The Querist's Birthday Book and
Confession Album

December.

Who sleeps, drives away care.

Win first, lose last.

The consciousness of being loved softens the hardest pang even 'at the moment of parting.—Addison.

The eternal summer shall not fade.

Who, poor, are not caught by wiles.

Wit is the lightning of the mind.

Little minds are tamed and subdued by misfortune; but great minds rise above it.—Washington Irving.

The purse had better be empty than fill'd with other folk's money.

Wit without reason is blind.

You cannot see wood for trees.

No cord or cable can draw so fortibly, or hold so fast, as love can do with only a single thread.—Burton.

That is your best estate; be never jealous of it.

Woman's work is never done.

Wit bought is twice taught.

That love's the gift which God hath given

To man alone beneath the heaven.

Sir Walter Scott.

The dumb must win the prize.

Wood half burned is easily kindled.

You may go further and further.

He is but the counterfeit of a man,
Who hath not the life of a man.

Shakespeare.

'Tis good to learn from the experience of others.

Work at small faults.

Wit may be bought for money.

The man whom I consider as deserving of the name is one whose thoughts and actions are for others, not for himself alone.—Blanchard.

To appear so does not prove the thing really to be so.

Upright Perennial Brome Grass.

January.

Meadow Barley.

A bad turn is soon done. 1

Act well at the moment, and you have performed a good act to all eternity.—Lavater.

A bad workman quarrels with his tools.

A bald head is soon shaven. 2

Don't put too fine a point to your wit, for fear it should get blunted.
The Little Gipsy.

Add not trouble to the grief-worn heart.

A cheery year, a merry year. 3

In every action reflect upon the end; and in your undertaking it consider why you do it.—Jeremy Taylor.

A desire for admiration is the offspring of vanity.

A close mouth catcheth no flies. 4

Absence destroys trifling intimacies, but invigorates strong ones.—Roche-foucauld.

A faithful friend is a strong defence.

An evil lesson is soon learned. 5

A good heart is the sun and the moon; or rather the sun, for it shines bright and never changes.—Henry V., Act 5, Scene 2.

Affectation is at best a deformity.

A fair exchange is no robbery. 6

Outward actions can never give a just estimate of us, since there are many perfections of a man which are not capable of appearing in action.
Addison.

A cat may look at a king.

A bargain is a bargain.

A chip of the old block.

A clear conscience is a sure card

Adversity tries friends.

A false report rides post.

Mat Grass.

January.

Rye-Grass.

A friend in need is a friend indeed.

We are not only to look at the bare action, but at the reason of it.—Stillingfleet.

A fop is the tailor's friend and his own foe.

After a storm comes a calm.

8

We have all our secret sins; and if we knew ourselves we should not judge each other harshly.—George Eliot.

A good life keeps off wrinkles.

After clouds comes clear weather.

Let no man presume to give advice to others that has not first given good account to himself.—Seneca.

A good tale is often spoiled in the telling.

Age before honesty.

10

If you would convince a person of his mistake, accost him not, upon that subject, when his spirit is ruffled.

Dr. T. Watts.

A good wit will make use of anything.

A good appetite is the best sauce.

11

Some are born great, some achieve greatness,
And some have greatness thrust upon them.

Twelfth Night, Act 2, Scene 5.

A just hand is a precious ointment.

A good cause makes a strong arm.

12

Old men who have loved young company, and been conversant continually with them, have been of long life.

Lord Bacon.

All are not saints who go to church.

A good dog deserves a good bone.

Rough Brome-Grass

A good lawyer, an evil neighbour.

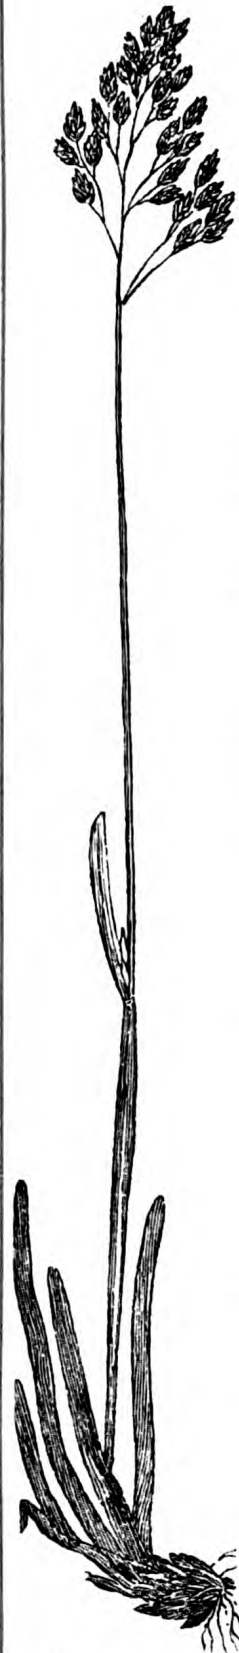

A good maxim is never out of season.

A good name is better than riches.

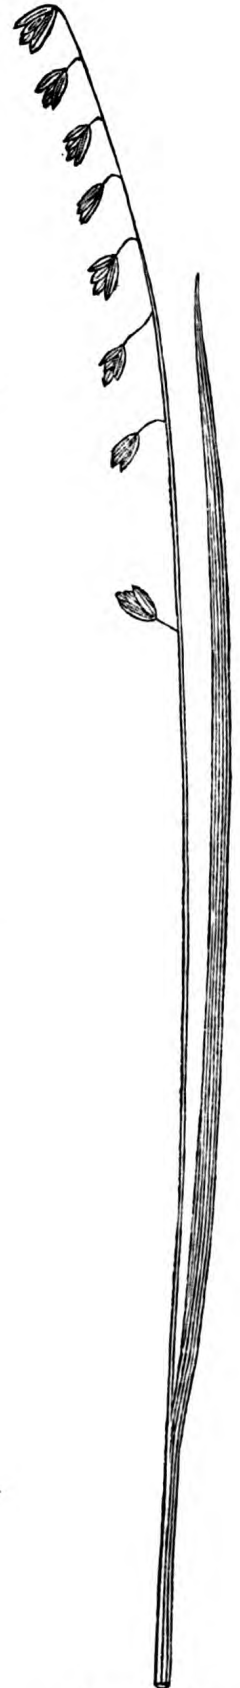

A good tongue is a good safeguard.

A great fortune is a great slavery.

January.

Alpine Meadow-Grass.

Mountain Melic Grass.

A great ship needs deep waters.

13

Aim at a sure end.

Age makes us most fondly hug and retain the good things of this life, when we have the least prospect of enjoying them.—Atterbury.

A passionate man rides a horse that runs away with him.

Agree, for law is costly.

14

A light purse makes a heavy heart.

Our doubts are traitors, and make us lose the good we oft might win, by fearing to attempt.—M. for M., Act 1, Scene 5.

Apply yourself to learning and honest pursuits.

A guilty conscience self-accuses.

15

A little good is soon spent.

How often is the ambitious man mortified with the very praise he receives, if they do not rise so high as he thinks they ought.—Addison.

An obstinate heart shall be laden with sorrows.

A hasty man never wanted woe.

16

A little mischief is too much.

I would not anticipate the relish of any happiness, nor feel the weight of any misery before it actually arrives.—Addison.

An oyster may be crossed in love.

A heavy purse makes a light heart.

17

A little pot is soon hot.

They are never alone that are accompanied with noble thoughts.—Sir Philip Sidney.

Assiduity and labour produce glory and fame.

A hungry man sees far.

