KEY TO PHONETIC SPELLING.

There at present exists the greatest disparity between the spelling and the pronunciation of a word, the literary result of which is, that no one, not even an Englishman, can tell the spelling of an unknown word from its sound, or its sound from its spelling. The moral result may be briefly summed up in the following startling statistics: out of our population of 16,000,000 persons, 5,000,000 cannot read, and 8,000,000 cannot write; out of those married in 1846, 1 man in 3, and 1 woman in 2, signed the marriage register with marks. The amount of moral evil which these few words proclaim, in attesting the want of education among the poorer classes, is frightful to contemplate.

With a view of alleviating this fearful state of educational destitution, it is proposed to revise the English alphabet, rejecting three letters (k q x), and adding seventeen (ɛ ạ ɑ ɒ ɷ ʉ ʊ i ɔ ɤ ɥ ɕ t ʧ ʃ ʒ ŋ), whereby an alphabet of forty letters may be furnished, which will allow of every word being spelled as spoken. For its theory, see Essentials of Phonetics; for the mode in which phonetic reading should be taught to those who are unable to read, see the Phonetic Primer and Teacher's Guide to Phonetic Reading; for the manner in which those who have been taught phonetically may learn to read the common or romanic orthography, see Romanic Reading explained to Phonetic Readers; for the best mode in which those who can read romanically may acquire ease and rapidity in reading phonetically, see Phonetic Spelling familiarly explained, for the use of Romanic Readers; and, finally, for a consideration of all the arguments for and against the general introduction of phonetic spelling, see a Plea for Phonetic Spelling. All the above works are by A. J. Ellis, B.A., and may be obtained of any bookseller, by giving the address of the London publisher, Fred Pitman, 1, Queen's Head Passage, Paternoster Row.
