, king of Judah was also mortally wounded at Ramoth-Gilead. (2 Kings ix. 27.) It was one of the cities of refuge.

REHOB, a Levitical city and a district in Asher on the road to Hamath ; the district occupied one of the valleys of Libanus. (Num. xiii. 21.)

REPHEIM, a race of giants who inhabited the eastern border of the land of Canaan, it is supposed that Og was one of them. (Gen. xiv. 5.)

RED SEA, THE, called also the Arabian Gulf, separated Arabia on the East, from Egypt and Abyssinia on the west. It is celebrated in sacred history for the destruction of Pharaoh and his host, and the miraculous passage through it on dry land of the Israelites ; it was navigated by the fleets of Solomon and Hiram from the ports Elath and Ezion-geber. (Ex. xiv. 21-31 ; 1 Kings ix. 26-28.)

REPHIDIM, one of the noted encampments of the Israelites in the wilderness where they wanted water and complained bitterly to Moses for bringing them out of Egypt. (Ex. xvii. 1-7.) See Massah and Meribah.

RESEN, an ancient city of Assyria said to have been situated between Nineveh and Calah (Gen. x. 12.)

REUBEN, the portion of the promised land inhabited by the descendants of Jacob's eldest son. It was east of the Jordan, between the brooks Arnon on the south, and Jazer on the north, having the mountains of Gilead on the east, and the Jordan on the west. The chief cities in Reuben were Heshbon, Aroer, Bezer, Dibon, and Beth-jesimoth. This tribe was one of the first that was carried into captivity.

RIBLAH, a town of Syria in Hamath where Pharaoh-Necho halted on his return from Carchemish ; he here deposed Jehoahaz king of Judah, and placed his brother Jehoiakim on the throne. Nebuchadnezzar remained at Riblah while his general Nebuzar-adan besieged Jerusalem, and after the city was reduced Zedekiah was brought to Riblah with the other prisoners, and his eyes were put out. (2 Kings xxiii. 31-34; Jer. lii. 9-11.)

RIMMON, a mountain to which the Benjamites retreated when they were smitten at Gibeah by the other tribes for their wickedness. (Jud. xx. 45.) There were several cities of this name in Palestine. (1 Chron. vi. 77; Josh. xix. 7.)

ROGELLIM, a place in Gilead east of Jordan, at which old Barzillai resided. (2 Sam. xix. 31.)

ROME, a former metropolis of the world, spoken of by the name of Chittim in the Old Testament; it is also spoken of prophetically by Daniel as a vast empire.

SALEM, the city of which Melechizedek was king ; it is supposed to have been the earliest name for Jerusalem, and it signifies health and peace. (Gen. xiv. 18.)

SAMARIA, the capital of the kingdom of Israel about thirty-four miles north of Jerusalem it was built by Omri, who bought the hill of Samaria of Shemer, and called the city after his name. (1 Kings xvi. 24.) Ahab erected at Samaria, "a palace of ivory." Benhadad king of Syria, built some streets in Samaria which were occupied by his own subjects. To Samaria Ahab's body was brought after the battle of Ramoth-gilead and to Samaria Naaman the Syrian leper came to be cured by Elisha of his leprosy. (1 Kings xxii. 37 ; 2 Kings v.) Here, also after Ahab's death his seventy sons were slain, and Jehu his successor proclaimed a great feast in subtlety and slew the assembled worshippers. (2 Kings x. 20-25.) The city was besieged by Shalmaneser for three years, who took it and rased it to the ground.

The Israelites were then taken captive into Assyria and the foreigners whom Shalmaneser brought into the country took the name of Samaritans, and made Shechem their capital. The city Samaria was rebuilt after the return of the Jews from captivity.

SEIR, the mountainous tract to the south of Canaan to which Esau went when he had met Jacob and become reconciled to him. The whole of the country was inhabited by the posterity of Esau, and called the land of Edom.

SELAH, a celebrated city of Edom, and the metropolis of the Edomites in Arabia Petrea. David defeated the Edomites in the Valley of Salt, south of the Dead Sea ; and Amaziah slew 10,000 men there, and took Selah. (2 Kings xiv. 7.)

SENEH, a rock at the passages by which Jonathan and his armour-bearer went to attack the garrison of the Philistines ; there was another rock near called Bozez. (1 Sam. xiv. 4.)

SEPHARVAIM, a district in Assyria, people from whence were sent by Shalmaneser to inhabit Samaria after he had taken the Israelites captive.

SHAALABIN, a town in Dan near to Ajalon and Heres, in which the Amorites would dwell, but consented to become tributaries. (Josh. xix. 42 ; Jud. i. 35.)

SHAMOR, a place in the mountains of Ephraim where Tola, one of the judges of Israel resided, died, and was buried. (Jud. x. 2.)

SHARON, a name given to three different districts in Canaan ; one of them was a rich valley in the land of the Gadites where David's flocks fed under the care of Shitrai. (1 Chron. xxvii. 29.) another was situated along the coast between Cæsaræa and Joppa.

and the third was a plain, to the north of Mount Carmel; (1 Chron. v. 16.) all these districts were exceedingly fertile.

SHAVEH, a valley near Jerusalem where Melchizedek with the king of Gomorrah came to meet Abraham after the defeat of the five kings. (Gen. xiv. 17.)

SHEBA, the country from which the queen of Sheba, called also the queen of the south, came to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and from it she brought to Solomon "spices, gold and precious stones;" this country is supposed to be Abyssinia. (1 Kings x. 1.)

SHECHEM, SICHEM, a city of Ephraim, forty miles from Jerusalem, situated in a valley between Mounts Ebal and Gerizim, which was made the capital of the Samaritans after the destruction of Samaria by Shalmaneser. At this place the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, slew the Shechemites deceitfully, for their wickedness towards their sister Dinah (Gen. xxxiv. 25-29.) Near Shechem was Jacob's well and the parcel of ground which Jacob gave to his son Joseph; and it was in Shechem where Joseph's bones were buried (Josh. xxiv. 32.) Joshua addressed his last exhortations to the elders and people at Shechem, and died there aged 110 years. Abimelech, a natural son of Gideon, induced the Shechemites to make him king; they afterwards conspired against him and slew him (Jud. ix.) At this place also the revolt of the Ten Tribes from Rehoboam took place and Jeroboam was chosen king of Israel. (Kings xii. 1-18.)

SHEN, the place between which and Mizpe Samuel erected the stone called Ebenezer, to commemorate the conquest of the Philistines and the restoration of the cities to the Israelites. (1 Sam. vii. 12.)

posed to be not far from Heshbon. It was famous for its vines which were cut down by the Moabites. (Josh. xiii. 19; Isa. xvi. 8,9.)

SHILOH, a place in the southern part of Ephraim about five miles north of Jerusalem, where the Tabernacle was set up and where the ark of God remained nearly three hundred and fifty years, and until it was taken by the Philistines. (1 Sam. iv. 4, 11.) Shiloh was situated on a mountain to the north of Beth-el. At Shiloh the promised land was divided among the tribes by lot, and the cities of the Levites, and those of refuge were appointed. At Shiloh Samuel was dedicated to God, and ministered to Eli—the sons of Eli made themselves vile—Eli was reprovved for their excesses—their destruction, and that of his posterity was declared—and he himself fell backward and died when he heard that the Philistines had captured the ark. (1 Sam. i-iv.) At Shiloh also the prophet Ahijah lived, who announced God's purpose to Jeroboam to make him king over ten tribes after Solomon's death and who afterwards foretold the death of Abijah and Jeroboam's posterity. (1 Kings xi. 29-39 ; xiv. 1-20.)

SHINAR, the region about Babylon in which the people began to build the tower of Babel after the flood, when God confounded their language and scattered them. (Gen. xi. 2.)

SHITTIM, the place in the plains of Moab where the Israelites were ensnared into idolatry by the Midianites, and the idolaters were slain. (Num. xxv.)

SHUNEM, a city in the border of Issachar which Elisha frequently visited, and at which he was hospitably entertained by a Shunammite, to whom he promised a son, which promise God fulfilled ; some years after, when the child was grown he died, and Elisha came to Shunem from Mount Carmel at the desire of the Shunammite and restored him to life. (2 Kings iv. 8-37.)

SHUR, a sandy tract of wilderness, west of Arabia Petrea and between Canaan and Egypt. Hagar fled to this wilderness the first time she left her mistress. (Gen. xvi. 7.)

SHUSHAN, SUSAN, the capital of that part of Persia anciently called Elam, and the winter residence of the kings of Persia. Daniel, the prophet had one of his visions in the palace at Shushan, and it was the scene of Vashti's deposition, Esther's promotion, Haman's downfall, and Mordecai's exaltation. (Dan viii. ; Esther i-ii. ; vii-viii.)

