THE LIFE OF

WILLIAM FALCONER.

THE obscurity in which the early part of the life of William Falconer is involved, precludes us from detailing memoirs and anecdotes of him anterior to the year 1751, or even his education. Scotland has the honour of giving birth to this extraordinary genius, who, rising superior to every impediment which surrounded him, displayed his poetic powers at a very early age, in a small poem which he published at Edinburgh in the year 1751, on the death of the Prince of Wales, under the title of—A Poem, sacred to the Memory of the Prince of Wales.

From this time till the year 1762, we have no traces of his genius ; he then published his beautiful Poem of The Shipwreck, in three cantos, by a Sailor. The main subject of this masterly composition, is a descriptive account of the voyage of the Britannia merchantman, from Alexandria in Egypt to Venice : after touching at the Isle of Candia, she was proceeding on her voyage, when she encountered a violent storm, that drove her on the coast of Greece, near Cape Colonna, where she unfortunately suffered shipwreck ; three only of the crew escaping with their lives. This admirable Poem, which has fixed his fame on the solid basis of universal approbation, partakes more of the effusions of fancy than the labours of art, which he displays in new and original scenes, taken from nature and his own actual observation, and enriched with all the variety of description that can charm, interest, and impress the mind of the reader. He displays an ample combination of nautical ability, in language conformable to marine technical terms, embellished with all the spontaneous flow and smooth harmony of verse.

The Author inscribed this Poem to the late Duke of York, next brother to his Majesty, then an officer in the Royal Navy.—That he was exposed to all the complicated horrors he so forcibly and pathetically describes appears from several parts of this poem, and more particularly the motto,

—————quæque ipse miserrima vidi,
Et quorum pars magna fui—————

This performance met with a reception highly flattering to our Author's reputation. He was now patronized by the Duke of York, to whom he addressed—An Ode on his second Departure from England as Rear Admiral; and, emerging from the obscurity of his former situation, was appointed Purser of the Royal George man of war.

The Demagogue, a satirical piece, was his next avowed publication, in which he attacks with acrimony the public conduct of the late Lord Chatham, who, at that time, espoused Mr. Wilkes, then under prosecution by government for a libel.

The favourable reception his poem of The Shipwreck met with, induced him, in 1764, to publish a new edition, enlarged with upwards of a thousand lines, containing new descriptions, characters, &c.

In 1769 his Marine Dictionary made its appearance; a work of much ingenuity, and replete with information for such as wish to acquire a proficiency in naval architecture or nautical knowledge.

A third edition of his Shipwreck, with alterations and additions, appeared soon afterward, which again added to the reputation he had before acquired.

In this year, 1769, an advantageous prospect presenting itself to his view in the East Indies, he embarked on board the Aurora frigate, in company with several East India supercargoes, for Bengal ; but from the time the ship left the Cape of Good Hope, in December 1769, no information whatever being ever received of her, she was supposed to have perished at sea ; and our Poet, with the passengers and crew, in all probability, unfortunately shared the fate of their vessel.

SHIPWRECK.

CANTO I.

ARGUMENT.

Proposal of the subject. Invocation. Apology. Allegorical description of Memory. Appeal to her assistance. The story begun. Retrospect of the former part of the voyage. The ship arrives at Candia. Ancient state of that island. Present state of the adjacent isles of Greece. The season of the year. Character of the master and his officers. Story of Palemon and Anna. Evening described. Midnight. The ship weighs anchor and departs from the haven. State of the weather. Morning. Situation of the neighbouring shores. Operation of taking the Sun's Azimuth. Description of the vessel as seen from the land.

The scene is near the city of Candia; and the Time about Four Days and a Half.

THE

CANTO I.

WHILE jarring interests wake the world to arms,
And fright the peaceful vale with dire alarms ;
While Ocean hears vindictive thunders roll
Along his trembling wave from pole to pole ;
Sick of the scene, where War, with ruthless hand
Spreads desolation o'er the bleeding land ;
Sick of the tumult, where the trumpet's breath
Bids ruin smile, and drowns the groan of death !
'Tis mine, retir'd beneath this cavern hoar,
That stands all lonely on the sea-beat shore,
Far other themes of deep distress to sing
Than ever trembled from the vocal string.
No pomp of battle swells th' exalted strain,
Nor gleaming arms ring dreadful on the plain :

Invocation.

---

But, o'er the scene while pale Remembrance weeps,
Fate with fell triumph rides upon the deeps.
Here hostile elements tumultuous rise,
And lawless floods rebel against the skies ;
Till hope expires, and Peril and Dismay
Wave their black ensigns on the watery way.

Immortal train, who guide the maze of song,
To whom all science, arts, and arms belong ;
Who bid the trumpet of eternal fame
Exalt the warrior's and the poet's name !
If e'er with trembling hope I fondly stray'd,
In Life's fair morn, beneath your hallow'd shade ;
To hear the sweetly-mournful lute complain,
And melt the heart with ecstasy of pain ;
Or listen, while th' enchanting voice of Love,
While all Elysium warbled thro' the grove ;
O ! by the hollow blast that moans around,
That sweeps the wild harp with a plaintive sound ;
By the long surge that foams thro' yonder cave,
Whose vaults re-murmur to the roaring wave ;
With living colours give my verse to glow,
The sad memorial of a tale of woe !
A scene from dumb oblivion to restore,
To fame unknown, and new to epic lore !

Alas ! neglected by the sacred Nine,
Their suppliant feels no genial ray divine !

Invocation.

---

---

Ah! will they leave Pieria's happy shore,
To plough the tide where wint'ry tempests roar?
Or shall a youth approach their hallow'd fane,
Stranger to Phœbus, and the tuneful train?—
Far from the Muses' academic grove,
'Twas his the vast and trackless deep to rove.
Alternate change of climates has he known,
And felt the fierce extremes of either zone;
Where polar skies congeal th' eternal snow,
Or equinoctial suns for ever glow.
Smote by the freezing or the scorching blast,
'A ship-boy on the high and giddy mast*,'
From regions where Peruvian billows roar,
To the bleak coasts of savage Labrador.
From where Damascus, pride of Asian plains!
Stoops her proud neck beneath tyrannic chains,
To where the Isthmust, lav'd by adverse tides,
Atlantic and Pacific seas divides.
But while he measur'd o'er the painful race,
In Fortune's wild illimitable chase,
Adversity, companion of his way!
Still o'er the victim hung with iron sway;
Bade new distresses every instant grow,
Marking each change of place with change of woe.

Invocation

In regions where th' Almighty's chastening hand
With livid pestilence afflicts the land ;
Or where pale Famine blasts the hopeful year,
Parent of Want and Misery severe !
Or where, all dreadful in th' embattled line,
The hostile ships in flaming combat join :
Where the torn vessel wind and wave assail,
Till o'er her crew distress and death prevail—
Where'er he wander'd, thus vindictive Fate
Pursu'd his weary steps with lasting hate !
Rous'd by her mandate, storms of black array
Winter'd the morn of life's advancing day ;
Relax'd the sinews of the living lyre,
And quench'd the kindling spark of vital fire.—
Thus while forgotten or unknown he woos,
What hope to win, the coy, reluctant Muse !
Then let not Censure, with malignant joy,
The harvest of his humble hope destroy !
His verse no laurel-wreath attempts to claim,
Nor sculptur'd brass to tell the poet's name.
If terms uncouth, and jarring phrases, wound
The softer sense with inharmonious sound,
Yet here let list'ning Sympathy prevail,
While conscious Truth unfolds her piteous tale !
And lo ! the power that wakes th' eventful song
Hastes hither from Lethean banks along :

Invocation.

---

She sweeps the gloom, and rushing on the sight,
Spreads o'er the kindling scene propitious light !
In her right-hand an ample roll appears,
Fraught with long annals of preceding years ;
With every wise and noble art of man,
Since first the circling hours their course began.
Her left a silver wand on high display'd,
Whose magic touch dispels Oblivion's shade.
Pensive her look ; on radiant wings, that glow
Like Juno's birds, or Iris' flaming bow,
She sails ; and swifter than the course of light,
Directs her rapid intellectual flight.

The fugitive ideas she restores,                    [shores.
And calls the wandering thought from Lethe's
To things long past a second date she gives,
And hoary Time from her fresh youth receives.
Congenial sister of immortal Fame,
She shares her power, and Memory is her name.

O first-born daughter of primeval Time !
By whom transmitted down in every clime,
The deeds of ages long elaps'd are known,
And blazon'd glories spread from zone to zone ;
Whose breath dissolves the gloom of mental night,
And o'er th' obscur'd idea pours the light !
Whose wing unerring glides thro' time and place,
And trackless scours th' immensity of space !

The Story begun.

---

Say! on what seas, for thou alone canst tell,
What dire mishap a fated ship befel,
Assail'd by tempests! girt with hostile shores?
Arise! approach! unlock thy treasur'd stores!

A ship from Egypt, o'er the deep impell'd
By guiding winds, her course for Venice held;
Of fam'd Britannia were the gallant crew,
And from that isle her name the vessel drew.
The wayward steps of Fortune, that delude
Full oft to ruin, eager they pursu'd;
And, dazzled by her visionary glare,
Advanc'd incautious of each fatal snare;
Tho' warn'd full oft the slippery track to shun,
Yet Hope, with flattering voice, betray'd them on.
Beguil'd to danger thus, they left behind
The scene of peace, and social joy resign'd.
Long absent they, from friends and native home,
The cheerless ocean were inur'd to roam:
Yet Heav'n, in pity to severe distress,
Had crown'd each painful voyage with success:
Still to atone for toils and hazards past,
Restor'd them to maternal plains at last.

Thrice had the sun, to rule the varying year,
Across th' equator roll'd his flaming sphere,
Since last the vessel spread her ample sail
From Albion's coast, obsequious to the gale.

Candia.

---

---

She o'er the spacious flood, from shore to shore,
Unwearying wafted her commercial store.
The richest ports of Africa she had view'd,
Thence to fair Italy her course pursu'd ;
Had left behind Trinacria's burning isle,
And visited the margin of the Nile.
And now, that winter deepens round the pole,
The circling voyage hastens to its goal,
They, blind to Fate's inevitable law,
No dark event to blast their hope foresaw :
But from gay Venice soon expect to steer
For Britain's coast, and dread no perils near.
A thousand tender thoughts their souls employ,
That fondly dance to scenes of future joy.

Thus time elaps'd, while o'er the pathless tide
Their ship thro' Grecian seas the pilots guide.
Occasion call'd to touch at Candia's shore,
Which, blest with favouring winds, they soon
The haven enter, borne before the gale, [explore :
Dispatch their commerce, and prepare to sail.

Eternal powers ! what ruins from afar
Mark the fell track of desolating War !
Here Art and Commerce, with auspicious reign,
Once breath'd sweet influence on the happy plain !
While o'er the lawn, with dance and festive song,
Young Pleasure led the jocund hours along.

Candia.

In gay luxuriance Ceres too was seen
 To crown the valleys with eternal green.
 For wealth, for valour, courted and rever'd,
 What Albion is, fair Candia then appear'd.—
 Ah! who the flight of ages can revoke?
 The free-born spirit of her sons is broke;
 They bow to Ottoman's imperious yoke!
 No longer Fame the drooping heart inspires,
 For rude Oppression quench'd its genial fires.
 But still her fields, with golden harvests crown'd,
 Supply the barren shores of Greece around.
 What pale distress afflicts those wretched isles!
 There Hopene'er dawns, and Pleasure never smiles.
 The vassal wretch obsequious drags his chain,
 And hears his famish'd babes lament in vain.
 These eyes have seen the dull reluctant soil
 A sev'nth year mock the weary lab'rer's toil.
 No blooming Venus, on the desert shore,
 Now views, with triumph, captive gods adore:
 No lovely Helens now, with fatal charms,
 Call forth th' avenging chiefs of Greece to arms:
 No fair Penelopes enchant the eye,
 For whom contending kings are proud to die.
 Here sullen Beauty sheds a twilight ray,
 While sorrow bids her vernal bloom decay.
 Those charms, so long renown'd in classic strains,
 Had dimly shone on Albion's happier plains!

The Season.

---

Now, in the southern hemisphere, the sun
Thro' the bright Virgin and the Scales had run ;
And on th' ecliptic wheel'd his winding way,
Till the fierce Scorpion felt his flaming ray.
The ship was moor'd beside the wave-worn strand ;
Four days her anchors bite the golden sand :
For sick'ning vapours lull the air to sleep,
And not a breeze awakes the silent deep.
This, when th' autumnal equinox is o'er,
And Phœbus in the north declines no more,
The watchful mariner, whom Heaven informs,
Oft deems the prelude of approaching storms.
True to his trust, when sacred duty calls,
No brooding storm the master's soul appals ;
Th' advancing season warns him to the main :—
A captive, fetter'd to the oar of gain :
His anxious heart, impatient of delay,
Expects the winds to sail from Candia's bay ;
Determin'd from whatever point they rise,
To trust his fortune to the seas and skies.

Thou living ray of intellectual fire,
Whose voluntary gleams my verse inspire !
Ere yet the deep'ning incidents prevail,
Till rous'd attention feel our plaintive tale,
Record whom, chief among the gallant crew,
Th' unblest pursuit of fortune hither drew !

Albert.

---

Can sons of Neptune, generous, brave and bold,
In pain and hazard toil for sordid gold ?

They can ! for gold, too oft, with magic art,
Subdues each nobler impulse of the heart :
This crowns the prosperous villain with applause,
To whom, in vain, sad Merit pleads her cause :
This strews with roses Life's perplexing road,
And leads the way to Pleasure's soft abode ;
With slaughter'd victims fills the weeping plain,
And smooths the furrows of the treacherous main.

O'er the gay vessel, and her daring band,
Experienc'd Albert held the chief command ;
Tho' train'd in boisterous elements, his mind
Was yet by soft humanity refin'd.
Each joy of wedded love at home he knew ;
Abroad confest the father of his crew !
Brave, liberal, just—the calm domestic scene
Had o'er his temper breath'd a gay serene.
Him Science taught by mystic lore to trace
The planets wheeling in eternal race ;
To mark the ship in floating balance held,
By earth attracted and by seas repell'd ;
Or point her devious track thro' climes unknown,
That leads to every shore and every zone.
He saw the moon thro' heav'n's blue concave glide,
And into motion charm th' expanding tide ;

Rodmond.

---

---

While earth impetuous round her axle rolls,
Exalts her watery zone, and sink the poles,
Light and attraction, from their genial source,
He saw still wand'ring with diminish'd force:
While on the margin of declining day,
Night's shadowy cone reluctant melts away.—
Inur'd to peril, with unconquer'd soul,
The chief beheld tempestuous oceans roll;
His genius, ever for th' event prepar'd,
Rose with the storm, and all its dangers shar'd.

The second powers and office Rodmond bore:
A hardy son of England's furthest shore,
Where bleak Northumbria pours her savage train
In sable squadrons o'er the northern main:
That, with her pitchy entrails stor'd, resort,
A sooty tribe, to fair Augusta's port.
Where'er in ambush lurk the fatal sands,
They claim the danger; proud of skilful bands;
For while with darkling course their vessels sweep
The winding shore, or plough the faithless deep,
O'er bar* and shelf the watery path they sound
With dexterous arm; sagacious of the ground!
Fearless they combat every hostile wind,
Wheeling in mazy tracks with course inclin'd.

* A bar is known, in hydrography, to be a mass of earth or sand collected by the surge of the sea, at the entrance of a river or haven, so as to render the navigation difficult, and very often dangerous.

Rodmond.

---

Expert to moor, where terrors line the road,
Or win the anchor from its dark abode :
But drooping and relax'd in climes afar,
Tumultuous and undisciplin'd in war.
Such Rodmond was ; by learning unrefin'd,
That oft enlightens to corrupt the mind.
Boisterous of manners ; train'd in early youth
To scenes that shame the conscious cheek of Truth ;
To scenes that Nature's struggling voice control,
And freeze compassion rising in the soul ! [shore,
Where the grim hell-hounds prowling round the
With foul intent the stranded bark explore—
Deaf to the voice of woe, her decks they board,
While tardy Justice slumbers o'er her sword—
Th' indignant Muse, severely taught to feel,
Shrinks from a theme she blushes to reveal !
Too oft example, arm'd with poisons fell,
Pollutes the shrine where Mercy loves to dwell :
Thus Rodmond, train'd by this unhallow'd crew,
The sacred social passions never knew :
Unskill'd to argue, in dispute yet loud ;
Bold without caution ; without honours proud :
In art unschool'd ; each veteran rule he priz'd,
And all improvement haughtily despis'd.
Yet though full oft to future perils blind,
With skill superior glow'd his daring mind,

Arion.

Thro' snares of death the reeling bark to guide,
When midnight shades involve the raging tide.

To Rodmond next, in order of command,
Succeeds the youngest of our naval band.

But what avails it to record a name

That courts no rank among the sons of Fame?

While yet a stripling, oft with fond alarms

His bosom danc'd to Nature's boundless charms,

On him fair Science dawn'd in happier hour,

Awakening into bloom young Fancy's flower ;

But frowning Fortune with untimely blast,

The blossom wither'd, and the dawn o'ercast.

Forlorn of heart, and by severe decree,

Condemn'd reluctant to the faithless sea,

With long farewell he left the laurel grove,

Where Science and the tuneful Sisters rove.

Hither he wander'd, anxious to explore

Antiquities of nations now no more ;

To penetrate each distant realm unknown,

And range excursive o'er th' untravel'd zone.

In vain ! for rude Adversity's command,

Still on the margin of each famous land,

With unrelenting ire his steps oppos'd,

And every gate of Hope against him clos'd.

Permit my verse, ye blest Pierian train,

To call Arion this ill-fated swain !

 Palemon and Anna.

---

---

For, like that bard unhappy, on his head
 Malignant stars their hostile influence shed.
 Both, in lamenting numbers, o'er the deep,
 With conscious anguish taught the harp to weep ;
 And both the raging surge in safety bore,
 Amid destruction, panting to the shore.
 This last, our tragic story from the wave
 Of dark Oblivion haply yet may save :
 With genuine sympathy may yet complain,
 While sad Remembrance bleeds at every vein.

Such were the pilots—tutor'd to divine
 Th' untravel'd course by geometric line ;
 Train'd to command and range the swelling sail,
 Whose various force conforms to every gale.
 Charg'd with the commerce, hither also came
 A gallant youth, Palemon was his name :
 A father's stern resentment doom'd to prove,
 He came, the victim of unhappy love !
 His heart for Albert's beauteous daughter bled ;
 For her a secret flame his bosom fed.
 Nor let the wretched slaves of Folly scorn
 This genuine passion, Nature's eldest born !
 'Twas his with lasting anguish to complain,
 While blooming Anna mourn'd the cause in vain.

Graceful of form, by Nature taught to please,
 Of power to melt the female breast with ease,

To her Palemon told his tender tale,
Soft as the voice of Summer's evening gale:
O'erjoy'd, he saw her lovely eyes relent;
The blushing maiden smil'd with sweet consent.
Oft in the mazes of a neighbouring grove,
Unheard they breath'd alternate vows of love:
By fond society their passion grew,
Like the young blossom fed with vernal dew.
In evil hour th' officious tongue of Fame
Betray'd the secret of their mutual flame.
With grief and anger struggling in his breast,
Palemon's Father heard the tale confest.
Long had he listen'd with Suspicion's ear,
And learnt, sagacious, this event to fear.
Too well, fair youth! thy liberal heart he knew:
A heart to Nature's warm impressions true!
Full oft his wisdom strove with fruitless toil,
With avarice to pollute that generous soil;
That soil, impregnated with nobler seed,
Refus'd the culture of so rank a weed.
Elate with wealth, in active commerce won,
And basking in the smile of Fortune's sun.
With scorn the parent ey'd the lowly shade,
That veil'd the beauties of this charming maid:
Indignant he rebuk'd th' enamour'd boy,
The flattering promise of his future joy!

 Palemon and Arion.

---

He sooth'd and menac'd, anxious to reclaim
 This hopeless passion, or divert its aim :
 Oft led the youth where circling joys delight
 The ravish'd sense, or beauty charms the sight,
 With all her powers, enchanting Music fail'd,
 And Pleasure's siren voice no more prevail'd.
 The Merchant, kindling then with proud disdain,
 In look and voice assum'd a harsher strain ;
 In absence now his only hope remain'd,
 And such the stern decree his will ordain'd.
 Deep anguish, while Palemon heard his doom,
 Drew o'er his lovely face a saddening gloom.
 In vain with bitter sorrow he repin'd,
 No tender pity touch'd that sordid mind :
 To thee, brave Albert, was the charge consign'd. }
 The stately ship forsaking England's shore,
 To regions far remote Palemon bore.
 Incapable of change, th' unhappy youth
 Still lov'd fair Anna with eternal truth :
 From clime to clime an exile doom'd to roam,
 His heart still panted for its secret home.

The moon had circled twice her wayward zone
 To him since young Arion first was known ;
 Who, wandering here thro' many a scene renown'd,
 In Alexandria's port the vessel found ;
 Where, anxious to review his native shore,
 He on the roaring wave embark'd once more.

Oft, by pale Cynthia's melancholy light,
 With him Palemon kept the watch of night!
 In whose sad bosom many a sigh suppress'd,
 Some painful secret of the soul confess'd.
 Perhaps Arion soon the cause divin'd,
 Tho' shunning still to probe a wounded mind:
 He felt the chastity of silent woe,
 Tho' glad the balm of comfort to bestow;
 He, with Palemon, oft recounted o'er
 The tales of hapless love in ancient lore,
 Recall'd to mem'ry by th' adjacent shore. }
 The scene thus present, and its story known,
 The lover sigh'd for sorrows not his own.
 Thus, tho' a recent date their friendship bore,
 Soon the ripe metal own'd the quickening ore;
 For in one tide their passions seem'd to roll,
 By kindred age, and sympathy of soul.

These o'er th' inferior naval train preside,
 The course determine, or the commerce guide:
 O'er all the rest, an undistinguish'd crew,
 Her wing of deepest shade Oblivion drew.

A sullen languor still the skies opprest,
 And held th' unwilling ship in strong arrest.
 High in his chariot glow'd the lamp of day,
 O'er Ida flaming with meridian ray.

Relax'd from toil the sailors range the shore,
 Where famine, war, and storm, are felt no more :
 The hour to social pleasure they resign,
 And black remembrance drown in generous wine.
 On deck, beneath the shading canvass spread,
 Rodmond a rueful tale of wonders read,
 Of dragons roaring on th' enchanted coast,
 The hideous goblin, and the yelling ghost—
 But with Arion from the sultry heat
 Of noon, Palemon sought a cool retreat.
 And lo! the shore with mournful prospects crown'd*;
 The rampart torn with many a fatal wound ;
 The ruin'd bulwark tottering o'er the strand,
 Bewail the stroke of War's tremendous hand.
 What scenes of woe this hapless isle o'erspread !
 Where late thrice fifty thousand warriors bled.
 Full twice twelve summers were yon towers assail'd,
 Till barbarous Ottoman at last prevail'd ;
 While thundering mines the lovely plains o'erturn'd,
 While heroes fell, and domes and temples burn'd.
 But now before them happier scenes arise !
 Elysian vales salute their ravish'd eyes :
 Olive and cedar form'd a grateful shade,
 Where light with gay romantic error stray'd.