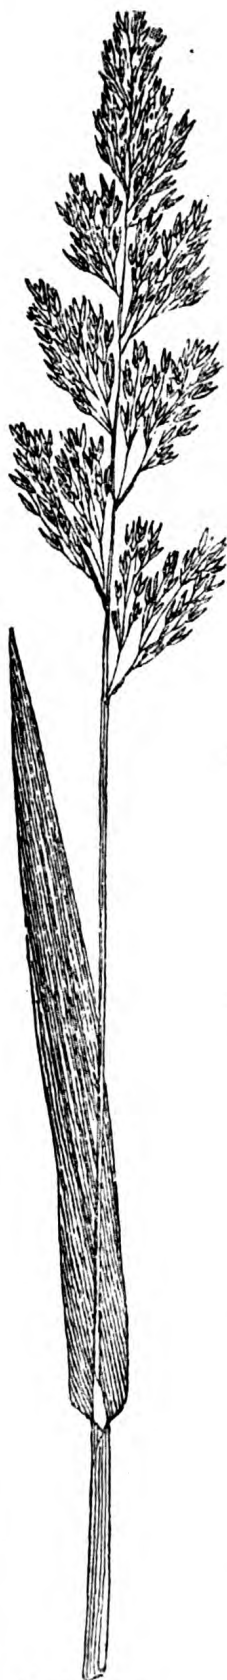

18

All are not thieves that dogs bark at.

When you have nothing to say, say nothing: A weak defence strengthens your opponent, and silence is less injurious than a weak reply.—Colton, Lacon.

At thirty man suspects himself a fool, at forty knows it and reforms his plan.

January.

Reed Canary Grass.

All are not hunters that blow the horn. 19

When arguments press equally in matters indifferent, the safest method is to give up ourselves to neither.—Addison.

Attempt not too hastily nor pursue too eagerly.

All is fish that comes to the net. 20

Have more than thou showest; speak less than thou knowest; and lend less than thou owest.—Lear, Act 1, Scene 4.

A wit's a feather and a chief's a rod; An honest man's the noblest work of God.

A low hedge is easily leapt over. 21

They that are more fervent to dispute be not always the most able to determine.—Howker.

A young man married is a young man marred.

A lucky man needs little counsel. 22

Affect not little shifts and subtuges to avoid the force of an argument.—Dr. T. Watts.

Banish the canker of ambitious thoughts.

A man may buy too dear. 23

Friendship is constant in all other things, save in the office and affairs of love.—Much Ado, Act 2, Scene 1.

Be active; for idleness is the rust of the mind.

A mere scholar, a mere ass. 24

There is but one way I know of conversing safely with all men: that is, not by concealing what we say or do, but by saying or doing nothing that deserves to be concealed.—Pope.

Be always at leisure to do good.

A miss is as good as a mile.

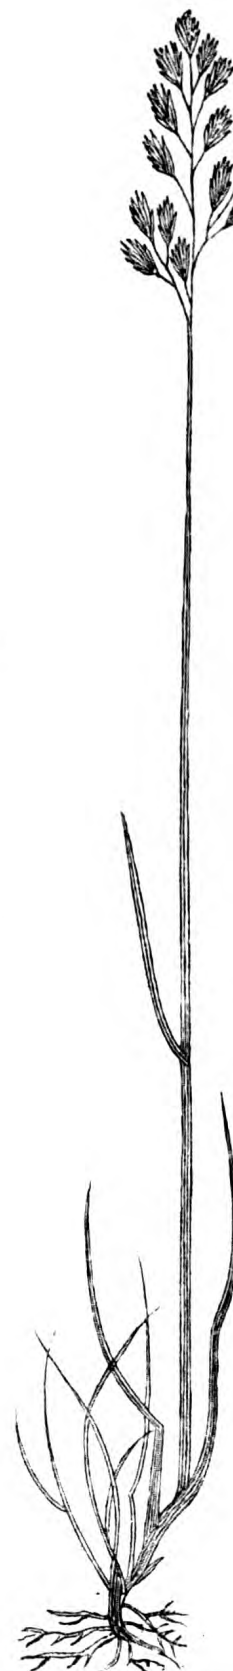

A mother's heart never grows old.

Anger and haste hinder good counsel.

Anger has made many a man a fool.

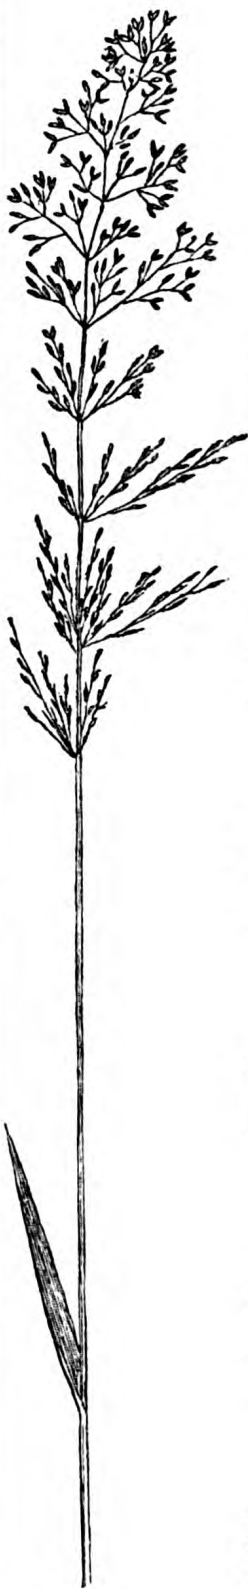

An oak is not felled by one blow.

An old fool is the worst of fools.

Sheep Fescue Grass.

January.

Marsh Bent Grass.

Alpine Cat's Tail Grass.

An old dog barks not in vain. 25

As a man lives so shall he die.

It is in men as in soils; where sometimes there is a vein of gold which the owner knows not of.—Swift.

Bear your misfortunes with fortitude.

Anything for a quiet life. 26

As blind as a bat.

Suit the action to the word, the word to the action, with this special observance, that you o'er-step not the modesty of nature.—Hamlet, Act 2, Scene 3.

Be ever vigilant; but never suspicious.

A word is enough to the wise. 27

As clear as mud.

My errors, I hope, are only those of charity to mankind and such as my own charity has caused me to commit, that of others may more easily excuse.—Dryden.

Before you attempt, consider what you can perform.

A wonder lasts but nine days. 28

As dead as a door nail.

He that rightly understands the reasonableness and excellency of charity, will know that it can never be excusable to waste any of our money in pride and folly.—Larv.

Before you marry, be sure of a house wherein to tarry.

Any fool can bet. 29

As like as chalk and cheese.

Reading maketh a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man.—Francis Bacon.

Begin your web properly, and God will supply you with thread.

Apt to promise, apt to forget. 30

As easy kiss my hand.

The smallest act of charity shall stand us in great stead.—Atterbury.

Be good betimes lest repentance comes too late.

As good as gold. 31

As like as two peas.

All men ought to maintain peace, and the common offices of humanity, and friendship, in diversity of opinions.—Locke.

Be just, but trust not everyone.

February.

Common Quaking Grass,

A snow year, a rich year.

Mirth and cheerfulness are but the reward of innocence of life.—Sir T. More.

Be lovable if you would be loved.

As sound as a nut.

All friends shall taste the wages of their virtues, and all foes the cup of their deservings.—Lear, Act 5, Scene 3.

Be slow in choosing a friend, but slower in changing one.

A watched pot never boils.

As a man is known by his company, so a man's company may be known by his manner of expressing himself.—Swift.

Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny.

As one door shuts another opens.

No man can be provident of his time who is not prudent in the choice of his company.—Jeremy Taylor.

Betray no trust, divulge no secret.

As patient as Job.

Old friends are best. King James used to call for his old shoes, they were easiest for his feet.—John Selden.

Better three hours too soon than a minute too late.

A wager is a fool's argument.

Too great confidence in success is the likeliest to prevent it; because it hinders us from making the best use of the advantages which we enjoy.—Atterbury.

Better to be alone than in bad company.

As poor as a church mouse.

A stumble may prevent a fall.

At a great bargain pause awhile.

At open doors dogs come in.