SIDDIM, the plain where the guilty cities of Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, which were swallowed up with their inhabitants. The Dead Sea now occupies the plain. (Gen. xiv. 3.)

SIDON, one of the most ancient and celebrated cities of Phœnicia ; it existed many years before Tyre, from which it was distant about twenty miles ; it was celebrated for its artificers and its merchants. It is supposed to have been founded by the eldest son of Canaan. (Gen. x. 15 ; 2 Chron. ii. 13,14.)

SIMEON, the division of Canaan occupied by the descendants of the second son of Jacob and Leah ; it had Judah to the east, the Mediterranean Sea to the west, Dan to the north, and the Wilderness of Paran to the south ; its chief cities were Askelon, Beersheba, Gaza, Gerar, and Ziklag.

SIN, a wilderness which the Israelites traversed between Elim and Mount Sinai. In this wilderness God first sent the Israelites manna, and commanded the observance of the Sabbath. (Ex. xvi. 1.)

SINAI, a celebrated mountain and desert in Arabia, situated in a peninsula formed by the two arms of the Red Sea. On this mountain

God delivered the Ten Commandments to Moses amid thunders and lightnings ; (Ex. xix. 16-25.) here also the golden calf was made by Aaron, and worshipped by the people, and 3,000 of the Israelites were slain by the Levites for this sin. (Ex. xxxii.) On Sinai the plan of the Tabernacle was shewn to Moses, and near Sinai, it was made, reared, and anointed. (Ex. xl.) Aaron and his sons were here appointed priests—Nadab, and Abihu were slain—the blasphemer was stoned—the people were numbered—and the Levites were consecrated to serve the Tabernacle. (Lev. viii.)

SION, the highest of the hills on which Jerusalem was built, it was on the southern side, and contained the citadel, the king's palace, and the upper city.

SODOM, the chief of the cities of the plain now occupied by the Dead Sea ; before it was destroyed it was conquered by Chedorlaomer when Lot was taken captive.

SOREK, a valley in which was the residence of Delilah, the woman who betrayed Samson to his enemies. It was noted for its delicious grapes; a rivulet of this name traversed the tribe of Dan. (Jud. xvi. 4.)

SUCCOTH, the first encampment of the Israelites after they left Egypt; also a city of Gilead at which Jacob dwelt before he went to Shechem, it was afterwards in Gad; its inhabitants would not find Gideon and his men food when they were faint with pursuing the kings of the Midianites, and he threatened to tear their flesh on his return with the thorns and briers of the wilderness, which threat he executed. (Jud. viii. 13-16.)

SYRIA, a large country of Asia between the Euphrates and Arabia on the east and south with Mount Taurus on the north, and the Mediterranean Sea and Canaan on the west. Damascus and Hamath were two of its largest cities. There were several small kingdoms in Syria which David conquered. After Solomon's death the kings of Syria became more powerful than they had previously been. The most celebrated kings of Syria whose histories are connected with that of the Jewish nation were Hadadezer, Benhadad, Hazael, and Rezin. Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria slew Rezin, and Syria was then annexed to the Assyrian Empire; it afterwards, with Assyria, became subject to Babylon.

TAANACH, a city of the Levites in Western Manasseh; in Solomon's time it was under the government of one of his twelve officers for providing victuals for the king and his household. A tenth of the produce of the fields and vineyards was payable to the king. (1 Sam. viii. 15; 1 Kings iv. 7-12.)

TABERAH, an encampment of the Israelites in the Wilderness where the people murmured against God, and the fire of the Lord consumed them. Here also the seventy elders were appointed, and Eldad and Medad prophesied in the camp. (Num. xi. 3.)

TABOR, a mountain in the north of Issachar near which Barak assembled his army when he defeated Sisera. There was also a city of this name. (Jud. iv. 6.)

TADMOR, a city of Syria, called "Tadmor in the wilderness;" it was built by Solomon, and was afterwards called Palmyra. (1 Kings ix. 18.)

TAHPANHES, a city of Egypt to which Johanan removed the people from Jerusalem after Gedaliah was slain, and with them Jeremiah and Baruch. (Jer. xliii. 4-8.) Jeremiah is supposed to have died at Tahpanhes.

TARSHISH, THARSHISH, a country, the situation of which is unknown, to which Solomon traded for "gold, and silver, ivory, apes and peacocks." The ships of Tharshish were large merchant-ships, so framed as to be enabled to take long voyages.

TEKOAH, a city in Judah, about twelve miles south-east of Jerusalem from which Joab fetched "a wise woman," who invented a tale of sorrow and told it to David, and thus obtained pardon of the king for Absalom. (2 Sam. xiv.) The city was repaired and strengthened by Rehoboam after the revolt of the tribes. Amos the prophet was a herdsman of Tekoah. There was a wilderness of this name not far from the city where Jehoshaphat's army went against the Moabites and Ammonites, and where these enemies of Judah destroyed each other according to the purpose of God declared to Jehoshaphat. (2 Chron. xx.)

TEL-ABIB, a place on the river Chebar near the Euphrates to which Ezekiel went when commissioned to go and prophesy to the captives there. (Ezek. iii. 15.)

TEMAN, a district of Arabia Petrea called after Teman, a grandson of Esau, and "the father of the Edomites of Mount Seir."

THEBEZ, a town in Ephraim near Shechem at the siege of which Abimelech was killed by a millstone thrown from a tower by a woman. (Jud. ix. 54.)

THISBE, a town in Naphtali said to be the birth-place of Tobit. Elijah the Tishbite is supposed to have been born at this place, though he afterwards dwelt in Gilead, where he is said to have been born at a place called Tishbe.

TIMNATH, a town in Dan mentioned in the history of Samson as the place on the road to which he slew the young lion that roared against him ; it was at that time occupied by the Philistines. Near this place he also destroyed the standing corn of the Philistines by means of three hundred foxes with firebrands tied to their tails, to revenge himself on his father-in-law who had given the wife of Samson "to his companion whom he had used as his friend." (Jud. xiv.)

of Ephraim, the inheritance, residence, and burial place of Joshua. (Josh. xix. 49,50.)

TIPHSAH, a city of Ephraim about six miles from Samaria, the people of which refused admittance to Menahem ; but he took the place by force and massacred the inhabitants. (2 Kings xv. 16.)

TIRZAH, a city of Ephraim, and the royal residence of the kings of Israel from Jeroboam to Omri who built Samaria. Its situation is spoken of as pleasant. At Tirzah the prophet Jehu predicted the utter destruction of the posterity of Baasha ; and Zimri slew Elah, the son and successor of Baasha ; there also Zimri perished in the flames of the palace after reigning seven days. (1 Kings xvi. 18 ; xv. 21 ; xvi. 8-17.)

TOB, a district east of Jordan to which Jephthah fled when he was driven from his father's house, and from whence he was fetched by the elders of Israel to deliver the Israelites from their oppressors the Midianites. (Jud. xi. 3.)

TOPHET, a name of the valley of Hinnom where human sacrifices were offered to the idol Moloch, and a drum sounded to drown the cries of the victims.

TYRE, a celebrated city of Phœnicia in the division of Asher, which was probably founded by the Sidonians. In the time of Joshua it was fortified and was called the strong city of Tyre. Solomon received valuable services from Hiram king of Tyre in the building of the Temple. Tyre is frequently mentioned in the Old Testament, its inhabitants are described as filled with pride and luxury; and judgments are denounced on the city, and its destruction foretold by the prophets, for the idolatry and wickedness of its people. Tyre is now a miserable place, its few inhabitants support themselves by fishing, and the ruins of the city have become, "a place to spread nets upon."

ULAI, a river in Persia which flowed near the royal city and palace of Shushan, its water is said to have been so clear that the Persian kings would drink of no other. (Dan viii. 2-16.)

UR, an ancient city of Chaldea, it was the residence of Terah and Abraham; and from it Abraham removed when commanded to leave his country to go into Canaan. It is now called Orfah. (Gen. xi. 28.)

UZ, a country in which Job resided, supposed to be the same as Edom. (Job i. 1; Lam. iv. 21.)

ZAANANIM, a town in Naphtali near which was a plain of the same name where Heber the Kenite pitched his tent. (Jud. iv. 11.)

ZALMON, a hill near Shechem where Abimelech and his followers cut down branches of trees to set the tower of Shechem on fire. (Jud. ix. 48.)