* The intelligent reader will readily discover that these remarks allude to the ever-memorable siege of Candia, which was taken from the Venetians by the Turks, in 1669 ; being then considered as impregnable, and esteemed the most formidable fortress in the universe.

The myrtles here with fond caresses twine ;
 There, rich with nectar, melts the pregnant vine,
 And lo ! the stream renown'd in classic song,
 Sad Lethe, glides the silent vale along.
 On mossy banks, beneath the citron grove,
 The youthful wanderers found a wild alcove :
 Soft o'er the fairy region languor stole,
 And with sweet melancholy charm'd the soul.
 Here first Palemon, while his pensive mind
 For consolation on his friend reclin'd,
 In Pity's bleeding bosom pour'd the stream
 Of Love's soft anguish and of grief supreme—
 "Too true thy words ! by sweet remembrance taught,
 My heart in secret bleeds with tender thought :
 In vain it courts the solitary shade,
 By every action, every look betray'd !
 The pride of generous woe disdains appeal
 To hearts that unrelenting frosts congeal :
 Yet sure, if right Palemon can divine,
 The sense of gentle pity dwells in thine.
 Yes, all his cares thy sympathy shall know,
 And prove the kind companion of his woe."

" Albert, thou know'st, with skill and science
 In humble station tho' by fortune plac'd, [grac'd ;
 Yet never seaman more serenely brave
 Led Britain's conquering squadrons o'er the wave.

Where full in view Augusta's spires are seen,
 With flowery lawns and waving woods between,
 A peaceful dwelling stands in modest pride,
 Where Thames, slow-winding, rolls his ample tide.
 There live the hope and pleasure of his life,
 A pious daughter and a faithful wife.
 For his return, with fond officious care,
 Still every grateful object these prepare ;
 Whatever can allure the smell or sight,
 Or wake the drooping spirits to delight.

" This blooming maid, in Virtue's path to guide,
 Her anxious parents all their cares apply'd :
 Her spotless soul, where soft compassion reign'd,
 No vice untun'd, no sickening folly stain'd.
 Not fairer grows the lily of the vale,
 Whose bosom opens to the vernal gale :
 Her eyes, unconscious of their fatal charms,
 Thrill'd every heart with exquisite alarms ;
 Her face, in Beauty's sweet attraction dress'd,
 The smile of maiden-innocence express'd ;
 While Health, that rises with the new-born day,
 Breath'd o'er her cheek the softest blush of May.
 Still in her look Complacence smil'd serene ;
 She mov'd the charmer of the rural scene !

" 'Twas at that season when the fields resume
 Their loveliest hues, array'd in vernal bloom ;

Yon ship, rich freighted from th' Italian shore,
To Thames' fair banks her costly tribute bore :
While thus my father saw his ample hoard,
From this return, with recent treasures stor'd,
Me, with affairs of commerce charg'd, he sent
To Albert's humble mansion ; soon I went— }
Too soon, alas ! unconscious of th' event— }
There, struck with sweet surprise and silent awe,
The gentle mistress of my hopes I saw :
There, wounded first by Love's resistless arms,
My glowing bosom throb'd with strange alarms.
My ever-charming Anna ! who alone
Can all the frowns of cruel Fate atone ;
O ! while all-conscious Memory holds her power,
Can I forget that sweetly-painful hour, [fraught,
When from those eyes, with lovely lightning
My fluttering spirits first th' infection caught ;
When, as I gaz'd, my faltering tongue betray'd
The heart's quick tumults, or refus'd its aid ;
While the dim light my ravish'd eyes forsook,
And every limb unstrung with terror shook !
With all her powers dissenting Reason strove
To tame at first the kindling flame of Love ;
She strove in vain ! subdu'd by charms divine,
My soul a victim fell at Beauty's shrine.—

Oft from the din of bustling life I stray'd,
In happier scenes, to see my lovely maid.
Full oft where Thames his wandering current leads,
We rov'd at evening hour, thro' flowery meads.
There, while my heart's soft anguish I reveal'd,
To her with tender sighs my hope appeal'd.
While the sweet nymph my faithful tale believ'd,
Her snowy breast with secret tumult heav'd:
For, train'd in rural scenes from earliest youth,
Nature was her's, and innocence and truth.
She never knew the city damsel's art,
Whose frothy pertness charms the vacant heart!
My suit prevail'd; for love inform'd my tongue,
And on his votary's lips persuasion hung.
Her eyes with conscious sympathy withdrew,
And o'er her cheek the rosy current flew.—
Thrice happy hours! where, with no dark allay,
Life's fairest sunshine gilds the vernal day!
For here, the sigh that soft Affection heaves,
From stings of sharper woe the soul relieves.
Elysian scenes, too happy long to last!
Too soon a storm the smiling dawn o'ercast!
Too soon some demon to my father bore
The tidings that his heart with anguish tore.—
My pride to kindle, with dissuasive voice,
Awhile he labour'd to degrade my choice;

Then in the whirling wave of Pleasure, sought
 From its lov'd object to divert my thought.
 With equal hope he might attempt to bind,
 In chains of adamant, the lawless wind :
 For Love had aim'd the fatal shaft too sure :
 Hope fed the wound, and absence knew no cure.
 With alienated look, each art he saw
 Still baffled by superior Nature's law.
 His anxious mind on various schemes revolv'd ;
 At last on cruel exile he resolv'd ;
 The rigorous doom was fix'd ! alas ! how vain
 To him of tender anguish to complain !
 His soul, that never Love's sweet influence felt,
 By social sympathy could never melt ;
 With stern command to Albert's charge he gave,
 To waft Palemon o'er the distant wave.

" The ship was laden, and prepar'd to sail,
 And only waited now the leading gale.
 'Twas ours, in that sad period, first to prove
 The heart-felt torments of despairing love :
 Th' impatient wish that never feels repose ;
 Desire that with perpetual current flows ;
 The fluctuating pangs of hope and fear ;
 Joy distant still, and sorrow ever near !
 Thus, while the pangs of thought severer grew,
 The western breezes inauspicious blew,
 Hastening the moment of our last adieu.

The vessel parted on the falling tide ;
Yet Time one sacred hour to Love supply'd.
The night was silent, and advancing fast,
The moon o'er Thames her silver mantle cast.
Impatient Hope the midnight path explor'd,
And led me to the nymph my soul ador'd.
Soon her quick footsteps struck my listening ear ;
She came confest ! the lovely maid drew near !
But ah ! what force of language can impart
Th' impetuous joy that glow'd in either heart ?—
O ye, whose melting hearts are form'd to prove
The trembling ecstasies of genuine love !
When, with delicious agony, the thought
Is to the verge of high delirium wrought ;
Your secret sympathy alone can tell
What raptures then the throbbing bosom swell ;
O'er all the nerves what tender tumults roll,
While love with sweet enchantment melts the soul !
“ In transport lost, by trembling hope imprest,
The blushing virgin sunk upon my breast ;
While her's congenial beat with fond alarms ;
Dissolving softness ! paradise of charms ;
Flash'd from our eyes, in warm transfusion flew
Our blending spirits, that each other drew !
O bliss supreme ! where Virtue's self can melt
With joys that guilty Pleasure never felt ;

Form'd to refine the thought with chaste desire,
And kindle sweet Affection's purest fire!
'Ah! wherefore should my hopeless love,' she cries,
While sorrow burst with interrupting sighs,
'For ever destin'd to lament in vain,
Such flattering fond ideas entertain?
My heart thro' scenes of fair illusion stray'd
To joys decreed for some superior maid.
'Tis mine to feel the sharpest stings of Grief,
Where never gentle Hope affords relief.
Go then, dear youth! thy father's rage atone!
And let this tortur'd bosom beat alone!
The hovering anger yet thou may'st appease;
Go then, dear youth! nor tempt the faithless seas!
Find out some happier daughter of the town,
With Fortune's fairer joys thy love to crown;
Where smiling o'er thee with indulgent ray,
Prosperity shall hail each new-born day.
Too well thou know'st good Albert's niggard fate,
Ill fitted to sustain thy father's hate:
Go then, I charge thee, by thy generous love,
That fatal to my father thus may prove!
On me alone let dark affliction fall!
Whose heart for thee will gladly suffer all!

Then haste thee hence, Palemon, ere too late,
Nor rashly hope to brave opposing Fate!

“She ceas’d; while anguish in her angel-face
O’er all her beauties shower’d celestial grace,
Not Helen, in her bridal charms array’d,
Was half so lovely as this gentle maid.

O soul of all my wishes! I reply’d,
Can that soft fabric stem Affliction’s tide?
Can’st thou, fair emblem of exalted Truth!
To Sorrow doom the summer of thy youth;
And I, perfidious! all that sweetness see
Consign’d to lasting misery for me?
Sooner this moment may th’ eternal doom
Palemon in the silent earth entomb!
Attest, thou Moon, fair regent of the night!
Whose lustre sickens at this mournful sight;
By all the pangs divided lovers feel,
That sweet possession only knows to heal!
By all the horrors brooding o’er the deep!
Where Fate and Ruin sad dominion keep;
Thø’ tyrant Duty o’er me threatening stands,
And claims obedience to her stern commands;
Should Fortune cruel or auspicious prove,
Her smile or frown shall never change my love!
My heart, that now must every joy resign,
Incapable of change, is only thine!—

" ' O cease to weep ! this storm will yet decay,
 And the sad clouds of Sorrow melt away,
 While thro' the rugged path of life we go,
 All mortals taste the bitter draught of woe.
 The fam'd and great, decreed to equal pain,
 Full oft in splendid wretchedness complain.
 For this Prosperity with brighter ray,
 In smiling contrast gilds our vital day.
 Thou too, sweet maid ! ere twice ten months are
 Shalt hail Palemon to his native shore, [o'er }
 Where never interest shall divide us more.'

" Her struggling soul, o'erwhelm'd with tender
 Now found an interval of short relief; [grief,
 So melts the surface of the frozen stream,
 Beneath the wint'ry sun's departing beam.
 With warning haste the shades of night withdrew,
 And gave the signal of a sad adieu !
 As on my neck th' afflicted maiden hung,
 A thousand racking doubts her spirit wrung,
 She wept the terrors of the fearful wave,
 Too oft, alas ! the wandering lover's grave !
 With soft persuasion I dispell'd her fear,
 And from her cheek beguil'd the falling tear.
 While dying fondness languish'd in her eyes,
 She pour'd her soul to heav'n in suppliant sighs—

 Palemon's Story.

' Look down with pity, O ye powers above,
 Who hear the sad complaint of bleeding Love!
 Ye, who the secret laws of Fate explore,
 Alone can tell if he returns no more:
 Or if the hour of future joy remain,
 Long-wish'd atonement of long-suffer'd pain!
 Bid every guardian minister attend,
 And from all ill the much-lov'd youth defend!
 —With grief o'erwhelm'd, we parted twice in vain,
 And, urg'd by strong attraction, met again.
 At last, by cruel Fortune torn apart,
 While tender passion stream'd in either heart;
 Our eyes transfix'd with agonizing look,
 One sad farewell, one last embrace we took.—
 Forlorn of hope the lovely maid I left,
 Pensive and pale, of every joy bereft.
 She to her silent couch retir'd to weep,
 While her sad swain embark'd upon the deep."

His tale thus clos'd, from sympathy of grief,
 Palemon's bosom felt a sweet relief.

The hapless bird, thus ravish'd from the skies,
 Where all-forlorn his lov'd companion flies,
 In secret long bewails his cruel fate,
 With fond remembrance of his winged mate:
 Till grown familiar with a foreign train,
 Compos'd at length, his sadly warbling strain,
 In sweet oblivion charms the sense of pain.

Palemon's Person described.

Ye tender maids ! in whose pathetic souls
Compassion's sacred stream impetuous rolls ;
Whose warm affections exquisitely feel
The secret wound you tremble to reveal !
Ah ! may no wanderer of the faithless main
Pour thro' your breast the soft delicious bane ;
May never fatal tenderness approve
The fond effusions of their ardent love.
Oh ! warn'd by Friendship's counsel, learn to shun
The fatal path where thousands are undone !

Now as the youths, returning o'er the plain,
Approach'd the lonely margin of the main,
First, with attention rous'd, Arion ey'd
The graceful lover, form'd in Nature's pride.
His frame the happiest symmetry display'd,
And locks of waving gold his neck array'd.
In every look the Paphian graces shine,
Soft-breathing o'er his cheek their bloom divine.
With lighten'd heart he smil'd serenely gay,
Like young Adonis or the Son of May.
Not Cytherea from a fairer swain
Receiv'd her apple on the Trojan plain !

The Sun's bright orb, declining all serene,
Now glanc'd obliquely o'er the woodland scene,
Creation smiles around ; on every spray
The warbling birds exalt their evening lay.

Evening.

Blithe skipping o'er yon hill, the fleecy train
Join the deep chorus of the lowing plain :
The golden lime and orange there were seen,
On fragrant branches of perpetual green.
The crystal streams, that velvet meadows lave,
To the green ocean roll with chiding wave.
The glassy ocean hush'd, forgets to roar,
But trembling murmurs on the sandy shore :
And lo ! his surface, lovely to behold,
Glows in the west, a sea of living gold !
While, all above, a thousand liveries gay
The skies with pomp ineffable array.
Arabian sweets perfume the happy plains ;
Above, beneath, around enchantment reigns !
While yet the shades, on Time's eternal scale,
With long vibration deepen o'er the vale ;
While yet the songsters of the vocal grove
With dying numbers tune the soul to love ;
With joyful eyes th' attentive master sees
Th' auspicious omens of an eastern breeze.—
Now radiant Vesper leads the starry train,
And Night slow draws her veil o'er land and main.
Round the charg'd bowl the sailors form a ring,
By turns recount the wondrous tale, or sing ;
As love or battle, hardships of the main,
Or genial wine, awake the humble strain :

Midnight.

Then some the watch of night alternate keep,
The rest lie buried in oblivious sleep.

Deep midnight now involves the livid skies,
While infant breezes from the shore arise.
The waning moon, behind a watery shroud,
Pale glimmer'd o'er the long-protracted cloud.
A mighty ring around her silver throne,
With parting meteors cross'd, portentous shone.
This in the troubled sky full oft prevails ;
Oft deem'd a signal of tempestuous gales.—
While young Arion sleeps, before his sight
Tumultuous swim the visions of the night.
Now blooming Anna, with her happy swain,
Approach'd the sacred Hymeneal fane :
Anon, tremendous lightnings flash between,
And funeral pomp and weeping loves are seen !
Now with Palemon up a rocky steep
Whose summit trembles o'er the roaring deep,
With painful step he climb'd ; while far above
Sweet Anna charm'd them with the voice of love,
Then sudden from the slippery height they fell,
While dreadful yawn'd beneath the jaws of Hell.
Amid this fearful trance, a thundering sound
He hears—and thrice the hollow decks rebound.
Upstarting from his couch, on deck he sprung ;
Thrice with shrill note the boatswain's whistlerung.

Britannia, riding awful on the prow,
Gaz'd o'er the vassal-wave that roll'd below :
Where'er she mov'd, the vassal-waves were seen
To yield obsequious, and confess their queen :
Th' imperial trident grac'd her dexter hand,
Of power to rule the surge, like Moses' wand,
Th' eternal empire of the main to keep,
And guide her squadrons o'er the trembling deep.
Her left, propitious, bore a mystic shield,
Around whose margin rolls the watery field.
There her bold Genius, in his floating car,
O'er the wild billow hurls the storm of war—
And lo! the beasts that oft with jealous rage
In bloody combat met, from age to age,
Tam'd into Union, yok'd in Friendship's chain,
Draw his proud chariot round the vanquish'd main.
From the broad margin to the centre grew Shelves, rocks, and whirlpools, hideous to the view!—

Th' immortal shield from Neptune she receiv'd,
When first her head above the waters heav'd,
Loose floated o'er her limbs an azure vest ;
A figur'd 'scutcheon glitter'd on her breast ;
There, from one parent soil, for ever young,
The blooming rose and hardy thistle sprung.

Around her head an oaken wreath was seen,
Inwove with laurels of unfading green.
Such was the sculptur'd prow—from van to rear
Th' artillery frown'd, a black tremendous tier!
Embalm'd with orient gum, above the wave,
The swelling sides a yellow radiance gave.
On the broad stern a pencil warm and bold,
That never servile rules of art controll'd,
An allegoric tale on high pourtray'd,
There a young hero, here a royal maid.
Fair England's genius in the youth exprest,
Her ancient foe, but now her friend confest,
The warlike nymph with fond regard survey'd:
No more his hostile frown her heart dismay'd.
His look, that once shot terror from afar,
Like young Alcides, or the god of war,
Serene as summer's evening skies she saw;
Serene, yet firm; tho' mild, impressing awe.
Her nervous arm, inur'd to toils severe,
Brandish'd th' unconquer'd Caledonian spear.
The dreadful falchion of the hills she wore,
Sung to the harp in many a tale of yore,
That oft her rivers dy'd with hostile gore. }
Blue was her rocky shield; her piercing eye
Flash'd like the meteors of her native sky,

Her crest, high plum'd, was rough with many a scar,
And o'er her helmet gleam'd the northern star.
The warrior youth appear'd of noble frame ;
The hardy offspring of some Runic dame :
Loose o'er his shoulders hung the slacken'd bow,
Renown'd in song—the terror of the foe !
The sword, that oft the barbarous north defy'd,
The scourge of tyrants ! glitter'd by his side.
Clad in refulgent arms, in battle won,
The George emblazon'd on his corselet shone.
Fast by his side was seen a golden lyre,
Pregnant with numbers of eternal fire ;
Whose strings unlock the witches' midnight spell,
Or waft wrapt Fancy thro' the gulfs of hell—
Struck with contagion, kindling Fancy hears
The songs of Heaven ! the music of the spheres !
Borne on Newtonian wing, thro' air she flies,
Where other suns to other systems rise !—
These front the scene conspicuous—over head
Albion's proud oak his filial branches spread !
While on the sea-beat shore obsequious stood,
Beneath their feet, the father of the flood ;
Here, the bold native of her cliffs above,
Perch'd by the martial maid the bird of Jove :
There, on the watch, sagacious of his prey,
With eyes of fire, an English mastiff lay.

Here frown'd the god that wakes the living gale—
High o'er the poop the flattering winds unfurl'd
Th' imperial flag that rules the watery world.
Deep blushing armours all the tops invest,
And warlike trophies either quarter drest:
Then tower'd the masts; the canvass swell'd on
And waving streamers floated in the sky. [high;

THE

SHIPWRECK.

CANTO II.

ARGUMENT.

Reflection on leaving the land. The gale continues. A water spout. Beauty of a dying dolphin. The ship's progress along the shore. Wind strengthens. The sails reduced. A shoal of porpoises. Last appearance of Cape Spado. Sea rises. A squall. The sails further diminished. Mainsail split. Ship bears away before the wind. Again hauls upon the wind. Another mainsail fitted to the yard. The gale still increases. Topsails furled. Top-gallant yards sent down. Sea enlarges. Sun set. Courses reefed. Four seamen lost off the lee main-yard-arm. Anxiety of the pilots from their dangerous situation. Resolute behaviour of the sailors. The ship labours in great distress. The artillery thrown overboard. Dismal appearance of the weather. Very high and dangerous sea. Consultation and resolution of the officers. Speech and advice of Albert to the crew. Necessary dispositions to veer before the wind. Disappointment in the proposed effect. New dispositions equally unsuccessful. The mizen-mast cut away.

The scene lies in the Sea, between Cape Freschin in Candia, and the Island of Falconera, which is nearly twelve leagues northward of Cape Spado.—The Time is from Nine in the morning till One o'Clock in the following Morning.

SHIPWRECK.

CANTO II.

A DIEU! ye pleasures of the sylvan scene,
Where Peace and calm Contentment dwell
To me, in vain, on earth's prolific soil, [serene!
With summer crown'd th' Elysian valleys smile!
To me those happier scenes no joy impart,
But tantalize with hope my aching heart.
For these, alas! reluctant I forego,
To visit storms and elements of woe!
Ye tempests! o'er my head congenial roll,
To suit the mournful music of my soul!
In black progression, lo! they hover near—
Hail, social Horrors! like my fate severe!
Old Ocean hail, beneath whose azure zone
The secret deep lies unexplor'd, unknown.

Reflection on leaving the land.

---

Approach, ye brave companions of the sea,
And fearless view this awful scene with me!
Ye native guardians of your country's laws!
Ye bold assertors of her sacred cause!
The muse invites you—judge if she depart,
Unequal, from the precepts of your art.
In practice train'd, and conscious of her power,
Her steps intrepid meet the trying hour.

O'er the smooth bosom of the faithless tides,
Propell'd by gentle gales, the vessel glides.
Rodmond exulting, felt th' auspicious wind,
And by a mystic charm its aim confin'd.—
The thoughts of home, that o'er his fancy roll,
With trembling joy dilate Palemon's soul:
Hope lifts his heart, before whose vivid ray
Distress recedes, and danger melts away.
Already Britain's parent cliffs arise,
And in idea greet his longing eyes!
Each amorous sailor too, with heart elate,
Dwells on the beauties of his gentle mate.
Ev'n they th' impressive dart of Love can feel,
Whose stubborn souls are sheath'd in triple steel.
Nor less o'erjoy'd, perhaps with equal truth,
Each faithful maid expects th' approaching youth.
In distant bosoms equal ardours glow;
And mutual passions mutual joy bestow.—

A Water Spout.

Tall Ida's summit now more distant grew,
And Jove's high hill was rising on the view ;
When, from the left approaching, they descry
A liquid column towering shoot on high.
The foaming base an angry whirlwind sweeps,
Where curling billows rouse the fearful deeps.
Still round and round the fluid vortex flies,
Scattering dun night and horror through the skies.
The swift volution and th' enormous train
Let sages vers'd in Nature's lore explain !
The horrid apparition still draws nigh,
And white with foam the whirling surges fly !
The guns were prim'd—the vessel northward veers,
Till her black battery on the column bears ;
The nitre fir'd ; and while the dreadful sound,
Convulsive, shook the slumbering air around,
The wat'ry volume, trembling to the sky,
Burst down, a dreadful deluge from on high !
Th' affrighted surge, recoiling as it fell,
Rolling in hills disclos'd th' abyss of hell.
But soon, this transient undulation o'er,
The sea subsides, the whirlwinds rage no more.