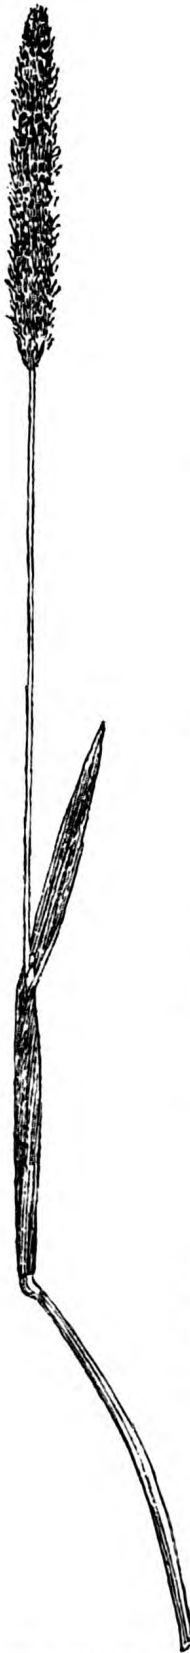

A tree is known by its fruit.

Avarice makes us blind.

Flat-stalked Meadow Grass.

February.

Floating Fox-tail Grass.

Bearded Rye Grass.

Avoid that which you blame in others.

Beauty is no inheritance.

A good conscience is to the soul,
what health is to the body.—Addison.

Better to do well late than never.

A willing mind makes a light foot.

8

Be captain of your own ship.

Though it be honest, it is never good to bring bad news, ill tidings tell themselves.—Ant. and Cleo., Act 2,
Scene 5.

Be wise with speed ; a fool at forty is a fool indeed.

A winking cat is not always blind.

Beggars must not be choosers.

Contentment is a pearl of great price, and whoever procures it at the expense of ten thousand desires makes a wise man and a happy purchase.—T.
Balquy.

Boldness does not always succeed.

A young man idle, an old man needy.

10

Be just and firm of purpose.

When the best things are not possible, the best may be made of those that are.—Hooker.

Be off with the old love before you are on with the new.

Bear and forbear.

11

Believe well and have well.

What fates impose that men must needs abide ; it boots not to resist both wind and tide.—Henry VI., Act 4,
Scene 3.

Catch not at the shadow and lose the substance.

Bear with evil and expect good.

12

Be not hasty to outbid another.

He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper ; but he is more excellent who can suit his temper to any circumstances.—Hume.

Cease to lament for that thou canst not help.

February.

Tufted Hair Grass.

Be temperate in all things.

13

The highest point outward things can bring one unto is the contentment of the mind, with which no estate is miserable.—Sir P. Sidney.

Charms strike the sight ; but merit wins the soul.

Better a fortune in her than on her.

14

Thou wouldst as soon go kindle fire with snow, as seek to quench the fire of love with words.—Two G. of V., Act 2, Scene 7.

Cheerfulness is medicine for the mind.

Better be envied than pitied.

15

To secure a contented spirit, measure your desires by your fortunes, and not your fortunes by your desires.—Jeremy Taylor.

Cheerfulness is perfectly consistent with piety.

Better be a beggar than a fool.

16

The advantage of conversation is such, that for want of company, a man had better talk to a post than let his thoughts lie smoking and smouldering.—Jeremy Collier.

Chide not severely or punish hastily.

Better be idle than ill employed.

17

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam, be it ever so humble there's no place like home.—J. Howard Payne.

Cloudy mornings often bring clear evenings.

Be ruled by your purse.

18

Before a man can speak of any subject, it is necessary to be acquainted with it.—Locke.

Command yourself and you will command all things.

Better do it than wish it done.

Better lose a jest than a friend.

Better one eye than quite blind.

Better salt than sour.

Better sit still than rise and fall.

Better to-day than to-morrow.

Smooth-stalked Meadow Grass.

February.

Better to laugh than cry.

Blood is thicker than water.

There are three things in speech that ought to be considered before some things are spoken—the manners, the place, and the time. —Southey.

Command your temper lest it command you.

Better to live well than long.

20

Blushing is virtue's colour.

No two things differ more than hurry and despatch. Hurry is the mark of a weak mind; despatch of a strong one. —Colton, Lacon.

Common sense is an inestimated companion.

Better wise than wealthy.

21

Bought wit is best.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation, they do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another. —Sir R. Steele.

Common sense is the growth of all centuries.

Be what you seem to be.

22

Business is the salt of life.

In conversation, humour is more than wit, easiness more than knowledge. —Sir W. Temple.

Compare your griefs with other men's and they will seem less.

Be ye not weary in well-doing.

23

Bustle is not industry.

All things are admired, either because they are new; or because they are great. —Lord Bacon.

Competency is the reward of frugality.

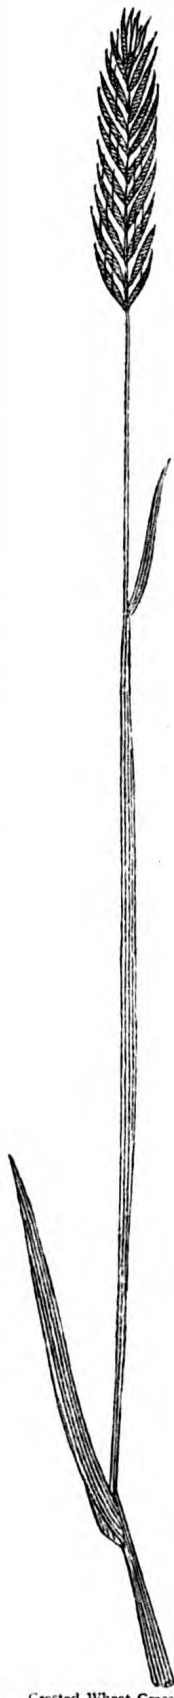

Bitter jests poison friendship.

24

By stratagem, not valour.

Many a man thinks admirably well, who has a poor utterance; while others have a charming manner of speech, but their thoughts are trifling. —Dr. T. Watts.

Comply cheerfully where necessity enjoins.

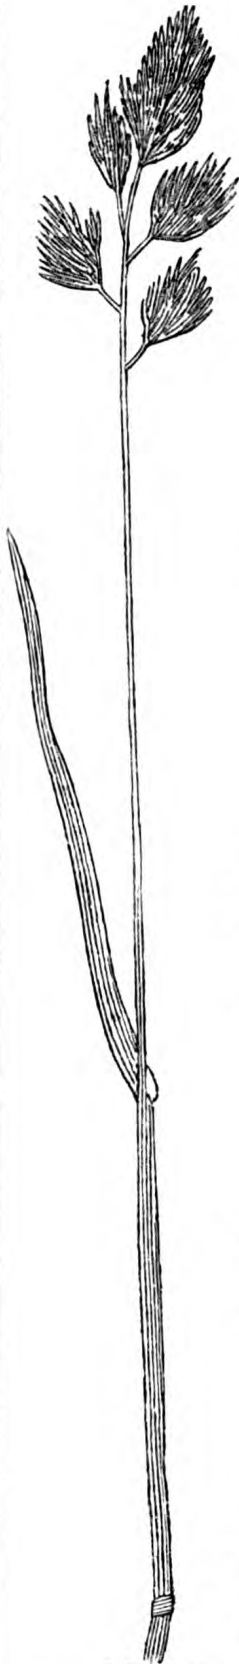

Crested Wheat Grass

Alpine Fox Tail Grass

February.

Cock's-foot Grass.

By wisdom, peace ; by peace, plenty.

25

Be just before you are generous.

Discretion is the perfection of reason, and a guide to win all the duties of life.

Conciliatory manners command esteem.

Bad rye grows high.

26

Believe half what you hear.

We must not be in a hurry to fix and choose our own lot, we must wait to be guided.—George Eliot.

Confide not in him who has once deceived you.

Beauty is but skin-deep.

27

Be not wise in your own conceit.

Beware that thou never tell thy dreams in company ; for notwithstanding thou mayst take a pleasure in telling thy dreams, the company will take no pleasure in hearing them.—Epictetus.

Confide without reservation, but confide in few.

Begin as you mean to go on.