ZALMONAH, an encampment of the Israelites in the wilderness, where the people murmured and were punished by fiery serpents. God instructed Moses to set up a brazen serpent that they who looked on it might live. (Num. xxxiii. 41.)

ZAMZUMMIM, a race of giants who inhabited the country which was afterwards occupied by the Ammonites. (Deut. ii. 20.)

ZAREPHATH, a city of Phœnicia which was situated between Tyre and Sidon; at this city Elijah resided with a poor widow whose barrel of meal did not waste, nor cruse of oil fail during a famine, according to the word of the Lord which Elijah spoke. Afterwards Elijah raised the widow's son to life. (1 Kings xvii.)

ZARTHAN, a town in Ephraim; the brazen vessels for the temple service were cast in the clayey ground between Zarthan and Succoth. (1 Kings vii. 46.)

ZEBOIM, one of the five cities of the plain of Sodom which were destroyed for the sins of the inhabitants. (Deut. xxix. 23.)

ZEBULUN, the division of Canaan allotted to this tribe, the descendants of the tenth son of Jacob, was south of Asher and Naphtali; north of Issachar and had the sea of Cinnereth to the East, and the Mediterranean to the west. The chief places in the tribe were Zebulun, Jokneam, Shimron and Japhia. It was a very populous tribe and had many other towns and villages; it distinguished itself in the war of Barak against Sisera. Elon, one of the judges was of the tribe of Zebulun.

ZELAH, a town in Benjamin where the bones of Saul and Jonathan were deposited in their family sepulchre. (Josh. xviii. 28; 2 Sam. xxi. 14.)

ZEPHATH, a city of the Canaanites who were expelled by the Simeonites aided by Judah; its name was then changed to Hormah. (Jud. i. 17; Num. xxi. 3.)

ZEPHATHAH, a valley near Mareshah in Judah where Asa king of Judah defeated Zerah, the Cushite with his Ethiopian army (2 Chron. xiv. 10.)

ZEREDA, a place in Ephraim where Jeroboam was born. (1 Kings xi. 26.)

ZIKLAG, a city of the Philistines in Simeon which Achish king of Gath gave to David while he took refuge from Saul among the Philistines. From this place David invaded several cities of the Philistines. The city was taken by the Amalekites, and plundered but David retook the spoil, and slew all the Amalekites save four hundred young men. (Sam. xxx.) David was at Ziklag when he was informed of the death of Saul and Jonathan at Gilboa.

ZIN, the wilderness to the south of Judah through which it is supposed the waters of the Jordan flowed to the Red Sea, before the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah ; in this wilderness the Israelites wandered thirty-seven years—Miriam died—Moses offended God by striking the rock, and was told that he would not be permitted to enter into Canaan.

ZIPH, a town of Judah near Maon and Carmel. David had escaped into the wilderness of Ziph when Saul sought him at Keilah. Jonathan visited David at Ziph, and made a covenant with him. Some time after Saul was in the power of David at Ziph, but David took only his spear and cup from him. (Josh. xv. 55 ; 1 Sam. xxiii. 19.)

ZOAN, an ancient city of Egypt, and probably the capital, and the residence of the Pharaoh who reigned when the miracles of Moses were wrought, and the judgments of God, executed on the Egyptians. (Num. xiii. 22; Psalm. lxxviii. 12)

ZOAR, one of the cities of the plain of Sodom. It was saved to afford Lot a place of refuge. It is supposed to have been situated on the southern extremity of the Dead Sea, and that its ancient name was Bela. (Gen. xiv. 2.)

ZOHELETH, a stone at the fountain Rogo near Jerusalem, where Adonijah got himself proclaimed king, and made a great entertainment for his friends. (1 Kings i. 9.)

ZORAH, a city of Judah which Rehoboam fortified after the revolt of the ten tribes. (Chron. xi. 10.) There was another city of the name in Dan where Manoah lived, and which was the birth-place and burial-place of Samson. (Jud. xiii. 2; xvi. 31.)

ZUZIM, an ancient race of giants who were dispossessed of their territory by the Moabites and Ammonites. (Gen. xiv. 5.)

PART 2.—THE NEW TESTAMENT.

ABILENE, a country on the eastern side of Anti-libanus its chief city was Abila; it is mentioned as the tetrarchy, or district governed by Lysanias when Tiberius Cæsar was Emperor of Rome, and Pontius Pilate governor of Judea. (Luke iii. 1.)

ACELDAMA, a piece of ground on the south of Jerusalem, which was called the Potter's

Field; it was also called the field of blood, because it was purchased with the thirty pieces of silver which Judas covenanted to receive from the chief priests for betraying the Saviour, and which he afterwards refused to retain. This field was therefore purchased to bury strangers in with the money, which as the price of blood, it was not lawful to put into the sacred treasury. (Matt. xxvii. 7-10.)

ACHAIA, a country of Greece whose capital was Corinth; its chief magistrate was Gallio. When the Jews brought St. Paul before him, and accused him of persuading men to worship God contrary to the law, he commanded them to be driven from the judgment seat, because he cared for none of the things which concerned their religion; but he said he would have heard them, if they had to charge the Apostle with any wickedness. (Acts xviii. 12-17.) St. Paul addresses the second epistle to the Corinthians to "all the saints which are in all Achaia." (2 Cor. i. 1.)

ADRAMYTTIUM, a city on the west coast of Mysia, in Asia Minor, opposite to the island of Lesbos. The ship in which St. Paul sailed from Cesarea to Myra, on his first voyage to Italy, belonged to this place. (Acts. xxvii. 2.)

ADRIA, the sea on the east of Italy in which St. Paul was driven up and down on his voyage to Rome. (Acts. xxvii. 27.)

ALEXANDRIA, a magnificent commercial city of Lower Egypt, which was built by Alexander the Great about 330 years B. C. Many Jews settled in Alexandria, and those who disputed with Stephen and put him to death were of this city. Apollos, the companion of St. Paul was a native of Alexandria. It is supposed that St. Mark introduced the gospel, and suffered martyrdom there. It was in a ship of Alexandria that St. Paul sailed from Myra to Rome. (Acts. vi. 9; xviii. 24; xxvii. 6.)

AMPHIPOLIS, a city of Thrace formerly the capital of Macedonia. Paul and Silas pass through this city after their deliverance from the prison at Philippi, on their way to Thessalonica. (Acts xvii. 1.)

ANTIOCH, (SYRIA) a celebrated city on the river Orontes, formerly the capital of Syria. At this place the disciples of the Saviour were first called Christians; and for a whole year the gospel was preached here by St. Paul and St. Barnabas. It was also the native place of St. Luke the Evangelist. (Acts xi. 22-26)

ANTIOCH, (PISIDIA) a city of Asia Minor in the division called Pisidia; it was visited by Paul and Barnabas, and St. Paul preached in the synagogue there a discourse which the Gentiles wished him to preach to them on the next sabbath; but the Jews raised a persecution against the Apostles, and St. Paul having declared that it was necessary the gospel should be first preached to them, turned the Gentiles who rejoiced to hear him. The chief people of the city expelled the apostles, who "shook off the dust of their feet against them." (Acts xiii. 14-51.) There were many other cities called Antioch in Asia Minor, and in Syria.

ANTIPATRIS, a town of Palestine between Jerusalem and Cesarea about forty-two miles north-west of Jerusalem and twenty-six south of Cesarea. St. Paul rested at this town one night when he was sent from Jerusalem to the Roman governor of Cesarea. (Acts xxiii. 31.)

APOLLONIA, a city of Macedonia between Amphipolis and Thessalonica. St. Paul passed through it on his way to the latter place. (Acts xvii. 1.)

APPII FORUM, a town on the west of Italy, about fifty miles from Rome. St. Paul was met here by several devout Christians on his way to Rome. (Acts xxviii. 15.)

ARABIA, a large country to the south and east of the Holy Land, it was visited and the gospel preached in it by St. Paul. (Gal. 17.) see p. 13.

AREOPAGUS, a tribunal for judgment which was held on Mars Hill at Athens. St. Paul was brought before this tribunal, as "a setter forth of strange gods," because he preached Jesus and the resurrection. (Acts xvii. 22-34.)

ARIMATHEA, a city of Judea which was about thirty-six miles west of Jerusalem; was the residence of Joseph a rich man and a counsellor, "a good man and a just;" who begged the body of Jesus from Pilate and buried it in his own new tomb. (Matt. xxvii. 57; Luke xxiii. 50.)