While southward now th' increasing breezes veer,
Dark clouds incumbent on their wings appear.
In front they view the consecrated grove
Of cypress, sacred once to Cretan Jove.

Beauty of the dying Dolphin.

The thirsty canvass, all around supply'd,
Still drinks unquench'd the full aërial tide ;
And now, approaching near the lofty stern,
A shoal of sportive dolphins they discern ;
From burnish'd scales they beam'd refulgent rays,
Till all the glowing ocean seems to blaze.
Soon to the sport of death the crew repair,
Dart the long lance, or spread the baited snare.
One in redoubling mazes wheels along,
And glides, unhappy ! near the triple prong.
Rodmond, unerring, o'er his head suspends
The barbed steel, and ev'ry turn attends.
Unerring aim'd, the missile weapon flew,
And, plunging, struck the fated victim through.
Th' upturning points his pond'rous bulk sustain ;
On deck he struggles with convulsive pain.
But while his heart the fatal jav'lin thrills,
And flitting life escapes in sanguine rills,
What radiant changes strike th' astonish'd sight !
What glowing hues of mingled shade and light !
Not equal beauties gild the lucid west,
With parting beams all o'er profusely drest.
Not lovelier colours paint the vernal dawn,
When orient dews impearl th' enamell'd lawn ;
Than from his sides in bright suffusion flow,
That now with gold empyreal seem to glow ;

The Ship's Progress.

Now in pellucid sapphires meet the view,
And emulate the soft celestial hue ;
Now beam a flaming crimson on the eye ;
And now assume the purple's deeper dye.
But here description clouds each shining ray—
What terms of Art can Nature's power display ?

Now, while on high the fresh'ning gale she feels,
The ship beneath her lofty pressure reels.
Th' auxiliar sails that court a gentle breeze,
From their high stations sink by slow degrees.
The watchful ruler of the helm no more
With fix'd attention eyes th' adjacent shore ;
But by the oracle of truth below,
The wondrous magnet, guides the wayward prow.—
The wind, that still th' impressive canvass swell'd,
Swift and more swift the yielding bark impell'd.
Impatient thus she glides along the coast,
Till far behind the hill of Jove is lost :
And, while aloof from Retimo she steers,
Malacha's foreland full in front appears.
Wide o'er yon isthmus stands the cypress grove
That once inclos'd the hallow'd fane of Jove.
Here too, memorial of his name ! is found
A tomb, in marble ruins on the ground.
This gloomy tyrant, whose triumphant yoke
The trembling states around to slavery broke,

A Squall.

Thro' Greece, for murder, rape, and incest known,
 The Muses rais'd to high Olympus' throne.—
 For oft, alas! their venal strains adorn
 The prince, whom blushing Virtue holds in scorn.
 Still Rome and Greece record his endless fame,
 And hence yon mountain yet retains his name.

But see! in confluence borne before the blast,
 Clouds roll'd on clouds the dusky noon o'ercast;
 The black'ning ocean curls; the winds arise;
 And the dark scud* in swift succession flies.
 While the swoln canvass bends the masts on high,
 Low in the wave the leeward cannon liet †;
 The sailors now, to give the ship relief,
 Reduce the topsails by a single reef ‡.
 Each lofty yard with slacken'd cordage reels,
 Rattle the creaking blocks and ringing wheels.
 Down the tall masts the topsails sink amain;
 And, soon reduc'd, assume their post again.

* Scud is a name given by the seamen to the lowest clouds, which are driven with great rapidity along the atmosphere, in squally or tempestuous weather.

† When the wind crosses the ship's course, either directly or obliquely, that side of the ship upon which it acts, is called the weather-side; and the opposite side which is then pressed downwards, is called the lee-side. Hence all the rigging and furniture of the ship are, at this time, distinguished by the side on which they are situated; as the lee-cannon, the lee-braces, the weather-braces, &c.

‡ The topsails are large square sails. Of the second degree in height and magnitude. Reefs are certain divisions or spaces by which the principal sails are reduced when the wind increases; and again enlarged, proportionably when its force abates.

A Squall.

More distant grew receding Candia's shore ;
And southward of the west Cape Spado bore.

Four hours the sun his high meridian throne
Had left, and o'er th' Atlantic regions shone :
Still blacker clouds, that all the skies invade,
Draw o'er his sullied orb a dismal shade.

A squall, deep lowering, blots the southern sky,
Before whose boisterous breath the waters fly.
Its weight the topsails can no more sustain,
Reef topsails, reef! the boatswain calls again !
The haliards* and top-bow-lines† soon are gone,
To clue-lines‡ and reef-tackles next they run :
The shiv'ring sails descend ; and now they square
The yards, while ready sailors mount in air.
The weather-earings|| and the lee they past ;
The reefs enroll'd, and every point made fast.
Their task above thus finish'd, they descend,
And vigilant th' approaching squall attend.

* Haliards are either single ropes or tackles, by which the sails are hoisted up and lowered, when the sail is to be extended or reduced.

† Bow-lines are ropes intended to keep the windward edge of the sail steady, and to prevent it from shaking in unfavourable winds.

‡ Clue-lines are ropes used to truss up the clues, or lower corners of the principal sails to their respective yards, particularly when the sail is to be close-reefed or furled.—Reef-tackles are ropes employed to facilitate the operation of reefing, by confining the extremities of the reef close up to the yard, so that the interval becomes slack, and is therefore easily rolled up and fastened to the yard by the points employed for this purpose.

|| Earings are small cords, by which the upper corners of the principal sails, and also the extremities of the reefs, are fastened to the yard-arms.

A Squall.

---

---

It comes resistless, and with foaming sweep,
 Upturns the whit'ning surface of the deep.
 In such a tempest, borne to deeds of death,
 The wayward sisters scour the blasted heath.
 With ruin pregnant now the clouds impend,
 And storm and cataract tumultuous blend.
 Deep on her side the reeling vessel lies—
*Brail up the mizen**, quick! the master cries,
Man the clue-garnets†! let the main-sheet‡ fly!—
 The boisterous squall still presses from on high,
 And swift, and fatal as the lightning's course,
 Thro' the torn mainsail bursts with thund'ring force.
 While the rent canvass flutter'd in the wind,
 Still on her flank the stooping bark inclin'd.—
Bear up the helm|| a-weather! Rodmond cries;
 Swift, at the word, the helm a-weather flies.

* The mizen is a large sail of an oblong figure, extended upon the mizen-mast.

† Clue-garnets are employed for the same purposes on the mainsail and foresail as the clue-lines are upon all other square-sails. See note ‡, page 55.

‡ It is necessary in this place to remark, that the sheets, which are universally mistaken by the English poets and their readers for the sails themselves, are no other than the ropes used to extend the clues, or lower corners of the sails to which they are attached. To the mainsail and foresail there is a sheet and a tack on each side; the latter of which is a thick rope, serving to confine the weather clue of the sail down to the ship's side, whilst the former draws out the lee-clue or lower corner on the opposite side. Tacks are only used in a side-wind.

|| The helm is said to be a-weather, when the bar by which it is managed is turned to the side of the ship next the wind.

The Ship bears away.

---

The prow with secret instinct veers apace ;
 And now the foresail right athwart they brace ;
 With equal sheets restrain'd, the bellying sail
 Spreads a broad concave to the sweeping gale.
 While o'er the foam the ship impetuous flies,
 Th' attentive timoneer* the helm applies.
 As in pursuit along the aërial way,
 With ardent eye, the falcon marks his prey,
 Each motion watches of the doubtful chase,
 Obliquely wheeling thro' the liquid space ;
 So, govern'd by the steersman's glowing hands,
 The regent helm her motion still commands.

But now the transient squall to leeward past,
 Again she rallies to the sullen blast.
 The helm to starboard† turns—with wings inclin'd,
 The sidelong canvass clasps the faithless wind,
 The mizen draws ; she springs aloof once more,
 While the fore-stay-sail‡ balances before.
 The foresail brac'd obliquely to the wind,
 They near the prow th' extended tack confin'd ;

* Timoneer (from timonnier, Fr.) the helmsman or steersman.

† The helm being turned to starboard, or to the right side of the ship, directs the prow to the left, or to port, and vice versa. Hence the helm being put a-starboard, when the ship is running northward, directs her prow towards the west.

‡ This sail, which is with more propriety called the fore-top-mast stay-sail, is a triangular sail, that runs upon the fore-top-mast-stay, over the bowsprit. It is used to command the fore part of the ship, and counter-balance the sails extended toward the stern. See the last note of this Canto.

The Ship bears away.

---

Then on the leeward sheet the seamen bend,
 And haul the bow-line to the bowsprit end.
 To topsails next they haste—the bunt-lines gone,
 The clue-lines thro' their wheel'd machin'ry run :
 On either side below the sheets are mann'd :
 Again the fluttering sails their skirts expand ;
 Once more the topsails, tho' with humbler plume,
 Mounting aloft, their ancient post resume.
 Again the bow-lines and the yards are brac'd*,
 And all th' entangled cords in order plac'd.

The sail by whirlwinds thus so lately rent,
 In tatter'd ruins flutt'ring is unbent.
 With brails† refix'd another soon prepar'd,
 Ascending, spreads along beneath the yard.
 To each yard-arm the head-rope‡ they extend,
 And soon their earings and their roebins|| bend.
 That task perform'd, they first the braces§ slack,
 Then to its station drag th' unwilling tack ;
 And, while the lee clue-garnet's lower'd away,
 Taught aft the sheet they tally and belay¶.

* A yard is said to be braced, when it is turned about the mast horizontally, either to the right or left : the ropes employed in this service are accordingly called braces.

† The ropes used to truss up a sail to the yard or mast whereto it is attached, are, in a general sense, called brails.

‡ The head-rope is a cord to which the upper part of the sail is sewed.

|| Rope-bands, pronounced roebins, are small cords used to fasten the upper edge of any sail to its respective yard.

§ Because the lee-brace confines the yard so that the tack will not come down to its place till the braces are cast loose.

¶ Taught implies stiff, tense, or extended straight : and tally is a

A Shoal of Porpoises.

---

Now to the north, from Afric's burning shore,
 A troop of porpoises their course explore ;
 In curling wreaths they gambol on the tide,
 Now bound aloft, now down the billow glide.
 Their tracks awhile the hoary waves retain,
 That burn in sparkling trails along the main.
 These fleetest coursers of the finny race,
 When threat'ning clouds th' ethereal vault deface,
 Their rout to leeward still sagacious form,
 To shun the fury of th' approaching storm.

Fair Candia now no more beneath her lee
 Protects the vessel from th' insulting sea :
 Round her broad arms, impatient of control,
 Rous'd from their secret deeps the billows roll.
 Sunk were the bulwarks of the friendly shore,
 And all the scene an hostile aspect wore.
 The flattering wind, that late with promis'd aid,
 From Candia's bay th' unwilling ship betray'd,
 No longer fawns beneath the fair disguise,
 But like a ruffian on his quarry flies.—
 Tost on the tide she feels the tempest blow,
 And dreads the vengeance of so fell a foe.
 As the proud horse, with costly trappings gay,
 Exulting, prances to the bloody fray,

phrase particularly applied to the operation of hauling aft the sheets, or drawing them towards the ships stern. To belay, is to fasten.

 The Sails diminished.

---

Spurning the ground, he glories in his might,
 But reels tumultuous in the shock of fight ;
 Even so, caparison'd in gaudy pride,
 The bounding vessel dances on the tide.—
 Fierce and more fierce the southern demon blew,
 And more incens'd the roaring waters grew.
 The ship no longer can her topsails spread,
 And every hope of fairer skies is fled,
 Bow-lines and haliards are relax'd again,
 Clue-lines haul'd down, and sheets let fly amain ;
 Clued up each topsail, and by braces squar'd,
 The seamen climb aloft on either yard.
 They furl'd the sail, and pointed to the wind
 The yard by rolling tackles* then confin'd.
 While o'er the ship the gallant boatswain flies,
 Like a hoarse mastiff thro' the storm he cries :
 Prompt to direct th' unskilful still appears ;
 Th' expert he praises and the fearful cheers.
 Now some to strike top-gallant yards attend† ;
 Some trav'lers‡ up the weather-back-stays send|| ;

* The rolling tackle is an assemblage of pullies, used to confine the yard to the weather-side of the mast, and prevent the former from rubbing against the latter by the fluctuating motion of the ship in a turbulent sea.

† It is usual to send down the top-gallant yards on the approach of a storm. They are the highest yards that are rigged in a ship.

‡ Travellers are slender iron rings, encircling the back-stays, and used to facilitate the hoisting or lowering of the top-gallant yards, by confining them to the back-stays, in their ascent or descent, so as to prevent them from swinging about by the agitation of the vessel.

 The Sails diminished.

At each mast-head the top-ropes* others bend.
 The youngest sailors from the yards above
 Their parrel†, lifts‡, and braces soon remove :
 Then top an-end, and to the trav'lers ty'd,
 Charg'd with their sails, they down the backstays
 The yard secure along the booms|| reclin'd, [slide,
 While some the flying cords aloft confin'd.—
 Their sails reduc'd, and all the rigging clear,
 Awhile the crew relax from toils severe ;
 Awhile their spirits, with fatigue opprest,
 In vain expect th' alternate hour of rest :
 But with redoubling force the tempests blow,
 And wat'ry hills in fell succession flow,
 A dismal shade o'ercasts the frowning skies ;
 New troubles grow ; new difficulties rise.
 No season this from duty to descend !—
 All hands on deck, th' eventful hour attend.

the ship to the topmast-heads, which they are intended to secure, by counteracting the effort of the wind upon the sails.

* Top-ropes are the cords by which the top-gallant yards are hoisted up from the deck, or lowered again in stormy weather.

† The parrel, which is usually a moveable band of rope, is employed to confine the yard to its respective mast.

‡ Lifts are ropes extending from the head of any mast to the extremities of its particular yard, to support the weight of the latter ; to retain it in balance ; or to raise one yard-arm higher than the other, which is accordingly called topping.

|| The booms, in this place, imply any masts or yards lying on deck in reserve, to supply the place of others which may be carried away by stress of weather, &c.

Sun-set.

His race perform'd, the sacred lamp of day
 Now dipt in western clouds his parting ray,
 His sick'ning fires, half-lost in ambient haze,
 Refract along the dusk a crimson blaze ;
 Till deep immerg'd the languid orb declines,
 And now to cheerless night the sky resigns !
 Sad evening's hour, how different from the past !
 No flaming pomp, no blushing glories cast ;
 No ray of friendly light is seen around ;
 The moon and stars in hopeless shade are drown'd.

The ship no longer can her courses* bear ;
 To reef the courses is the master's care :
 The sailors, summon'd aft, a daring band !
 Attend th' enfolding brails at his command.
 But here the doubtful officers dispute,
 Till skill and judgment prejudice confute.—
 Rodmond, whose genius never soar'd beyond
 The narrow rules of art his youth had conn'd ;
 Still to the hostile fury of the wind
 Releas'd the sheet, and kept the tack confin'd ;
 To long try'd practice obstinately warm,
 He doubts conviction, and relies on form.
 But the sage master this advice declines ;
 With whom Arion in opinion joins.—

* The courses are generally understood to be the main-sail, fore-sail, and mizen, which are the largest and lowest sails of their several masts ; the term is, however, sometimes taken in a larger sense.

Sheet let go.

---

---

The watchful seaman, whose sagacious eye
 On sure experience may with truth rely,
 Who from the reigning cause foretels th' effect,
 This barb'rous practice ever will reject.
 For, flutt'ring loose in air, the rigid sail
 Soon flits to ruins in the furious gale ;
 And he who strives the tempest to disarm,
 Will never first embrail the lee-yard arm.
 The master said ;—obedient to command,
 To raise the tack, the ready sailors stand*.—
 Gradual it loosens, while th' involving clue,
 Swell'd by the wind, aloft unruffling flew.
 The sheet and weather-brace they now stand by† ;
 The lee clue-garnet and the bunt-lines ply.
 Thus all prepar'd—Let go the sheet! he cries ;
 Impetuous round the ringing wheels it flies :
 Shiv'ring at first, till by the blast impell'd,
 High o'er the lee yard-arm the canvass swell'd :
 By spilling lines‡ embrac'd, with brails confin'd,
 It lies at length unshaken by the wind.

* It has been remarked before, in note‡, page 56, that the tack is always fastened to windward: accordingly, as soon as it is cast loose, and the clue-garnet hauled up, the weather-clue of the sail immediately mounts to the yard; and this operation must be carefully performed in a storm, to prevent the sail from splitting, or being torn to pieces by shivering.

† It is necessary to pull in the weather-brace whenever the sheet is cast off, to prevent the sail from shaking violently.

‡ The spilling-lines, which are only used on particular occasions in tempestuous weather, are employed to draw together and confine the belly of the sail, when it is inflated by the wind over the yard.

 The Mainsail reefed.

---

The foresail then secur'd, with equal care,
 Again to reef the mainsail they repair.—
 While some, high-mounted, overhaul the tie,
 Below the down-haul tackle* others ply.
 Jearst†, lifts, and brails, a seaman each attends,
 Along the mast the willing yard descends.
 When low'r'd sufficient, they securely brace,
 And fix the rolling-tackle in its place ;
 The reef-lines‡ and their earings now prepar'd,
 Mounting on pliant shrouds||, they man the yard.
 Far on th' extremes two able hands appear,
 Arion there, the hardy boatswain here ;
That in the van to front the tempest hung ;
This round the lee yard-arm, ill-omen'd ! clung.
 Each earing to its station first they bend ;
 The reef-band§ then along the yard extend :

* The violence of the wind forces the yard so much outward from the mast on these occasions, that it cannot easily be lowered so as to reef the sail, without the application of a tackle to haul it down on the mast. This is afterwards converted into a rolling-tackle. See note*, p. 60.

† Jears are the same to the mainsail, foresail, and mizen, as the haliards (note*, p. 55) are to all inferior sails. The tie is the upper part of the jears.

‡ Reef-lines are only used to reef the mainsail and foresail.—They are passed in spiral turns through the eye-let holes of the reef, and over the head of the sails between the rope-band legs, till they reach the extremities of the reef, to which they are firmly extended, so as to lace the reef close up to the yard.

|| Shrouds are thick ropes, stretching from the mast-heads downwards to the outside of the ship, serving to support the masts. They are also used as a range of rope ladders, by which the seamen ascend or descend, to perform whatever is necessary about the sails and rigging.

§ The reef-band is a long piece of canvass sewed across the sail, to

The circling earings, round th' extremes entwin'd,
 By outer and by inner turns* they bind.
 From hand to hand the reef-lines next receiv'd,
 Thro' eye-let holes and roebin legs were reev'd ;
 The reef in double folds involv'd they lay ;
 Strain the firm cord, and either end belay.

Hadst thou, Arion ! held the leeward post,
 While on the yard by mountain billows tost,
 Perhaps oblivion o'er our tragic tale
 Had then for ever drawn her dusky veil.—
 But ruling Heav'n prolong'd thy vital date,
 Severer ills to suffer and relate !

For, while their orders those aloft attend,
 To furl the mainsail, or on deck descend,
 A seat, upsurging with tremendous roll,
 To instant ruin seems to doom the whole.
O friends, secure your hold ! Arion cries ;
 It comes all-dreadful, stooping from the skies !
 Uplifted on its horrid edge, she feels
 The shock, and on her side half-bury'd reels :

strengthen the canvass in the place where the eye-let holes of the reef are formed.

* The outer turns of the earing serve to extend the sail along the yard ; and the inner turns are employed to confine its head-rope close to its surface. See note||, p. 55.

† A sea is the general name given by sailors to a single wave or billow : hence, when a wave bursts over the deck, the vessel is said to have shipped a sea.

Four Seamen lost.

---

---

The sail, half-bury'd in the whelming wave,
A fearful warning to the seamen gave :
While, from its margin, terrible to tell !
Three sailors with their gallant boatswain fell.
Torn with resistless fury from their hold,
In vain their struggling arms the yard infold :
In vain to grapple flying cords they try,
The cords, alas ! a solid gripe deny !
Prone on the midnight surge, with panting breath
They cry for aid, and long contend with Death.
High o'er their heads the rolling billows sweep,
And down they sink in everlasting sleep.
Bereft of power to help, their comrades see
The wretched victims die beneath the lee !
With fruitless sorrow their lost state bemoan !
Perhaps a fatal prelude to their own !

In dark suspense on deck the pilots stand,
Nor can determine on the next command.
Tho' still they knew the vessel's armed side
Impenetrable to the clasping tide ;
Tho' still the waters, by no secret wound
A passage to her deep recesses found ;
Surrounding evils yet they ponder o'er—
A storm, a dang'rous sea, and leeward shore !
Should they, tho' reef'd, again their sails extend,
Again in fluttering fragments they may rend ;

Or should they stand, beneath the dreadful strain
 The down-press'd ship may never rise again ;
 Too late to weather* now Morea's land,
 Yet verging fast to Athens' rocky strand.—
 Thus they lament the consequence severe,
 Where perils unallay'd by hope appear.
 Long in their minds revolving each event,
 At last to furl the courses they consent.
 That done, to reef the mizen next agree,
 And try†, beneath it sidelong, in the sea.

Now down the mast the sloping yard declin'd,
 Till by the jears and topping-lift‡ confin'd ;
 The head, with doubling canvass fenc'd around,
 In balance, near the lofty peak, they bound.
 The reef enwrapt, th' inserted knittles ty'd,
 To hoist the shorten'd sail again they hy'd.
 The order giv'n, the yard aloft they sway'd ;
 The brails relax'd, th' extended sheet belay'd :

* To weather a shore, is to pass to the windward of it, which at this time is prevented by the violence of the storm.

† To try, is to lay the ship with her side nearly in the direction of the wind and sea, with the head somewhat inclined to the windward ; the helm being laid a-lee to retain her in that position.—See a farther illustration of this in the last note of this Canto.

‡ The topping-lift, which tops the upper end of the mizen-yard (see note‡, p. 61.) This line and the six following describe the operation of reefing and balancing the mizen. The reef of this sail is towards the lower end, the knittles being small short lines used in the room of points for this purpose, (see note‡, p. 54. and note‡, p. 55) : they are accordingly knotted under the foot-rope, or lower edge of the sail.

 Resolution of the Sailors.

The helm its post forsook, and, lash'd a lee*,
 Inclin'd the wayward prow to front the sea.