28

Better late than never.

A body may as well lay too little as too much on a dream, but the less we heed them the better.—L'Estrange.

Confine your tongue lest it confine you.

Begin well if you wish to end well.

29

Better to rule by love than fear.

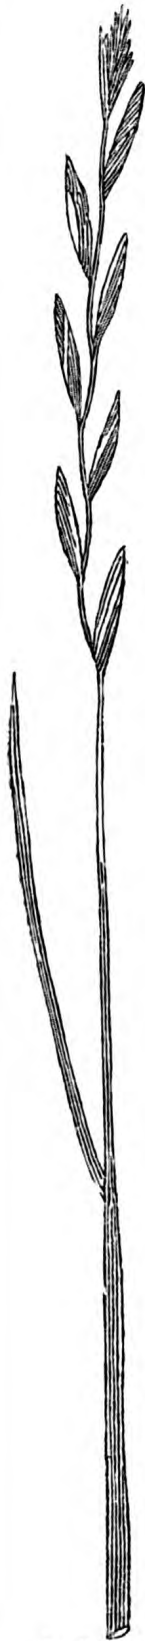

Affectation is an awkward and forced imitation of what should be genuine and easy, wanting the beauty that accompanies what is natural.—Locke.

Consider business well and despatch it quickly.

Hard Fescue Grass.

March.

Sea Wheat Grass.

Birds of a feather flock together.

Cast not pearls before swine.

The peacock in all his pride, does not display half the colours that appear in the garments of a British lady when she is dressed.—Addison.

Consideration is due to all things.

Borrowed garments never fit well.

Carefully spend and God will send.

He that has never known adversity, is but half acquainted with others, or with himself. Constant success shows us but one side of the world.—Colton, Lacon.

Contract your desires, if you wish for independence.

Brevity is the soul of wit.

Changes are lightsome.

Men love to hear of their power, but have an extreme disrelish to be told their duty.—Burke.

Could we forbear dispute, and practice love,

We should agree as angels do above.

Call me cousin, but cozen me not.

Cheating play never thrives.

There is not a moment without some duty.—Cicero.

Knowledge of our duties is the most useful part of philosophy.—Whately.

Count not him the happiest who is the richest.

Care's no cure.

Civility is a debt we owe to all.

The truth of it is, a woman seldom asks advice before she has bought her wedding clothes.—Addison, Spectator.

Credit not him whose tongue speaketh wonders.

Catch that catch may.

Cold hands, warm heart.

All mankind acknowledge themselves able and sufficient to do many things, which actually they never do.—South.

Course of true love never runs smooth.

Cat's Tail Grass.

March.

Comparisons are odious.

Courtesy commands esteem.

Whatever you dislike in another person, take care to correct in yourself.
—Sprat.

Content is the true philosopher's stone.

Confidence bestows success.

Covet nothing over much.

What great thing soever a man proposes to do in life, he should think of achieving it by fifty.—Sir W. Temple.

Cut your coat according to your cloth.

Contempt is the sharpest reproof.

Craft bringeth nothing home.

A wise man who does not assist in his counsels, a rich man with his charity, and a poor man with his labour, are perfect nuisances in a commonwealth.
—Swift.

Danger too long expected is always met too late.

Contentment is the best fortune.

10

Creep before you walk.

Ambitious men, if they be checked in their desires, become secretly discontent, and look upon men and matters with an evil eye.—Lord Bacon.

Dare to be good whatever evils may surround you.

Counsel is never out of date.

11

Crooked logs make straight fires.

Whatever amuses serves to kill time, to lull the faculties and to banish reflection.—Crabbe.

Deem every day in your life a leaf in your history.

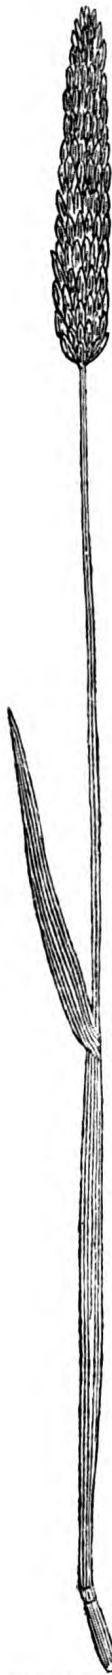

Cowards are always cruel.

12

Cultivate the love of truth.

What it is our duty to do we must do, because it is right, not because any one can demand it of us.—Whewell.

Deep rivers move with silent majesty; shallow brooks are noisy.

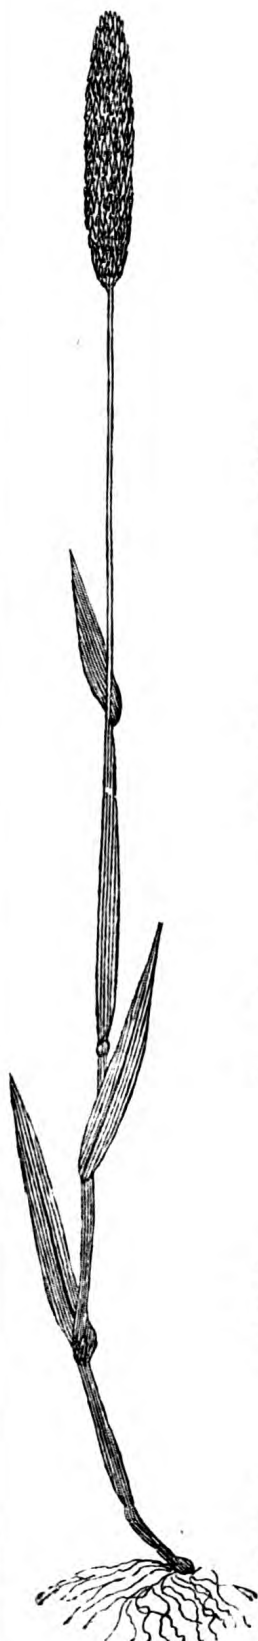

Michellan Cat's Tail Grass.

Reflexed Meadow Grass.

March.

Sea Cat's-tail Grass.

Custom makes anything easy.

13

Don't tell tales out of school.

Beware of little expenses; a small leak will sink a great ship. — B. Franklin.

Defend good principles as you would your life.

Cut and come again.

14

Deal small and serve all.

Mere innocent amusement is in itself good, when it interferes with no greater, especially as it may occupy the place of some other that may not be innocent. — Wlately.

Defer not till to-morrow to be wise, To-morrow's sun for thee may never rise.

Care killed a cat.

15

Debt is the worst kind of poverty.

Nothing is properly his duty but what is really his interest. — Bishop Wilkins.

Defer not time; delays have dangerous end.

Charity begins at home.

16

Denials make little faults great.

The great principle of human satisfaction is engagement. — Paley.

Deliberate long on that which you can do but once.

Dead men tell no tales.

17

Despise none, despair of none.

The anger of an enemy represents our faults, or admonishes us of our duty with more heartiness than the kindness of a friend. — Jeremy Taylor.

Deliberate slowly; execute promptly.

Delays are dangerous.

18

Diamond cut diamond.

The wise prove, and the foolish confess, by their conduct that a life of employment is the only life worth leading. — Paley.

Deliver your words not by number but by weight.

Small Close Reed.

March.

Fine Bent Grass.

Diet cures more than doctors.

19

Don't cry out before you're hurt.

Enthusiasm is that temper of mankind in which the imagination has got the better of the judgment.—Bishop Warburton.

Depend not on fortune, but good conduct.

Dirt goes before the broom.

20

Do not live poor to die rich.

Anxiety is the poison of human life. It is the parent of many sins and of more miseries.—Blair.

Deserve success, and you shall command it.

Doing nothing is doing ill.

21

Don't meet troubles half way.

He that has his own troubles and the happiness of his neighbours to disturb him, has work enough.—Jeremy Collier.

Despise not the poor, for you may want their virtue.

Doing nothing is the hardest work.

22

Don't wake a sleeping dog.