ASIA MINOR, is the most western portion of Asia. Its chief divisions were Mysia, Bithy nia, Paphlagonia, and Pontus; Lydia, Phrygia, Galatia and Cappadocia; Caria, Lycia, Pamphylia, Pisidia, and Cilicia; and the islands of Rhodes, and Cyprus. The gospel was preached in Asia by St. Paul, and by other apostles. The seven principal churches of Asia were on the western coast, and in the division of Lydia; they were at Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea; to them St. John addressed the book of Revelation. (Rev. i.)

ATHENS, one of the most celebrated cities of ancient Greece, it was noted for its men of learning, and its magnificent temples. When St. Paul visited it to declare the gospel, the city was "wholly given up to idolatry." The people of Athens had so great a respect for every thing that was considered divine, that they erected an altar to "The Unknown God;" supposed to be the God of the Jews. The Apostle saw this altar, and said, "Whom ye ignorantly worship declare I unto you?

(Acts xvii. 16-34.)

ATTALIA, a city of Pamphylia on the north coast of the Mediterranean Sea. It was visited by Paul and Barnabas after they left Perga. (Acts xiv. 25.)

AZOTUS, the city called Ashdod in the Old Testament; it was at this city where Philip was found after he had baptized the treasure of queen Candace. (Acts viii. 40.)

BEREA, a city of Macedonia at which St. Paul preached with great success; he describes the Bereans as more noble than those of Thessalonica, because they received the word with readiness, and searched the Scriptures daily (Acts xvii. 10-13.)

BETHABARA, a town where there was probably a ford across the Jordan, at which John was baptizing when he bore witness to Jesus—where Jesus also went to be baptized—and whence the first disciples followed Jesus. (John i. 28.)

BETHANY, a village near the foot of the Mount of Olives, two miles east of Jerusalem on the way to Jericho. In this village Lazarus resided with his two sisters, Martha and Mary, and here he was raised from the dead. At Bethany also Jesus was entertained by Martha and Mary, and was anointed by Mary. The name signifies house of song. (John xi. 1-46 ; xii. 1-3.)

BETHESDA, a pool, or bath on the east of Jerusalem, which had five porches, in which lay a multitude of impotent folk, waiting for the descent of an angel who troubled the water, and the first who afterwards went into it was healed of his infirmity. At this place the Saviour told an impotent man to rise and walk who had been troubled with an infirmity thirty-eight years. (John v.) The name signifies house of mercy.

BETHLEHEM, a celebrated city of Judea about six miles to the south-west of Jerusalem, at which the Saviour was born. The fields where the birth of Christ was announced to the shepherds are near the city. To Bethlehem the shepherds came to adore Christ and the wise men brought their offerings, and worshipped him. Joseph and Mary fled from Bethlehem with the infant Jesus, when Herod sought his life; and at Bethlehem the infants under two years old were slain by Herod's command. (Luke ii. 4,7-46; Matt. ii.) Its name signifies house of bread. see p. 32.

BETHPHAGE, a village on the declivity of the Mount of Olives adjoining that of Bethany. At this village the disciples found the ass on which the Saviour rode into Jerusalem (Luke xix. 29; Matt. xxi. 1.) Its name signifies house of figs.

BETHSAIDA, a city of Galilee on the north-west coast of the sea of Galilee, and one of those on which the Saviour pronounced woes for its impenitence and infidelity, after the mighty works which had been done there. It was the residence of Philip, Peter, and Andrew. (John. i. 44 ; xii. 21 ; Matt. xi. 21.)

BITHYNIA, one of the northern divisions of Asia Minor. St. Paul intended to visit this country with Timothy, "but the Spirit suffered them not." (Acts xvi. 7,8.)

CALVARY, a small mountain near to, but not in the ancient city of Jerusalem, on which the Saviour was crucified, and near to which he was buried. (Luke xxiii. 33-53.)

CANA, a town of Galilee about six miles north east of Nazareth, it was the scene of our Saviour's first miracle,—the changing of water into wine, at a marriage-feast ; it was also at this place that he healed the son of nobleman who lay sick at Capernaum. (John ii. 1-11 ; iv, 44-54.)

CAPERNAUM, one of the principal cities of Galilee, was situated on the north-west shore of the Sea of Galilee; it was nearly 100 miles north by east of Jerusalem. It was here that our Saviour chiefly resided during the period of his ministry, hence it is called by St. Matthew "his own city." At Capernaum Jesus healed Peter's wife's mother—the sick of the palsy—the man with the withered hand—and the centurion's servant;—gave sight to two blind men—raised to life the daughter of Jairus—cast out a dumb demoniac—chose and ordained the twelve apostles, and sent them out to preach; related many parables, and sent out seventy disciples, two and two to different cities. Jesus pronounced woes on the people of Capernaum, who lived when most of his mighty works were done, and yet believed not. (Matt. iv. 13; viii. 14, 15; ix. 2-8; xii. 9-14; viii. 5-13; ix. 27-31; 32-34; x. 2-4; Luke x. 1-24; Matt. xi. 23)

CAPPADOCIA, a province in Asia Minor

between Mount Taurus and the Black Sea. At the day of Pentecost some Cappadocians who were in Jerusalem heard of the wonderful works of God in their own language, and the country is one of those to whose people St. Peter addressed his Epistles. (Acts ii. 9; 1 Peter i. 1.)

CARIA, a province of Asia Minor of which the chief cities were Miletus and Cnidus. Miletus was visited by St. Paul. (Acts xx. 15.)

CEDRON, a brook which runs through the valley between Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives. It is called Kidron, and also Keiron in the Old Testament. Our Saviour crossed over this brook in his way to Gethsemane. (see p. 94.) (John xviii. 1.)

CENCHREA, a seaport and harbour a few miles from Corinth, but belonging to that city. At this place Paul fulfilled a vow. Phœbe, whom the Apostle recommends to the Romans, was a member of the Christian church at Cenchrea. (Acts xviii. 18 Rom. xvi. 1.)

CESAREA, PALESTINA, a large city, and sea port on the Mediterranean sea, about sixty two miles north-west of Jerusalem. It was built by Herod the Great and adorned like the Roman cities with palaces, theatres, and temples. At Cesarea, Cornelius the centurion was converted and baptized—Herod died being smitten, and eaten by worms—Agabus prophesied of Paul's bondage—and Philip the evangelist resided. Here also Tertullian the Roman orator accused Paul before Felix and Paul defended himself and preached the gospel, first before Felix and afterwards in the presence of Festus and Agrippa. (Acts x. 24-48 ; xii. 20-23 ; xxi. 8-12 ; xxiv-xxvi.)

CESAREA PHILLIPI, a city near the source of the Jordan which was first called Laish, then Dan. It was afterwards enlarged by Philip the Tetrarch who named it Cesarea, in honour of the Emperor Tiberias; it was about 120 miles north of Jerusalem. Near this city the conversation took place between Jesus and his disciples, in which Peter acknowledged Jesus to be the Messiah, the Son of God, and Jesus for the first time predicted his own death to his disciples. (Matt. xvi. 13-21.)

CHIOS, an island in the Archipelago of Greece by which St. Paul sailed as he went from Macedonia to Jerusalem. (Acts xx. 15.)

CHORAZIN, a small town which was probably situated at the north of the sea of Galilee where the Jordan falls into that sea. Near to it Jesus healed a leper and performed many other miracles, and it is one of the towns on which he pronounced a woe because of the infidelity of the people. (Matt. viii. 2-4 ; xi. 21 ; Luke x. 13.)

CILICIA, a country of Asia Minor bounded on the east by Syria, and on the south by the Mediterranean Sea. Its chief city, Tarsus was the birth-place of the Apostle Paul (Acts xxii. 3; xv. 41.

CLAUDA, a small island near the south-west coast of Crete, to which the vessel was driven in which St. Paul was taken as a prisoner from Cesarea to Italy. (Acts xxvii. 16.)

CNIDUS, a city which stood on a promontory of Caria in Asia Minor, it is mentioned in the account of Paul's voyage to Rome. (Acts xxvii. 7.)

COLOSSE, an ancient city of Phrygia, which was destroyed by an earthquake soon after St. Paul wrote the Epistle to the Colossians. It is supposed that the Apostle never visited this city. (Col. i.2.)

COOS, an island of the Mediterranean, in the Grecian Archipelago, near which St. Paul sailed in his voyage to Jerusalem. (Acts xxi. 1.)

CORINTH, the capital of Achaia, situated on an isthmus, at the foot of a lofty rock was celebrated for its magnificent buildings, its commerce, wealth, and learning, and not less for its idolatry, and wickedness. St. Paul resided at Corinth for a year and a half, he lodged with Aquila and Priscilla, and worked at his trade as a tent-maker. It was at this place where, in a vision, the Lord appeared to him, and said, "I have much people in this city." Crispus, and Gaius, and the family of Stephanas were among the fruits of his ministry in this city. From Corinth he wrote several of his epistles, and here, to shew their enmity to the gospel, the Jews brought him before the judgment seat of Gallio. (Acts xviii. 1-17.)