When sacred Orpheus, on the Stygian coast,
 With notes divine implor'd his consort lost ;
 Tho' round him perils grew in fell array,
 And Fates and Furies stood to bar his way ;
 Not more advent'rous was th' attempt, to move
 The pow'rs of hell with strains of heav'nly love,
 Than mine, to bid th' unwilling Muse explore
 The wilderness of rude mechanic lore.
 Such toil th' unwearied Dædalus endur'd,
 When in the Cretan labyrinth immur'd ;
 Till Art her salutary help bestow'd,
 To guide him thro' that intricate abode.
 Thus, long entangled in a thorny way,
 That never heard the sweet Pierian lay,
 The Muse, that tun'd to barb'rous sounds her string,
 Now spreads, like Dædalus, a bolder wing ;
 The verse begins in softer strains to flow,
 Replete with sad variety of woe.

As yet, amid this elemental war,
 That scatters desolation from afar,
 Nor toil, nor hazard, nor distress appear,
 To sink the seamen with unmanly fear.

* Lash'd a lee, is fastened to the lee side. See note†, p. 51.

The Master's Anxiety.

---

Tho' their firm hearts no pageant-honours boast,
They scorn the wretch that trembles at his post ;
Who from the face of danger strives to turn,
Indignant from the social hour they spurn.
Tho' now full oft they felt the raging tide
In proud rebellion climb the vessel's side,
No future ills unknown their souls appal ;
They know no danger, or they scorn it all !
But ev'n the gen'rous spirits of the brave,
Subdu'd by toil, a friendly respite crave :
A short repose alone their thoughts implore,
Their harrass'd pow'rs by slumber to restore.

Far other cares the master's mind employ ;
Approaching perils all his hopes destroy.
In vain he spreads the graduated chart,
And bounds the distance by the rules of art ;
In vain athwart the mimic seas expands
The compasses to circumjacent lands.
Ungrateful task ! for no asylum trac'd
A passage open'd from the wat'ry waste.
Fate seem'd to guard, with adamantine mound,
The path to every friendly port around.
While Albert thus, with secret doubts dismay'd,
The geometric distances survey'd,
On deck the watchful Rodmond cries aloud,
Secure your lives ! grasp ev'ry man a shroud !—

The Well sounded.

---

---

Rous'd from his trance, he mounts with eyes aghast;
When o'er the ship, in undulation vast,
A giant surge down rushes from on high,
And fore and aft dissever'd ruins lie.—
As when, Britannia's empire to maintain,
Great Hawke descends in thunder on the main,
Around the brazen voice of battle roars,
And fatal lightnings blast the hostile shores;
Beneath the storm their shatter'd navies groan,
The trembling deeps recoil from zone to zone:
Thus th' torn vessel felt th' enormous stroke;
The boats beneath the thund'ring deluge broke,
Forth started from their planks the bursting rings,
Th' extended cordage all asunder springs.
The pilot's fair machin'ry strews the deck,
And cards and needles swim in floating wreck.
The balanc'd mizen, rending to the head,
In streaming ruins from the margin fled,
The sides convulsive shook on groaning beams,
And, rent with labour, yawn'd the pitchy seams.
They sound the well*, and, terrible to hear!
Five feet immers'd along the line appear.

* The well is an apartment in the ship's hold, serving to inclose the pumps. It is sounded by dropping a measured iron rod down into it by a long line. Hence the increase or diminution of the leaks are easily discovered.

Pumps worked.

---

---

At either pump they ply the clanking brake,*
 And turn by turn th' ungrateful office take.
 Rodmond, Arion, and Palemon here,
 At this sad task, all diligent appear.
 As some fair castle, shook by rude alarms,
 Opposes long th' approach of hostile arms ;
 Grim war around her plants his black array,
 And death and sorrow mark his horrid way ;
 Till in some destin'd hour, against her wall
 In tenfold rage the fatal thunders fall :
 The ramparts crack, the solid bulwarks rend,
 And hostile troops the shatter'd breach ascend.
 Her valiant inmates still the foe retard,
 Resolv'd till death their sacred charge to guard.
 So the brave mariners their pumps attend,
 And help, incessant, by rotation lend ;
 But all in vain—for now the sounding cord,
 Updrawn, an undiminish'd depth explor'd.
 Nor this severe distress is found alone ;
 The ribs, oppress'd by pond'rous cannon, groan.
 Deep rolling from the wat'ry volume's height,
 The tortur'd sides seem bursting with their weight.
 So reels Pelorus, with convulsive throes,
 When in his veins the burning earthquake glows ;

* The brake is the lever or handle of the pump, by which it is wrought.

Pumps worked.

---

---

Hoarse thro' his entrails roars th' infernal flame,
And central thunders rend his groaning frame.—
Accumulated mischiefs thus arise,
And fate vindictive all their skill defies.

One only remedy the season gave ;
To plunge the nerves of battle in the wave :
From their high platforms thus th' artill'ry thrown,
Eas'd of their load, the timbers less shall groan :
But arduous is the task their lot requires ;
A task that hov'ring fate alone inspires :
For, while intent the yawning decks to ease,
That ever and anon are drench'd with seas,
Some fatal billow, with recoiling sweep,
May whirl the helpless wretches in the deep.

No season this for counsel or delay !
Too soon th' eventful moment hastes away !
Here perseverance, with each help of art,
Must join the boldest efforts of the heart.
These only now their mis'ry can relieve ;
These only now a dawn of safety give !
While o'er the quiv'ring deck, from van to rear,
Broad surges roll in terrible career,
Rodmond, Arion, and a chosen crew,
This office in the face of death pursue ;
The wheel'd artill'ry o'er the deck to guide,
Rodmond descending claim'd the weather-side :

---

 Guns thrown overboard.

---

---

Fearless of heart the chief his orders gave,
 Fronting the rude assaults of ev'ry wave.
 Like some strong watch-tow'r nodding o'er the deep,
 Whose rocky base the foaming waters sweep,
 Untam'd he stood : the stern aërial war
 Had mark'd his honest face with many a scar.—
 Meanwhile Arion, traversing the waist*,
 The cordage of the leeward guns unbrac'd,
 And pointed crows beneath the metal plac'd. }
 Watching the roll, their forelocks they withdrew,
 And from their beds the reeling cannon threw.
 Then, from the windward battlements unbound,
 Rodmond's associates wheel'd th' artillery round ;
 Pointed with iron fangs, their bars beguile
 The pond'rous arms across the steep defile ;
 Then, hurl'd from sounding hinges o'er the side,
 Thund'ring they plunge into the flashing tide.

The ship thus eas'd, some little respite finds,
 In this rude conflict of the seas and winds.
 Such ease Alcides felt when clogg'd with gore,
 Th' envenom'd mantle from his side he tore ;
 When, stung with burning pain, he strove too late
 To stop the swift career of cruel fate ;

* The waist of a ship of this kind is an hollow space about five feet in depth, between the elevations of the quarter-deck and fore-castle, and having the upper deck for its base or platform.

Pumps again worked.

---

Yet then his heart one ray of hope procur'd,
Sad harbinger of sev'n-fold pangs endur'd !
Such, and so short, the pause of woe she found !
Cimmerian darkness shades the deep around,
Save when the lightnings, gleaming on the sight,
Flash thro' the gloom a pale disastrous light.
Above all æther, fraught with scenes of woe,
With grim destruction threatens all below.
Beneath the storm-lash'd surges furious rise,
And wave uproll'd on wave, assails the skies :
With ever-floating bulwarks they surround
The ship, half-swallow'd in the black profound !
With ceaseless hazard and fatigue opprest,
Dismay and anguish every heart possest !
For, while with boundless inundation o'er
The sea-beat ship th' involving waters roar,
Displac'd beneath by her capacious womb,
They rage their ancient station to resume ;
By secret ambushes, their force to prove,
Thro' many a winding-channel first they rove ;
Till, gathering fury, like the fever'd blood,
Thro' her dark veins they roll a rapid flood.
While unrelenting thus the leaks they found,
The pumps with ever-clanking strokes resound,
Around each leaping valve, by toil subdu'd,
The tough bull-hide must ever be renew'd.

Chart again consulted.

---

---

Their sinking hearts unusual horrors chill :
And down their weary limbs thick dews distil.
No ray of light their dying hope redeems,
Pregnant with some new woe each moment teems.

Again the chief th' instructive draught extends,
And o'er the figur'd plain attentive bends :
To him the motion of each orb was known,
That wheels around the sun's refulgent throne :
But here, alas ! his science nought avails !
Art droops unequal, and experience fails.
The diff'rent traverses, since twilight made,
He on the hydrographic circle laid ;
Then the broad angle of lee-way* explor'd,
As swept across the graduated chord.
Her place discover'd by the rules of art,
Unusual terrors shook the master's heart ;
When Falconera's rugged isle he found,
Within her drift, with shelves and breakers bound ;
For, if on those destructive shallows tost,
The helpless bark with all her crew are lost :
As fatal still appears, that danger o'er,
The steep St. George, and rocky Gardalor.
With him the pilots, of their hopeless state,
In mournful consultation now debate.

* The lee-way, or drift, which in this place are synonymous terms, is the movement by which a ship is driven sideways at the mercy of the wind and sea, when she is deprived of the government of the sails and helm.

 Albert's Counsel.

Not more perplexing doubts her chiefs appal,
 When some proud city verges to her fall ;
 While Ruin glares around, and pale Affright
 Convenes her councils in the dead of night—
 No blazon'd trophies o'er their concave spread,
 Nor storied pillows rais'd aloft their head :
 But here the queen of Shade around them threw
 Her dragon wing, disastrous to the view !
 Dire wasthe scene, with whirlwind, hail and show'r ;
 Black Melancholy rul'd the fearful hour !
 Beneath tremendous roll'd the flashing tide,
 Where Fate on ev'ry billow seem'd to ride—
 Inclos'd with ills, by peril unsubdu'd,
 Great in distress the master-seaman stood :
 Skill'd to command ; delib'rate to advise ;
 Expert in action ; and in council wise ;
 Thus to his partners, by the crew unheard,
 The dictates of his soul the chief refr'd.

“ Ye faithful mates, who all my troubles share,
 Approv'd companions of your master's care !
 To you, alas ! 'twere fruitless now to tell
 Our sad distress, already known too well !
 This morn, with fav'ring gales the port we left,
 Tho' now of ev'ry flatt'ring hope bereft :
 No skill nor long experience could forecast
 Th' unseen approach of this destructive blast.

Albert's Counsel.

---

---

These seas, where storms, at various seasons blow,
No reigning winds nor certain omens know.
The hour, th' occasion all your skill demands ;
A leaky ship, embay'd by dang'rous lands.
Our bark no transient jeopardy surrounds ;
Groaning she lies beneath unnumber'd wounds.
'Tis ours the doubtful remedy to find ;
To shun the fury of the seas and wind :
For in this hollow swell, with labour sore,
Her flank can bear the bursting floods no more :
Yet this or other ills she must endure ;
A dire disease, and desp'rate is the cure !
Thus two expedients offer'd to your choice,
Alone require your counsel and your voice.
These only in our pow'r are left to try ;
To perish here, or from the storm to fly.
The doubtful balance in my judgment cast,
For various reasons I prefer the last.
'Tis true, the vessel and her costly freight,
To me consign'd, my orders only wait ;
Yet, since the charge of ev'ry life is mine,
To equal votes our counsels I resign ;
Forbid it, Heav'n ! that, in this dreadful hour,
I claim the dang'rous reins of purblind pow'r !
But should we now resolve to bear away,
Our hopeless state can suffer no delay.

Nor can we, thus bereft of ev'ry sail,
 Attempt to steer obliquely on the gale:
 For then, if broaching sideway to the sea,
 Our dropsy'd ship may founder by the lee:
 No more obedient to the pilot's pow'r,
 Th'o'erwhelming wave may soon her frame devour."

He said; the list'ning mates with fix'd regard,
 And silent rev'rence, his opinion heard.
 Important was the question in debate,
 And o'er their counsels hung impending Fate.
 Rodmond, in many a scene of peril try'd,
 Had oft the master's happier skill descry'd,
 Yet now, the hour, the scene, the occasion known,
 Perhaps with equal right preferr'd his own.
 Of long experience in the naval art,
 Blunt was his speech, and naked was his heart:
 Alike to him each climate and each blast;
 The first in danger, in retreat the last:
 Sagacious balancing th' oppos'd events,
 From Albert his opinion thus dissents.

"Too true the perils of the present hour,
 Where toils succeeding toils our strength o'erpow'r!
 Yet whither can we turn, what road pursue,
 With death before still op'ning on the view?
 Our bark 'tis true no shelter here can find,
 Sore shatter'd by the ruffian seas and wind;

Yet with what hope of refuge can we flee,
Chas'd by this tempest and outrageous sea?
For while its violence the tempest keeps,
Bereft of every sail we roam the deeps:
At random driv'n, to present death we haste,
And one short hour perhaps may be our last.
In vain the gulf of Corinth, on our lee,
Now opens to her ports a passage free;
Since, if before the blast the vessel flies,
Full in her track unnumber'd dangers rise.
Here Falconera spreads her lurking snares;
There distant Greece her rugged shelves prepares:
Should once her bottom strike that rocky shore,
The splitting bark that instant were no more;
Nor she alone, but with her all the crew,
Beyond relief, were doom'd to perish too.
Thus if to scud too rashly we consent,
Too late in fatal hour we may repent.

“ Then of our purpose this appears the scope,
To weigh the danger with a doubtful hope,
Tho' sorely buffeted by every sea,
Our hull unbroken long may try a-lee;
The crew, tho' harass'd long with toils severe,
Still at their pumps perceive no hazards near.
Shall we, incautious, then the danger tell,
At once their courage and their hope to quell?

Prudence forbids!—This southern tempest soon
 May change its quarter with the changing moon:
 Its rage, though terrible, may soon subside,
 Nor into mountains lash the unruly tide.
 These leaks shall then decrease; the sails oncemore
 Direct our course to some relieving shore.”

Thus while he spoke, around from man to man,
 At either pump a hollow murmur ran.
 For while th' vessel, thro' unnumber'd chinks,
 Above, below, th' invading waters drinks,
 Sounding her depth, they ey'd the wetted scale,
 And lo! the leaks o'er all their pow'rs prevail.
 Yet at their post, by terrors unsubdu'd,
 They with redoubling force their task pursu'd.

And now the senior pilots seem'd to wait
 Arion's voice, to close the dark debate.
 Tho' many a bitter storm, with perils fraught,
 In Neptune's school the wand'ring stripling } taught, }
 Not twice nine summers yet matur'd his thought.
 So oft he bled by Fortune's cruel dart,
 It fell at last innocuous on his heart.
 His mind still shunning care with secret hate,
 In patient indolence resign'd to Fate.
 But now the horrors that around him roll,
 Thus rous'd to action his rekindling soul.

Arion's Opinion decides.

---

“ With fix'd attention, pond'ring in my mind
The dark distresses on each side combin'd ;
While here we linger in the pass of Fate,
I see no moment left for sad debate.
For, some decision if we wish to form,
Ere yet our vessel sink beneath the storm,
Her shatter'd state, and yon desponding crew,
At once suggest what measures to pursue.
The labouring hull already seems half fill'd
With water thro' an hundred leaks distill'd ;
As in a dropsy, wallowing with her freight,
Half-drown'd she lies, a dead inactive weight !
Thus drench'd by every wave, her riven deck
Stript and defenceless, floats a naked wreck ;
Her wounded flanks no longer can sustain
These fell invasions of the bursting main.
At every pitch th' o'erwhelming billows bend
Beneath their load the quiv'ring bowsprit-end.
A fearful warning ! since the masts on high
On that support with trembling hope rely ;
At either pump our seamen pant for breath,
In dark dismay, anticipating death.
Still all our pow'rs th' increasing leaks defy,
We sink at sea, no shore, no haven nigh.
One dawn of hope yet breaks athwart the gloom
To light and save us from the wat'ry tomb :

Palemon's Despondency.

---

---

That bids us shun the death impending here,
Fly from the following blast, and shoreward steer.

“’Tis urg’d indeed, the fury of the gale
Precludes the help of every guiding sail ;
And, driv’n before it on the wat’ry waste,
To rocky shores and scenes of death we haste ;
But, haply, Falconera we may shun,
And far to Grecian coasts is yet the run :
Less harass’d then, our scudding ship may bear
Th’ assaulting surge repell’d upon her rear.
Even then the wearied storm as soon shall die,
Or less torment the groaning pines on high.
Should we at last be driv’n by dire decree,
Too near the fatal margin of the sea,
The hull dismasted there awhile may ride,
With lengthen’d cables on the raging tide.
Perhaps kind Heav’n, with interposing pow’r,
May curb the tempest ere that dreadful hour.
But here ingulf’d and found’ring, while we stay
Fate hovers o’er and marks us for her prey.”

He said ; Palemon saw, with grief of heart,
The storm prevailing o’er the pilot’s art :
In silent terror and distress involv’d,
He heard their last alternative resolv’d,
High beat his bosom ; with such fear subdu’d,
Beneath the gloom of some enchanted wood,

Oft in old time the wand'ring swain explor'd
The midnight wizards, breathing rites abhorr'd :
Trembling approach'd their incantations fell,
And, chill'd with horror, heard the songs of hell.
Arion saw, with secret anguish mov'd,
The deep affliction of the friend he lov'd ;
And, all awake to Friendship's genial heat,
His bosom felt contending tumults beat.
Alas ! no season this for tender love ;
Far hence the music of the myrtle grove—
With Comfort's soothing voice, from Hope deriv'd,
Palemon's drooping spirit he reviv'd ;
For Consolation oft with healing art
Retunes the jarring numbers of the heart.—
Now had the pilots all th' events resolv'd,
And on their final refuge thus resolv'd ;
When, like the faithful shepherd, who beholds
Some prowling wolf approach his fleecy folds,
To the brave crew, whom racking doubts perplex,
The dreadful purpose Albert thus directs.

“ Unhappy partners in a wayward fate !
Whose gallant spirits now are known too late ;
Ye ! who unmov'd behold this angry storm
With terrors all the rolling deep deform ;
Who, patient in adversity, still bear
The firmest front when greatest ills are near !

 Albert's Advice to the Crew.

---

The truth, tho' grievous, I must now reveal,
 That long in vain I purpos'd to conceal.
 Ingulf'd, all help of arts we vainly try,
 To weather leeward shores, alas! too nigh.
 Our crazy bark no longer can abide
 The seas that thunder o'er her batter'd side;
 And, while the leaks a fatal warning give,
 That in this raging sea she cannot live,
 One only refuge from despair we find;
 At once to wear and scud before the wind*.
 Perhaps e'en then to ruin we may steer;
 For broken shores beneath our lee appear;
 But that's remote, and instant death is here: }
 Yet there, by Heav'n's assistance, we may gain
 Some creek or inlet of the Grecian main;
 Or, shelter'd by some rock, at anchor ride,
 Till with abating rage the blast subside.

"But if, determin'd by the will of Heav'n,
 Our helpless bark at last ashore is driv'n,
 These counsels follow'd, from the wat'ry grave
 Our floating sailors on the surf may save.

"And first, let all your axes be secur'd,
 To cut the masts and rigging from aboard.
 Then to the quarters bind each plank and oar,
 To float between the vessel and the shore.

* For an explanation of these manœuvres, the reader is referred to the last note of this Canto.

The longest cordage too must be convey'd
On deck, and to the weather rails belay'd.
So they, who haply reach alive the land,
Th' extended lines may fasten on the strand,
Whene'er, loud thund'ring on the leeward shore,
While yet aloof we hear the breakers roar.
Thus for the terrible event prepar'd,
Brace fore and aft to starboard every yard;
So shall our masts swim lighter on the wave,
And from the broken rocks our seamen save.
Then westward turn the stem, that every mast
May shoreward fall, when from the vessel cast.—
When o'er her side once more the billows bound,
Ascend the rigging till she strikes the ground:
And when you hear aloft th' alarming shock,
That strikes her bottom on some pointed rock,
The boldest of our sailors must descend,
The dang'rous business of th' deck to 'tend;
Then each, secur'd by some convenient cord,
Should cut the shrouds and rigging from the board;
Let the broad axes next assail each mast;
And booms, and oars, and rafts, to leeward cast.
Thus, while the cordage stretch'd ashore may guide
Our brave companions thro' the swelling tide,
This floating lumber shall sustain them o'er
The rocky shelves, in safety to the shore.

 Albert's Advice to the Crew.

But as your firmest succour, till the last,
 O cling securely on each faithful mast !
 Tho' great the danger, and the task severe,
 Yet bow not to the tyranny of Fear !
 If once that slavish yoke your spirits quell,
 Adieu to hope ! to life itself farewell !

" I know, among you some full oft have view'd,
 With murd'ring weapons arm'd, a lawless brood,
 On England's vile inhuman shore who stand,
 The foul reproach and scandal of our land !
 To rob the wand'ers wreck'd upon the strand. }
 These, while their savage office they pursue,
 Oft wound to death the helpless plunder'd crew,
 Who, 'scap'd from every horror of the main,
 Implor'd their merey, but implor'd in vain !
 But dread not this !—a crime to Greece unknown !
 Such blood-hounds all her circling shores disown ;
 Her sons, by barb'rous tyranny opprest,
 Can share affliction with the wretch distrest :
 Their hearts, by cruel fate inur'd to grief,
 Oft to the friendless stranger yield relief."

With conscious horror struck, the naval band
 Detested for a while their native land.
 They curs'd the sleeping vengeance of the laws,
 That thus forgot her guardian sailors' cause.

Albert's Prayer.

Meanwhile the master's voice again they heard,
Whom, as with filial duty, all rever'd.

“ No more remains—but now a trusty band
Must ever at the pump industrious stand :
And while with us the rest attend to wear,
Two skilful seamen to the helm repair !—
O Source of Life ! our refuge and our stay !
Whose voice the warring elements obey,
On thy supreme assistance we rely ;
Thy mercy supplicate, if doom'd to die !
Perhaps this storm is sent, with healing breath,
From neighb'ring shores to scourge disease and
'Tis ours on thine unerring laws to trust : [death !
With thee, great LORD ! ' whatever is, is just.' ”

He said ; and with consenting rev'ence fraught,
The sailors join'd his prayer in silent thought,
His intellectual eye, serenely bright !
Saw distant objects with prophetic light.
Thus in a land, that lasting wars oppress,
That groans beneath misfortune and distress ;
Whose wealth to conq'ring armies falls a prey,
Her bulwarks sinking, as her troops decay ;
Some bold sagacious statesman, from the helm,
Sees desolation gath'ring o'er his realm :
He darts around his penetrating eyes,
Where dangers grow, and hostile unions rise ;

 The Vessel ingulfed.

---

With deep attention marks th' invading foe,
 Eludes their wiles, and frustrates every blow ;
 Tries his last art the tottering state to save,
 Or in its ruins finds a glorious grave.

Still in the yawning trough the vessel reels,
 Ingulf'd beneath two fluctuating hills !
 On either side they rise ; tremendous scene !
 A long dark melancholy vale between*.