For one man who sincerely pities our misfortunes, there are a thousand who sincerely hate our success.—Colton, Lacon.

Difficulties to be surmounted must be met with energy.

Do as you would be done by.

23

Don't you wish you may get it.

By attention ideas are registered in the memory.—Locke.

I never knew any man cured of inattention.—Swift.

Discretion of speech is superior to eloquence.

Dogs bark before they bite.

24

Do well and have well.

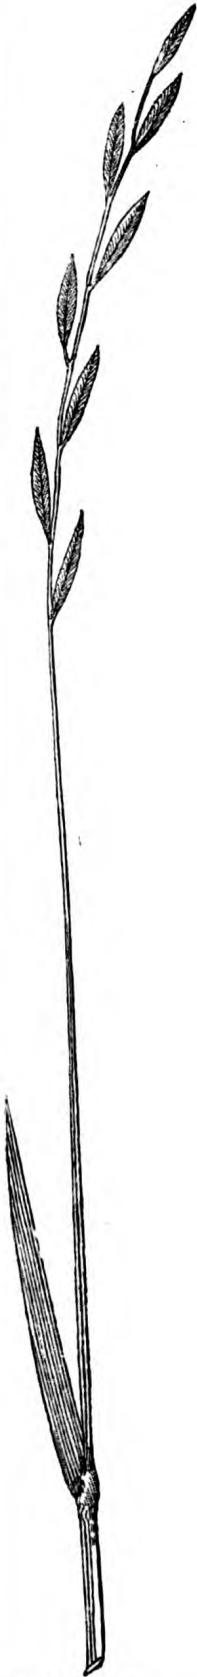

It is with a fine genius as with a fine fashion; all those are displeased at it who are not able to follow it.—Pope.

Do good and shun evil; this is the sum of human duty.

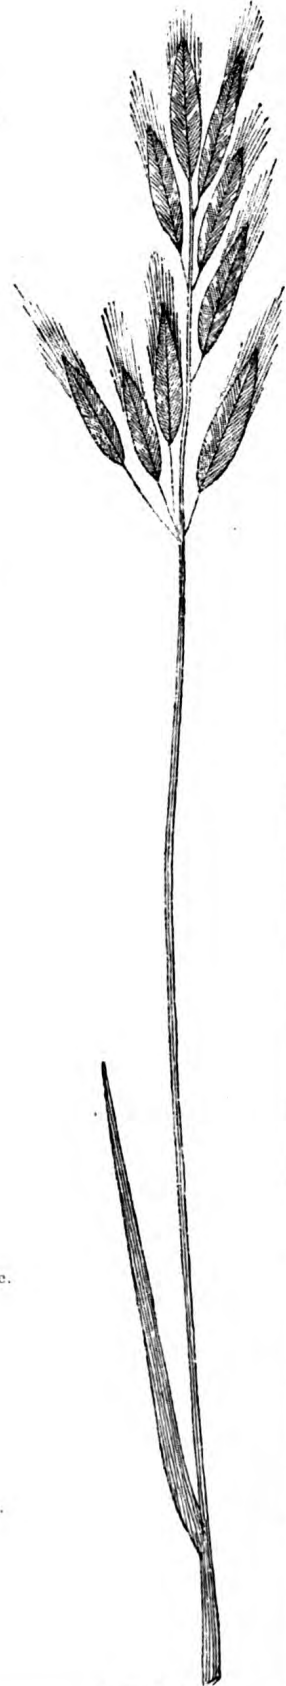

Holy Grass.

March.

Slender Fesser Grass.

Smooth Brome Grass.

Do what you ought come what may. 25

Evil news rides fast, while good news baits.—Milton.

Do good if you expect to receive any.

Duty is not only pleasant but cheap. 26

Reasons of things are rather to be taken by weight than tale.—Jeremy Collier.

Do good with what thou hast, or it will do thee no good.

Early birds catch the worms. 27

To be indifferent whether we embrace falsehood or truth is the great road to error.—Locke.

Do not put too many eggs in one basket.

Easy come, easy go. 28

Murmur at nothing. If our ills are reparable it is ungrateful; if remediless, it is vain.—Colton.

Do nothing to-day that you are likely to repent of to-morrow.

Eaten bread is soon forgotten. 29

Peaceable times are the best to live in, though not so proper to furnish materials for a writer.—Addison.

Do nothing you would wish to conceal.

Enough is as good as a feast. 30

The innocence of the intention abates nothing of the mischief of the example.—Robert Hall.

Do thine own work and know thyself.

Equivocation is as bad as a lie. 31

All is but lip-wisdom which wants experience.—Sir P. Sidney.

Draw not thy bow before thy arrow is fixed.

Every cloud has a silver lining.

Every dog has its day.

Every light hath its shadow.

Early sow, early mow.

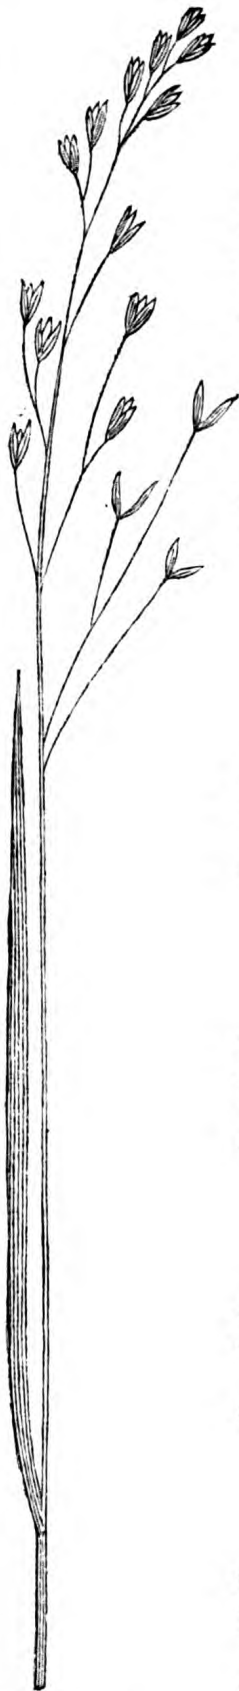

Eat a bit before you drink.

Eat what you can, but pocket none.

Enough and to spare is too much.

April.

Wood Melic Grass.

Crested Dog's-tail Grass

Every couple is not a pair.

Every light is not the sun.

Nothing but the right can ever be expedient, since that can never be true expediency, which would sacrifice a greater good to a less.—Whately.

Education polishes good dispositions, and corrects bad ones.

Envy never enriched any man

Every man's house is his castle.

Whilst you are prosperous you have many friends; but when the storm comes you are left alone.—Ovid.

Either never attempt, or accomplish.

Every day has its duties.

Every man is best known to himself.

A miser grows rich by seeming poor; an extravagant man grows poor by seeming rich.—Shenstone.

Empty vessels make the greatest sound.

Every Jack has his Jill.

Every one to his trade

I dislike an eye that twinkles like a star. Those only are beautiful, which, like the planets have a steady lambent light, are luminous, but sparkling.—Longfellow.

Endeavour for the best, and provide against the worst.

Every man has his humour.

Every path hath a puddle

The lasting and crowning privilege, or rather property of friendship, is constancy.—South.

Entertain not sin lest you meet its reward.

Every man hath his faults.

Every shoe fits not every foot.

'Tis not necessity but opinion that makes men miserable, and when we come to be fancy-sick there's no cure.—L'Estrange.

Envy is a turnkey by birth, and an executioner by profession.

April.

Sheep Fescue Grass.

Everything is good in its season.

Extremes seldom last long.

Conscience is a great ledger-book, in which all our offences are written and registered.—Robert Burton.

Envy waits at virtue's elbow.

Everything happens for the best.

8

Facts are stubborn things.

All things are in fate, yet all things are not decreed by fate.—Plato.

Equalize thy temper, excel in good works, be just, vigorous, and firm.

Everything would live.

Faint praise is disparagement.