CRETE, the largest island in the Mediterranean Sea, it is about 180 miles long and 55 broad, it is now called Candia. The apostle Paul landed at its chief-port, Fair Havens, on his voyage from Jerusalem to Rome. A Christian church was early planted in Crete of which

Titus was the first bishop. The ancient Cretans indulged in almost every vice. (Acts xxvii. 12; Tit. i. 5-12.)

CYPRUS, a large island of the Mediterranean Sea to the south of Asia Minor, and west of Syria, it is about 150 miles long, and 70 miles broad. It was the native place of the apostle Barnabas, and of an old disciple named Mnason. When Paul and Barnabas proceeded from Antioch in Syria to preach the Gospel to the Gentiles, they sailed to Cyprus, landed at Salamis, and went through the island to Paphos, where they preached before the Roman governor, Sergius Paulus, who was converted to the Christian faith. A Jew who was present, called Elymas, endeavoured to turn away the governor from the faith, and he was smitten with blindness for a season for thus opposing the gospel. St. Paul afterwards passed the island twice, but he did not land on either occasion. (Acts iv. 36; xiii. 4-12; xxi. 16.)

CYRENE was the principal city of the province of Libya, in Africa. Some of the Cyrenians were present at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost. Simon, whom the Jews compelled to bear the Saviour's cross was a native of Cyrene, as was Lucius, one of the teachers in the church at Antioch. (Acts ii. 10 : Matt. xxvii. 32 ; Luke xxiii. 26 ; Acts xiii. 1.)

DALMANUTHA, a place on the western side of the sea of Galilee, where our Saviour landed with his disciples. (Mark. viii. 10.)

DALMATIA, one of the provinces of ancient Illyricum, to the east of the Adriatic. Titus first preached the gospel here. (2 Tim. iv. 10.)

DAMASCUS, an ancient, and celebrated city of Syria to which St. Paul was proceeding to persecute the believers, when his miraculous conversion took place and his labours as a preacher of the gospel commenced. The Jews lay in wait to kill him, but the disciples of Damascus let him down by the city wall in a basket, and he escaped to Jerusalem. (Acts ix. 2-27.) see p. 41.

DECAPOLIS, a district of the Holy Land called because it contained ten cities. From this region, which lay chiefly on the north-east of the Sea of Galilee, multitudes came to hear our Saviour preach. (Matt. iv. 23; Mark v. 20.)

DERBE, a city of Lycaonia in Asia Minor which was the birth-place of the hospitable disciple Gaius. To this city Paul and Barnabas fled when they escaped from Lystra, where Paul had been stoned. (Acts xiv. 6; 19-21.)

EGYPT, a celebrated country of Africa which is united to the Holy Land on the south-west. To this country Joseph and Mary were commanded to go with the child Jesus when Herod sought to destroy him; and there they remained.

ed till after Herod's death. (Matt. ii.13-15.)
see p. 51.

EMMAUS, a village which was about eight miles north of Jerusalem; it is memorable for the conversation of Jesus with two of his disciples after he had risen from the dead, when he explained to them the scriptures—became known to them in the breaking of bread as he sat at meat, and then vanished out of their sight. (Luke xxiv. 13-35.)

ENON, a town on the Jordan fifty miles north east of Jerusalem, and twenty-four east of Samaria at which Johu baptized because there was much water there. Its name signifies the place of springs. (John iii. 23.)

EPHESUS, one of the most celebrated cities of Asia Minor in the division of Lydia. To this city Aquila and Priscilla went to reside after they left Corinth. In this city was the famed heathen temple of the goddess Diana. The inhabitants were wholly given up to idolatry.

When St. Paul visited Ephesus a tumult was raised against him by the craftsmen who made shrines of the goddess Diana, probably small silver models of the temple and the goddess. The disturbance was quelled by the town-clerk or chief magistrate of the city. The Apostle was much persecuted both by the Heathens and the Jews, but many were embraced the gospel publicly burnt their books of sorcery of the value of £1500. St. Paul resided at Ephesus for three years. Timothy is supposed to have been the bishop of Ephesus, St. John resided there many years. (Acts xix.)

EPHRAIM, a city of Judea about eight miles north east of Jerusalem on the road to Jericho. To this city Jesus went after he had raised Lazarus from the dead. (John xi. 54.)

ETHIOPIA, a country of Africa south of Egypt. One of the chief officers of its queen, Candace, was converted to Christianity by the preaching of Philip the deacon. (Acts viii. 27,28.)

FAIR HAVENS, the harbours of the city Lasea, on the coast of Crete, probably so named because there was good anchorage for ships. St. Paul landed there as he went from Jerusalem to Rome. (Acts xxvii. 8.)

GADARA, the capital of Perea, situated about six miles east of the Sea of Galilee, it was one of the cities of Decapolis; the surrounding country is called the country of the Gadarenes. It was here that Jesus permitted the unclean spirits of which two persons were dispossessed by him, to enter the herd of swine. (Mark v. 1.)

GALATIA, a province of Asia Minor which was at one time very populous, and contained colonies from various nations, among whom were many converts to the gospel. St. Paul probably visited Galatia twice, and a few years after his second visit he addressed an epistle to the churches in Galatia. (Acts xvi. 6,7 ; xviii. 23.)

GALILEE, the most extensive province of the Holy Land, it was bounded on the east by the Sea of Galilee and the river Jordan, on the west by Phœnicia, on the north by Syria and on the south by Samaria. It was divided into two portions called Upper Galilee and Lower Galilee. The principal city of Upper Galilee, mentioned in the New Testament is Cæsarea Philippi ; those of Lower Galilee are Tiberias, Capernaum, Chorazin, Bethsaida, Cana, Nazareth, Nain. In Lower Galilee the Saviour's reputed parents resided. Mary was visited by an angel, and the Son promised. After Joseph and Mary returned from Egypt, they came to Galilee where the child Jesus was brought up. Before Jesus commenced his ministry he went from Galilee to Jordan to John to be baptized. After his fast ing and temptation, he returned to Galilee to commence his teaching and his wonderful works. In Galilee he chiefly resided, and hence he was called "a Galilean." Most of the apostles were "men of Galilee." (Luke i. 26; Matt. ii. 22; Luke ii. 39,40; Matt. iii. 13-17; iv. 12,13; Luke xxiii. 6; Acts i. 11.) Upper Galilee was sometimes called Galilee of the Gentiles, because many of the uninstructed heathen resided there, and it was bounded by heathen nations on the east, west, and north.

GALILEE, SEA OF, a large lake through which the Jordan flows, it is on the eastern border of the province of Galilee; it was called the sea of Cinnereth, in the time of Joshua the lake of Gennesareth, in the time of our Saviour, and also the sea of Tiberias, from its nearness to the city Tiberias. This lake is about fifteen miles in length, from north to south; and about six miles in breadth, from east to west. The waters are said to be very transparent and to abound in fish, especially in the northern part. On this lake Jesus caused Peter, James, and John to take an immense draught of fishes, after they had toiled all night and taken none; he quelled a storm upon it by rebuking the wind; and he walked upon its waves. (Luke. v. 1-6; viii, 23, 24; John. vi. 17-21.)

GAZA, a city on the south-west coast of the Holy Land on the road to Egypt. The treasurer of Queen Candace was going down from Jerusalem to Gaza when he was converted and baptized by Philip. (Acts viii. 26-40.) see p. 62.

GENNESARETH, a city and district in Galilee, which was visited by our Lord; and the men of that place "brought to him all that were diseased, and besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment, and as many as touched were made whole." (Matt xiv. 34-36.) The district of Gennesareth is said to be very fertile and salubrious.

GERGESA, a city of Decapolis on the south eastern coast of the sea of Galilee, from which the "country of the Gergesenes" obtained its name. (Matt. viii. 28.)

GETHSEMANE, a village and garden at the foot of the Mount of Olives beyond the brook Cedron. To this garden the Saviour often retired with his apostles; and there he was in agony while Peter and James and John slept; at this place Judas betrayed him, and he was apprehended. (John. xviii. 1; Matt. xxvi. 36-50.)

GOLGOTHA, the part of Mount Calvary where Jesus was crucified and entombed. (Mark xv. 22.)

GREECE, a celebrated country on the south east of Europe; it is very mountainous, and formerly contained many celebrated cities, noted for their magnificence and the learning of their people. It is now much less extensive and powerful than formerly. St. Paul preached the gospel in many of the cities of Greece. (Acts xx. 2.)