* That the reader, who is unacquainted with the manœuvres of navigation, may conceive a clearer idea of a ship's state when trying ; and of the change of her situation to that of scudding, I have quoted a part of the explanation of those articles as they appear in the Dictionary of the Marine.

“ Trying is the situation in which a ship lies nearly in the trough or hollow of the sea in a tempest, particularly when it blows contrary to her course.

“ In trying as well as in scudding, the sails are always reduced in proportion to the increase of the storm ; and in either state, if the storm is excessive, she may have all her sails furled ; or be, according to the sea phrase, under bare poles.

“ The intent of spreading a sail at this time, is to keep the ship more steady, and to prevent her from rolling violently, by pressing her side down in the water ; and also to turn her head towards the source of the wind, so that the shock of the sea may fall more obliquely on her flank, than when she lies along the trough of the sea, or in the interval between two waves. While she lies in this situation, the helm is fastened close to the lee-side, to prevent her, as much as possible, from falling to leeward. But as the ship is not then kept in equilibrio by the operation of her sails, which at other times counterbalance each other at the head and stern, she is moved by a slow but continual vibration, which turns her head alternately to windward and to leeward, forming an angle of 30 or 40 degrees in the interval. That part where she stops in approaching the direction of the wind, is called her coming to ; and the contrary excess of the angle to leeward, is called her falling off.

Veering, or wearing, (see line 25, p. 77, and line 10, p. 84) as used in the present sense, may be defined, the movement by which a ship changes her state from trying to that of scudding, or, of running before the direction of the wind and sea.

 Preparation for bearing away.

---

The balanc'd ship, now forward, now behind, }
 Still felt th' impression of the waves and wind, }
 And to the right and left by turns inclin'd ; }
 But Albert from behind the balance drew,
 And on the prow its double efforts threw.—

It is an axiom in natural philosophy, "that every body will persevere in a state of rest, or of moving uniformly in a right line, unless it be compelled to change its state by forces impressed: and that the change of motion is proportional to the moving force impressed, and made according to that right line in which that force acts."

Hence it is easy to conceive how a ship is compelled to turn into any direction by the force of the wind, acting upon any part of her length in lines parallel to the plane of the horizon. Thus in the act of veering, which is a necessary consequence of this invariable principle, the object of the seamen is to reduce the action of the wind on the ship's hinder part, and to receive its utmost exertion on her fore part, so that the latter may be pushed to leeward. This effect is either produced by the operation of the sails, or by the impression of the wind on the masts and yards. In the former case the sails on the hind part of the ship are either furled, or arranged nearly parallel to the direction of the wind, which then glides ineffectually along their surfaces; at the same time the foremost sails are spread abroad, so as to receive the greatest exertion of the wind. The fore part accordingly yields to this impulse, and is put in motion; and this motion, necessarily conspiring with that of the wind, pushes the ship about as much as is requisite to produce the desired effect.

"But when the tempest is so violent as to preclude the use of sails, the effort of the wind operates almost equally on the opposite ends of the ship, because the masts and yards situated near the head and stern serve to counterbalance each other, in receiving its impression. The effect of the helm is also considerably diminished, because of the headway, which gives life and vigour to all its operations, is at this time feeble and ineffectual. Hence it becomes necessary to destroy this equilibrium which subsists between the masts and yards before and behind, and to throw the balance forward to prepare for veering. If this cannot be effected by the arrangement of the yards on the masts, and it becomes absolutely necessary to veer, in order to save the ship from destruction, (see line 1, p. 91), the mizen-mast must be cut away, and even the main-mast, if she still remains incapable of answering the helm by turning her prow to leeward.

The Mizzen-yard lowered.

---

The order now was giv'n to bear away ;
 The order giv'n, the timoneers obey.
 High o'er the bowsprit stretch'd, the tortur'd sail,
 As on the rack, distends beneath the gale.
 But scarce the yielding prow its impulse knew,
 When in a thousand flitting shreds it flew!—
 Yet Albert new resources still prepares,
 And bridling grief, redoubles all his cares.
 Away there! lower the mizen-yard on deck!
 He calls, and brace the foremast yards aback!
 His great example every bosom fires,
 New life rekindles, and new hope inspires,
 While to the helm unfaithful still she lies,
 One desp'rate remedy at last he tries.—

Scudding is that movement in navigation by which a ship is carried precipitately before a tempest. See line 10, p. 84.

As a ship flies with amazing rapidity through the water, whenever this expedient is put in practice, it is never attempted in a contrary wind, unless when her condition renders her incapable of sustaining the mutual effort of the wind and waves any longer on her side, without being exposed to the most imminent danger.

A ship either scuds with a sail extended on her foremast, or, if the storm be excessive, without any sail, which in the sea phrase is called scudding under bare poles.

The principal hazards incident to scudding are generally, a sea striking the ship's stern; the difficulty of steering, which perpetually exposes her to the danger of broaching-to; and the want of sufficient sea-room. A sea which strikes the stern violently may shatter it to pieces, by which the ship must inevitably founder. By broaching-to, suddenly, she is threatened with losing all her masts and sails, or being immediately overturned; and for want of sea-room, she is exposed to the dangers of being wrecked on a lee-shore.

Mizen-Mast hewn down.

Haste! with your weapons cut the shrouds and stay;
And hew at once the mizen-mast away!
He said; th' attentive sailors on each side,
At his command the trembling cords divide.
Fast by the fated pine bold Rodmond stands;
Th' impatient axe hung gleaming in his hands;
Brandish'd on high, it fell with dreadful sound;
The tall mast groaning, felt the deadly wound.
Deep gash'd with sores, the tott'ring structure rings:
And crashing, thund'ring o'er the quarter swings.

Thus when some limb convuls'd with pangs of Imbibes the gangrene's pestilential breath! [death,
Th' experienc'd artist from the blood betrays
The latent venom, or its course delays:
But if th' infection triumphs o'er his art,
Tainting the vital stream that warms the heart,
Resolv'd at last, he quits th' unequal strife,
Severs the member, and preserves the life.

THE

SHIPWRECK.

CANTO III.

ARGUMENT.

The design and influence of poetry. Applied to the subject. Wreck of the mizen-mast cleared away. Ship veers before the wind. Her violent agitation. Different stations of the officers. Appearance of the island of Falconera. Excursion to the adjacent nations of Greece, renowned in antiquity. Athens. Socrates. Plato. Aristides. Solon. Corinth. Sparta. Leonidas. Invasion of Xerxes. Lycurgus. Epaminondas. Modern appearance. Arcadia; its former happiness and fertility. Present distress, the effect of slavery. Ithaca. Ulysses and Penelope. Argos and Mycæne. Agamemnon. Macronisi. Lemnos. Vulcan and Venus. Delos. Apollo and Diana. Troy. Sestos. Leander and Hero. Delphos. Temple of Apollo. Parnassus. The Muses. The subject resumed. Sparkling of the sea. Prodigious tempest accompanied with rain, hail, and meteors. Darkness, lightning, and thunder. Approach of day. Discovery of land. The ship in great danger passes the island of St. George. Turns her broadside to the shore. Her bowsprit, foremast, and main-top-mast carried away. She strikes a rock. Splits asunder. Fate of the crew.

The scene stretches from that part of the Archipelago which lies ten miles to the northward of Falconera, to Cape Colona, in Attica. The time is about seven hours, being from one till eight in the morning.

SHIPWRECK.

CANTO III.

WHEN in a barb'rous age, with blood defil'd,
The human savage roam'd the gloomy wild ;
When sullen Ignorance her flag display'd,
And Rapine and Revenge her voice obey'd ;
Sent from the shores of light the Muses came
The dark and solitary race to tame.
'Twas theirs the lawless passions to control,
And melt in tender sympathy the soul :
The heart from vice and error to reclaim,
And breathe in human breasts celestial flame.
The kindling spirit caught th' empyreal ray,
And glow'd congenial with the swelling lay.
Rous'd from the chaos of primeval night,
At once fair Truth and Reason sprung to light.—

When great Mæonides, in rapid song,
The thund'ring tide of battle rolls along,
Each ravish'd bosom feels the high alarms,
And all the burning pulses beat to arms.
From earth upborne, on Pegasean wings,
Farthro' the boundless realms of thought the springs;
While distant poets, trembling as they view
His sunward flight, the dazzling track pursue.
But when his strings, with mournful magic, tell
What dire distress Laertes' son befel,
The strains, meand'ring thro' the maze of woe,
Bid sacred sympathy the heart o'erflow.
Thus, in old time, the Muses' heavenly breath
With vital force dissolv'd the chains of death;
Each bard in epic lays began to sing,
Taught by the master of the vocal string.—
'Tis mine, alas! thro' dang'rous scenes to stray,
Far from the light of his unerring ray!
While, all unus'd the wayward path to tread,
Darkling I wander with prophetic dread.
To me in vain the bold Mæonian lyre
Awakes the numbers, fraught with living fire!—
Full oft indeed, that mournful harp of yore
Wept the sad wand'rer lost upon the shore;
But o'er that scene th' impatient numbers ran,
Subservient only to a nobler plan.

Wreck cleared.

---

---

'Tis mine, th' unravell'd prospect to display,
And chain th' events in regular array.
Tho' hard the task to sing in varied strains,
While all unchang'd the tragic theme remains !
Thrice happy ! might the secret pow'rs of art
Unlock the latent windings of the heart !
Might the sad numbers draw Compassion's tear
For kindred miseries, oft beheld too near ;
For kindred wretches, oft in ruin cast
On Albion's strand, beneath the wintry blast ;
For all the pangs, of complicated woe,
Her bravest sons, her faithful sailors know !
So pity, gushing o'er each British breast,
Might sympathize with Britain's sons distress :
For this, my theme thro' mazes I pursue,
Which nor Mæonides nor Maro knew.
Awhile the mast, in ruins dragg'd behind,
Balanc'd th' impression of the helm and wind :
The wounded serpent, agoniz'd with pain,
Thus trails his mangled volume on the plain.
But now the wreck dissever'd from the rear,
The long reluctant prow began to veer ;
And while around before the wind it falls,
" Square fore and aft the yards* !" the master calls,

* To square the yards, in this place, is meant to arrange them directly athwart the ship's length.

 Ship veers.

---

" You, timoneers, her motion still attend !
 For on your steerage all our lives depend.
 So, stedly* ! meet her, watch the blast behind,
 And steer her right before the seas and wind !"
 " Starboard again !" the watchful pilot cries ;
 " Starboard," th' obedient timoneer replies.
 Then to the left the ruling helm returns ;
 The wheel† revolves ; the ringing axle burns !
 The ship, no longer foundering by the lee,
 Bears on her side th' invasions of the sea ;
 All lonely o'er the desert waste she flies,
 Scourg'd on by surges, storm and bursting skies,
 As when the masters of the lance assail,
 In Hyperborean seas, the slumb'ring whale ;
 Soon as the jav'lins pierce his scaly hide,
 With anguishstung, he cleaves the downward tide ;
 In vain he flies ; no friendly respite found ;
 His life-blood gushes thro' th' inflaming wound.

The wounded bark thus smarting with her pain,
 Scuds from pursuing waves along the main ;
 While, dash'd apart by her dividing prow,
 Like burning adamant the waters glow.
 Her joints forget their firm elastic tone ;
 Her long keel trembles, and her timbers groan.

* Stedly is the order to steer the ship according to the line on which she advances, without deviating to the right or left thereof.

† In all large ships the helm is managed by a wheel.

---

The Pilots' watch set.

---

Upheav'd behind her, in tremendous height,
The billows frown, with fearful radiance bright !
Now shivering, o'er the topmost wave she rides,
While, deep beneath th' enormous gulf divides.
Now, launching headlong down the horrid vale,
She hears no more the roaring of the gale ;
Till up the dreadful height again she flies,
Trembling beneath the current of the skies.
As that rebellious angel who, from Heav'n,
To regions of eternal pain was driv'n ;
When dreadless he forsook the Stygian shore,
The distant realms of Eden to explore ;
Here, on sulphureous clouds sublime upheav'd,
With daring wing th' infernal air he cleav'd ;
There, in some hideous gulph descending prone,
Far in the rayless void of night was thrown.

Even so she scales the briny mountain's height,
Then down the black abyss precipitates her flight.
The masts, around whose tops the whirlwinds sing,
With long vibration round her axle swing.
To guide the wayward course amid the gloom,
The watchful pilots different posts assume.
Albert and Rodmond, station'd on the rear,
With warning voice direct each timoneer.
High on the prow the watch Arion keeps,
To shun the cruisers wandering o'er the deeps :

The Ship passes the Island of Falconera.

---

Where'er he moves, Palemon still attends,
As if on him his only hope depends !
While Rodmond, fearful of some neighb'ring shore,
Cries, ever and anon, Look out afore!—
Four hours thus scudding on the tide she flew,
When Falconera's rocky height they view ;
High o'er its summit thro' the gloom of night,
The glimm'ring watch-tow'r casts a mournful light.
In dire amazement rivetted they stand,
And hear the breakers lash the rugged strand :
But soon beyond this shore the vessel flies,
Swift as the rapid eagle cleaves the skies.
So from the fangs of her insatiate foe,
O'er the broad champaign scuds the trembling roe.—
That danger past, reflects a feeble joy ;
But soon returning fears their hope destroy.
Thus, in th' Atlantic, oft the sailors' eyes,
While melting in the reign of softer skies,
Some alp of ice, from polar regions blown,
Hail the glad influence of a warmer zone :
Its frozen cliffs attemper'd gales supply :
In cooling stream the aërial billows fly ;
Awhile deliver'd from the scorching heat,
In gentler tides the feverish pulses beat.
So, when their trembling vessel pass'd this isle,
Such visionary joys the crew beguile ;

 Greece.

---

Th' illusive meteors of a lifeless fire !

Too soon they kindle, and too soon expire !

Say, Memory ! thou, from whose unerring tongue
Instructive flows the animated song !

What regions now the flying ship surround ?

Regions of old thro' all the world renown'd ;

That, once the Poet's theme, the Muses boast,

Now lie in ruins ; in oblivion lost !

Did they, whose sad distress these lays deplore,

Unskill'd in Grecian or in Roman lore,

Unconscious pass each famous circling shore ?

They did ; for blasted in the barren shade,

Here, all too soon, the buds of science fade :

Sad ocean's genius, in untimely hour,

Withers the bloom of every springing flow'r :

Here Fancy droops, while sullen cloud and storm

The generous climate of the soul deform.

Then if, among the wandering naval train,

One stripling exil'd from th' Aonian plain,

Had e'er, entranc'd in Fancy's soothing dream,

Approach'd to taste the sweet Castalian stream,

(Since those salubrious streams, with pow'r divine,

To purer sense th' attemper'd soul refine)

His heart with liberal commerce here unblest,

Alien to joy ! sincerer grief possest.

Athens.

---

---

Yet on the youthful mind, th' impression cast,
Of ancient glory, shall for ever last.

There, all unquench'd by cruel Fortune's ire,
It glows with inextinguishable fire.

Immortal Athens first, in ruin spread,
Contiguous lies at Port Liono's head.

Great source of science! whose immortal name
Stands foremost in the glorious roll of Fame;
Here godlike Socrates and Plato shone,
And, firm to truth, eternal honour won.

The first in Virtue's cause his life resign'd,
By Heaven pronounc'd the wisest of mankind;
The last foretold the spark of vital fire,
The soul's fine essence, never could expire.

Here Solon dwelt, the philosophic sage,
That fled Pisistratus' vindictive rage.

Just Aristides here maintain'd the cause,
Whose sacred precepts shine thro' Solon's laws.
Of all her towering structures, now alone,
Some scatter'd columns stand, with weeds
o'ergrown.

The wandering stranger, near the port descries
A milk-white lion of stupendous size;
Unknown the sculptor; marble is the frame;
And hence th' adjacent haven drew its name.

Corinth.

---

---

Next, in the gulph of Engia, Corinth lies,
Whose gorgeous fabrics seem'd to strike the skies,
Whom, tho' by tyrant-victors oft subdu'd,
Greece, Egypt, Rome, with awful wonder view'd.
Her name, for Pallas' heavenly art renown'd*,
Spread, like the foliage which her pillars crown'd.
But now, in fatal desolation laid,
Oblivion o'er it draws a dismal shade.

Then further westward, on Morea's land,
Fair Misitra ! thy modern turrets stand.
Ah ! who, unmov'd with secret woe, can tell
That here great Lacedæmon's glory fell ;
Hereonce she flourish'd, at whose trumpet's sound,
War burst his chains, and nations shook around.
Here brave Leonidas, from shore to shore,
Thro' all Achaia bade her thunders roar :
He, when imperial Xerxes, from afar,
Advanc'd with Persia's sumless troops to war,
Till Macedonia shrunk beneath his spear,
And Greece dismay'd beheld the chief draw near :
He, at Thermopylæ's immortal plain,
His force repell'd with Sparta's glorious train.
Tall Cæta saw the tyrant's conquer'd bands,
In gasping millions, bleed on hostile lands :
Thus vanquish'd Asia trembling heard thy name,
And Thebes and Athens sicken'd at thy fame !

* Architecture.

---

---

Arcadia.

---

---

Thy state, supported by Lycurgus' laws,
Drew, like thy arms, superlative applause.
E'en great Epaminondas strove in vain,
To curb that spirit with a Theban chain.
But ah! how low her free-born spirit now!
Her abject sons to haughty tyrants bow;
A false degenerate superstitious race,
Infest thy regions, and thy name disgrace!

Not distant far, Arcadia's blest domains
Peloponnesus' circling shore contains.
Thrice happy soil! where still serenely gay,
Indulgent Flora breath'd perpetual May!
Where buxom Ceres taught th' obsequious field,
Rich without art, spontaneous gifts to yield;
Then with some rural nymph supremely blest,
While transport glow'd in each enamour'd breast,
Each faithful shepherd told his tender pain,
And sung of sylvan sports in artless strain,
Now, sad reverse! Oppression's iron hand
Enslaves her natives, and despoils the land.
In lawless rapine bred, a sanguine train
With midnight ravage scour th' uncultur'd plain.

Westward of these, beyond the isthmus lies
The long-lost isle of Ithacus the wise;
Where fair Penelope her absent lord,
Full twice ten years with faithful love deplor'd.

---

Helen.

---

---

Tho' many a princely heart her beauty won,
She, guarded only by a stripling son,
Each bold attempt of suitor-kings repell'd,
And undefil'd the nuptial contract held.
With various arts to win her love they toil'd,
But all their wiles by virtuous fraud she foil'd.
True to her vows, and resolutely chaste,
The beauteous princess triumph'd at the last.

Argos, in Greece, forgotten and unknown,
Still seems her cruel fortune to bemoan ;
Argos, whose monarch led the Grecian hosts
Far o'er the Ægean main, to Dardan coasts.
Unhappy prince ! who on a hostile shore,
Toil, peril, anguish, ten long winters bore.
And when to native realms restor'd at last,
To reap the harvest of thy labours past,
A perjur'd friend, alas ! and faithless wife,
There sacrific'd to impious lust thy life !—
Fast by Arcadia stretch these desert plains ;
And o'er the land a gloomy tyrant reigns.

Next the fair isle of Helena* is seen,
Where adverse winds detain'd the Spartan queen ;
For whom in arms combin'd the Grecian host,
With vengeance fir'd, invaded Phrygia's coast ;

* Now known by the name of Macronisi.

---

Lemnos.

---

---

For whom so long they labour'd to destroy
The sacred turrets of imperial Troy.
Here, driven by Juno's rage, the hapless dame,
Forlorn of heart, from ruin'd Ilium came,
The port, an image bears of Parian stone,
Of ancient fabric, but of date unknown.

Due east from this appears th' immortal shore
That sacred Phœbus and Diana bore.
Delos, thro' all the Ægean seas renown'd :
(Whose coast the rocky Cyclades surround)
By Phœbus honour'd, and by Greece rever'd !
Her hallow'd groves e'en distant Persia fear'd.
But now, a silent unfrequented land !
No human footstep marks the trackless sand.

Thence to the north, by Asia's western bound,
Fair Lemnos stands, with rising marble crown'd ;
Where, in her rage, avenging Juno hurl'd
Ill-fated Vulcan from th' ethereal world.
There his eternal anvils first he rear'd ;
Then, forg'd by Cyclopean art, appear'd
Thunders, that shook the skies with dire alarms,
And form'd by skill divine, Vulcanian arms.
There, with the crippled wretch, the foul disgrace,
And living scandal of th' empyreal race,
The beauteous queen of Love in wedlock dwelt ;
In fires profane can heavenly bosoms melt ?

Hero and Leander.

---

---

Eastward of this appears the Dardan shore,
That once th' imperial tow'rs of Ilium bore ;
Illustrious Troy ! renown'd in every clime,
Thro' the long annals of unfolding time !
How oft, thy royal bulwarks to defend,
Thow saw'st thy tut'lar gods in vain descend !
Tho' chiefs unnumber'd in her cause were slain,
Tho' nations perish'd on her bloody plain ;
That refuge of perfidious Helen's shame
Was doom'd at length to sink in Grecian flame.
And now, by Time's deep plough-share harrow'd
The seat of sacred Troy is found no more : [o'er,
No trace of all her glories now remains !
But corn and vines enrich her cultur'd plains.
Silver Scamander laves the verdant shore ;
Scamander oft o'erflow'd with hostile gore !

Not far remov'd from Ilion's famous land,
In counter-view appears the Thracian strand ;
Where beauteous Hero, from the turret's height,
Display'd her crescent each revolving night ;
Whose gleam directed lov'd Leander o'er
The rolling Hellespont, to Asia's shore,
Till, in a fated hour, on Thracia's coast
She saw her lover's lifeless body tost ;
Then felt her bosom agony severe ;
Her eyes, sad-gazing, pour'd th' incessant tear :

---

 Delphos.

---

---

O'erwhelm'd with anguish, frantic with despair,
 She beat her beauteous breast and tore her hair—
 On dear Leander's name in vain she cry'd ;
 Then headlong plung'd into the parting tide :
 The parting tide receiv'd the lovely weight,
 And proudly flow'd, exulting in its freight !

Far west of Thrace, beyond th' Ægean main,
 Remote from ocean, lies the Delphic plain.
 The sacred oracle of Phœbus there,
 High o'er the mount arose, divinely fair !
 Achaian marble form'd the gorgeous pile :
 August the fabric ! elegant its style !
 On brazen hinges turn'd the silver doors ;
 And chequer'd marble pav'd the polish'd floors.
 The roof, where story'd tablature appear'd,
 On columns of Corinthian mould was rear'd :
 Of shining porphyry the shafts were fram'd,
 And round the hollow dome bright jewels flam'd.
 Apollo's suppliant priests, a blameless train !
 Fram'd their oblations on the holy fane :
 To front the sun's declining ray 'twas plac'd ;
 With golden harps and living laurels grac'd.
 The sciences and arts around the shrine
 Conspicuous shone, engrav'd by hands divine !
 Here Æsculapius' snake display'd his crest,
 And burning glories sparkled on his breast ;

Parnassus.