Procure not friends in haste, and when thou hast a friend part not with him in haste.—Solon.

Every man is a pilot on a calm sea.

Every tide has its ebb.

10

Fair faces need no paint.

What must be shall be ; and that which is a necessity to him that struggles is little more than a choice to him that is willing.—Seneca.

Every one can master grief but he who has it.

Everything is the worse for wearing.

11

Fancy is a pretty dog.

Conversation is the music of the mind. An intellectual orchestra, where all the instruments should bear a part, but where none should play together.—Colton, Lacon.

Every one is as God made him, and oftentimes a great deal worse.

Evil gotten, evil spent

12

Fancy goes a long way.

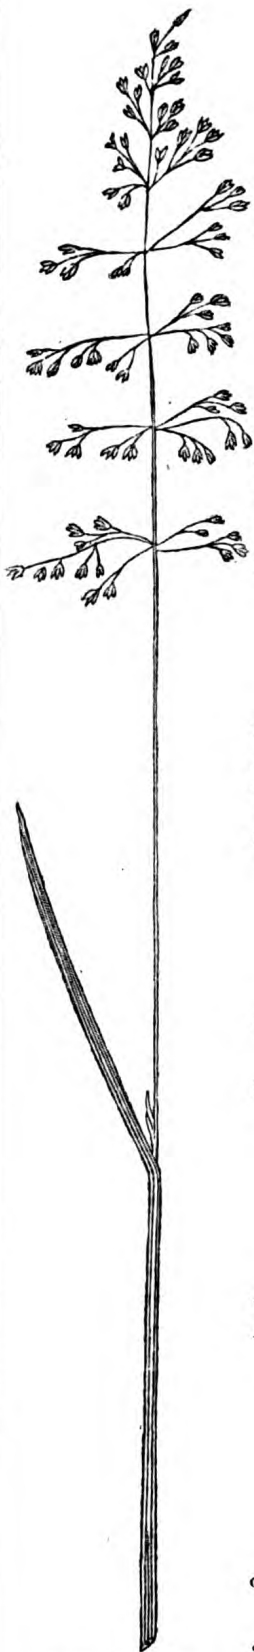

Fear is far more painful to cowardice, than death to true courage.—Sir P. Sidney.

Evil communications corrupt good manners.

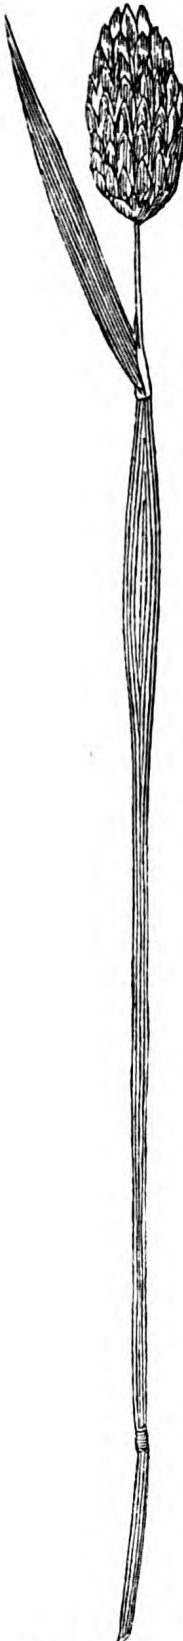

Slender Fox Tail Grass.

April.

Rough-stalked Meadow Grass.

Manured Canary Grass.

Example is better than precept.

13

Fancy passes beauty.

Were we eloquent as angels, yet we should please some men, women, and children much more by listening than by talking.—Colton, Lacon.

Examine well the counsel that favours your desires.

Far from court, far from care.

14

First come, first served.

Flattery corrupts both the receiver and the giver; and adulation is not of more service to people than to kings.—Burke.

Expect nothing from him who is lavish in his promises.

Fast bind and fast find.

15

Flattery is nauseous.

The first ingredient in conversation is truth, the next good sense, the third good humour, and the fourth wit.—Sir W. Temple.

Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other.

Favours unused are favours abused.

16

Fools laugh at their own wit.

He that is much flattered soon learns to flatter himself.—Dr. S. Johnson.

External beauty may captivate, but internal worth will secure.

Few words are best.

19

Forbidden fruit is sweet.

Every man in the time of courtship, and in the first entrance of marriage, puts on a behaviour like my correspondent's holiday suit.—Addison.

Fewer acquaintances and more friends.

Forced fruits fail in flavour.

20

Fair play is a jewel.

Fortune gives too much to many, but to none enough.—Martial.

First learn to obey before you intend to govern.

Forewarned is forearmed.

21

Familiarity breeds contempt.

By custom, practice and patience, all difficulties and hardships, whether of body or of fortune, are made easy.—L'Estrange.

Follow the dictates of reason, not of passion.

Forecast is better than hard work.

22

Fine feathers make fine birds.

Men find it more easy to flatter than to praise.—Richter.

Follow the wise few rather than the vulgar many.

Forgive any sooner than thyself.

26

Get wealth honestly

Humanity is never so beautiful as when praying for forgiveness, or else forgiving another.—Richter.

Form is good, but not formality.

Great cry and little wool.

27

Give it plenty of elbow grease.

Few ever lived to a great age, and fewer still ever became distinguished, who were not in the habit of rising early.—Dr. J. Todd.

Fortitude without wisdom is but rashness.

Great haste, no speed.

28

Good actions merit attention.

A fop of fashion is the mercer's friend, the tailor's fool, and his own foe.—Lavater.

Get a name for rising early, and you may lie in bed all day.

Grey hairs are honourable.

29

Good advice is never out of season.

The man who will live above his present circumstances is in great danger of living, in a little time, much beneath them.—Addison.

Get justly, use soberly, distribute cheerfully, and live contentedly.

Gather thistles, expect prickles.

30

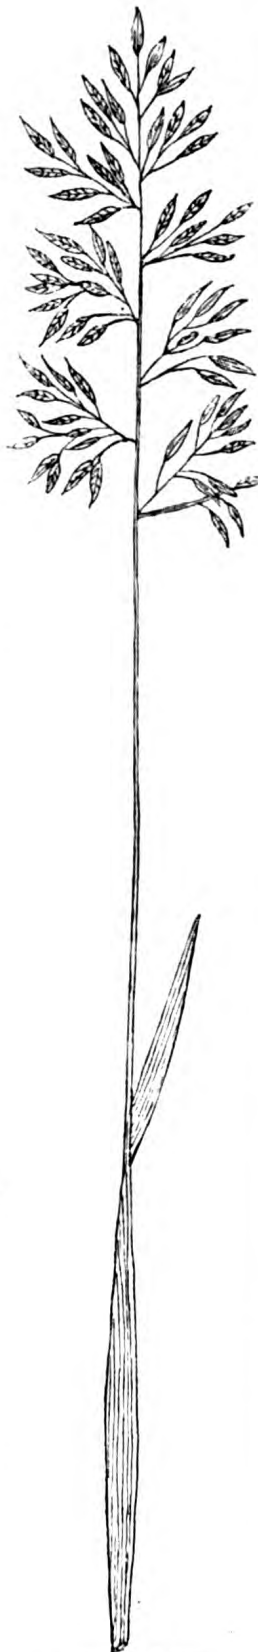

Good counsel is above all price.

Life is no life, without the blessing of a friendly and edifying conversation.—L'Esrange.

Practice makes perfect.

Prudence excels strength.

Like a morning dream, life becomes more and more bright the longer we live, and the reason of everything appears more clear.—Richter.

Nothing is difficult to the brave and faithful.

Pride and ignorance go together.

Pry not into other people's affairs.

Ambition breaks the ties of blood, and forgets the obligations of gratitude.

—Sir Walter Scott.

Now what a thing it is to be an ass.

Pride feels no pain.

Puff not against the wind.

The mind ought sometimes to be amused, that it may the better return to thought and to itself.—Phaedrus.

Of all flatterers self-love is the greatest.