HEBRON, a city in the hill country of Judea at which Zacharias and Elizabeth resided and where John the Baptist was born. (Luke i. 39,40.) see p. 72.

ICONIUM, one of the chief cities of Lycaonia. When St. Paul and Barnabas were compelled to leave Antioch in Pisidia, they proceeded to Iconium where they preached the gospel with much success both to the Jews and the Gentiles; they were however used spitefully by the unbelieving Jews, and went from Iconium to Lystra. (Acts xiv. 1-6.)

ILLYRICUM a country of south-eastern Europe, into some parts of which Titus went. St. Paul also preached the gospel from J

Jerusalem round about Illyricum. (2 Tim. iv. 10; Rom. xv. 19.)

ITALY, a celebrated country in the south of Europe, of which Rome was the capital at the time of the Apostles, and is still. Aquila and Priscilla removed out of Italy, when Claudius commanded all Jews to depart from Rome. (Acts xviii. 1,2.)

ITUREA, a district to the north-east of the Holy Land of which Philip was Tetrarch. (Luke iii. 1.)

JERICHO, a city of Judea about nineteen miles north-east of Jerusalem. North of Jericho was the mountain where Jesus is supposed to have undergone his third temptation. On the east of Jericho, as Jesus was going up to Jerusalem he healed a blind man who sat by the way-side; and after he had passed through Jericho he healed blind Bartimeus. Near Jericho he abode at the house of Zaccheus.

The way between Jerusalem and Jericho was rocky and desert, and it was infested with thieves. (Matt. iv. 8-11; Luke xviii. 35-43; xix. 1-10; x. 30.) see p. 82.

JERUSALEM, the metropolis of Judea and the most celebrated city in the world. It was built on three hills; Mount Sion was the highest of them, and on it was the upper city and the king's palace. On Mount Moriah was the Temple, and on Acra was the lower city and its most populous part. Without the walls of the city was Mount Calvary. The temple which was standing in our Saviour's time was the second temple, which was built by Zerubbabel after the return of the Jews from their captivity, but it had been greatly enlarged and beautified by Herod the Great, who had done this to win the favour of the Jews. The second temple was destroyed according to the prediction of Christ, (Mark xiii. 1-9) when Jerusalem was besieged by the Roman under Titus, about 36 years after the death of the Saviour, since which time it has not been rebuilt. see p. 84.

At Jerusalem John's birth was foretold—Christ was presented in the Temple, and the wise men enquired for the child. At twelve years old, Jesus having been taken to the feast of the Passover, discoursed with the doctors in the Temple; and after his baptism, he here underwent his second Temptation. Soon after the commencement of his ministry, he drove the buyers and sellers out of the Temple—he healed many sick people—and had an interview with Nicodemus. Just before the close of his ministry Jesus made a triumphal entry into Jerusalem, when all the city was moved, and the multitude rejoiced; he then healed the sick in the temple—discoursed with the Pharisees—instructed his disciples by parables—prepared for the passover—partook of the last supper—washed the feet of his dis-principles—foretold his betrayal, and that Peter should deny him thrice. From Jerusalem he went to Gethsemane where he was betrayed by Judas, and whence he was brought to the palace of the high priest—was denied by Peter, was examined, and sent to Pilate's judgment seat; was arraigned, condemned, scourged, crowned, clad in purple, and crucified,—at which time the sun was obscured, the earth quaked, the graves opened, and the dead arose, and went into the city. After his resurrection, Jesus appeared several times to his disciples in Jerusalem, and at length led them from the city to Bethany whence he ascended to heaven. The disciples then returned to Jerusalem when Matthias was chosen to be an Apostle in the place of Judas; and at Jerusalem they awaited the descent of the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost. At Jerusalem Peter healed the lame man at the gate of the Temple called, Beautiful; Ananias and his wife were struck dead for attempting to deceive the apostles, and Stephen was stoned. There also Paul was apprehended several years after, when he was sent as a prisoner to Cesarea. see p. 84.

JOPPA, an ancient sea-port on the shores of the Mediterranean. At this place Peter had a vision which shewed him the necessity of preaching the gospel to the Gentiles as well as to the Jews; and here also he raised to life Dorcas, a faithful disciple; "full of good works and alms deeds." (Acts ix. 36-43; x.) see p. 86.

JORDAN, the chief river of the Holy Land, in which John baptized, and to which Jesus went to be baptized before he commenced his ministry. (Matt. iii.) see p. 87.

JUDEA, the most southern of the provinces of the Holy Land, and the most celebrated; its boundary northward was Samaria, southward Idumea, eastward the Dead Sea and the Jordan, and westward the Mediterranean Sea. Its metropolis was Jerusalem and its principal cities, towns, and villages were Jericho, Bethlehem, Bethany, Bethphage, Emmaus, Ephraim, Arimathea, Azotus, Gaza, Joppa, Rama, and Lydda. It had its name Judea, from the greater portion of it having been the inheritance of the tribe of Judah, and from the whole having formed the kingdom of Judah, when the Israelites were divided into two kingdoms after Solomon's death.

JUDEA, HILL COUNTRY OF. This tract of country was situated a few miles to the south of Bethlehem, approaching to the borders of Idumea. It was the country to which Mary went from Nazareth to visit her cousin Elizabeth, after the angel had announced to her that she was to be the mother of the Messiah. (Luke i. 39.)

JUDEA, WILDERNESS OF. This was a hilly, wooded, and thinly inhabited country to the west of the Dead Sea. In this desert John wa brought up, and abode, and here he first began to preach, and declare the coming of Christ. This desert is supposed to be the scene of the first temptation which Jesus underwent.

LAODICEA, a city of Phrygia which was destroyed together with Colosse and Hierapolis by an earthquake. The city was once wealthy and magnificent. St. Paul probably visited it, for in his epistle to the Colossians, he expresses great anxiety for the church of Laodicea. This church was one of the seven Asian churches which St. John addressed; he calls it "lukewarm," and ignorant of its "wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked" condition. (Col. ii. 1; iv. 13-16; Rev. iii. 14-20.)

LASEA, a city of Crete whose harbours are called Fairhavens. St. Paul sailed near it on his voyage to Rome. (Acts xxvii. 8.)

LIBYA, a country of Africa west of Egypt of which Cyrene was the capital. (Acts ii. 10.)

LYCAONIA, a province of Asia Minor whose chief cities were Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe. Paul and Barnabas planted several churches in this province. (Acts xiv. 6.)

LYCIA, a province of Asia Minor, which contained many cities, only two of which are mentioned in the Scriptures, Myra and Patara. (Acts xxvii. 5.)

LYDDA, a city on the coast of Judea at which St. Peter healed Eneas of the palsy, after he had kept his bed eight years. (Acts ix. 33,34.)

LYDIA, was a celebrated kingdom of Asia Minor; it contained the cities of Lydia, Sardis, Philadelphia; Thyatira, Smyrna, and Ephesus; all the seven churches of Asia except Pergamos and Laodicea were in Lydia.

LYSTRA, a city of Lycaonia to which Paul and Barnabas fled when they left Iconium.

Paul healed a cripple there, and the inhabitants, supposing that their gods were come down in the likeness of men, were about to offer sacrifices to them. These people were afterwards persuaded by certain Jews who bore enmity to the gospel, to stone Paul and cast him out of their city; but he and Barnabas then went to Derbe, and thence returned through Lystra and Iconium to go to Antioch. Lystra was the native place of Timothy. (Acts xiv. 1-21; xvi. 1.)

MACEDONIA, an extensive province of ancient Greece; its chief cities were Thessalonica, Amphipolis, Philippi, and Berea. When St. Paul was at Troas he was instructed by a vision to go and preach the gospel in Macedonia. Silas and Timothy also preached in Macedonia. (Acts xvi. 9; xviii. 5.)

MAGDALA, a city on the western coast of the sea of Galilee; it is the place to which Jesus crossed after he had miraculously fed 4,000 persons in the desert of Bethsaida. Of the city Mary Magdalene is supposed to have been a native. (Matt. xv. 39.)

MELITA, an island in the Mediterranean Sea about 50 miles in circumference, at which St. Paul was shipwrecked in his voyage to Rome. Here a viper fastened on his hand which he shook off, and was unhurt by it; he was entertained by Publius the chief man of the island, whose father he healed of a fever. He also healed many other sick people during his stay of three months on the island. (Acts xxviii. 1-10.)

MILETUM, a town in the island of Crete at which St. Paul left Trophimus sick. (2 Tim. iv. 20.)