---

---

While, from his eye's insufferable light,
 Disease and Death recoil'd, in headlong flight.
 Of this great temple, thro' all time renown'd,
 Sunk in oblivion, no remains are found.

Contiguous here, with hallow'd woods o'erspread,
 Parnassus lifts to Heav'n its honour'd head ;
 Where from the deluge sav'd, by heav'n's command,

Deucalion leading Pyrrha, hand in hand,
 Re-peopled all the desolated land.

Around the scene unfading laurels grow,
 And aromatic flowers for ever blow.

The winged choirs, on every tree above,
 Carol sweet numbers thro' the vocal grove ;
 While, o'er th' eternal spring that smiles beneath,
 Young zephyrs, borne on rosy pinions, breathe.

Fair daughters of the sun ! the sacred Nine
 Here wake to ecstasy their songs divine ;
 Or crown'd with myrtle, in some sweet alcove,
 Attune the tender strings to bleeding love.

All sadly sweet the balmy currents roll ;
 Soothing to softest peace the tortur'd soul.
 While hill and vale with choral voice around,
 The music of immortal harps resound,
 Fair Pleasure leads in dance the happy Hours,
 Still scatt'ring where she moves Elysian flow'rs !

 Tempest.

---

---

Even now the strains with sweet contagion fraught,
 Shed a delicious languor o'er the thought—
 Adieu, ye vales, that smiling peace bestow,
 Where Eden's blossoms ever-vernal blow !
 Adieu, ye streams, that o'er enchanted ground
 In lucid maze th' Aonian hill surround !
 Ye fairy scenes where Fancy loves to dwell,
 And young Delight, for ever, O farewell !
 The soul with tender luxury you fill,
 And o'er the sense Lethean dews distil !
 Awake, O MEMORY, from th' inglorious dream !
 With brazen lungs resume the kindling theme !
 Collect thy pow'rs ! arouse thy vital fire !
 Ye spirits of the storm, my verse inspire !
 Hoarse as the whirlwinds that enrage the main,
 In torrents pour along the swelling strain !
 Now, borne impetuous o'er the boiling deeps,
 Her course to Attic shores the vessel keeps :
 The pilots, as the waves behind her swell,
 Still with the wheeling stern their force repel.
 For, this assault should either quarter* feel,
 Again to flank the tempest she might reel.
 The steersman every bidden turn apply ;
 To right and left the spokes alternate fly.

* The quarter is the hinder part of a ship's side; or that part which is near the stern.

Thunder.

---

Thus, when some conquer'd host retreats in fear,
The bravest leaders guard the broken rear :
Indignant they retire, and long oppose
Superior armies that around them close ;
Still shield the flanks, the routed squadrons join,
And guide the flight in one embodied line.

So they direct the flying bark before
Th' impelling floods, that lash her to the shore.
As some benighted trav'ler, thro' the shade,
Explores the devious path with heart dismay'd ;
While prowling savages behind him roar,
And yawning pits and quagmires lurk before—
High o'er the poop th' audacious seas aspire,
Uproll'd in hills of fluctuating fire.
As some fell conqueror, frantic with success,
Sheds o'er the nations ruin and distress ;
So, while the wat'ry wilderness he roams,
Incens'd to sevenfold rage the tempest foams ;
And o'er the trembling pines, above, below,
Shrill thro' the cordage howls, with notes of woe.
Now thunders wafted from the burning zone,
Growl from afar, a deaf and hollow groan !
The ship's high battlements, to either side
For ever rocking, drink the briny tide :
Her joints unhing'd, in palsied languors play,
As ice dissolves beneath the noon-tide ray.

Lightning.

---

The skies asunder torn, a deluge pour ;
Th' impetuous hail descends in whirling show'r.
High on the masts, with pale and livid rays,
Amid the gloom portentous meteors blaze.
Th' ethereal dome, in mournful pomp array'd,
Now lurks behind impenetrable shade ;
Now, flashing round intolerable light,
Redoubles all the terrors of the night.
Such terror Sinai's quaking hill o'erspread,
When Heaven's loud trumpet sounded o'er its head.
It seem'd, the wrathful angel of the wind
Had all the horrors of the skies combin'd ;
And here, to one ill-fated ship oppos'd,
At once the dreadful magazine disclos'd.
And lo ! tremendous o'er the deep he springs,
Th' inflaming sulphur flashing from his wings !—
Hark ! his strong voice the dismal silence breaks ;
Mad Chaos from the chains of death awakes !
Loud and more loud the rolling peals enlarge ;
And blue on deck their blazing sides discharge :
There, all aghast, the shiv'ring wretches stood ;
While chill suspense and fear congeal'd their blood.
Now in a deluge bursts the living flame,
And dread concussion rends th' ethereal frame ;
Sick Earth convulsive groans from shore to shore,
And Nature shudd'ring feels the horrid roar.

---

Approach of Day.

---

Still the sad prospect rises on my sight,
Reveal'd in all its mournful shade and light ;
Swift thro' my pulses glides the kindling fire,
As lightning glances on th' electric wire.
But ah ! the force of numbers strives in vain,
The glowing scene unequal to sustain.
But lo ! at last, from tenfold darkness born,
Forth issues o'er the wave the weeping morn.
Hail, sacred vision ! who on orient wings,
The cheering dawn of light propitious brings !
All nature smiling hail'd the vivid ray,
That gave her beauties to returning day :
All but our ship, that, groaning on the tide,
No kind relief, no gleam of hope descry'd.
For now, in front, her trembling inmates see
The hills of Greece emerging on the lee.
So the lost lover views that fatal morn,
On which, for ever from his bosom torn,
The nymph ador'd resigns her blooming charms,
To bless with love some happier rival's arms.
So to Eliza dawn'd that cruel day
That tore Æneas from her arms away ;
That saw him parting, never to return,
Herself in funeral flames decreed to burn.
O yet in clouds, thou genial source of light,
Conceal thy radiant glories from our sight !

Discovery of Land.

---

Go, with thy smile adorn the happy plain,
And gild the scenes where health and pleasure
reign ;

But let not here, in scorn, thy wanton beam
Insult the dreadful grandeur of my theme !

While shoreward now the bounding vessel flies,
Full in her van St. George's cliffs arise :
High o'er the rest a pointed crag is seen,
That hung projecting o'er a mossy green.
Nearer and nearer now the danger grows,
And all their skill relentless fates oppose ;
For, while more eastward they direct the prow,
Enormous waves the quiv'ring decks o'erflow.
While, as she wheels, unable to subdue
Her sallies, still they dread her broaching-to*.
Alarming thought ! for now no more a-lee
Her riven side could bear th' invading sea :
And if the following surge she scuds before,
Headlong she runs upon the dreadful shore :
A shore where shelves and hidden rocks abound,
Where death in secret ambush lurks around.
Far less dismay'd, Anchises' wand'ring son
Was seen the straits of Sicily to shun :

* Broaching-to is a sudden and involuntary movement in navigation, wherein a ship, whilst scudding or sailing before the wind, unexpectedly turns her side to windward. It is generally occasioned by the difficulty of steering her, or by some disaster happening to the machinery of the helm. See the last note of the Second Canto.

The Ship approaches Land.

---

When Palinurus, from the helm descry'd
The rocks of Scylla, on his eastern side ;
While in the west, with hideous yawn disclos'd,
His onward path Charybdis' gulf oppos'd.
The double danger as by turns he view'd,
His wheeling bark her arduous track pursu'd.
Thus, while to right and left destruction lies,
Between th' extremes the daring vessel flies.
With boundless involution, bursting o'er
The marble cliffs, loud dashing surges roar ;
Hoarse thro' each winding creek the tempest raves,
And hollow rocks repeat the groan of waves ;
Destruction round th' insatiate coast prepares,
To crush the trembling ship unnumber'd snares.
But haply now she 'scapes the fatal strand,
Tho' scarce ten fathoms distant from the land ;
Swift as the weapon issuing from the bow,
She cleaves the burning waters with her prow ;
And forward leaping, with tumultuous haste,
As on the tempest's wing the isle she past.
With longing eyes and agony of mind,
The sailors view this refuge left behind ;
Happy to bribe, with India's richest ore,
A safe accession to that barren shore !

When in the dark Peruvian mine confin'd,
Lost to the cheerful commerce of mankind,

Colonna descried.

---

---

The groaning captive wastes his life away,
For ever exil'd from the realms of day ;
Not equal pangs his bosom agonize,
When far above the sacred light he eyes,
While, all forlorn, the victim pines in vain,
For scenes he never shall possess again.

But now Athenian mountains they descry,
And o'er the surge Colonna frowns on high :
Beside the cape's projecting verge are plac'd
A range of columns, long by time defac'd ;
First planted by Devotion to sustain,
In elder times, Tritonia's sacred fane.
The circling beach in murd'rous form appears,
Decisive goal of all their hopes and fears :
The seamen now in wild amazement see
The scene of ruin rise beneath the lee ;
Swift from their minds elaps'd all dangers past,
As dumb with terror they behold the last :
And now, while wing'd with ruin from on high,
Thro' the rent cloud the ragged lightnings fly,
A flash, quick-glancing on the nerves of light,
Struck the pale helmsman with eternal night :
Rodmond, who heard a piteous groan behind,
Touch'd with compassion, gaz'd upon the blind :
And, while around his sad companions crowd,
He guides th' unhappy victim to the shroud.

Ship in great danger.

---

“Hie thee aloft, my gallant friend!” he cries;
“Thy only succour on the mast relies!”—
The helm, bereft of half its vital force,
Now scarce subdu’d the wild unbridled course:
Quick to th’ abandon’d wheel Arion came,
The ship’s tempestuous sallies to reclaim.
Amaz’d he saw her, o’er the sounding foam
So gaz’d young Phaëton, with pale dismay,
When, mounted in the flaming car of day,
With rash and impious hand, the stripling try’d
Th’ immortal coursers of the sun to guide.—
The vessel, while the dread event draws nigh,
Seems more impatient o’er the waves to fly:
Fate spurs her on:—thus issuing from afar,
Advances to the sun some blazing star;
And, as it feels th’ attraction’s kindling force,
Springs onward with accelerated course.

With mournful look the seamen ey’d the strand,
Where Death’s inexorable jaws expand:
Swift from their minds elaps’d all dangers past,
As, dumb with terror, they beheld the last.
Now, on the trembling shrouds, before, behind,
In mute suspense they mount into the wind.—
The genius of the deep, on rapid wing,
The black eventful moment seem’d to bring;

Masts carried away.

---

---

The Fatal Sisters on the surge before,
Yok'd their infernal horses to the prore.—
The steersmen now receiv'd their last command,
To wheel the vessel sidelong to the strand.
Twelve sailors, on the foremast who depend,
High on the platform of the top ascend ;
Fatal retreat ! for while the plunging prow
Immerges headlong in the wave below,
Down-prest by watery weight the bowsprit bends,
And from above the stem deep-crashing rends.
Beneath her beak the floating ruins lie ;
The foremast totters, unsustain'd on high :
And now the ship, forelifted by the sea,
Hurls the tall fabric backward o'er her lee ;
While, in the general wreck, the faithful stay
Drags the main-topmast from its post away.
Flung from the mast, the seamen strive in vain
Thro' hostile floods their vessel to regain ;
The waves they buffet, till bereft of strength,
O'erpower'd they yield to cruel fate at length.
The hostile waters close around their head,
They sink for ever, number'd with the dead !

Those who remain their fearful doom await,
Nor longer mourn their lost companions' fate.
The heart, that bleeds with sorrows all its own,
Forgets the pangs of friendship to bemoan.—

Masts carried away.

Albert and Rodmond and Palemon here,
With young Arion, on the mast appear ;
Even they, amid th' unspeakable distress
In every look distracting thoughts confess,
In every vein the reflux blood congeals ;
And every bosom fatal terror feels.
Inclos'd with all the dæmons of the main,
They view'd th' adjacent shore, but view'd in vain.
Such torments in the drear abodes of hell,
Where sad despair laments with rueful yell,
Such torments agonize the damned breast,
While Fancy views the mansion of the blest.
For Heaven's sweet help, their suppliant cries
    implore ;
But Heaven relentless deigns to help no more !
    And now, lash'd on by destiny severe,
With horror fraught, the dreadful scene drew near !
The ship hangs hov'ring on the verge of death,
Hell yawns, rocks rise, and breakers roar beneath !
In vain, alas ! the sacred shades of yore
Would arm the mind with philosophic lore ;
In vain they'd teach us, at the latest breath
To smile serene amid the pangs of death.
Even Zeno's self, and Epictetus old,
This fell abyss had shudder'd to behold.

Ship strikes on a Rock.

---

Had Socrates, for godlike virtue fam'd,
And wisest of the sons of men proclaim'd,
Beheld this scene of frenzy and distress,
His soul had trembled to its last recess!—
O yet confirm my heart, ye Powers above,
This last tremendous shock of Fate to prove.
The tott'ring frame of Reason yet sustain!
Nor let this total ruin whirl my brain!

In vain the cords and axes were prepar'd,
For now the audacious seas insult the yard;
High o'er the ship they throw a horrid shade,
And o'er her burst in terrible cascade.
Uplifted on the surge, to heaven she flies,
Her shatter'd top half-buried in the skies,
Then headlong plunging thunders on the ground,
Earth groans! air trembles! and the deeps resound!
Her giant-bulk the dread concussion feels,
And quivering with the wound, in torment reels.
So reels, convuls'd with agonizing throes,
The bleeding bull beneath the murd'rer's blows—
Again she plunges! hark! a second shock
Tears her strong bottom on the marble rock.
Down on the vale of Death, with dismal cries,
The fated victims shudd'ring roll their eyes
In wild despair; while yet another stroke,
With deep convulsion, rends the solid oak:

Thirty Seamen lost.

---

---

Till, like the mine, in whose infernal cell
The lurking dæmons of destruction dwell,
At length asunder torn, her frame divides ;
And crashing spreads in ruin o'er the tides.

O were it mine with tuneful Maro's art
To wake to sympathy the feeling heart,
Like him the smooth and mournful verse to dress
In all the pomp of exquisite distress !
Then too severely taught by cruel Fate,
To share in all the perils I relate,
Then might I, with unrivall'd strains, deplore
Th' impervious horrors of a leeward shore.

As o'er the surge the stooping main-mast hung,
Still on the rigging thirty seamen clung ;
Some, struggling, on a broken crag were cast,
And there by oozy tangles grappled fast,
Awhile they bore th' o'erwhelming billow's rage,
Unequal combat with their fate to wage ;
Till all benumb'd and feeble they forego
Their slipp'ry hold, and sink to shades below.
Some, from the main-yard-arm impetuous thrown
On marble ridges, die without a groan.
Three with Palemon on their skill depend,
And from the wreck on oars and rafts descend.
Now on the mountain-wave on high they ride,
Then downward plunge beneath th' involving tide ;

Albert's Fate.

---

Till one, who seems in agony to strive,
The whirling breakers heave on shore alive:
The rest a speedier end of anguish knew;
And press'd the stony beach a lifeless crew!—

Next, O unhappy chief! th' eternal doom
Of Heaven decreed thee to the briny tomb!
What scenes of misery torment thy view!
What painful struggles of thy dying crew!
Thy perish'd hopes all buried in the flood,
O'erspread with corpses! red with human blood!
So, pierc'd with anguish, hoary Priam gaz'd;
When Troy's imperial domes in ruin blaz'd;
While he, severest sorrow doom'd to feel,
Expir'd beneath the victor's murdering steel.
Thus with his helpless partners to the last,
Sad refuge! Albert hugs the floating mast;
His soul could yet sustain this mortal blow,
But droops, alas! beneath superior woe;
For now soft Nature's sympathetic chain
Tugs at his yawning heart with pow'ful strain;
His faithful wife for ever doom'd to mourn
For him, alas! who never shall return;
To black Adversity's approach expos'd,
With want and hardships unforeseen inclos'd:
His lovely daughter left without a friend,
Her innocence to succour and defend:

---

 Albert's Fate.

---

By youth and indigence set forth a prey
 To lawless guilt, that flatters to betray.—
 While these reflections rack his feeling mind,
 Rodmond, who hung beside, his grasp resign'd ;
 And, as the tumbling waters o'er him roll'd,
 His outstretch'd arms the master's legs infold—
 Sad Albert feels the dissolution near,
 And strives in vain his fetter'd limbs to clear ;
 For Death bids every clinching joint adhere. }
 All faint, to Heaven he throws his dying eyes,
 And, " O protect my wife and child !" he cries :
 The gushing streams roll back th' unfinish'd sound !
 He gasps ! he dies ! and tumbles to the ground !

Five only left of all the perish'd throng,
 Yet ride the pine which shoreward drives along ;
 With these Arion still his hold secures,
 And all th' assaults of hostile waves endures.
 O'er the dire prospect as for life he strives,
 He looks if poor Palemon yet survives.
 Ah, wherefore, trusting to unequal art,
 Didst thou, incautious ! from the wreck depart ?
 Alas ! these rocks all human skill defy,
 Who strikes them once beyond relief must die ;
 And now sore wounded thou perhaps art tost
 On these, or in some oozy cavern lost ;

Arion sinks.

Thus thought Arion, anxious gazing round,
In vain, his eyes no more Palemon found.
The dæmons of destruction hover nigh,
And thick their mortal shafts commission'd fly :
And now a breaking surge, with forceful sway,
Two next Arion furious tears away.
Hurl'd on the crags, behold, they gasp! they bleed!
And groaning, cling upon th' illusive weed !
Another billow bursts in boundless roar !
Arion sinks! and Memory views no more !
    Ha ! total night and horror here preside !
My stunn'd ear tingles to the whizzing tide !
It is the funeral knell ; and gliding near,
Methinks the phantoms of the dead appear !
    But lo ! emerging from a watery grave,
Again they float incumbent on the wave !
Again the dismal prospect opens round,
The wreck, the shores, the dying, and the drown'd !
And see ! enfeebled by repeated shocks,
Those two who scramble on th' adjacent rocks,
Their faithless hold no longer can retain,
They sink o'erwhelm'd and never rise again !
    Two with Arion yet the mast upbore,
That now above the ridges reach'd the shore :
Still trembling to descend, they downward gaze
With horror pale, and torpid with amaze :

Fate of the Crew.

---

The floods recoil ! the ground appears below !
And life's faint embers now rekindling glow ;
Awhile they wait th' exhausted waves' retreat,
Then climb slow up the beach with hands and feet.
O Heaven ! deliver'd by whose sovereign hand,
Still on the brink of hell they shuddering stand,
Receive the languid incense they bestow,
That damp with death appears not yet to glow.
To thee each soul the warm oblation pays,
With trembling ardour of unequal praise ;
In every heart dismay with wonder strives,
And Hope the sicken'd spark of life revives ;
Her magic powers their exil'd health restore,
Till horror and despair are felt no more.

A troop of Grecians who inhabit nigh,
And oft these perils of the deep descry,
Rous'd by the blust'ring tempest of the night,
Anxious had climb'd Colonna's neighb'ring height ;
When gazing downward on th' adjacent flood,
Full to their view the scene of ruin stood,
The surf with mangled bodies strew'd around,
And those yet breathing on the sea-wash'd ground !
Tho' lost to science and the nobler arts,
Yet nature's lore inform'd their feeling hearts ;
Straight down the vale with hast'ning steps they
Th' unhappy suff'ers to assist and guide. [hied,

Fate of the Crew.

Meanwhile those three escap'd beneath explore
The first advent'rous youth who reach'd the shore ;
Panting, with eyes averted from the day,
Prone, helpless, on the tangly beach he lay—
It is Palemon ;—O what tumults roll
With hope and terror in Arion's soul !
If yet unhurt he lives again to view
His friend, and this sole remnant of our crew !
With us to travel thro' this foreign zone,
And share the future good or ill unknown !
Arion thus : but ah ! sad doom of Fate !
That bleeding Memory sorrows to relate :
While yet afloat, on some resisting rock
His ribs were dash'd, and fractur'd with the shock :
Heart-piercing sight ! those cheeks so late array'd
In beauty's bloom, are pale with mortal shade !
Distilling blood his lovely breast o'erspread,
And clogg'd the golden tresses of his head :
Nor yet the lungs by this pernicious stroke
Were wounded, or the vocal organs broke.
Down from his neck, with blazing gems array'd,
Thy image, lovely Anna, hung pourtray'd ;
Th' unconscious figure smiling all serene,
Suspended in a golden chain was seen.
Hadst thou, soft maiden ! in this hour of woe,
Beheld him writhing from the deadly blow,

Palemon's Dying Address.

What force of art, what language could express
Thine agony—thine exquisite distress?
But thou, alas! art doom'd to weep in vain
For him thine eyes shall never see again!
With dumb amazement pale, Arion gaz'd,
And cautiously the wounded youth uprais'd;
Palemon then, with cruel pangs opprest,
In faltering accents thus his friend address'd.

“ O rescu'd from destruction late so nigh,
“ Beneath whose fatal influence doom'd I lie;
“ Are we then exil'd to this last retreat
“ Of life, unhappy! thus decreed to meet!
“ Ah! how unlike what yester-morn enjoy'd,
“ Enchanting hopes, for ever now destroy'd!
“ For, wounded far beyond all healing power,
“ Palemon dies, and this his final hour:
“ By those fell breakers, where in vain I strove,
“ At once cut off from fortune, life and love!
“ Far other scenes must soon present my sight,
“ That lie deep-buried yet in tenfold night.
“ Ah! wretched father of a wretched son,
“ Whom thy paternal prudence has undone!
“ How will remembrance of this blinded care
“ Bend down thy head with anguish and despair!
“ Such dire effects from avarice arise,
“ That, deaf to Nature's voice, and vainly wise,

“ With force severe endeavours to control
“ The noblest passions that inspire the soul.
“ But, O Thou sacred Power! whose law connects
“ Th’ eternal chain of causes and effects,
“ Let not thy chastening ministers of rage
“ Afflict with sharp remorse his feeble age!
“ And you, Arion! who with these the last
“ Of all our crew survive the Shipwreck past—
“ Ah! cease to mourn! those friendly tears restrain;
“ Nor give my dying moments keener pain!
“ Since Heav’n may soon thy wand’ring steps restore,
“ When parted hence, to England’s distant shore;
“ Shouldst thou, th’ unwilling messenger of Fate,
“ To him the tragic story first relate,
“ O! friendship’s gen’rous ardour then suppress,
“ Nor hint the fatal cause of my distress:
“ Nor let each horrid incident sustain
“ The lengthen’d tale to aggravate his pain.
“ Ah! then remember well my last request,
“ For her who reigns for ever in my breast;
“ Yet let him prove a father and a friend,
“ The helpless maid to succour and defend.
“ Say, I this suit implor’d with parting breath,
“ So Heav’n befriend him at his hour of death!