Promise little and do much.

Pull gently on a weak rope.

The origin of all mankind was the same; it is only a clear and a good conscience that makes a man noble, for that is derived from heaven itself.—Ibid.

Of all poverty that of the mind is the most deplorable.

Proud men have no real friends.

Punctuality begets confidence.

When a man is wrong, and won't admit it, he always gets angry.—Haliburton.

Of all studies, study your present condition.

Provide for a rainy day.

Put a stout heart to a steep hill.

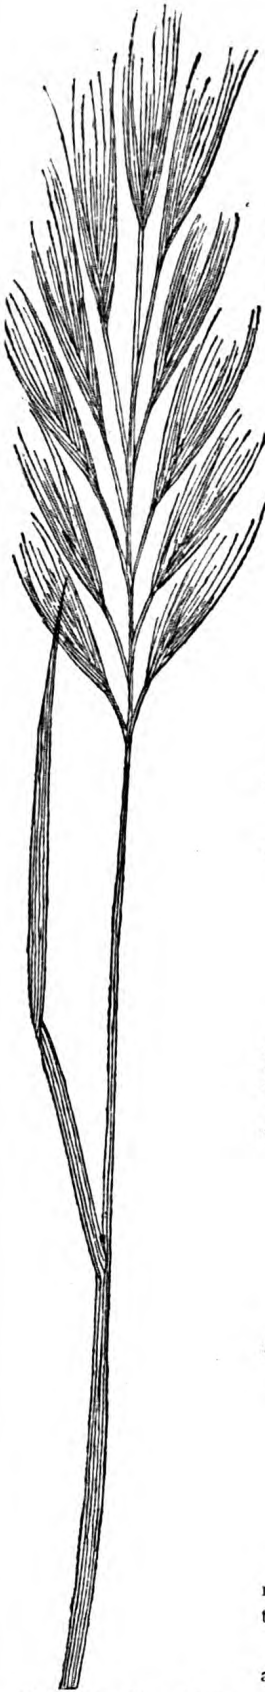

It is not work that kills men; it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more upon a man than he can bear. Worry is rust on the blade.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Of all the virtues, gratitude has the shortest memory.

A slowness too appraised betrays a cold temper or an envious spirit.—Hannah More.

Of two evils the less is always to be chosen.

Patience is a virtue.

Quick at meat quick at work.

The whole world without art and dress would be but one great wilderness.—Butler.

One bad example spoils many precepts.

Penny wise and pound foolish.

Quick returns make rich merchants.

That is the best part of beauty which a picture cannot express.—Bacon.

Pity is a poor doctor.

10

Rome was not built in a day.

When angry, count ten before you speak; if very angry, a hundred.—Jefferson.

One never loses by doing a good turn.

Pride goes before a fall.

11

Render good for evil.

A brave man is clear in his discourse, and keeps close to truth.—Aristotle.

Pardon others often, thyself seldom.

Pride will have a fall.

12

Reserve the master blow.

There are in business three things necessary—knowledge, temper, and time.—Feltham.

Patience and perseverance overcome all difficulties.

Pay as you go, and keep from small scores.

Right wrongs no man.

Second thoughts are often best.

Providence has given us hope and sleep as a compensation for the many cares of life.—Voltaire.

Perform what you promise, but mind what you do promise.

Roses, mind you, have thorns.

15

Scorning is catching.

A woman who wants a charitable heart wants a pure mind.—Haliburton.

Pin not your faith on another's sleeve.

Safe bind, safe find.

16

Second trials often succeed.

A merry heart goes all the day; a sad tires in a mile.—Shakespeare.

Positive men are most often in error.

Save me from my friends.

17

Sweep before your own door.

A cheerful temper, not occasionally but habitually cheerful, is a quality which no wise man would be willing to dispense with in choosing a wife.—Mrs. Ellis.

Poverty and shame attend those who refuse instruction.

Saying and doing are two things.

21

Ships fear fire more than water.

A crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk but a tinkling cymbal, where there is no love.—Bacon.

Prefer that glory which endures to all eternity.

Small things effect little minds.

22

Self do, self have.

Curiosity is the kernel of forbidden fruit, which still sticketh in the throat of a natural man, sometimes to the danger of his choking.—Fuller.

Presence of mind is necessary at all times.

Soon hot, soon cold.

23

Small rain lays great dust.

The dews of the evening most carefully shun; those tears of the sky for the loss of the sun.—Chesterfield.

Pride hides our own faults, and magnifies the faults of others.

Speak well of the dead.

Middleton*.

Use time as tho' you knew its value.

A soft answer turneth away wrath. 17

If thou art a master, be sometimes blind; if a servant, sometimes deaf.—
Fuller.

Usurp not the privileges of another.

A still tongue makes a wise head. 18

Marriage is the best estate for man in general, and every man is a worse man in proportion as he is unfit for the marriage state.— Fuller.

Vanity renders beauty contemptible.

A stitch in time saves nine.

As ye sow, so shall ye reap.

A tale never loses in the telling.

A thing of beauty is a joy for ever.

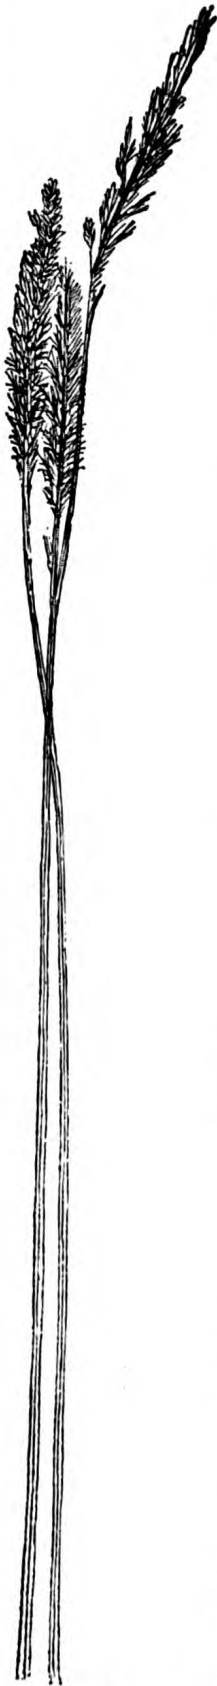

A word in season how good it is.

April showers bring forth May flowers.

Creeping Soft Grass
(Holcus Biaristatus.)

December.

Hard Sweet Grass.

A fool and his money are soon parted.

19

The tongue talks at the head's cost.

Joy, temperance, and repose
Slam the door on the doctor's nose.

Longfellow.

Virtue, not lineage, is the mark of nobility.

A drowning man will catch a straw.

20

Smooth water runs deep.

The leaves of memory seem to make
A mournful rustling in the dark.

Longfellow.

Vows made in storms are forgotten in calms.

Happy go lucky.

21

Procrastination is the thief of time.

The good are heaven's peculiar care.
—Ovid.

Want of punctuality is a species of falsehood.

He that runs fastest gets the prize.

22

Live, and let live.

There are but three classes of men :
the retrograde, the stationary, and the progressive.—Lavater.

We know what we are, but know not what we may be.

It is easier to forgive than to forget.

23

Love me little, love me long

We do not commonly find men of superior sense among those of the highest fortune.—Juvenal.

We that have good wits have much to answer for.

It is better to be born lucky than rich.

24

Much meat, much malady.

Beauties in vain their pretty eyes may roll ;
Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul.—Pope.

What sculpture is to a block of marble, education is to the mind.

Water Whorl Grass.

December.

Expanding Silvery Hair Grass.

Nip it in the bud.

The mind in its own place, and in itself, can make a heaven of hell, a hell of heaven.—Milton.

When one will not, two cannot quarrel.

Need makes the old wife trot.

Humility, that low, sweet root
From which all heavenly virtues shoot.

Moore.

Wherever there is flattery, there is sure to be a fool.

Punctuality is the soul of business.