MILETUS, a sea-port of Caria at which St. Paul stayed on his voyage from Macedonia to Jerusalem; he sent for the elders of the church at Ephesus; exhorted them, prayed with them, and left them "sorrowing for the words he spake, that they should see his face no more." (Acts xx, 38.)

MITYLENE, the capital of the island of Lesbos, in the Egean Sea, about seven miles from the continent of Asia Minor. Paul touched at this island on his voyage from Corinth to Jerusalem. (Acts xx. 14.)

MYRA, the capital of Lycia; from this city St. Paul sailed, in a ship of Alexandria for Rome. (Acts xxvii. 5.)

MYSIA, the north-western province of Asia Minor; it was visited by St. Paul, but he was not permitted to remain there being directed to pass over to Macedonia. (Acts xvi. 7,8.)

NAIN, a small city of Galilee not far from Nazareth, and about two miles south of Mount Tabor. At the gates of this city Jesus raised to life a widow's only son; here also he dined with a Pharisee, and a woman washed his feet. (Luke vii. 11-16.)

NAZARETH, a small city of Lower Galilee about seventy-three miles north of Jerusalem it is situated on the side of a hill and overlooks the vale of Nazareth. At this city Mary resided when the angel Gabriel announced to her that she should be the mother of the Saviour. Though Jesus was not born here, he resided in the city with his parents during his childhood and youth, and from this circumstance he was called "a Nazarene." When he preached at Nazareth, the people "wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth;" but afterwards they said, "Is not this the carpenter's son?" and were offended at him. He did not perform many mighty works at Nazareth because of the unbelief of the people, who on one occasion were about to throw him down headlong from the hill on which the city was built (Matt. xiii. 53-58; Luke iv. 16-31).

NEAPOLIS, a sea-port town of Macedonia.

few miles south of Philippi, at which St. Paul disembarked when he passed from Asia to Macedonia. (Acts xvi. 11.)

NEPHTHALIM, the territory of the tribe of Naphtali in which Jesus resided and preached much during his public ministry. (Matt. iv. 13-15.) see p. 112.

NICOPOLIS, a city of Macedonia at which St. Paul passed a winter, and from which he wrote the Epistle to Titus. (Titus iii. 12.)

OLIVES, MOUNT OF, a celebrated mountain east of Jerusalem which derived its name from the number of olive trees which grew upon it. On this mountain our Saviour cursed the barren fig-tree, and it withered away ; here he also predicted the destruction of Jerusalem, and from it he rode in humble triumph into the city a few days before he suffered. After his resurrection he ascended to heaven from this mountain in the presence of his disciples. (Matt. xxiv. 3 ; Acts i. 12.)

PAMPHYLIA, a province of Asia Minor in which Paul and Barnabas preached; a number of Jews from Pamphylia were present on the day of Pentecost when the Holy Ghost descended on the Apostles. The chief cities of Pamphylia were Perga and Attalia. (Acts ii. 10; xxvii. 5.)

PAPHOS, the chief city of the island of Cyprus at which Sergius Paulus the governor resided; it was at this place that Elymas was struck with blindness for opposing the gospel. (Acts xiii. 6.)

PATARA, a sea-port of Lycia, about forty miles west of Myra; St. Paul touched at this place on his voyage from Macedonia to Phœnicia. (Acts xxi, 1.)

PATMOS, a small barren island in the Egean Sea, about twenty-five miles in circumference; it was chosen by the Roman Emperors as a place of exile for certain offenders, and to St. John was banished in the reign of the Emperor Domitian A. D. 94 ; while there he wrote the Revelation. Rev. i. 9.)

PEREA, a district of the Holy Land to the east of the Jordan its most noted place was the fortress of Machærus, which though not mentioned in the Scriptures, is memorable from John the Baptist having there been put to death.

PERGA, a city of Pamphylia which was visited by Paul and Barnabas after they left Paphos ; at this place John Mark left them and returned to Jerusalem. (Acts xiii. 13,14.)

PERGAMOS, a city of Mysia, and one of the seven churches of Asia. (Rev. ii. 12-17.)

PHOENICIA, a narrow tract of country on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, between Galilee and Syria ; it was called Syro-phœnicia after it was conquered and added to the kingdom of Syria. It was formerly noted for its manufactures, its artificers, and its commerce.

Its principal cities were Tyre, Sidon, Ptolemais and Sarepta.

PHILADELPHIA, one of the cities of Lydia and also one of the seven Asian churches. This church is commended and encouraged by the Apostle, for its works and for its faith. (Rev. iii. 7-12.)

PHILIPPI, one of the chief cities of Macedonia, it was visited by Paul and Silas in obedience to a vision which St. Paul had at Troas. Here Paul met Lydia, a seller of purple from Thyatira, who was converted and baptized. Here also he dispossessed a young female slave of an evil spirit, whose masters, losing the gains her soothsaying brought them, dragged Paul and Silas before the magistrates of the city, who ordered them to be beaten and cast into prison. At midnight while the Apostles were singing praises to God the prison-doors were miraculously flung open, and the bands of all the prisoners were loosed. The gaoler was about to kill himself, but he was prevented by Paul who declared the gospel to him, and converted, and baptized him and his household. The next morning the magistrates ordered the Apostles to be released, but the Apostles demanded, as they had been imprisoned unjustly, that the magistrates should come and set them free publicly. After this was done the Apostles went to the house of Lydia and comforted the brethren. (Acts xvi.) Philippi was the first place on the continent of Europe at which St. Paul preached the gospel, and the members of this church are commended by him for their liberal charity to the poor brethren of Judea.

PHRYGIA, a province of Asia Minor through which St. Paul travelled, and planted churches; and whose chief cities were Laodicea, Hierapolis, and Colossæ. (Acts xvi. 6.)

PISIDIA, a mountainous province of Asia

Minor, which formerly contained many cities, its chief city was Antioch. (Acts xiv. 24.)

PONTUS, the north-eastern province of Asia Minor, of which Aquila was a native; it is supposed that St Peter introduced the gospel here, as his first Epistle is addressed to the believers scattered in this and other countries. (Acts xviii. 2; 1 Pet. i. 1.)

PTOLEMAIS, a commercial city of Phœnicia and the same as Accho. St. Paul stopped at this place and saluted the brethren on his route from Macedonia to Jerusalem. (Acts xxi. 7.) The city is now known as Acre. see p. 4.

PUTEOLI, an ancient city of Naples, at which St. Paul landed and abode seven days on his first journey to Rome, it was situated about 100 miles south of Rome. (Acts xxviii. 13.)

RAMA, a small town of Judea about six miles nearly north of Jerusalem, the infant child ren of which were cruelly massacred with those of Bethlehem by the command of Herod. (Matt. ii. 18.)

RHEGIUM, a sea-port of Italy opposite to Sicily ; St. Paul stayed here one day on his voyage as a prisoner to Rome. (Acts xxviii. 13.)

RHODES, an island of the Mediterranean, the principal city of which is also called Rhodes. This island is about 120 miles in circumference. Paul stopped here on his voygae from Greece to Rome. (Acts xxi. 1.)

ROME, one of the most famous cities of the world, it is the capital of Italy, and it was the metropolis of the Roman Empire, it is situated on the river Tiber, and at one time is said to have contained near 2,000,000 of inhabitants. To this city St. Paul was taken a prisoner, he lived there two years, preaching the gospel to the Gentiles as well as the

Jews. There he was probably beheaded, A. D. 65; and there Peter was crucified at about the same time. (Acts xxviii. 16.) see p. 127

SALAMIS, a city on the eastern coast of the island of Cyprus. It was visited and the gospel preached in the synagogue there, by the Apostles Paul and Barnabas. (Acts xiii. 5.)

SALMONE, a maritime city and promontory on the eastern extremity of the island of Crete. St. Paul sailed under this promontory on his voyage to Rome. (Acts xxvii. 7.)

SALIM, one of the places near the Jordan where John baptized, it was near Enon. (John iii. 23.)

SAMARIA. The province of the Holy Land which lay between Judea and Galilee. Its chief cities were Sychar, Samaria, Cesarea, and Antipatris. The Saviour went through Samaria when he left Jerusalem after the first

Passover; he stopped at Jacob's Well near Sychar, and conversed with a woman there, who went and spread his fame about that country. At the approach of the fourth pass-over Jesus was again going through Samaria, and sent messengers before him, but the people would not receive him; his disciples James and John wished to destroy them, but Jesus reproved them saying that he came to save, not to destroy. At the city of Samaria Philip the deacon preached and worked miracles, and Peter and John rebuked Simon Magus; there also the angel appeared to Philip and directed him to go towards Gaza. (John iv. 5-42; Luke ix. 52-62; Acts viii. 1-26.) The city Samaria was rebuilt by Herod the Great, and called Sebaste. see p. 128.