“ But O ! to lovely Anna shouldst thou tell
“ What dire untimely end thy friend befel,
“ Draw o'er the dismal scene soft Pity's veil,
“ And lightly touch the lamentable tale :
“ Say that my love, inviolably true,
“ No change, no diminution ever knew ;
“ Lo ! her bright image, pendant on my neck,
“ Is all Palemon rescu'd from the wreck ;
“ Take it, and say, when panting in the wave,
“ I struggled life and this alone to save !

“ My soul, that flutt'ring hastens to be free,
“ Would yet a train of thoughts impart to thee ;
“ But strives in vain ;—the chilling ice of Death “ Congeals my blood, and chokes the stream of breath :

“ Resign'd, she quits her comfortless abode,
“ To course that long, unknown, eternal road.—
“ O sacred Source of ever-living light !
“ Conduct the weary wanderer in her flight !
“ Direct her onward to the peaceful shore,
“ Where peril, pain, and death are felt no more !

“ When thou some tale of hapless love shalt hear,
“ That steals from Pity's eye the melting tear,
“ Of two chaste hearts, by mutual passion join'd,
“ To absence, sorrow, and despair consign'd ;

Arion's Soliloquy.

" O ! then, to swell the tides of social woe,
 " That heal th' afflicted bosom they o'erflow,
 " While Memory dictates, this sad Shipwreck tell,
 " And what distress thy wretched friend befel !
 " Then, while in streams of soft compassion drown'd,
 " The swains lament, and maidens weep around ;
 " While lisping children, touch'd with infant fear,
 " With wonder gaze, and dropt' unconscious tear ;
 " O ! then this moral bid their souls retain,
 " *All thoughts of happiness on earth are vain**."

The last faint accents trembled on his tongue,
 That now inactive to the palate clung ;
 His bosom heaves a mortal groan—he dies !
 And shades eternal sink upon his eyes !

As thus defac'd in death Palemon lay,
 Arion gaz'd upon the lifeless clay,
 Transfix'd he stood, with awful terror fill'd,
 While down his cheek the silent drops distill'd.

" O ill-starr'd votary of unspotted truth !
 " Untimely perish'd in the bloom of youth,
 " Should e'er thy friend arrive on Albion's land,
 " He will obey, tho' painful, thy demand :
 " His tongue the dreadful story shall display,
 " And all the horrors of this dismal day ! "

Arion's Soliloquy.

---

“ Disastrous day ! what ruin hast thou bred !
“ What anguish to the living and the dead !
“ How hast thou left the widow all forlorn,
“ And ever doom'd the orphan child to mourn ;
“ Thro' life's sad journey hopeless to complain !
“ Can sacred Justice these events ordain ?
“ But, O my soul ! avoid that wondrous maze
“ Where Reason, lost in endless error, strays !
“ As thro' this thorny vale of life we run,
“ Great Cause of all effects, Thy will be done !”
Now had the Grecians on the beach arriv'd,
To aid the helpless few who yet surviv'd ;
While passing they behold the waves o'erspread
With shatter'd rafts and corpses of the dead.
Three still alive, benumb'd and faint they find,
In mournful silence on a rock reclin'd.
The generous natives, mov'd with social pain,
The feeble strangers in their arms sustain ;
With pitying sighs their hapless lot deplore,
And lead them trembling from the fatal shore.

OCCASIONAL ELEGY,

IN WHICH THE PRECEDING NARRATIVE IS CONCLUDED.

THE scene of death is clos'd, the mournful strains
Dissolve in dying languor on the ear ;
Yet Pity weeps, yet Sympathy complains, [fear.
And dumb Suspense awaits o'erwhelm'd with

But the sad Muses, with prophetic eye,
At once the future and the past explore,
Their harps Oblivion's influence can defy,
And waft the spirit to th' eternal shore.

Then, O Palemon ! if thy shade can hear
The voice of Friendship still lament thy doom,
Yet to the sad oblations bend thine ear,
That rise in vocal incense o'er thy tomb.

In vain, alas ! the gentle Maid shall weep,
While secret anguish nips her vital bloom ;
O'er her soft frame shall stern diseases creep,
And give the lovely victim to the tomb.

Relentless Phrenzy shall the Father sting,
Untaught in Virtue's school distress to bear ;
Severe Remorse his tortur'd soul shall wring,
'Tis his to groan and perish in despair.

Ye lost companions of distress, adieu !

Your toils, and pains, and dangers are no more !
The tempest now shall howl unheard by you,
While ocean smites in vain the trembling shore.

On you the blast, surcharg'd with rain and snow,
In winter's dismal nights no more shall beat ;
Unfelt by you the vertic sun may glow,
And scorch the panting earth with baneful heat.

No more the joyful Maid, the sprightly strain
Shall wake, the dance to give you welcome home ;
Nor hopeless Love impart undying pain,
When far from scenes of social joy you roam.

No more on yon wide watery waste you stray,
While hunger and disease your life consume,
While parching thirst, that burns without allay,
Forbids the blasted rose of health to bloom.

No more you feel Contagion's mortal breath,
That taints the realms with misery severe ;
No more behold pale Famine, scattering death,
With cruel ravage desolate the year.

The thundering drum, the trumpet's swelling strain,
Unheard shall form the long embattled line ;
Unheard, the deep foundations of the main
Shall tremble when the hostile squadrons join.

Since grief, fatigue, and hazards still molest
The wand'ring vassal of the faithless deep,
Oh! happier now escap'd to endless rest,
Than we, who still survive to wake and weep.

What tho' no funeral pomp, no borrow'd tear,
Your hour of death to gazing crowds shall tell;
Nor weeping friends attend your sable bier,
Who sadly listen to the passing bell.

The tutor'd sigh, the vain parade of woe,
No real anguish to the soul impart;
And oft, alas! the tear that friends bestow,
Belies the latent feelings of the heart.

What tho' no sculptur'd pile your name displays,
Like those who perish in their country's cause;
What tho' no epic Muse in living lays
Records your dreadful daring with applause:

Full oft the flattering marble bids renown
With blazon'd trophies deck the spotted name!
And oft, too oft, the venal Muses crown
The slaves of vice with never-dying fame.

Yet shall Remembrance from Oblivion's veil
Relieve your scene, and sigh with grief sincere,
And soft Compassion at your tragic tale
In silent tribute pay her kindred tear,

A POEM,

SACRED TO THE MEMORY

OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS FREDERIC PRINCE OF WALES.

FROM the big horror of war's hoarse alarms,
And the tremendous clang of clashing arms,
Descend, my Muse! a deeper scene to draw
(A scene will hold the list'ning world in awe*)
Is my intent: Melpomene inspire,
While, with sad notes, I strike the trembling lyre!
And may my lines with easy motion flow,
Melt as they move, and fill each heart with woe:
Big with the sorrow it describes, my song,
In solemn pomp, majestic, move along.

Oh! bear me to some awful silent glade
Where cedars form an unremitting shade;
Where never track of human feet was known;
Where never cheerful light of Phœbus shone;

* By awe, here, is meant attention.

Where chirping linnets warble tales of love,
And hoarser winds howl murm'ring through the grove ;                                            [doom,
Where some unhappy wretch aye mourns his
Deep melancholy wand'ring through the gloom ;
Where solitude and meditation roam,
And where no dawning glimpse of hope can come ;
Place me in such an unfrequented shade,
To speak to none but with the mighty dead :
T' assist the pouring rains with brimful eyes,
And aid hoarse howling Boreas with my sighs.

When Winter's horrors left Britannia's isle,
And Spring in blooming verdure 'gan to smile ;
When rills, unbound, began to purl along,
And warbling larks renew'd the vernal song ;
When sprouting roses, deck'd in crimson dye,
Began to bloom—————

Hard fate ! then, noble Fred'ric, didst thou die :
Doom'd by inexorable Fate's decree,
Th' approaching Summer ne'er on Earth to see ;
In thy parch'd vitals burning fevers rage,
Whose flame the virtue of no herbs assuage ;
No cooling med'cine can its heat allay,
Relentless Destiny cries, " No delay."

Ye pow'rs ! and must a prince so noble die ?
(Whose equal breathes not under th' ambient sky :)
Ah ! must he die, then, in youth's full-blown prime,
Cut by the scythe of all-devouring Time !

Yes, Fate has doom'd! his soul now leaves its
And all are under the decree of Fate; [weight,
Th' irrevocable doom of Destiny
Pronounc'd, "All mortals must submissive die."
The princes wait around with weeping eyes,
And the dome echoes all with piercing cries:
With doleful noise the matrons scream around,
With female shrieks the vaulted roofs rebound:
A dismal noise! Now one promiscuous roar
Cries, "Ah! the noble Fred'ric is no more!"
The chief reluctant yields his latest breath;
His eye-lids settle in the shades of death:
Dark sable shades present before each eye,
And the deep vast abyss, eternity!
Through perpetuity's expanse he springs;
And o'er the vast profound he shoots on wings:
The soul to distant regions steers her flight,
And sails incumbent on inferior night:
With vast celerity she shoots away,
And meets the regions of eternal day,
To shine for ever in the heav'nly birth,
And leave the body here to rot on Earth.
The melancholy patriots round it wait,
And mourn the royal hero's timeless fate.
Disconsolate they move, a mournful band!
In solemn pomp they march along the strand:
The noble chief, interr'd in youthful bloom,
Lies in the dreary regions of the tomb.

Adown Augusta's pallid visage flow
The living pearls with unaffected woe :
Discons'late, hapless, see pale Britain mourn,
Abandon'd isle ! forsaken and forlorn !
With desp'rate hands her bleeding breast she beats ;
While o'er her, frowning, grim Destruction threatens,
She mourns with heart-felt grief, she rends her hair,
And fills with piercing cries th' echoing air.
Well may'st thou mourn thy patriot's timeless end,
Thy Muse's patron, and thy merchant's friend.
What heart shall pity thy full-flowing grief ?
What hand now deign to give thy poor relief ?
T' encourage arts, whose bounty now shall flow,
And learned science to promote, bestow ?
Who now protect thee from the hostile frown,
And to the injur'd Just return his own ?
From us'ry and oppression who shall guard
The helpless, and the threat'ning ruin ward ?
Alas ! the truly noble Briton's gone,
And left us here in ceaseless woe to moan !
Impending Desolation hangs around,
And Ruin hovers o'er the trembling ground :
The blooming Spring droops her enamell'd head,
Her glories wither, and her flow'rs all fade :
The sprouting leaves already drop away ;
Languish the living herbs with pale decay :
The bowing trees, see ! o'er the blasted heath,
Depending, bend beneath the weight of death :

Wrapp'd in th' expansive gloom, the lightnings
play,

Hoarse thunder mutters through th' aërial way :
All Nature feels the pangs, the storms renew,
And sprouts, with fatal haste, the baleful yew.

Some pow'r avert the threat'ning horrid weight,
And, godlike, prop Britannia's sinking state !
Minerva, hover o'er young George's soul ;
May sacred wisdom all his deeds control !
Exalted grandeur in each action shine,
His conduct all declare the youth divine.

Methinks I see him shine a glorious star,
Gentle in peace, but terrible in war !
Methinks each region does his praise resound,
And nations tremble at his name around !
His fame, through ev'ry distant kingdom rung,
Proclaims him of the race from whence he sprung :
So sable smoke, in volumes curls on high,
Heaps roll on heaps, and blacken all the sky :
Already so, his fame, methinks, is hurl'd
Around th' admiring venerating world.
So the benighted wand'rer, on his way,
Laments the absence of all-cheering day ;
Far distant from his friends and native home,
And not one glimpse does glimmer through the gloom :

In thought he breathes, each sigh his latest breath,
Present, each meditation, pits of death :

Irreg'lar, wild chimeras fill his soul,
And death, and dying, ev'ry step control.
Till, from the east there breaks a purple gleam,
His fears then vanish as a fleeting dream.
Hid in a cloud the Sun first shoots his ray,
Then breaks effulgent on th' illumin'd day ;
We see no spot then in the flaming rays,
Confus'd and lost within th' excessive blaze.

ODE

ON THE DUKE OF YORK'S SECOND DEPARTURE
FROM ENGLAND AS REAR ADMIRAL.

WRITTEN ABOARD THE ROYAL GEORGE.

A GAIN the royal streamers play !
To glory Edward hastes away ;
Adieu, ye happy sylvan bowers,
Where Pleasure's sprightly throng await !
Ye domes, where regal Grandeur towers
In purple ornaments of state !
Ye scenes where Virtue's sacred strain
Bids the tragic Muse complain !
Where Satire treads the comic stage,
To scourge and mend a venal age ;
Where music pours the soft, melodious lay,
And melting symphonies congenial play !
Ye silken sons of Ease, who dwell
In flowery vales of Peace, farewell !
In vain the goddess of the myrtle grove
Her charms ineffable displays ;
In vain she calls to happier realms of love,
Which Spring's unfading bloom arrays :

In vain her living roses blow,
 And ever-vernal pleasures grow ;
 The gentle sports of youth no more
     Allure him to the peaceful shore :
 Arcadian ease no longer charms,
     For war and fame alone can please.
 His throbbing bosom beats to arms, [seas.
 To war the hero moves, through storms and wintry

CHORUS.

The gentle sports of youth no more
 Allure me to the peaceful shore,
 For war and fame alone can please ; [seas.
 To war the hero moves, through storms and wintry

Though Danger's hostile train appears
 To thwart the course that Honour steers ;
 Unmov'd he leads the rugged way,
 Despising peril and dismay :
 His country calls ; to guard her laws,
 Lo ! every joy the gallant youth resigns ;
 Th' avenging naval sword he draws,
 And o'er the waves conducts her martial lines :
 Hark ! his sprightly clarions play ;
 Follow where he leads the way !
 The piercing fife, the sounding drum,
 Tell the deeps their master's come.

CHORUS.

Hark ! his sprightly clarions play,
 Follow where he leads the way !
 The piercing fife, the sounding drum,
 Tell the deeps their master's come.

Thus Alcmena's warlike son
 The thorny course of Virtue run,
 When, taught by her unerring voice,
     He made the glorious choice :
 Severe, indeed, th' attempt he knew,
 Youth's genial ardours to subdue :
 For Pleasure, Venus' lovely form assum'd ;
 Her glowing charms, divinely bright,
 In all the pride of beauty bloom'd,
 And struck his ravish'd sight.
     Transfix'd, amaz'd,
     Alcides gaz'd :
     Enchanting grace
     Adorn'd her face,
 And all his changing looks confest
 Th' alternate passions in his breast :
 Her swelling bosom half reveal'd,
 Her eyes that kindling raptures fir'd,
 A thousand tender pains instill'd,
 A thousand flatt'ring thoughts inspir'd :

Persuasion's sweetest language hung
 In melting accent on her tongue :
 Deep in his heart, the winning tale
     Infus'd a magic power ;
 She prest him to the rosy vale,
     And show'd th' Elysian bower :
 Her hand, that trembling ardours move,
 Conducts him blushing to the blest alcove :
     Ah ! see, o'erpower'd by Beauty's charms,
     And won by Love's resistless arms,
 The captive yields to Nature's soft alarms !

CHORUS.

    Ah ! see, o'erpower'd by Beauty's charms,
     And won by Love's resistless arms,
 The captive yields to Nature's soft alarms !

Assist, ye guardian powers above !
 From ruin save the son of Jove !
 By heavenly mandate Virtue came,
     And check'd the fatal flame :
 Swift as the quivering needle wheels,
 Whose point the magnet's influence feels,
     Inspir'd with awe,
     He, turning, saw
     The nymph divine
     Transcendent shine ;

And, while he view'd the godlike maid,
 His heart a sacred impulse sway'd :
 His eyes with ardent motion roll,
 And love, regret, and hope, divide his soul.
 But soon her words his pain destroy,
 And all the numbers of his heart,
 Return'd by her celestial art,
 Now swell'd to strains of nobler joy.
 Instructed thus by Virtue's lore,
 His happy steps the realms explore
 Where guilt and error are no more :
 The clouds that veil'd his intellectual ray,
 Before his breath dispelling, melt away :
 Broke loose from Pleasure's glittering chain,
 He scorn'd her soft inglorious reign :
 Convinc'd, resolv'd, to Virtue then he turn'd,
 And in his breast paternal glory burn'd.

CHORUS.

Broke loose from Pleasure's glittering chain,
 He scorn'd her soft inglorious reign :
 Convinc'd, resolv'd, to Virtue then he turn'd,
 And in his breast paternal glory burn'd.

So when on Britain's other hope she shone,
 Like him the royal youth she won :
 Thus taught, he bids his fleet advance
 To curb the power of Spain and France :

Aloft his martial ensigns flow,
 And hark ! his brazen trumpets blow !
     The wat'ry profound,
     Awak'd by the sound,
     All trembles around :
 While Edward o'er the azure fields
     Fraternal wonder wields :
 High on the deck behold he stands,
 And views around his floating bands
     In awful order join :
 They, while the warlike trumpet's strain,
 Deep sounding, swells along the main,
     Extend th' embattled line.
 Then Britain triumphantly saw
     His armament ride
     Supreme on the tide,
 And o'er the vast ocean give law.

CHORUS.

Then Britain triumphantly saw
     His armament ride
     Supreme on the tide,
 And o'er the vast ocean give law.

Now with shouting peals of joy,
 The ships their horrid tubes display,
 Tier over tier in terrible array,
 And wait the signal to destroy :

The sailors all burn to engage :
 Hark ! hark ! their shouts arise,
 And shake the vaulted skies !
 Exulting with bacchanal rage.
 Then, Neptune, the hero revere,
 Whose power is superior to thine !
 And, when his proud squadrons appear,
 The trident and chariot resign !

CHORUS.

Then, Neptune, the hero revere,
 Whose power is superior to thine !
 And, when his proud squadrons appear,
 The trident and chariot resign !

Albion, wake thy grateful voice !
 Let thy hills and vales rejoice :
 O'er remotest hostile regions
 Thy victorious flags are known ;
 Thy resistless martial legions
 Dreadful move from zone to zone ;
 Thy flaming bolts unerring roll,
 And all the trembling globe control :
 Thy seamen, invincibly true,
 No menace, no fraud, can subdue :
     To thy great trust
     Severely just,

All dissonant strife they disclaim :
 To meet the foe,
 Their bosoms glow ;
 Who only are rivals in fame.

CHORUS.

Thy seamen, invincibly true,
 No menace, no fraud, can subdue :
 All dissonant strife they disclaim,
 And only are rivals in fame.
 For Edward tune your harps, ye Nine !
 Triumphant strike each living string,
 For him, in ecstasy divine,
 Your choral Io Pæans sing !
 For him your festive concerts breathe !
 For him your flowery garlands wreathe !
 Wake ! O wake the joyful song !
 Ye fauns of the woods,
 Ye nymphs of the floods,
 The musical current prolong !
 Ye sylvans, that dance on the plain,
 To swell the grand chorus accord !
 Ye tritons, that sport on the main,
 Exulting, acknowledge your lord !
 Till all the wild numbers combin'd,
 That floating proclaim
 Our admiral's name,
 In symphony roll on the wind !

CHORUS.

Wake! O wake the joyful song!
 Ye sylvans, that dance on the plain,
 Ye tritons, that sport on the main,
 The musical current prolong!

O! while consenting Britons praise,
 These votive measures deign to hear!
 For thee my Muse awakes her lays,
 For thee th' unequal viol plays,
 The tribute of a soul sincere.
 Nor thou, illustrious chief, refuse
 The incense of a nautic Muse!
 For ah! to whom shall Neptune's sons complain,
 But him whose arms unrivall'd rule the main?
 Deep on my grateful breast
 Thy favour is imprest:
 No happy son of wealth or fame
 To court a royal patron came!
 A hapless youth, whose vital page
 Was one sad lengthen'd tale of woe,
 Where ruthless Fate, impelling tides of rage,
 Bade wave on wave in dire succession flow,
 To glittering stars and titled names unknown,
 Preferr'd his suit to thee alone.
 The tale your sacred pity mov'd;
 You felt, consented, and approv'd.

Then touch my strings, ye blest Pierian quire !
 Exalt to rapture every happy line !
 My bosom kindle with Promethean fire !
 And swell each note with energy divine.
 No more to plaintive sounds of woe
 Let the vocal numbers flow !
 Perhaps the chief to whom I sing
 May yet ordain auspicious days,
 To wake the lyre with nobler lays,
 And tune to war the nervous string.
 For who, untaught in Neptune's school,
 Though all the powers of genius he possess,
 Though disciplin'd by classic rule,
 With daring pencil can display
 The fight that thunders on the watery way,
 And all its horrid incidents express ?
 To him, my Muse, these warlike strains belong !
 Source of thy hope, and patron of thy song.

CHORUS.

To him, my Muse, these warlike strains belong !
 Source of thy hope, and patron of thy song.

THE FOND LOVER,

A BALLAD.

A NYMPH of ev'ry charm possess'd,
That native virtue gives,
Within my bosom all confess'd,
In bright idea lives.
For her my trembling numbers play
Along the pathless deep,
While sadly social with my lay
The winds in concert weep.

If beauty's sacred influence charms
The rage of adverse Fate,
Say why the pleasing soft alarms
Such cruel pangs create?
Since all her thoughts by sense refin'd,
Unartful truth express,
Say wherefore sense and truth are join'd
To give my soul distress?

If when her blooming lips I press,
Which vernal fragrance fills,
Through all my veins the sweet excess
In trembling motion thrills ;
Say whence this secret anguish grows,
Congenial with my joy ?
And why the touch, where pleasure glows,
Shou'd vital peace destroy

If when my fair, in melting song,
Awakes the vocal lay,
Not all your notes, ye Phocian throng,
Such pleasing sounds convey ;
Thus wrapt all o'er with fondest love,
Why heaves this broken sigh ?
For then my blood forgets to move,
I gaze, adore, and die.

Accept, my charming maid, the strain
Which you alone inspire ;
To thee the dying strings complain
That quiver on my lyre.
O ! give this bleeding bosom ease,
That knows no joy but thee ;
Teach me thy happy art to please,
Or deign to love like me.

THE

DEMAGOGUE.