Seldom ever was any knowledge given to keep, but to impart; the grace of this rich jewel is lost in concealment.—Bishop Hall.

Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise.

Revenge dwells only in little minds.

The desire of knowledge, like the thirst of riches, increases ever with the acquisition of it.—Sterne.

Your looking-glass will tell you what none of your friends will.

The biggest rogue cries loudest out.

Getting money is not all a man's business; to cultivate kindness is a great part of the business of life.—Johnson.

You cannot eat your cake, and have it.

Redeem misspent time by industry.

Like the sun, true merit shews;
By nature warm, by nature bright,
With inbred flames he nobly glows,
Nor needs the aid of borrowed light.

Bickerstaff.

Youth is the season for improvement.

Talkers are not good doers.

Beauties in vain their pretty eyes may roll;
Charms strike the sight, but merit wins the soul.—Pope.

Zeal in a good cause is always commendable.

25 Meddle not with what concerns you not.

26 The sleeping fox catches no poultry.

27 What can't be cured must be endured.

28 There's no rule without an exception.

29 Never quit certainty for hope.

30 Say what is well, and do what is better.

31 Truth loves open dealing.

Meadow Fescue Grass.

AUTUMN.

Lap me in soft Lydian airs,
Married to immortal verse,
Such as the melting soul may pierce
In notes, with many a winding bout
Of linked sweetness long drawn out.

Creeping Soft Grass, (Holcus Parviflorus.)

WINTER.

'Tis Winter's jubilee: this day
Her stores their countless treasures yield.
See how the diamond glances play
In ceaseless blaze from field to field.

Turned Field Brome Grass.

Confessions.

Yield me a direct answer.

What virtue do you most esteem?

Do thou but think what 'tis to cram.

Define briefly your ideal man.

Believe you think what now you speak.

Define briefly your ideal woman.

Speak in sober judgment.

What do you consider the most beautiful thing in nature?

Tell me some good.

What is your favourite piece of poetry?

Think now what I would speak.

Your favourite novelist and poet.
Your favourite amusement.
Your favourite study.
Your favourite historical hero and heroine.

Annual Meadow Grass.

Confessions—Continued.

I'll confess the truth.

What is your idea of the greatest earthly happiness?

Not bound to please with mine answer.

Also your greatest misery.

Frankly he confessed.

What peculiarity can you most tolerate?

I know this to be true.

What is the vice you most detest?

Answer I must.

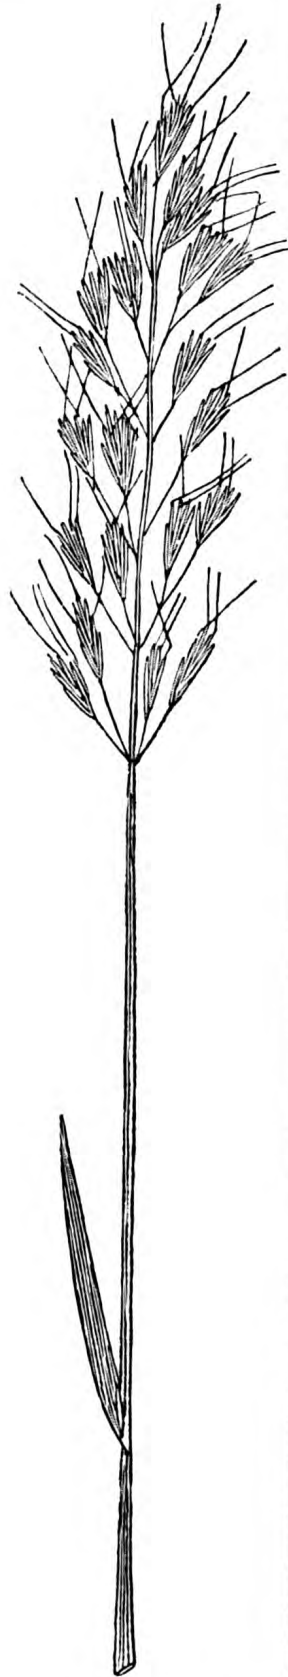

What is your favourite quotation?

My life shall prove it true.

Your favourite hero in fiction.
Your favourite heroine.
Whom do you consider the greatest living orator?
What opera do you most admire?

Barren Brome Grass.

Downy Oat Grass.

Confessions—Continued.

No wisdom to confess so much.

What is your opinion of the girl of the period?

Confess the truth.

What is your opinion of the young man of the period?

I pray tell me this.

At what age should a man marry?

Can you tell by your wit

At what age should a woman marry?

Make me a wholesome answer.

Do you believe in love at first sight?

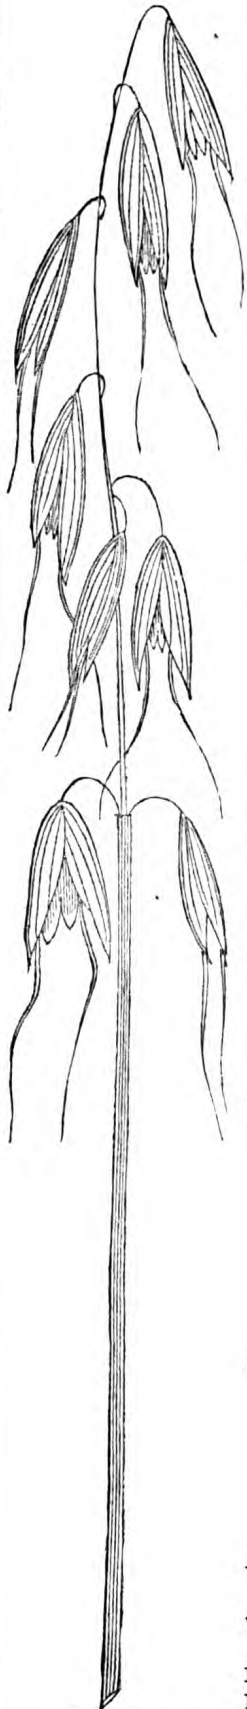

He's simple and tells much.

What musical instrument do you like best?

What musical composer do you like best?

Name your pet flower.

Name your pet animal.

Wild Oat Grass.

Hairy Wood Brome Grass.

Confessions—Continued.

Wit would think that I had none.

Is a lady justified in concealing her age?

In pain to tell my story.

Should it be the ladies' prerogative to pop the question?

Perforce I must confess.

Do you believe in marrying for love and working for money?

I care not who knows so much.

Were you ever in love, and if so, how often?

I'll tell thee on the instant.

Your favourite proverb.

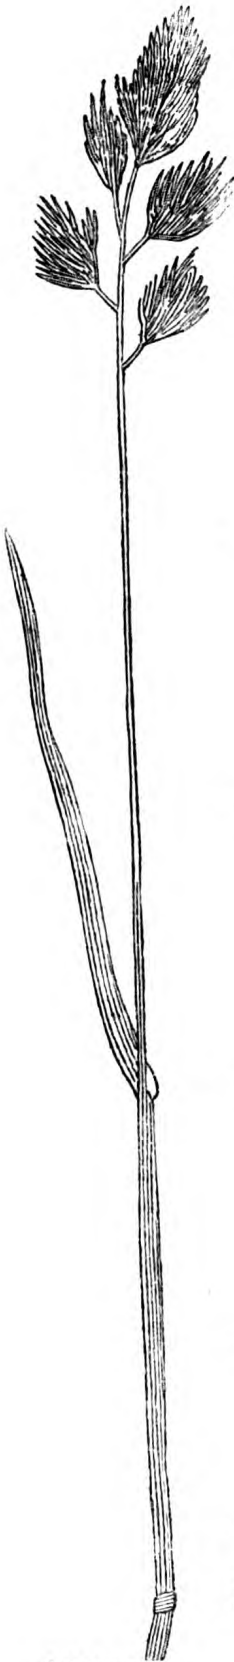

My simple true judgment.

What coloured eyes and hair do you most admire?

Name your pet colour.

Your age next birth-day.