SAMOS, an island in the Egean Sea, which is mentioned in St. Paul's voyage from Corinth to Jerusalem, it is nearly seventy miles in circumference. (Acts xx. 15.)

SAMOTHRACIA, a small island in the Egean Sea, which St. Paul came to as he went from Troas to Philippi, when directed to preach the gospel in Macedonia. (Acts xvi. 11.)

SARDIS, the capital of the ancient kingdom of Lydia, celebrated for its wealth, its splendour, and its wickedness. One of the seven churches of Asia was at Sardis, and to it St. John addressed solemn warnings to hold fast their knowledge of the gospel, and to repent. (Rev. iii. 1-6.)

SAREPTA, a maritime city of Phœnicia near which a Syro-Phœnician woman besought our Saviour to go and heal her daughter who had an unclean spirit. (Matt. xv. 22-24. Luke iv. 26.) see p. 146.

SARON, a fertile plain between Lydda and the Mediterranean having a town of the same name, the inhabitants of which turned to the Lord when they saw Eneas restored by the Apostle Peter. (Acts ix. 35.)

SCYTHOPOLIS, a city on the west of the Jordan, near which John was baptizing when he bore his second Testimony to Jesus as the Messiah, and from which place Andrew and Simon followed the Saviour. (John i. 29-34.) The city was anciently called Bethshan. see. p. 33.

SELEUCIA, a sea-port of Syria, near to Antioch from which the Apostles Paul and Barnabas sailed for Cyprus. (Acts xiii. 4.)

SIDON, a very ancient and celebrated port and city of Phœnicia. It was famous for its great commerce, its learning, its manufactures, and its idolatry. Many of the Sidonians attended the instructions of the Saviour. St. Paul was permitted to land at Sidon to see his friends when he was taken a prisoner to Rome. (Mark iii. 8; vii. 24; Acts xxvii. 3.) see p. 135.

SILOAM, the name of a pool or fountain near Jerusalem. In this pool our Saviour ordered a blind man to wash, and his sight was restored. Near to this pool was a tower which fell on eighteen persons. (John ix. 7.)

SMYRNA, a city of Asia Minor; it only is mentioned in Scripture as one of the seven Asian churches. The "angel," messenger, or bishop of this church is solemnly forewarned of the evils which would befall the church, and exhorted to obtain "a crown of life" by "being faithful unto death." (Rev. ii. 8-11.)

SYCHAR, an ancient city of the Holy Land and mentioned in the New Testament as the place at which our Saviour conversed with a woman of Samaria about "the living water" and revealed to her that he was the promised Messiah. A number of people of that city believed on Jesus from the testimony of the woman, and many more believed because of his own word and said, we "know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world." (John iv. 5-42.) The city was anciently called Shechem. see p. 131.

SYRACUSE, a celebrated city of Sicily, at which St. Paul tarried three days on his way to Rome. (Acts xxviii. 12.)

SYRIA, a country to the north and north-east of the Holy Land; the fame of Jesus went "throughout all Syria." Its chief city was Antioch. (Matt. iv. 24.)

TABOR, MOUNT, a mountain to the south-west of the sea of Galilee whereon Jesus was transfigured, and where Moses and Elias talked with him, in the presence of Peter, James, and John; when a voice from heaven testified of Jesus, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased, hear ye him." (Matt. xvii. 1; Mark ix 2.) see p. 140.

TARSUS, a wealthy and populous city of Cilicia famous as the birth-place of St. Paul the great apostle of the Gentiles. The gospel was early preached, and a Christian church planted at Tarsus. (Acts ix. 30; xxi. 39.)

THESSALONICA, the capital of Macedonia it was visited by Paul and Silas after they left Philippi. St. Paul preached there three Sabbath days, and the Jews excited a tumult against him. St. Paul commended this church for its liberality to the poor brethren of Judea. (Acts xvii. 2.)

THREE TAVERNS, a small town or village of Italy at which many travellers stopped for refreshment; St. Paul came to it on his way to Rome. (Acts xxviii. 15.)

THYATIRA, a considerable city of Lydia, and the seat of one of the seven churches of Asia. This church is severely reprov'd for suffering a false prophetess to seduce its members from the faith. (Acts xvi. 14; Rev. ii. 18-29.)

TIBERIAS, a city on the western coast of the sea of Galilee about eighty miles north of Jerusalem, it was built by Herod Agrippa and named by him in honour of the Emperor Tiberius. St. John mentions that many peo ple of Tiberias followed Jesus in boats to Capernaum, when they heard of his miracles. (John vi. 1-25.)

TRACHONITIS, a region of Perea having Iturea on the south and Abilene on the north. (Luke iii. 1.)

TROAS, a city and port of Mysia, on the Egean, Sea near where the ancient city of Troy once stood. Here St. Paul had a vision respecting his going to preach in Macedonia. He again visited Troas on his way from Corinth to Jerusalem, preached to the disciples on the first day of the week until midnight, when Eutychus slept, fell down, and was killed; but St. Paul restored him to life. (Acts xx. 5. 6; (2 Tim. iv. 13.)

TROGYLLIUM, a town and promontory in Lydia at which St. Paul rested one day on his way to Jerusalem. (Acts xx. 15.)

TYRE, a large and ancient city and sea-port of Phœnicia, about 25 miles south of Sidon. Many of the inhabitants of Tyre attended the preaching and saw the miracles of our Saviour. St. Paul visited the city on his way to Jerusalem, found disciples there, and remained with them seven days. (Mark. ii. 8; Acts xxi. 3-6.) see p. 144.

ZABULON, the portion of the Holy Land which was the inheritance of the descendant of Zabulon. The inhabitants of this district and of Nephtalim saw much of our Saviour, heard his gracious words, saw his glorious works and many became his disciples. (Matt. iv. 13-15; Acts ii. 7.)

*.* It is scarcely necessary, considering the progress that has been made in teaching by correct methods, to urge the employment of Maps whenever Geographical lessons are conveyed to the young; by no other means can the relative situations of the places to which their attention is directed be realized and the events connected therewith localized, in the juvenile mind.

The compiler of this little work has prepared, to accompany it, Five Maps on one sheet sufficiently large for class-instruction, and not too cumbersome for family reference; these he hopes to be enabled to publish, and only waits for a sufficient number of Subscribers to ensure him against pecuniary loss.

In the mean time he recommends for Schools the maps of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge or those of the Sunday School Union; and for Families the Bible Maps published by Parker, or the Illuminated Maps published by Charles Knight; but for the New Testament Geography and History, the Charts of Mr. Mimpriss are preferable all others.

This form of the Tabular View is intended to be put into the hands of the Pupils for Study, and also to assist the Teacher in examining them when prepared.

The following objects have been kept in view ;—

1. To present the principal events of the Scripture History in as few words as possible, and at the same time to employ no general terms but what could be readily comprehended by pupils, or explained to them.

2. To combine with these events, a knowledge of the Chronology and Geography of the Scriptures.

3. To lead the pupils to search the Scriptures themselves for all details that could not be given in such a Tabular View, directing their search by references.

4. To furnish a complete series of Questions on the Old Testament, (above 3,000) with References to the Bible, where the Questions could not be answered by consulting the Tabular View.

5. To afford a constant help for Repetitions and Examinations.

6. To thus supply the means for acquiring a General Knowledge of the Old Testament History in a reasonable time, leaving much of the detail for other modes of instruction.

A TABULAR VIEW OF THE OLD TESTAMENT

ITS CHRONOLOGY, HISTORY, AND GEOGRAPHY ;

WITH SCRIPTURE REFERENCES TO THE EVENTS, MOUNTED ON

This series of Tables, printed in differently coloured Periods and in a large type, presents the most remarkable events of the Old Testament History ; and is intended to be studied simultaneously by a large Class of pupils, who are afterwards to be questioned upon it by the Teacher. It has been prepared to assist in keeping in the minds of children the Succession of Events, as well as the Events themselves, and the Places at which they occurred.

In all Historical acquisitions it is much easier to remember the certain Events took place, and even their locality, than the order in reference to other Events ; and it is thought that the particular object will be gained by suspending in a School-room a Table of this nature, and going through certain portions of it at stated times, with the Pupils, assisted by Maps. In the preparation of this Tabular View, the Chronology of the Bible, and Townsend's Arrangement have been the chief Authorities. The Events are numbered from 1 to 418.