BOLD is th' attempt, in these licentious times,
When with such towering strides Sedition
climbs,

With sense or satire to confront her power,
And charge her in the great decisive hour :
Bold is the man, who, on her conquering day,
Stands in the pass of Fate to bar her way :
Whose heart, by frowning Arrogance unaw'd,
Or the deep-lurking snares of specious Fraud,
The threats of Giant-faction can deride,
And stem, with stubborn arm, her roaring tide.
For him unnumber'd brooding ills await,
Scorn, malice, insolence, reproach, and hate :
At him, who dares this legion to defy,
A thousand mortal shafts in secret fly :

Revenge, exulting with malignant joy,
Pursues th' incautious victim to destroy :
And Slander strives, with unrelenting aim,
To spit her blasting venom on his name :
Around him Faction's harpies flap their wings,
And rhyming vermine dart their feeble stings :
In vain the wretch retreats, while in full cry,
Fierce on his throat the hungry blood-hounds fly.
Inclos'd with perils thus the conscious Muse,
Alarm'd, though undismay'd, her danger views.
Nor shall unmanly terror now control
The strong resentment struggling in her soul ;
While Indignation, with resistless strain,
Pours her full deluge through each swelling vein.
By the vile fear that chills the coward breast,
By sordid caution is her voice suppress'd,
While Arrogance, with big theatric rage,
Audacious struts on Pow'r's imperial stage ;
While o'er our country, at her dread command,
Black Discord, screaming, shakes her fatal brand :
While, in defiance of maternal laws,
The sacrilegious sword Rebellion draws ;
Shall she at this important hour retire,
And quench in Lethe's wave her genuine fire ?
Honour forbid ! she fears no threat'ning foe,
When conscious Justice bids her bosom glow :
And while she kindles the reluctant flame,
Let not the prudent voice of Friendship blame !

She feels the sting of keen Resentment goad,
Though guiltless yet of Satire's thorny road.
Let other Quixotes, frantic with renown,
Plant on their brows a tawdry paper crown!
While fools adore, and vassal-bards obey,
Let the great Monarch Ass through Gotham bray!
Our poet brandishes no mimic sword,
To rule a realm of dunces self-explor'd:
No bleeding victims curse his iron sway;
Nor murder'd reputation marks his way.
True to herself, unarm'd, the fearless Muse
Through Reason's path her steady course pursues:
True to herself advances, undeterr'd
By the rude clamours of the savage herd.
As some bold surgeon, with inserted steel,
Probes deep the putrid sore, intent to heal;
So the rank ulcers that our Patriot load,
Shall she with caustic's healing fires corrode.

Yet ere from patient slumber Satire wakes,
And brandishes th' avenging scourge of snakes;
Yet ere her eyes, with lightning's vivid ray,
The dark recesses of his heart display;
Let Candour own th' undaunted pilot's power,
Felt in severest Danger's trying hour!
Let Truth consenting, with the trump of Fame,
His glory, in auspicious strains, proclaim!

He bade the tempest of the battle roar,
That thunder'd o'er the deep from shore to shore.
How oft, amid the horrors of the war,
Chain'd to the bloody wheels of Danger's car,
How oft my bosom at thy name has glow'd,
And from my beating heart applause bestow'd ;
Applause, that, genuine as the blush of youth
Unknown to guile, was sanctify'd by truth !
How oft I blest the Patriot's honest rage,
That greatly dar'd to lash the guilty age ;
That, rapt with zeal, pathetic, bold, and strong,
Roll'd the full tide of eloquence along ;
That Power's big torrent brav'd with manly pride,
And all Corruption's venal arts defy'd !
When from afar those penetrating eyes
Beheld each secret hostile scheme arise ;
Watch'd every motion of the faithless foe,
Each plot o'erturn'd, and baffled every blow :
A fond enthusiast, kindling at thy name,
I glow'd in secret with congenial flame ;
While my young bosom, to deceit unknown,
Believ'd all real virtue thine alone.

Such then he seem'd, and such indeed might be,
If Truth with Error ever could agree !
Sure Satire never with a fairer hand
Portray'd the object she design'd to brand.
Alas ! that Virtue should so soon decay,
And Faction's wild applause thy heart betray !

The Muse with secret sympathy relents,
And human failings, as a friend, laments:
But when those dangerous errors, big with fate,
Spread discord and distraction through the state,
Reason should then exert her utmost power
To guard our passions in that fatal hour.

There was a time, ere yet his conscious heart
Durst from the hardy path of Truth depart,
While yet with generous sentiment it glow'd,
A stranger to Corruption's slippery road ;
There was a time our Patriot durst avow
Those honest maxims he despises now.
How did he then his country's wounds bewail,
And at the insatiate German vulture rail !
Whose cruel talons Albion's entrails tore,
Whose hungry maw was glutted with her gore ?
The mists of error, that in darkness held
Our reason, like the Sun, his voice dispell'd.
And lo ! exhausted, with no power to save,
We view Britannia panting on the wave ;
Hung round her neck, a millstone's pond'rous weight
Drags down the struggling victim to her fate !
While horror at the thought our bosom feels,
We bless the man this horror who reveals.

But what alarming thoughts the heart amaze,
When on this Janus' other face we gaze ;

For, lo! possess of Power's imperial reins,
Our chief those visionary ills disdains !
Alas ! how soon the steady Patriot turns !
In vain this change astonish'd England mourns !
Her vital blood, that pour'd from every vein,
So late, to fill th' accurs'd Westphalian drain,
Then ceas'd to flow ; the vulture now no more
With unrelenting rage her bowels tore.
His magic rod transforms the bird of prey !
The millstone feels the touch, and melts away !
And, strange to tell, still stranger to believe,
What eyes ne'er saw, and heart could ne'er conceive,
At once, transplanted by the sorcerer's wand,
Columbian hills in distant Austria stand !
America, with pangs before unknown,
Now with Westphalia utters groan for groan :
By sympathy she fevers with her fires,
Burns as she burns, and as she dies expires.
From maxims long adopted thus he flew,
For ever changing, yet for ever true ;
Swoln with success, and with applause inflam'd,
He scorn'd all caution, all advice disclaim'd ;
Arm'd with war's thunder, he embrac'd no more
Those patriot principles maintain'd before.
Perverse, inconstant, obstinate, and proud,
Drunk with ambition, turbulent and loud,
He wrecks us headlong on that dreadful strand
He once devoted all his powers to brand !

Our hapless country views with weeping eyes,
On every side, o'erwhelming horrors rise ;
Drain'd of her wealth, exhausted of her power,
And agoniz'd as in the mortal hour ;
Her armies wasted with incessant toils,
Or doom'd to perish in contagious soils,
To guard some needy royal plunderer's throne,
And sent to fall in battles not their own.
Th' enormous debt at home, though long o'er-
charg'd,
With grievous burthens annually enlarg'd :
Crush'd with increasing taxes to the ground,
That suck, like vampyres, every bleeding wound :
Ground with severe distress th' industrious poor,
Driven by the ruthless landlord to the door.

While thus our land her hapless fate bemoans
In secret, and with inward sorrow groans ;
Though deck'd with tinsel trophies of renown,
All gash'd with sores, with anguish bending down,
Can yet some impious parricide appear,
Who strives to make this anguish more severe ?
Can one exist, so much his country's foe,
To bid her wounds with fresh effusion flow ?
There can ; to him in vain she lifts her eyes,
His soul relentless hears her piercing sighs !
Shameless of front, impatient of control,
He spurs her onward to Destruction's goal !

Nor yet content on curst Westphalia's shore
With mad profusion to exhaust her store,
Still Peace his pompous fulminations brand,
As pirates tremble at the sight of land :
Still to new wars the public eye he turns,
Defies all peril, and at reason spurns ;
Till prest with danger, by distress assail'd,
That baffled courage, and o'er skill prevail'd ;
Till foundering in the storm himself had brew'd,
He strives at last its horrors to elude.

Some wretched shift must still protect his name,
And to the guiltless head transfer his shame :
Then hearing modest Diffidence oppose
His rash advice, that golden time he chose ;
And while big surges threaten'd to o'erwhelm
The ship, ingloriously forsook the helm.

But all th' events collected to relate,
Let us his actions recapitulate.

He first assum'd, by mean perfidious art,
Those patriot tenets foreign to his heart :
Next, by his country's fond applauses swell'd,
Thrust himself forward into power, and held
The reins on principles which he alone,
Grown drunk and wanton with success, could own ;
Betray'd her interest and abus'd her trust ;
Then, deaf to prayers, forsook her in disgust ;
With tragic mummery, and most vile grimace,
Rode through the city with a woeful face,

As in distress, a Patriot out of place !
 Insults his generous prince, and in the day
 Of trouble skulks, because he cannot sway !
 In foreign climes embroils him with allies !
 And bids at home the flames of Discord rise !

She comes! from Hell th' exulting Fury springs!
 With grim Destruction sailing on her wings !
 Around her scream an hundred harpies fell !
 An hundred demons shriek with hideous yell !
 From where, in mortal venom dipt on high,
 Full-drawn the deadliest shafts of Satire fly,
 Where Churchill brandishes his clumsy club,
 And Wilkes unloads his excremental tub,
 Down to where Entick, awkward and unclean,
 Crawls on his native dust, a worm obscene !
 While with unnumber'd wings, from van to rear,
 Myriads of nameless buzzing drones appear :
 From their dark cells the angry insects swarm,
 And every little sting attempt to arm.
 Here Chaplains, Privileges, moulder round,
 And feeble Scourges, rot upon the ground :
 Here hungry Kenrick strives, with fruitless aim,
 With Grub-street slander to extend his name :
 At Bruin flies the slaving, snarling cur,
 But only fills his famish'd jaws with fur.
 Here Baldwin spreads th' assassinating cloke,
 Where lurking Rancour gives the secret stroke ;
 While gorg'd with filth, around this senseless block,
 A swarm of spider-bards obsequious flock :

While his demure Welch goat, with lifted hoof,
 In Poet's-Corner hangs each flimsy woof;
 And frisky grown, attempts, with awkward prance,
 On Wit's gay theatre to bleat and dance.
 Here, seiz'd with iliac passion, mouthing Leech,
 Too low, alas! for Satire's whip to reach,
 From his black entrails, Faction's common sewer,
 Disgorges all her excremental store.

With equal pity and regret the Muse
 The thundering storms that rage around her views;
 Impartial views the tides of Discord blend,
 Where lordly rogues for power and place contend;
 Were not her patriot-heart with anguish torn,
 Would eye th' opposing chiefs with equal scorn.
 Let Freedom's deadliest foes for freedom bawl,
 Alike to her who govern or who fall!
 Aloof she stands, all unconcern'd and mute,
 While the rude rabble bellow, "Down with Bute!"
 While villany the scourge of Justice bilks,
 Howl on, ye ruffians! "Liberty and Wilkes."
 Let some soft mummy of a peer, who stains
 His rank, some sodden lump of ass's brains,
 To that abandon'd wretch his sanction give;
 Support his slander, and his wants relieve!
 Let the great hydra roar aloud for Pitt,
 And power and wisdom all to him submit!
 Let proud Ambition's sons, with hearts severe,
 Like parricides, their mother's bowels tear!

Sedition her triumphant flag display,
 And in embodied ranks her troops array !
 While coward Justice, trembling on her seat,
 Like a vile slave descends to lick her feet !
 Nor here let Censure draw her awful blade,
 If from her theme the wayward Muse has stray'd !
 Sometimes th' impetuous torrent, o'er its mounds
 Redundant bursting, swamps th' adjacent grounds ;
 But rapid, and impatient of delay,
 Through the deep channel still pursues its way.

Our pilot now retir'd, no pleasure knows,
 But every man and measure to oppose ;
 Like Æsop's cur, still snarling and perverse,
 Bloated with envy, to mankind a curse,
 No more at council his advice will lend,
 But with all others who advise contend :
 He bids distraction o'er his country blaze,
 Then, swelter'd with revenge, retreats to Hayes :
 Swallows the pension ; but, aware of blame,
 Transfers the proffer'd peerage to his dame.
 The felon thus of old, his name to save,
 His pilfer'd mutton to a brother gave. [know

But should some frantic wretch, whom all men
 To Nature and humanity a foe,
 Deaf to the widow's moan and orphan's cry,
 And dead to shame and friendship's social tie ;
 Should such a miscreant, at the hour of death,
 To thee his fortunes and domains bequeath ;

With cruel rancour wresting from his heirs
 What Nature taught them to expect as theirs ;
 Wouldst thou with this detested robber join,
 Their legal wealth to plunder and purloin ?
 Forbid it, Heaven ! thou canst not be so base,
 To blast thy name with infamous disgrace !
 The Muse who wakes, yet triumphs o'er thy hate,
 Dares not so black a thought anticipate :
 By Heaven, the Muse her ignorance betrays ;
 For while a thousand eyes with wonder gaze,
 Though gorg'd and glutted with his country's store,
 The vulture pounces on the shining ore ;
 In his strong talons gripes the golden prey,
 And from the weeping orphan bears away.

The great, th' alarming deed is yet to come,
 That, big with fate, strikes Expectation dumb.
 O ! patient, injur'd England, yet unveil
 Thy eyes, and listen to the Muse's tale,
 That true as honour, unadorn'd with art,
 Thy wrongs in fair succession shall impart !

Ere yet the desolating god of war
 Had crush'd pale Europe with his iron car,
 Had shook her shores with terrible alarms,
 And thunder'd o'er the trembling deep, "To arms!"
 In climes remote, beyond the setting Sun,
 Beyond th' Atlantic wave, his rage begun.
 Alas ! poor country, how with pangs unknown
 To Britain did thy filial bosom groan !

What savage armies did thy realms invade,
Unarm'd, and distant from maternal aid !
Thy cottages with cruel flames consum'd,
And the sad owner to destruction doom'd ;
Mangled with wounds, with pungent anguish torn,
Or left to perish naked and forlorn !
What carnage reek'd upon thy ruin'd plain !
What infants bled ! what virgins shriek'd in vain !
In ev'ry look distraction seem'd to glare,
Each heart was rack'd with horror and despair.
To Albion then, with groans and piercing cries,
America lift up her dying eyes ;
To generous Albion pour'd forth all her pain,
To whom the wretched never wept in vain.
She heard, and instant to relieve her flew,
Her arm the gleaming sword of vengeance drew ;
Far o'er the ocean wave her voice was known,
That shook the deep abyss from zone to zone :
She bade the thunder of the battle glow,
And pour'd the storm of lightning on the foe ;
Nor ceas'd till, crown'd with victory complete,
Pale Spain and France lay trembling at her feet.
Her fears dispell'd, and all her foes remov'd,
Her fertile grounds industriously improv'd,
Her towns with trade, with fleets her harbours
crown'd,
And Plenty smiling on her plains around ;

Thus blest with all that commerce could supply,
 America regards with jealous eye,
 And canker'd heart, the parent, who so late
 Had snatch'd her gasping from the jaws of Fate ;
 Who now, with wars for her begun, relax'd,
 With grievous aggravated burthens tax'd,
 Her treasures wasted by a hungry brood
 Of cormorants, that suck her vital blood ;
 Who now of her demands that tribute due,
 For whom alone th' avenging sword she drew.

Scarce had America the just request
 Receiv'd, when kindling in her faithless breast
 Resentment glows, enrag'd sedition burns,
 And, lo ! the mandate of our laws she spurns !
 Her secret hate, incapable of shame
 Or gratitude, incenses to a flame,
 Derides our power, bids insurrection rise,
 Insults our honour, and our laws defies ;
 O'er all her coasts is heard th' audacious roar,
 " England shall rule America no more !"

Soon as on Britain's shore th' alarm was heard,
 Stern indignation in her look appear'd ;
 Yet, loth to punish, she her scourge withheld
 From her perfidious sons who thus rebell'd :
 Now stung with anguish, now with rage assail'd,
 Till pity in her soul at last prevail'd,
 Determin'd not to draw her penal steel
 Till fair Persuasion made her last appeal.

And now the great decisive hour drew nigh,
 She on her darling patriot cast her eye ;
 His voice like thunder will support her cause,
 Enforce her dictates, and sustain her laws ;
 Rich with the spoils, his sanction will dismay,
 And bid th' insurgents tremble and obey.

He comes!—but where, th' amazing theme to hit,

Discover language or ideas fit?                    [ger,
 Splay-footed words, that hector, bounce, and swag-
 The sense to puzzle, and the brain to stagger?
 Our patriot comes! with frenzy fir'd, the Muse
 With allegoric eye his figure views!
 Like the grim portress of hell-gate he stands,
 Bellona's scourge hangs trembling in his hands!
 Around him, fiercer than the ravenous shark,
 "A cry of hell-hounds' never-ceasing bark!"
 And lo! th' enormous giant to bedeck,
 A golden millstone hangs upon his neck!
 On him Ambition's vulture darts her claws,
 And with voracious rage his liver gnaws.
 Our patriot comes!—the buckles of whose shoes
 Not Cromwell's self was worthy to unloose.
 Repeat his name in thunder to the skies!
 Ye hills fall prostrate, and ye vales arise!
 Through Faction's wilderness prepare the way!
 Prepare, ye listening senates, to obey!

The idol of the mob, behold him stand,
The alpha and omega of the land !

Methinks I hear the bellowing demagogue
Dumb-sounding declamations disemogue,
Expressions of immeasurable length,
Where pompous jargon fills the place of strength ;
Where fulminating, rumbling eloquence,
With loud theatric rage, bombards the sense ;
And words, deep rank'd in horrible array,
Exasperated metaphors convey !
With these auxiliaries, drawn up at large,
He bids enrag'd Sedition beat the charge ;
From England's sanguine hope his aid withdraws,
And lists to guide in Insurrection's cause.
And lo ! where, in her sacrilegious hand,
The parricide lifts high her burning brand !
Go, while she yet suspends her impious aim,
With those infernal lungs arouse the flame !
Though England merits not her least regard,
Thy friendly voice gold boxes shall reward !
Arise, embark ! prepare thy martial car,
To lead her armies and provoke the war !
Rebellion wakes, impatient of delay,
The signal her black ensigns to display.

To thee, whose soul, all steadfast and serene,
Beholds the tumults that distract our scene ;

And, in the calmer seats of wisdom plac'd,
Enjoys the sweets of sentiment and taste ;
To thee, O Marius ! whom no factions sway,
Th' impartial Muse devotes her honest lay !
In her fond breast no prostituted aim,
Nor venal hope, assumes fair Friendship's name :
Sooner shall Churchill's feeble meteor-ray,
That led our foundering demagogue astray,
Darkling to grope and flounce in Error's night,
Eclipse great Mansfield's strong meridian light,
Than shall the change of fortune, time, or place,
Thy generous friendship in my heart efface !
O ! whether wandering from thy country far,
And plung'd amid the murdering scenes of war ;
Or in the blest retreat of Virtue laid,
Where Contemplation spreads her awful shade ;
If ever to forget thee I have power,
May Heaven desert me at my latest hour !

Still Satire bids my bosom beat to arms,
And throb with irresistible alarms.
Like some full river charg'd with falling show'rs,
Still o'er my breast her swelling deluge pours.
But Rest and Silence now, who wait beside,
With their strong flood-gates bar th' impetuous tide.

ON THE UNCOMMON SCARCITY OF POETRY,

IN THE GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE FOR DECEMBER LAST,
(1755.)

BY I. W. A SAILOR.

THE springs of Helicon can Winter bind,
And chill the fervour of a poet's mind?
What though the low'ring skies and driving storm
The scenes of Nature wide around deform,
The birds no longer sing, nor roses blow,
And all the landscape lies conceal'd in snow;
Yet rigid Winter still is known to spare
The brighter beauties of the lovely fair:
Ye lovely fair, your sacred influence bring,
And with your smiles anticipate the Spring.
Yet what avails the smiles of lovely maids,
Or vernal suns that glad the flow'ry glades;
The wood's green foliage, or the varying scene
Of fields and lawns, and gliding streams between,

What, to the wretch whom harder fates ordain,
Through the long year to plough the stormy main !
No murmuring streams, no sound of distant sheep,
Or song of birds invite his eyes to sleep :
By toil exhausted, when he sinks to rest,
Beneath his sun-burnt head no flow'rs are prest :
Down on his deck his fainting limbs are laid,
No spreading trees dispense their cooling shade,
No zephyrs round his aching temples play,
No fragrant breezes noxious heats allay.
The rude rough wind which stern Æolus sends,
Drives on in blasts, and while it cools, offends.
He wakes, but hears no music from the grove ;
No varied landscape courts his eye to rove.
O'er the wide main he looks to distant skies,
Where nought but waves on rolling waves arise ;
The boundless view fatigues his aching sight,
Nor yields his eye one subject of delight.
No "female face divine" with cheering smiles,
The ling'ring hours of dang'rous toil beguiles.
Yet distant beauty oft his genius fires,
And oft with love of sacred song inspires.
Ev'n I, the least of all the tuneful train,
On the rough ocean try this artless strain,
Rouse then, ye bards, who happier fortunes prove,
And tune the lyre to nature or to love.

DESCRIPTION
OF A
NINETY GUN SHIP,

[FROM THE GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE, MAY, 1759.]

A MIDST a wood of oaks with canvass leaves,
Which form'd a floating forest on the waves,
There stood a tow'r, whose vast stupendous size
Rear'd its huge mast, and seem'd to gore the skies,
From which a bloody pendant stretch'd afar
Its comet-tail, denouncing ample war ;
Two younger giants* of inferior height
Display'd their sporting streamers to the sight :
The base below, another island rose,
To pour Britannia's thunder on her foes :
With bulk immense, like Ætna, she surveys
Above the rest, the lesser Cyclades :
Profuse in gold, in lustre like the Sun,
Splendid with regal luxury she shone,

* Fore and mizen masts.

174 DESCRIPTION OF A NINETY GUN SHIP.

Lavish in wealth, luxuriant in her pride,
Behold the gilded mass exulting ride !
Her curious prow divides the silver waves,
In the salt ooze her radiant sides she laves,
From stem to stern, her wondrous length survey,
Rising a beauteous Venus from the sea ;
Her stem, with naval drapery engrav'd,
Show'd mimic warriors, who the tempest brav'd ;
Whose visage fierce defied the lashing surge,
Of Gallic pride the emblematic scourge.
Tremendous figures, lo ! her stern displays,
And holds a Pharos* of distinguish'd blaze ;
By night it shines a star of brightest form,
To point her way, and light her through the storm :
See dread engagements pictur'd to the life,
See admirals maintain the glorious strife :
Here breathing images in painted ire,
Seem for their country's freedom to expire ;
Victorious fleets the flying fleets pursue,
Here strikes a ship, and there exults a crew :
A frigate here blows up with hideous glare,
And adds fresh terrors to the bleeding war.
But leaving feigned ornaments, behold !
Eight hundred youths of heart and sinew bold,
Mount up her shrouds, or to her tops ascend,
Some haul her braces, some her foresail bend ;

* Her poop lanthorn.

DESCRIPTION OF A NINETY GUN SHIP. 175

Full ninety brazen guns her port-holes fill,
Ready with nitrous magazines to kill,
From dread embrazures formidably peep,
And seem to threaten ruin to the deep ;
On pivots fix'd, the well-rang'd swivels lie,
Or to point downward, or to brave the sky ;
While peteraroes swell with infant rage,
Prepar'd, though small, with fury to engage.
Thus arm'd, may Britain long her state maintain,
And with triumphant navies rule the main.
